Three of the rear cars of the express were telescoped and the first car of the extra train was also wrecked. The passengers in these cars were terribly mangled, many being killed outright, while others had limbs and bodies maimed. Word was at once sent to Reading and a special train with physicians and nurses was sent to the scene as quickly as it could possibly be put in readiness.

Exeter is a flag station and has no telephone communication. It is stated that the passengers on the second train were mostly from Morristown, and that several from the borough were killed and many injured.

United States Senator Boies Penrose and Gen. E. Burd Grubb were passengers on the wrecked train. The rear end of the car in which they were riding was crushed and the two gentlemen, though badly shaken up, were uninjured. Senator Penrose did not know how many of the passengers of the rear cars were killed or injured, but said when the train left the scene those needing attention were being cared for by physicians and residents of the neighborhood. He said he learned that several were killed and many badly injured, but as to the number he could not say. A few of those whose injuries were slight came on the train to Philadelphia, but the train left soon after the accident and the more seriously injured were left at the scene and were to be sent to Reading.

The second relief train left Exeter at 2:50 a. m. Saturday. It brought to Reading 20 additional bodies. The names are not yet known. Most of the seriously injured were brought here on the first relief train. The rest of the injured were taken to Pottstown and Morristown.

The northbound track has been cleared and the first train through to this city from Philadelphia was the Buffalo express which left Philadelphia at 11:36 p. m.

EX-GOV. R. P. FLOWER DEAD.

He Became Ill in the Eastport Country Club, Eastport, L. I., and Died Within a Few Hours of Heart Failure.

NEW YORK, May 13.—Former Gov. Roswell P. Flower died Friday night at 10:30 at the Eastport Country club, at Eastport, L. I. Mr. Flower was taken ill early in the day with a severe attack of acute indigestion. In the afternoon symptoms of heart failure supervened and he grew steadily worse until the time of his death. The attack of heart failure was accompanied by a fainting spell and Mr. Flower's family in New York city were quickly notified. Mrs. Flower and the former governor's nephew, Frederick S. Flower, accompanied by Dr. Thomas H. Allen, Mr. Flower's physician, left at once on a special train for Eastport. When they arrived there Mr. Flower had somewhat recovered but Friday night the attack of heart failure was marked and Mr. Flower became unconscious an hour or more before his death.

THE FILIPINOS AGAIN ROUTED

Gen. Lawton Attacked the Rebels Behind Strong Fortifications at San Ildefonso and Drove Them Out.

NEW YORK, May 13.—A dispatch to the Herald from Manila says: The Filipino forces which were entrenched behind strong fortifications at San Ildefonso, north of Balinag, were driven from their position by Gen. Lawton. One American was wounded.

Mrs. Choate at a Public Function.

LONDON, May 13.—Mrs. Joseph H. Choate, wife of United States Ambassador Choate, officiated for the first time at a public function Friday afternoon, opening the amateur art exhibition at Cromwell house in the presence of a distinguished company.

Fatal Accident in a Colliery.

CENTRALIA, Pa., May 13.—An accident at the Centralia colliery Friday resulted in the death of four men and the fatal injury of two others. Six others sustained cuts and bruises.

MICHIGAN FIEND.

He Shot Six Persons, and Wife, Uncle and Grandmother Were Killed.

His Wound May Prove Fatal—When the Murderer Attacked His Wife She Was Sitting Up With the Remains of Her Mother.

HOWARD CITY, Mich., May 12.—Jos. Harvey Wednesday night killed his wife, his uncle, Robert Pierson, and his grandmother, and mortally wounded his three months' old child and his father-in-law, John Logenslayer, and finally shot himself, inflicting a wound which is expected to prove fatal.

Harvey's uncle and grandmother live a mile north of town. The murderer went there Wednesday evening. He asserts that Pierson, his uncle, was quarreling with his grandmother, and that he interfered; that whereupon Pierson stabbed and killed the old lady, aged 70, and that he (Harvey) retaliated by shooting his uncle. After shooting Pierson, Harvey stabbed him three times.

Harvey then returned to his home, two miles southwest of town. Arriving there he shot his wife twice, killing her. He then fired at his three-months-old baby, the ball going into its arm. Next Harvey entered his father-in-law's room and shot him twice, inflicting, however, no fatal injury. He then turned the revolver on himself, shooting himself in the neck. Harvey's wife when attacked, was sitting up with the remains of her mother, who died Wednesday.

The Pierson home presents a horrible appearance. Pierson's body was found in a chair and that of the old lady on the floor clad only in night dress. There are signs of a desperate struggle between Harvey and his grandmother, but no indication of a fight between the two men.

Harvey himself Thursday informed the sheriff of the murders at Pierson's house. He was then arrested for murdering his wife. He has nothing to say about the tragedies at his own home. There are strong threats of lynching.

It transpires that Harvey, on reaching the home of his late mother-in-law, said nothing about his terrible acts at Pierson's house. He offered to sit up by the corpse of his wife's mother. Accordingly, the others retired. It was 4 o'clock Thursday morning when Harvey went to his wife's room and killed her, and attempted to slay his baby and his father-in-law. He also fired at Miss Labard, a teacher who boarded in the house, but without effect. Harvey's wound is serious, but he is certain to recover. He was employed in a furniture factory and is only 30 years of age. The cause of his terrible act has not been determined.

FREIGHT HANDLERS' STRIKE.

The Situation at Buffalo Assuming a Serious Aspect—They Demand An Increase of Wages.

BUFFALO, N. Y., May 12.—The strike among the members of the Freight Handlers union at this port is gradually assuming a serious aspect. There are about 2,000 of those men pledged not to work for any contractor and many of these men are now on a strike. Originally a few of them went out in sympathy with the grain shovelers and Thursday night it was believed that in case the scoopers gain their point they will remain out until their difficulties have been satisfactorily settled.

At the Lehigh Valley docks the company called in a lot of yardmen and other employes to take the place of the strikers. At the Central, Erie and other big docks the work was practically at a standstill, the few freight handlers who were at work being non-union men.

The freight handlers demand an increase of wages from 25 cents an hour, the present rate, to 30 cents an hour for working outside of the freight houses, and 20 an hour for inside work. They also ask for the abolition of the contract system.

Jumped From the Sixth Story Window.

BATTLE CREEK, Mich., May 12.—Thursday night a woman committed suicide at the sanitarium by jumping out of a sixth story window. She was terribly mangled. Death was instantaneous. The sanitarium officials refuse to divulge the woman's name. It is rumored that she is a prominent Chicago woman.

Murder and Suicide.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., May 12.—George Hinkley, a barber employed in the Plankinton house shop, shot Miss Bertha Kruege and then killed himself Thursday afternoon. The tragedy is the result of a love affair. A corset steel deflected the first bullet and the girl escaped with nothing more serious than a flesh wound.

Will Not Influence Adm. Dewey.

WASHINGTON, May 12.—Secretary Long said Thursday that the navy department would not seek to influence Adm. Dewey in any way in the selection of a route by which he will return to the United States.

Adm. Dewey Coming Home.

WASHINGTON, May 12.—Adm. Dewey has notified the navy department that he would start for home within the next few days. Should nothing delay him, this makes the probable time of his arrival the early part of July.

BOONE CO., RECORDER.

Wednesday, May 17, 1899.

Advertising Rates:
One inch, one time.....$1.00
Each additional time.....25
Obituaries, Tributes of Respects or notices of a like nature, per inch .50

W. L. RIDDELL, - - Publisher.

We are authorized to announce J. W. KENNEDY, of Union, as a candidate for the Legislature, subject to the action of the Democratic party.

Neighborhood News.

Limaburg.

Wallace Tanner is improviug slowly.

Very little plowing and planting done last week.

Legrand Utz has a milch cow and 8 shoats for sale.

Chas. Gaines was out renovating the roads, last week.

John Courad caught 17 rats in a trap one night last week.

R. W. Rouse had a good milch cow to die a few days ago.

Mrs. Maria Clore, after one day's illness, died on the 15th. She died at Chas. Youell's.

Jas. Riley bought Hubert Rouse's and Hubert Beemon's crops of tobacco for 5 cents around.

Bullittsville.

May 12.—Mrs. Mary Duncan is still on the sick list.

Miss Bernice Duucan entertained quite a nunmber of friends, Sunday.

Quite a nunmber from here attended Buffalo Bill's show at Cumminsgville, Monday and Tuesday.

The basket meeting at Bullittsville church the second Sunday, was well attended. Rev. Watkins preached.

Mr. Mile, the most efficient of Smith & Nixon's piano tuners, spent several days in this neighborhood, tuniug instrumeuts.

Shopping in Cincinnati is the order of the day. The excellent ladies are making preparations for the Jnue meeting—"show day."

Francesville.

Mr. and Mrs. Lum Kirtley visited Mrs. Joe Graves, last Wednesday.

Quite a nunmber from this section of the couuty attended the Southern Baptist convention at Louisville, last week.

We are glad to see the sunshine again. The farmers are somewhat behind with their work. Our gardens are full of weeds and some of us will have to hustle if we have any vegetables.

Rev. T. L. Utz was at Sand Run last Sunday, and preached a very able sermon. Services again the next third Sunday. The Sabbath school is growiug in interest. We hope our very efficient superintendent, Mr. Holland Goodridge will be with us every Sunday.

Erlanger.

Dr. J. Adams will soon move into his new house on Garvey Ave.

Good Faith lodge conferred the first degree on one candidate, last Saturday evening.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Baptist church will give a strawberry festival in the near future.

Capt. John Daniels, wife and son, Frauk, were the guests of Mrs. Louis Morelil, of Rome st., Sunday.

Alonzo Victor was awarded the contract for building a $2,800 house for Mr. Geo. Schoepfel, of Erlanger.

The Masonic Hall is being given a good cleaning. Scott & Baker, the proprietors, are having the ceiling and walls papered, and the members have bought one of Graft's gas machines and there will be light.

Richwood.

Mr. Harvey A. Hicks, while in the city last Thursday, was stricken with a slight attack of paralysis, and he is still suffering from the effects of it.

The heavy rains, last week, washed some of the newly plowed fields about Richwood badly, and washed a considerable amount of good soil into Mud Lick creek.

The Erlanger parties having the contract have begun the work of moving the old depot at Richwood station to a position on the pike, and it is to be replaced by a new passeuger and freight depot.

The Woman's Home and Foreign Missionary Union, of Ebenezer Presbytery, will hold its sixth annual meeting in Richwood Presbyterian church, May 24th, 930 a. m. Ladies of all the churches interested in church work are cordially invited to be present. Midday lunch will be served on the church grounds. There will be a popular lecture at 7:30 p. m., to which the men also are invited.

Verona.

Tobacco plants almost large enough to set.

Miss Grace Thompson is the pleasant guest of Mrs. J. N. Dickerson.

Dr. Lafe Myers, who has been sick for sometime, is able to be out agaiu.

The recent rains are puttiug the farmers very much behind with their crops.

L. J. Hume has just purchased a lot of new goods which he is selling at prices to suit the times.

A sanctified Baptist preacher will address the people at New Bethel, next Saturday evening and Sunday.

Perry Rice has the contract for building the house of Thomas Vest and is pushing the work forward rapidly.

Wm. Vest, who lives on the Martin farm, was disturbed one night, last week, by some one breaking in the house. After some hesitation he inquired, who was there, but no answer came. Vest seized his shot-gun and fired, and on investigation it was found that he had not missed his aim, the contents of the load lodging in the neck of a young lady by the name of Jackson. Her wound is thought to be serious.

Utzinger.

George Terrill has lost several horses lately with an unknown disease.

Mrs R. C. Gaines will start, in a few days, for a visit to relatives in Richmond, Kentucky.

Mrs. Jas. Brown, Mrs. Ollie Jones, Mrs. Geo. Walton and Mrs. W. T. Berkshire are all sick.

A. B. Rouse, a promising young attorney of Burlington, was a guest of relatives here Friday night.

There is loud complaint of cut worms amongst the corn raisers. Some have had to plant the second time.

Rev. W. H. Davis visited at F. P. Walton's, Saturday. This was his first visit to the north of the county, but we hope not his last, for he is a most pleasant guest.

N. S. Walton and wife, Thos. Randall, Mr. and Mrs. John Cropper, Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Cropper, Thos. W. Grant and Rev. J. A. Kirtley went to Louisville, Thursday, to the Baptist convention.

The recent showers have been fine for setting tobacco, which has progressed rapidly. John Jones has set 8 acres and many others are far along with their setting. Plants are very abundant and fine.

We would not get into the ministers' controversy in the RECORDER if we could, but when Rev. Presser says he reads all but the Union correspondent, we are of the opinion that he misses very nearly the best in it. We are not acquainted with the correspondent nor do we know who he is, but we never fail to read his items with interest and profit.

Gunpowder.

A large crowd attended church at Hopeful, last Sunday.

Rev. Lentz and family dined with Mrs. B. C. Surface, last Sunday.

The continued wet weather is throwing the farmers back with their work.

Mrs. Lentz returned home, last Friday, from Maryland, where she spent several weeks with her mother.

Ed Suyder reports the cut worms very bad, and says he will have to plant his corn over on account of them.

Wilford, the little son of W. R. Tanner, met with a serious accident a few days ago, while playiug. He fell and broke his arm just above the elbow, but he is getting along nicely.

We had the pleasure of enjoying the closing exercises of Prof. Collins' school at Union, last Friday. The program consisted of recitatious, which were well rendered, and a bountiful treat of ice cream, which was enjoyed by all present.

Wheat is looking nicely.

Sheep shearing is the order of the day.

Rouse Bros. have bought a new hay-wagon.

L. H. Busby, is the champiou croquet player.

Most all of the farmers have their crops planted.

E. H. Blankeubeker has a machine to shear sheep.

Omer Macnander is a warm painter, paiuts with gloves on.

House cleaning time has rolled around, and the women are making good use of it.

Robt. Houston our hustling farmer, has finished plowiug for corn. He will tend only two acres.

Miss Martha B. Utz was visiting her father, O. B. Utz, of the Big Bone neighborhood, on the 7th.

Uucle Bill Tanner has a horse 29 years old, and he works him every day. Who has an older horse?

Uncle Joel Tanner is enjoying good health. He is in hopes that cold weather is over, warm weather is what he likes.

Hathaway.

Your writer lost his valuable mare, last Friday, from lockjaw.

Wm. Orr made a business trip to Rabbit Hash, last Monday.

Ben Rue and wife spent last Sunday with Sam Smith and family.

Vild Kite, of Waterloo, was in our burg, last Saturday evening a week.

H. F. and F. J. Rue were the first to set tobacco in this neighborhood.

Wallace Garrison, of near Big Bone church, was on the sick list, last week.

Joe Childress, of Union, was in this vicinity buying wool for Sam Hick's, one day last week.

Dr. Crisler, the veterinary, of Bullittsville, was summoned to this neighborhood, last week.

Mrs. Carrie Setters, of near Bellevue, was the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Riddell, Sunday.

Ernest Walton, of near Big Bone, went to Florence, last Monday, on a business trip taking along an extra boss.

Mrs. Sarah White and daughter made quite a pleasant visit, last Friday, to her son in the Woolper neighborhood.

Mrs. Cynthia Mason decorated several of the rooms of her residence with different designs of wall paper, last week.

Last Saturday a week, quite a crowd answered to invitations at the hospitable home of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Rector. The event was a party given in honor of their son, Lewis, it being his 21st birth day.

While the writer was on the circuit, one day last week, he saw N. L. Moore repairing fence and had enough work for a dozen more. Upon arriving at the toll gate he found Leonard Gibbs and John Bradford talking politics. Asking Hickory what he was doing, he replied that he was only shocking up all little jobs and waiting for the ground to dry. While talking R. L. Willis drove up at a 2:30 gait. Mr. Willis keeps a good stock of horses. They have style and action. He knows a good horse when he sees one.

Walton.

The chief event of Commencement week was the graduating exercises, which took place Friday evening, May 12, at the Christian church. The graduates numbered six, Misses Mary Rouse, Julia Adams, Hattie Edwards, and Messrs. Fleming Hedges, Charles Chambers and Walter Herndon, exceeding the class of '98 by two. The program consisted of a pleasing combination of graduating exercises properly and those of class day. The orations delivered and essays read, showed originality, thought and careful training. The class exercises combined wit and humour with graceful seriousness. Altogether the evening's entertainment was a source of enjoyment and intellectual stimulus to all. The singing by Miss Anna Orr Rice, of Covington, was especially excellent. To Mr. and Mrs. Myers and those who have so honorably finished their course of study, the congratulations of the community are tendered.

The declamatory contest Thursday evening was an immense success. The first prize, a $5 gold piece, was awarded to Miss Ethel Walz. The second and third prizes, $2,50 each, were captured by Miss Gertrude Curley and Master Boyd Hudson. The singing of little Mary Dyas won unbounded applause, and she was the only one whose performance was encored. Misses Queenie Tilman and Grace Norman sang a duet most charmingly, All however did well and too much praise cannot be bestowed upon Mrs. Myers for the untiring efforts she has bestowed on her pupils.

"Won't shoot another English sparrow," says Mr. E. P. Holder. "I was sitting here on the porch, Friday, with my Flobert, ready to shoot at crows, which have been bothering the young chickens (they never come around when one is prepared for them.) A sparrow lit in a cedar out there and was so saucy looking that I took a shot at and killed it. In its bill was a curculio. I watched them after that and they were busy catchiug insects in the plum trees, and carrying them to their young.

Bellevue.

O. N. Grant has improved his residence.

Henry Hunt has purchased a new buggy.

Continued rain, last week, delayed farm work.

A. B. Corbin put a new roof on Esq. Green's residence.

D. M. Suyder is enclosing his yard with a neat paling fence.

W. C. Brown, of Burlington, was visiting here last Friday.

William Snelling, who lives on Jack Walton's farm has set 11 acres of tobacco.

Horace Moody, of Gullford, Indiana, is visiting Col. J. M. Moody and family this week.

Albert Snyder and sister, Virgie, attended Sunday School at Woolper School house, last Sunday.

J. H. Lawell is having his house painted. Rass Harwood and Hugh Holmes, of Rising Sun are doing the work.

J. T. Marshall made a trip to Burlington, Florence and Erlanger, last week, in the interest of Kassabaum, of Aurora.

Union.

John Gibson has the grip.

There will be a wedding to write up soon.

Mrs. Lida Conner was visiting in Cincinnati, last week.

Wool buyers have been hustling around here, this week.

J. L. Riley has been suffering a good deal with boils, this winter.

Geo. H. Stevenson has gone into the chicken incubating business.

Miss Mary Hedges spent a pleasant week visiting friends in Walton.

Mrs. John Garrison had paperiug done last week, and has more to do.

The Afterkirk Bros. are remodeling their residence. A. D. Riley, carpenter.

Mrs. Elizabeth Huey attended the Baptist convention in Louisville, last week.

A number of our citizens attended the commencement at Walton, Friday night.

Mr. Marks, of Florence, came down and built a beautiful cellar for B. L. Corbin, last week.

Sam Hicks is having White Haven painted, papered and furnished, to be ready to move in, this week.

The Adams Bros. had a valuable young horse to get into a wire fence, a few days ago, and cut itself badly.

L. W. Lassing has chewed and given away 75 huckets of the celebrated Globe fine-cut tobacco in the last—years. The buckets held either 15 or 25 lbs.

Rev. Adams preached, last Saturday and Sunday at the Baptist church. The ordinance of baptism was administered to Lucien Houston, Sunday morning.

Dr. Crouch, of our town, is a candidate for State Senator, and we would be glad to see Union put two winners in at a 2:40 gait. The Doctor is hustling right along.

Prof. Collins closed a three months' private school, last Friday, with very interesting exercises of a literary nature. Each and every pupil deserves especial mention, but want of space forbids a more extended notice.

While in Cincinnati, Wednesday, H. A. Hicks received a stroke of paralysis on the left side. It was necessary to take him in an invalid chair to the depot. Arriving at Richwood, Mr. Hicks felt better, and thought the effects of the stroke had passed away, but on Wednesday night he was stricken again, and on Sunday he was unable to move his left hand or foot.

John L. Presser, of Sistersville, Virginia, has stepped aside from his ministerial duties, to strike this correspondent a blow in the back. In taking this uncalled for and unwarranted step, he has merited and received the severest condemnation of every right thinking and fair minded person in this town and vicinity. We have had people of all ages and sexes come to us with words of advice, such as, "give it to him," "hit him hard," "skin him alive," "don't leave a greasy spot of him," &c. Now, when a minister of the gospel is guilty of an act that favors so much of injustice, and is so barren of Christian spirit and charity as to merit the condemnation of all the people in a community, it is about time for him to employ some person to drill a hole that he may slide into and hide his face. To censure that this young man has received at the hands of my friends, should be sufficient; but, Mr. Editor, think of it. He came to your correspondent before leaving for Virginia, and, taking our hand (unsolicited, remember), bade us a kind farewell, and wished we might prosper and be blessed by the Lord with health, and so forth and so on. Was he sincere in his profession of friendship then, if he was so ready to deal us the blow, last week? A blow that most any man, though he had never heard the golden theme of redemption discoursed from the pulpit, or seen the sacred garb of a minister, would hesitate to strike. If we have not advanced the RECORDER'S cause and the people's cause in the last six years as successfully as this young man does the cause of Christianity in going out of his way to strike such a blow as this, then let me be condemned and him go free. Yes, "let there be a meeting of the District Board every change of the moon," and let there be earnest prayers for this poor, misguided young brother. In conclusion, let us say that the young man has had a fair trial by jury—not of 16, but of numbers that make a community, and has been convicted. Now, I await explanations, and demand immediate attention to the matter.

Midway.

M. C. Carroll and J. L. Jones, two of our leading farmers, report promising prospects for tobacco plants.

Those who are engaged in sheep husbandry are spending their leisure hours at present, removing the valuable fleece from their flocks.

Albert Spicer, of the Springs, paid Crittenden a pleasant visit, Snuday. Young people here think there is a girl in the matter, as he comes home singing "she's a high born lady."

Walter Brown, our clever mail carrier, has added a twice a week fish-wagon to his mail route, which is a pleasant accommodation to folks along the line, as they stand greatly in need of fish diet

There is a reprehensible disposition on the part of Midway citizens to indulge poor fences and breachy stock. They seem to enjoy the slightly revels of fleeing cows, ringing bells and yelping curs in fond pursuit.

John White, formerly of the Springs but now of Lauding creek, has reudered himself famous this spring catchiug large messes of choice fish. John says his success is chiefly attributable to the use of a select variety of irresistable bait.

Last Friday at sunrise there appeared a pretty rainbow encircling the Occident, and weather prophets said, "Look out to-day!" and sure enough we were visited by the longest and heaviest rain of the season, stopping corn planting for sometime.

W. C. Johnson and son have finished the wood work of the newly built residence of Jas. W. Cleek, and W. H. Holden, an adept knight of the brush, of Walton, is giving it the finishing touches this week. It is one of the prettiest modern homes in this locality.

The people of Midway were delighted to read in Thursday's addition of the Ky. Post, a proposition of Covington capitalists to build an electric road from Covington, through Erlanger, Florence and Union to Big Bone Springs. Boone county men of money and enterprise should assist in pushing the movement for it surely would be a paying investment. There is no better terminus in the State for an electric road than Big Bone Springs.

We are proud to see the announcement of good men as candidates to represent us in the next legislature, as it manifests an interest in our best men to take part in the affairs of the county. While the turnpike question is the dominant issue, there are several other matters pertaining to the welfare of our county, demanding attention, and aspirants for legislative honors should let the voters know what they are for, and, why they are for it. The Recorder and rostrum are inviting them to discuss.

We are glad to learn that the spirit of enterprise is pervading the Verona precinct in the form of 'pike-building. A new pike is to be built from the L. & N. depot along the road leading to Mudlick creek to the farm of J. M. Powers where it will leave the road going out the long ridge to Enoch West's, where it will intersect the Southfork and Beaver Lick 'pike. It would be the prettiest road in the county, and is assured by private subscription, as the L. & N railroad will also contribute largely to its building to secure the Mudlick valley trade, which now all goes to the Ohio river. We hope the good work will continue till every necessary public mud road in the county is macadamized, our dirt road leading from Beaver Lick to the Springs not being overlooked in the scramble for first place.

Hume Store.

Paddy Dempsey lost a valuable horse, recently.

Morgan Fogle killed a very large copper head snake several days ago.

Uncle Mike Lawler, who has been in ill health for some time, is some better.

Joe Ryan and family spent Sunday week very pleasantly with his mother, Mrs. Mary Ryan.

Miss Nora Callender, of Glencoe, was the pleasant guest of Miss Lorena Cottou, last Saturday and Sunday week.

Miss Mary Dempsey, of Walnut Lick, Gallatin county, was visiting her parents at this place a few days ago.

The heavy rains have prevented many of our farmers from finishing planting corn.—Several from this place attended the closing exercises at the League Institute, last Thursday night.—Leslie Macrander, of Gunpowder, was visiting his parents at this place, Saturday night and Sunday.—Miss Nell Hume, of Berkshire, was calling on friends at this place, Thursday.—J. M. Powers met with a serious accident the other day. While climbing over a picket fence he lost his balance and fell, breaking one of his ribs.—Misses Mary and Nora Dempsey entertained a number of friends with a play party, Saturday night.

Hebron.

The remains of Geo. Wilson, of Constance, were brought here for interment Saturday afternoon.—J. W. Clore had the misfortune to sprain his ankle while in the city, one day last week.—Mr. and Mrs. John Cornelius, of Ludlow, were the guests of John Clore and family, Saturday and Sunday.—Chas. Johnson, of Verona, visited the Misses Clayton, Sunday.—Miss Chas Hossman was the pleasant guest of Miss Kate Clayton, Saturday night.—Chas. Duncan, of Missouri, and Dr. Jewett, of Eminence, Ky., were attendants at Bullittsville church, Sunday.—John Taneous is doing some carpenter work for John Clore.—James and Wilfred Bullock spent Sunday in Cincinnati.—Geo. Riley was baptized Sunday afternoon.—Quite a number of the ladies have visited the city, the past week. Look out for new hats!—Miss Mary Gaines called on relatives here, last week. She leaves for New York the second week in June to visit her uncle, the Rev. Ab Gaines.

Miss Minnie Cahill was voted a gold watch as the most popular young lady in Florence. The prize was given by the German Medicine Co, after an exciting contest of two weeks.

Buy a Buggy Where the Many Buy.

Our Goods are Reliable and of Good Standard Grades.

and will sell anything in our Store for the CASH as cheap

as you will buy elsewhere.

Our Motto: BUY for CASH sell for CASH,
GOOD GOODS AT LOWEST LIVING PRICES.

Respectfully,
L. B. HUNTER, Rising Sun, Ind.

OUR MILLINERY
DEPARTMENT

Is in full blast and is filled with Trimmed and Untrimmed Hats at LOWER PRICES than ever.

LADIES' SKIRTS, PETTICOATS and SHIRT WAISTS ranging in price from 25c up, and in fact the whole house is chucked full of BARGAINS.

W. H. CLARK,
Rising Sun, Indiana.

JOHN ALLISON,
UNDER-  EMBAL-
TAKER MER,
—Corner Pike & Russell Streets,—
COVINGTON, - - KENTUCKY.
INDEPENDENT OF UNDERTAKERS' UNION.

Order Spring Suits NOW

H. F. BLASE.

And we will make them up artistically and ready for you promptly on time. We have

Over Five Hundred Styles

Of Spring and Summer Woolens to Select from. They come direct from the looms of foreign and domestic manufacturers, and surpass in elegance and variety anything ever shown in Covington. In the assortment are many exclusive patterns—goods that cannot be duplicated by any other establishment in this city. Keep these facts in mind and place your order for a stylish suit with us. We promise you a faultless fit, the proper cut, and a price that will not be more than you can afford to pay.

H. F. BLASE,
535 Madison Avenue,
COVINGTON, - - KENTUCKY

A Word to the Public
MY STOCK OF
Dry Goods, Notions,
AND LADIES' AND GENTS'
TOILET ARTICLES
for the Spring Trade has been received, and to be appreciated must be seen. Fresh
DRUGS AND GROCERIES
received daily. A large stock of
PAINTS & OILS
on hand at all times. All Goods New and Clean, and are sold at the LOWEST CASH PRICES.
—GIVE ME A CALL—
J. G. OELSNER, Florence, Ky.

Local News.

Snow ball winter was mild.

The weather, last week, was a "leetle damp."

Circuit Court is in session in Williamstown with a large docket before it.

There are some very nice looking fields of corn in the lower part of the county.

For meadows, oats, young grass and pastures, this has been a decidedly favorable spring.

Hubert Gaines and Robert Wilson are experts when it comes to manipulating sheep shears.

The weeds are besieging the gardens in town, very much to the annoyance of the truck producers.

George H. Walton, of Erlanger, and Scott Chambers, of Utzinger, finished setting out tobacco last week.

Eld. Archie Brown, Old Baptist, will preach at the Methodist church in Burlington to-night (Wednesday.)

The Old Baptists will have their annual basket meeting on the fourth Sunday in this month, at Mt. Pleasant.

John Jones, of Utzinger, one of the most successful tobacco growers in this part of the county, finished planting his crop, last week.

Another couple, claiming to be from Newport, were refused marriage license by County Clerk Adams, last Thursday. They wanted their marriage kept a secret.

Pink Rice, of Utzinger, bought a pair of horse clippers with which to shear sheep, but they would not work, and now he has a good pair of clippers for sale cheap.

In this issue appears the advertisement of McAlpin & Thomson, funeral directors and livery-men at Erlanger. They are nice gentlemen and deserving of public patronage.

In this issue Dr. Furnish announces himself a candidate for State Senator. In him the county had a faithful representative for two terms, and will make no mistake in placing him in the Senate. He is honest, capable and sincere in his every undertaking.

Quarterly Conference of the Methodist Church on Saturday and Sunday, May 20th and 21st, 1899. Business meeting of Quarterly Conference at 10:30 on Saturday; preaching Saturday evening at 7:30. Communion of Lord's Supper, Sunday at 11 a. m., at Burlington.

Geo. B. Winslow, of Carrollton, and Referee in Bankruptcy for this district, met with the creditors of Hiram Long, here last Friday, to hear proof of their claims. A large number of persons were in town that day, the most of them presumable creditors of the bankrupt estate.

Judge Roberts received notice from the State Board of Equalization, Saturday, that lands and personal property subject to equalization had been increased seven per cent. County Judge Roberts, County Attorney Lassing, Assessor Willis and Sheriff Beall, went to Frankfort, last evening, to appear before the board today to show why it should reconsider its action and not add the 7 per cent.

Jacob Platt will offer for sale, Saturday, June 3d, 1899, at Mountain Home Stock Farm, (opposite Lawrenceburg, Ind.,) 15 head of Trotting bred Stock. Nine months credit will be given on all purchases if secured by negotiable notes bearing 6 per cent. interest with approved security; 6 per cent. discount for cash. Sale opens at 1 o'clock p. m. All information concerning pedigrees, &c., will be furnished.

A movement to build an electric railway from Covington to Big Bone Springs via Erlanger, Florence and Union, has been inaugurated by Covington business men. A meeting of the promoters will be held to-day at the clothing store of H. F. Blase in Covington. If this line of road is built it will take a very large slice of Boone county trade to Covington that now goes elsewhere.

One afternoon last week as John J. Duncan, of the Bullittsville neighborhood, and his brother Charles, of Kansas City, Mo., were coming from the city in a buggy drawn by a young animal that had been driven but a few times, they stopped at Hebron, when John slipped the bridle off of the animal to put on a head halter with which to hitch. No sooner was the bridle removed than the mare started to run, knocking John down and running the buggy over him. Charlie jumped out of the buggy, and the mare went down the road at the top of her speed, overtaking and colliding with a buggy in which Mrs. Yancy Clore and two other ladies were riding, tearing one wheel of their vehicle. Fortunately neither of the ladies was injured. John's buggy was reduced to kindling wood.

To the Editor of the Recorder:

The intelligent and fair-minded readers of the RECORDER will see what is so apparent in the contribution touching myself in the last issue of the RECORDER. For lack of argument an opponent has descended to personal abuse. The whole article may be characterized as of the fallacy, "Ignoratio Elenchi." Something not unknown among the legal profession. It is the resort of those who support a weak case, as when a certain attorney instructed the barrister thus: "No case; abuse the plaintiff's attorney." To meet such an argument it is necessary to adopt the same abusive style which I refuse to do. For aside from his style adopted in the discussion, and I wish not to be compelled to judge from that, I have every reason to respect and no reason to question the character of my brother from Covington.

If anyone thinks an answer is necessary, I assert that the re-perusal of my article in the RECORDER of April 15th, will be a sufficient refutation of what has been since said.

J. W. CRATES.

The following is the programme for the entertainment to be given at the Court House in Burlington, next Saturday night, for the benefit of the Presbyterian church:

PART I.

Piana Solo.....Mrs. Geo. Craven
Club Swinging.....
Misses Mary Terrill, Lulie May Culbertson, Clara Tupman
Song.....Miss Vassie Darnelle
Recitation.....Miss Wylie B. Chambers
Song.....Miss Zayda Gaines
Piano Solo.....Miss Jennie Blyth
Song.....Miss Lambert
Recitation...Miss Lulie May Culbertson
Tambourine Drill.....
Twenty Burlington Ladies

PART II.

Song.....Miss Annie Orr Rice
Recitation.Miss Lulie May Culbertson
Duett.....
Miss Zayda Gaines, Mrs. E. L Riley
Song.....Miss Vassie Darnelle
Piano Solo.....Mrs. Geo. Craven
Song.....Miss Zayda Gaines
Organ Solo.....Miss Fannie Rice
Song.....Miss Lambert
Recitation.....Miss Wylie Chambers

To the Democratic Voters of Boone County.

I take this method of announcing myself as a candidate for the office of State Senator for this, the 23rd Senatorial District, subject to the action of the Democratic party. The Democratic District Committee has called a convention to be held at Sparta, Gallatin county, on the 29th inst. Delegates to attend said convention are to be selected in a county convention to be held in Burlington on the 27th inst. The time intervening is now too short for me to make a general canvass of either the district or this county and I, therefore, address you this letter, as the only means, except in a very general way I may have hereafter, of asking the endorsement of this county. As your representative in a similar capacity, I served your best interests in every way I could with a conscientious desire to do what was right, and though I may have in some instances erred, I feel that my motives cannot be impugned, and should you see fit to advance me a step higher, with the somewhat greater obligations I would assume in the event of my election they shall be met with the same determination to never deviate from that course that would not receive your warmest commendation. I am but too proud of the fact that I do not have to herald my democracy to have it known to you, for if nothing else I feel sure that I am known to you as always advocating and upholding the fundamental principles of Democracy and in recent issues, standing steadfast for Blackburn, free silver and against trusts, combines and monopolies. I desire the office and would esteem it a great honor to have your endorsement, and it would but place me under still greater obligations to this county, that has never failed to favor my personal desires and aspirations, but should you in this instance have some other preference, I beg to say that Boone county will never cease to have my most profound respect and devotion. Without the endorsement of my own county, I could not accept the nomination, and should it be your pleasure to recommend me to the remainder of the district, I pledge my best service in the interest of the whole people, and it shall be a service for a constituency that I honor and respect, and no act of mine shall forfeit whatever of confidence you may repose in me. Yours very respectfully,

J. G. FURNISH.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Frank Cleek, of Verona, was in town Monday.

Misses Sheba and Susie Roberts are visiting at Walton.

Our esteemed Petersburg correspondent, called on us Monday.

Chas. Clore, of Hebron, is painting F. P. Waltou's house here in town.

Attys. J. S. Rouse and Robt. Simons, of Covington, were in town, Thursday.

Miss Emma Scott and Miss Arnold, of Florence, were guests of Mrs. Anthony Beutler, last Thursday.

Thos. G. Tupman and wife, of Bakersfield, Cala., arrived, last week, on a visit to Kentucky friends and relatives.

John Crisler, Agricultural Editor of the Union Blade, was in town last Friday, in consultation with Burlington agriculturalists.

NOTICE—I will give $10 reward to ascertain the name of the party who mailed an anonymous letter to me in Covington, May 9, 1899. The reward money will be left at the RECORDER office and paid as soon as the writer of the letter is apprehended.

CHAS. GARNETT, Limaburg, Ky.

Taylorsport.

The deaths of Geo. Wilson and wife have cast a gloom over this community. Mr. Wilson died on the 11th inst., of acute inflammation of the liver, aged 48 years. Biddie, his beloved wife, died on the 14th inst., of pneumoula, aged 69 years. Their remains were interred in the same grave in the Hebron cemetery. They were beloved by all who knew them. They leave one son, William Wilson, and one daughter, Mrs. Eva Williams, who have the sympathy of all in their bereavement.

Thieves stole a tarpaulin and other articles of William Wilson and a boat of John Dye, and floated off.—Billie Selkman has lost 102 hogs with cholera.—The smallest acreage of Irish potatoes has been planted this spring for many years, in this neighborhood.—Charley Berry, of Cullom, Ohio, were visiting in our town Sunday.—John Tanceus and wife, of Hebron, spent Sunday with John Dye and wife.—A sledgehammer that John Klassner was using, last Friday, flew off of the handle and fell on his foot, mashing it badly.—Misses Loula Souther and Estelle Sederberg, were in these parts last Saturday, collecting small amounts for Home Missions.

Gasburg.

John Klopp has been very sick for 10 days or more.—Blythe Buffington, who resides a short distance below the Aurora ferry had a stroke of paralysis about 3 weeks ago, and has been getting worse since, and is now in a critical condition with slight chance of recovery. One side of him is entirely paralyzed.—Mrs. Theodore Cook, of Patriot, Indiana, is visiting her daughter, Mrs. Jake Klopp and family of this place.—Col. H. Lee Early and family and Paris Parker, of Home City, Ohio, visited your correspondent and family last Sunday.—Ben R. Johnson, wife and son, of Indiana, spent Sunday with Mrs. J's parents here.—The fruit crop will run about this way: Apples full crop, cherries, pears and plums light crop; peaches, none.—Miss Lizzie Parker entertained the W. C. T. U. (we can't tell you), society, Saturday afternoon.—Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hartman entertained a number of friends from Cincinnati, last Sunday.—The melon bugs are very numerous and have been getting in their work quite lively.—The races for Representative and Senator have not excited any interest here yet, being overshadowed by the Governor's race.

Berkshire.

Mrs. Martha Story is improving slowly.—Miss Sallie Allphin and brother, Asbury, and Jesse Allphin, were the guests of Miss Sallie Finnell Sunday.—Mr. Mace Richerson entertained a number of youngsters with a hop, Saturday night.—J. M. Lassing, of Burlington, made a business trip to Mud Lick, last week.—Corn planting is the order of the day.—Miss Bettie Finnell was the guest of Miss Mamie Stewart, one day last week.—Wm. Black goes fox hunting every night that is suitable.—J. G. Finnell made a business trip to Verona, Friday.

Flickertown.

Several in this neighborhood have set some tobacco.—Your scribe and one or two others from here attended church at Bellevue, Sunday.—The new summer resort upon Red Bud Avenue will be called Noah's Ark.—Attorney S. Gaines, of Burlington, passed through our town one day last week.—Ben Hewitt says he has quit hauling scrambled eggs.—Stephen Gaines sold to George Blythe two work horses one day, last week.—Merritt Sullivan found a good two bladed knife in his corn crib. The owner can get it by calling for it.—Allen Hensley found a bundle of tobacco canvass in a hollow log in his clearing. How it got there is a mystery.

In the District Court of the United States for the District of Ky.

In the matter of Hiram Long, Bankrupt.

By virtue of a judgment and order of sale, rendered by G. B. Winslow, Referee in Bankruptcy, on the 12th day of May, 1899, in the above cause I shall proceed to offer for sale at the residence of Glen Crisler, on the Burlington and Union road, about 3½ miles south of Union, in Boone county, Ky., to the highest and best bidder, at public auction, on SATURDAY the 27th day of MAY, 1899, at 10 o'clock a. m., or thereabouts, upon a credit of three months, the following described property, to-wit:

An undivided one-half interest in 38 head of Sheep, and
An undivided one-half interest in 26 head of Hogs.

For the purchase price the purchaser or purchasers, with approved security or securities must execute bonds, bearing 6 per cent. interest from day of sale until paid. The bonds will be made payable to the undersigned as Trustee. Bidders will be prepared to comply promptly with these terms.

J. M. LASSING, Trustee.

W. M. RACHAL & CO.,

DOLLARS DO DOUBLE DUTY HERE.

Standard Granulated Sugar, 18 lbs. $1 00.
Arbuckle Coffee 10 cents per lb.
Daniel Boone Soap 3 bars for 5 cents.
Pittsburg Wire less than city prices.
Lime, Cement, White Lead, Oils, Varnishes, etc., as cheap as in the city.

Baby Shoes for 10c per pair up.
Misses' Shoes for 50c per pair up.
A full line of Men's, Ladie's and Children's Tan Shoes—Latest Styles, Best Quality, Lowest Prices.
Men's Dress Pants, 75c per pair.
Wonder Overalls, Shirts and Pants, the best made.

COME at ONCE. THESE PRICES are ONLY While Present Stock Lasts.

UNION, KENTUCKY. UNION, KENTUCKY.

ADLER'S

—THE PLACE TO BUY—

LADIES' • READY • MADE • GOODS.

A complete line of Silk Waists, Shirt Waists, Dress Skirts, Spring Capes in Silk or Cloth, Muslin, Underwear, &c., also dealer in Dry Goods, Furnishing Goods and Shoes.

Perry Building Corner High and Walnut Streets

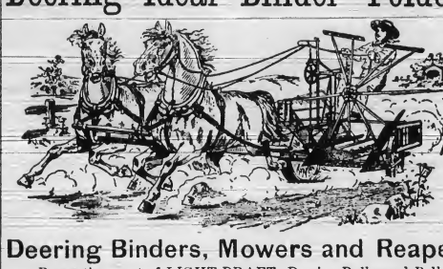
ADLER'S, LAWRENCEBURG, INDIANA.

FOR good, new and up to date goods at the Lowest Prices, go to the New Store at the Old Stand, at

123 Second St., AURORA, IND.

Having bought the stock of

Dry Goods, Notions and Shoes



of R. Maybin, 123 Second St., Aurora, Ind.,
I have closed out the stock on hand at that time as nearly as possible, and have had the room remodled and have just received a

A New and Complete LINE OF Dry Goods, Notions and Shoes,

to which I invite your inspection, Boone Co., customers especially invited.

FRANK RIEMAN, - - AURORA, IND.

Deering Ideal Binder Folded.

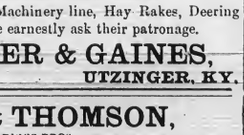
Deering Binders, Mowers and Reapers

Posses the secret of LIGHT DRAFT, Deering Roller and Ball Bearings, Durability and convenience not excelled by any. Be sure and examine these machines before purchasing.

Of those desiring anything in the Machinery line, Hay Rakes, Deering Repairs or Binder Twiner, we earnestly ask their patronage.

CROPPER & GAINES,
UTZINGER, KY.

mch29tf



McALPIN & THOMSON,

Successors to RIGGS BROS.

Undertakers

—AND—

Embalmers,

LIVERY, BOARDING & FEED STABLES.

Special Rates to Traveling Men. Pianos, Organs and Furniture Carefully Removed. First-class Carriages for hire with careful drivers for Families, Parties, Weddings, etc.

LEXINGTON PIKE, - - - ERLANGER, KY.

J. M. EDDINS, Agent, Burlington, Ky.

When in Burlington Call on

J. S. CLUTTERBUCK

DEALER IN

DRY GOODS

Notions, Boots and Shoes,

Who has just received his stock of

SPRING & SUMMER SHOES,

the nicest stock ever in town. Have old stock which I AM SELLING AT GENUINE BARGAINS.

NICE LINE WALL PAPER,

At Prices to Suit the times.

DEERING IDEALS

BINDERS, MOWERS, HAY-RAKES, TWINES.

Guaranteed LIGHTEST DRAFT and Perfect Working. The Rollers and Balls tell the tale.

Also don't forget we are still in the ring with

CHESTER WHITE HOGS,

Holland Turkeys, eggs $2 per 13. B. P. Rock and B. Minorca Chickens, eggs $1 per 16.

COME AND SEE.

T. J. HUGHES,

BEAVER LICK, KY.

GO TO

C. T. DAVIS & CO., HEBRON AND CONSTANCE, General Merchants,

A Good Supply of Feed always in Stock.

GARDEN AND FIELD SEEDS.

Undertaking Given Special Attention.

A good supply of Coal on hand at Constance at all times.

Hebron. C. T. DAVIS & CO. Constance

W. H. HOSHAL & COMPANY,

COMMISSION MERCHANTS,

Cattle, Hogs and Sheep,

—UNION STOCK YARDS,—

Cincinnati, - Ohio.

—TELEPHONE 7346.—

Information Regarding Live Stock Cheerfully Furnished.

Consign Your Stock Direct to Us.

LUMBER!

LATHS,
SHINGLES,
DOORS,
BLINDS,
SASH.

If you want any kind of Lumber it will be to your advantage to visit our yard at Lawrenceburg, Indiana, before buying. Prices to Suit the Times.

M. E. LEMING & CO.

AN ETERNAL GLOOM.

Dr. Talmage Pictures the Earth Without the Gospel.

Vividly Portrays the Gloom of an Infidel World—Triumph of Atheism Would Mean Death of Civilization.

Copyright, Louis Klopsch, 1899.]

In this sermon Dr. Talmage gives a glimpse of what the world would be if the Gospel were abolished and the human race left without Divine gnidance. The text is Acts 2:20: "The sun shall be turned into darkness."

Christianity is the rising sun of our time, and men have tried with the uprolling vapors of skepticism and the smoke of their blasphemy to turn the sun into darkness. Suppose the archangels of malice and horror should be let loose a little while and be allowed to extinguish and destroy the sun in the natural heavens! They would take the oceans from other worlds and pour them on the luminary of the planetary system, and the waters go hissing down amid the ravines and the caverns, and there is explosion after explosion, until there are only a few peaks of fire left in the sun, and these are cooling down and going out until the vast continents of flame are reduced to a small acreage of fire, and that whitens and cools off until there are only a few coals left, and these are whitening and going out until there is not a speck left in all the mountains of ashes and the valleys of ashes and the chasms of ashes. An extinguished sun! A dead sun! A buried sun! Let all worlds wail at the stupendous obsequies.

Of course this withdrawal of the solar light and heat throws our earth into a universal chill, and the tropics become the temperate, and the temperate becomes the arctic, and there are frozen rivers and frozen lakes and frozen oceans. From arctic and antarctic regions the inhabitants gather in toward the center and find the equator as the poles. The slain forests are piled up into a great bonfire, and around them gather the shivering villages and cities. The wealth of the coal mines is hastily poured into the furnaces and stirred into rage of combustion, but soon the bonfires begin to lower, and the furnaces begin to go out, and the nations begin to die. Cotopaxi, Vesuvius, Etna, Stromboli, California geysers, cease to smoke, and the ice of hailstorms remains unmelted in their crater. All the flowers have breathed their last breath. Ships with sailors frozen at the mast, and helmsmen frozen at the wheel, and passengers frozen in the cabin, all nations dying, first at the north and then at the south. Child frosted and dead in the cradle. Octogenarian frosted and dead at the hearth. Workmen with frozen hand on the hammer and frozen foot on the shuttle. Winter from sea to sea. All congealing winter. Perpetual winter. Globe of frigidity. Hemisphere shackled to hemisphere by chains of ice. Universal Nova Zembla. The earth an ice floe grinding against other ice floes. The archangels of malice and horror have done their work, and now they may take their thrones of glacier and look down upon the ruin they have wrought. What the destruction of the sun in the natural heavens would be to our physical earth, the destruction of Christianity would be to the moral world. The sun turned into darkness!

Infidelity in our time is considered a great joke. There are people who rejoice to hear Christianity caricatured and to hear Christ assailed with quibble and quirk and misrepresentation and badinage and harlequinade. I propose to-day to take infidelity and atheism out of the realm of jocularity into one of tragedy and show you what infidels propose and what if they are successful they will accomplish. There are those in our communities who would like to see the Christian religion overthrown and who say the world would be better without it. I want to show you what is the end of this road and what is the terminus of this crusade and what this world will be when atheism and infidelity have triumphed over it, if they can. I say, if they can. I reiterate it, if they can.

In the first place, it will be the complete and unutterable degradation of womanhood. I will prove it by facts and arguments which no honest man will dispute. In all communities and cities and states and nations where the Christian religion has been dominant woman's condition has been ameliorated and improved, and she is deferred to and honored in a thousand things, and every gentleman takes off his hat before her. If your associations have been good, you know that the name of wife, mother, daughter, suggests gracious surroundings. You know there are no better schools and seminaries in this country than the schools and seminaries for our young ladies. You know that while woman may suffer injustice in England and the United States she has more of her rights in Christendom than she has anywhere else.

Now, compare this with woman's condition in lands where Christianity has made little or no advance—In China, in Barbary, in Borneo, in Tartary, in Egypt, in Hindustan. The Burmese sell their wives and daughters as so many sheep. The Hindoo Bible makes it disgraceful and an outrage for a woman to listen to music or look out of the window in the absence of her husband and gives as a lawful ground for divorce a woman's beginning to eat before her husband has finished his meal. What mean those white bundles on the ponds and rivers in China in the morning? Infanticide following infanticide. Female children destroyed simply because they are female. Woman harnessed to the plow as an ox. Woman veiled and barricaded and in all styles of cruel seclusion. Her birth a misfortune. Her life a torture. Her death a horror. The missionary of the cross to-day in heathen lands preaches generally to two groups—a group of men who do as they please and sit where they please; the other group, women hidden and carefully secluded in a side apartment, where they may hear the voice of the preacher, but may not be seen. No refinement. No liberty. No hope for this life. No hope for the life to come. Ringed nose. Cramped foot. Disfigured face. Embruted soul. Now, compare those two conditions. How far toward this latter condition that I speak of would a woman go if Christian influences were withdrawn and Christianity were destroyed? It is only a question of dynamics. If an object be lifted to a certain point and not fastened there and the lifting power be withdrawn, how long before that object will fall down to the point from which it started? It will fall down, and it will go still farther than the point from which it started. Christianity has lifted woman up from the very depths of degradation almost to the skies. If that lifting power be withdrawn she falls clear back to the depth from which she was resurrected, not going any lower, because there is no lower depth. And yet, notwithstanding the fact that the only salvation of woman from degradation and woe is the Christian religion—and the only influence that has ever lifted her in the social scale is Christianity—I have head that there are women who reject Christianity. I make no remark in regard to those persons. In the silence of your own soul make your observations.

If infidelity triumph and Christianity be overthrown, it means the demoralization of society. The one idea in the Bible that atheists and infidels most hate is the idea of retribution. Take away the idea of retribution and punishment from society, and it will begin very soon to disintegrate, and take away from the minds of men the fear of hell, and there are a great many of them who would very soon turn this world into a hell. The majority of those who are indignant because of the idea of punishment are men whose lives are bad or whose hearts are impure and who hate the Bible because of the idea of future punishment for the same reason that criminals hate the penitentiary. Oh, I have heard this brave talk about people fearing nothing of the consequences of sin in the next world, and I have made up my mind it is merely a coward's whistling to keep his courage up. I have seen men flaunt their immoralities in the face of the community, and I have heard them defy the judgment day and scoff at the idea of any future consequence of their sin, but when they came to die they shrieked until you could hear them for nearly two blocks, and in the summer night the neighbors got up to put the windows down because they could not endure the horror.

I would not want to see a rail train with 500 Christian people on board go down through a drawbridge into a watery grave; I would not want to see 500 Christian people go into such disaster, but I tell you plainly that I could more easily see that than I could for any protracted time stand and see an infidel die, though his pillow were of elder down and under a canopy of vermillion. I have never been able to brace up my nerves for such a spectacle. There is something at such a time so indescribable in the countenance. I just looked in upon it a minute or two, but the clutch of his fist was so diabolic and the strength of his voice was so unnatural I could not endure it. "There is no hell, there is no hell, there is no hell!" the man had said for 60 years, but that night when I looked in the dying room of my infidel neighbor there was something on his countenance which seemed to say: "There is, there is, there is, there is!" The mightiest restraints to-day against theft, against immorality, against libertinism, against crime of all sorts—the mightiest restraints are the retributions of eternity. Men know that they can escape the law, but down in the offenders' soul there is the realization of the fact that they cannot escape God. He stands at the end of the road of prodigacy, and He will not clear the guilty. Take all idea of retribution and punishment out of the hearts and minds of men, and it would not be long before our cities would become Sodoms. The only restraints against the evil passions of the world to-day are Bible restraints.

Suppose now these generals of atheism and infidelity got the victory, and suppose they marshaled a great army made up of the majority of the world. They are in companies, in regiments, in brigades—the whole army. Forward, march, ye hosts of infidels and atheists, banners flying before, banners flying behind, banners inscribed with the words: "No God! No Christ! No Punishment! No Restraints! Down with the Bible! Do as You Please!" The sun turned into darkness!

Forward, march, ye great army of infidels and atheists! And first of all you will attack the churches. Away with those houses of worship. They have been standing there so long deluding the people with consolation in their bereavements and sorrows. All those churches ought to be extirpated, they have done so much to relieve the lost and bring home the wandering, and they have so long held up the idea of eternal rest after the paroxysm of this life is over. Turn the St. Peters and St. Pauls and the temples and tabernacles into clubhouses. Away with those churches!

Forward, march, ye great army of infidels and atheists, and next of all they scatter the Sabbath schools filled with bright-eyed, rosy-cheeked little ones who are singing songs on Sunday afternoon and getting instruction when they ought to be on the street corners playing marbles or swearing on the commons. Away with them! Forward, march, ye great army of infidels and atheists, and next of all they will attack Christian asylums, the institutions supported by Christian philanthropies. Never mind the blind eyes and the deaf ears and the crippled limbs and the darkened intellects. Let paralyzed old age pick up its own food and orphans fight their own way and the half reformed go back to their evil habits. Forward, march, ye great army of infidels and atheists, and with your battleaxes hew down the cross and split up the manger of Bethlehem.

On, ye great army of infidels and atheists, and now they come to the graveyards and the cemeteries of the earth. Pull down the sculpture above Greenwood's gate, for it means the Resurrection. Tear away at the entrance of Laurel Hill the figure of Old Mortality and the chisel. On, ye great army of infidels and atheists, into the graveyards and cemeteries, and where you see "Asleep in Jesus" cut it away, and where you find a marble story of Heaven blast it, and where you find over a little child's grave "Suffer Little Children to Come Unto Me" substitute the words "delusion" and "sham," and where you find an angel in marble strike off the wings, and when you come to a family vault chisel on the door: "Dead once, dead forever."

But on, ye great army of infidels and atheists, on! They will attempt to scale Heaven. There are heights to be taken. Pile hill on hill and Pelion upon Ossa, and then they hoist the ladders against the walls of Heaven. On and on until they blow up the foundations of jasper and the gates of pearl. They charge up the steep. Now they aim for the throne of Him who liveth forever and ever. They would take down from their high place the Father, the Son, the Holy Ghost. "Down with them!" they say, "Down with them from the throne!" they say. "Down forever! Down out of sight! He is not God. He has no right to sit there. Down with Him! Down with Christ!"

A world without a head, a universe without a king. Orphan constellations. Fatherless galaxies. Anarchy supreme. A dethroned Jehovah. An assassinated God. Patricide, regicide, deicide. That is what they mean. That is what they will have if they can. I say if they can. Civilization hurled back into semibarbarism and semibarbarism driven back into Hottentot savagery. The wheel of progress turned the other way and turned toward the dark ages. The clock of the centuries put back 2,000 years. Go back, you Sandwich islands, from your schools and from your colleges and from your reformed condition to what you were in 1820, when the missionaries first came. Call home the 500 missionaries from India and overthrow their 2,000 schools, where they are trying to educate the heathen, and scatter the 140,000 little children that they have gathered out of barbarism into civilization. Obliterate all the work of Dr. Duff in India, of David Abeel in China, of Dr. King in Greece, of Judson in Burma, of David Brainerd amid the American aborigines, and send home the 3,000 missionaries of the cross who are toiling in foreign lands, toiling for Christ's sake, toiling themselves into the grave. Tell these 3,000 men of God that they are of no use. Send home the medical missionaries who are doctoring the bodies as well as the souls of the dying nations. Go home, London Missionary society. Go home, American board of foreign missions. Go home, you Moravians and relinquish back into darkness and squalor and death the nations whom ye have begun to lift.

Oh, my friends, there has never been such a nefarious plot on earth as that which infidelity and atheism have planned. We were shocked a few years ago because of the attempt to blow up the parliament houses in London, but if infidelity and atheism succeed in their attempt they will dynamite a world. Let them have their full way, and this world will be a habitation of three rooms—a habitation with just three rooms, the one a madhouse, another a lazaretto, the other a pendemonium. These infidel bands of music have only just begun their concert—yes, they have only been stringing up their instruments. I to-day put before you their whole programme from beginning unto close. In the theater the tragedy comes first and the farce afterward, but in this infidel drama of death the farce comes first and the tragedy afterward. And in the former atheists and infidels laugh and mock, but in the latter God himself will laugh and mock. He says so. "I will laugh at their calamity and mock when their fear cometh."

At the beginning God said: "Let there be light," and light was, and light is, and light shall be. So Christianity is rolling on, and it is going to warm all nations, and all nations are to bask in its light. Men may shut the window blinds so they cannot see it, or they may smoke the pipe of speculation until they are shadowed under their own vaporing, but the Lord God is the sun! This white light of the Gospel made up of all the beautiful colors of earth and Heaven—violet plucked from amid the spring grass, and the indigo of the southern jungles, and the blue of the skies, and the green of the foliage, and the yellow of the autumnal woods, and the orange of the southern groves, and the red of the sunsets. All the beauties of earth and Heaven brought out by this spiritual spectrum. Great Britain is going to take all Europe for God. The United States are going to take America for God. Both of them together will take all Asia for God. All three of them will take Africa for God. "Who art thou, O, great mountain? Before Zerubbabel thou shalt become a plain." "The mouth of the Lord hath spoken it." Hallelujah, amen!

He Was a Real Boy.

Lady (who is about to move, to neighbor's little boy)—And what will you do when I go away, Sammy, and leave no one in the house?

Sammy—Break all the windows.—Harlem Life.

EDWARD ATKINSON'S CRIME.

Why the Administration Has Silenced the Erstwhile Republican Philosopher.

For many years the American public has been familiar with the name of Edward Atkinson. Edward has been, from early childhood, a stanch republican. In his early manhood he established a reputation as a statistician. What Mulhall has been to England Atkinson has been to America, in a slightly different sense. Mulhall is a statistician who gathers statistics and compiles figures for the entire world. He covers every land and clime and publishes them for what they are worth. Atkinson is a statistician, too, who has compiled columns upon columns of figures to show that the republican party was the greatest political party that ever existed in the tide of times. That under its beneficent rule men did not need money, clothing, food nor any of the etceteras of civilization.

The average man could not understand, according to Mr. Atkinson, when he was well off, and was an uncivilized ass if he could not live luxuriously on a pint of kerosene, a tin stove and 50 cents a week. Mulhall was a vulgar mathematical historian who compiled figures to illustrate existent facts. Mr. Atkinson was a mathematical philosopher who would lead the world past the antiquated systems of Aristotle and Bacon, to the fields of Elysian economy that would enable the poor to become rich and the rich to place an honest penny in a rainy day stocking.

Mr. Atkinson was hailed as the solver of a great national problem and the deliverer of a nation. His praises were sounded from east to west, from north to south. On the highway, from Dan to Beersheba, travelers told of his philosophy. The dwellers in Jerusalem heated the city with kerosene lamps and the makers of the old-fashioned 92-per-cent.-of-waste cast iron ranges went into bankruptcy, and Gehenna Atkinson was exalted. His name was heard throughout the land. "Mr. Chairman," said the republican orator of 1896, "we are not having hard times. The poor are not growing poorer and the rich richer, as I shall prove from recent statistics compiled by one of the most eminent authorities in the world—Hon. Edward Atkinson, of Boston. I pity the man, Mr. Chairman, who would question the honesty, independence and fairness of Mr. Atkinson."

Mr. Atkinson is no longer an idol. He has come into disgrace, along with Tom Reed, Eddy Hale, Georgie Hoar and other numerous members of the republican pantheon. He has been charged, as was the most sublime philosopher of the ages, with the commission of a political crime. He is corrupting the youth of the nation, and must be made to drink the Socratic hyssop.

His tracts, pamphlets and miscellaneous pieces, heretofore held in the highest regard and receiving the commendation of the profound McKinley, the literary Hanna and the New Jersey trusts, are now barred the mails, and, like Mahomet's coffin, suspended in transit.

"To be honest as the world goes," said the prince of Denmark, "is to be one man picked out of 10,000." Edward Atkinson, even though often mistaken, is always honest. This is the head and front of his offending. He has committed the crime of lese majeste.

You don't believe, being an American, that one can commit treason by being honest and telling the truth. You are not familiar with recent developments and are unacquainted with the Dreyfus case. You are not aware that a man may be thrust into outer darkness for criticising the reputed head of the nation, as in Germany he may be arrested and imprisoned for questioning the divine and godlike characteristics of the kaiser. Mr. Atkinson may corrupt the youth of the country and the soldiers in the Philippines with the facts and figures of the last congressional and senatorial history as culled from the columns of that wide-awake and truthfully sensational sheet, the Congressional Record, but no word must be uttered against the immaculate gentleman who rules the empire and the illustrious coterie of Atkinsonian economists who surround him if he would save himself from everlasting infamy and disgrace.

Listen! This is the real reason, found in his pamphlet, why "the government" has undertaken to silence the erstwhile republican philosopher and sage:

"Is it not our misfortune to have in the chair of the president of the United States a man of weak and uncertain purpose, without convictions and unequal to the emergency, who, having declared that an act of aggression would be a national crime, has trifled with the question?" He disposes of the president and his cabinet in this language: "I know no men whose names will go down among the mothers of the land, even in the near future, subject to greater execration than the names of the men who have brought this act of criminal aggression upon the nation."—Kansas City Times.

MILITARISM RAMPANT.

Philippine News Must Run the Gauntlet of Administration-Favored Authorities.

When the facts of the military censorship of news dispatches from the Philippines come to light—as they will, following the close of the war—the people of the United States will receive a startling object lesson of the military despotism inseparable from a policy of foreign conquest.

The Republic has privately notified by staff correspondents on the scene of action of the arbitrary workings of the system of press censorship inaugurated by Gen. Otis. It is not a pleasant story for Americans to read—the sound, popular doctrine of the freedom of the press is not favored by army autocrats who have their own ends and their own friends to serve. Otis' system, it is stated, "is exactly the one Weyler enforced in Cuba, against which Americans made such an outcry."

It is an everyday occurrence, the Republic learns, for correspondents to be compelled to strike out the names of men or regiments who deserve mention, and to be compelled to send the names of those who have done nothing. "We don't propose to have the newspapers make any heroes here," the army press censor tells correspondents. "If any heroes are to be made, this department makes them." Therefore the censor "kills all praise and almost all mention of certain regiments and officers not liked at headquarters, and insists on flattery of those officers and troops that are in favor, the general trend being to discriminate against volunteers and for regulars."

In many other ways the correspondents' legitimate freedom of expression is hampered and the Philippine news service interfered with. The development is new in American history—it seems to be a consistent phase of imperialism and militarism, of wars of aggression and conquest waged in distant lands. The iron hand of the professional soldier is felt in a way that is full of menace to the best interests of a great and peace-loving republic. "I want you to understand," said the American censor in the Philippines, "that this is a military despotism. We do not recognize that anyone except the army has any rights."

When the people of the United States learn the full facts of army autocracy in the Philippines the sentiment against imperialism will crystallize into sudden and most material substance. The peril of military dominance has been swift to show itself in the far east. It will be promptly recognized by the people. They will see to it that the necessary correction is administered. Under a republican form of government there are many other interests besides "the army" which have rights that must be respected. The public press, always the safeguard and the informant of the people, is one of these interests.—St. Louis Republic.

OUR EXPENSIVE AND EXPANSIVE MILITARISM.

PRESS COMMENTS.

——Alger in the senate! Well, there are places where he might do more harm, and one of them he holds at present.—Utica Observer.

——With portentous gravity the McKinley cuckoo organs announce that the executive will say "nutting things" about the war critics. How very dreadful!—Chicago Democrat.

——Quay's friends jubilantly announce that Mark Hanna will vote to seat Quay in the United States senate. It will be recalled that Hanna himself was annoyed by some slight technicalities affecting his negotiations for a seat.—Albany Argus.

——A great moral purty could not afford to shoulder responsibility for Hanna and Hannaism, but the republican party has ceased to be representative of anything except a distorted interpretation of Americanism and the refuge of trusts, syndicates and multimillionaires. It is, in short, organized evil.—Lafayette (Ind.) Journal.

——There are two elements in the republican party, just as there are in the country at large. One represents Hanna, Alger, Eagan, Carter and carrion meat and the other represents the partisans who are for expansion, the honor of the flag and the punishment of the poisoners of soldiers. The latter class is rather out of place in the republican party, but it exists.—Washington Times.

SCHOOL AND CHURCH.

Fifteen million dollars is annually expended in missions by Christian churches.

Five prisoners were taken from the jail at Carlisle, Ky., the other day to be baptized in the Christian church.

The Angelus says that there are 21 Catholic peers in England, 18 Catholic lords who are also peers, 55 Catholic baronets, 19 Catholic members of the privy council, three Catholic members of the house of commons for England, and 69 for Ireland.

Wilberforce's "Way to Heaven," as it is frequently referred to arose from a remark made by Bishop Wilberforce to a cynic who met him on a road and asked, jeeringly: "Can you tell me the way to Heaven?" "Turn to the right," answered the bishop, "and keep straight on."

A large manufacturing concern of Dayton, O., has issued notice that from now on preference will be given to young applicants for employment who have had a kindergarten training, and after 1-15 no application for employment will be considered unless the applicant shall have had a kindergarten training.

The American Baptist Home Mission society has closed the fiscal year without debt. Twenty thousand dollars of the Martin E. Gray bequest will be devoted to a memorial building at Richmond in connection with the university, to be known as Gray hall, and $10,000 of the same bequest is designated for church office work.

Thirty is not too old for college, although, of course, the average person's collegiate time is over at that age. Yet men have entered college at 40, and been graduated. It all depends upon how anxious one is to acquire knowledge. The mind is more alert for college training at 40, but it is by no means incapable of acquiring knowledge after that.

The school board of Newton, Mass., recently decided that cooking was not to be taught in the public schools of that town, claiming, and very wisely, that such an art could be best taught in the pupils' homes. "Many people," says the Newton Graphic, "think that the danger limit has been reached,"—in regard to the multiplicity of things taught in the schools—"and that it is high time to return to old-fashioned methods." People have gone to an impossible extreme, expecting the schools to turn out skilled carpenters, dressmakers, lecturers, bookkeepers, etc.—Housewife, N. Y.

OF HUMBLE BIRTH.

Insignificant Origin of Some of Those Who Have Won the Admiration of the World.

Columbus, the discoverer of America, was the son of a weaver.

The eminent French humorist, Francois Rabelais, was the son of an apothecary.

Cervantes, the illustrious Spanish author, was born of an ancient but reduced family. He early entered military service and served as a common soldier.

The great French dramatist, Moliere, was the son of a tapestry-maker.

Terence, the celebrated Roman dramatist, was at one time a slave.

Homer, most illustrious of poets, was at one time a beggar.

The Greek poet, Hesiod, was a farmer's son.

Demosthenes, the most celebrated orator of antiquity, was a cutler's son.

The great English preacher, George Whitfield, was the son of an innkeeper at Gloucester.

Thomas Wolsey, the English cardinal and statesman, was a butcher's son.

Edmund Halley, the English astronomer and mathematician, was the son of a soap manufacturer.

Dr. Thomas, bishop of Worcester, was a linen-draper's son.

Dr. Mountain, bishop of Durham, was the son of a beggar.

Joseph Hall, bishop of Norwich and theological writer, was a farmer's son.

Virgil, the great Latin epic poet, was the son of a potter.

Horace was a shopkeeper's son.

Plautus, one of the greatest Roman comic poets, was the son of a baker.

The English lexicographer, Dr. Samuel Johnson, was the son of a bookdealer.

Oliver Cromwell was a brewer's son.

Robert Burns, the Scotch poet, was a plowman in Ayrshire.

William Shakespeare, "the chief literary glory of England," was a yeoman's son.

The celebrated American engineer, Robert Fulton, was at one time a jeweler's apprentice.

Daniel Webster was the son of a small farmer.

From the most humble origin, Thurlow Weed became one of the leading journalists of the United States, and a great political leader.

William Cullen Bryant was the son of a physician.

Andrew Jackson was born at Waxaw settlement, South Carolina. While the future president was still a mere child his father died, and the family was left in reluced circumstances, on a half-cleared farm in a new settlement.

Abraham Lincoln was the son of a poor farmer.

Thomas Jefferson, the writer of the Declaration of Independence, was a planter's son.

William E. Gladstone, "the grand old man," was a merchant's son.—Philadelphia Times.

Her Inference.

Mrs. Capt. Bruggington—My husband won renown on the tented field.

Sally Gay—Why, I didn't know you had ever traveled with a circus!—Puck.

Idle People.

It is surprising what an amount of nothing some people can accomplish.—Chicago Daily News.

A SONG OF SPRING.

A subtle something in the air—
Or is it in the earth somewhere?—
Has changed the fields that late were bare
To carpets of bright green;
And now is heard the clearest note
From thrustle's pipe and bluebird's throat,
And now the robin's rufous coat
Takes on its brightest sheen.

Along the dank edge of the swale
The crimson budding maples hail,
With grateful blush, the April gale
That wakes to life the flowers;
And green and yellow, pink and gray,
Blend in the landscape far away;
And near, the blackbird's roundelay,
Beguiles the sunny hours.

The crocus pushes thro' the mold
In cradle hollows deep, that hold
Piled leaves of layers manifold,
Its yellow-bearded spear;
And, 'neath the hill top's sheltered lea,
A warming glow on bush and tree
Awakes the pale anemone,
That blushes to be here.

A deeper shade of green is seen
In mossy banks that rise between
The fretting brook and laurel screen,
That skirts the woodland path.
The swelling flowers, the budding tree,
The warming flush on hill and lea,
Are signs that all too soon will be
But springtime's aftermath.
—C. H. Doing, in Washington Star.

A Novel Bull-Fight.

I REMEMBER a queer little incident that happened while we were living in Massachusetts. My father was a lover of fine cattle, and our farm could show some of the handsomest oxen and cows to be found in the state. It was situated on the north bank of the Charles river, which swept along at the foot of our broad pasture.

In the sultry summer days the 20 or 30 kine would often stand for hours in the water, cooling themselves, and brushing off the flies with their wet tails.

The river, although but a few rods wide, was very deep in the middle; so that the animals never ventured to cross it. It was spanned by a bridge, across which led the public highway, and by this highway the pasture was bounded at one end.

The road occupied an elevated piece of ground, and the bridge was some 20 feet above the water.

I have said that our cattle were very handsome; but of all the fine-looking herd, the most remarkable was a big Holstein bull which had twice taken the highest prize at the state fair. He weighed 1,900 pounds, was perfect in shape, and had a rich, glossy coat that it was a delight to see. Like all the Holsteins, he was black and white, the white being like snow, the black like ebony. But with all his beauty, the old fellow was no more to be trusted than a Bengal tiger. His large, full eyes had an ugly roll whenever he was approached by strangers; and the deep, ow bellow and ominous scrape of the hoof would warn the curious visitor against a too great familiarity.

As a general thing, he was kept in his stall, secured by two halters, which, being attached to a ring in his nose, and leading in opposite directions, effectually prevented any dangerous use of the short, sharp, glossy horns. But at times he was allowed to run in the pasture, when his queer, hoarse lowing, and a kind of muttered thunder that he occasionally gave forth, would attract the attention of those who passed along the road.

Our farm was situated below the bridge, as the river ran. On the other side of the Charles, but above the bridge, was the Wilson farm. Mr. Wilson, its owner, was, like my father, much interested in cattle, and he had a large Jersey bull, of which he was very proud.

The animal weighed but a little less than ours, and was nearly as handsome. He had won the first prize for Jerseys, and was, in fact, a superb creature.

Mr. Wilson's pasture reached down to the water, like our own, and though not exactly opposite, was still very near. Occasionally our neighbor's bull would be out at the same time with ours, and then there would be music!

Although the intervening road which crossed the bridge prevented them from seeing each other, they would still bellow defiance. Each would paw the soft river bottom, throwing up an abundance of mud and water that bespattered only his own handsome coat, while he vainly longed for a good, savage clinch with his enemy.

I would not have met either of those bulls in the middle of a ten-acre lot for the best farm in New England. In fact, whenever ours was to be set free a convenient gate was open to climb always entered into the calculations of the person who held the rod and halter; and equal care was necessary when the old king of the herd was to be replaced in his stall.

One day, when my father was absent, an unusual amount of bellowing was heard, and, after a time, we perceived that it did not seem to come from the direction of the pasture. We children ran to find out what the matter was, taking good care, however, not to put ourselves in the way of danger.

A very brief examination told the whole story. A cloud of dust was going up in one part of the highway, and giving forth thunder very much in the manner of other clouds. Under it we could see some huge animal, which might once have been black and white, but which was now nearly of the color of the dust itself. The discovery was startling. Our big bull was out in the road!

Our hired men came running to the scene, but they were powerless in the premises—no one of them having the least inclination to penetrate that thunderclo'd, or "head it off" from whatever direction it might happen to take.

Just then the old stage coach, which ran regularly past our place, made its appearance around a curve of the highway, and was jogging along toward the river, when the driver suddenly drew rein.

He knew our old thoroughbred by reputation, and governed his conduct accordingly. The inside passengers, startled by the bovine thunder, craned their necks out of the stage windows to get a view of the road ahead.

The bull had at first started to go toward the bridge, attracted, no doubt, by the bellowings of his old enemy over the river, which in the meantime we could distinctly hear.

It seemed as if Mr. Wilson's Jersey must know that something unusual had taken place on our side, for the sounds indicated that he had come to the road fence, although the height of the land about the bridge prevented us from seeing him.

The attention of the Holstein, however, was for the moment engrossed by the stage; and he began to move toward it, bringing his dust cloud with him, and stopping at every yard or two to paw, with a power that sent showers of gravel stones into the adjoining fields.

Had the case been less serious, a spectator might have laughed to see the driver wheel his four-horse team—an operation favored as well by the width of the road as by the slowness of the bull's movements.

The stage rattled back around the curve and out of sight, while his bovine majesty stared after it as if wondering how it had vanished.

Then for a few minutes he again betook himself to the task of scraping the highway; but presently, with head erect, he started off toward the bridge, bellowing in one unbroken peal as he went.

The cause of this decided movement was at once apparent, and it was with startled feelings that we recognized what had taken place.

The bellowing from the other side of the river was getting nearer. A cloud of dust showed itself on that side of the bridge. Mr. Wilson's big Jersey was out! A moment more and we could see his short horns and strong back under the sand and gravel that he was throwing into the air.

It was right in the middle of the bridge that the two powerful creatures met. We heard their horns clash together and their struggling hoofs grind the planks. Both heads were lowered, and both sinewy frames were pushing with all their might.

It was such an exhibition of strength as I have never seen equaled. Those thick, short necks seemed made of solid iron.

For a time it seemed as if neither would be able to obtain any advantage over his antagonist, but at length the Jersey was forced to step slowly back, although still disputing the ground with many a desperate rally to recover what was lost.

Presently, while the two furious combatants were braced against each other crosswise to the road, the flanks of the inferior bull struck the old, rotten railing of the bridge, and we heard it crack loudly.

The Holstein was pushing with tremendous vigor; the Jersey lost another foot of ground, and there was no chance for him to regain it. Crash! went the old wood behind him; and sheer off the bridge, and down into the river, tumbled rail, bull and all.

Of course the attention of the spectators was fixed upon the vanquished animal, in some anxiety for his safety. But he did not seem to be injured in the least. Turning his broad, curly front toward his pasture, he swam strongly for the shore, only some 30 yards distant, and quickly scrambled up the bank.

In the meantime the Holstein remained upon the bridge. For some minutes he stood motionless, exactly in the position he had occupied when his enemy disappeared. His head was down, at a "charge bayonet" depression and his tail remained lifted just as it had been in the fight. He seemed but the figure of a bull cut in black and white marble.

The catastrophe was evidently beyond his comprehension. What had become of his adversary, who was so suddenly and so unaccountably gone?

Presently he began to back straight across the bridge, taking up one foot after another very slowly, and occasionally pawing the planks with his fore hoof. Back, back, back he stepped, all the while in an attitude of sullen defiance, with lowered head and threatening bellow.

The rail behind him was rotten and weak. Its condition had long been a reproach to the town. It broke instantly as his weight pressed against it. He did not seem to notice the obstruction in the least, or even to know that he had touched it.

Back, back he pushed. Both hind feet went over the edge of the bridge. His head flew up, his fore hoofs scraped the planks, and then there was a great splash in the water below.

For a few seconds the big Holstein was entirely lost to sight, while the waters eddied and surged above the spot where he had gone down. Then he rose and turned his curly pate toward the shore, landing in his own pasture, precisely as the Jersey had landed in the other.

Neither of the animals had suffered any injury, and the amount of bellowing and scraping with which they filled up the remainder of the day showed that both were as sound as ever in lung and limb.

The town forthwith voted to fix a good, substantial railing upon that bridge, so that, after all, the meeting of the two bulls became the occasion of a very necessary road improvement.—Golden Days.

Proof Positive.

Browne—Is she a strong-minded woman?

Towne—I should say so! Why, I've seen her look at the picture of a baby without exclaiming: "Isn't it cute?"—N. Y. World.

France's New President.

President Loubet, the new president of France, is, if anything, calm, sane, a "tradebourgeois and utterly devoid of sense of self-importance. But there is a strong and irresistible will behind his bland face, and he looks like a man who would infuse into run-down French politics as much vigor and new life as Hostetter's Stomach Bitters will into the run-down system of anyone who uses it. It is an absolute cure for the worst of all stomach disorders.

A Card of Thanks.

To the Editor—I wish to express my heartfelt thanks to the following named persons for the assistance rendered me in the death of my husband: Officers Brown, Loftus and O'Donnell, who helped get the carriages in line at the funeral; John Gorman, who watched the corpse; Adolph Simmon, of Simmon & Norris, who was especially noticeable while singing "All Count Look Alike to Me" at the wake, and to Nick Wentz, for serving lunch to the mourners during their bereavement. These men shall never be forgotten for their kindness. Mrs. Sarah Ann Wells, nee Murphy.—Penny Press.

What "Kalsomines" Are.

"Kalsomines" are cheap temporary preparations manufactured from chalks, clays, whiting, etc., and are stuck on the walls with decaying animal glue. They bear no comparison with Alabastine, which is a cement that goes through a process of setting, and hardens with age. Consumers, in buying Alabastine, should see that the goods are in packages and properly labeled. Nothing else is "just as good" as Alabastine. The claims of new imitations are absurd on their face. They cannot offer the test of time for durability.

Then She Felt Relieved.

"I felt sure the hero was going to be killed," she said, in describing the serial story to her best friend, "until I happened to think that the author was paid so much a word, and probably would not want to spoil a good thing."—Chicago Post.

Do Your Feet Ache and Burn?

Shake into your shoes, Allen's Foot-Ease, a powder for the feet. It makes tight or New Shoes feel Easy. Cures Corns, Bunions, Swollen, Hot, Callous, Sore, and Sweating Feet. All Druggists and Shoe Stores sell it, 25c. Sample sent FREE. Address, Allen S. Olmsted, Le Roy, N. Y.

Take everything with a grain of moderation. A little fertilizer makes the grass grow better, but put it on a foot thick and it kills all vegetation.—L. A. W. Bulletin.

Parke—"I gave the cook fits to my wife this morning." Lane—"Anything happen?" Parke—"I don't know yet, but I'm afraid she heard what I said."—Town Topics.

"It takes a thief to catch a thief," and an honest man finds more good men in the world than a tassel would ever guess were there.—L. A. W. Bulletin.

THE MARKETS.

CINCINNATI, May 15.

LIVE STOCK—Cattle, common	$3 50	@ 4 50
Select Shipper	4 65	@ 4 75
CALVES—Fair to Good Butc	6 50	@ 6 75
HOGS—Coarse and heavy	3 15	@ 3 60
Mixed packers	3 75	@ 3 80
Light shippers	3 80	@ 4 50
SHEEP—Choice	3 70	@ 3 10
LAMBS—Spring	6 00	@ 8 00
FLOUR—Winter patent	3 35	@ 3 65
GRAIN—Wheat, No. 2 red		@ 71
No. 3 red		@ 70
Corn—No. 2 mixed		@ 26½
Oats—No. 2		@ 29
Rye—No. 2		@ 64
HAY—Prime to choice	11 00	@ 11 50
PROVISIONS—Mess pork		@ 9 50
Lard		@ 4 85
BUTTER—Choice dairy		@ 10
Prime to choice creamery		@ 18
APPLES—Choice to fancy	4 50	@ 5 00
POTATOES—Per bu	45	@ 75

CHICAGO.

FLOUR—Winter patent	3 50	@ 3 60
WHEAT—No. 2 red	71½	@ 72
CORN—No. 2 mixed	66	@ 66
RYE—No. 2		@ 64
OATS—Mixed		@ 31½
PORK—New Mess	8 25	@ 9 00
LARD—Western		@ 5 50

BALTIMORE.

FLOUR—Family	$ 35	@ 3 50
GRAIN—Wheat, No. 2 red	72½	@ 72
Southern	69½	@ 72½
Corn—Mixed	37½	@ 38
Oats—No. 2 white	33½	@ 34
Rye—No. 2 western		@ 66
CATTLE—First quality	4 50	@ 4 80
HOGS—Western	3 90	@ 4 10

INDIANAPOLIS.

GRAIN—Wheat, No. 2 red		@ 71½
Corn—No. 2 mixed		@ 33½
Oats—No. 2 mixed		@ 28

LOUISVILLE.

FLOUR—Winter patent	3 75	@ 4 00
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 red		@ 73
Corn—Mixed		@ 38
Oats—Mixed		@ 30
PORK—Mess		@10 00
LARD—Steam		@ 5 75

Foot-Ease Trade-Mark Sustained.

Justice Laughlin, in Supreme Court, Buffalo, has ordered a permanent injunction, with costs, and a full accounting of sales, to issue against Paul B. Hudson, manufacturer of "Dr. Clark's Foot Powder," and also against a retail dealer of Brooklyn, restraining them from making or selling Dr. Clark's Foot Powder, which is declared, in the decision of the Court, an imitation and infringement of "Foot—Ease," the powder for tired, aching feet to shake in your shoes, now so largely advertised and sold all over the country. Allen S. Olmsted, of Le Roy, N. Y., is the owner of the trade-mark "Foot—Ease," and he is the first individual who ever advertised a foot powder extensively. He will send a sample Free to any one who writes him for it. The decision in this case upholds his trade-mark and renders all parties liable who fraudulently attempt to profit by the extensive "Foot—Ease" advertising, in placing upon the market a spurious and similar appearing preparation, labeled and put up in envelopes and boxes like Foot—Ease. Similar suits will be brought against others who are now infringing on the Foot—Ease trade-mark and common law rights.

Helped by a Tip.

"I don't see how it happens that you get the start of your business rivals so often," said the man to the prosperous undertaker. "Why, you must have nearly double the trade of any of the others."

"Guess I do," said the man of caskets, frankly, "guess I do. Of course, mum is the word, but the fact is, Dr. Cutter always gives me the tip when he's going to dig for appendicitis—and I'm invariably the first man to apply for the job!"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

STATE OF OHIO, CITY OF TOLEDO, } ss.
LUCAS COUNTY,

Frank J. Cheney makes oath that he is the senior partner of the firm of F. J. Cheney & Co., doing business in the city of Toledo, County and State aforesaid, and that said firm will pay the sum of One Hundred Dollars for each and every case of catarrh that cannot be cured by the use of Hall's Catarrh Cure.

FRANK J. CHENEY.

Sworn to before me and subscribed in my presence, this 6th day of December, A. D. 1886.

A. W. GLEASON,
[Seal] Notary Public.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally and acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. Send for testimonials, free. F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O.

Sold by druggists, 75c.

Hall's Family Pills are the best.

The Giving of It.

Lension—The bride was given away by her father.

Platt—And it was the newspapers, I believe, that gave the count away.—Philadelphia North American.

Interested in Texas?

If so you will do well to send to D. J. Price, Gen. Pass. & Tkt. Agt. International & Great Northern Railway, Palestine, Texas, for a copy of "Illustrator and General Narrator," a very attractive publication, filled with reliable information in regard to the Empire State of the Southwest. A 2-cent stamp to cover postage will secure it.

Helpers.

Coroner—Was the victim conscious when you reached him?

Pat—Yis, sir, he worr. But bechune us I don't belave he knew it.—Philadelphia North American.

The Best Prescription for Chills,

and Fever is a bottle of GROVE'S TASTELESS CHILL TONIC. It is simply iron and quinine in a tasteless form. No cure—no pay. Price 50c.

Always Nimble.

There is no rest for money. Spendthrifts keep it going. Misers keep counting it.—N. O. Picayune.

To Cure a Cold in One Day

Take Laxative Bromo Quinine Tablets. All druggists refund money if it fails to cure. 25c.

How to Get Rich.—"Some men," said Uncle Rhen, "wouldn't hab no trouble 'tall 'bout gettin' rich ef dey held on as tight to de money dey earns as dey does to de money dey borrows."—Washington Star.

Don't forget that you can dye all kinds of fibers, cotton, wool or silk at the same time, in the same vessel with Putnam Fadeless Dyes.

A hole in one's pocket isn't desirable, but how about the rent in that of one's landlord?—L. A. W. Bulletin.

I have found Piso's Cure for Consumption an unfailing medicine.—F. R. Lotz, 1305 Scott St., Covington, Ky., Oct. 1, 1895.

Sometimes you hear of a perfect man. He is the fellow your wife could have married.—Town Topics.

Beauty marred by a bad complexion may be restored by Glenn's Sulphur Soap. Hill's Hair and Whisker Dye, 50 cents.

"Never wear shoes too small for you," is a good foot rule.—Chicago Daily News.

WOMEN are assailed at every turn by troubles peculiar to their sex. Every mysterious ache or pain is a symptom. These distressing sensations will keep on coming unless properly treated.

The history of neglect is written in the worn faces and wasted figures of nine-tenths of our women, every one of whom may receive the invaluable advice of Mrs. Pinkham, without charge, by writing to her at Lynn, Mass.

WOMEN WHO NEED MRS. PINKHAM'S AID

MISS LULA EVANS, of Parkersburg, Iowa, writes of her recovery as follows:

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM—I had been a constant sufferer for nearly three years. Had inflammation of the womb, leucorrhœa, heart trouble, bearing-down pains, backache, headache, ached all over, and at times could hardly stand on my feet. My heart trouble was so bad that some nights I was compelled to sit up in bed or get up and walk the floor, for it seemed as though I should smother. More than once I have been obliged to have the doctor visit me in the middle of the night. I was also very nervous and fretful. I was utterly discouraged. One day I thought I would write and see if you could do anything for me. I followed your advice and now I feel like a new woman. All those dreadful troubles I have no more, and I have found Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Sanative Wash a sure cure for leucorrhœa. I am very thankful for your good advice and medicine."

The courtship period for Ayer's Sarsaparilla passed long since, when it won the confidence and esteem of thoughtful men and women 50 years ago.

You need have no doubts, if, when you go to buy Sarsaparilla, you simply say the old name

"AYER'S"

That is the kind that cured your fathers and their fathers before them, and it is the kind that will cure you. Other Sarsaparillas may look like it, may even taste like it, but somehow or other they haven't the knack of curing people that Ayer's has. Just try one bottle of Ayer's today.

SUCCESSFUL SHOOTERS SHOOT
WINCHESTER
Rifles, Repeating Shotguns, Ammunition and Loaded Shotgun Shells. Winchester guns and ammunition are the standard of the world, but they do not cost any more than poorer makes. All reliable dealers sell Winchester goods.
FREE: Send name and address on a postal for 156 page Illustrated Catalogue describing all the guns and ammunition made by the
WINCHESTER REPEATING ARMS CO.,
180 WINCHESTER AVE., NEW HAVEN, CONN.

"EAST, WEST, HOME IS BEST," IF KEPT CLEAN WITH SAPOLIO

DR. MOFFETT'S TEETHINA
TEETHING POWDERS
Aids Digestion, Regulates the Bowels, Makes Teething Easy. TEETHINA Relieves the Bowel Troubles of Children of Any Age.
Costs Only 25 Cents. Ask Your Druggist for It.

1000s of UNSOLICITED TESTIMONIALS SAY
MRS. HILL MANSFIELDS
CAPILLARIS
Permanently cures all Itching, Burning, Scaley, Scalp and Skin Diseases, such as Salt Rheum, Eczema, Scald Head, Chilblains, Piles, Burns, Baby Humors, Dandruff, Itching Scalp, Falling Hair (thickening and making it Soft, Silky, and Luxuriant). All Face Eruptions (producing a Soft, Clear, Beautiful Skin and Complexion). It contains no Lead, Sulphur, Cantharides or anything injurious. An easy, great seller. Lady canvassers make $1 to $3 a day. Druggists or mail 50c. Capillaris Manufacturing Co., N. Y. Address MRS. HILL MANSFIELD, Agt., GLEN RIDGE, N. J.

Free by mail if you write with Carter's Ink to CARTER'S INK CO., BOSTON, MASS.

WHISKERS DYED
A Natural Black by
Buckingham's Dye.
Price 50 cents of all druggists or R. P. Hall & Co., Nashua, N. H.

LIVE STOCK
CUTS.
We will furnish duplicates of LIVE STOCK CUTS or any other Cut shown in any specimen Book, at or below quoted prices for same.
A. N. KELLOGG NEWSPAPER CO.,
335 W. Fifth St., Cincinnati, O.

READERS OF THIS PAPER DESIRING TO BUY ANYTHING ADVERTISED IN ITS COLUMNS SHOULD INSIST UPON HAVING WHAT THEY ASK FOR, REFUSING ALL SUBSTITUTES OR IMITATIONS.

PISO'S CURE FOR
CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS.
Best Cough Syrup. Tastes Good. Use in time. Sold by druggists.
CONSUMPTION

WHEN WRITING TO ADVERTISERS please state that you saw the Advertisement in this paper.

NEIGHBORHOOD NEWS.

Petersburg.

Home grown strawberries are on the market here.

Some kind of a green worm ate all our gooseberries.

A great many of the young cherries and apples have fallen off.

Joe Snelling, the cattle boss, shipped 100 distillery fed cattle Saturday.

Dick McWethy has built a nice portico to the front part of residence

Berkshire, McWethy & Co., sold over 1,000 bus. of seed potatoes this spring.

Thirty persons went from here to Carrollton, Sunday, on the Cincinnati.

Scott Chambers and Jas. Williams finished planting tobacco, about 8 acres in all.

John J. Klopp and B. W. Buffington are among the very sick people in this vicinity.

Miss Minnie Hartman entertained a number of friends from Cincinnati, last Sunday.

George Blyth and Tony Bentler, of Burlington, were in town Saturday evening.

The backwater is over the ford at Grant's crossing on the Petersburg and Bellevue road.

We spent two hours writing a communication for the RECORDER and it got sidetracked.

Paul Roberts, son of Judge Roberts, of Aurora, was calling on Miss Annie Pease, Sunday.

Will Crisler is the counter-jumper in the new Blue Grass grocery. A good man for the place.

Bugs have devoured the first planting of watermelons, and the growers will have to plant over.

Robert Snelling, of Indianapolis, Indiana, was visiting his friends here Sunday. He looks well.

Judge Sam Wenizel and wife, of Home City, O., were visiting Mrs. Elijah Holtou, Sunday.

Capt. Jacob Pfaff had one of his best horses to get fast in a barbed wire fence and cut its throat. It died.

Mr. Klipp, first engineer of the Str. Workum, has moved to town and occupies Frank Geisler's house.

The cattle feeders at the distillery all went out on a strike Saturday night. Two much work for the hands.

Chas. McWethy, proprietor of a Greencastle, Indiana laundry, is visiting his brother John who is quite sick.

The Christian preacher is sick at his home in Lexington, and has not been able to fill his appointment her for two months.

It was reported here Monday morning that the steamer Dick Brown and Lizzie Bay, collided near the mouth of Big Bone.

The Workum took an excursion from Cincinnati to Warsaw, Sunday. Fiddling and dancing were the order of the day.

Jacob Klopp has set two acres of tobacco, and has plants enough to set his entire crop of eight acres, when a season comes again.

Several new faces are seen among the revenue boys lately. Civil service don't keep the boys out any longer, which is just right.

Miss Lizzie Parker, the handsome and accomplished daughter of Capt. Elijah Parker, entained the W. C. T. U. Saturday evening.

S. G. Botts has potatoes in bloom and some have begun to set. Some of those Burlington gardeners will have to hustle to beat him.

J. D. Norris, of Milan, Ind., was visiting his daughter, Mrs. B. H. Berkshire, last week. Miss Mamie Buchanan went home with him.

W. H. Grant has returned from a protracted visit with his son, Dr. R. L. Grant, of Texarkana, Texas. He stopped off and saw his son, Dr. Ed, at Louisville.

A handsome young gent, of the Gasburg neighborhood bought a $30 suit, which has started old mother gossip to wag her tongue in regard to the wedding.

A. B. Rouse, the young attorney of Burlington, was in town Saturday, and one of our citizens said he was the nicest young man that had struck the town for some time.

Dr. Gill Rice and Geo. Vesenmeir, jr., had a set-to on Front St., opposite the residence of Earl Whiting, one evening not long since. Judge Crisler bound them over to keep the peace.

An alarm of fire called the department to the residence of Mrs. Rebecca Tilley, one morning last week. A fierce blaze had started in the upper story, burning off all the roof. Cause—defective flue.

Seth C. Foster, of Cincinnati, will erect an 8 room, 2 story frame residence on the old Chas. Foster homestead on Ashbyfork, some time this summer. Seth has a warm spot in his heart for old Boone.

Wm. Stephens is now permanently fixed in his beautiful new suburban residence one mile out on the Burlington pike. Billy comes to town to get his evening paper, and keeps posted on the current issue of the day.

Sam Grenat had his shanty boat anchored in the mouth of Tanner's creek, and Friday the water came tearing out and demolished Sam's boat and destroyed all his furniture and came very near drowning his wife and child.

The report gained circulation here Saturday that Admiral Dewey would stop off her on his return to New York, but the president of the board of trade received word from the Admiral that it would be impossible at present, but that he would not slight Pete on his return.

The guests of the Morrison Hotel were startled, last Tuesday morning, on arising from a night's pleasant repose and seeing the body of a man dangling from a tree in front of the house. On examination it proved to be a dummy, on the back of which was pinned the name of a promiuent man of the town. At two other points in town were notices tacked up, warning two other citizens and giving them two weeks to get out of town on penalty of death.

Capt. B. W. Buffington, of Swing's Lane, was stricken with paralysis in Aurora, the other day, and was brought to his home on this side of the river, where he now lies in a dangerous condition. He had just received an increase in his pension, making $30 per month, which Uncle Sam gives him.

Some boys playing on the river shore Tuesda morning, saw what is supposed to be a sea-horse. It was about 8 feet long, had a head like a horse, and four legs and feet, and a tail like a fish. It was making its way down the river and some of the workmen at the distillery tried to capture it, but it disappeared under the water and was seen no more till some fishermen saw it at Split Rock. It is supposed to have germinated in Cincinnati's drinking water.

Hon. Geo. R. Berkshire and his son, James, took an outing, Saturday evening, and brought up on the banks of Woolper creek near the residence of Bob Nixou, where the back water was calm and nice and the fish hungry and waiting for a big, nice wet worm. Jim cast his line and in a short time had landed a German carp that weighed less than 20 pouuns. His father by this time had prepared aluice dough ball, which he said was the boss bait for Buffalo. Jim baited his hook, laid his pole and line out on the bank and he and his father went to Mr. Nixon's for a drink of water. When they came back the dough ball had caught Bob's big, black shanghi rooster and he was cutting more didos on land than a Buffalo ever did in water when hooked. Jim finally got the hook out, but the rooster's gizzard come out with it.

There will be a picnic at the Harvest Home grounds on Saturday afternoon, June 3d. Everybody invited.

Commissioner's Sale.

Boone Circuit Court, Ky.

The Ky. Citizens Building and Loan Association's Assignee, Pltf
vs } equity.
W. R Gordan, &c., Defts

By virtue of a Judgment and order of Sale of the Boone Circuit Court, rendered at the April term thereof, 1899, in the above cause, I shall proceed to offer for sale at the Court-House door in Burlington, Boone County, Ky., to the highest bidder, at Public Sale on Monday the 5th day of June 1899, at one o'clock p. m., or thereabout, being County Court day, upon a credit of 6, 12 & 18 months, the following described property, to-wit:

Lying and being in Boone county, Ky., and bounded as follows: Being lot No. 1 in Norris' addition to the town of Petersburg, Boone county, Ky., and described as follows: Fronting 50 feet on First st., and running back in uniform width of 60 feet, 144 feet to an alley; this lot is bounded on the north by First st., and on the west by Grant st., and being same lot conveyed to W. R. Gordon by John D. Norris and wife on December 31, 1884, by deed, recorded in Deed Book 35, page 15, Boone County Clerk's office.

For the purchase price the purchaser with approved security or securities, must execute bonds, bearing legal interest from the day of sale until paid, and having the force and effect of a judgment, with a lien retained therein until all the purchase money is paid. Bidders will be prepared to comply promptly with these terms. Amount to be raised by sale, $757 29.

J. W. DUNCAN, M. C. B. C. C.
Lassing & Riddell, attys. for Pltf.

Commissioner's Sale.

Boone Circuit Court, Ky.

The Ky. Citizen's Building & Loan Association's Assignee, Pltf.
vs } Equity.
Ralph C. Tilly, &c., Defts.

By virtue of a Judgment and order of sale of the Boone Circuit Court, rendered at the April term thereof, 1899, in the above cause, I shall proceed to offer for sale at the Court-house door in Burlington, Boone county, Ky., to the highest bidder at Public Sale on Monday, the 5th day of June, 1899, at 1 o'clock p. m, or thereabout, being County Court day, upon a credit of 6, 12 and 18 months, the following described property, to-wit:

Certain lots or parcels of land lying and being in the town of Petersburg, Boone county, Ky., and bounded as follows: Being on the east side of Market street and fronting thereon 66 feet each or 120 feet, and running back in an easterly direction 144 feet to an alley, and designated as lots No. 142 & 143 as laid down on the official plat and plat of said town, and being same property conveyed to Ralph C. Tilly by O. G. Wooley and wife, by deed dated 25th day of October, 1892, and recorded in Deed Book 39, page 393, Boone Co., Court Records.

Or sufficient thereof to produce the sums of money so ordered to be made. For the purchase price of said land the purchaser, with approved security or securities, must execute bond, bearing legal interest from the day of sale until paid, and having the force and effect of a judgment, with a lien retained therein until all the purchase money is paid. Bidders will be prepared to comply promptly with these terms. Amount to be raised by sale, $786 86

J. W. DUNCAN, M. C. B. C. C.
Lassing & Riddell, attys. for Pltf.

AUCTION SALE!

SATURDAY, MAY 27, 1899,

at 10 o'clock a. m. at
CONSTANCE, BOONE CO., KY.
—Articles to be sold.—

1 Big Farm Horse, 1 Milch Cow and Calf, good butter and milk, 1 2-horse Spring Wagon, 1 1-horse Spring Wagon, 1 Buggy, 1 set Double Spring Wagon Harness, 1 set Single Spring Wagon Harness, 1 set Buggy Harness, 1 Road Wagon, shafts or tongue; 1 Hay Bed, Several Sleighs; Household and Kitchen Furniture, 15 stands of Bees, good condition; Bee Hives, all sorts; Farming Implements and Tools, Log Chains and Crowbars and other articles.

Auction on premises.

F. PRABLE, Sr.,
Constance, Boone Co., Ky.

ABRAHAM LINCOLN
could split out about 100 Fence Rails a day; THE
CYCLONE FENCE MACHINE
builds 100 rods a day, 26 to 60 inches high, 7 to 12 cables.
Turning the crank cables the wire. Cheapest, strongest fence. Fastest to build. No light wires; no backache. Lasts a lifetime. Wire and Fence Supplies at Wholesale. Crimped and Spiral Pickets, Lawn Fence, Lawn and Farm Gates. Thousands of these machines in use. Gold Medal at Omaha Exposition. Write for Catalogue.
CYCLONE FENCE CO., HOLLY, MICH.
Branches: Waukegan, Ill., Cleveland, Ohio, Toronto, Canada, Melbourne, Australia. Shipments from Nearest Point.

I have control of the Cyclone Fence in Boone and Woodford counties. I will build the fence or sell machines to farmers that they may build their own fences. It is the cheapest and best fence that can be built.
Address G. CARTER GRADDY, BULLITTSVILLE, KY.

Commissioner's Sale.

Boone Circuit Court, Ky.

J. J. Lillard, } Pltf.
against } Equity.
Harriet Reib, &c. Defts.

By virtue of a judgment and order of sale of the Boone Circuit Court, rendered at the April term thereof, 1899, in the above cause, I shall proceed to offer for sale at the court-douse door in Burlington, Boone County, Ky., to the highest bidder at public auction, on

Monday, June 5th, 1899,

at 1 o'clock p. m., or thereabout, being county court day, upon a credit of 6, 12 and 18 months, the following described property, to-wit:

Tract No. 1—Situated on the waters of Gum branch and bounded as follows: Beginning at a corner between Joseph L. Rich and herein described tract of land on Gum branch east of the public road, witnessed by a beech tree and stump on the west side thereof; thence up Gum branch n 9 e 25 poles, n 2 w 24 poles, n 16¾ w 23 8-10 poles to the lower corner of the Dower tract on said branch, witnessed by a stone on the west side thence s 76¾ w 124 poles to a stone, corner of Dower tract and lot No. 2; thence s 4 w 23 poles to a stone, a corner of lot No. 2 in J. L. Rich's line; thence with said line — 86 e 127 poles to the beginning, containing 42 acres, and being lot No. 2 in the division of the lands of Thomas P. Johnson, deceased.

Tract No. 2 is bounded as follows: Beginning at a stone on Gum branch road, a corner of lot No. 2 in the division of the lands of Thomas Rich, deceased; thence n 51¼ e 2 82 chs, n 35¾ e 2.62 chs, n 21¼ e 9.67 chs to a stone in Gum branch; thence n 1 w 8.83 chains to a stone, a corner of W. Huey and Wallace Garrison; thence n 75 e 14.88 chains to a stone, a corner with said Garrison and the B. M. Allen tract of land; thence with said Allen's line n 43¼ e 12.50 chains to a corner of lot No 2; thence with a line thereof s 52 w 29.05 chs to a stone, corner of lots Nos. 2 & 4; thence with a line of lot No. 4 n 39¼ w 11.55 chs to the the beginning, containing 46a, 3r & 8p.

Excepting a passway for the benefit of lot No. 2 in the division of the lands of Thomas Rich, deceased. This tract is lot No. 1 in the division of the lands of said Thomas Rich.

Tract No. 1 will be offered and sold as a whole to pay J. J. Lillard's and A. G. Winston's claims, &c; if the amount realized from the sale of lot No 1 is insufficient to satisfy said claims, then tract No. 2 will be offered, or so much thereof as will satisfy the balance of the debt, interest and costs of said Winston.

For the purchase price the purchaser, with approved security or securities, must execute bond, bearing legal interest from the day of sale until paid, and having the force and effect of a Judgment, with a lien retained therein until all the purchase money is paid. Bidders will be prepared to comply promptly with these terms Amount to be raised by sale, $1,44 34.

J. W. DUNCAN, M. C. B. C. C.
Lassing & Riddell, attys., for Pltf.

Commissioner's Sale.

Boone Circuit Court, Ky.

J. M. Lassing, Pltf.
vs } Equity.
Ernest Yager, &c, Defts.

By virtue of a Judgment and order of Sale of the Boone Circuit Court, rendered at the April term thereof, 1899, in the above cause, I shall proceed to offer for sale at the Court House door in Burlington, Boone County, Ky., to the highest bidder, at Public Sale on Monday the 5th day of June, 1899, at one o'clock p.m. or thereabout, being County Court day, on a credit of six months, the following described property to wit:

A lot or parcel of land lying and being in the town of Florence, Boone county, Ky., and bounded as follows: On the north by Banklick st.; on the south by the lands of Mrs. Joseph Osborn and William Conner; on the east by the lands of William Carder, col'd., and Wm. Conner, deceased; and on the west by the lands of Wm. Conner, deceased; containing ¼ of an acre more or less, and being the same property conveyed to Earnest Yager by J. R. Clutterbuck, by deed dated July 1, 1895, and recorded in Deed Book 41, p 400, Boone County Court Records.

For the purchase price the purchaser with approved security or securities must execute bonds, bearing legal interest from the day of sale until paid, and having the force and effect of a judgment, with a lien retained therein until all the purchase money is paid. Bidders will be prepared to comply promptly with these terms.
Amount to be made by sale, $200 06.

J. W. DUNCAN, M. C. B. C. C.
Lassing & Riddell, attys. for Pltf.

Notice of Dissolution.

The firm of Wilson & Riddell, merchants at Rabbit Hash, has been dissolved by mutual consent, Mr. Wilson retiring from the business, and those owing the firm are request to come forward and settle.

WILSON & RIDDELL.

NOTICE.

We will furnish pasture and attention to mares that parties would like to leave with us to breed to our horse and jack, at $1 per month. Pasturage to be paid before mare is removed.

BODDIE & RIDDELL,
Rabbit Hash, Ky.

DON'T PAY TWO PROFITS!

IF YOU WANT A

Buggy or Carriage

Go direct to the factory and save the 50 or 75 per cent. that agents add to the factory price; get all you can in material and workmanship — put agents commission in the vehicle or your pocket. Come and see us and we will prove to you that your home factory will give you

BETTER WORK for the MONEY

than can be gotten from any agents.

See Our 2500 Mile Dust Proof Axle,

before buying a vehicle. We warrant and stand by all our work.

BRADFORD BROS.,
FLORENCE, KY.

J. T. MARSHALL,
SALESMAN FOR
F. W. KASSEBAUM & SON,
Manufacturers and Dealers in
Granite and Marble Monuments.
GRANT P. O., KENTUCKY.

FRANK HOSSMAN,
Hebron, Ky.,
CARPENTER AND BUILDER,
—Also handles all—
KINDS of ROOFING,
Which is furnished and put on at the Lowest Prices consistent with good work.
I am prepared for moving buildins.
Your Work is Solicited.

ADDINGTON, No. 27008,

Will make the season at my stable, at $10 to insure a colt to stand up and suck. Addington is a brown, 16 hands high, sired by Dictation, by Young Jim, by Geo. Wilkes; 1st dam, C. M. Clay 22; 2d dam by Almont 31.

J. A. RIDDELL, Hebron, Ky.

WHEN IN RISING SUN, INDIANA,
Stop and see
Jno. D. Baxter
THE
SADDLE and HARNESS
Man. He keeps a large stock of
Saddles, Harness, Collars, Whips, Bridles, Trace Chains, Hames,
In fact everything kept in a 1st-class Harness Store, and at the Lowest Cash Prices; we buy strictly for cash and our customers benefit by it. Call and be convinced of the fact.
JOHN D. BAXTER,
THE OLD RELIABLE

BUGGIES!

IF YOU WANT A GOOD
BUGGY
To suit you and stand the rough roads and made to order, call on
ECKSTEIN NOVELTY CO.,
—AGENTS FOR—
JAMES & MAYER BUGGY COMPANY,
LAWRENCEBURG, IND.

CORNER
Drug Store
Rising Sun, Ind.
Is the place for anything in the Drug Line.
WALL PAPER, PAINTS, WINDOW SHADES.
STATIONERY, PERFUMES.
FANCY GOODS, &c.
B. F. BUCHANAN,
— DRUGGIST, —
Over thirty year's experience.

FARMERS
Take Notice!
If you want good
Fertilizer
PLEASE GIVE
B. F. ZIMMER
A CALL.
He will try to please you. He has the finest line of Fertilizer for 1899 he has ever handled. Write for particulars to
CONSTANCE, KY.

NOTICE.
J. E. Rouse's Guernsey Bull "Jesson 3662," will be found at his father's this season —fee $1.

DR. A. P. WALTON,
DENTIST,
CINCINNATI,
The Lancaster Building 22 W. 7th,
Bet. Vine and Race.

INSURE AT HOME
The Farmers' Mutual Fire
INSURANCE COMPANY,
OF BOONE COUNTY,
Is now completely organized and receiving applications for insurance.
Its Rates are Lower
Than those of any other Company and gives the farmers of Boone County
HITHERTO UNKNOWN ADVANTAGE
In keeping their property insured.
EVERY FARMER IN THE COUNTY should take a policy at once.
E. H. BLANKENBECKER, - President, Florence, Ky.
EDGAR CROPPER, - Vice-President.
OSCAR GAINES, Secretary, Burlington.
J. E. DUNCAN, Treasurer.
EXECUTIVE BOARD—Legrand Gaines, J. W. Conner, John Stephens.
J. E. SMITH, Assessor, - Burlington, Ky.
W. M. ROGERS, Agt. - Walton, Ky.

1899. SEASON 1899.
CRESCENT HILL STOCK FARM.
TIMOTHY BOY, No. 27854
Bay horse, foaled April 3, 1893, bred by D. Bedinger & Son, Richwood, Ky. Sired by Wilkes Boy, 2:24, 1st dam, Algin by Artillery, 2:21½; 2d dam Valdosta by Nutwood, 2:18½; 3d dam Emma Arterburn (dam of St. Arnould, 2:29, and g-dam of two in 2:30 list) by Manbrino Patchen 58; 4th dam Jenny Johnson (grand-dam of three in 2:30 list) by Sweet Owen, thoroughbred, &c.

Wilkes Boy is one of the best sons of the great Geo. Wilkes, 2:22.

TIMOTHY BOY is one of the best bred horses in the State, is 16½ hands high and weighs 1,300 lbs. in ordinary condition, a horse of great power, good bone, fine style and action, perfectly sound in every particular. He is a pure gaited trotter and his colts are large with plenty of style and action, the kind that are in demand all the time.

Service fee $10 to insure a live colt, money due when colt is foald or mare parted with.

THE FINE MAMMOTH JACK,
Nutwood,
Will make the season of 1899 at $8 00 to insure a live colt, money due when colt is foaled or mare parted with.

DESCRIPTION & PEDIGREE.

Nutwood is a dark brown or black with white points, 16 hands high, very heavy bone and well built, large head and ears, heavy body and good action; foaled July 6, 1894, was bred by J. M. Park, Madison county, Ky. Nutwood is by Blackwood, 16½ hands high, one of the best mule and jennet jacks in Kentucky; 1st dam by Griggs' Big Tom, 16 hands high; 2d dam by the Hubbert jack, &c.

TIMOTHY BOY and Nutwood will make the season on Daniel Bedinger's farm on the Richwood & Beaver pike, 3 miles west of Richwood.

☞Pasture and attention furnished mares at $1.50 per month. Care taken to prevent accidents, but no responsibility should any occur.

J. C. BEDINGER, Richwood, Ky.

SEASON 1899.
OAKKNOLL STOCK FARM
UGO!
Foaled 1892, sired by Simmons 2744, (record 2:28,) sire of 75 in 2:30, and 14 in the 2:12 list; by George Wilkes 519, (record 2:22); 1st dam by Almont Boy 4308; 2nd dam by Norman 25; 3d dam by C. M. Clay 18.

UGO is a dark chestnut, 16½ hands high, weighs 1,150 pounds, a very kind prompt driver, also a good saddler.

Will make the season of 1899, on Thursdays, Fridays and Court days at Burlington, Ky., and the remainder of the time at my barn, one mile west of Utzinger, Ky., at $10 to insure a live colt, money due as soon as colt is foaled.

Care will be taken to prevent accidents, but I will not be responsible should any occur.

SCOTT CHAMBERS.

5 Per Cent. MONEY TO LOAN.
Real estate security. Any sum from $1,000 to $3,000 at 5½ per cent. Sums of $3,000 and over at 5 per cent. Interest payable semi-annually. No loans made for a less time than two years.
B. C. BEDINGER, Agent,
Beaver Lick, Ky.
☞Farms especially wanted. mc6017

D. E. CASTLEMAN,
ATTORNEY - AT - LAW.
BURLINGTON, KY.
Will practice in the Courts of Boone Kenton, Grant and Gallatin. Collections pushed energetically.

G. G. HUGHES,
ATTORNEY AT LAW.
BURLINGTON, KY.
Will practice in all the courts. Prompt attention given to all business entrusted to me.

P. E. CASON,
ATTORNEY - AT - LAW.
BURLINGTON, KY.
Practice in all Courts. Promptness guaranteed.

J. G. TOMLIN,
ATTORNEY - AT - LAW.
WALTON, KENTUCKY.
—o—
Will practice in the Courts of Boone, Kenton Grant and Gallatin. Prompt attention given Collections entrusted to me. mch12-93.

W. E. VEST,
County Surveyor,
BURLINGTON, KY.
Is prepared to do all kinds of Surveying. All orders by mail promptly attended to.

J. M. LASSING. N. E. RIDDELL
LASSING & RIDDELL,
ATTORNEYS AT LAW.
BURLINGTON, KY.
Prompt Attention Given to Collections

S. GAINES,
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW.
BURLINGTON, KY.
Will practice in all the courts, and prompt attention given collections. Office—In residence near post-office.

S. W. ADAMS,
ATTORNEY - AT - LAW,
ERLANGER, KENTUCKY.
Will practice in the courts of Boone and Kenton counties. Collections and general law practice.

W. E. VEST,
Real Estate Agent.
Farms Bought, Sold or Exchanged, Money to Loan on Real Estate, Notes bought, sold & Negotiated.
☞All communications addressed to W. E. VEST, Burlington, Ky.

BOONE CO. DEPOSIT BANK.
(Incorporated 1886.)
CAPITAL, ... $30,000
Surplus and undivided profits, 20,000
—)o(—
Our facilities enable us to receive on favorable terms accounts of individuals and corporations. Collections promptly remitted for at lowest rates

ERLANGER DEPOSIT BANK.
(INCORPORATED 1893.)
ERLANGER, - - KENTUCKY
CAPITAL PAID IN..... $50,000
SURPLUS..... $ 8,000
Careful attention given collections and remittances promptly made. Deposit accounts solicited.

Dr. J. L. Adams,
DENTIST,
Walton, Kentucky.
Artificial Dentures, Crown and Bridge Work to represent natural organs.
☞Will be in office at Union every Monday.
Satisfaction - Guaranteed.

JOHN L. VEST,
SURVEYOR
WALTON, KY.
Is prepared to do all kinds of work south of Burlington, Ky. Prompt attention given to all mail orders.

Take the Recorder, $1.50 a year.

BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

VOL. XXIV. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, MAY 24, 1899. NO. 31.

County Attorney Lassing, Assessor Willis and Sheriff Beall appeared before the State Board of Equalization, last Wednesday, and succeeded in convincing the board that it ought not to increase Boone's assessment as returned by the assessor, and the per cent. was not added as contemplated. This is a feather in assessor Willis' official cap.

At present there is no indication of adecrease in the '99 tobacco crop in this county as compared with the crop of last year. Plants are plentiful and the planters have been given an opportunity to prepare their land, and if the weather between now and the middle of June is favorable at least an average crop will be pitched.

Supt. Voshell was in his office in Burlington, two or three days, last week, supervising the census reports received from the several school districts in the county. The returns show that there are 20 pairs of twins, and 1 set of triplets, whites and 2 pairs of twins, colored.

The first picnic of the season is advertised for the Harvest Home Grounds on the afternoon of Saturday, June 3. The young men composing the committee will spare no efforts to make it a pleasant occasion for all who favor them with their presence.

In this issue appears the card of Dr. M. J. Crouch, of Union, as a candidate for Senator from this district, in the next General Assembly. The doctor is a good Democrat and a clever gentleman, and if nominated will make a faithful public servant.

By their trip to Frankfort, Lassing, Willis and Beall saved the county about $2,000 in taxes, and knocked the sheriff out of about $80 which he would have received for collecting the amount it was proposed to increase the taxes.

Next Saturday is the day appointed for the Democratic hosts of Boone county to assemble at the court house to select delegates to go to Sparta on the following Monday to nominate a candidate for State Senator in this district.

Supt. Voshell and his examiners, D. M. Snyder and A. C. Collins, were examining applicants for certificates to teach the public schools, last Friday and Saturday. There were seven applicants.

Master Omer Porter was the first to bring homegrown strawberries to this market, but he was followed closely by D. M. Snyder, of Bellevue, who was supplying the market the next day.

Considerable wool was received here last week. William Seniour, of Walton, is the largest woolgrower in the county, having over 300 sheep. W. L. Gaines bought his crop.

Elder Archie Brown, Old Baptist, preached to a good sized congregation at the Presbyterian church, Wednesday evening. Thursday morning he preached at Mt. Pleasant.

M. T. Garnett and Sid Gaines tried their luck with pole and line down on Gunpowder, one day last week. They landed twenty fish, some of which were very nice fryers.

The directors expect the approaching exhibition of the North Kentucky Agricultural Association, to be better than any of the past, and to that end they are at work.

The trustee of the jury fund has received from Frankfort the money with which to pay those who served as jurors at the last April term of the circuit court.

Mr. S. S. McManama was partially paralyzed, and had to be carried home from the field in which he was at work, last Wednesday.

Some estimate the 1899 wool clip in this county at 125,000 pounds, which brought, on an average, 20 cents a pound.

R. S. Crisler stuck a thorn in one of his knuckles, last week, and it gave him considerable trouble for several days.

The Boone county jail has been used very little for the last 2 years, which speaks well for our people.

Chas. Clore, of Hebron, wants a good dog. Can't you accommodate him with that one you have?

The coal merchants along the river are stocking up for their fall and winter trade.

That Baptist Board Meeting's Report.

To the Editor of the Recorder:

In beginning this article I impress upon myself the fact that nothing but the truth will do any one any good; and pray that I, as well as all opponents, may know the truth that it may make free. I am an advocate of a free speech and press. I believe the brethren of the above said "Baptist Board" will grant me the privilege they have taken themselves. But may I not, to some sticklers for peace, who are found in every county, offer this apology for taking up my pen? These Baptist brethren in their meetings, while contending for Baptist principles, have repeatedly pointed out other churches and attacked their doctrines. And not only stated, but, as has been noticed, sometimes misstated these teachings of others. And not only in their meetings but through their reports to the entire county. Now, if this is to continue, shall not those who know their doctrine equally as well as Baptists be heard in its defense? Jude, as does one of their brethren, urges us to contend earnestly for the faith. And, brethren, this we now feel called upon to do. We start out to defend no men or creeds of men, but Christ and His Word. And where any brother's statement shall contradict that Word we shall call upon him to defend himself. We would not enter had we not the Word as our guide.

First, we shall call upon M. J. Hoover, on the origin of the Church. Bro. Hoover: "History shows that the Chistian Church was originated by Alexander Campbell in A. D., 1829." I want to say to Bro. Hoover that A. Campbell never originated any Church at any time. That the Church to which Campbell belonged originated with his Master many years before. Campbell tore away some of the superstition from the old Jerusalem Church so that it might be recognized as the Church of the N. T. The one Church into which A. Campbell came, is not found in the days of Abraham, nor in John Baptist's time; but after that Jesus says "I will build my Church"—Matt. 16:18, showing it still to be in the future. The Apostles waited at Jerusalem and began preaching the new way on the day of Pentecost. From this time the Church is spoken of as being in existence. And this is the only Church which has any right to exist. Now, no difference how many other churchs men have started, may not a man obey the commands of the N. T. and be a member of Christ's Church and nothing more? But Bro. Hoover says: "History does not assign to Baptist Churches a human founder or a post-Apostolic date of origin." May I ask where? when? and by whom the Baptist Church originated? If not post-Apostolic, was it before the Apostles or in their day? And why is it never mentioned in the New Testament? Or, does he trace it back into the dark ages and love it their? If ancient origin is sufficient proof, what can our brother say in defense of the Romish church? He refers to history which speaks of the existence of this church 1300 years back, but that is more than 500 years too young to be the Bride of the Lamb. The Baptist succession chain is all they have to hold on to, and it can not be proven. But we will allow this brother to skip a few links in this chain, if he will make good his former statement about, Paul and Silas being the first Baptist preachers. According to Christ's parable the Word is the Seed of the Kingdom. Sow the Seed and it will bring forth the Kingdom. In other words, where the Gospel is preached and obeyed, there is the Church.

Second, let us hear T. T. Eaton on the name. The Doctor from Louisville says: "Christian is a partisan name. Saint is the correct name." What makes a correct name? Does not Bible usage? Then if Saint is preferable to Christian it can be only in its being used oftener. And how many times does the Lord have to speak to give us authority? And pray, Bro Baptists, get some name that has been applied to the Disciples once, at least. But how is Christian more partisan than Saint? If it has become partisan by use, the blame is with those who have refused to wear it. Either represents a party as distinct from the world, but do we not want to belong to that party? At first they tried to keep others from wearing the name Christian, by designating them in some other way; and now they don't want the name because it is partisan? One is reminded of the little dog in the manger. Could not eat the hay himself and kept barking at the ox lest he might eat it. But, I am not of Paul or Apollos or Peter, for they were not crucified for me, neither were I baptized in these names. But may I not wear the name of the One Who died for me and in Whose name baptized? I. Cor. 1: 12-13. But Aggrippa tells us that Paul almost persuaded him to be a Christian. Would Paul persuade men to be what he condemns? Acts 26:28. Paul, Paul, why did you not persuade him to be a Baptist, that he might not be partisan? Peter says, "if any man suffer as a Christian let him not be ashamed." 1. Peter 4:16. And now I suppose Bro. Hoover will add the suffering inflicted in this paper to his already long list of persecutions which they have suffered as Baptists. But Baptists in their writings continually speak of two Churches. The Christian Church and the Baptist Church. I want to know if there is a difference? and whether you can belong to the one and not the other? and if it is essential to be a member of both? I believe those who come nearest Christ in teaching and practicing are the best Christians. We do not claim to be the only Christians, but Christians only.

Next, C. G. Jones on communion. Bro. Jones, in comparing other churches with the Baptist, follows in the line of his predecessors in trying to show that "they hold to close communion as well as we." 'Twas the old argument—"you're as black as we." But are we as black? I wonder where Bro. Jones' Bible was while he was preparing this, that he gives no scripture proof for close communion. He says the Christian Church is close communion in theory, though in practice they make no objection to others partaking. I affirm it is all right to teach whom it was given for, and I will gladly object to any other, if Bro. Jones will show me the authority from Christ for such objection. The argument for close communion is that the church may protect itself, lest they commune with the unworthy. But, brethren, you do not commune with one another in this supper, but each communes with Christ. And you are not hurt though some foreigner partake of this loaf and cup. And, brethren, if you'll not think it a reflection upon your wisdom, I'll say that you can't tell who is worthy and who unworthy. No doubt you have every one admitted hypocrites and turned away some whom your Master had invited.

At first Baptist selfishness excluded all but Baptists from this institution. It was found this would not work, and so now it has been limited to the individual congregation. But, brethren, your members do not believe it—and, no difference how well you may love close communion it will have to go. Paul's instructions were, "Let every one examine himself and so let him eat." 1. Cor. 11:28. The Apostles were promised to sit on twelve thrones and judge but, Lord, deliver us from being judged by these Baptist preachers. If my neighbor should give a supper, and I should be among the invited, I would not stand at the door and throw out those I did not like, neither would I invite any one. Much less when he had given me no authority for such action, but rather said let each examine himself. Now this is the Lord's Supper and He has given the invitation. It only remains for each to examine himself whether he is the Lord's or no.

Now I have tried to give what I understand from the New Testament is the Origin, Name and this Practice of the Church, because it had been wrongly stated by those who should know better. Now I say, come on brethren, I have nothing to defend but the Bible.

GEO. W. WATKINS

Six of the members of Viola Lodge I. O. O. F., visited Aline Lodge, last Thursday night. There was work in the first, second and third degrees. Aline lodge is not yet two years old but it is one of the most prosperous country lodges in Northern Kentucky. It has a degree team the work of which is hard to beat. The members take great interest in their lodge and there is a good attendance at every meeting. The lodge is now in a shape to make its power for good felt in the Bellevue and McVille communities, and it will do so. The work of its degree team is well worth a long trip to witness.

Charlie Kelly's flock of 21 sheep sheared 8 pounds per head.

The cool weather is causing vegetation to turn yellow and grow very slowly.

Pith of the Press.

Dewey will be the most satisfactory return from that $20,000,000 investment.—St. Louis Republic.

It is a well-known fact that Senator Hanna doesn't adulterate his anti-imperialism, either.—Chicago Democrat.

Boss Platt may as well proceed to gnaw a file. Theodore Roosevelt is still Governor of New York.—St. Paul Globe.

Under the circumstances, it would be eminently justifiable for Dewey to send a substitute.—Philadelphia North American.

It is not the fault of the Chicago Aldermen that Mr. Yerkes gets out of that town with $15,000,000.—Washington Post.

Ex-President Harrison may have some views on the present situation but they are not for publication.—Mansfield (Ohio) News.

Governor Roosevelt is going to call an extra session of the Legislature. Is this man afraid of nothing.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

In the meantime George Dewey will hire a competent blacksmith to rivet all his buttons firmly to his clothes.—Pittsburg Times.

Mr. Quay faithfully represents his party and his state, doesn't he? What more could you require of him?—Charleston (S. C.) News.

In case the country builds a home for Admiral Dewey, some means should be taken to prevent Admiral Sampson claiming it.—Washington Post.

It may be truly said of Congressman Tom Reed that he demonstrated that a man does not have to be a loquacious talker to be a Speaker.—Fostoria (Ohio) Times.

McKinley should be warned before starting on the Western trip not to take the applause given the Presidential office as indorsement given the beef verdict.—Steubenville (Ohio) Gazette.

Couldn't Mr. Alger and the Emperor of China get themselves out of the rest of the world's way by going on a summer tour together over the Trans-Siberian Railway?—St. Paul Globe.

The soldiers in the Philippines who will vote at the Presidential election next year are not to be allowed to hear anything against the fitness of William McKinley for a second term.—N. Y. Evening Post.

John Sherman's most painful "Recollections" are his most recent. It is to be hoped that he will recite some of them when he comes to Columbus to attend the Republican State Convention.—Columbus Press Post.

To the average newspaper reader who notes Mr. McKinley's quandary as to the propriety of the Chief Magistrate playing golf, the question irresistibly rises, can golf players ever be elected President?—Pittsburg Press.

The Administration may not exactly like Reed's manner and methods, but the friends of President McKinley cannot fail to see that Reed could become a more dangerous antagonist to a nomination out of the Speaker's chair than in it.—Minneapolis Tribune.

We know from what McKinley once said about criminal aggression and his subsequent acts with respect to Puerto Rico and the Philippines that the present Administration is entirely capable of facing in one direction and rowing in an opposite direction.—Chicago Chronicle.

CROP AND STOCK.

The wool clip in Bourbon county this year will amount to about 125,000 pounds. The average price is 21 cents per pound.

Richard Mansfield, the actor, bought of Asa Jewell, of Lexington, the fine road horse "In the Swim" for $1,000.

R. Leslie Combs, of Lexington, bought of Muir Brothers, of Jessamine county, the clip from 1,100 sheep at 18½ cents.

A Gallatin county farmer last year experimented with two acres of horse radish and sold the crop for $165 45 in the Cincinnati market.

John T. Hughes, of Lexington, sold a handsome team of coach horses to P. C. Knox, of Pittsburg, for $3,000. They were mahogany bays, sixteen hands high.

Everything Adulterated.

[St. Louis Republic.]

Doctor W. H. Wiley, for the last seventeen years Chief Chemist of the National Agricultural Department, says that practically everything we eat and drink is adulterated. He gave evidence before the United States Senate Pure Food Commission, of which Senator William E. Mason is chairman, which was calculated to open the eyes of the most confiding. Doctor Wiley knows what he is talking about, for he has had constant experience since his graduation from Harvard University in 1874 in various schools of chemistry in the United States and Europe. Doctor Wiley spoke about adulterations that are merely frauds and not dangerous to health, reserving his testimony on the harmful class of adulterants until later.

"Pure maple sirup," said the chemist, "is a great joke. As a rule it is made of course yellow sugar, flavored with extract of hickory bark. There is more 'Vermont maple' made in Davenport, Ia., every year than in the whole State of Vermont."

This is only one of the things Doctor Wiley spoke about. He told about coffee beans made of colored flour and glucose, jellies made from animal extract with artificial fruit flavoring and color; "strained honey" that was never within miles of a beehive, and spices that are mixed with ground peanut and cocoanut shells, and mustard that is nothing but a mixture of flour and turmeric.

The chemist told of a factory in Cincinnati which devotes all its time to the manufacture of "fillers" which are nothing more nor less than adulterants for use in mixing with every sort of ground spices known to the trade. This concern turns out every year, the doctor said, bushels of ground peanut shells and colored flour, which are sold to spice houses to be mixed with the ground spices that are sold to the housewife as "pure" pepper, cinnamon, mustard and the like.

Coffee, he said, he had examined in great quantities and found in many instances that which is sold ground at 40 cents a pound is half chicory, the latter being worth about eight cents. The chicory, in the doctor's opinion, improves the flavor of the coffee, but defrauds the buyer in point of value. Coffee is the easiest thing in the trade to adulterate. Even whole coffee, it seems, cannot be purchased with confidence.

In recent investigations, he said, he has found molasses and flour molded into berries, colored, mixed with the genuine and sold as high-grade coffee.

According to Doctor Wiley, there is very little pure beer made in this country. Fully 70 per cent. of the beer which is sold in this country is made of some other article than malt. In regard to the extensive use of glucose, witness said that it was not objectionable for food purposes if used in moderation. There also is a great amount of adulteration in the manufacture of vinegar.

In milk, he said, the most common practice is the abstraction of the fatty substance in taking away the cream. A common practice among dealers was the adulteration with water, and in addition to this, preservatives are used to no small extent to prevent the liquid from souring.

In butter, the common way of defrauding the public was the substitution of other fats, both animal and vegetable, for the natural fat of the milk. Both cottonseed oil and high grades of lard were employed in this work.

Honey, Doctor Wiley said, was a more abused article in the line of adulterations than any other. The principal method of adulterating lard is the mixing of vegetable oils with the natural fat of the hog. All kinds of pure oils, he said, were heating to the system and great aids in digesting. Another fraud which is carried on to a very great extent is the selling of cottonseed oil for olive oil.

CHUCH NEWS.

A new Baptist church is to be erected at Scottsville this spring. The contract will be let in a few days.

The Rev. Sid Williams, a popular evangelist, has just closed a most successful revival at the Third Baptist Church in Owensboro.

The new Christian Church at Coral Hill, Barren county, will be dedicated on next Sunday. Elder Z. T. Williams, of Montpelier, Adair county, will deliver the dedicatory sermon.

STATE NEWS.

A man was fined $5 for swearing on the streets in Georgetown.

Great excitement in Lewis county over zinc and coal oil discoveries.

Cut worms, black bugs and red ants are said to be threatening fruits of all kinds.

There will be six murder cases for trial at the next term of the Ohio County Circuit Court.

Burglars blew open a safe at Greensburg, and carried away over $1,000 in money and many valuable papers.

Taylor Tarter, was found in a dying condition in a field in Russel county. His skull was fractured and it is believed he was murdered.

There was hatched in Grand Rivers on May 9 a chicken with one body, four legs, four wings and two bills. It lived but a short time.

John Welch, of Mt. Sterling, killed with a gig, in North Licking, near Upper Blue Licks, a sturgeon that measured 4 feet 7 inches and weighed 65 pounds.

Lightning struck the house occupied by Luke Edwards and Jim Coleman last week, wrecking one of the chimneys to some extent. One of Mr. Edwards' children was stunned, but not seriously hurt.—Owen Herald.

Mr. J. S. Centon, of the Fair Play district, Adair county, brought to this office, says the Columbia Spectator, the corpse of a stinging scorpion, which is a rare insect for this country. It was found by Mr. Denson while moving some rails.

Tobacco plants are plentiful but rather small yet, in some localities, and scarce in others. There is a rush to get the ground in condition those who have plants, while others are preparing to plant intended tobacco ground in other crops.—Owingsville Outlook.

Petitions are being circulated in almost every part of Pendleton county, soliciting the names of all who want to vote this fall for taking the off of the county's turnpikes. The petitions are being liberally signed, and it is almost certain that a vote favorable to free turnpikes will result.

George Dinning, colored, was given a judgment for $50,000 damages by a jury in the United States District Court against six citizens of Simpson county whom he sued as members of a mob which attacked him at his home in Simpson county in January, 1897. The defendants are men of moderate means and have little property not exempt from execution.

The contract for building the long needed bridge across the Kentucky river at this point was let last Thursday to the Indiana Bridge Co., of Indinnapolis. The price is not generally known, but is said to be about $70,000 or $90,000, and the bridge will be located at the foot of High street. Work will begin on the structure as soon as permission can be obtained from the Government and more stock secured.—Carrollton News.

Mrs. Asa Jent, of the Holland community, is the owner of a hen that for age and productiveness outranks any, so far as the Times' poultry knowledge goes. She is 15 years old, and when one year old hatched a brood of chickens and each year since has hatched and reared two broods. Her latest family, consisting of twenty-nine chickens, are now three weeks old, and the mother scratcheth for the worm for them with as much vigor as in her younger days, and carries the weight of fifteen years and a pair of eighteen-inch spurs with as much dignity as a peacock in full feathers.—Scottsville Times.

Guy Williams, well known to the people of Williamstown and vicinity, accidentally shot himself last Thursday afternoon. He, together with his wife and some other members of her family were engaged at some kind of work when some squirrels were discovered in a tree near by. He sent after his gun and, after shooting some of the squirrels laid his gun aside; presently another squirrel made its appearance and in attempting to secure the gun he had laid aside the weapon exploded the charge entering his breast. He was taken to the house and only lived a few hours. His remains were buried in the Williamstown cemetery Sunday morning. He had only been married a few weeks to a Miss Edna May Castleman and they would have gone to housekeeping in a few more days.—Williamstown Courier.

THE RECORDER.

W. L. RIDDELL, Publisher.

BURLINGTON. : : KENTUCKY

IN France there are 6,000,000 smokers, and of every 15 there are 8 who smoke a pipe, 5 who smoke cigars and only 2 who use cigarettes. Still, they use more than 800,000,000 cigarettes a year, or enough to go around the world 500 times if they were placed end to end in a line.

A FIRM of English tea merchants offers to every married woman who buys a pound of its 50-cent tea for five consecutive weeks a pension of $2.50 a week in case of the death of her husband, provided he was in good health when she began to buy the tea. The pension is to continue as long as she remains a widow.

THE present shah has just celebrated his 46th birthday. The shah is enormously wealthy and almost the whole of his fortune consists of diamonds and precious stones. The royal family of Persia is one of the largest in the world. There are some thousands of princes and princesses and the present occupant of the throne has a family of about 50.

PETER SCANLAN, of Jersey City, declares that Aguinaldo is the son of an Irishman and that his real name is O'Gormeley. The father was a native of Tralee, county Kerry, and went to Hong Kong, where he married a wealthy Japanese woman. Thence he removed to Manila and went into the grocery business. Mr. Scanlan's local reputation for truth and verneity is excellent and he is not proud of the facts he alleges.

PROF. CERVELLO, at the Palermo hospital, has invented what he claims is a cure for consumption. The principal feature of the cure is the inhalation of gas produced by a powerful antiseptic called formalina. Cervello says he has tried the method on 20 consumptives in the third stage of the disease in the Palermo hospital. Two died from debility before the cure could operate, three recovered within a month and five are fast regaining their health.

THE elevated altitude and pure air of Arizona and New Mexico seem to effect the minds and imaginations of some men. Down in Arizona there is a little stream known as the Hassayampa river, and it is said that if any one drinks of the water he is forever after incapable of telling the truth. The victims of this mysterious stream are known as "Hassayamps," and there are a good many of them in that part of the country.

THE use of barbed wire is increasing largely in Southern Italy. It is used for trailing vines, and is found of great service in keeping thieves out of the vineyards after dark. The vines being in many cases only a few feet apart, it is a matter of considerable difficulty to avoid the barbs, even in the daytime, and at night it is practically impossible. The wire used be only of the lightest kind, as the lengths used are comparatively short and no cattle have to be contended with.

THE western vault in the United States mint, now being constructed in Philadelphia, will, it is said, constitute the largest strong box in the world. Its various dimensions are upward of 90, 52 and 10 feet, and the several compartments into which it is divided will have a total holding capacity of $12,000,000. To silver dollars, it may be noted, this western vault will be devoted entirely; the other two, east and north, being designed to contain silver bullion and gold coins respectively.

CONSUL BRUSH, of Clifton, Ont., informs the state department that the Canadian government has decided to construct a telegraph line between Lake Bennett and Dawson City at once, and that it is also decided to establish telegraphic communication between British Columbia and the Yukon territory. He says the dominion authorities regard the franchise for this telegraph line as too important from the standpoint of the national safety to permit it to go outside of government control.

WHEN a prize of $200 was offered to the father of the greatest number of children it was, of course, to be expected that an Ohio man should rise to claim it. The winner is Joseph Pierce, who lives on a farm near Floraville, O. Mr. Pierce was born on a farm in 1834, and has been an agriculturist all his life. He is the father of 35 sons and daughters, all of whom are living. He has been twice married. His second wife is still living. Mr. Pierce, at the age of 65, is still hale and hearty.

A CONSULAR report to the state department says that thrifty and enterprising Italians in Egypt have trained monkeys to pick cotton and now employ them in the field with good results. This presents a new field of employment for the monkeys and may serve to prevent their wholesale destruction by the people of British India. They are very numerous there, so much so as to be a great pest, and the newspapers of Bombay and Calcutta have recently agitated their slaughter by the government.

M. DUSSAUD, a French scientist, formulates the theory that if phonographs were made larger they would repeat the sounds more loudly. He says that the longer the furrow in the wax, the louder the sound, and he has constructed a phonograph with a cylinder of increased size that revolves with correspondingly greater rapidity, in order to obtain this result. In an experiment, an ordinary instrument was made to repeat sounds into the new one; on making the larger phonograph emit the sounds, they were found to be much louder than the original, instead of fainter.

THE MANIFESTO.

Gen. Maximo Gomez Advises the Cubans to Return to Their Homes.

In That Way Shall the Homes Consecrated by the Blood of Martyrs Be Reconstructed—Thus Will Begin the Cycle of Liberty.

HAVANA, May 19.—The expected manifesto of Gen. Maximo Gomez was issued Thursday evening. It reviews his part in the negotiations with Gov. Gen. Brooke and speaks of his love for Cuba and his sufferings in her behalf in the past. Gen. Gomez says:

"The hour has arrived for me to raise my voice in justification of my position and to describe the arduous work I have done since my first visit to Gen. Brooke. I protested to him against the sum offered by the United States as insufficient to accomplish the good intended. While awaiting an answer to my protest I sought a solution of the question. Gen. Brooke, representing the chief magistrate of the United States, announced his inability to add to the sum already settled upon.

"Speculators then attempted to intervene, offering suggestions which were refused by me. They presented a proposition to the military assembly, but the scheme was frustrated by President McKinley's refusal to recognize that body. I deemed the formation of militia a practical solution, and Gen. Brooke, who approved the idea, asked me for a summary of my views on the subject. To this I replied that 10,000 men were all it would be possible to get from the former Cuban army without distinction as to race.

"My answer was sent to President McKinley, together with a personal letter, giving explicit reasons why such a course was necessary.

"I had many conferences with Gen. Brooke in my endeavor to discover such a plan of payment as would not exclude the men who had never carried arms. Gen. Brooke insisted upon the surrender of arms before the receipt of money, and I also desired that such arms as had already been surrendered and such as should be surrendered hereafter might be delivered to warehouses, in the care of Cuban armorers, to be paid out of the Cuban treasury. I do not think it a disgrace that the Cuban soldiers should receive, from a government which is able to pay, sums that will relieve their immediate needs. Special certificates will be given to all redeemable by the Cuban republic as soon as it is established.

"I am convinced that it is compatible with obtaining peace to have an army with arms reserved to defend Cuba against her enemies, and in the meantime to be guarded as the relics of a glorious struggle. In my judgment, whether the arms were disposed of to the municipalies or to armorers, it would be all the same under the intervening government. The Cuban commissioners, however, refused to agree with Gen. Brooke and the Americans, and declined to fix dates and places where the Cuban soldiery could deliver up arms and receive payment from the American paymaster after identification by their respective chiefs.

"I did not act alone, as seems to be popularly believed, but always consulted with our officers. My advice to you now is to return to your homes with the amounts offered by the intervening government and to practice patience, which will be an additional proof of your heroism. In this way we shall reconstruct most rapidly the homes consecrated by the blood of martyrs, blood poured out in behalf of purpose now attained, and thus begin this cycle of liberty with the grandest prospects, preceded by the heralds of future prosperity and peace.

"This work is your portion. Let no pretext interfere with the attainment of the independent government for which three generations of Cubans have struggled with all sacrifice, and which is now promised by a noble nation, pledged to obtain for us our rights.

"Meanwhile I shall remain where I am generously invited, among the Cubans. I shall work without cessation for our aspirations, and in a narrow sphere assigned me if necessary; and, if it happens that all logical and just methods shall be exhausted without the desired result, I will go to Washington and there tell of Cuba and her sacred ideals of an independent republic, and will arbitrate the destiny of our country, baptized with blood and sanctified with our love of independence and liberty, which we will never cease demanding in tones of subtlest diplomacy, for the sake of the nation, that is be, on the near future, always asking that independence and liberty, which we covet in the name of right, civilization, justice and democracy."

Went Out on a Sympathetic Strike.

BUFFALO, N. Y., May 19.—The marine fireman at this port have gone on a sympathetic strike. As vessels arrive the firemen will quit work and remain out until the dock troubles are settled.

Five Girls Burned to Death.

BRUNSWICK, Germany, May 19.—A large warehouse belonging to Karstadt & Co. was totally destroyed by fire. Five girls lost their lives in the flames, and several others were injured, one of whom has since died.

A COURT OF ARBITRATION.

The Chairmanship Offered to and Accepted by Pouncefote—Opinions on the Peace Conference.

LONDON, May 20.—The Daily Telegraph's correspondent at The Hague says. "The chairmanship of the arbitration section has been offered to and accepted by Sir Julian Pauncefote, who, with the delegates of the United States and several minor powers, will insist upon a permanent court of arbitration, which will be the great success of the conference."

BERLIN, May 20.—The Independent Belge publishes an interview with Prof. Rudolph Virchow, the leader of German liberalism, on the subject of the peace conference, in the course of which he is represented as saying:

"Disarmament is in the air. Sooner or later it will be realized by all nations under the law of development. The programme of Emperor Nicholas is comprehensive and complicated; but the fact that the powers accepted his call is sufficient enough.

"One factor in the situation is the weakness of public opinion. Nations are led astray by a deceptive idea of glory and honor. The United States have lately offered a pitiable example of that. A civilized land has been plunged into war by the criminal agitation of brainless demagogues and the incapacity of rulers. The United States have sinned against humanity and civilization.

"Let us hope that the Americans have at least recovered from their bout of intoxication and will redeem the errors of their country. All this is an illustration of the difficulties confronting the conference, but it will not matter if success is finally attained. The conference, I believe, will deepen the study of the peace problems and the new century will be an age of real enlightenment, civilization and peace."

LONDON, May 20.—M. De Bloch, author of the work which inspired Emperor Nicholas with the idea of the conference, tells the Daily Chronicle that the results will be amply satisfactory if the conference only affords an entrance for the thin edge of the peace wedge.

LONDON, May 20.—The correspondent of the Morning Post at The Hague telegraphs as follows: "An eminent member of the peace conference says it is simply an act of politeness to the czar and will yield no practical result, simply because it can not. The powers, he assert, are too disunited and waten each other too closely to arrive at any understanding in their programme. His prediction is that there will be a long discussion and then a 'first class burial of the czar's proposals.'

IN SEARCH OF PROF. ANDREE.

An Expedition Under Prof. Nathorst Leaves Stockholm for the Northeast Coast of Greenland.

LONDON, May 20.—The Daily Mail publishes the following dispatch from Stockholm:

An expedition under Prof. Nathorst left Saturday for the northeast coast of Greenland in search of Prof. Andree. After carefully examining the region between the seventy-third and seventy-fifth degrees north latitude, the expedition will proceed toward Cape Bismarck, in the east coast of Greenland, in the hope of meeting Capt. Otto Sverdrup's expedition, which left Christiana last June on the Fram. Every effort will be made to find the explorers.

ARMY TRANSPORT SERVICE.

It Has Become of Such Importance That It Has Been Decided That It is Entitled to a Distinctive Flag.

WASHINGTON, May 20.—The army transport service has become recently of such importance that the secretary of war has decided that it is entitled to the dignity of a distinctive flag. That chosen is a tri-color, with white, red and blue stripes in diagonal lines, with the white forming a field in the center of which is a representation in blue of the insignia of the quartermaster's department of the army—the familiar wheel surmounted by an eagle and crossed by sword and key. The flag will be displayed on every vessel engaged in the transport service.

THE GUNBOAT NASHVILLE.

She Was Greeted by a Large Crowd of Citizens at Cairo, Ill.—Leaves for Points on the Lower Mississippi.

CAIRO, Ill., May 20.—The United States gunboat Nashville arrived here from St. Louis at noon Friday and was greeted by a large crowd of citizens. The Nashville was visited by many during the afternoon who were shown every attention by Capt. Maynard and the crew. The Nashville left here Saturday for points on the lower Mississippi, stopping at Columbus, Hickman, New Madrid and other points.

Grief Caused a Suicide.

FORT COLLINS, Col., May 20.—James E. Dubois, the secretary of the state board of agriculture, committed suicide Friday by taking poison. No cause is known for the act except grief at the death of his wife, which occurred recently.

Guns Ready to Start for Fort Thomas.

WASHINGTON, May 20.—Capt. Foraker Friday received word from Secretary Alger that the guns for Fort Thomas are ready to leave the Watervliet arsenal

WERE SHELLED.

Capt. Frank's "Tinclad" Gunboats Dispersed Insurgents Before San Luis.

Natives Who Had Assembled on the River Bank Crowded About the Americans With Expressions of Friendship—Flags Displayed.

MANILA, May 22.—Col. Kobbe's expedition up the Rio Grande river met with no resistance except at the outskirts of San Luis, where several hundred Filipinos were intrenched on the banks of the stream. The rebels retreated beyond Candaba and the gunboats steamed ahead, alternating their Gatling guns upon the banks and dropping shells wherever uniforms appeared on the shore. The gunboats dispersed the insurgents before San Luis. After they had passed sharpshooters from the trees across the river, about a hundred yards distant, harrassed the 17th infantry, which was marching by fours along the narrow wood from which the troops were unable to see the enemy. The members of one battalion laid on their faces in the road for a quarter of an hour trying to locate the riflemen and return the fire. Two Americans were wounded.

The road wound close to the stream and was thickly settled. It was a picturesque march. Many groups of hundreds of natives were clustered under the trees on the opposite banks, displaying white shirts, towels, sheets, or anything white on poles. Some shouted welcomes to the American soldiers, but most of them maintained a sullen silence. An old man in a carriage met the troops two miles outside of the town. He said: "I have lived in England and I have told the people that the Americans are like the English and that they need not be afraid."

Capt. Frank, in command of the gunboats, landed before the troops arrived and met with a "Porto Rican" welcome. The natives who had assembled on the shore crowded about the Americans, with fulsome expressions of friendship, apparently half afraid that they would be massacred.

Capt. Grant quickly distributed the men from the gunboat La Guna de Bay to guard the town, and the natives sent a messenger to tell the people who had taken refuge in the swamps to return. Hundreds of the natives thereupon returned timidly, a man with an improvised flag of truce flying from a bamboo pole preceding each party.

A Capuchin priest, one of the few whom Filipinos had not imprisoned, was found at Candaba. He said it was useless to try to convince the natives that the Americans had not come to oppress them, as they believed their leaders, who had strongly impressed this belief upon them and who have told stories of massacres, rapes and Filipino victories. The walls of the towns were playcarded with reports of the slaughter of Americans, hundreds of whom were said to have been taken prisoners.

As soon as Maj. Kobbe reached San Luis the natives raided the insurgents' rice stores. All day a stream of half-naked people emerged from the store house in the manner of ants rushing to their homes with bags of rice on their heads.

On Thursday night a body of rebels returned to San Luis and burned part of the town. Lieut. Cunningham, with a signal corps party, engaged in running a telegraph line, was camped near the place. Maj. Kobbe sent the army gunboat Cavadonga there and found the party Saturday in the town.

The Rio Grande, since Maj. Kobbe started, has been the highway for the exodus, of the natives and Saturday there is a continuous procession of thatched cascoes, white flags, drifting down the river, and containing whole families of 20 to 30 persons.

The Nebraska regiment marched from San Fernando to Calumpit, Saturday, for a 30-days' rest. The regiment numbers about 300 weather beaten veterans. Two of the companies are mere squads, and their battered canteens and shiny clothes show unmistakable marks of rough campaigning. But the soldiers are happy. Several of them dropped by the way from the heat, but when they boarded the special train at Calumpit, bound for Manila, they yelled like school boys and the other troops went to their stations and cheered heartily.

WASHINGTON, May 21.—The following dispatch has been received at the war department:

MANILA, May 20.—Adjutant General, Washington: Commissioners of Aguinaldo arrived this morning. Wish to consult United States commissioners, which they do 22d inst. Their power limited and apparently armistice a condition precedent to negotiations. Aguinaldo asks cessation of hostilities to ascertain desire of Filipino people.

OTIS.

Compulsory Arbitration.

LONDON, May 22.—The Morning Post publishes the following dispatch from its correspondent at The Hague:

"M. De Staal, head of the Russian delegation and president of the conference, received final instructions from Emperor Nicholas to deal with the question of realizing compulsory arbitration whether by a supreme tribunal of several great powers, or by private tribunal, consisting of the powers, whose interests might be at stake, with the subsequent friendly mediation by some third power."

A MEMORIAL ASSOCIATION.

An Organization Formed Having for Its Object the Promotion of Patriotic Feeling in North and South.

COLUMBUS, O., May 20.—A number of the southern delegates to the convention of the Ohio Water Works association accompanied by a party of local ex-union and ex-confederate soldiers Friday visited the cemetery at Camp Chase, where 2,000 confederate dead are buried and the result was the organization of a memorial association having for its object the promotion of patriotic feeling between the north and south. The following temporary officers were chosen: Rev. John Hewitt, of Columbus, president; Gen. Walter Payne, of Fostoria, vice president; Mayor Samuel Swartz, of Columbus, O., secretary, and Col. W. H. Knauss, of Columbus, treasurer.

A permanent organization will be effected here at the confederate memorial exercises in this city next month. The visiting southerners planted a bed of flowers in the cemetery.

THE FIRST RIVET DRIVEN.

Construction of the Battle Ship Ohio Has Been Fairly Started at the Union Iron Works, San Francisco.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 20.—The construction of the battleship Ohio has been fairly started, the first rivet having been driven Friday at the Union iron works. The performance was attended with considerable ceremony, the entire government force being present. Capt. L. J. Allen, United States navy, inspector of machinery, and Naval Constructor Elliott Snow, drove the first rivet, while Equipment Officer Lieut. H. T. Mayo handied the chinching iron, George W. Dickie, manager of the Union iron works, held the snapping tool, and James Dickie, superintendent of the yard, was heater boy. Superintendent John L. Scott, of the works, supervised the performance.

HIS HOME IS QUARANTINED.

A Kansas City Man, Exposed to Smallpox, Locked Himself in His House and Defied the Police to Remove Him.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., May 20.—Charles E. Tinsley, an engineer in an apartment house who had been exposed to smallpox, locked himself in his house Friday and defied the officers at the point of a revolver to remove him to a tent on the city hospital grounds set apart for suspects. Health Officer Coffin would not order the police to take Tinsley for fear of the consequences. He is being guarded and his home has been quarantined. There are now 13 smallpox patients at the pesthouse, some of them dangerously ill.

The Report on Porto Rico.

WASHINGTON, May 20.—The members of the insular commission are hard at work preparing their report on Porto Rico. It will be ready for submission to the secretary of war some time next week. The report, which will be very voluminous, will cover the questions of concessions and franchises, currency, laws, taxation, judiciary, public improvements, education and the civil affairs of the island generally.

Recruits for Havana.

WASHINGTON, May 20.—The funeral ship Crook, which has been transformed into a regular army transport, will sail from New York Saturday for Savannah, where she will embark the 2d regiment of infantry for transportation to Cienfuegos, Cuba. The transport Dixie, which brought the 4th regiment of immunes home from Manzanillo, also left New York Saturday with about 600 recruits for Havana.

Death Sentence Commuted.

WASHINGTON, May 20.—Charles Farris, Company H., 3d United States volunteer infantry, was found guilty of murder by a court martial in Santiago, Cuba, and was sentenced to be shot. The case was sent to the president for review, and the death sentence has been commuted to life imprisonment and dishonorable discharge from the army.

An Anti-Expansion Meeting.

LONDON, May 20.—It is learned that Andrew Carnegie is preparing invitations to an anti-expansion conference to be held in London in June, to include Senator Hoar, Bishop Potter, Carl Schurz, Thomas B. Reed and others prominently identified with the opposition to colonial extension by the United States.

The Situation in Samoa.

VANCOUVER, B. C., May 20.—The latest news from Samoa brought by the steamer Miowera indicates that the situation is practically unchanged and that affairs are remaining in statu quo pending definite arrangements between Great Britain, Germany and the United States.

Town Wiped Out by a Cyclone.

WICHITA, Kas., May 20.—A cyclone passed over Kiowa Thursday night and destroyed several houses. It is reported that the town of Colwitch was entirely destroyed. Communication is cut off and the news can not be verified.

Samples Dutiable.

WASHINGTON, May 20.—The secretary of the treasury has advised the post office department that samples imported in quantities and intended to be sold by jobbers are dutiable.

"Think of Ease But Work On."

If your blood is impure you may "work on" but you cannot even "think of ease." The blood is the greatest sustainer of the body and when you make it pure by taking Hood's Sarsaparilla you have the perfect health in which even hard work becomes ease.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Never Disappoints

Hood's Pills cure liver ills; the non-irritating and only cathartic to take with Hood's Sarsaparilla.

When a Vase Is a Verse.

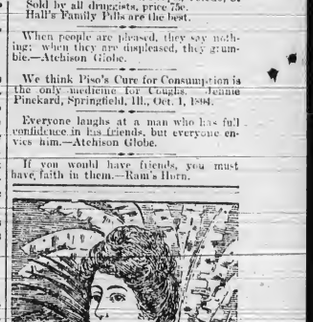
"Fifty cents for this beautiful little vase," called the auctioneer. "Going, going for 50. Do I hear 55 for this beautiful little vase?" and no one thought anything about the auctioneer or the vase which went for 50 cents until another one was just up, an immense affair of cloisonne. "Now we will show you an exquisite piece, not to be duplicated in this country," he went on. "An exquisite cloisonne vase—" and there the Wellesley girl said excitedly to her companion: "Now, that is what I call true Boston culture. Would you expect a man of that kind to make such a delicate distinction? He must have been educated at a woman's college. When he is selling a 50-cent article he says vase in the ordinary way, with the long sound of 'a,' but when he comes to a big piece of cloisonne, it is varse, with the broad 'a' every time. That is according to rule. Over ten dollars in price you find a varse, but under that nothing but an ordinary, everyday vase."—N. Y. Times.

Catarrh Cannot Be Cured

with Local Applications, as they cannot reach the seat of the disease. Catarrh is a blood or constitutional disease, and in order to cure it you must take internal remedies. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, and acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces. Hall's Catarrh Cure is not a quack medicine. It was prescribed by one of the best physicians in this country for years, and is a regular prescription. It is composed of the best tonics known, combined with the best blood purifiers, acting directly on the mucous surfaces. The perfect combination of the two ingredients is what produces such wonderful results in curing Catarrh. Send for testimonials, free.

F. J. CHENEY & CO., Props., Toledo, O.

Sold by all druggists, price 75c.



Hall's Family Pills are the best.

When people are pleased, they say nothing; when they are displeased, they grumble.—Atchison Globe.

We think Piso's Cure for Consumption is the only medicine for Coughs. — Jennie Pinckard, Springfield, Ill., Oct. 1, 1895.

Everyone laughs at a man who has full confidence in his friends, but everyone envies him.—Atchison Globe.

If you would have friends, you must have faith in them.—Ram's Horn.

An Excellent Combination.

The pleasant method and beneficial effects of the well known remedy, SYRUP OF FIGS, manufactured by the CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO., illustrate the value of obtaining the liquid laxative principles of plants known to be medicinally laxative and presenting them in the form most refreshing to the taste and acceptable to the system. It is the one perfect strengthening laxative, cleansing the system effectually, dispelling colds, headaches and fevers gently yet promptly and enabling one to overcome habitual constipation permanently. Its perfect freedom from every objectionable quality and substance, and its acting on the kidneys, liver and bowels, without weakening or irritating them, make it the ideal laxative.

In the process of manufacturing figs are used, as they are pleasant to the taste, but the medicinal qualities of the remedy are obtained from senna and other aromatic plants, by a method known to the CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO. only. In order to get its beneficial effects and to avoid imitations, please remember the full name of the Company printed on the front of every package.

CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO.
SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.
LOUISVILLE, KY. NEW YORK, N. Y.
For sale by all Druggists.—Price 50c. per bottle

BOYS

Spalding's Athletic Library should be read by every boy who wants to become an athlete.

No. 4. Boxing.	No. 85. Official Foot Ball Guide.
No. 9. How to Ban Athletics.	Hall Guide.
No. 26. How to play Foot Ball, by Walter Camp.	No. 86. Official Basket Ball Guide.
No. 27. College Athletics.	No. 87. Athletic Primer.
No. 32. How to play Base Ball.	No. 97. Official A. A. U. Rules.
No. 37. All Around Athletics.	No. 83. Athletic Records.
No. 42. How to Punch the Bag.	No. 95. Official Base Ball Guide.
No. 82. How to Train.	No. 100. How to be a Bicycle Champion.

PRICE, 10 CENTS PER COPY.

Send for catalogue of all sports.

A. G. SPALDING & BROS.,
NEW YORK. CHICAGO. DENVER

The Benefits

of an accurate and correctly made CYCLE CHAIN can not be measured in words. Don't worry along with a cheap chain, when for $1.00 you can get a "PEACOCK" CHAIN, (the finishing nor-pareil of perfection) delivered prepaid upon receipt of price, postage paid. State number of links and if 3/32, 1/8, or 5/16 pitch, and if 1/2 or 5/8 centers.

CLINTON CHAIN WORKS,
148 South Clinton Street, Chicago.

COLLEGE HILL ASSEMBLY,

College Hill, O., under the direction of the Cincinnati Social Settlement. Quiet Lectures on Literature, History, Science and Economics, by Prof. F. V. N. Myers, Prof. J. G. Porter, Prof. J. S. Van Cleve and many others. Located in buildings of Ohio Mil. Inst., in one of the most beautiful suburbs of Cincinnati. Board from $3.50 a week up. Course Sat. July 2; closes Aug. 5. For circular and information address,

E. E. MCSHEIDER, Business Manager.
Dep't A. Station O, CINCINNATI, O.

WISH AUTONOMY

That Is the Burden of the Talk of the Filipinos in the City of Manila.

The Insurgent Commissioners and Their Families Spent Sunday Visiting and Conferring With Members of Filipino Association.

MANILA, May 22.—The United States Filipino commissioner has submitted to the Filipino commission a draft of the form of government. The president is preparing to establish according to this plan: A governor general will be appointed for the island, as will also be a cabinet and later an advisory council to be elected by the people.

MANILA, May 22.—The Filipino commissioners, Gen. Gregorio Del Pilar, Lieut. Col. Alberto Barretio, Maj. Zealeita and Senor Gracio Gonzaga, with their families, spent the day in visiting friends in Manila, and conferred with Senores Florentino Torres, Pablo Ocampo and Teodore Yanco, the members of the local Filipino association, who will participate in the meetings with the American commissioners.

Senor Torres was a member of Aguinaldo's commission before the war. He opposes independence and favors autonomy and he has been most influential in persuading the followers of Aguinaldo to make the present advances.

Autonomy is the burden of the talk of the Filipinos, and it is thought that the kind they wish for would be little different from the scheme of an American protectorate which they talked of before the war.

Senor Paterno, who has succeeded the irreconcilable Malino as president of the Filipino so-called cabinet, is a student and writer of ability. He once drew up a plan of autonomy under Spain which the Spanish government promised to adopt, there then being a troublesome rebellion on foot. The American commissioners, in studying the question of Philippine government, have found several good points in this scheme. Paterno is now the strong man in Aguinaldo's party.

All the moneyed leaders of the Insurrection see that it is hopeless and are anxious for peace. Those who want money think they may profit by harrassing the American a while longer. On the suggestion of Mr. Schurman, president of the American commission, the local Filipino peace party has started a newspaper.

MANILA, May 22.—The Filipino commissioners, who arrived here on Saturday to negotiate with the United States commissioners, held a conference Monday morning with Messrs. Schurman, Worcester and Denby. They say that they are without power to bind the so-called Filipino government in any particular and can only refer any results of the present negotiations to Aguinaldo.

DAWSON'S COSTLY BLAZE.

Entire Business Center of Dawson City Destroyed by Fire—The Losses Will Aggregate $1,000,000.

VICTORIA, B. C., May 22.—An extra edition of the Skagway Alaskan, received by the steamer Lee at midnight Sunday, contains the following report, wired from Bennett to Skagway just previous to the sailing of the steamer:

"Another disastrous fire has visited Dawson City, April 21, this time fairly wiping out the entire business center of the town, creating losses that will aggregate $1,000,000, with not a dollar's worth of insurance. The news was telegraphed from Bennett Sunday afternoon by the special correspondent of the Daily Alaskan, who received it from a man named Tokales, who had just reached Bennett from a long and perilous trip out from Dawson over broken trails, open rivers and dangerous lakes."

MAN SHOT THREE WOMEN.

At Kansas City Levi Moore Fatally Wounded Mrs. Jennie Campbell, Mrs. Emma Landis and Mrs. Anna Mack.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., May 22.—Levi Moore, a clerk in the city market, shot and perhaps fatally wounded Mrs. Jennie Campbell, Mrs. Emma Landis and Mrs. Anna Mack, at 6 o'clock Sunday morning in a jealous rage. The Campbell woman had deserted Moore for another man. He had requested her to return his photographs. She did not answer his letters and Sunday morning Moore armed himself and went to her roominghouse in Wyandotte street. Mrs. Campbell answered the ring at the door, and when Moore angrily demanded his pictures she ran back into the house. Moore sent a bullet into her back and the woman ran screaming through the house. The men followed and shot the other two.

Butter Was Embalmed.

ST. PAUL, Minn., May 22.—The state dairy and food department collected in St. Paul and Minneapolis a choice assortment of samples of "embalmed" butter. Boracic acid is used in preparing the stuff. The department will prosecute the dealers.

Cooperage Works Burned.

CHICAGO, May 22.—The large tierce and barrel cooperage works of John Eiszner, West Kinzie and Curtis streets, has been destroyed by fire. Loss $60,000; no insurance.

ENVOYS ARRIVE AT MANILA.

They Make a Request for a Cessation of Hostilities—Gen. Otis Denies Them Their Application.

HONG KONG, May 20.—Gen. Otis, at Manila, has been notified of the shipping last week of $80,000 worth of arms from Tokio to the Filipinos.

PARIS, May 20.—Agoncillo said Thursday that the Filipinos are willing to accept the American scheme of government for the islands provided the Filipinos can have entire control of the finances.

MANILA, May 20.—Gen. Luna is reported to be making desperate efforts to restrain the educated Filipinos, within the limits of his self-appointed jurisdiction, from communicating with the Americans, even to arresting Encamino and Herrera, two of the most influential officials, while on their way to Malolos to join those who are coming via San Isidro Friday.

MANILA, May 20.—The Americans positively have entire control of the situation if the rainy season does not set in within ten days and make further military operations impossible, should the insurgents still prove intractable. The purpose of the Filipino leaders to give up the struggle against American authority was made by two delegates of the Filipino peace commission, who remained in San Isidro when it was captured and surrendered to Lawton's advance guard.

In conversation with American officers they state that the Filipino forces have been for the last four days willing to secure peace on any terms that Gen. Otis might see fit to offer. They declare that Gen. Lawton, by his rapid and energetic advance from Balinag, has not allowed their forces a moment's rest from fighting.

The delegates add, as their most important information, that Aguinaldo himself will sue for peace through the peace commission within two days. If he does not so act the Filipino government will promptly repudiate him, as four-fifths of the natives are weary of the war and desire the early ending of hostilities.

MANILA, May 20.—Two military and two civil Filipinos, commissioners appointed to co-operate with three citizens of Manila in negotiating terms of peace, arrived here at 8:15 a. m. Saturday.

They have submitted no new proposition, but want an armistice pending the session of the Filipino congress.

Maj. Gen. Otis has refused to entertain the proposal.

SHE USED HER REVOLVER.

A Georgia Woman Shoots and Kills a Colored Man, Who Was Endeavoring to Enter Her Bed Room Window.

ROCKMART, Ga., May 20.—Mrs. Jenne Wood, of Esom Hill district, sent a ball into a Negro's brain shortly after midnight, escaping the clutches of a Negro assailant who was seeking to enter her bedroom.

Mrs. Wood is the wife of a prominent planter who is away from home quite often. He has taught his wife to use a pistol.

A few hours after the use of the pistol, Mrs. Wood's husband found the dead body of the Negro lying under the window through which he was trying to enter when the woman pulled the trigger.

SPAIN'S EFFORTS A FAILURE.

The Steps for Release of Prisoners Can Not Be Taken Until the Philippines Are Pacified.

MADRID, May 20.—The Epoca, conservative, Friday quotes the minister of foreign affairs, the Marquis Pidal, as making the following statement:

"The negotiations for the release of the Spanish prisoners in the Philippine Islands having failed, the pacification of the Philippines must now be awaited before fresh steps can be taken."

Buried Side by Side.

LEWISBURG, O., May 20.—The bodies of Lucy Gay and her sister, Bertha Gay, who were murdered at West Alexandria by Frank Campbell, were buried here Friday afternoon with very impressive ceremonies. The corpses were laid side by side in one grave and friends and relatives were present from miles around. The funeral was the largest in the history of this section. The victims were prominent in school and church work and had a host of acquaintances.

To Avert War.

CAPE TOWN, May 20.—A conference has been arranged between Sir Alfred Miller, British high commissioner of South Africa, and governor of Cape Colony, and President Kruger, of the Transvaal republic, to discuss the dispute between England and the Transvaal. The meeting will take place at Bloemfontein, capital of the Orange Free State, May 31.

Boom in Dry Goods Demand.

NEW YORK, May 20.—The homecoming of Adm. Dewey has caused a boom in the dry goods demand. The demand for ordinary clothes prints for conversion into bunting has all but exhausted the supply, and converters have found it necessary to take higher grades of material, including what is known as "64 squares." In the trade it is estimated that at least 500,000 pieces or 25,000,000 yards of bunting will be used to welcome the hero of Manila bay when he returns to the United States.

ON THE ROCKS.

American Line Steamer Paris Struck an Outlying Ridge of the Manacles.

An Effort Was Made Sunday Afternoon by Three Tugs and a Steel Hawser to Tow the Steamer Off—The Attempt Was Unsuccessful.

FALMOUTH, May 22.—The American line steamer Paris, Capt. Watkins, from Southampton and Charbourg for New York, struck on an outlying ridge of the Manacles early Sunday morning at a point half a mile from where the wrecked Atlantic transport liner Mohegan lies and five miles from Falmouth.

The Paris, which sailed for Southampton Saturday, called at Cherbourg and picked up 50 passengers. She left Cherbourg at 6 o'clock Saturday evening. Soon after 1 o'clock Sunday morning, at high tide and in a dense fog, she ran ashore. From the first there was no danger. Life boats and tugs were soon literally swarming around the vessel to render assistance. A majority of the passengers, who numbered 380, were brought to Falmouth where they obtained lodgings for the night.

Capt. Watkins reported that his ship was lying comfortably in smooth water and that there was no occasion for any alarmist reports. He reported the passengers and crew all well.

The first intimation of the vessel's striking the rocks was a slight grating sound which was followed by a second and more pronounced shock. The lookout shouted that there was something looming ahead, but before there was time to reverse the engines the ship had gone on the rocks, 200 yards from the shore. Assistance was summoned by means of rockets and the cost guards promptly telephoned to the life-saving station for boats.

A majority of the passengers were not aware that an accident had happened until they were called up by the st ward. On reaching the deck they found the ship's boat in perfect readiness for their reception. The sea was perfectly calm and the only discomfort that the passengers experienced was caused by the slight rain that was falling at the time. Owing to the calmness of the sea the boats could be managed with perfect safety. Perfect order prevailed aboard the vessel. Capt. Watkins stood on the bridge giving orders and his perfect self possession and calmness of demeanor had a reassuring effect upon the passengers. In accordance with the instruction of the captain the women and children were the first to be taken off the ship.

At daybreak the position of the vessel could be better discerned. The brilliant Saint Anthony light at the entrance of Falmouth harbor could be distinguished plainly through the misty rain and the still standing masts of the ill-fated Mohegan could be seen near by.

It is said that a Falmouth pilot boat showed a warning signal to the Paris, telling the captain that he would put the vessel on top of the Mohegan if he did not alter the course of the ship. The warning, however, came too late, and the Paris struck on a ridge to the westward of the Manacles. It is suggested that as this is only their second trip from Cherbourg the officers of the Paris were not familiar with the course.

The crew of the Paris are still aboard the vessel. It is believed that the steamer has a large rent in her bottom in the forward part of the ship. The crew are standing by her and will assist in an effort to get her off the rocks.

Further details of the disaster show that when the vessel struck the crew were summoned on deck. The passengers upon appearing were met in the companion way with comforting words and assurances of their safety. Exceptional coolness was shown on all sides, the stewards distributing coffee and stimulants to all who desired them. Capt. Watkins had his gig lowered and rowed ashore in order to ascertain his whereabouts and to telegraph to Falmouth for tugs to assist his ship. In the meantime rockets were sent up and signal guns were fired.

When dawn broke every one on board was relieved to find the shore on one side and life boats lying near by on the other. The vessel lay with her head to the southwest, the reversing of her engines having put her broadside on to the rocks. Happily the sea was smooth and there was no wind.

FALMOUTH, May 22.—An effort was made Sunday afternoon to tow the Paris off the rock. Three tugs were engaged at full pressure with the steamer's steel hawsers, her own engines assisting for half an hour. The attempt was entirely unsuccessful, the steamer not budging an inch.

Young Men Suing Saloonkeepers.

SHELBYVILLE, Ind., May 22.—On the evening of April 24 last Frank B. Reno and Joseph R. Amos, two young men residing in Boggstown, this county, entered the saloon of Golden & Bogeman, this city, and ea m that they were given cocaine in b er and afterward robbed in a game of cards. Their condition for several hours was critical, and it was necessary to use a stomach pump to bring them around all right. They have filed suit against the saloon firm and their bondsmen for damages in the sum of $1,000 each.

IN GOD'S BALANCES.

Human Lives and Actions Weighed in the Divine Scales.

Dr. Talmage Preaches on Personal Responsibility, Taking His Text from the Handwriting on the Wall at Babylon.

(Copyright, 1899, by Louis Klopsch.)

In these days of moral awakening this pointed sermon by Dr. Talmage on personal responsibility before God will be read with a deep and solemn interest. Text, Daniel 5:27: "Thou art weighed in the balances and art found wanting."

Babylon was the purndise of architecture, and driven out from thence the grandest buildings of modern times are only the evidence of her fall. The site having been selected for the city, 2,000,000 men were employed in the rearing of her walls and the building of her works. It was a city 60 miles in circumference. There was a trench all around the city, from which material for the building of the city had been digged. There were 25 gates on each side of the city, between every two gates a tower of defense springing into the skies, from each gate on the one side a street running straight through to the corresponding gate on the other side, so that there were 50 streets 15 miles long. Through the city ran a branch of the river Euphrates. This river sometimes overflowed its banks, and to keep it from ruining the city a lake was constructed into which the surplus water of the river would run during the time of freshets, and the water was kept in this artificial lake until time of drought, and then this water would stream down over the city. At either end of the bridge spanning this Euphrates there was a palace—the one palace a mile and a half around, the other palace 7½ miles around.

The wife of Nebuchadnezzer had been born and brought up in the country and in a mountainous region, and she could not bear this flat district of Babylon, and so, to please his wife, Nebuchadnezzar built in the midst of the city a mountain 400 feet high. This mountain was built out into terraces supported on arches. On the top of these arches a layer of flat stones, on the top of that layer of reeds and bitumen, on the top of that two layers of bricks closely cemented, on the top of that a heavy sheet of lead and on the top of that the soil placed—the soil so deep that a Lebanon cedar had room to anchor its roots. There were pumps worked by mighty machinery fetching up the water from the Euphrates to this hanging garden, as it was called, so that there were fountains spouting into the sky. Standing below and looking up, it must have seemed as if the clouds were in blossom or as though the sky leaned on the shoulder of a cedar. All this Nebuchadnezzar did to please his wife. Well, she ought to have been pleased. I suppose she was pleased. If that would not plense her, nothing would. There was in that city also the temple of Bleus, with towers—one tower the eighth of a mile high, in which there was an observatory where astronomers talked to the stars. There was in that temple an image, just one image, which would cost what would be our $52,000,000.

Oh, what a city! The earth never saw anything like it, never will see anything like it. And yet I have to tell you that it is going to be destroyed. The king and his princes are at a feast. They are all intoxicated. Pour out the wine into the chalices! Drink to the health of the king! Drink to the glory of Babylon! Drink to a great future! A thousand lords reel intoxicated. The king seated upon a chair, with vacant look, as intoxicated men will—with vacant look stared at the wall. But soon that vacant look takes on intensity, and it is an affrighted look, and all the princes begin to look and wonder what is the matter, and they look at the same point on the wall. And then there drops a darkness into the room that puts out the blaze of the golden plate, and out of the sleeve of the darkness there comes a finger—a finger of fiery terror, circling around and circling around as though it would write, and then it comes up, and with sharp tip of flame it inscribes on the plastering of the wall the doom of the king: "Weighed in the balances and found wanting."

The bang of heavy fists against the gates of the palace is followed by the breaking in of the doors. A thousand gleaming knives strike into a thousand quivering hearts. Now death is king, and he is seated upon a throne of corpses. In that hall there is a balance lifted. God swung it. On one side of the balance are put Belshazzar's opportunities; on the other side of the balance are put Belshazzar's sins. The sins come down. His opportunities go up. Weighed in the balances—found wanting.

There has been a great deal of cheating in our country with false weights and measures and balances, and the government, to change that state of things, appointed commissioners whose business it was to stamp weights and measures and balances, and a great deal of the wrong has been corrected. But still, after all, there is no such thing as a perfect balance on earth. The chain may break, or some of the metal may be clipped, or in some way the equipoise may be disturbed. You cannot always depend upon earthly balances. A pound is not always a pound, and you may pay for one thing and get another, but in the balance which is suspended to the throne of God a pound is a pound, and right is right, and wrong is wrong, and a soul is a soul, and eternity is eternity. God has a perfect bushel and a perfect peck and a perfect gallon. When merchants weigh their goods in the wrong way, then the Lord weighs the goods again. If from the imperfect measure the merchant pours out what pretends to be a gallon of oil and there is less than a gallon, God knows it, and He calls upon His recording angel to mark it: "So much wanting in that measure of oil." The farmer comes in from the country. He has apples to sell. He has an imperfect measure. He pours out the apples from this imperfect measure. God recognizes it. He says to the recording angel: "Mark down so many apples too few—an imperfect measure." We may cheat ourselves, and we may cheat the world, but we cannot cheat God, and in the great day of judgment it will be found out that what we learned in boyhood at school is correct—that 20 hundred-make a ton and 128 solid feet make a cord of wood. No more, no less. And a religion which does not take hold of this life as well as the life to come is no religion at all.

But, my friends, that is not the style of balances I am to speak of to-day; that is not the kind of weights and measures. I am to speak of that kind of balances which weigh principles, weigh churches, weigh men, weigh nations and weigh words. "What!" you say, "is it possible that our world is to be weighed?" Yes. Why, you would think if God put on one side of the balances suspended from the throne the Alps and the Pyrenees and the Himalayas and Mount Washington and all the cities of the earth they would crush it. No, no! The time will come when God will sit down on the white throne to see the world weighed, and on one side will be the world's opportunities and on the other side the world's sins. Down will go the sins, and away will go the opportunities, and God will say to the messengers with the torch: "Burn that world! Weighed and found wanting!"

So God will weigh churches. He takes a great church. That church, great according to the worldly estimate, must be weighed. He puts it on one side the balances and the minister and the choir and the building that cost its hundreds of thousands of dollars. He puts them on one side the balances. On the other side of the scale He puts what that church ought to be, what its consecration ought to be, what its sympathy for the poor ought to be, what its devotion to all good ought to be. That is on one side. That side comes down, and the church, not being able to stand the test, rises in the balance. It does not make any difference about your magnificent machinery. A church is built for one thing—to save souls. If it saves a few souls when it might save a multitude of souls, God will spew it out of His mouth. Weighed and found wanting!

So we perceive that God estimates nations. How many times He has put the Spanish monarchy into the scales and found it insufficient and condemned it! The French empire was placed on one side of the scales, and God weighed the French empire, and Napoleon said: "Have I not enlarged the boulevards? Did I not kindle the glories of the Champs Elysees? Have I not adorned the Tuileries? Have I not built the gilded opera house?" Then God weighed the nation, and He put on one side the scales the emperor, and the boulevards, and the Tuileries, and the Champs Elysees, and the gilded opera house, and on the other side he puts that man's abominations, that man's libertinism, that man's selfishness, that man's godless ambition. This last came down, and all the brilliancy of the scene vanished. What is that voice coming up from Sedan? Weighed and found wanting!

But I must become more individual and more personal in my address. Some people say they do not think clergymen ought to be personal in their religious address, but ought to deal with subjects in the abstract. I do not think that way. What would you think of a hunter who should go to the Adirondacks to shoot deer in the abstract? Ah, no! He loads his gun; he puts the butt of it against his breast, he runs his eye along the barrel, he takes sure aim, and then crash go the antlers on the rocks! And so, if we want to be hunters for the Lord, we must take sure aim and fire. Not in the abstract are we to treat things in religious discussions. If a physician comes into a sick room, does he treat disease in the abstract? No; he feels the pulse, makes the diagnosis, then he writes the prescription. And, if we want to heal souls for this life and the life to come, we do not want to treat them in the abstract. The fact is, you and I have a malady which, if uncured by grace, will kill us forever. Where is the balm? Where is the physician?

Still the balances are suspended. Are there any others who would like to be weighed or who will be weighed? Yes; here comes a worldling. He gets into the scales. I can very easily see what his whole life is made up of. Stocks, dividends, percentages, "buyer ten days," "buyer 30 days." "Get in my friend; get into those balances and be weighed—weighed for this life and weighed for the life to come." He gets in. I find that the two great questions in his life are: "How cheaply can I buy these goods?" and "How dearly can I sell them?" I find he admires Heaven because it is a land of gold and money must be "easy." I find, from talking with him, that religion and the Sabbath are an interruption, a vulgar interruption, and he hopes on the way to church to drum up a new customer! All the week he has been weighing fruits, weighing meats, weighing ice, weighing coals, weighing confections, weighing worldly and perishable commodities, not realizing the fact that he himself has been weighed. "On your side the balances, O worldling! I will give you full advantage. I put on your side all the banking houses, all the storehouses, all the cargoes, all the insurance companies, all the factories, all the silver, all the gold, all the money vaults, all the safe deposits—all on your side. But it does not add one ounce, for at the very moment we are congratulating you on your fine house and upon your princely income God and the angels are writing in regard to your soul: 'Weighed and found wanting!'"

Suddenly the judgment will be here. The angel, with one foot on the sea and the other foot on the land, will swear by Him that liveth forever and ever that time shall be no longer: "Behold, He cometh with clouds, and every eye shall see Him." Hark to the jarring of the mountains. Why, that is the setting down of the scales, the balances. And then there is a flash as if from a cloud, but it is the glitter of the shining balances, and they are hoisted, and all nations are to be weighed. The unforgiven get out on this side the balances. They must have weighed themselves and pronounced a flattering decision. The world may have weighed them and pronounced them moral. Now they are being weighed in God's balances—the balances that can make no mistake. All the property gone, all the titles and distinction gone, all the worldly successes gone, there is a soul absolutely nothing but a soul, an immortal soul, a dying soul, a soul stripped of all worldly advantages—a soul on one side of the scales. On the other side the balances are wasted Sabbaths, disregarded sermons, 10,000 opportunities of mercy and pardon that were cast aside. They are on the other side of the scales, and there God stands, and, in the presence of men and devils, cherubim and archangel, he announces, while groaning earthquake and crackling conflagration and judgment trumpet and everlasting storm repeat it: "Weighed and found wanting."

But say some who are Christians: "Certainly you don't mean to say that we will have to go into the balances? Our sins are all pardoned; our title to Heaven is secure. Certainly you are not going to put us in the balances?" Yes, my brother, we must all appear before the judgment seat of Christ, and on that day you are going to be weighed. Oh, follower of Christ, you get into the balances! The bell of the judgment is ringing. You must get into the balances. You get in on this side. On the other side the balances we will place all the opportunities of good which you did not improve, all the entertainments in piety which you might have had, but which you refused to take. We place them all on the other side. They go down, and your soul rises in the scale. You cannot weigh against all those imperfections. Well, then, we must give you the advantage, and on your side the scale we will place all the good deeds you have ever done and all the kind words you have ever uttered. Too light yet! Well, we must put on your side all the consecration of your life, all the holiness of your life, all the prayers of your life, all the faith of your Christian life. Too light yet! Come, mighty men of the past, and get in on that side of the scales. Come, Payson and Doddridge and Baxter, get in on that side the scales and make them come down, that this righteous one may be saved. They come and they get in the scales. Too light yet! Come, the martyrs, the Latimers, the Wycliffs, the men who suffered at the stake for Christ. Get in on this side the Christian balances and see if you cannot help him weight it aright. They come and get in. Too light! Come, angels of God on high. Let not the righteous perish with the wicked. They get in on this side the balances. Too light yet! I put on this side the balances all the scepters of light, all the thrones of power, all the crowns of glory. Too light yet! But just at that point Jesus, Son of God, comes up to the balances, and He puts one of His sacred feet on your side, and the balances begin to tremble from top to bottom. Then He puts both of His sacred feet on the balances, and the Christian's side comes down with a stroke that sets all the bells of Heaven ringing. That Rock of Ages heavier than any other weight!

But says the Christian: "Am I to be allowed to get off so easily?" Yes. If some one should come and put on the other side of the scales all your imperfections, all your envies, all your jealousies, all your inconsistencies of life, they would not budge the scales with Christ on your side the scales. Go free! There is no condemnation to them that are in Jesus Christ. Chains broken, prison houses opened, sins pardoned. Go free! Weighed in the balances and nothing, nothing wanted. Oh, what a glorious hope! Will you accept it this day? Christ making up for what you lack. Christ the atonement for all your sins. Who will accept him? Will not this whole audience say: "I am insufficient, I am a sinner, I am lost by reason of my transgressions, but Christ has paid it all. My Lord and my God, my life, my pardon, my Heaven. Lord Jesus, I hail Thee!" Oh, if you could only understand the worth of that sacrifice which I have represented to you under a figure—if you could understand the worth of that sacrifice, this whole audience would this moment accept Christ and be saved.

We go away off or back into history to get some illustration by which we may set forth what Christ has done for us. We need not go so far. I saw a vehicle behind a runaway horse dashing through the street, a mother and her two children in the carriage. The horse dashed along as though to hurl them to death, and a mounted policeman, with a shout clearing the way, and the horse at full run, attempted to seize those runaway horses to save a calamity, when his own horse fell and rolled over him. He was picked up half dead. Why were our sympathies so stirred? Because he was badly hurt, and hurt for others. But I tell you to-day of how Christ, the Son of God, on the blood-red horse of sacrifice, came for our rescue and rode down the sky and rode unto death for our rescue. And are your hearts not touched? That was a sacrifice for you and me. O Thou who didst ride on the red horse of sacrifice, come and ride through this world on the white horse of victory!

Why is a vote of thanks like a turnstile? Because it must be moved before being passed.

BOONE CO., RECORDER.

Wednesday, May 42, 1899.

Advertising Rates:
One inch, one time.....$1.00
Each additional time.....25
Obituaries, Tributes of Respects or notices of a like nature, per inch .50

W. L. RIDDELL, - - Publisher.

We are authorized to announce J. W. KENNEDY, of Union, as a candidate for the Legislature, subject to the action of the Democratic party.

Neighborhood News.

North Bend.

The river is rather high for this time of year.

Mrs. Dodge, of near Milldale, is visiting her daughter, Mrs. Columbus Kirtley.

The Str. City of Louisville, landed at Balsly's landing last Thursday, to take on wood.

Mrs. Clinton Gaines, of Bullittsville, was visiting her relatives in this neighborhood. Thursday.

Mrs. W. P. Cropper returned, last week, from Louisville, where she had been attending the Southern Baptist Convention. She reports a splendid time.

Francesville.

The farmers in this neighborhood are through planting corn.

Mrs. William Graves, jr., entertained her sister, Mrs. Katie Allen, Friday.

Misses Pearl and Alberta Moore spent last Saturday with Miss Magdalene Brown.

Miss Pearl Moore was the pleasant guest of Miss Nannie Scothorn, Thursday and Friday.

Master Stanley Graves, who has been staying at his aunt's, Mrs. Templeton Gaines', has returned home.

Mrs Templeton Gaines spent last Sunday and Monday with her sister, Mrs. Lucretia Crisler, in Ludlow.

Erlanger.

Hub Buckner and family have returned from their sugar plantation in Louisana.

Mr. Chas. Durain has been elected Vice President of the Erlanger Building Association.

Mr. and Mrs. Ferdinand Springmeir celebrated their tin wedding, Sunday, with a host of friends present.

Daniels, who has in charge of the Crescent Springs Presbyterian church, preached here Sunday, at the Methodist church.

The Strawberry Festival, given for the Baptist church, on Friday evening, was a grand success, and the ladies who had same in charge deserve credit.

Walton.

Mr. Walter Herndon and Miss Sallie spent Sunday at Independence.

Mrs. Anna Tomlin has returned from a visit to Indianapolis and St. Louis.

Several couples of young people from this place attended church at Crittenden, Sunday night.

Mr. and Mrs. T. F. Curley, Misses Gertrude and Pauline, and also Miss Leona Rouse, spent Sunday with Mr and Mrs. P. T. Gunning at Banklick.

Miss Pita DeJarnette and Mr. Henry Cram have returned to their home in Williamstown, after a pleasant visit with friends at this place.

Mr. J. W. Kennedy, of Union, was here and participated in the exercises at the meeting of the Masonic Lodge on Friday, at which politics was tabooed.

Miss Daisy Johnson, of Edinburg, Illinois, visited her friend, Miss Julia Adams, attending the commencement of the Walton Academy. She was delighted with her visit.

C. C. Metcalfe, on Saturday last, offended the proprieties by displaying on a canvass broad enough to hide his show window the comforting words, "Delicious ice cream soda only 5 cents a glass." At the same time he was wearing an overcoat and a straw hat.

Union.

Miss Bertha Baker visited her aunt, Mrs. Dr. Finnell, of Verona, last week.

At this time Sol Long is about the happiest man in town. He has struck a boom in the sewing machine business.

Rev. Adams began a protracted meeting at the Baptist church, Sunday night. He is assisted by Rev. Quizenbury.

Beu Surface and Spencer Smith have bought about 10,000 pounds of wool, and will receive it at Mr. Surface's Thursday.

Your correspondent and family were pleased to have, as their guests, Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. James Riley and Spencer Smith.

Miss Nannie Burkett has succeeded in the millinery business far beyond her expectations, and is very much pleased in consequence.

Robert Rice, of Florence, was swapping jokes with the boys here, last week, and talking binder twine as a side line. Robert is a machine talker.

Circuit Clerk Duncan was in town, one day recently, returning from Mud Lick. "Uncle Billy," in or out of office, always has a pleasant smile for everybody.

Geo. Stevenson had bad luck with his incubator chickens, batching only 45 out of 205 eggs. He is not discouraged, however, and will try it again.

Granville Rouse is building a long line of fence for William Kenney.

Prof. Collins made a tour of Trimble county with Prof. Cassidy, candidate for the office of Superintendent of Public Instruction, and reports the grandest trip of his life. Enroute to Trimble they touched at various points along the river and met leading politicians who took to Mr. Cassidy with surprising readiness.

David Hicks has been assisting Mr. Berkshire in remodeling the Hotel Eagle. Dave looked at the sun Thursday about 1 p. m. through the Vosbell telescope, and declared that he saw the German army 500,000 strong, marching down on the United States with brass bands and Gatling guns. Mr. Berkshire looked, and saw nothing but the man in the moon, shaving with a safety razor and the beard flying through the air. He declares that Mr. David would be a poor hand to send after a standing army if he could not tell one from a safety razor. Lucien Dickerson, jr., was pitching on the veranda at the time, and he looked, and after 15 minutes he reached the conclusion that what looked like an army was really Union as it will appear in 1905, with electric railroad from Covington to Hamilton, with 10,000 inhabitants and money to loan at 3 per cent. and no questions asked.

Verona.

The Union Sunday-School is progressing nicely.

Rev. Sam Adams filled his appointment at New Bethel, last Saturday and Sunday.

Dr. Crouch, of Union, was mixing with friends here, last Saturday and Sunday.

Russell Hume and Rube Huston made a pleasant trip to Gardnersville, last Sunday.

Miss Annie Wolfe attended the Baptist Convention at Louisville, last week, and reports a profitable trip.

We learn that our friend, Will A. Wolfe, will be married to a Miss Stephens, next Thursday, May 25, at Goshen church at 2 p. m.

Remember there will be an all day meeting at Salem church, the first Saturday and Sunday in June. Elders Smoot, Thompson and Moore will address the people.

A CARD.—I wish to make a correction to the public, and find it more convenient to do so through the Recorder. Hoping Mr. Editor will grant the same. I wish to state that an erroneous report has been circulated among my friends against me, concerning L. J. Riley, of Union, and myself. The report was started by some person or persons, that I refused to pay said Riley for a year's rent for his place at Verona, and more than that, I beat him out of his money, which I emphatically deny. If the said Riley denies the payment of same, I can produce three good witnesses to the effect that I paid up and settled in full the first of March, 1899.

A. C. ROBERTS.

Bellevue.

Clore & Walton began unloading a barge of coal, last Monday.

Ben Merrick, of McVille, angled a 11 pound cat fish with a pole and line.

James Lawell has received and erected the tower and windmill belonging to his well.

The reptile known as the Adder is more pleutiful this sprigu than usual. Albert Snyder killed three in one collection.

Our public well is in first class working order, and the wearied traveler, can at any time, slake the thrist of himself or beast.

A. Corbin & Son have unloaded a barge of coal containing 14,500 bushels. Zed Hopkins, of Aurora, who has been superintending, brought "Full Moon" along with him to furnish the light and do the cooking.

Michael Clore and wife have been the guests of their son Robert, of Clore's Ridge, for the past week. We miss uncle Mike's familiar voice, calling his hogs early ever morning. We did not mean to say that we rose early.

Bob Bradford proposes to hitch a span of horses to his corn rows in order to pull the crooks out of them. Robert is not responsible for the crooked rows, but is of the opinion that he can not plow the corn unless he applies the above power.

The lumber for John Rogers' house came down per St. Pauline, and is hauled to the site, which is near the mouth of the lane south of Col. Moody's residence. John Presser is chief architect of the wood work, and Thomas Howard, of Petersburg, of the stone work.

Freud Philip, we have read and heard much of that telescope, but have never had the happy privilege of trying it. We purpose calling on our friends, A. C. and his landlord, some time when the thing is at home, (as we understand our friend Willis has it borrowed) and take a view of the moon. Would be pleased to have you present, and adjust the thing for us.

Hebron.

Most of the gardeus in this neighborhood look well.

Jack Frost has been tryiug to pay Hebron a visit for a week.

Mrs. Shaunon and son, of Cincinnati, are the guests of her sister, Mrs. C. E. Clore.

Jacob Tanner went to Cincinnati, one day last week, to visit his brother, who is quite sick.

Miss Martha Harding spent a portion of last week with Mrs. Nora Aylor, of North Bend.

Rev. Lentz preached his monthly sermon for the Lutheran congregation, Sunday morning.

Strawberries have made their appearance on "Dogtrot Ave." by the wholesale, and as big as beer kegs.

We hear that an Indian Medicine Co. will come to our town, giving shows. We only say this: That if they are as honest and upright as the German Medicine Co., they will meet with cordial welcome here.

Our community has indeed been saddened during the past week. The quiet little church at this place was the scene of three funerals, and the mouruing of sad hearts that only time and the comforting words, "Blessed are they that mourn for they shall be comforted," can heal. On last Tuesday, the remains of Geo. Wilson and wife were interred in the same grave side by side. They jonneyed through life side by side, they will enter the pearly gates. Surrounded by loving friends did that bereaved brother and sister bid their last adieu on Wednesday. Maria Clore, in the 76th year of her age, was followed to her last resting place by eight children and twenty-five grand-children. Six of her grand-children acted as pall bearers. Rev. Lentz spoke loving words on both occasions, not his word, but the Word of that Divine Father above, who doeth all things well. It is needless to try to speak of the deceased, for we can do them no good. Their past life tells us where the soul has winged its flight. Let us only know that they are but asleep, waiting to be called across on that ever green shore. Weep not kind friends, for our life is "but a sleep and a forgetting," and sooner or later we shall be summoned by God's holy angels to give our last accounts.

Gunpowder.

Snowball winter is on.

Uncle George Utz visited J. A. Smith last Sunday.

George Rice and family spent Sunday with J. S. Surface.

Albert Beemon, of Walton, was in the neighborhood on business, last Thursday.

The infant child of J. A. (who?) took seriously sick a few days ago but is much better.

Leslie Macrander, of near Verona, attended Suuday school at Hopeful, last Sunday.

Uncle Harrison Clore and wife and C. T. Davis and wife, were guests of J. C. Hankins, last Sunday.

S. J. Orem, our genial friend, made us a brief visit last Saturday, enroute to the Point Pleasant neighborhood.

B. C. Surface will receive his purchase of wool at his place Thursday the 25 lust. He has a fresh jersey cow for sale.

Fraucis M. Keller, who graduated at Witteuburg College, last Thursday, is speudiug a few days with his many friends here, and will probably preach in the Hopeful church next Sunday.

Married, at the Lutheran parsonage, at Florence, Wednesday the 17th lust., Robert O Rouse and Miss Connie Stephens. We extend our congratulations and wish them a long and happy life.

Rev. Ezra Keller attended the graduating exercises at Wittenburg College and made a short visit among friends here, and returned to his home accompanied by his wife at Hilsboro, Ill., last Saturday.

Rev. Lentz started to Pennsylvania, last Monday, to attend the meeting of the General Synod. He will stop at Washington City and attend the great peace jubilee, and will return home about Juue the 3d.

Hathaway.

Wheat is heading out.

Ozark Ryle, of Florence, was in our burg last Saturday.

J. D. McNeely sold 5 sows and pigs to an Indiana man, last week.

J. M. Setters and family, of McVille, spent last Sunday ou Gunpowder.

Marcus Ryle and wife were the guests of Hade Stepheus, last Wednesday.

J. J. Stephens, of Rabbit Hash, was in this neighborhood last Thursday.

Jeff Williamson is building a stone fence in our burg, on Klondike avenue.

J. T. Marshall and Wade Ryle were down ou Gunpowder fishing last Friday.

Mr. Claud Ryle and wife, were visiting F. J. Rue and family, last Sunday week.

Several of the members of Big Bone church met last Thursday and cleaued the house nicely.

Mrs. Henry McNeely and daughter, of Gallatin county, were visiting J. D. McNeely, of this place, last week.

John L. Henderson took his wool to Rabbit Hash, last Friday and shipped it to J. Scofield & Son, Louisville.

Walter Adams and family, of Indiana, were visiting relatives aud friends in this vicinity last Saturday and Sunday.

E. E. Utz was in Hathaway, one day last week, and posted a large card with the pictures of the following gentlemen W. J. Bryan, P. Watt Hardin and J. C. S. Blackburn.

The most enjoyable event of the season was the party given last Saturday night a week at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Riddell, in honor of their neice, Miss Cora Quick. The evening entertainment consisted of parlor games and music, until a late hour, when all took their departure for their several homes.

Dr. Crouch, of Union, was in this neighborhood, last Wednesday, seeing the people and asking them to come out the 27th and help him out. The doctor is for good roads and is against all trusts especially the tobacco trust. He met your scribe and gave him a neat little speech, and went on his way down Gunpowder.

Beaver.

Geo. W. Ossman and wife were in Cincinnati, Saturday, shopping.

Mr. Fall, of Union, is decorating Jno. Sleet's house with a coat of paint.

Miss Sallie Hughes, who has been visiting in Texas, has returned home.

Mrs. T. J. Hughes visited her father, Mr. John Green, near Big Bone, last week.

Merrit Jack and family visited his brother-in-law, Mr. Dix, at Newport, Sunday.

The brick work of C. C. Sleet's house was finished, last Tuesday. He is building a beautiful modern house of eight rooms.

Rains last week enabled some of our farmers to get out part of their tobacco crop. Mr. John Snow has set 8 acres. He reports it looking well. Plenty of plants in this locality.

Mr. Geo. Jack, of Walton, formerly of this place, and his brother-in-law, Mr. Dix, of Newport, are going into the merchandise business opposite Ripley, Ohio, in Kentucky. We wish him success in his new enterprise.

Taylorsport.

Henry Myers is painting his house.

Dave Beall, of Hebron, was in these parts Saturday.

Druggist Morse moved from Constance, last Friday.

Another medicine show is holding forth at Constance.

Capt. Kotmeyer is unloading a barge of coal for his own use.

Parlor Grove will not be open for public amusement this year.

A large acreage of early beans has been planted in this vicinity.

Miss Lizzie Wendell, of Petersburg, is visiting her aunt, Mrs. Hedges.

Henry McGlasson is having his house painted. John Kelsy is the artist.

Mrs. Annie Sprague, of Cincinnati, is spending a week with her mother, Mrs. Davis.

Ell Rouse and son, of Florence, were down this way Thursday, inspecting the lands crop.

Bros. Harris and Cram closed a protracted meeting last Friday evening, with one addition.

Miss Edith Conner and sister, of Hebron, were entertained, last week, by Miss Lena Rouse.

Charley Barr and family, of Ludlow, were the guests of Capt. Pickleheimer and wife, last Sunday.

The heirs of James Wilson, deceased, have sold the old homestead of twenty-six acres, to Mr. Todd, of Riverside, O., for $1,600.

Hume Store.

We had a very heavy hail storm here, last Wednesday.

Mary Houston spent Saturday night and Sunday with Miss Nell Hume.

Quite a number from here attended the lawu fete at the Hughes' school house, Saturday night.

Messrs. Pat and Fee Norman, of Union were calling on friends at this place Saturday night and Sunday.

Jim Houston met with a serious accident one day last week. While climbing up in the barn he lost his balance and fell, injuring his shoulder very badly.

Flickertown.

Miss Julia Smith is very low of typhoid fever.

Our Sunday school is progressing nicely with a large attendance.

John Lacy was the first to finish setting tobacco in this neighborhood.

Your correspondeut and Willie Worford spent last Wednesday in the city.

Miss Lulla Aylor, of Erlanger, has been visiting her mother a couple of weeks.

Harry Passous and Arthur Delph are the only up to date horse traders in this neighborhood.

John Jones and Miss May Evans, of Petersburg, came out for a drive as far as our town, one evening last week.

Chess Aylor is in the habit of going to Petersburg every Sunday evening. We don't know what the attraction is.

Miss Edna Sullivan and Miss Lou Nixon, two of Gasburg's handsome ladies, were visiting in our town, one day last week.

Constance.

The Indian show at this place draws large crowds.

James Riley shipped his wool to Louisville, via the Dick Brown.

The Louisville stopped at our wharf for passengers on her down trip, Sunday.

Miss Sallie Mable was the guest of W. B Reeves and wife, a few days since.

Rev. Wm. Penn preached at the Constance Christian church, Sunday night.

Misses Lizzie Wendell and Carrie Collins, of Petersburg, are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Loder.

Capt. Chas. Kottmeyer has received his barge of coal, and secured his lumber for a new boat.

Dr. E. B. Morse has left here for the city, where he has secured a position in a whole sale drug house.

John Ross, an employe at Jones' fertilizer factory, fell and ran one of his hands into a kettle of hot tar, burning it badly.

Misses Minnie and Mecca Masters left for Louisville, Monday morning, where they will engage in the millinery business.

The social given by the A. P. A. council of this place, last Thursday, was a success. Some were turned away as there was not standing room in the school house.

Miss Iva Winters left her home for Chicago, Sunday evening. A good crowd saw the popular young lady off. Success be with her is the wish of all the young folks.

The Constance base ball team played at Mullinsville, Sunday. At the end of the thirteenth inning, when the score stood 10 to 10 the game was called on account of darkness.

The Hessian fly is injuring wheat in Jackson's Bottom Gallatin county.

Jacob Piatt will offer for sale, Saturday, June 3d, 1899, at Mountain Home Stock Farm, (opposite Lawrenceburg, Ind.,) 15 head of Trotting Bred Stock. Nine months credit will be give on all purchases if secured by negotiable notes bearing 6 per cent. interest with approved security; 6 per cent. discount for cash. Sale opens at 1 o'clock p. m. All information concerning pedigrees, &c., will be furnished.

Mr. C. H. Yowell, of Hebron, this county, has the honor of having the first drove of hogs sold at the new Central Covington Stock Yards. They were sold by Rabenstein, Harris & Conner to Chas. Krouse & Son, a Covington butcher. This lot of hogs averaged 217 pounds and sold at $3,30 per 100 which is the top of the market and equal to Cincinnati prices, which the promoters of these yards say they expect to maintain all the time which will be of great benefit to the stock raisers and traders of our county.

To Shippers of Live Stock.

To the shippers of live stock of this and surrounding counties: We take pleasure in announcing to you that on and after Thursday, May 25th 1899 we will be ready to receive and handle all kinds of live stock at the Central Covington Stock Yards, located in Central Covington, Kentucky, on K. C. Railroad, near the old Covington Yards. These yards are built, to accommodate the shippers of live stock South of the Ohio river, whereby they will save freight, time and extra expense, and often loss of stock which is caused by delays and extra switching through Cincinnati. Our yards have been inspected by shippers and stock dealers from all parts of the country, and the universal decision is that they are well built and a compact set of yards, and well arranged to accomodate the trade. The yards and enterprise are meeting with public favor from all sides. In addition to the local buyers, we have the assurance from Eastern and foreign buyers that they will be ready buyers for all stock put on the market. Any stock that you should feel like shipping East, it would be to your advantage to bill care of our yards, and notify the Commission firm that you prefer to sell your stock and they will give it prompt, special, personal attention. One of the main objects of these yards is to retore to our market the standing it once had by inducing more buyers to come on the market, and encourage more slaughtering houses to be located here as cities are doing, whereby all live stock dealers may be benefitted. We have been informed that the Cincinnati Union Stock Yard Co., have threatened to take their advertisement out of the Live Stock Record if the paper accepts our advertisement which we will not ask them to do and lose a customer, but we are willing to rely upon the county papers and country people to help us advertise the yards.

THE CENTRAL COVINGTON STOCK YARD CO.

Buy a Buggy Where the Many Buy.

Our Goods are Reliable and of Good Standard Grades.

and will sell anything in our Store for the Cash as cheap

as you will buy elsewhere.

Our Motto: BUY for CASH sell for CASH,
GOOD GOODS AT LOWEST [illegible] PRICES.

Respectfully,

L. B. HUNTER, Rising Sun, Ind.

OUR MILLINERY DEPARTMENT

Is in full blast and is filled with Trimmed and Untrimmed Hats at LOWER PRICES than ever.

LADIES' SKIRTS, PETTICOATS and SHIRT WAISTS ranging in price from 25c up, and in fact the whole house is chucked full of BARGAINS.

W. H. CLARK,
Rising Sun, Indiana.

JOHN ALLISON,

UNDER- EMBALMER,

—Corner Pike & Russell Streets,—
COVINGTON, - - KENTUCKY.
INDEPENDENT OF UNDERTAKERS' UNION.

Order Spring Suits NOW

H. F. BLASE.

And we will make them up artistically and ready for you promptly on time. We have

Over Five Hundred Styles

Of Spring and Summer Woolens to Select from. They come direct from the looms of foreign and domestic manufacturers, and surpass in elegance and variety anything ever shown in Covington. In the assortment are many exclusive patterns—goods that cannot be duplicated by any other establishment in this city. Keep these facts in mind and place your order for a stylish suit with us. We promise you a faultless fit, the proper cut, and a price that will not be more than you can afford to pay.

H. F. BLASE,
535 Madison Avenue,
COVINGTON, - - KENTUCKY

A Word to the Public

MY STOCK OF

Dry Goods, Notions,

AND LADIES' AND GENTS'

TOILET ARTICLES

for the Spring Trade has been received, and to be appreciated must be seen. Fresh

DRUGS AND GROCERIES

received daily. A large stock of

PAINTS & OILS

on hand at all times. All Goods New and Clean, and are sold at the

LOWEST CASH PRICES.

—GIVE ME A CALL—

J. G. OELSNER, Florence, Ky.

Local News.

The RECORDER has repeatedly declined to publish obituary poetry.

Henry Quick and Kirb Tanner are repairing that part of the court house hall floor that broke down.

John Bentler moved his household goods to Erlanger yesterday. We are sorry to see John and his family move away.

The ladies of the Bellevue Baptist church will give a strawberry festival at that place next Saturday night. All are cordially invited.

The pastor will preach at East Bend Methodist church on the 4th Sunday in this month at 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m.
J. W. HARRIS

The Woman's Home and Foreign Mission Union of the Ebenezer Presbytery begins a session with the church at Richwood, to-day.

County Attorney Lassing has what he believes to be a solution for the road question in this county, and will give it to the public in a week or two.

C. L. Crisler has discovered the most industrious man in the county. He keeps both the saddle and harness on his horse all the time that it may be ready for service under either at any time.

The teacher who is a member of the "Teachers' Reading Circle" will have a considerable advantage in his or her examination this year, as the work they have taken will assist them in their grading.

Misses Sallie Vaughn, Lucy D. Claytou, Mary J. Gaines, Cordelia C. Craven Lizzie Klpp, Anna Schwartz and Mr. Omer Henry, were the applicants for teachers' certificate at the examination held last Friday and Saturday.

There was an ugly cutting scrape at Hughes' school house just across the line in Gallatin county, last Saturday night. Hamp Arrowsmith and Allen Stewart were the parties, Arrowsmith receiving three ugly wounds, one on the arm and three on the breast. Stewart's throat was badly cut.

Kite Story, who was committed at the last term of the circuit court and sentenced to two years in the penitentiary for killing Col Carrier, at Hamilton, was pardoned by acting Gov. Worthington, last Friday. It is said the petition was signed by Judge Green, Commonwealth Attorney Gray, nine of the jury and 250 citizens of the county.

This week we publish an article from Elder Watkins, his contribution to the religious discussion that has been carried on in these columns for several weeks. This closes the controversy so far as the RECORDER is concerned, and it reminds all that in his last article Rev. Uh published a challenge for a public discussion of the question luvolved. That is your opportunity now.

The entertainment given for benefit of the Presbyterian church last Saturday night, was a success in every particular. The music both vocal and instrumental, was excellent, the recitations, entertaining; the club swinging interesting; the tambourine drill, beautiful, and the ice cream and cake, abundant and delicious. Misses Wylie Chambers and Lulie May Culbertson, of Covington, added greatly to the entertainment by their recitations, while Misser Genevevo Lambert, of Walnut Hills, Ohio; Vassie Darnelle, of Newport, and Zayda and Beulah Gaines, of Bullittsville sang beautifully. Miss Fannie Rice's organ solo, and the piano solos by Mrs. Geo. Craven and Miss Jennie Blyth delighted the audience. The club swinging by Misses Culbertson and Tupman was an innovation in Burlington entertainments, and it was one the most interesting features of the evening. The tambourine drill in which twenty ladies participated, was executed with ease and grace and military precision. There was not a hitch in any of the several complicated maneuvers, and each of the ladies is entitled to credit for the patieuce and labor it requlred ou her part to reach such proficiency. The ice cream and cake were served in the grand jury room and hall on the first floor, immediately after the conclusion of the exercises up stairs. These constituted a very popular feature of the evening's pleasure and were an appropriate finale for such an occasion.

A CARD.

To the Democratic voters of Boone Co.

I am a candidate for the nomination for State Senator of this the 23rd Senatorial District. The couvention is so near at hand that I will have no time to see the voters, but, want the people of this county to know exactly what I stand for—therefore this card. I am no politician, and belong to no political ring or combination. I believe a public office a public trust and it should be the sacred duty of the holder to so regard it. I am not only opposed to trusts and all unjust combinations of every name, but I pledge myself to do all in my power to rid the fair name of Kentucky of their disgraceful existence. When the Tobacco trust can no longer control the price of tobacco in Kentucky, the debt burdened farmer will get what is so justly due him—a good price for his tobacco; when the Book trust is no more, we will not have to pay 5 times as much as school-books ought to cost. This will encourage education among the worthy poor more than any "force bill" ever could. Times are too hard to place any additional burden on the people. Taxes should be lower not higher. I also pledge myself to do all in my power to reduce State expenses. This is a reform much needed, but, always neglected heretofore (by our Representatives.) The useless and wasteful expenditure of the people's hard-earned money for County or State purposes, is a crime. I am an original free-silver Democrat, am for Bryan for President, Joe Blackburn for U. S. Senator. If the people endorse these long need reforms, I feel sure that the people among whom I was reared, in Gallatin and Owen counties, will give me a hearty ratification. Respectfully yours,

M. J. CROUCH.

The Burlington convention, May 27, will decide the matter, at 2 p. m.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Born, to Wm. Houston and wife on 20th inst., a daughter.

John Sandford, of Bellevue, was in Burlington, last Thursday.

Drs. Clore and Crisler, of Bullittsville, were in town Thursday.

Mrs. H. W. Ryle, of Erlanger, was visiting in Burlington, Sunday.

H. G. Buckner has returned from the South to spend the summer at Erlanger.

C. C. Hughes has been transferred from Carrollton to Lair's, Harrison county.

Mr. Deering, Presiding Elder, preached for the Methodist church here last Sunday morning and evening.

J. H. Ryle and wife and J. B. Berkshire and wife, of Florence, were guests of J. S. Clutterbuck's, Sunday.

Mrs. Sarah Carpeuter returned home last Thursday, after a visit of several weeks with relatives in Cincinnati.

Miss Gibson, of Covington, has been the guest of Mrs. Richard White and other relatives at this place for several days.

Willis Clore and Robert Bradford, of Hebron, were in this part of the county, last Friday, hunting those who want to purchase buggies.

Joe Williams, of Cincinnati, was in town Monday afternoon. Joe is holding his own well with time, which has only succeeded in graying his hair.

Messrs. Geo. Gaines, Harry Ackermyer and Temp Graves, of Bullittsville, and Chester Davis, of Hebron, were among the visitors to town, last Saturday.

Johnnie Hogan came over from Bullittsville, Saturday, riding the saddle horse for which he gave Add Riddell nearly all his live stock and a pretty good slice of his bank account.

Jailer Adams' great success as a gardener has arouused a jealousy on the part of several of the town truckers, who have long enjoyed an enviable reputation along that particular line.

Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Hoover and Miss Ella Duncan returned, last Friday, from Louisville, where they attended the Southern Baptist Convention. During their absence they visited Mammoth Cave. Miss Ella was delighted with her trip, and especially with the numerous very pleasaut acquaintances she formed.

The followiug is the school ceusus of the county, by districts, for this year:

Name of District.	Males	Female.	T
Burlington	47	54	111
Bellevue	25	32	57
Willoughby	33	22	55
Bullittsburg	30	28	58
Locust Grove	22	40	62
Beech Grove	26	22	48
Florence	55	62	117
Pleasant Ridge	27	33	60
Yancy Clore	16	18	34
Limaburg	23	24	47
Terrill	22	22	45
Petersburg	85	88	173
Woolper	33	46	79
Garrisou	18	18	36
Balsly	29	18	47
Francesville	25	27	52
Bullittsville	23	27	47
Rabbit Hash	27	27	54
East Bend	19	22	41
Grange Hall	27	21	48
Big Bone Church	32	29	61
Hathaway	8	9	17
Hamilton	47	33	80
Allphiu	27	24	51
West	13	15	28
Big Bone Lick	31	30	61
Coustance	66	51	117
Point Pleasant	40	36	76
Taylorsport	27	33	60
Hebrou	34	43	76
Union	45	42	87
Frogtown	18	20	38
Johnson	15	9	24
Beaver Lick	63	48	111
Verona	99	90	189
Ryle	20	21	41
Craven	25	21	46
Robinson	19	18	37
Walton	98	98	196
Mount Zion	17	10	27
White	25	23	48
Rucker	23	29	52
Bedinger	35	43	78
Berkshire	33	18	51
Mackville	23	34	57
Crisler	13	15	28

Colored District.—A, 23 males 17 females; B—17 males, 15 females; C—8 males, 9 females; D—42 males, 31 females; F—9 male, 9 females; G—21 male, 18 females; H—22 male, 13 females; I—8 male, 8 females; J—16 male, 18 females—Total, 304.

Reply to the Union Correspondent.

To the Editor of the Recorder:

I have been thinking of late about journeying to Kentucky, but I guess it would be policy for me, to steer clear of Union for a while, at least, until the Union correspondent cools off a little. I perhaps would recognize the brother if brought face to face with him, but I confess I have not the least idea uow who it is. Whether the present writer fell from grace when he wrote the offensive sentence does not matter now, but oue thing is certain, my good friend did not exhibit the spirit of an angel when he wrote his reply. Suffice it to say, that there are no people on earth that I have a higher regard for than the people of Union and vicinity, save my own blood relations. This incident teaches me two lessons. (1.) No mau (no matter how good and kind he may be) loves to have his corn trampled on. The only remedy for this evil is to remove the corns. (2.) A Baptist invariably gets luto trouble when he writes from a pedo-Baptist standpoiut. Dr. Whitsitt tried it, and he lost the presidency of the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary for his pains. Now, my good friend from Union has tried me before a jury not of "10"—verdict guilty—penalty, ostracized from vicinity of Union. Here is an illustration of that old scripture truth. "The way of the transgressor is hard." Let me inform you, that you have misunderstood me. If you will believe me I will say, that when I receive the RECORDER, I first read the Hathaway news, then the correspondence from Union. Now, to the offensive language. It is as follows: "I scan its columns with eager eye, and with the exception of some nouseuse written by the Union correspoudent, I look upon it as a newsy, clean paper fit to enter any home."

After reading my frieuds reply, I see no reason for changing that sentence one iota. If you will examine the sentence carefully, you will note the word "exception" which implies that you write some things which I regard as good news, while other things are sheer nonsense. For instance, here is an example of what I meant by nonsense. In the issue of the RECORDER of April 12, 1899, you write: "Friday night was favorable for making observations, being dark as a stack of black cats in a hollow, black oak log 2,000 feet under the Black sea, and Mr. Voshell loaned Mr. Berkshire one of the latest models, through which he made some very interesting discoveries. First—He discovered that the moon never shines on nights like Friday night; Secoud—that if it had the man in it could not play euchre any better than the partuer he had in a game not many moons past; Third—and most important discovery was that onions are raised on the valley lands of Jupiter, Mars and Saturn, but nothing to compare with the potato-onions raised by Mr. Voshell."

If the above quotation is not nouseuse, then I confess I am not a competent judge. So by nonsense, I had reference to the above and such things, and not to the whole correspoudence. Now, let me say with all candor, that I regard the Boone County RECORDER too excellent a paper for its columns to contain such nouseuse, and I naturally expect better things from my Union friend. Your neighborhood news is well written and appreciated, and your quotations from John Hickory Bradford does credit to you, but please omit such things as "black cats in a hollow black oak log 2,000 feet under the Black sea." I have already buried the hatchet and here is my hand in humble pardon.

J. L. PRESSER, Sistersville, W. Va.

Resolutions of Respect.

Whereas, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Conner, members of Golden Grange, No. 347, have been so suddenly and severely bereaved by the death of their son, Elmo Norman Couner, the Grange in session May 13th, 1899, desires to extend to them resolutions of fraternal sympathy, therefore be it resolved,

1st. That, while we kuow that nothing but the Divine Comforter can heal the wounded hearts, yet we believe human sympathy is sweet to them, and, following the example of the Master at Bethany, we mingle our tears with those of the stricken father and mother.

2d. That, while this seems the darkest shadow that could fall upon them, we must remember that as a father stoops to bestow a caress upon his child, his shadow falls upon it. So the dark sorrows of life are not caused by God's biding his face from us, but by his stooping to give us the kiss of his everlasting love.

3d. That, we teuder our heartfelt sympathy in their grief, and rejoice with them in their christian resignation.

4th. That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family, and to the American Grauge Bulletiu and BOONE COUNTY RECORDER for publication.

JOHN L. ROUSE,
NOAH C. TANNER,
NANNIE D. BRISTOW, } Com.
UNION, KY., May 13, 1899.

NOTICE—I will give $10 reward to ascertain the name of the party who mailed an anonymous letter to me in Covington, May 9, 1899. The reward money will be left at the RECORDER office and paid as soon as the writer of the letter is apprehended.

CHAS. GARNETT, Limaburg, Ky.

W. M. RACHAL & CO.

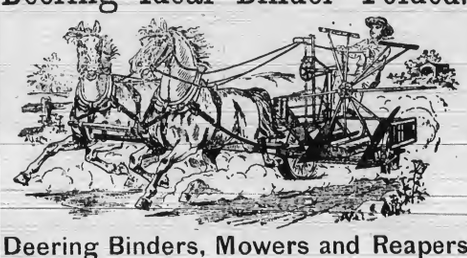
DOLLARS DO DOUBLE DUTY HERE.

Standard Granulated Sugar, 18 lbs. $1 00.
Arbuckle Coffee 10 cents per lb.
Daniel Boone Soap, 3 bars for 5 cents.
Pittsburg Wire less than city prices.
Lime, Cement, White Lead, Oils, Varnishes, etc., as cheap as in the city.

Baby Shoes for 10c per pair up.
Misses' Shoes for 50c per pair up.
A full line of Men's, Ladie's and Children's Tan Shoes—Latest Styles, Best Quality, Lowest Prices.
Men's Dress Pants, 75c per pair.
Wonder Overalls, Shirts and Pants, the best made.

COME at ONCE. THESE PRICES are ONLY While Present Stock Lasts.

UNION, KENTUCKY. UNION, KENTUCKY.



ADLER'S

THE PLACE TO BUY—
LADIES' • READY • MADE • GOODS.
A complete line of Silk Waists, Shirt Waists, Dress Skirts, Spring Capes in Silk or Cloth, Muslin Underwear, &c., also dealer in Dry Goods, Furnishing Goods and Shoes.

ADLER'S, Parry Building Corner High and Walnut Streets LAWRENCEBURG, INDIANA.

FOR good, new and up to date goods at the Lowest Prices, go to the New Store at the Old Stand, at 123 Second St., AURORA, IND.
Having bought the stock of
Dry Goods, Notions and Shoes
of R. Maybin, 123 Second St., Aurora, Ind.,
I have closed out the stock on hand at that time as nearly as possible, and have had the room remodled and have just received a
A New and Complete LINE OF Dry Goods, Notions and Shoes,
to which I invite your inspection, Boone Co., customers especially invited.
FRANK RIEMAN, - - AURORA, IND.

Deering Ideal Binder Folded.

Deering Binders, Mowers and Reapers
Posses the secret of LIGHT DRAFT, Deering Roller and Ball Bearings, Durability and convenience not excelled by any.
Be sure and examine these machines before purchasing.
Of those desiring anything in the Machinery line, Hay Rakes, Deering Repairs or Binder Twiner, we earnestly ask their patronage.
CROPPER & GAINES,
UTZINGER, KY.
mch29tf

McALPIN & THOMSON,
Successors to RIGGS BROS.
Undertakers
—AND—
Embalmers,

LIVERY, BOARDING & FEED STABLES.
Special Rates to Traveling Men. Pianos, Organs and Furniture Carefully Removed. First-class Carriages for hire with careful drivers for Families, Parties, Weddings, etc.
LEXINGTON PIKE, - - - ERLANGER, KY.
J. M. EDDINS, Agent, Burlington, Ky.

When in Burlington Call on
J. S. CLUTTERBUCK
DEALER IN
DRY GOODS
Notions, Boots and Shoes,
Who has just received his stock of
SPRING & SUMMER SHOES,
the nicest stock ever in town. Have old stock which I AM SELLING AT GENUINE BARGAINS.
NICE LINE WALL PAPER.
At Prices to Suit the times.

DEERING IDEALS

BINDERS, MOWERS, HAY-RAKES, TWINES.
Guaranteed LIGHTEST DRAFT and Perfect Working. The Rollers and Balls tell the tale.
Also don't forget we are still in the ring with
CHESTER WHITE HOGS,
Holland Turkeys, eggs $2 per 13. B. P. Rock and B. Minorca Chickens, eggs $1 per 16.
COME AND SEE.
T. J. HUGHES,
BEAVER LICK, KY.

GO TO
C. T. DAVIS & CO., HEBRON AND CONSTANCE, General Merchants,
A Good Supply of Feed always in Stock.
GARDEN AND FIELD SEEDS.
Undertaking Given Special Attention,
A good supply of Coal on hand at Constance at all times.
Hebron. C. T. DAVIS & CO. Constance

W. H. HOSHAL & COMPANY,
COMMISSION MERCHANTS,
Cattle, Hogs and Sheep,
—UNION STOCK YARDS,—
Cincinnati, - Ohio.
—TELEPHONE 7346.—
Information Regarding Live Stock Cheerfully Furnished.
Consign Your Stock Direct to Us.

LUMBER!
LATHS,
SHINGLES,
DOORS,
BLINDS,
SASH.
If you want any kind of Lumber it will be to your advantage to visit our yard at Lawrenceburg, Indiana, before buying. Prices to Suit the Times.
M. E. LEMING & CO.

GENTLE showers, and
sunshine fair,
Ask of Earth her blossoms rare.
Zephyrs, whisper in her ear
Words which she will wake to hear.

Sunbeams, warm her loving breast
Till she grant us our request:
Tell her 'tis the month of May—
Month of our Memorial day.

Flowers we ask—for soldiers brave,
Flowers to strew on every grave:
Now your choicest garlands lend,
Gifts to father, brother, friend—

Husband, son and lover—all
Who marched forth at Freedom's call.
Flag and blossom, prayer and tear,
Smiles and songs, from year to year,

In their memory will be brought,
Telling of their battles fought,
Till the last grand reveille
Wakes their shouts of victory!
—Pearl Marie Dunn, in Midland Monthly.

"GOOD morning, Capt. Baker; I thought I'd come over and see you," and Dorothy came dancing up the path to the narrow porch where the old soldier sat. "I've just moved into the big house across the street, and somebody told me you used to be a soldier, so I thought I'd come over and ask you how you enjoyed the war?"

The captain looked somewhat taken aback. "Well, I don't know as I can exactly say as I enjoyed it, Miss—Miss—"

"Dorothy—Dorothy Seaton," interposed his caller.

"Miss Dorothy; but I stood it as well as I could until I got a bullet in my leg," and the captain chuckled at his innocent joke.

"Oh, how dreadful!" Dorothy cried; "did the bullet hurt?"

"Well, bullets mostly do hurt," admitted the captain. Just then a figure appeared in the open doorway behind, and Dorothy looked up.

"How do you do, Mrs. Baker," she said, politely; "I thought I'd come over and call on the captain this morning."

Mrs. Baker laughed. "Why, he ain't a captain," she cried, in surprised amusement.

But Dorothy's equanimity was undisturbed. "I know he isn't," she answered, calmly; "but I was asking mamma what people were called that went to war, and she said generals and privates and colonels and captains. I thought captain was the prettiest name, and I didn't believe Mr. Baker would mind if I called him that."

"No, I guess he don't mind," his wife agreed, grimly.

"He was telling me some stories about the war and the bullet he got in his leg; it must have hurt him awfully."

"Now don't you go to tellin' that child any stories about all the dreadful things that ever happened to you," Mrs. Baker suddenly turned upon the lately titled captain, who murmured, hastily: "I wa'n't goin' to," for the captain's pride would have kept him silent about his cork leg, even had he not with his own sympathetic nature understood a child's sensitiveness.

"The captain's leg must have hurt him very much, but it's nice he didn't get killed in the war," Dorothy suggested, desiring to say something propitiatory to the formidable Mrs. Baker. But this was evidently not exactly the right thing.

"Well, if he'd died somebody might 'a got that pension money he didn't seem to know how to get," and Mrs. Baker sniffed over Dorothy's head at her husband.

"Now, Miranda, that wa'n't my fault," the captain protested; but this, instead of quieting Miranda, only started her, to Dorothy's great dismay, with new vehemence on this most distressing and confusing subject. It was not until the captain said, with gentle but impressive dignity: "There, there, Miranda, that'll do before our neighbors," that his wife subsided and went into the house.

Dorothy breathed a little more freely when she was gone, and tried to think of some fitting and comforting remark.

"It's too bad you haven't got a little girl, captain," she said, after a heaving silence since Mrs. Baker's retirement.

"I did have one once; I'll show you her picture," and the captain drew from his worn vest pocket a little black case and displayed to Dorothy a picture. The little girl represented was not exactly pretty in Dorothy's estimation, and her hair was done in a most wonderful manner.

"Is she grown up now?" Dorothy asked.

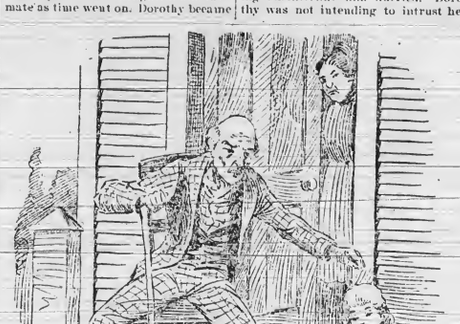
The captain sighed and slipped the case back into his pocket. "No," he said, "she died while I was off at the war."

"Mrs. Baker must have felt dreadfully bad, too," Dorothy ventured, rather doubtful as to the effect of grief on one of that lady's temperament.

"Oh, she wasn't Susie's mother." Then in response to Dorothy's surprised look he went quickly on: "Her mother died right after the war and I married again." Why did the captain sigh? "The present Mrs. Baker," he added, loyally, "is a very fine woman and a hard worker. She does a great deal for me, and I ought to be very thankful."

"Oh, yes, of course," Dorothy responded, in quick sympathy. "I think she seems very fond of"—she hesitated —"of talking."

A sudden twinkle came into the captain's gentle eyes, but he heard a step in the hallway and hastily changed the topic of conversation.



"I hope you'll come and see me real often; I git kinder lonesome sometimes," he said, and Dorothy, who had also heard the step, rose hastily to go.

"Yes, I'll come and see you," she said, nodding brightly at him. "Mamma said you couldn't walk very far, so I'll try and come most every day." A prompt acceptance of all invitations was one of Dorothy's marked characteristics.

Mrs. Baker stood in the doorway and Dorothy turned upon the lowest step to say in her sweet voice: "Good-by, Present Mrs. Baker," then lightly went down the walk, leaving to the captain the demanded explanation of his wife's new title.

"I've got a new friend," Dorothy announced at luncheon, for at luncheon Dorothy had conversational right of way; at dinner time it was different. "He's an old soldier and he's got rheumatism in one leg and a bullet in the other, but he's very pleasant and he wants me to come and see him every day. Once he had a little girl he loved very much, and he says she looked like me. Her picture isn't very pretty and her hair's done up in funny little braids, but he says she was a very nice little girl, so of course I'm glad I look like her. He's got a wife, too, the Present Mrs. Baker," with great empressement, "and she's rather—rather exhaustin' when she talks, and she doesn't like it 'cause the captain doesn't get any pen—pencil money. What is pencil money?" After receiving a simple explanation of the pension system Dorothy went on. "She says it was his fault he didn't get the pension money, and they need it dreadfully to make both sides meet, and she has to work her fingers to the bone—really she looks quite fat—'cause"—but here Dorothy was silenced and told that if she gossiped about her captain neighbor she could not go to see him any more.

The acquaintance that Dorothy had begun grew more delightful and intimate as time went on. Dorothy became very fond of her captain for a number of reasons; first, because he told such wonderful stories; then because his wife was not more polite; because he had a bullet in his leg and could not get a pension, and last, but not least, because he always called her Miss Dorothy, which seemed flattering from a man of his age and war experience.

THE CAPTAIN'S LEG SEEMED COMING TOWARD HER.

Mr. Baker's love for Dorothy was founded on quite as good reasons. In the first place, everybody loved Dorothy, and a tender-hearted old man could prove no exception to this rule; then she reminded him of his lost little girl, was a solace to him after the stormy ways of Present Mrs. Baker, and, finally, it was undeniably delightful to an humble private to be addressed as captain.

But there came a sudden interruption to this friendship one fair spring day. The captain had taken his usual constitutional within the limits of his small garden and was removing his rubbers on the front porch—for he was a careful man, and always wore both galoshes despite his cork foot, partly for appearance's sake, partly because he feared lest some dampness traveling up his cork leg might surreptitiously enter his rheumatic system. Now the captain being also a stout man was finding great difficulty in removing his foot-gear and was puffing and laboring when Dorothy appeared walking up the path.

"Oh, Capt. Baker," she cried, "how red your face is! Let me help you!" and before the breathless captain could remonstrate she was sitting on the step below tugging bravely at the obstinate rubber. But for some strange reason it was hard to remove and Dorothy exerted her strength, which was by no means small, for a final effort. She heard something snap, the captain called, "Take care!" and horror of horrors! Dorothy found herself pulling off not merely the rubber but the boot, and indeed the captain's very leg seemed coming toward her. With an awful shriek Dorothy sprang to her feet and fled down the garden path; she heard Present Mrs. Baker come to the door and what seemed like a malicious burst of laughter was borne after her as she sped up the drive to her own home.

She burst into the reception room and flung herself on her mother with wild sobs. "Oh, mamma," she cried, "send for the doctor, quick, quick! The captain's leg was cracked in the war and I've broken it right off! I believe his wife's glad, 'cause she'd get the pension money if he should die. Oh, my dear, dear captain, don't let me kill him! Oh, send for the doctor; do send for the doctor!" And Dorothy's words ended in a long crescendo wail.

It was some time before explanations could be given, and Dorothy ceased her cries and understood that the captain had lost his own leg in the war and now had a cork leg, which was strapped on every morning and taken off every night, and that perhaps the strap was old and broken and Dorothy's sudden tug had loosened or broken it.

It was supposed she would soon run smiling over to call on the captain, but for some time Dorothy neither visited nor spoke of him. When she went by his house and saw him in the garden or on the porch she would nod and smile gravely, but she no longer socially tripped up the path and seated herself familiarly on the steps.

But as the soldiers' day drew near, Dorothy felt as though there must be a reconciliation between herself and her captain friend. Decoration day, as a rule, was not made much of in this small town. But this year was to be more impressive. A dignitary from Washington, who chanced to be visiting near, was to make an open-air speech by the soldiers' monument, and since he was afterward to be entertained at Dorothy's home there was much said about the coming celebration.

Of late Dorothy had not had her usual conversational opportunity at luncheon, so that it was rather difficult for her to accomplish her desire to carry the flowers she had picked to the town hall, where they might be taken in charge by the committee. But on Decoration day, at the last moment before the procession started for the cemetery, her mother sent Dorothy with a message to her father at the hall, and Dorothy seized this opportunity to take her great bunch of apple blossoms and garden japonica in the carriage with her. There was much bustle when she reached the hall; boys were running hither and thither and men were looking businesslike and hurried. Dorothy was not intending to intrust her commission to any boy; she walked straight up to the most distinguished person to be seen, a great man in brass buttons, gilt cord and gold lace, and smiling in sweet consciousness offered him the flowers.

"If you please, I should like to have these flowers put on Capt. Baker's grave," she said.

The man smiled back into the wide, brown eyes below the flowered hat brim. "And who was Capt. Baker, my little lady?" he asked, graciously.

Dorothy did not notice the change of tense. "He's a great friend of mine," she said, in happy pride, "and he lives right near my house."

The gentleman stared at her in amazement. "Why, I thought you wanted to put these flowers on his grave?" he exclaimed.

"Oh, yes," Dorothy hastened to explain, "but not on the grave of the whole of him; he only lost part of him in the war. I thought if you remembered the people that were all killed you ought to remember the others that were some killed. I wanted you to put these flowers on his leg's grave."

The gentleman was smelling the flowers and did not answer at once.

"You see," Dorothy eagerly went on, "he's quite an old man, and he couldn't be a farmer after he had a cork"—a bitter memory returned—"a cork leg, and they didn't even give him a pension, and they ought to, for he's a very nice man, and needs it more than lots of folks that get it, papa says."

The gentleman lifted his face from the flowers now. "But where is his leg buried?" he asked.

Dorothy looked disappointed. "I don't know," she answered sadly. "I asked mamma once, and she said she didn't know, but I thought some of you would be able to find it."

"Why, Dorothy," said her father's voice behind, "where did you come from?" Then Dorothy gave him her mother's message, and when the gentleman said he was coming to her house after the celebration and would talk about the captain and his pension, Dorothy rode home in a very contented frame of mind.

She gathered another great hunch of white, wide apple blossoms and bright scarlet flowers, and started for a visit to the neglected captain. He sat by the window this Decoration day in a most despondent mood. It was quite true, as Mrs. Baker said, that if he had had more push and assurance he might long since have obtained his well-deserved pension, and now made much more impression on the army men of this town; but the captain was always a retiring man, and sickness and age had not made him more self-confident. What with his physical pain from his rheumatism and his heart's sorrow at his lack of ability, he was beginning to feel like a very old soldier now, and he answered with unusual impatience to Mrs. Baker's twentieth twitting remark: "I wish to gracious I was dead with the rest of the soldiers."

Then he went out on the porch, and there was Dorothy coming across the road with her beautiful bunch of flowers. She came straight for his gate and up his garden path, and the face of the old captain brightened like the face of one thankful for a long and happy life.

"How do you do, Capt. Baker," Dorothy's sweet voice said. "I thought I'd come over and joy ful you up, 'cause it's Decoration day," and the little lady held out her hand as a sign of forgetfulness and reconciliation.

The captain shook it warmly. "It's real good of you to remember an old soldier, Miss Dorothy," he said, heartily.

"That's more'n any body else does," Mrs. Baker murmured sourly from the door.

Dorothy turned toward her with a bright smile. She had learned to appreciate the present Mrs. Baker's excellent qualities despite her fondness for talking. "It's a very pleasant day, isn't it?" she questioned, cheerfully.

Mrs. Baker nodded and smiled faintly. "There's a man that lives in Washington coming to our house to-night, Present Mrs. Baker, and I'm going to talk to him about the captain's money pension."

"I think this gentleman will see about it, I really do," Dorothy added in eager interest, "and papa thinks you ought to have it, Capt. Baker."

Capt. Baker flushed. "Well, I don't know," he said.

"Wouldn't you really like to have it?" Dorothy questioned; "I think it would make Present Mrs. Baker feel real pleasant."

The captain nodded thoughtfully. "So it would Miss Dorothy," he admitted, "so it would."

"I was sorry you couldn't go to the cemetery and see them decorate the graves," Dorothy said, in abrupt change of subject. "Some folks think it's very interesting."

"Why didn't you go?" the captain asked, suddenly.

Dorothy flushed. "I—I thought p'r'aps you might be lonesome."

The captain coughed spasmodically. "Bless my soul!" he cried, huskily, "bless my soul!" and then he got up and limped to the end of the little porch.

"Oh, captain," cried Dorothy, "see the procession! They're marching right down this way. Oh, do come and see!"

The captain came to Dorothy's side to look at the advancing column. Dorothy dashed into the house to call Mrs. Baker, and together the three stood Dorothy waving her flowers, Mrs. Baker her apron and the captain his stick as the soldier boys came down the road. They marched on for a little distance, then suddenly lined up on either side of the street with a salute.

"Oh!" cried Dorothy, "they're stopping right in front of your house, Capt. Baker, isn't it lovely?"

Then down between the ranks of men came the carriage bearing Dorothy's father and the chief man of the day and stopped directly in front of the captain's little house. Mrs. Baker hic in the doorway, and the captain himself would have run away, but for his game leg and Dorothy holding him fast. Then the great man from Washington stood up in the carriage and spoke about Soldier Baker's bravery in the war, and how it would be more materially rewarded. ("That means the pension," Mrs. Baker whispered from the doorway), and how he had lost a leg in the service of his country—(Dorothy was afraid that might hurt the captain's feelings) and the speech ended with the words: "Though today be a memorial of the dead, let it also be a time of honor for the living." And then some boy in bright uniform came to take from the carriage a bouquet, and walking up the path, presented it to Capt. Baker with a military salute, which the captain returned in excellent fashion. "Oh," cried Dorothy, when she recognized the bouquet she had taken to the hall. "I'm afraid they didn't find the grave;" but nobody heard the remark, for a deafening shout arose as the troops gave three times three for brave Soldier Baker. Thereupon the great man rose again, and it was the captain's turn to prevent Dorothy from running away, for they cheered for little Miss Seaton with a hearty will. Then the carriage moved on and the soldiers formed into line and marched away, saluting as they passed, and leaving three flushed and smiling people on the captain's little porch.

The captain drew a great breath and sank down into his piazza chair. "They didn't forget an old soldier," he said, holding his bouquet tightly.

Dorothy laughed happily. "I must go home now, Capt. Baker," she said, "I haven't been to see you very much lately, but I'm coming oftener now. I brought you these other flowers because—because you lost your little girl when you were in the war, and they will remember you of her."

"Bless my soul!" ejaculated the captain, "bless my soul!" Then as Dorothy went down the path he muttered, nodding between his two great bouquets: "I declare if I ain't glad I'm a live soldier, after all."—Frances Dent Dillingham, in Springfield (Mass.) Republican.

A REPUBLICAN RUMPUS.

There Is Lots of Trouble in the Ranks of the Faithful in Ohio.

Hon. John Sherman has set at rest the rumor that he might be the republican "harmony" nominee for governor by saying over his own signature that he is not a candidate, does not wish his name mentioned in that connection and would not accept if nominated. That ought to settle it.

Mr. Sherman mentions his advanced age as sufficient reason why he cannot think of becoming a candidate for the position, but that was taken into account by those who set the report going, and it was pointed out that, as the governor of Ohio is not bothered with many things which the governors of other states have to consider, his age would be no serious objection. If his nomination would bring harmony into the now sadly divided and demoralized ranks of the republican party in Ohio, his 76 years would count for gain instead of being an objection. There would be assurance that he would not use his opportunities in the office to plan for a second term.

In the record of the republican party of Ohio from the beginning there has been nothing to equal the demoralization and disorder of the present time. The prospect is for a convention with contesting delegations from all the more important counties and with a probability of an organized bolt whichever faction gains control. Not even the evil influence of republican dissension and consequent disaster this year upon the fortunes of McKinley in the national convention of next year can bring the warring factions to an agreement. Each faction seems to regard the destruction of the others as of greater consequence than its own success.

The present situation in Cuyahoga county is typical. Here are three factions headed by Holcomb, Hanna and McKisson, each determined to send to the state convention a delegation of its own and each with machinery to carry out that purpose. Hamilton county is preparing to send a couple of warring delegations, and other counties are likely to follow the example of these two.

Senator Hanna insists on the necessity of the state being under his control as an assurance to the party in other states that Ohio is loyal to McKinley. The anti-Hanna elements, fighting among themselves for the possession of the state, make common cause against Hanna. Some of them want to show the president that Ohio is safer for him without the Hanna incubus, and others who believe McKinley and Hanna cannot be dissociated at present are against both.

The most demoralizing element in the situation is that nobody puts faith in anybody. Hanna supposed that in this county Holcomb was doing his work, but found to his chagrin that Holcomb has ambitions of his own and that he was "conniving" with the junior senator. McKisson has a lively recollection of the manner in which he was knifed by the Hanna faction and is determined to get even, but he is equally bitter against the Holcomb faction for the same reason. Kurtz is on the warpath against Hanna, but is distrustful of McKisson, and McKisson is uncertain how far to play the game of Kurtz. Cox, the old-time Hamilton county boss, is again taking an active part, but as he has played fast and loose with both sides lately there is distrust on each side as to his actions. Senator Foraker is noncommittal. He has of late professed loyalty to the president, but that deceives nobody, least of all Hanna. To his old allies, Kurtz, Cox and McKisson, he is seemingly cool, and is probably holding off until he can see better where his interests lie in the next senatorial contest.

Among the gubernatorial candidates Daugherty is sure of but one thing at present—the uncompromising hostility of the Hanna faction. Nash thinks he has the Hanna support, but is suspicious that he may be dumped at the last moment for some other more promising candidate among the number of "favorite sons" and "dark horses" that have come into view. Then there is Sam Jones, the "Golden Rule" mayor of Toledo, whose populistic doctrines may not be a serious obstacle if either of the factions should deem him the handiest instrument for its use.

As for the principles for which the fight is ostensibly to be made, nobody thinks or cares much. "Any old thing" will do for a platform for the whining candidate for the nomination to stand upon.

The demoralization of the republican party in Ohio can be traced directly to the introduction of bossism. It was the boast of both parties in this state that there was no state boss, either republican or democrat. In an evil hour the boss made his appearance. But the Ohio republican boss was deficient in tact, and instead of a union of the party under an all-powerful leader there was revolt against arrogant dictation. The result is the present division and demoralization.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

——There are apologists for the president who complain that he should not be held responsible for the inopportune secretary of war, having given him repeated hints that his resignation would be acceptable. Alger won't take hints, they say, and insists he won't get out till he is kicked out. Well, what then? Would they have us understand that Mr. McKinley is suffering from locomotor ataxia?—Kansas City Times.

——The destruction of the civil service law has left the federal patronage of the country a vast engine to be controlled at will by President McKinley, in addition to his standing army. In Indianapolis the law and the rules are flouted with contempt and in the most public manner. The federal offices here have become purely partisan spoils.—Indianapolis Sentinel.

BRYAN STILL HOPES.

His Eastern Trip Convinces Him That the Chicago Platform Remains in Favor.

The return of Col. Bryan to his home after his extended tour in the east has been the signal for much enthusiasm among his political friends.

To a group of them, in explanation of the political situation as he now finds it, Col. Bryan said he was the bearer of good news from the eastern country, where, he claimed, nothing stirred up so much enthusiasm as reference to the Chicago platform. He says that New York has four times as many Chicago platform democrats as has Nebraska, and so has Pennsylvania. There are men of great strength and wealth in the opposition, he says, but their influence is manifested through the papers rather than with the voters. There are democrats there quite as enthusiastic as those here, and they are entitled to more credit because they are fighting against greater odds. He says the democratic party is in better shape now than it was a year before the last national campaign, and the platform is stronger than it was in 1896.

"No one man can assume to speak for the party, but we can have our ideas of what will be done," said Col. Bryan. "It is my belief that none of us will live to see a plank taken out of that platform. New questions will come up and the platform will be added to, but nothing will be taken away.

"The year 1900 will see more men drop out of the republican party than ever before in any one year. Not only that, but we will bring back many who left us in 1896. Those who knew why they went out and left us when the battle line was drawn up against plutocracy will not and ought not to come back. We do not want them to come back, for they would be as leprosy in the side of the party. But I believe that the large majority of those who went away did not understand, while others were induced to go by those to whom they looked for leadership. They have since studied the matter for themselves, and have found that the leaders were wrong and the majority of the party was right."

"What has there been since the election of 1896 to make those who left us proud of their action in helping elect the present administration? It has been principally disappointment, and there are some who say they are still against us on the money question, but that other things have arisen that demand correction, and they are coming back for that reason. I have not insisted that they shall accept every part of the platform, but that they shall accept it as a whole. I do insist that if they want to come back into the democratic house it shall not be for the purpose of throwing out those who are in the house, and that they expect expect the killing of a fatted calf if that is their purpose."

ALGER'S VINDICATION.

The Roast Beef Secretary Is Satisfied with the Work of the Court of Inquiry.

Again there is talk of shipping Alger out of the cabinet as an "embarrassment" to the administration. But it is mere talk. The administration is not embarrassed by Alger or any body else. The president did not organize two successive vindications of Alger with any notion of shipping him out of the cabinet. He did this with intent to keep Alger.

As for Alger himself, he is more than satisfied with himself; he is happy. The court of inquiry has found in face of practically unanimous testimony to the contrary that Alger's beef was not only wholesome, but delicious, and it has found at the same time that Gen. Miles was very wrong in that he did not report that the beef was unfit to eat long before he did so report, and with this funnily cross-eyed vindication Alger is delighted.

The other day, according to a Washington correspondent, a letter was received at the war department from a military officer in Alaska saying that the command there had partaken of some canned roast beef and found it delicious. Therefore he—the commissary officer—sent his requisition for a vast quantity of the same sort. "Vindicated again!" cried Alger, and with a smile of triumph he approved the requisition. An irreverent newspaper writer has suggested that the climate of Alaska is different in some respects from that of Cuba, and that a pretty good refrigerator could be made any day in Alaska by a man with a pick and shovel by digging a hole in the frozen ground. But Alger rejoices in his fresh vindication.

By wireless telegraphy the Chronicle learns that Alger has received substantially the following from Florida: "While making an excursion last summer I sampled a lot of your canned roast beef which your soldiers had thrown away. They have no idea of what's good. Think I never tasted anything so delightfully piquant. As I am expecting to entertain a few hundred friends at dinner soon, I would thank you to send me a ship load of the goods—bulging cans preferred. Yours affectionately, Carrion Buzzard."

"Whoop! Vindicated some more! Who says I am going to get out of the cabinet? Not I. I'll stay as long as Mac does, as sure as my name is Alger."—Chicago Chronicle.

——The beef court of inquiry, by the thick-and-thin McKinley organs, hold it up against Gen. Miles that he did not raise a rumpus about the beef during the war. But, had he done so, they would have yelled traitor at him, complaining of anything during the progress of a war.—Albany Argus.

——Time flies, and William Caesar McKinley looks forward to Mark Antony Hanna's second superficial performance.—Chicago Democrat.

A TRIP TO THE PACIFIC.

With the eyes of the world turned to the new Eldorado away back in the middle of the present century, legions began the toilsome march across the plains and over the mighty mountain barriers to the land of promise and gold, a journey which meant months of toil and privation and the confronting of innumerable dangers. With in a period of time so brief that many now living made this journey in the early days to the wonderful West, what marvelous changes have been wrought in methods of transportation. To-day, surrounded by every luxury and comfort of modern existence, making it a veritable holiday of pleasure, the journey is a delight rather than a task, and as one is swiftly carried in palace sleeping cars through the country little thought is given to the labor, effort and privation attending such a journey in days gone by.

The Chicago, Union Pacific & North-Western Line comprises the Chicago & North Western, Union Pacific, and Southern Pacific railways—the direct through car route every day in the year between Chicago and the Pacific Coast.

The Chicago & North-Western Railway was the pioneer line west of Chicago, and the first engine that turned its wheels was named the "Pioneer." The Union Pacific Railroad from Council Bluffs to Ogden was the pioneer railway from the Missouri River across the plains and the Rocky Mountains, while the Central Pacific, from Ogden to San Francisco, was the pioneer line from he Pacific Coast across the fertile Sacramento Valley and Sierra Nevada Mountains. The route traversed by these transcontinental trains is virtually the same as that traveled by the thousands of pioneers, who rode or tramped over prairie and mountain.

That part of the country traversed by the trans-continental trains of the Chicago, Union Pacific & North-Western Line immediately after leaving Chicago, is the Mississippi Valley, an ideal agricultural region, with evidences of prosperity on every hand.

After leaving Illinois, the trains cross the Mississippi River to Clinton, Iowa, the gateway to the "Hawkeye" state. The entire distance across the boundless prairies lying between the Mississippi and Missouri Rivers is a succession of fertile fields, prosperous cities and thriving towns. Between Council Bluffs and Omaha the overland trains cross the Missouri River, which separates the states of Iowa and Nebraska.

It is 475 miles from Omaha to the state line of Wyoming, the route being through Nebraska all the way except for the diversion of a few miles into Colorado to reach Julesburg, and the direct gateway to Denver. All the way the traveler will see a country rich in its production of wheat, corn and cattle. North Platte, near where Colonel W. F. Cody, "Buffalo Bill," has his famous ranch, is the center of a district from which great quantities of live stock are shipped, and from North Platte westward cattle-raising predominates, crops gradually giving way to grass until when Cheyenne is reached, there is little seen in the way of diversified farming, while cattle, horses and sheep are everywhere.

Cheyenne, the capital of Wyoming, is a city worthy of more than a passing glance, and from here, as well as from Julesburg, one can make a detour to Denver, Colorado Springs, Pueblo, and other Colorado points. The first important town west of Cheyenne is Laramie, with 6,500 people, and the next is Rawlins, thirty miles west of which the train crosses the Continental Divide. The purity and rarity of the atmosphere is stimulating and refreshing, and mountain ranges, hundreds of miles away, deceive the vision by their nearness. The Seminoe, Sweetwater Mountains, Wind River Mountains and Rocky Mountains all being in sight. Evanston, Wyoming, is half-way between Omaha and San Francisco, and from here nearly all the way to Ogden the traveler may see a succession of scenery marking the grand as well as the curious and grotesque in nature. The train glides swiftly through Echo Canyon and past Castle Rock, Steamboat Rock, Great Eastern, Grant's Teapot and Pulpit Rock, into Weber Canon, where Witch Rocks, Devil's Slide, 1,000 Mile Tree and Devil's Gate are points of interest eagerly watched for by travelers then, almost before the transition can be realized, the mountains are left behind and the train speeds through a fertile valley with farms and orchards on every side, and shortly comes to a stop at the fine union station at Ogden, the second city in importance in Utah, and the junction point of the Union Pacific and the Southern Pacific lines. Salt Lake City, the Zion of the Mormons, is but thirty-six miles to the south, with frequent train service, and is the principal city of Utah.

From Ogden to San Francisco the journey is one of notable contrasts. Immediately after leaving Ogden the route lies through a valley made productive by irrigation. Next, the traveler obtains a splendid view of Great Salt Lake, and afterward crosses the Sierra Nevada Mountains with varied scenery unrivaled for picturesqueness.

West of Reno, Nevada, where the United States experiment station is located, the steady climb of the mountain continues, and a few miles west of Verdi the state line between Nevada and California is crossed. Truckee is the first important station in California and is a starting point for beautiful Lake Tahoe and Donner Lake, which lie hidden in the mountains a short distance away. Fourteen miles west of Truckee is Summit Station, the highest point reached by the train in the Sierra Nevada Mountains, and after a most picturesque run around "Cape Horn," where the train is a thousand feet above the smiling valley beneath, the descent is rapidly made to Colfax. Leaving Colfax the route lies through the fertile Sacramento Valley, and no region can surpass the wheat fields and fruit orchards to be seen. Sacramento, the capital of the state, is in the midst of this rich region, and it is a journey of but ninety miles to San Francisco. From Sacramento, Los Angeles and all of delightful Southern California are reached by the Southern Pacific Railway.

Excursionists desiring to return via Portland and the northern routes, can have choice of the Shasta route of the Southern Pacific, which is renowned for its marvelous scenery through the Shasta Mountains, or an ocean voyage between San Francisco and Portland, on the magnificent steamships of the Oregon Railway & Navigation Company. Portland is delightfully situated, and is the chief city of the North Pacific coast. From Portland are points of local interest, which are many, as well as those of the Puget Sound country can be easily reached.

From Portland, to Chicago, the Chicago, Union Pacific & North-Western Line, which includes the Oregon Railroad & Navigation Co. and the Oregon Short Line, is the only line running solid trains of chair cars, coaches and standard and tourist sleeping cars every day in the year.

Tickets via this route are optional between Portland and the Dalles by rail or boat, thus giving tourists the opportunity of viewing the magnificent scenery for which the Columbia River is noted. Stop-overs will be allowed at and west of Shoshone, Idaho, affording opportunity to visit Shoshone Falls and other places of interest.

The Englishman carries his change loose in his right-hand trousers pocket—gold, silver and copper all mixed up together. He pulls a handful of the mixture out of his pocket in a large, opulent way and selects the coins he has need of.

The subscriptions from various sources for the St. Louis fair have now amounted to $2,673,000, in addition to the $2,100,000 pledged by collecting committees. The amount so far actually raised is now close to the $5,000,000 originally promised.

CRIMINAL ANIMALS.

Facts from a Naturalist's Story of Thoroughly Wicked Wild Beasts.

E. Seton Thompson, naturalist to the government of Manitoba, gives in his book, "Wild Animals I Have Known," some curious examples of depravity among wild beasts.

The best story is that of the New Mexican wolf who led a band that killed a cow a day for five years. Finally the ranchers offered $1,000 for this wolf's pelt. He was easily distinguished. His track was an inch wider than that of other wolves.

A professional wolf hunter tried to earn the bounty, but the wolves killed his dogs and he gave it up. Then Mr. Thompson took the case. He melted cheese in the fat of a heifer, in a china dish, cut it into lumps with a bone knife to avoid the taint of metal, and put in strychnine and cyanide in odor-proof capsules. He wore gloves steeped in cow's blood, and avoided breathing on the baits.

The baits were picked up. He followed the track and found that the wolf had laid all four together and scattered dirt over them.

The wolves then took to killing sheep. Traps were set to the number of 130 in different parts of the ranch. The trails of the big wolf and of the pack were traced up to one set of traps and the doings of the leader were marked in the dust.

He had stopped the rest, warned by scent, and scratched around the trap till he found the buried chain and picket. On another part of the ranch he entered an ill-shaped series of traps and detected the danger. The trail showed that he had slowly backed out on his own track, putting each paw down backward until out of the dangerous ground. He had then sprung some of the traps by scratching clods and stones backward at them with his hind feet.

He was at last caught by dragging over the traps the body of a female wolf, the scent of which he followed.

The most faithful friend to man this wolf was ever known. Old Eph," a lame grizzly, which in two years ruined half the hog-raisers in the Sacramento valley by his wasteful love of pork, was a close second.

A bob-tailed wolf kept the whole city of Paris in terror for ten years at the beginning of the fourteenth century, and the Lochnee gaather, in India, killed 300 human beings in less than two years.

A famous rogue dog of Derbyshire was conspicuous by his faithful care of sheep in the daytime, but was savage and ugly toward men strangers. It slept in the house, and was never suspected, though sheep-worrying took place on the farms near.

At last it was tracked in the snow from the fold where 20 sheep had been killed to the farm where it lived, the dog having forgotten that the track would show, though it took partial means to conceal it by running along the top of a stone wall.—N. Y. Journal.

THE DRILLERS AT WORK.

A Hammering Chorus That Was Started at the Sound of a Neighboring Whistle.

The power drill is the thing nowadays wherever rock in any considerable quantity is to be removed, but the hand drill is still used where the rock is scattered and there's not so very much of it. In drilling rock found in opening trenches in the street, there might be seen even now, in the day of the power drill, 40 or 50 men, hand drillers, scattered along in a block; a dozen or 15 men holding as many drills, and twice that number striking, two men on a drill.

The quick, sharp, vigorous pounding of the steam drill, standing up firmly on its shoulder steel legs, with every evidence of power about it, and working away faster than one can count, is always stirring. One likes to stand and watch a steam drill, but the musical note of steel on steel, when the hammer strikes the drill, still remains as musical as ever, and one likes to see the hand drillers work, too; the man holding the drill sitting on a box, perhaps, in the trench and lifting the drill, slightly, and turning it a little after every stroke, to give the point new rock to cut, while the men strike on and on alternately with unfailing regularity. There's little variation in the notes they sound on the drills scattered along the trench, but there's music in them all; it's a chorus that one likes to hear; it was heard the other morning from its very opening note.

It was seven o'clock, but the men were all in the trench and one or two drill holders had already set the point of their drills upon the rock and were holding them ready. Here and there along the line was a man who had already grasped his hammer, holding it by the handle with the head resting upon the ground. The foreman of the work was walking slowly along the side of the trench.

The hour drew near. Down one end of the line, in the trench, stood a sturdy man of cheerful mien with his hammer raised, and at the first sound of the whistle of a neighboring factory blowing for seven, down it came upon the drill head with a ringing blow, and as his hammer sprung upward in rebound down came his partner's hammer on the drill, and then they were at it, swing-swing, swing-swing, swing-swing; but there had not come one double stroke from them before a striker up the line struck his drill, his partner following true; and then they came in all along here and there and everywhere, swing-swing, swing-swing, swing-swing, swing-swing, pair after pair of hammers, in single pairs and bunched together; and in half a minute they were at it, ringing in full chorus, all along the line.—N. Y. Sun.

SAIL RIGGED FOR BICYCLE.

Invention of an Evanston Editor Said to Be of Value to Knights of the Wheel.

R. O. Vandercook, editor of the Evanston (Ill.) Press, has perfected a bicycle sail rigging which was tested recently with satisfactory results. He will probably patent the invention and put it upon the market. It consists of a rigging similar to an iceboat, having a single upright mast and an arm similar to a bowsprit. These are stationary and the sail is controlled by sheets held in the hand of the rider.

The mast is fastened just above the front fork and extends forward and downward about seven feet in length and within seven inches of the ground. The mast is six feet high. This gives a spread of canvas of something over 15 feet square. This device overcomes the former trouble that was met with in bicycle sails, as it prevents lateral pressure, the weight of the rigging and the pressure of the wind being as low as the weight of the rider.

Mr. Vandercook claims he can use this sail to an advantage in traveling almost any road, with the wind anywhere but dead ahead. Even then he can tack the same as an iceboat if he has a wide thoroughfare. It can be used, however, only when the wind is blowing at a faster rate than the speed of a cyclist. A man traveling ten miles an hour without the sail when the wind is blowing 20 miles can make the 20 miles an hour without any more effort.

PRAISES AMERICAN BENCH.

Lord Russell, Chief Justice of England, Gives Much Credit to Bar of the United States.

Joseph H. Choate, the United States ambassador, and Baron Russell, of Killowen, lord chief justice of England, were the principal guests of the afternoon at the banquet of the Hardwicke society in London.

Lord Russell, toasting "The American Bench and Bar," devoted his speech to the merits and demerits of the American judicial system, remarking that he had always wondered "how the bad system of choosing judges could have produced such a long line of distinguished men." He paid a high tribute to the United States supreme court, and coupled the toast with the name of Mr. Choate, whom he characterized as "the latest of the notable men, mostly lawyers, the United States has sent us, who have striven worthily and successfully to maintain the high traditions of their profession."

Mr. Choate said that justice was administered in the United States to the satisfaction of the people, while litigation was much cheaper there than in England and people who had grievances were, therefore, encouraged to seek their remedies in the courts. On both sides of the Atlantic, he remarked, lawyers seemed to be inspired with the same sentiments.

ADOPTS HIS OWN CHILD.

Process Which Had to Be Resorted to by a Father to Obtain Legal Custody of His Daughter.

A father adopted his own child in Judge Steele's court in Denver when Jacobena Alice Mary Reich was made the legally adopted child of Louis Lars Pardig and his wife, Mary. The petition says that Pardig's first wife deserted him shortly after the child was born and departed for parts unknown. He then permitted his sister by adoption, Maggie Reich, and her husband, Frank, to adopt the child and give her their name. Pardig secured a divorce in 1895. In 1897 his adopted sister died. Pardig married again last August, and since then the child has been with them. Reich also remarried, and his wife and he are about to move to Oregon. The legal custody of Jacobena belongs to Reich. Pardig found it necessary to take legal steps to obtain the right to call his own child daughter. The proceedings were entirely amicable. The decree was granted and the child, who is about ten years old, will hereafter be known as Jacobena Ella Pardig.

THE MARKETS.

	CINCINNATI, May 22.
LIVE STOCK—Cattle common	$2 50	@ 4 00
Select shippers	4 00	@ 4 75
CALVES—Fair to good light	6 50	@ 7 25
HOGS—Coarse and heavy	3 25	@ 3 40
Mixed packers	3 35	@ 3 85
Light shippers	3 75	@ 3 95
SHEEP—Choice	4 25	@ 4 65
LAMBS—Spring	6 00	@ 7 50
FLOUR—Winter patent	3 35	@ 3 60
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 red		@ 77
No. 3 red		@ 71
Corn—No. 2 mixed		@ 34½
Oats—No. 2 mixed		@ 29¼
Rye—No. 2		@ 65
HAY—Prime to choice	11 00	@ 11 50
PROVISIONS—Mess pork		@ 8 50
Lard		@ 4 90
BUTTER—Choice dairy	10½	@ 11
Prime to choice creamery		@ 20
APPLES—Choice to fancy	4 00	@ 4 50
POTATOES—Per bu	40	@ 45
CHICAGO.
FLOUR—Winter patent	3 60	@ 3 70
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 red	75	@ 76½
No. 3 Chicago spring	67	@ 73
CORN—No. 2		@ 32½
OATS—No. 2	27½	@ 27¾
PORK—Mess	8 15	@ 8 20
LARD—Steam	5 05	@ 5 07½
NEW YORK.
FLOUR—Winter patent	3 75	@ 3 90
WHEAT—No. 2 red		@ 74½
CORN—No. 2 mixed	41½	@ 41¾
RYE		@ 56
OATS—Mixed		@ 31½
PORK—New Mess	8 25	@ 9 00
LARD—Western		@ 5 35
BALTIMORE.
FLOUR—Family	3 35	@ 3 50
GRAIN—Wheat, No. 2 red	75	@ 75½
Southern	70	@ 75
Corn—Mixed	37½	@ 37½
Oats—No. 2 white	30½	@ 31
Rye—No. 2 western		@ 56
CATTLE—First quality	4 50	@ 4 80
HOGS—Western	4 10	@ 4 20
INDIANAPOLIS.
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 red		@ 71½
Corn—No. 2 mixed		@ 33½
OATS—No. 2 mixed		@ 28
LOUISVILLE.
FLOUR—Winter patent	3 75	@ 4 00
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 red		@ 73
Corn—Mixed		@ 38
Oats—Mixed		@ 31
PORK—Mess	9 00	@ 9 00
LARD—Steam	5 00	@ 5 00

The Power of Storm.

The Cayman Islands in the West Indies were nearly overwhelmed by the recent storm. Even apparently secure things are not safe. Even if you have health be on your guard. Disease works stealthily—it undermines and trouble occurs where it is least expected. An occasional dose of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters will keep the bowels regular, the stomach sweet and disease at bay. If you have indigestion and constipation try it. It cures.

Expedited.

Lady—I wish to get a birthday present for my husband.

Shopkeeper—How long have you been married, madam?

"Ten years."

"Bargain counter to the right, madam."—Rival.

The Blind Goddess.

Interesting modern is the new murder story by Randall Irving Tyler, entitled "The Blind Goddess." There is, it seems, evolution in murder stories as well as in everything else.

Those who read Tyler's "Four Months After Date," and said the book was clever enough perhaps weighed down with business transactions, will find in "The Blind Goddess," just issued, a novel drawn in a new vein, but full of dramatic climaxes. To bring home the thoughts it contains to many who never read murder stories, incidents are used familiar to all who have followed the recent poison cases.

The prosecuting officer's theory of the crime, the appalling accusation of the innocent daughter of one of the murdered men, the web of circumstantial evidence around and against a man of unblemished character, who is also accused, the defenseless position both of these people occupy before the coroner, the subsequent indictment without a hearing before a magistrate—all these things make the reader think.

The underlying motive for the crime introduces a divorce on the person of an adventuress, for whose presence no apology is offered, as it turns out that she is the real culprit.

The occasional glimpses of an exclusive social circle, the charming heroine Helen Brownell, the strong willed but intensely human Sanford Crane, offer opportunities for Mr. Tyler's ability in character sketching which he has exercised over the adventuress challenges admiration at times by the boldness and coldness of her method.

The title, as will be readily understood, applies to the more serious side of the novel, which has to do with prosecution for capital crime; but the well-handled romance running through it all and the satisfactory denouement make "The Blind Goddess" marvelously entertaining book, running over with surprises in its movement and its literary style. It is more than absorbing; it is compelling. Stuyvesant Publishing Company, New York; cloth, $1.00; paper, 50 cents.

His Snap.

Mrs. Finnigan — Bedad, yer hoodsind dresses as iv he wor a flure-walker er a burlisk. Phwere-in-the-wurruld?

Mrs. Flannigan—Shure, he's got an elegant job in a horseless livery stable, fadin sir t' thim hole-nobo trookes!—Puck.

Fraud:—An envious manufacturer of old fashioned dye will soon place in your papers a flaring advertisement in which they say it's impossible for one dye stuff to color silk, wool and cotton. They do this to keep you from trying Putnam Fadeless Dyes (which will color either silk, wool or cotton), for they know if you ever use Putnam Fadeless Dyes once you will never use their goods again.

Intended for an Epigram.

A cynic is a man who is worse than he feels, but tries to feel worse than he is.—N. Y. Commercial Advertiser.

Do Your Feet Ache and Burn?

Shake into your shoes, Allen's Foot-Ease, a powder for the feet. It makes tight or New Shoes feel Easy. Cures Corns, Bunions, Swollen, Hot, Callous, Sore, and Sweating Feet. All Druggists and Shoe Stores sell it, 25c. Sample sent FREE. Address, Allen S. Olmsted, Le Roy, N. Y.

Pride and fashion are the taskmasters who make bread-winning slavery.—Ram's Horn.

HOME duties to many women seem more important than health.

No matter how ill they feel, they drag themselves through the daily tasks and pile up trouble.

This is heroic but a penalty has to be paid.

A woman in New Matamoras, Ohio, MRS. ISABELL BRADFIELD, tells in the following letter how she fought with disease of the feminine organs until finally forced to take to her bed. She says:

WOMAN'S DEVOTION TO HOME

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM—I feel it my duty to write to you to tell you that I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and think there is no medicine in the world like it. I suffered for nine years, and sometimes for twelve weeks at a time I could not stand on my feet. I had female troubles of all kinds; backache, and headache all the time. Seven different doctors treated me. Some said I would have to go to the hospital and have an operation performed. But oh! how thankful I am that I did not, that I tried your Vegetable Compound instead. I cannot say too much in its praise, nor thank you enough for what it has done for me. I want you to publish this in all the papers for the good of other sufferers."

The wives and mothers of America are given to overwork. Let them be wise in time and at the first indication of female trouble write to Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass., for her advice. This advice is promptly given without charge.

The present Mrs. Pinkham's experience in treating female ills is unparalleled; for years she worked side by side with Mrs. Lydia E. Pinkham, and for sometime past has had sole charge of the correspondence department of her great business, advising and helping by letter as many as a hundred thousand ailing women during a single year.

Each Thought the Other Had Them.

Two farmers had been enjoying a festive evening with another farmer, and both of them "had done themselves remarkably well," to use an expressive phrase. They had a drive of five miles before them, and it was a very dark night, but the horses knew the way. Side by side they sat in the cart, and went along at a spanking pace. At length they swung round the sharp turn which led to the house in a most alarming manner, only just missing the gate-post by an inch or two. "Gently, George, gently round the corner, old man," murmured Bill, George grinned. "What! haven't you got the reins either?" he said.—Answers.

The Best Prescription for Chills, and Fever is a bottle of Grove's Tasteless Chill Tonic. It is simply iron and quinine in a tasteless form. No cure—no pay. Price, 50c.

The Coldest.

Yabsley—What was the coldest weather you ever saw?

Mudge—I don't know. You don't expect a man to carry a thermometer in his pocket when he is proposing to a heiress, do you?—Indianapolis Journal.

To Cure a Cold in One Day

Take Laxative Bromo Quinine Tablets. All druggists refund money if it fails to cure. 25c.

His Usual Place.

"Witness, did you ever see the prisoner at the bar?"

"O, yes, that's where I got acquainted with him."—Stray Stories.

Love of money is the root of all evil—and of much good.—Chicago Daily News.

INSOMNIA

"I have been using CASCARETS for insomnia, with which I have been afflicted for over twenty years, and I can say that Cascarets have given me more relief than any other remedy I have ever tried. I shall certainly recommend them to my friends as being all they are represented." THOS. GILLARD, Elgin, Ill.

CANDY CATHARTIC Cascarets TRADE MARK REGISTERED REGULATE THE LIVER

Pleasant. Palatable. Potent. Taste Good. Do Good. Never Sicken, Weaken, or Gripe. 10c. 25c. 50c.

... CURE CONSTIPATION. ...

Sterling Remedy Company, Chicago, Montreal, New York. 316

NO-TO-BAC Sold and guaranteed by all druggists to CURE Tobacco Habit.

Epworth League

NATIONAL CONVENTION,

Indianapolis, Ind.,

JULY 20-23, 1899.

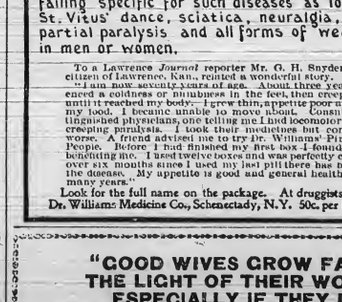
ONLY

One Fare Round Trip

Except that from points within 38 miles the excursion fare will be One and One-third Fare for Round Trip not to exceed one dollar.

VIA

'BIG FOUR'



Tickets will be on sale from all points July 19, 20, 21. From points within 75 miles of Indianapolis on July 19, 20, 21, 22 and 23d, 1899.

Returning tickets will be good to leave Indianapolis to July 24th, with a proviso that if tickets are deposited with Joint Agent at Indianapolis not later than JULY 24th, and payment of fee of 50 cents at the time of deposit, tickets may be extended to leave Indianapolis to and including August 20, 1899.

For full information regarding tickets, rates, routes and time of trains, call on agents "Big Four Route," or address the undersigned,

WARREN J. LYNCH,
Gen. Pass. & Ticket Agent.
CINCINNATI, O.

Absolute Proof

Your name and address on a postal card will bring you absolute proof that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People will cure you if you are afflicted with any disease of the blood or nerves. Mention the disorder with which you are suffering and we will send evidence that will convince and satisfy you that Dr Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People will cure you

These pills contain, in a condensed form, all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore shattered nerves. They are an unfailing specific for such diseases as locomotor ataxia, St. Vitus' dance, sciatica, neuralgia, rheumatism, partial paralysis and all forms of weakness either in men or women.

To a Lawrence Journal reporter Mr. G. H. Snyder, a well known citizen of Lawrence, Kan., rented a wonderful story. He said:

"I am now seventy years of age. About three years ago I experienced a coldness or numbness in the feet, then creeping up my legs, until I reached my body. I grew thin, appetite poor and did not relish my food. I became unable to move about. Consulted several distinguished physicians, one telling me I had locomotor ataxia, another, creeping paralysis. I took their medicines but continued to grow worse. A friend advised me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. Before I had finished my first box I found that they were benefiting me. I used twelve boxes and was perfectly cured. Although over six months since I used my last pill there has been no return of the disease. My appetite is good and general health better than for many years."

Look for the full name on the package. At druggists or direct from Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N.Y. 50c. per box. 6 boxes $2.50.

"GOOD WIVES GROW FAIR IN THE LIGHT OF THEIR WORKS," ESPECIALLY IF THEY USE

SAPOLIO

DR. MOFFETT'S TEETHINA TEETHING POWDERS

Aids Digestion, Regulates the Bowels, Makes Teething Easy. TEETHINA Relieves the Bowel Troubles of Children of Any Age. Costs Only 25 Cents. Ask Your Druggist for It.

Oklahoma Offers Opulent Opportunities

To those who desire new lands and homes; also unsurpassed chances for industrial investments by capitalists and manufacturers.

Its Farm Products in 1898 include 25,000,000 bushels of wheat, 140,000 bales of cotton, and millions of dollars' worth of other grains, fruits, etc.

Send for free copy of pamphlet entitled "The Truth About Oklahoma." As stated times low rate

Homeseekers' Excursion tickets are sold via Santa Fe Route to Oklahoma.

Address General Passenger Office,
The Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Railway,
CHICAGO.

READERS OF THIS PAPER DESIRING TO BUY ANYTHING ADVERTISED IN ITS COLUMNS SHOULD INSIST UPON HAVING WHAT THEY ASK FOR, REFUSING ALL SUBSTITUTES OR IMITATIONS.

"THE DEWEY" LIFE OF DEWEY the world's greatest hero, by Murat Halstead AGENTS WANTED, Only $1.50. OUTFIT FREE. S. C. MILLER, Lakeside Bldg., CHICAGO.

PISO'S CURE FOR CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS. Best Cough Syrup. Tastes Good. Use in time. Sold by druggists. CONSUMPTION

A. N. K.—S 1768

WHEN WRITING TO ADVERTISERS please state that you saw the Advertisement in this paper.

TRUSTEE'S SALE.

In the District Court of the United States for the District of Ky.

In the matter of Hiram Long, Bankrupt.

By virtue of a Judgment and order of sale, rendered by G. B. Winslow, Referee in Bankruptcy, at Burlington, Boone county, Ky., on the 12th day of May, 1897, in the above cause, I shall proceed to offer for sale at the Courthouse door in Burlington, Boone county Ky., to the highest and best bidder, at public sale on Monday, the 5th day of June, 1899, at 1 o'clock p. m., or thereabouts, being county court day, upon a credit of 6 and 12 months, the following described property to-wit:

Tract 1.—Bounded as follows: Beginning at an Elm tree on the southwest side of the Burlington & Florence turnpike road a corner of Aylett Snyder and John M. Marquess; thence with their lines n 41 w 168 feet to a stone; thence with the south line of the Hopeful road s 37 w 204½ feet to a stone a corner of Noah Clore; thence with his line s 42½ e 131½ feet to a stone; thence n 47½ e 196 feet to the place of beginning, containing 2 roods and 20 poles. Also the following tract: Beginning at an Elm tree on the southwest side of the Burlington & Floreuce turnpike road a corner of Aylett Snyder and John M. Marquis; thence with their lines n 41 w 168 feet to a stone; thence w 37 e 18 feet to a point in said road; thence with it s 55 e 176½ feet; thence s 47½ w 62 feet to the beginning containing 25 poles of land, these two tracts of land join.

Tract 2.—Being lot No. 3 in the division of the lands of Gabriel Crisler, deceased, and bounded thus. Beginning at a stone a corner of lot No. 2; thence with a line of said lot n 88¼ w 68 poles to a stone in a line of lot No. 1; thence s ½ w 31 4 5 poles to a stone in a line of lot No. 4; thence s 88¼ e 68 poles to a stone in a road; thence n ½ e 31 4 5 poles to the beginning coutaining 13½ acres of land Tract 3—Beginning at a stone a corner with Edward Beemon; thence with his line n 13¼ e 14.07 chains to a stone in a line of Ida Smith; thence with her line s 85¾ e 10.73 chains to a coruer with said Ida Smith in a line of Benj. Crisler; thence with Crisler's line s 4 w 11.42 chains; thence s 37 w 3.70 chains to a stone on Long Branch a corner with Thornton Blankenbecker; thence with his line n 86 w 10.78 chains to the beginning containing 16 acres, 3 roods and 8 poles of land.

Tract 4.—Being the undivided thirteen-sixteenths (13-16) of the following described tract of land. Beginning at a stone on the west side of the Burlington and Big Bone road in J. C. Mitchell's line a corner with Abel Beemon; thence with said line — 77 e 179½ poles to a stone near a branch; thence down it n 17½ e 22 poles, n 12½ w 14 poles to a stake on Gunpowder creek near the mouth of said branch; thence with the meanders of said creek n 78 w 22 5 n 38 w 44 poles, n ½ w 13.4 poles, n 66 w 38 poles, n 55 w 36 poles, n 21 w 36 poles to Yancy Clore's corner on said creek, witnessed by a black Locust tree, on the south side of the creek; thence s 33¼ w 92 poles to a stoue a corner with Yancy Clore and James Crisler; thence s 3 w 115 poles to the beginning containing 122½ acres of land.

Tract 5—Being lot number 2 in the division of the lands of Gabriel Crister, deceased, and bounded thus: Beginning at a stone, Yancy Clore's corner; thence with said Clore's line n 88¼ w 68 poles to a corner of lot No. 1; thence with a line of said lot No. 1, s 172 w 21.2 poles to a corner of lot No. 3; thence with a line of said lot No. 3 s 88¼ e 68 poles to a stone; thence n 72 e 21.2 poles to the beginning containing 9 acres of land.

All of the above described tracts of land are situated in Boone county, Ky. I will first offer tract one including the tobacco screw, scales and steamer, which are in the barn on said tract. I will then offer said tract and the said tobacco screw, scales and steamer separately, and will accept the bid or bids bringing the most money. I will sell said land free from the claims of all the parties to this action. All of said land will be sold subject to the teuancies of Glen Crisler, Benj. Crisler and Charles and B. E. Long. Said tracts of land will be sold separately.

For the purchase price the purchaser or purchasers, with approved security or securities must execute bonds, bearing 6 per cent. interest from day of sale until paid. The bonds will be made payable to the undersigned as Trustee. A lien will be retained upon the said land until all the purchase money is paid. Bidders will be prepared to comply promptly with these terms.

J. M. LASSING, Trustee.

AUCTION SALE!

SATURDAY, MAY 27, 1899,

at 10 o'clock a. m. at

CONSTANCE, BOONE CO, KY.

—Articles to be sold.—

1 Big Farm Horse, 1 Milch Cow and Calf, good butter and milk, 1 2-horse Spring Wagon, 1 horse Spring Wagon, 1 Buggy, 1 set Double Spring Wagon Harness, 1 set Single Spring Wagon Harness, 1 set Buggy Harness. 1 Road Wagon, shafts or tongue; 1 Hay Bed, Several Sleighs; Household and Kitchen Furniture, 15 stands of Bees, good condition; Bee Hives, all sorts; Farming Implements and Tools, Log Chains and Crowbars and other articles.

Auction on premises.

F. PRABLE, Sr.,
Constance, Boone Co., Ky.

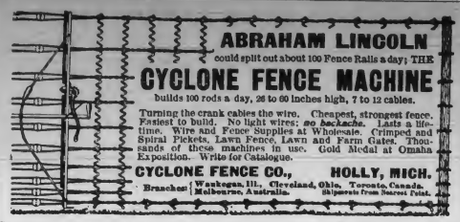
Consign your Stock to

Rabenstein, Harris & Conner,

—Live Stock—

COMMISSION MERCHANTS,

COVINGTON STOCK YARDS,



Covington, Ky.,

OR UNION STOCK YARDS,

Cincinnati, Ohio.

When shipping East bill our care privilege selling Central Covington Stock Yards.

We will make it to your advantage and give your stock special personal attention.

ABRAHAM LINCOLN

could split out about 100 Fence Rails a day; THE

CYCLONE FENCE MACHINE

builds 100 rods a day, 26 to 60 inches high, 7 to 12 cables.

Turning the crank cables the wire. Cheapest, strongest fence. Easiest to build. No light wires; no backache. Lasts a lifetime. Wire and Fence Supplies at Wholesale. Crimped and Spiral Pickets, Lawn Fence, Lawn and Farm Gates. Thousands of these machines in use. Gold Medal at Omaha Exposition. Write for Catalogue.

CYCLONE FENCE CO., HOLLY, MICH.

Branches { Waukegan, Ill. Cleveland, Ohio. Toronto, Canada. Melbourne, Australia. } Shipments from Nearest Point.

I have control of the Cyclone Fence in Boone and Woodford counties. I will build the fence or sell machines to farmers that they may build their own fences. It is the cheapest and best fence that can be built.

Address G. CARTER GRADDY, BULLITTSVILLE, KY.

Commissioner's Sale.

Boone Circuit Court, Ky.

The Ky. Citizens Building and Loan Association's Assignee, Plff.
vs } equity.
W. R. Gordon, &c., Defts.

By virtue of a Judgment and order of Sale of the Boone Circuit Court, rendered at the April term thereof, 1899, in the above cause, I shall proceed to offer for sale at the Court-House door in Burlington, Boone County, Ky., to the highest bidder, at Public Sale on Monday the 5th day of June 1899, at one o'clock p m., or thereabout, being County Court day, upon a credit of 6, 12 & 18 months, the following described property, to-wit:

Lying and being in Boone county, Ky., and bounded as follows: Being lot No. 1 in Norris' addition to the town of Petersburg, Boone county, Ky., and described as follows: Fronting 60 feet on First st, and running back in uniform width of 60 feet. 144 feet to an alley; this lot is bounded on the north by First st., and on the west by Grant st., and being same lot conveyed to W. R. Gordon by John D. Norris and wife on December 31, 1884, by deed, recorded in Deed Book 35, page 15, Boone County Clerk's office.

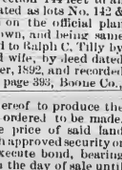
For the purchase price the purchaser with approved security or securities, must execute bonds, bearing legal interest from the day of sale until paid, and having the force and effect of judgment, with a lien retained therein until all the purchase money is paid. Bidders will be prepared to comply promptly with these terms. Amount to be raised by sale, $757 14.

J. W. DUNCAN, M. C. B. C. C.
Lassing & Riddell, attys. for Plff.

Commissioner's Sale.

Boone Circuit Court, Ky.

The Ky. Citizen's Building & Loan Association's Assignee, Plff.
vs } Equity.
Ralph C. Tilly, &c, Defts.



By virtue of a Judgment and order of sale of the Boone Circuit Court, rendered at the April term thereof, 1899, in the above cause, I shall proceed to offer for sale at the Court-house door in Burlington, Boone county, Ky., to the highest bidder at Public Sale on Monday, the 5th day of June, 1899, at 1 o'clock p. m., or thereabout, being County Court day, upon a credit of 6, 12 and 18 months, the following described property, to-wit:

Certain lots or parcels of land lying and being in the town of Petersburg, Boone county, Ky., and bounded as follows: Being on the east side of Market street and fronting thereon 66 feet each or 120 feet, and running back in an easterly direction 144 feet to an alley, and designated as lots No. 142 & 143 as laid down on the official plan and plat of said town, and being same property conveyed to Ralph C. Tilly by O. G. Wooley and wife, by deed dated 25th day of October, 1892, and recorded in Deed Book 39, page 393, Boone Co., Court Records.

Or sufficient thereof to produce the sums of money so ordered to be made. For the purchase price of said land the purchaser, with approved security or securities, must execute bond, bearing legal interest from the day of sale until paid, and having the force and effect of judgment, with a lien retained therein until all the purchase money is paid. Bidders will be prepared to comply promptly with these terms. Amount to be raised by sale, $786 86

J. W. DUNCAN, M. C. B. C. C.
Lassing & Riddell, attys. for Plff.

For Mothers!

THE discomforts and dangers of child-birth can be almost entirely avoided. Wine of Cardui relieves expectant mothers. It gives tone to the genitalorgans, and puts them in condition to do their work perfectly. That makes pregnancy less painful, shortens labor and hastens recovery after child-birth. It helps a woman bear strong healthy children.

Mc ELREE'S Wine of Cardui

has also brought happiness to thousands of homes barren for years. A few doses often brings joy to loving hearts that long for a darling baby. No woman should neglect to try it for this trouble. It cures nine cases out of ten. All druggists sell Wine of Cardui. $1.00 per bottle.

For advice in cases requiring special directions, address, giving symptoms, the "Ladies' Advisory Department," The Chattanooga Medicine Co., Chattanooga, Tenn.

Mrs. LOUISA HALE, of Jefferson, Ga., says: "When I first took Wine of Cardui we had been married three years, but could not have any children. Nine months later I had a fine girl baby."

Commissioner's Sale.

Boone Circuit Court, Ky.

J. J. Lillard, against Plff.
Harriet Reib, &c. Equity. Defts.

By virtue of a judgment and order of sale of the Boone Circuit Court, rendered at the April term thereof, 1899, in the above cause, I shall proceed to offer for sale at the court-house door in Burlington, Boone County, Ky., to the highest bidder at public auction, on

Monday, June 5th, 1899,

at 1 o'clock p. m., or thereabout, being county court day, upon a credit of 6, 12 and 18 months, the following described property, to-wit:

Tract No. 1—Situated on the waters of Gum branch and bounded as follows: Beginning at a corner between Joseph L. Rich and herein described tract of land on Gum branch east of the public road, witnessed by a beech tree and stump on the west side thereof; thence up Gum branch n 9 e 25 poles, n 2 w 24 poles, n 16¾ w 23 8-10 poles to the lower corner of the Dower tract on said branch, witnessed by a stone on the west side thereof; thence s 70½ w 124 poles to a stone, corner of Dower tract and lot No. 2; thence s 4 w 23 poles to a stone, a corner of lot No. 2 in J. L. Rich's line; thence with said line — S6 e 127 poles to the beginning, containing 42 acres and being lot No. 2 in the division of the lands of Thomas P. Johnson, deceased.

Tract No. 2 is bounded as follows: Beginning at a stone on Gum branch road, a corner of lot No. 2 in the division of the lands of Thomas Rich, deceased; thence n 51¼ e 2 82 chs, n 34½ e 2.62 chs, n 21½ e 9.67 chs to a stone in Gum branch; thence n ¼ w 8.83 chains to a stone, a corner of W. Huey and Wallace Garrison; thence n 75 e 14 88 chains to a stone, a corner with said Garrison and the B. M. Allen tract of land; thence with said Allen's line s 43½ e 12.50 chains to a corner of lot No 2; thence with a line thereof s 52 w 29.05 chs to a stone, corner of lots Nos. 2 & 4; thence with a line of lot No. 4 n 39¼ w 11.55 chs to the the beginning, containing 40a, 3r & 8p.

Excepting a passway for the benefit of lot No. 2 in the division of the lands of Thomas Rich, deceased. This tract is lot No. 1 in the division of the lands of said Thomas Rich.

Tract No. 1 will be offered and sold as a whole to pay J. J. Lillard's and A. G. Winston's claims, &c; if the amount realized from the sale of lot No 1 is insufficient to satisfy said claims, then tract No. 2 will be offered, or so much thereof as will satisfy the balance of the debt, interest and costs of said Winston.

For the purchase price the purchaser, with approved security or securities, must execute bond, bearing legal interest from the day of sale until paid, and having the force and effect of a Judgment, with a lien retained therein until all the purchase money is paid. Bidders will be prepared to comply promptly with these terms Amount to be raised by sale, $1,450.54.

J. W. DUNCAN, M. C. B. C. C.
Lassing & Riddell, attys., for Plff.

Commissioner's Sale.

Boone Circuit Court, Ky.

J. M. Lassing, Plff.
vs } Equity.
Ernest Yager, &c., Defts.

By virtue of a Judgment and order of Sale of the Boone Circuit Court, rendered at the April term thereof, 1899, in the above cause, I shall proceed to offer for sale at the Court House door in Burlington, Boone County, Ky., to the highest bidder, at Public Sale on Monday the 5th day of June, 1899, at one o'clock p.m. or thereabout, being County Court day, on a credit of six months, the following described property to wit:

A lot or parcel of land lying and being in the town of Florence, Boone county, Ky., and bounded as follows: On the north by Banklick st.; on the south by the lands of Mrs. Joseph Osborn and William Conner; on the east by the lands of William Carder, colr'd., and Wm. Conner, deceased; and on the west by the lands of Wm. Conner, deceased; containing ¼ of an acre more or less, and being the same property conveyed to Earnest Yager by J. R. Clutterbuck, by deed dated July 1, 1895, and recorded in Deed Book 41, p 406, Boone County Court Records.

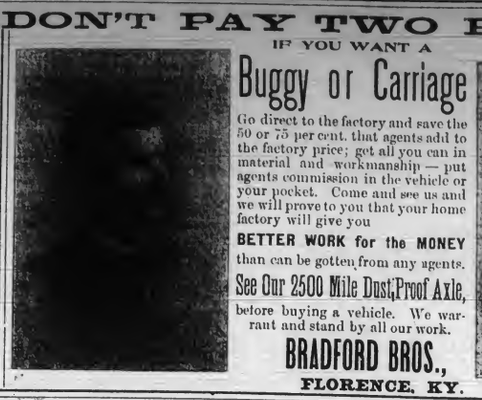
For the purchase price the purchaser with approved security or securities must execute bonds, bearing legal interest from the day of sale until paid, and having the force and effect of a judgment, with a lien retained therein until all the purchase money is paid. Bidders will be prepared to comply promptly with these terms.

Amount to be made by sale, $260 06.

J. W. DUNCAN, M. C. B. C. C.
Lassing & Riddell, attys. for Plff.

Notice of Dissolution.

The firm of Wilson & Riddell, merchants at Rabbit Hash, has been dissolved by mutual consent, Mr. Wilson retiring from the business, and those owing the firm are request to come forward and settle.



WILSON & RIDDELL.

NOTICE.

We will furnish pasture and attention to mares that parties would like to leave with us to breed to our horse and jack, at $1 per month. Pasturage to be paid before mare is removed.

BODDIE & RIDDELL,
Rabbit Hash, Ky.

DON'T PAY TWO PROFITS!

IF YOU WANT A

Buggy or Carriage

Go direct to the factory and save the 50 or 75 per cent. that agents add to the factory price; get all you can in material and workmanship — put agents commission in the vehicle or your pocket. Come and see us and we will prove to you that your home factory will give you

BETTER WORK for the MONEY

than can be gotten from any agents.

See Our 2500 Mile Dust Proof Axle,

before buying a vehicle. We warrant and stand by all our work.

BRADFORD BROS.,

FLORENCE, KY.

J. T. MARSHALL,

SALESMAN FOR

F. W. KASSEBAUM & SON,

Manufacturers and Dealers in

Granite and Marble Monuments.

GRANT P. O., KENTUCKY.

FRANK HOSSMAN,

Hebron, Ky.,

CARPENTER AND BUILDER,

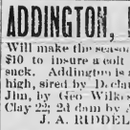
Also handles all—

KINDS of ROOFING,

Which is furnished and put on at the Lowest Prices consistent with good work.

I am prepared for moving buildings.

Your Work is Solicited.



ADDINGTON, No. 27008,

Will make the season at my stable, at $10 to insure a colt to stand up and suck. Addington is a brown, 16 hands high, sired by Declaration, by Young Jim, by Geo Wilkes; 1st dam, C. M. Clay 22; 2d dam by Almont 33.

J. A. RIDDELL, Hebron, Ky.

WHEN IN RISING SUN, INDIANA,

Stop and see

Jno. D. Baxter

THE

SADDLE and HARNESS

Man. He keeps a large stock of Saddles, Harness, Collars, Whips, Bridles, Trace Chains, Hames,

In fact everything kept in a first-class Harness Store, and at the Lowest Cash Prices; we buy strictly for cash and our customers benefit by it. Call and be convinced of the fact.

JOHN D. BAXTER,

THE OLD RELIABLE

BUGGIES!

IF YOU WANT A GOOD

BUGGY

To suit you and stand the rough roads and made to order, call on

ECKSTEIN NOVELTY CO.,

—AGENTS FOR—

JAMES & MAYER BUGGY COMPANY,

LAWRENCEBURG, IND.

CORNER

Drug Store

Rising Sun, Ind.

Is the place for anything in the Drug Line.

WALL PAPER, PAINTS, WINDOW SHADES.

STATIONERY,

PERFUMES,

FANCY GOODS, &c.

B. F. BUCHANAN,

— DRUGGIST, —

Over thirty year's experience.

FARMERS

Take Notice!

If you want good

Fertilizer

PLEASE GIVE

B. F. ZIMMER

A CALL.

He will try to please you. He has the finest line of Fertilizer for 1899 he has ever handled. Write for particulars to

CONSTANCE, KY.

NOTICE.

J. E. Rouse's Guernsey Bull "Jesson 3602," will be found at his father's this season—fee $1.

DR. A. P. WALTON,

DENTIST,

CINCINNATI,

The Lancaster Building 22 W. 7th, Bet. Vine and Race.

INSURE AT HOME

The Farmers' Mutual Fire

INSURANCE COMPANY,

OF BOONE COUNTY,

Is now completely organized and receiving applications for insurance.

Its Rates are Lower

Than those of any other Company and gives the farmers of Boone County

HITHERTO UNKNOWN ADVANTAGE

In keeping their property insured.

EVERY FARMER IN THE COUNTY should take a policy at once.

E. H. BLANKENBECKER, President, Florence, Ky.
EDGAR CROPPER, - Vice-President.
OSCAR GAINES, Secretary, Burlington.
J. E. DUNCAN, Treasurer.
EXECUTIVE BOARD—Legrand Gaines, J. W. Conner, John Stephens.
J. E. SMITH, Assessor, - Burlington, Ky.
W. M. ROGERS, Agt. - Walton, Ky.

1899. SEASON 1899.

CRESCENT HILL STOCK FARM.

TIMOTHY BOY, No. 27854

Bay horse, foaled April 3, 1893, bred by D. Bedinger & Son, Richwood, Ky. Sired by Wilkes Boy, 2:24; 1st dam, Alga by Artillery, 2:21½; 2d dam Valdosta by Nutwood, 2:18¾; 3d dam Emma Arterburn (dam of St. Arnould, 2:20, and g.-dam of two in 2:30 list) by Mambrino Patchen 58; 4th dam Jenny Johnson (grandam of two in 2:30 list) by Sweet Owen, thoroughbred, &c.

Wilkes Boy is one of the best sons of the great Geo. Wilkes, 2:22.

TIMOTHY BOY is one of the best bred horses in the State, is 16½ hands high and weighs 1,300 lbs. in ordinary condition, a horse of great power, good bone, fine style and action, perfectly sound in every particular. He is a pure gaited trotter and his colts are large with plenty of style and action, the kind that are in demand all the time.

Service fee $10 to insure a live colt, money due when colt is foaled or mare parted with.

THE FINE MAMMOTH JACK,

Nutwood,

Will make the season of 1899 at $8 00 to insure a live colt, money due when colt is foaled or mare parted with.

DESCRIPTION & PEDIGREE.

Nutwood is a dark brown or black with white points, 16 hands high, very heavy bone and well built, large head and ears, heavy body and good action; foaled July 6, 1894, was bred by J. M. Park, Madison county, Ky. Nutwood is by Blackwood, 16½ hands high, one of the best mule and jennet jacks in Kentucky; 1st dam by Griggs' Big Tom, 16 hands high; 3d dam by the Hubbert jack, &c.

TIMOTHY BOY and Nutwood will make the season on Daniel Bedinger's farm on the Richwood & Beaver pike, 3 miles west of Richwood.

Pasture and attention furnished mares at $1.50 per month. Care taken to prevent accidents, but no responsibility should any occur.

J. C. BEDINGER, Richwood, Ky.

SEASON 1899.

OAKKNOLL STOCK FARM

UGO!

Foaled 1892, sired by Simmons 2744, (record 2:28,) sire of 75 in 2:30, and 14 in the 2:12 list; by George Wilkes 519, (record 2:22); 1st dam by Almont Boy 4308; 2nd dam by Norman 25; 3d dam by C. M. Clay 18.

UGO is a dark chestnut, 16½ hands high, weighs 1,150 pounds, a very kind prompt driver, also a good saddler.

Will make the season of 1899, on Thursdays, Fridays and Court days at Burlington, Ky., and the remainder of the time at my barn, one mile west of Uruinger, Ky., at $10 to insure a live colt, money due as soon as colt is foaled.

Care will be taken to prevent accidents, but I will not be responsible should any occur.

SCOTT CHAMBERS.

5 Per Cent. MONEY TO LOAN.

Real estate security. Any sum from $1,000 to $3,000 at 5½ per cent. Sums of $3,000 and over at 5 per cent. Interest payable semi-annually. No loans made for a less time than two years.

B. C. BEDINGER, Agent,
Beaver Lick, Ky.

Farms especially wanted. me99tf

D. E. CASTLEMAN,

ATTORNEY - AT - LAW.

BURLINGTON, KY.

Will practice in the Courts of Boone Kenton, Grant and Gallatin. Collections pushed energetically.

G. G. HUGHES,

ATTORNEY AT LAW.

BURLINGTON, KY.

Will practice in all the courts. Prompt attention given to all business entrusted to me.

P. E. CASON,

ATTORNEY - AT - LAW,

BURLINGTON, KY.

Practice in all Courts. Promptness guaranteed.

J. G. TOMLIN,

ATTORNEY - AT - LAW.

WALTON, KENTUCKY.

Will practice in the Courts of Boone, Kenton Grant and Gallatin. Prompt attention given to Collections entrusted to his care. mch22-93.

W. E. VEST,

County Surveyor,

BURLINGTON, KY.

Is prepared to do all kinds of Surveying. All orders by mail promptly attended to.

J. M. LASSING. N. L. RIDDELL.

LASSING & RIDDELL,

ATTORNEYS AT LAW.

BURLINGTON, KY.

Prompt Attention Given to Collections

S. GAINES,

ATTORNEY-AT-LAW.

BURLINGTON, KY.

Will practice in all the courts, and prompt attention given collections. Office—In residence near post-office.

S. W. ADAMS,

ATTORNEY - AT - LAW,

ERLANGER, KENTUCKY.

Will practice in the courts of Boone and Kenton counties. Collections and general law practice.

W. E. VEST,

Real Estate Agent.

Farms Bought, Sold or Exchanged, Money to Loan on Real Estate, Notes bought, sold & Negotiated.

All communications addressed to W. E. VEST, Burlington, Ky.

BOONE CO. DEPOSIT BANK.

(Incorporated 1886.)

CAPITAL, ... $30,000
Surplus and undivided profits, 20,000

—)o(—

Our facilities enable us to receive on favorable terms accounts of individuals and corporations. Collections promptly remitted for at lowest rates

ERLANGER DEPOSIT BANK.

(INCORPORATED 1893.)

ERLANGER, - - KENTUCKY

CAPITAL PAID IN..... $50,000
SURPLUS,..... $ 3.000

Careful attention given collections and remittances promptly made. Deposit accounts solicited.

Dr. J. L. Adams,

DENTIST,

Walton, Kentucky.

Artificial Dentures, Crown and Bridge Work to represent natural organs.

Will be in office at Union every Monday.

Satisfaction - Guaranteed.

JOHN L. VEST,

SURVEYOR

WALTON, KY.

Is prepared to do all kinds of work south of Burlington, Ky. Prompt attention given to all mail orders.

Take the Recorder, $1.50 a year.

BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

VOL. XXIV. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, MAY 31, 1899. NO. 32.

AUDITOR STONE has entered as a Republican candidate for the gubernatorial nomination. That party has now a triangular fight on its hands.

THE rainy season will be a great obstruction to the progress of American arms in the Philippines, and will increase the hardships of the boys.

THE old Kentucky Association race track at Lexington has been changed to a Sunday school park, where a large school meets every Sunday afternoon.

DOUBTLESS John Sherman would not make the race for Governor of Ohio on a platform endorsing the President's course as regards the Philippines.

POSTMASTR BAKER, of Louisville, made a trip to Washington, last week, and succeeded in getting the salary of quite a number of his subordinates increased.

THE statue of Isabella, former Queen of Spain, which stood for years in the Central Park of Havana, Cuba, has been taken down by order of Military Governor Ludlow.

THE most serious objections the Dispatch has to Senator Goebel is that his parents were humble laboring people. That fact is to Goebel's credit, and no disgrace to his parents.

THE large number of pardons granted by Acting Gov. Worthington has brought severe criticism upon him. He is good hearted, fatherly old man, whose sympathy is easily aroused.

THE powerful trusts that have about taken possession of this country are a strong argument in favor of free trade, and this fact is now confessed by some of the leading Republican journals.

SOME of the Democratic papers in the State that claim the cause is greater than any man are not getting themselves in a shape to fight for the cause in the event the men they are opposing are nominated.

THE numerous applications made to Andrew Carnegie for financial assistance, are proving very annoying to him. His reputation for generosity has caused the army of beggars to swoop down on him.

SENATOR GOEBEL will speak in Burlington at 2 o'clock p. m., next Monday in the interest of his candiacy for the Democratic nomination for Governor. It will pay you to hear him whether you support him or not.

THERE is considerable complaint of the manner in which bodies of dead soldiers are being shipped from Manilla, the boxes containing the bodies bearing no names, being numbered only, rendering it impossible to identify them.

IN his canvass of the State in the interest of the bi-metallic league, Judge Tarvin has fully established his reputation as an exceedingly interesting political orator. His speeches have been heard by large crowds, and all were well pleased.

We paid $20,000,000 for the Philippines, but the goods have never been delivered, and we are now about to invest $3,000,000 in a parishable and highly inflamable quality of Cuban populace. However, Uncle Sam has bought no other gold bricks lately, and we ought to be thankful for that. —Post.

Mr. Stone voted four times in Congress as late as 1895 for gold bonds when Bryan and Bland were voting the other way.—Owen News.

And what financial doctrine was the Owen News proclaiming about that time? It ought to be the last to attack anybody because of his being a gold man that far back.

ONE of the Republican candidates for Governor has been entered as the Administration's candidate, but the Lexington Leader, whose editor is conceded to be closer to President McKinley than anyother man in the State, controverts the idea that the Administration has or will have any candidate for Governor of Kentucky.

THE ROAD PROBLEM.

To the Editor of the Recorder:

I find that the absorbing topic for discussion now before the voters of Boone county is the road and bridge question. We have a great many people who favor free turnpikes—that is people who favor the purchase of the toll roads by the fiscal court, and the removal of the tollgates, and building turnpikes on the main thoroughfares of the county by taxation, making them free roads also. We have another class of people who are opposed to free roads—people who believe free roads would not give us good roads, and would saddle an enormous public debt on this county and greatly increase the local tax rate for all time to come. Between these two we have a middle class, who, while they want better roads, are opposed to free roads.

This agitation calls for action of some kind, and I believe that the following will settle this question and satisfy the people and for that reason I request you to publish this article.

We pay tax on $6,000,000 worth of property, and the tax of 10 cents on the $100 as now levied for road purposes, will raise, $6,000. We get annually from the tax on whisky, railroads, telephone and telegraph companies, about $500, making a total of about $6,500 derived each year from the 10 cents road tax.

Now, my plan is this: Work the public roads by the hand system as we use to do, and expend this annual tax of $6,500 as follows: Let the fiscal court of this county subscribe $750 per mile towards building pikes, and let the people along the line of the pikes subscribe the balance, the county to receive certificates of stock for its subscription in each road, and each road when so built to be contracted by a board of directors chosen from among the local stockholders. Let gates be put upon said roads, and tolls collected thereon, and the road thereby made self sustaining. In this way from 8 to 10 miles of pike can be made each year, and when once built it will become self sustaining, and the county will never be taxed toward keeping it up. Let the roads be built in the order in which the subscriptions come in, that is, for example, if the residents along the line of road leading from Walton to Beaver are the first to raise the subscription money to build this road and report it to the fiscal court, then that road shall be built first. In this way the main dirt roads of the county will, in the course of the next ten years be made selfsustaining turnpikes without the burdens of taxation having been increased, and, at the same timean equitable part of the burden of the cost of construction will be borne by the people directly interested in the roads. The roads to be built under the supervision of the fiscal court's engineer, and accepted by the court before any of the county's subscription is paid. In this way the fiscal court can compel the roads to be properly constructed, and avoid waste of the public funds. If this plan is approved by the people, it will gradually give us better roads, and, at the same time keep our taxes for county purposes as they now are, lower than in anyother county in the State.

J. M. LASSING, County Atty.

THE Louisville Dispatch has dished up a large lot of material for use by the Republicans in case a certain one of the Democratic candidates for Governor is nominated, but as it is not true the Republican candidate may be too honest to attempt to use it. The Dispatch has placed itself in a position that it will have a hard time making people believe it will support the Democratic nominee for Governor in the event the candidate it is opposing should win.

UNDER the Tennessee school book law, about fifty firms have filed bids for furnishing the books to be used in the schools of that State, and the patrons of the public schools expect a considerable reduction in the cost of text books in the future.

SOME of the friends of Judge Barr, who recently retired from the bench of the U. S. District court, are trying to induce him to become a Republican candidate for Governor.

IF politicsis be I as was once upon a time proclaimed by an eminent gentleman, Kentucky is having her share of that sultry place, this year.

CROP AND STOCK.

In some Swiss villages eggs are in circulation in lieu of money.

Owen county will have an average crop of tobacco pitched this year.

Corn is selling at $1 50 per barrel at the crib, in the central part of the State.

A good hen will lay in her lifetime (everaging 3½ years) from 600 to 700 eggs.

Big mules in good condition always command enough to give some profit in raising them.

It is estimated that trotting meetings will be held this year on 1,100 tracks, and that $1,650,000 will be given in stakes.

Some complaint is made of cattle dying of bloat caused by eating white clover. The latter is very abundant this year.

There are four turkey hens at Mrs. G. W. Barbee's in Adairville, Logan county, that have laid this season, up to last Sunday, ninety-six eggs.

Bring King has a most wonderful sow, says the Russellville News. She gave birth to two pigs, and for the following six days gave birth to one each day. All are doing well.

The fence corner blackberry crop is all right, and there will be a limited supply of the poor man's desert. Out in the fields, where the canes were unprotected, they are killed.

A number of horses, hogs and sheep have died in Jessamine county from some peculiar disease. The general belief is that the animals had hydrophobia. They showed symptoms of a dog with the rabies.

A fortune in corn cobs would usually be regarded as a pipe dream; nevertheless Warren county farmers are realizing handsome sums from the sale of what has heretofore been considered waste. Cobs are sold to a cob-pipe factory.

It is reported from Emporia, Kansas, that chinch bugs are working much damage. Many wheat fields have already been plowed up and more must be turned over. If heavy rains do not soon fall corn will also suffer from the bugs.

Strawberries are unusually fine and plentiful this year. Mr. Eugene Adams, the boss strawberry raiser of this section, says the Lebanon Falcon, has an acre and a half in bearing, and calculates that his yield will be in the neighborhood of 2,000 gallons.

The supply of peaches will be very short this year. Yet a total loss in the great peach districts must by no means be credited. There are sheltered locations where partial and even full crops are promised, especially in the vicinity of large bodies of water in atmosphere modified by bays and inlets of the sea-shore.

There is an old saying that a hard winter is followed by a heavy crop of blue grass. The theory is that during a mild winter the grass by continuous growth to some extent exhausts itself, and is never so heavy the following summer as when the growth is checked by severe weather.—Georgetown Times.

The cool, damp weather of this week has enabled many farmers to set their tobacco plants. While there has not been what would be called a tobacco season, yet the coolness of the weather gives the plants a better chance to start off than if it was wet and warm. There are probably more tobacco plants in Grant county now than was ever known at this season of the year. Almost every tobacco grower could plant his entire crop if he had the ground in condition.—Owen News.

J. C. Thompson, of Madisonville, Ky., experimented in tobacco raising last year. He had his land separated into parts of one-thirteenth of an acre each, giving all the same advantages in cultivating and curing. He found that the virgin soil produced an average of 1,301 lbs. to an acre and that the plot fertilized with 60 pounds of acid phosphate, 25 pounds of sulphate of potash and 60 pounds nitrate of soda produced an average of 1,800 lbs. to the acre of large size and fine quality tobacco.

THE Henderson county board of health and the fiscal court are in a quarrel over the pest house, the former wanting possession of the building.

THE New York legislature has appropriated $75,000 with which to give Admiral Dewey a welcome.

Pith of the Press.

Give the Filipino Commissioners 10 seconds and then count 'em out. —Memphis Commercial Appeal.

General Lawton appears to be a Tecumseh Sherman of the Philippine campaign.—Topeka Journal.

We rather think G. Cleveland has been summarily dismissed by the American people.-Batavia,(O.) Sun.

At any rate, Matt Quay has still got his ring in Governor Stone's nose.—Memphis Commercial Appeal.

Col. Jack Chinn has run up a flag of truce, but he has failed so far to spike his gun.—Richmond (Va.) Times.

The census of Russia lists over 1,000,000 princes. About as thick as colonels in Kentucky. — Kansas City Star.

Close association with William McKinley does not seem to have made him popular with John Sherman.—Kansas City Star.

Hons. John Sherman and Grover Cleveland might tell the people how it makes one feel to be advertised as dead.—National American.

It did not take Mr. Alger and Mr. McMillan long to reach the retort courteous stage of the senatorial controversy.—Detroit Tribune.

Mayor Jones, of Toledo, must admit that J. Sterling Morton's party doesn't work iniquitous control of anything.—Milwaukee Sentinel.

If an alliterative name is wanted for the Twentieth Kansas what's the matter with "Funston's Finny Filipino Finishers?"—Omaha World-Herald.

Dewey has stolen a march on Funston by arranging to come home first, and exhaust the nations supply of bunting.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Sam Jones, of Georgia, gave further proof that he is a man of nerve by making remarks on the drinking habit in Louisville. — St. Louis Chronicle.

Aguinaldo is beginning to understand that McKinley did not pay $20,000,000 for him as a gamble, but as a permanent investment.—Kansas City Times.

Might as well call off the scheduled athletic contest. Alger and McMillan are going to fight for the Senatorship in Michigan. — New York Telegram.

Secretary Alger does not seem fully to appreciate Senator McMillan's great kindness in relieving his suspense regarding that Senatorship.—Chicago Record.

Governor Pingree, of Michigan, understands the matter, when he says: "The Republican party has become the home of trusts."—Zanesville (Ohio) Signal.

It appears that Mr. Astor was driven away from his native land by the coutumely heaped on his dear old-grand-father. Isn't it sad? —Cleveland Plain Dealer.

It is reported that President McKinley, Admiral Dewey and Tod Sloane are breaking down. A too heavy burden of greatness will fetch the best of 'em.—Denver Post.

After Secretary Alger has succeeded in kicking up a rumpus in Cuba perhaps Mr. McKinley will bitterly repent not having bounced him from the Cabinet.—St. Paul Globe.

The new battleship Kentucky is to have fourteen-inch guns and a fourteen-gallon punch bowl. Both indicate stirring times when called into service.—Philadelphia Times.

If Fupston be wise he will stay where he is for at least a year. His friends in Kansas have already devised 40 kinds of temptation to make a Kansas fool of him.—San Francisco Call.

The multitude of straw hats that will be thrown up in the air on the Fourth of July in honor of Admiral Dewey will show which way the national wind is blowing.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

At Lexington the race track of the Kentucky Association has been turned into a union Sunday-school ground, with over 100 children in attendance. It has been said that the time should come when men would turn their swords into plowshares, but it is not in recorded prophecy that race tracks should become Sunday-school meeting places. This is probably because the prophets had never heard of Kentucky.—Chicago News.

The Mass Meeting.

There was a large turnout of Boone county Democrats, last Saturday, to take part in the mass meeting called for that day at the county seat to select Boone's candidate to represent this senatorial district for the next four years in the General Assembly. They began arriving in town at an early hour that morning, and when the line-up was had 618 of the unterrified were counted.

When the hour for the meeting arrived, it was evident that no room in town was large enough to contain half the crowd, and the meeting was called to order out on Union street, in what was considered the most comfortable place to be found, on account of the dense shade. D. E. Castleman, chairman of the county Democratic Executive Committee called the meeting to order and stated the object, and O. S. Watts was elected permanent chairman and W. L. Riddell, secretary. D. E. Castleman presented the following order of business, which was unanimously adopted:

"Resolved, 1st, That in selecting a candidate for the State Senate, whose name only shall be presented to the Sparta convention as the choice of the Democrats of Boone county, that this body vote for candidates direct, and that the name of the hindmost man be dropped on second ballot, one informal ballot being first taken, whereupon the vote shall be retaken and the hindmost man dropped until one man shall receive a majority of the votes cast.

2nd. The candidate receiving a majority of the votes cast shall be declared the choice of the Democrats of Boone county, and he shall select 12 delegates to present his name to the Sparta convention.

3rd. Each candidate shall be permitted to select 3 tellers to assist in counting the vote.

By this time it became evident more space than that being occupied by the convention was necessary to facilitate a correct count of each candidates following, and by unanimous consent the meeting adjourned to the base ball park north of town, where it was again called to order, when chairman Watts announced that nomination were in order, and the names of W. J. Crouch, S. W. Tolin and O. S. Walton and J. G. Furnish, were presented without any speech making. The name of Walton was withdrawn immediately after nominations were declared closed.

The following tellers were then appointed: For Crouch:—J. C. Rybird, L. C. Cowen and D. E. Castleman. For Tolin:—J. B. Tolin, J. L. Vest and A. B. Rouse. For Furnish:—N. E. Riddell, J. S. Clutterbuck and J. C. Revill.

The chairman then designated the location for the followers of each candidate to occupy for the purpose of being counted. To get the large crowd so arranged to be correctly counted required some time, but when begun was soon completed and the following result was announced:

For J. G. Furnish	337
For S. W. Tolin	172
For M. J. Crouch	109
Total,	618

J. G. Furnish having received on the first ballot a majority of 56 votes over all the other candidates, he was then made the unanimous choice of the meeting as Boone's candidate for Senator, and he was so declared by the chairman.

Calls were then made for Tolin and Crouch respectively, in response to which each made a neat speech thanking their friends for the support they had accorded them, and acquiescing in the result of the meeting like the two good Democrats that they are. Furnish then made a brief speech thanking the Democrats of Boone county for the hearty support they had always accorded him, and pledged himself, if elected, to look after their interest with all the ability he has. At the close of his speech, the following list of delegates to the Sparta convention was announced: S. W. Tolin, M. J. Crouch, D. E. Castleman, P. E. Cason, O. S. Watts, J. N. Pearson, M. F. Wingate, Geo. Roberts, J. W. Taliaferro, F. E. Curley and J. M. Lassing.

The convention then adjourned, and thus closed the work of the second largest political convention in the history of the county, during the entire proceedings of which there was not a jar or a quibble.

NOTES,

About 700 people came to town, last Saturday.

It was a harvest for those who prepared to administer to those who hungered.

Considering its size the crowd was very orderly. Some few of the boys had booze aboard, but they conducted themselves very well.

O. S. Watts made a very nice little speech when he took the chair. He anticipated a stormy sea just ahead of him, but he was agreeably disappointed.

T. B. Mathews, chairman of the Republican county committee, and several other prominent Republicans, were on hand, expecting to see some fun, but the Democratic host was decidedly docile, and proceeded in a business like manner only.

When Dr. Furnish and the delegates who went from here to the Sparta convention, reached home about 7:30 Monday evening, the Doctor was surprised to find a large number of his friends assembled at his home to congratulate him. The Burlington string band was present and discoursed sweet music. Delicious ice cream, strawberries and cake were served during the evening.

A SYNDICATE is being formed for the control of several railroads.

The Sparta Convention.

The Democratic Convention of the Twenty-third Senatorial District was called to order at Sparta, pursuant to the Committee's call, on May 29th, 1899, by E. E. Lee, Chairman of the Senatorial District Committee.

On motion E. E. Lee was made permanent Chairman of the convention, and D. E. Castleman was chosen Secretary. A motion then prevailed that the convention proceed at once to the selection of a Democratic nominee for State Senator for the Twenty-third District, composed of the counties of Boone, Gallatin and Owen.

On call of the counties, S. W. Tolin, of Boone, presented the name of Dr. J. G. Furnish, which was seconded by R. B. Brown, of Gallatin and J. W. Douglas, of Owen. A motion then prevailed to make the nomination by acclamation, which was unanimously carried, and Dr. J. G. Furnish was declared the duly elected nominee as aforesaid.

R. B. Brown, of Gallatin county, moved the adoption of the following resolution:

Be it Resolved, That we reaffirm the principles of Democracy as proclaimed in the Chicago platform of 1896, and especially that plank in said platform that declares for the free and unlimited coinage of silver at the ratio of 16 to 1;

That we declare for W. J. Bryan as our choice for the Democratic nominee for President in 1900.

That the Hon. J. C. S. Blackburn is the one, and the only man, to succeed the Hon. Wm. Lindsay as Senator from Kentucky.

The said motion having been duly considered was unanimously carried.

R. B. Brown then moved the adoption of the following resolution:

Whereas, It will perpetuate harmony in the district by a continuance of the present agreement whereby the selection of a Democratic candidate for the Twenty-third District is given, by rotation, to each of the three counties composing the district, and

Whereas, The full intent of said agreement can best be had by permitting the county entitled to name the senator, to select him without interference on the part of the other two counties, Therefore be it

Resolved, that in the future, the selection of a Democratic candidate for state senator of said district, shall continue as heretofore—that is each of the counties in said district shall, in rotation, be entitled to name a senator for a full term, and in the event a vacancy occurs during such term, then in his place a successor, be it further

Resolved, that the county so entitled to name such senator shall, under a call of the Democratic Committee of said county, select such candidate without either of the other counties taking any part in such selection, except it be to ratify the nomination made by the county entitled thereto.

The said motion having been duly seconded by William Lindsay, of Owen county, after remarks advocating the passage of said motion by J. W. Douglas, of Owen county, the same was unanimously carried.

On motion the convention adjourned.

E. E. LEE, Chairman.

D. E. CASTLEMAN, Secretary.

Limaburg.

A heavy rain fell here Monday.

John Hicks, of Covington, was here last Friday.

W. R. Rouse was the first to cut hay in this neighborhood.

Don't forget the picnic at Harvest Home next Saturday.

The telephone line was surveyed through here Monday.

James Barlow gave us a call Monday morning buying lambs.

Wallace Tanner is able to be up out of his bed part of the time.

Uncle John Beall, of Hebron, was here on the 26th of May, his 82d birthday.

Corn is all planted. Wheat is out of bloom and looking fine. Tobacco will be all set this week.

There will be a strawberry festival at Hebrou church Saturday night, June 3d, and all are invited There will be plenty of ice cream, strawberries and cake to eat.

CHURCH NEWS.

The Rock Spring Baptist Church in Webster county will not be dedicated until in June.

Work will begin in a few days on the new Baptist church to be erected at Greensburg.

The Rev. L. E. Mann, a Methodist minister, has announced as a candidate for the Democratic nomination for State Senator in the Bath-Rowan district.

The Baptist Church at Hopkinsville has again called Dr. C. H. Nash as pastor for the year beginning this month, and his salary was increased from $1,500 to $1,690 a year.

Cynthiana's Christian Church has resolved to build a new house of Worship to cost between $15,000 and $20,000. The present church, built in 1847, needs improving and enlarging insomuch that a new one is thought best to have.

Some of the church people of Owensboro have been seriously considering the undertaking of establishing a home in that city for aged women, and it is probable that active efforts in that direction will be made at an early date.

There will be a strawberry-ice cream festival at Hebron church, Saturday evening, June 3rd. A program consisting of Music and Recitations will be given, after which strawberries, ice cream and cake will be served. Misses Eva Smith and Ella Tanner will recite something funny and amusing. Admission including supper 25 and 15 cents.

GREAT preparations are being made for the reception of Admiral Dewey when he arrives.

A NATION'S DANGERS.

Dr. Talmage Eloquently Portrays the Country's Destiny.

Monopoly the Overshadowing Curse of Our Land—Nihilism an Evil Power—Infidelity a Source of Weakness.

[Copyright, 1899, by Louis Klopsch.]

In this discourse Dr. Talmage speaks of some of the perils that threaten our American institutions, and points out the path of safety; text, Isaiah 62:4: "Thy land shall be married."

As the greater includes the less, so does the circle of future joy around our entire world include the episcyele of our own republic. Bold, exhilarant, unique, Divine imagery of the text. At the close of a week in which for four days our national capital was a pageant and all that grand review and bannered procession and national anthems could do, celebrated peace, it may not be inapt to anticipate the time when the Prince of Peace and the heir of universal dominion shall take possession of this nation, and "thy land shall be married."

In discussing the final destiny of this nation it makes all the difference in the world whether we are on the way to a funeral or a wedding. The Bible leaves no doubt on this subject. In pulpits and on platforms and in places of public concourse I hear so many of the muffled drums of evil prophecy sounded, as though we were on the way to national interment, and besides Thebes and Babylon and Tyre in the cemetery of dead nations our republic was to be entombed, that I wish you to understand it is not to be obsequies, but nuptials; not mausoleums, but carpeted altar; not cypress, but orange blossoms; not requiem, but wedding march; for "thy land shall be married."

I propose to name some of the suitors who are claiming the hand of this republic. This land is so fair, so beautiful, so affluent that it has many suitors, and it will depend much upon your advice whether this or that shall be accepted or rejected. In the first place, I remark: There is a greedy, all-grasping monster who comes in as suitor seeking the hand of this republic, and that monster is known by the name of monopoly. His scepter is made out of the rail track and the wire of telegraphy. He does everything for his own advantage and for the robbery of the people. Things went on from bad to worse until in the three legislatures of New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania for a long time monopoly decided everything. If monopoly favor a law, it passes, if monopoly oppose a law, it is rejected. Monopoly stands in the railroad depot putting into his pockets in one year $200,000,000 in excess of all reasonable charges for services. Monopoly holds in his one hand the steam power of locomotion and in the other the electricity of swift communication. Monopoly has the republican party in one pocket and the democratic party in the other pocket. Monopoly decides nominations and elections—city elections, state elections, national elections. With bribes he secures the votes of legislators, giving them free passes, giving appointments to needy relatives to lucrative positions, employing them as attorneys if they are lawyers, carrying their goods 15 per cent. less if they are merchants, and if he find a case very stubborn as well as very important puts down before him the hard cash of bribery.

But monopoly is not so easily caught now as when during the term of Mr. Buchanan the legislative committee in one of our states explored and exposed the manner in which a certain railway company had obtained a donation of public land. It was found that 13 of the senators of that state received $175,000 among them, 60 members of the lower house of that state received between $5,000 and $10,000 each, the governor of that state received $50,000, his clerk received $5,000, the lieutenant governor received $10,000, all the clerks of the legislature received $5,000 each, while $50,000 was divided among the lobby agents. That thing on a larger or smaller scale is all the time going on in some of the states of the union, but it is not so blundering as it used to be, and therefore not so easily exposed or arrested. I tell you that the overshadowing curse of the United States today is monopoly. He puts his hand upon every bushel of wheat, upon every sack of salt, upon every ton of coal, and every man, woman and child in the United States feels the touch of that moneyed despotism. I rejoice that in 24 states of the union already anti-monopoly leagues have been established. God speed them in the work of liberation.

I have nothing to say against capitalists; a man has a right to all the money he can make honestly. I have nothing to say against corporations as such; without them no great enterprise would be possible, but what I do say is that the same principles are to be applied to capitalists and to corporations that are applied to the poorest man and the plainest laborer. What is wrong for me is wrong for great corporations. If I take from you your property without any adequate compensation I am a thief, and if a railway damages the property of the people without making any adequate compensation that is a gigantic theft. What is wrong on a small scale is wrong on a large scale. Monopoly in England has ground hundreds of thousands of her best people into semistarvation, and in Ireland has driven multitudinous tenants almost to madness, and in the United States proposes to take the wealth of 60,000,000 or 70,000,000 of people and put it in a few silken wallets.

Monopoly, brazen-faced, iron-fingered, velvet-hearted monopoly, offers his hand to this republic. He stretches it out over the lakes and up the great railroads and over the telegraph poles of the continent and says: "Here are my heart and hand. Be mine forever." Let the millions of the people north, south, east and west forbid the banns of that marriage, forbid them at the ballot box, forbid them on the platform, forbid them by great organizations, forbid them by the overwhelming sentiment of an outraged nation, forbid them by the protest of the church of God, forbid them by prayer to high Heaven. That Herod shall not have this Abigail. It shall not be to all-devouring monopoly that this land is to be married.

Another suitor claiming the hand of this republic is nihilism.

He owns nothing but a knife for universal cutthroatery and a nitroglycerin bomb for universal explosion. He believes in no God, no government, no Heaven and no hell except what he can make on earth. He slew the czar of Russia, keeps many a king practically imprisoned, killed Abraham Lincoln, would put to death every king and president on earth, and, if he had the power, would climb, up until he could drive the God of Heaven from His throne and take it himself, the universal butcher. In France it is called communism; in the United States it is called anarchism; in Russia it is called nihilism, but that last is the most graphic and descriptive term. It means complete and eternal smashup. It would make the holding of property a crime, and it would drive a dagger through your heart and put a torch to your dwelling and turn over this whole land into the possession of theft and lust and rapine and murder.

Where does this monster live? In all the towns and cities of this land. It offers its hand to this fair republic. It proposes to tear to pieces the ballot box, the legislative hall, the congressional assembly. It would take this land and divide it up, or, rather, divide it down. It would give as much to the idler as to the worker, to the bad as to the good. Nihilism! This panther, having prowled across other lands, has set its paw on our soil, and it is only waiting for the time in which to spring upon its prey. It was nihilism that burned the railroad property at Pittsburgh during the great riots; it was nihilism that slew black people in our northern cities during the war; it was nihilism that mauled to death the Chinese immigrants years ago. It is nihilism that glares out of the windows of the drunkeries upon sober people as they go by. Ah, its power has never yet been tested. I pray God its power may never be fully tested. It would, if it had the power, leave every church, chapel, cathedral, schoolhouse and college in ashes.

Let me say it is the worst enemy of the laboring classes in any country. The honest cry for reform lifted by oppressed laboring men is drowned out by the vociferation for anarchy. The criminals and the vagabonds who range through our cities talking about their rights, when their first right is the penitentiary—if they could be hushed up, and the downtrodden laboring men of this country could be heard, there would be more bread for hungry children. In this land riot and bloodshed never gained my wages for the people or gathered up any prosperity. In this land the best weapon is not the club, not the shillalah, not firearms, but the ballot. Let not our oppressed laboring men be beguiled to coming under the bloody banner of nihilism. It will make your taxes heavier, your wages smaller, your table scantier, your children hungrier, your suffering greater. Yet this nihilism, with feet red of slaughter, comes forth and offers its hand for this republic. Shall the banns be proclaimed? If so, where shall the marriage altar be, and who will be the officiating priest, and what will be the music? That altar will have to be white with bleached skulls, the officiating priest must be a dripping assassin, the music must be the smothered groan of multitudinous victims, the garlands must be twisted of night shade, the fruits must be the apples of Sodom, the wine must be the blood of St. Bartholomew's massacre. No! It is not to nihilism, the sanguinary monster, that this land is to be married.

Another suitor for the hand of this nation is infidelity. When the midnight ruffians despoiled the grave of A. T. Stewart in St. Mark's churchyard everybody was shocked; but infidelity proposes something worse than that—the robbing of all the graves of Christendom in the hope of a resurrection. It proposes to chisel out from the tombstones of your Christian dead the words "Asleep in Jesus" and substitute the words "Obliteration — annihilation." Infidelity proposes to take the letter from the world's Father, inviting the nations to virtue and happiness, and tear it up into fragments so small that you cannot read a word of it. It proposes to take the consolation from the broken-hearted and the soothing pillow from the dying. Infidelity proposes to swear in the president of the United States, and the supreme court, and the governors of states, and the witnesses in the courtroom with their right hand on Paine's "Age of Reason," or Voltaire's "Philosophy of History." It proposes to take away from this country the book that makes the difference between the United States and the kingdom of Dahomey, between American civilization and Bornesian cannibalism. If infidelity could destroy the Scriptures it would in 200 years turn the civilized nations back to semibarbarism, and then from semibarbarism into midnight savagery, until the morals of a menagerie of tigers, rattlesnakes and chimpanzees would be better than the morals of the shipwrecked human race.

The only impulse in the right direction that this world has ever had has come from the Bible. It was the mother of Roman law and of healthful jurisprudence. That book has been the mother of all reforms and all charities—mother of English magna charta and American Declaration of Independence. Benjamin Franklin, holding that holy book in his hand, stood before an infidel club in Paris and read to them out of the prophecies of Habakkuk, and the infidels, not knowing what book it was, declared it was the best poetry they had ever heard. That book brought George Washington down on his knees in the snow at Valley Forge, and led the dying Prince Albert to ask some one to sing "Rock of Ages."

I tell you that the worst attempted crime of the century is the attempt to destroy this book. Yet infidelity, loathsome, stenchful, leprous, pestiferous, rotten monster, stretches out its hand, abhorous with the second death, to take the hand of this republic. It stretches it out through seductive magazines, and through lyceum lectures, and through caricatures of religion. It asks for all that part of the continent already fully settled and the two-thirds not yet occupied. It says: "Give me all east of the Mississippi, with the keys of the church and with the Christian printing presses. Then give me Wyoming, give me Alaska, give me Montana, give me Colorado, give me all the states west of the Mississippi and I will take those places and keep them by right of possession long before the Gospel can be fully intrenched.

And this suitor presses his case appallingly. Shall the banns of that marriage be proclaimed? "No!" say the home missionaries of the west, a martyr band of whom the world is not worthy, toiling amid fatigues and malaria and starvation. "No, not if we can help it. By what we and our children have suffered we forbid the banns of that marriage!" "No!" say all patriotic voices. "Our institutions were bought at too dear a price and were defended at too great a sacrifice to be so cheaply surrendered." "No!" says the God of Bunker Hill and Independence hall and Gettysburg. "I did not start this nation for such a farce." "No!" cry 10,000 voices. "To infidelity this land shall not be married!"

But there is another suitor that presents his claim for the hand of this republic. He is mentioned in the verse following my text where it says: "As the bridegroom rejoiceth over the bride, so shall thy God rejoice over thee." It is not my figure. It is the figure of the Bible. Christ is so desirous to have this world love Him that He stops at no humiliation of simile. He compares His grace to spittle on the eyes of the blind man. He compares Himself to a hen gathering the chickens, and in my text He compares Himself to a suitor begging a hand in marriage. Does this Christ, the King, deserve this land? Behold Pilate's hall and the insulting expectoration on the face of Christ. Behold the Calvarean massacre and the awful hemorrhage of five wounds. Jacob served 14 years for Rachel, but Christ, my Lord, the King, suffered in torture 33 years to win the love of this world. As often princesses at their very birth are pledged in treaty of marriage to princes or kings of earth, so this nation at its birth was pledged to Christ for Divine marriage.

Before Columbus and his 120 men embarked on the Santa Maria, the Pinta and the Nina for their wonderful voyage, what was the last thing they did? They sat down and took the holy sacrament of the Lord Jesus Christ. After they caught the first sight of this country and the gun of one ship had announced it to the other vessels that land had been discovered, what was the song that went up from all the three decks? "Gloria in Excelsis." After Columbus and his 120 men had stepped from the ship's deck to the solid ground, what did they do? They all knelt and consecrated the new world to God. What did the Huguenots do after they landed in the Carolinas? What did the Holland refugees do after they landed in New York? What did the pilgrim fathers do after they landed in New England? With bended knee and uplifted face and Heaven besieging prayer, they took possession of this continent for God. How was the first American congress opened? By prayer, in the name of Jesus Christ. From its birth this nation was pledged for holy marriage with Christ.

And then see how good God has been to us! Just open the map of the continent and see how it is shaped for immeasurable prosperities. Navigable rivers, more in number and greater than any other land, rolling down on all sides into the sea, prophesying large manufactures and easy commerce. Look at the great ranges of mountains timbered with wealth on the top and sides, metaled with wealth underneath. One hundred and eighty thousand square miles of coal. One hundred and eighty thousand square miles of iron. The land so contoured that extreme weather hardly ever lasts more than three days—extreme heat or extreme cold. Climate for the most part bracing and favorable for brawn and brain. All fruits, all minerals, all harvests. Scenery displaying an autumnal pageantry that no land on earth pretends to rival. No South American earthquakes. No South asiatic mists. No London fogs. No Egyptian plagues. No Germanic divisions. The people of the United States are happier than any people on earth. It is the testimony of every man that has traveled abroad. For the poor, more sympathy; for the industries, more opportunity. Oh, how good God was to our fathers, and how good he has been to us and to our children. To Him—blessed be His mighty name—to Him of cross and triumph, to Him who still remembers the prayer of the Huguenots and Holland refugees and the pilgrim fathers—to Him shall this land be married. Oh, you Christian patriots, by your contributions and your prayers, hasten on the fulfillment of the text.

Needed Him.

"I must send them all circulars," exclaimed the man who was addressed by his acquaintances as professor. "Those men who have testified in the investigation ought to know about me."

"What business are you in?"

"I have a new system of memory training."—Washington Star.

GIRLS WHO WEAR CROWNS.

The Beautiful But Melancholy Alix and the Gay and Frolicsome Wilhelmina.

The evident beauty of the Russian empress' face is so overshadowed by an expression of patient, pathetic melancholy that she arouses sympathy and curiosity in every one. Undoubtedly the czarina is not a happy woman. Russian empresses have little enough to inspire content, and this pale, pretty creature, with the sad eyes and mouth, endures daily such tests of her physical strength and moral courage as few American women would care or consent, for all the Russian state and power, to undergo. Her husband, on the whole, is a kindly young man, who is considerate, even affectionate, but he can do very little to mitigate the severe, even cruel Russian court etiquette to which she must bow; with her she shares the daily terror of assassination, and with his people he laments the fact that the empress has not yet given an heir to his throne.

In spite of her beauty and her virtues, the empress is not loved by the Russian people nor consulted and confided in by her husband, as her mother-in-law, Empress Dagmar, the dowager, was. She has neither the robust physique nor the ambitious interests of the clever dowager, and court intrigues, squabbles and etiquette distress, disgust and fatigue her. It is a fact well known that up to the very day before her betrothal she resisted the change of her religion and Christian name that every Russian empress consort must yield to; again and again she has fainted at the long receptions, balls and reviews, through which, in spite of her illness, she is obliged to stand, and the only true comfort and solace she finds in her dreary splendor is the personal services and attentions she is allowed to lavish on her tiny girls.

In sharp contrast to this sad-faced empress of the vastest domain in Europe is the young, pretty queen of the tiniest, cleanest, freest little kingdom on that continent. The queen of Holland lives far more like a popular, petted young belle of society than a sovereign. While the czarina never puts her foot out the door without the heaviest guard, Queen Wilhelmina goes shopping, walking, skating and riding when the whim seizes her, with a single attendant, and that often but a favorite lady in waiting. For all her love of junketing, dancing and outdoor sports the Dutch queen is a conscientious worker, and just now she feels deeply interested in the international peace congress that meets on the 18th of May in one of her palaces, the House-in-the-Wood, just outside The Hague.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

ANIMALS THAT CLIMB.

Some of Them Learn with the Utmost Difficulty the Use of Trees.

In New York men cheerfully go up to the twenty-seventh story in elevators, and sleep on the third floor o' nights; but primeval man is not a climber, nor do animals take to it without a long course of development.

African natives who have lived in one-story huts show the greatest fear of climbing stairs, and sometimes go up on hands and knees. Dogs often have to be trained to climb stairs, instinctively distrusting the upper stories. It has been conjectured that this is because the dog's forelegs break easily below the shoulder, and the beast seems to realize this. The fox has no such fear, and has been known to climb a tree with plenty of small limbs to the height of 17 feet.

Swimming comes easier than climbing to most animals, as well as to many race of men. Rats and guinea pigs can swim well and climb not at all, although their cousins, the squirrels, are at home in the trees.

Prairie dogs, which live in plains and have no used for climbing, can be taught the trick, but when they try to jump from a height they usually fall on their heavy, stupid heads, and either stun themselves or break their teeth. They lack the inherent instinct that should teach them what can and what cannot be done. Australian rabbits, of the same family of rodents, can climb very well, having lived for generations in forests.

Bears can climb well if little, but the grizzly and other large species stay mainly on the ground. A bear always climbs down a tree sit-ern foremost, as does the domestic cat until she has nearly reached the ground, when she turns and jumps; but most wild cats run down the trunk head first, even the heavy leopard being a more skillful climber than the light house cat. The tiger and lion, however, do not climb, for no discoverable reason except that they fear falling on account of their weight.—N. Y. World.

Wise Squirrels.

In Kansas City there is a park which is near a school, and in the trees of this park are many squirrels. All day long they frick and scamper about, with their mushy tails up over their backs, peering around the limbs of the trees with their little, beady eyes at the grown-up people without a bit of fear. But as soon as they hear the bell for school to let out they scamper for their nests, and by the time the first boy is out of the door there is not a squirrel to be seen. The wise little animals know that when the bell rings the boys will come out and stone them. More than this, the squirrels have learned never to show themselves on Saturday. This speaks well for the smartness of the squirrels, but it speaks badly for the Kansas City boys.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

The Inference Drawn.

Mrs. Chaheoal—Dey sey dat Lize Hygfoot hez had fo'teen offahs ob marr'ge!

Mrs. Johnsing—Law, but she must be a hard wukin' gal!—Kansas City Independent.

NOTHING MORE WANTED.

American Principles Are All That Are Necessary in Handling the Philippines.

At the expansion mass meetings held in Chicago a set of resolutions introduced by Gen. John C. Black, indorsing the administration's course in the Philippines as thus far developed, was unanimously adopted.

The fifth of these resolutions declared as follows: "The government of the United States should be, and we believe will be, to—————principles in the disposition of all questions that may arise in the future in our relationship with the people of the Philippine islands."

Every true American will heartily join in this expressed hope for the maintenance of American principles in the ultimate solution of the Philippines problem. If those principles are upheld with steadfast faith, not only will such loyalty to the right do away with all danger arising from the existing situation, but it will add infinitely to the luster and glory of the American name, and will place this government forever beyond the reproach of having cleaved to its principles only until tempted to their repudiation by a sudden prospect of dazzling profit and power, which it was too weak in moral force to resist.

A constant loyalty to American institutions demands that now, as never before, this government shall announce to the other great powers of the world the potency and the vitality of the Monroe doctrine as controlling its international policy. Under that doctrine, since it was first formulated, the United States has consistently claimed control of affairs in the western hemisphere, forbidding the encroachments of monarchical governments within this legitimate sphere of American influence. American honesty in voicing and enforcing the Monroe doctrine must be proved by a sturdy refusal to repudiate that doctrine, no matter what the inducement.

If the government of the United States is "true to its principles in the disposition of all questions that may arise in the future in its relationship with the people of the Philippine islands," it will not permanently hold those islands as an American colonial possession. Such acquisition would be contrary to the spirit of the Monroe doctrine—a doctrine as binding upon us in honor, as it has her before been upon the land-hungry governments of the old world.—St. Louis Republic.

"CURRENCY REFORM."

Scheme of the Republicans to Place and Keep the Money Power in Control.

After much tribulation the house republican committee has, it is alleged, brought forth a scheme of currency "reform."

This scheme is not so broad, nor so long as that devised by the Indianapolis "sound" money convention. It is a compromise and it will satisfy nobody.

Briefly summadized, it is as follows:

"The redemption of all obligations of the government in gold on demand.

"Greenbacks, when once redeemed for gold, to be reissued only for gold.

"Permitting national banks to issue notes to the purchase of their government bonds deposited in the treasury, instead of 90 per cent., as at present.

"Permitting the minimum capital of national banks to be $25,000, instead of $50,000, as at present."

There is nothing in this about making silver dollars redeemable in gold, nor is there a suggestion of making all the outstanding obligations of this nation gold obligations.

Neither is there a hint of placing the issuing of paper money entirely in the hands of the banks.

It seems that the house republican caucus committee was not prepared to approve "wild cat" money secured only by the office furniture of the banking houses.

It must not be concluded, however, that the schemes of the money power to place the gold standard absolutely in power will be abandoned.

The plan suggested by the caucus is simply an "entering wedge." Later on stronger methods will be advocated.

If the republicans remain in power the "wild cat" money scheme will be urged, and if the house and senate can be controlled such a plan will finally be put into execution. The only hope for the people to escape slavery to the money power rests in the success of democracy.—Chicago Democrat.

McKinley Wants to Quit.

Recent advices from the president's Philippine commission indicate that Mr. McKinley is indeed anxious to "let go of the bear." These outgivings talk of "autonomy," "local self-government" and almost everything except empire and a mailed fist. The thorough whipping of Aguinaldo's main force or the capture or surrender of the insurgent leader would in all probability be the signal for an end of the war. No attempt would be made to conquer the rest of the islands by force. The war might have been averted if the president's first proclamation had given any promise of freedom or even of autonomy to the inhabitants. Instead of this it proclaimed the "sovereignty" of the United States and called upon the natives to "submit" or be killed. The responsibility for this cruel war cannot be escaped by Mr. McKinley, but if he can decently get rid of the issue of subjugating, annexing and ruling the islands, as Mr. Carnegie anticipates, he will no doubt do it with alacrity.—N. Y. World.

——Notwithstanding the carefully-censored dispatches from Manila and the reports of continuous successes over the insurgents, it is evident that the situation there is not what the administration would like it to be, and that we have bought no little trouble with the $20,000,000 paid to Spain for the Philippines.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

ALGER WILL STAY IN.

The Cabinet Incubus Will Not Be Affected by Public Sentiment.

The talk of Alger entering the senate in succession to McMillan, of Michigan, with the admission of Gen. Alger himself that the position would not be displeasing to him, although he "would not scramble for it," has been taken as an indication that the secretary of war has concluded to do the president the kindness of slipping off his shoulders before the race for the presidency begins.

The inference is unwarranted. Gen. Alger has publicly announced his determination to retain his place in the cabinet until the end of President McKinley's term unless the president turns him out, and if the president should take that radical step the man from Michigan will "know the reason why" and make matters warmer than the president cares to have them next year.

Without doubt, should President McKinley be given a second term he will reconstruct his cabinet to the extent of one member at least, and Gen. Alger might not be invited to retain his seat at the council table. A seat in the senate would then be a good place to shift to.

Senator McMillan's term does not expire until 1901, the senatorial and presidential terms expiring together. If Alger should be elected senator he can still keep his promise to hold on to his seat in the cabinet to the last day of McKinley's term as president.

Friends of McKinley who hope to get the Michigan incubus off the president's shoulders before the campaign of 1900 is under full headway are reckoning without their Alger. He is neither to be coaxed, bluffed nor tricked out of his determination to have his own way and to hold on to whatever he has bought and paid for.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

THE CAMPAIGN OUTLOOK.

Chances Are Good for a Democratic Victory in Ohio Next Year.

"Between Hanna and Foraker," says the Philadelphia Ledger, "the state of Ohio has 'a right smart chance' to go democratic this year." Ohio democrats may fairly be congratulated on the favorable outlook, but there is a matter that is of far greater general importance than the result of this year's Ohio election, and that is as to how Ohio and some other states will go next year, when a president of the United States and a new house of congress will be elected. Local democratic victories are desirable, but the democracy wants to score a national victory next year, and it is to be observed that some leading republicans regard such an achievement as absolutely out of the question.

Senator Hanna says that McKinley will be renominated and reelected, and Senator Depew says the republican party will have practically no opposition. Such talk as this carries little weight ordinarily, but these republicans expect the democrats to divide on national issues next year, as they did in 1896, and if this expectation is reasonable, the forecasts of the probabilities in which these republican senators have permitted themselves is far from unreasonable. The democrats cannot expect to win if they are not united.

It is to be hoped, therefore, that democratic victories in this year's state elections will enlarge the possibility of democratic victory in next year's national elections. A party that survived a 24-year period of exclusion from federal power and patronage can easily repeat that experience if it wishes to do so, but its members in general prefer that it should not wish to do so.—Binghamton (N. Y.) Leader.

POINTED PARAGRAPHS.

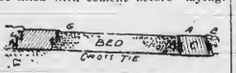
——Mr. McKinley is going to find it hard sledding to carry both Alger and the electoral college.—St. Louis Republic.

——It is said that the anti-Hanna republicans of Ohio are as busy as bees. Contemplating their labors, Mr. Hanna is talking harmony. That's him you hear humming to the busy bees: "Honey, do you love your man?"—Albany Argus.

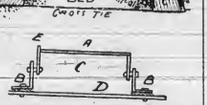
——Mark Hanna said that a meeting of the republican national committee is unnecessary. There is nothing for the members of that organization to do but to carry out the orders of its chairman, who is also the whole thing.—St. Louis Republic.

——Secretary Alger announces for the half-dozenth time that he has no intention of resigning. Why should he except upon the president's invitation? It is too late to load up a scapegoat. Mr. McKinley must carry the beef ring's burden.—N. Y. World.

——The factional fight within the republican party of Ohio has been an interesting feature of the game of politics for years and now that it threatens to rob the president of his own state delegation in next year's convention it assumes national importance. The developments of the state convention next month will be awaited with anxiety at the white house and with more than ordinary interest by politicians the country over.—Minneapolis Times.



——Sooner or later the attempt to hold and rule the Philippines as a subjugated colony must and will be given up, for time and events are sure to demonstrate to the American people its utter folly and enormous cost both in blood and treasure. The sooner President McKinley begins to study the problem of how to unload his Philippine policy the better it will be for him. For unless he shall get rid of it betimes it is sure to break his political neck.—Grand Rapids Democrat.



AGRICULTURAL HINTS.

STEEL WAGON TRACK.

The One Tested by the Minnesota Experiment Station Is Not an Unqualified Success.

The steel track at the Minnesota experiment station is a portion of the track prepared by the office of road inquiry of the department of agriculture for the Omaha exposition last year. The steel rails, a, are eight inches wide, with one-half inch flange, e, at the outer edge, and 30 feet long. They are made of channel steel, and to the channel steel are bolted L-shaped strips of steel, b, which extend outward. There are no timbers used. The channel, c, should be filled with cement before laying.

CROSS SECTION OF STEEL TRACK.

This gives a base for each rail to rest upon a little over a foot wide. The rails are tied together every eight or ten feet by means of bars or cross ties, d, which are bolted to the bottoms of the rails.

This road has been tried but little. It was laid only a month or so before the ground froze last fall. The first experiment of trying it with dirt or gravel surfacing material showed that it was not a success, as the wheels of the wagon would run off the track and cut into the gravel or dirt. The edges of the rails being smooth, the wheels would not come back onto the track readily. Broken stone and cobble stones were then used and helped to return the wheels to the track, these stones being laid both inside and outside of each rail, as shown at g.

The steel would probably cost $2,500 per mile. It would work much better with macadam between the tracks and for a foot or two on either side. This would bring the cost up to the cost of macadam. It may be that the rails can be made in some different form that will hold the wheels on the track, and so constructed that the wheels will easily come back on to the track when in a rut beside the rails, though it is quite likely that stone will be necessary to accomplish this last. — Orange Judd Farmer.

WHAT AILED THE SAW.

An Old Story Applied to Road Officials Who Know Nothing About Their Business.

Several townships in the vicinity of Laconia, N. H., are said to be dissatisfied with the new system of maintaining the highways and wish to go back to the old highway district system. The Laconia Democrat says the new system is all right and adds: "Some of the towns near here are loud in their denunciations of the present law, but come to investigate it is either a case where no money is raised or like the man and the saw. A carpenter went to a professional saw-filer with a hand saw to be fixed; the professional jointed, set it and filed it. In a short time the carpenter came back and said he: 'This saw don't go right.' The old filer jointed it again and filed it as well as he could. The next morning the carpenter came back with the saw, and in the same language: 'This saw don't go right.' The professional took it, put on his glasses and sawed off several pieces of timber and it cut true and very nicely. He handed it back to the man and said he: 'The trouble is not so much with the saw as the durned fool that runs it.' Where the law does not work right it is not the fault of the law but the men that run it; a thousand times rather shift officers than vote to go back."

Trenching Land for Crops.

Years ago English farm papers had much to say about the advantage of trenching land, especially in gardens, instead of plowing it. Labor on the farm has always been so cheap that trenching or hand digging of land is often resorted to to give employment to labor at low rates. It is a waste of labor mostly, for the hand digging of trenches does not fit the soil any better for crops than will the subsoil plow, which merely follows the surface plow, pulverizing the subsoil without bringing it up. In fact, the subsoil plow, except on the very richest land, does better work than can be done by trenching. In hand digging much of the subsoil is pretty sure to be mixed with surface soil. Only very rich soil can bear such mixture without injury to the first crop after it has been done.

A Pound of Onion Seed.

Replying to the question as to how many bushels of onion seeds one pound of seed will produce, a writer says: "The more thickly the seed is sown the smaller the sets, hence it is difficult to estimate the number of bushels from one pound, the sets varying in size from a pea to a large marble. It requires about five pounds of seed per acre for an onion crop and about eight times as much for sets. A pound contains about 115,000 seeds, and if allowance is made for loss in germination, etc., at least one bushel of sets can be obtained, and probably much more under favorable conditions."

Should Not Expect It.

No rural community that does not make some effort to procure good roads should expect free delivery of mails.

COLORING BUTTER.

A Dairy Paper Presents Some Very Strong and Logical Arguments Against the Practice.

If oleomargarine were put upon the market undisguised and sold honestly for what it is there could be no ground for complaint, either moral or legal. If people knowing what it is deliberately buy it, they have a perfect right to do so, and any law forbidding its manufacture or sale would be not only unfair and unjust, but in direct violation of the letter and spirit of the rights of American free men. But there is, we presume, no case on record where uncolored oleomargarine was offered for sale as oleomargarine and sold for use as a substitute for butter. If it were not colored to resemble butter the amount sold would never trouble any butter-maker. In fact if there were no butter color there would practically be no oleomargarine sold. It is in coloring it, shaping it and stamping it to resemble butter that the fraud consists. It is against the butter color that the law is aimed.

In the same way so-called butter, ringed, streaked, striped and spotted, without regard to previous condition or composition, is colored and molded to imitate first-class butter. The original stuff out of which this process butter is compounded is but little, if any, better than the raw material of oleomargarine. But butter color cures all defects for the purpose of sale, just as with oleomargarine.

Against this and process butter all real dairymen wage open and relentless war, but with the utmost inconsistency they take the very same butter color and use it precisely as the oleomargarine and process people do—for the same purpose, too: that is, for giving their butter a uniform and attractive color, the color of the best butter when at its best—Jersey butter from June grass. The difference is of degree and not of kind—of bad, worse, worst. The whole practice is inexcusable!—Jersey Bulletin.

HINTS FOR THE DAIRY.

A cow abominates an unclean person.

Many dairymen feed too much; more feed too little.

Cows need roots from October to May for best results.

Salting the cows is one of the things too often neglected.

There is good reason to believe the colostrum, or first mess, should be divided between the cow and calf.

In dairying brains are needed as much as "blood;" yet the amount of brains is not as essential as the quality.

Most cows prostrated with fever can be cured if prompt attention is given. The remedy is not physic, but warmth.

Chewing tobacco or swearing (according to some) will dry up cows. I know if I hear any swearing the swearer "dries up" mighty quick.

The greatest blessing that ever comes to a dairyman is a sweet-tempered wife, who can make fine butter. I know this by experience. The wife appreciates having her husband say nice things about her and her work. — Midland Farmer.

HANDY LITTLE THING.

False Bottom to the Milk Pail Is a Great Promoter of Cleanliness in the Dairy.

Cleanliness in the dairy can be increased by making a wooden wheel the size of the bottom of the milk pail (a), nailing it to a wood hoop (b), so the edge will come above the wheel and thus make a false bottom for the milk pail. Make just large and small enough so the pail will fit close enough to carry the false bottom without touching it. When through milking the bottom can be removed by shoving it off the pail. When milking in the barnyard or open field a fake bottom of this kind is very handy.—S. Bibby, in Farm and Home.

AN AID TO CLEANLINESS.

For an Excellent Reason.

"Mr. Speaker," said the honorable member from Cattawampus county, in a voice that trembled with indignation, "I wish, sir, to refute the assertion that the people of my section of the state prefer the muddy, bottomless, barbarous and beastly roads of their ancestors to the hard, firm roads that mark the advance of civilization. I wish, I say, to refute that imputation!"

"Well," said the speaker after a pause of several moments, "why don't you?"

"I can't!" responded the honorable member from Cattawampus, wiping the perspiration from his brow and sitting down.—Chicago Tribune.

San Jose Scale Specific.

More than one authority states that there is practically no interest in California over the San Jose scale. The San Jose spray is considered a sovereign remedy. The formula for it is follows: Unslaked lime, 40 pounds; salt, 15 pounds; sulphur, 20 pounds. Ten pounds of lime are first slaked and boiled with the sulphur in 20 gallons of water for three hours. The remaining lime and salt are then added, and the whole boiled an hour longer. Sufficient water is then added to bring the whole solution up to 60 gallons, which is strained before using.—Guy E. Mitchell, in Farm and Fireside.

MILITARY STATION ON YUKON.

Capt. Ray Laying Plans for Placing an Army Post Near the Boundary Line in Alaska.

Capt. Ray, who will be placed in command of the military district of Alaska, has been busy about the war department getting everything in readiness for his departure, which will take place in July. He will sail from San Francisco or Seattle with supplies for a company for one year. He expects to establish headquarters on the Yukon, at Mission Creek, which is near the boundary line. Here he will build a regular military station for the accommodation of his troops and supplies. A military reservation will be established there, the boundaries of which will depend upon the judgment of Capt. Ray. A forest reservation also will be established, so that there may be no question about a plentiful supply of timber for the military station. Capt. Ray will take two sawmills with him to manufacture the lumber which will be necessary for the new station. He will go by boat by way of the mouth of the Yukon river and will have all his supplies taken in by that route. Capt. Ray expresses no doubt as to the practicability of the Copper river route, which Assistant Secretary Meikeljohn has ordered established and which will be examined by Capt. Abercrombie. Capt. Ray has a plan for the establishment of stations along this route, 20 miles apart, placed in charge of natives. By this system, he believes, it will be possible to reach the Yukon country at all seasons of the year.

DARKEST CHINA.

Experience of Walter K. Brice on a Long Surveying Tour in the Celestial Kingdom.

Seven hundred and seventy-five miles on foot, carrying a surveyor's chain through a section of China unknown to travelers of other nations, is the recent experience of Walter K. Brice. While Stewart M. Brice was fighting the Spaniards at Santiago his brother went to Manila as a member of Gen. Anderson's staff. Later he left the army and crossed over to Shanghai, where he met a party of engineers who had come from the United States to make a sort of preliminary survey of the China Central railroad, which Senator Brice was promoting when he died. In describing his experience he said:

"An American railway in China is practically an assured fact. Nothing on earth can stop it now except the disruption of the Chinese empire, which is within the realm of possibility, but is not at all probable. From Shanghai we went up the Yang-Tse-Kiang river in boats to Hin Kow. There are no roads, in the American sense, merely paths through the rice fields. Sometimes we slept in old temples. Occasionally we would come across some kind-hearted mundarin who would allow us to unroll our beds for the night on his porch.

"At every village we found crowds waiting to see us. Few of the thousands of men we met had ever seen any other kind of a human being than a Chinaman."

The Lash for Wife-Beaters.

The crime of wife-beating has become so common of late that some extraordinary punishment seems to be needed for its suppression. When garroting became common in the streets of London some years ago the restoration of the whipping post for those convicted of the crime proved an effectual remedy. The New York Herald thinks perhaps a temporary resort to it here in the case of wife beaters would prove efficacious.

Long-Lived Ballet Dancers.

A German statistician has discovered that ballet dancers, as a rule, attain an age much above the average. Carlotta Grisi is 77 years of age and Andalia Ferraris 78. Taglioni was over 80 years old when she died, and Fanny Elssler was 74. Rosita Mauri, well over 50, is still dancing at the Paris grand opera.

Algerian Iron Ore in France.

The quantity of Algerian iron ore imported into France during the last year is returned at 68,248 tons, compared with only 62,100 tons in 1897.

THE MARKETS.

CINCINNATI, May 29.
LIVE STOCK—Cattle, common	$3 10	@	$ 4 50
Select shippers	4 60	@	4 75
CALVES—Fair to good light	6 25	@	7 00
HOGS—Coarse and heavy	3 25	@	3 35
Mixed packers	3 70	@	3 80
Light shippers	3 60	@	3 80
SHEEP—Choice	3 25	@	4 00
LAMBS—Spring	5 00	@	6 00
FLOUR—Winter patents	3 40	@	3 65
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 red	73	@	74
No. 3 red		@	71
Corn—No. 2 mixed		@	34½
Oats—No. 2		@	28½
Rye—No. 2		@	60
HAY—Prime to choice		@	11 00
PROVISIONS—Mess pork		@	8 10
Lard		@	4 82½
BUTTER—Choice dairy	10½	@	11
Prime to choice creamery	15	@	19
APPLES—Choice to fancy	4 00	@	4 50
POTATOES—Per bu	40	@	48
CHICAGO.
FLOUR—Winter patents	3 65	@	3 75
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 red	76	@	77
No. 3 Chicago spring	69	@	72½
CORN—No. 2		@	32½
OAT—No. 2	27	@	29½
POUK—Mess	8 05	@	8 10
LARD—Steam	4 97½	@	5 00
NEW YORK
FLOUR—Winter patents	3 85	@	4 00
WHEAT—No. 2 red		@	80½
CORN—No. 2 mixed		@	36½
RYE—No. 2		@	60½
OATS—Mixed		@	31
PORK—Mess	8 25	@	9 00
LARD—Western		@	5 00
BALTIMORE.
FLOUR—Family	3 35	@	3 60
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 red	76½	@	76½
Southern	71	@	77
Corn—Mixed	37	@	37¼
Oats—No. 2 white		@	33
Rye—No. 2 western		@	58
CATTLE—First quality	4 60	@	4 80
HOGS—Western	4 10	@	4 20
INDIANAPOLIS.
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 red		@	72½
Corn—No. 2 mixed		@	32½
Oats—No. 2 mixed		@	27½
LOUISVILLE.
FLOUR—Winter patent	3 75	@	4 10
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 red		@	72
Corn—Mixed		@	37½
Oats—Mixed		@	30
PORK—Mess		@	10 00
LARD—Steam		@	5 00

Sixty Miles an Hour.

A steam motor car, designed for use on the railroads, recently made a trial trip, going at the rate of sixty miles an hour. This will probably be as much of a record beater as has Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, the quickest known road to health. There is no quicker way for sufferers from all stomach ills to reach strength and happiness than by this great remedy. It cures indigestion, constipation, nervousness, liver and kidney trouble, and best of all the user stays cured.

Opinions of a Pessimist.

The fact that you can make a mule work in harness constitutes one of the chief differences between a mule and a genius.

Every dog has his day. The cat is on the night force.

The man who doesn't lift his hat when he meets his wife probably refers to his mother as "the old lady."

A man seldom marries his first love. When he gets old enough to take a wife she is generally busy cutting down papa's pants for Willie.

Some men are born rich and some are born lucky, but they all have to lose their milk teeth and have the measles just the same.—Chicago Post.

The Case in a Nutshell.

Alabastine is a permanent coating for walls and ceilings, designed to take the place of kalsomines and wall paper. Alabastine sets with the wall. It is practically a stone cement, as hard and smooth as paint, but much less expensive, and is applied just as easily by anyone. It can be mixed with either cold or hot water, and applied with a kalsomine brush. It is clean, healthful, and economical. Every one of the strong points of Alabastine, proved to be such by the test of twenty years, is picked up by every new manufacturer of ordinary kalsomine and claimed for his goods. These claims are absurd on their face. Alabastine alone can prove its durability by the test of time. It is sold by paint dealers, in 5-lb. packages, properly labeled.

Wanted a Door.

The sun blazing down on a race course, far, far east of Suez, and on a field of hot, excited horses and men, waiting till the eccentricities of the starter and an even more eccentric horse combine to get us in line. The patience of the former is at last exhausted. "Bring up that horse! Come up on that beast! You'll get into trouble over this, I tell you," and so forth. The Australian lightweight replies patiently: "I can't help it, sir. This is a cab horse, this 'orse is. He won't start till the door shuts—and I haven't got a door!"—Academy.

Exasperating.

Mrs. Higgsley—Clara, I must insist that you send young Mr. Gramley away earlier. It was long after 11 o'clock last night when you closed the front door after him.

Clara—I know it, mamma, and I have made up my mind a dozen different times to make him leave early, but he has a way, somehow, of always giving the impression along after the small hours of the evening has passed that he is just about to say something one has been waiting for. It's awfully exasperating.—Chicago Evening News.

Do Your Feet Ache and Burn?

Shake into your shoes, Allen's Foot-Ease, a powder for the feet. It makes tight or New Shoes feel Easy. Cures Corns, Bunions, Swollen, Hot, Callous, Sore, and Sweating Feet. All Druggists and Shoe Stores sell it, 25c. Sample sent FREE. Address, Allen S. Olmsted, Le Roy, N. Y.

Ancient Roquefort Cheese.

It is said that Roquefort cheese dates back to Pliny's time. Some of it smells as though it were a great deal older than that.—Boston Transcript.

More Information.

Tommy—Paw, what do they put water in stock for?

Mr. Figg—To sonk the investors with, my son.—Indianapolis Journal.

A Powerful Incentive.

The condition of a man's liver has more to do with his reputation for generosity than is generally understood.—St. Louis Star.

The Best Prescription for Chills, and fever is a bottle of GROVE'S TASTELESS CHILL TONIC. It is simply iron and quinine in a tasteless form. No cure—no pay. Price, 50c.

Look the Same.

Yeast—Did you ever take any of those mud baths?

Crimsonbeak—Well, I ran for office once.—Yonkers Statesman.

To Cure a Cold in One Day

Take Laxative Bromo Quinine Tablets. All druggists refund money if it fails to cure. 25c.

The man who talks most about the difficulties of faith, takes the absurdities of so-called science at a swallow.—Rum's Horn.

The Maid and the Miracle

Miss Lucy Tucker, the daughter of a prominent farmer of Versailles, Ind., was the victim of nervous prostration. Most of the time she was confined to bed, and was quite a case of St. Vitus' dance. It was a pitiful case which medical science failed to conquer. Finally a doctor prescribed Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. Her father said:

"We began giving the pills at once, and the next day we could see a change for the better in her. We gave her one pill after each meal until she was entirely well. She has not been sick a day since. We think the cure almost miraculous.

"FRANK TUCKER. Mrs. F. TUCKER."

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Tucker, being duly sworn, state that the foregoing is true in every particular.

HUGH JOHNSON, Justice of the Peace.

From the Republican, Versailles, Ind.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are never sold by the dozen or hundred, but always in packages. At all druggists, or direct from the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y., 50 cents per box, 6 boxes $2.50.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla is the Medicine of Auld Lang Syne

Old friends, old wine, and the old doctor are the trusty kinds. For half a century has been the Sarsaparilla which the people have bought when they were sick and wanted to be cured. If the best is none too good for you, you will get Ayer's. One bottle of Ayer's Sarsaparilla contains the strength of three of the ordinary kind.

AYER'S

BEFORE THE DAY OF

SAPOLIO

THEY USED TO SAY "WOMAN'S WORK IS NEVER DONE."

DR. MOFFETT'S TEETHINA TEETHING POWDERS

Aids Digestion, Regulates the Bowels, Makes Teething Easy. TEETHINA Relieves the Bowel Troubles of Children of Any Age. Costs Only 25 Cents. Ask Your Druggist for It.

Send your name and address on a postal, and we will send you our 156-page illustrated catalogue free.

WINCHESTER REPEATING ARMS CO.
176 Winchester Avenue, New Haven, Conn.

000s of UNSOLICITED TESTIMONIALS SAY

T. HILL MANSFIELD'S CAPILLARIS

Permanently cures all Itching, Burning, Scaley, Scalp and Skin Diseases, such as Salt Rheum, Eczema, Scald Head, Chilblains, Piles, Burns, Baby Humors, Dandruff, Itching Scalp, Falling Hair (thickening and making it Soft, Silky, and Luxuriant). All Face Eruptions (producing a Soft, Clear, Beautiful Skin and Complexion). It contains no Lead, Sulphur, Cantharides or anything injurious. An easy, great seller. Lady canvassers make $3 to $5 a day. Druggists or mail 50c. Capillaris Manufacturing Co., N. Y. Address T. HILL MANSFIELD, Agt., GLEN RIDGE, N. J.

As Black as your Hat DYE Your Whiskers

A Natural Black with Buckingham's Dye.

50 cts. of druggists or R. P. Hall & Co., Nashua, N. H.

What would the world do without ink? Just think of it!

CARTER'S INK IS THE BEST INK.

Forty years experience in the making. Costs you no more than poor ink. Why not have it?

"THE LIFE OF DEWEY" the world's greatest hero, by Murat Halstead. AGENTS WANTED. Only $1.50. OUTFIT FREE. S. C. MILLER, Lakeside Bldg., CHICAGO.

PISO'S CURE FOR CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS. Best Cough Syrup. Tastes Good. Use in time. Sold by druggists. CONSUMPTION 25 CTS

Ranches, Mines and Orchards

Are the basis of productive wealth in

New Mexico, Arizona, California

Cattle and sheep on the plains. Gold, silver, copper, iron and coal in the mountains. Luscious fruits and golden grains in the valleys. Abundant sunshine and pure air everywhere. A place to Make Money In.

Write for free pamphlets and information about homeseekers' excursion rates.

Address General Passenger Office,

The Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Railway, CHICAGO.

"BIG FOUR"

"The Sea Level Route" TO NEW YORK.

DOUBLE DAILY SERVICE.

WAGNER SLEEPING CARS.

DINING CARS.

E. E. INGALLS, President. K. C. McCORMICK, Pass. Traffic Mgr. WARREN J. LYNCH, Asst. Gen. Pass. & Ticket Agt.

READERS OF THIS PAPER DESIRING TO BUY ANYTHING ADVERTISED IN ITS COLUMNS SHOULD INSIST UPON HAVING WHAT THEY ASK FOR, REFUSING ALL SUBSTITUTES OR IMITATIONS.

WHEN WRITING TO ADVERTISERS please state that you saw the Advertisement in this paper.

BOONE CO., RECORDER.

Wednesday, May 31, 1899.

Advertising Rates:

One inch, one time.....$1.00
Each additional time.....25
Obituaries, Tributes of Respects or notices of a like nature, per inch .50

W. L. RIDDELL, - - Publisher.

We are authorized to announce J. W. KENNEDY, of Union, as a candidate for the Legislature, subject to the action of the Democratic party.

Neighborhood News.

Gasburg.

Blythe Buffington is still critically ill. Wheat will not yield as much as anticipated a month ago.

Miss Nannie Kritzer spent last Sunday with friends here.

John Klopp, who has been very sick for some time, is slowly improving.

Thieves raided Mrs. Henry Romine's chickens and carried off 125 broilers.

A soaking rain is badly needed. All kinds of vegetation is beginning to suffer.

Francesville.

The road workers are very busy now.

Misses Nannie Scothorn, Pearl and Alberta Moore and Mrs. Ed Markland visited the school, last Friday afternoon.

Miss Artie Davis and her mother were visiting Mrs. Wash Tanner, last week. They were delighted with this part of the country.

Omer Henry, a citizen of this place, received a first class certificate, Friday. We are delighted at his success, for we know he will make a good teacher.

Last Saturday evening, Mrs. Annie Brown, widow of the late Niel Brown, fell, hurting her shoulder and arm very badly. She was kindly cared for by the Misses Hoshal.

Erlanger.

The Erlanger ball team was badly defeated by the Constance team, Sunday.

The genial Capt. Harry Baker is on the sick list. It is hoped he will soon be on deck again.

The K. of P. Lodge nominated the following officers: C. C., Dr. McCollum; V. C., C. Withrow; Prelate, Chas. Durr; M. at W., Henn Placke; M. at A., Hy Meyers.

John Fisher met with an accident, last Friday, that could have been very serious. He and the Munch children were playing with an old toy cannon that had some dynamite in it, and when Fisher found it would not go off, he forced it and off went a thunderous report and part of his thumb.

Hathaway.

Tobacco plants are plentiful.

E. R. Smith finished planting corn last week.

Several from here delivered their wool last week.

Miss Ethel Terrill was visiting in this vicinity, last week.

Joseph Riddell was harvesting some excellent clover hay, last week.

E. E. Utz and father made a trip to Rabbit Hash, last Wednesday.

Some of the farmers are complaining of the Hessian fly injuring the wheat.

Rev. James A. Kirtley filled his regular appointments at Big Bone, last Saturday and Sunday.

Mrs. Hattie Adams and Miss Laura Adams, of Grant county, are visiting in this neighborhood.

Several from here attended the convention at Burlington, last Saturday, to elect their man for Senator.

Quite a crowd attended the Sunday-school convention at Big Bone, last Friday, and a good dinner was served on the grounds.

Richwood.

Mr. Joseph Collins and wife, of Crittenden, were here Monday morning.

The C. N. O. & T. P. R. R. commenced building a new depot here to day (Monday).

Dr. C. A. Menifee and wife are keeping house where Uncle Cam Wilson use to live.

The people of this place, although not approving of mass conventions, were well satisfied with the fair way in which the Senatorial Convention was carried on.

Mr. Hicks seems to be improving some, and is slowly regaining the use of his limbs.

Little Hugh Parker, who lives with Mr. Sam Taylor, fell from the barn loft and broke his arm.

Mr. John T. McElroy, aged 26, died May 23rd and was buried in Richwood cemetery on the 25th.

The Ladies' Missionary Union of Ebenezer Presbytery met in Richwood church May 24th. We had a fine representation of the devoted christian women of North Ky., and enjoyed their presence among us very much. We were pleased to see some of the noble christian women of Burlington in the gathering.

Walton.

Mr. Will Stephens, of Milldale, was visiting his friend, James Metcalfe, Sunday.

Mr. Will A. Wolfe and Miss Ethel Stephens, of Goshen were married on Thursday last.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Ransier will attend Commencement exercises of Hamilton College at Lexington, to witness the graduation of their daughter, Edna May.

George Stamler had a stroke of apoplexy, last Saturday, while on a fishing expedition at the Kensington pond. Dr. Jones pronounced it a light attack, and on Sunday the sufferer had regained consciousness.

The house on Epp Norman's place, one mile south of town, in which the small pox patients were corralled, was burnt to the ground with all the clothing, bedding, carpets and household utensils, by order of the Kenton County Court. Mr. Norman was paid $50. The new building cost him $120.

Saturday morning a hand-car was wrecked on the L. & N. at Muckoy's Fork by being run down by the construction train. Chas. Lermon, who had started to go to work that day, it seems, was suspicious of danger as the hand-car was running on train time. The peril came on a reverse curve and Charley, who was watching, gave the alarm as the train turned the curve not over 100 feet from them. The five men saved themselves by jumping, but the hand-car, coats and dinner buckets, Oh! where were they?

Rabbit Hash.

C. C. Craig is on the sick list.

John P. Ryle lost a fine cow the other night.

James Aylor shipped wool to Madison, Ind., last Tuesday night.

Lawreuce Phipps attended the dance at Sid Stephen's Saturday night.

Mrs. Solon Stephens is still suffering from the fall she got two weeks ago.

Several from this neighborhood attended the meeting at Big Bone, last Friday.

Chas. Wilson, wife and children, of Lawrenceburg, were visiting his father last Sunday.

J. J. Stephens shipped a nice lot of hogs, and Jeff Utz 26 lambs, to Cincinnati, Tuesday night.

Wm. Hodges gave the young folks a party, last Saturday night, which was a very pleasant affair.

Sid Stephens gave the young folks a dance, last Saturday night, which was enjoyed by all present.

John Palmer and wife, of Walton, were visiting their brother and sister, B. W. and Virgie Nelson, last week.

Last Tuesday Fred Utz and Bob Wilson received 5,808 lbs. of wool here and shipped the same to Louisville that night.

Bellevue.

John Rogers is progressing rapidly with his new dwelling.

D. M. Snyder has purchased a fine milch cow from J. E. Botts.

Many of the farmers were setting tobacco, last week, with good success.

O. N. Grant is having his residence painted. Otta believes in improving.

Bro. Hoover delivered an able sermon at the Baptist church, Sunday at 3 o'clock.

Sebern Scott and wife, of Indiana, were over Sunday, visiting his brothers and sisters.

Miss Hattie Huey returned to her home in Erlanger, Friday, after a weeks stay with her cousin, Miss Mary Huey.

Bro. Utz and family have returned home after a couple of weeks visit with their parents at Florence and Hathaway.

Lucus Kelly and Arch Acra were down at James Rogers' after ice for Bud Goodridge, who is thought to be to be taking typhoid fever.

The strawberry and ice cream festival, given by the ladies of the Baptist church, last Saturday evening, was well attended. The net proceeds was $50. The ladies are well pleased with their success, and desire to thank the friends and citizens for their liberal patronage.

Gunpowder.

Mrs. M. M. Tanner has the measles.

Ex-Sheriff Beall was in the neighborhood, last Friday.

Perry Utz had a valuable horse to die with lock jaw, last week.

T. O. Griffin and wife were guests of M. R. Tanner, last Sunday.

Uncle Jake Floyd was visiting J. H. Tanner, last Saturday night and Sunday.

Bob Snyder and family, of near Hebron, were guests of E. H. Snyder, last Sunday.

J. C. Hankins went to Cincinnati and purchased a new team of horses, last Thursday.

Uncle Mose Tanner, of near Limaburg, is doing some carpeuter work for W. A. Tanner.

Francis M. Keller preached at Hopeful, last Sunday morning, to a large and attentive audience.

Some of our farmers, who contemplate raising tobacco, are wishing for rain as the plants are ready.

Miss Marietta Riley's school closed at Pleasant Ridge, last Friday, after a term of three months. Dinner was served in the woods, after which games were played in which both the scholars and visitors participated. The visitors present were Sam Rouse, of Mt. Zion, Harry, Roy and Eugeula Riley, Clifford Norman, Henry Couner and Willie Fall, of Union.

Mr. Lovell F. Tanuer, formerly of this county, but for several years a resident of Milan, Ind., died in Cincinnati, last Saturday morning, at the home of his daughter, in the 80th year of his age. Mr. Tanner was a faithful member of the Lutheran church from early life up to the time of his death. Two sons and four daughters survive him, besides he leaves many relatives and friends to mouru his departure. The remains were taken to Moore's Hill, Ind., last Monday for burial.

Flickertown.

Bro. Hoover will preach at the Woolper school house next Sunday.

Some of the farmers in this neighborhood had to plant their corn over.

Several from this neighborhood attended the convention at Burlington, Saturday.

Uncle Andy Passons came near getting crippled while felling a tree, last Wednesday.

Louis Messmer's son-in-law, formerly of Newport, is now a resident of Stingy Lane.

Miss Sue Lonlaker, of Chinkapin Ridge, was visiting Geo. Hensley and wife, last Saturday.

Frank Casin, of Ludlow, was looking after his interests in this neighborhood one day last week.

Louis Lafever, the McVille photographer, was testing his machine on some of our good looking citizens, last Saturday.

Dr. Geo. F. Smith, of Welsburg, Ind., came over, one day last week, to see his sister, who is very low with typhoid fever.

Joe and John Feely, of the Bullittsville, neighborhood, were the guests of their brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Will Hall, last Sunday week.

A certain young lady near here is feeling very bad over a letter she wrote to a very dear friend of hers. She sent the letter to the Post office by a friend, and not having an envelope, she told him to get one at the office, but she forgot to tell him to whom to send it. The result was he sent to the wrong fellow.

While digging a cellar on his premises, last week, Leicester Nichols struck a stone wall about two feet beneath the surface of the earth. Upon investigating it proved to be the wall of an old cellar that had been filled up. When and by whom it was built no one knows. Mr. Nichols has owned the place for 40 years, and he says he never knew that there was ever a cellar there before. The wall was as straight and solid as it was the day it was put there. He left part of the old wall standing, and built the new one on it. He also found a horse shoe in the bottom of the old cellar, that was scarcely hurt by rust.

Union.

"Uncle Anse" Bristow has been suffering with a rising in his ear this week.

Rev. Davis preached at the Presbyterian church Sunday morning and evening.

Mrs. Robert Taggart visited her father in Jackson county, last week, the first time for 18 years.

Tommie Huey must be eating beans by this time, for he reported blooms a week ago. Tom is first, so far.

The infant son of Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Rachal was baptized at the Presbyterian church, Sunday morning.

Tobe Marshall, the king-fisherman of Guupowder, was in town, Tuesday, and reports crops and fishing good.

The many friends of Mrs. T. A. Huey regret to learn that her health has failed very rapidly for several months past.

Mott Houston has a cow that gives more milk to the square foot, and hates to do it worse, than any other cow in Kentucky.

Misses Annie Rice, of Covington, and Elizabeth Stephens, of Bullittsville, were guests of Mrs. J. W. Couner for ten days.

Bro. Snyder, of Bellevue, will find the latch-string hanging on the outside, and everything properly adjusted for observations.

Mrs. Spencer Smith has been suffering terribly with a rising on her hand. It resulted from the scratch of a pin, which, when received, attracted no attention.

Messrs. Byland and Fren, of Walton, were hustling insurance in this vicinity, and report first-class booms in their business. It is a pleasure to do business with such clever gentlemen.

Matson Rachal is laying new sills under the store, and levelling up for the new roof for which the Masons have contracted with Mr. Riggs, of Erlanger to put on. The lodge room will be papered and put in good order, too, before winter.

The protracted meeting at the Baptist church continued last week with much interest, Mr. Quizenbury preaching earnestly and forcibly. Nine persons made confessions up to Sunday night. At every service there is a good congregation.

Since it becomes plain to us that Rev. Presser did not intend to offend us, and has asked pardon, we freely grant him forgiveness, and will bury the hatchet now and here. This is the last, as I desired no notoriety in the beginning, and desire none now.

Lan Norman climbed 90 feet into a large tree for two young hawks, and after getting them, fixed steel traps near the box they were confined in, and caught both the parent hawks. He has the whole family in hoc, and takes great pleasure in exhibiting his prizes.

The Rice-Cleek wedding was quite a surprise to our people, and while the young folks have a host of friends who wish them all sorts of good luck and a happy, prosperous future, they will never forgive them for slipping up on them so completely" in this matter. Thursday about noon, Elbert came dashing through Union, with his bride, and they looked the very picture of youthful happiness, their faces radiant with health and joy. Mrs. John Garrison, Miss Kittie Cleek and Mr. Elsie Garrison escorted them to Covington, where they were united in the bonds of wedlock by Rev. Jones at 7 o'clock that evening.

Petersburg.

Mrs. Fred McCool is very sick.

Joe Morrison visited his brother at Rising sun, Sunday.

Gauey Pappet is the mill-wright at the Lawrenceburg flouring mill.

Frank Baker has started a restaurant and news stand at Lawrenceburg.

Mrs. Sarah Hoffman is seriously ill with a complication of diseases.

Frank Hiatt, of Pittsburg, Pa., is visiting his grand-father, Capt. Hiatt.

The Island Queen made her last trip Sunday and carried 2,000 people.

Ernest L. Grant was in town, one day last week. His health is improving.

Wheat crop in the bottoms promises a splendid yield so far and is all headed out.

The grass and weeds has been mowed off the cemetery, and it looks nice and clean.

Fleet Hoffman, Mike Tafferty and several other of Pete's coopers are at work in Covington.

A man that can not come up smiling in defeat as well as in success has no business in politics.

While trying to land a barge of sand at our wharf, the other day, it became unmanageable and sunk.

Thanks to old Bro. Waldo, of the Rising Sun Recorder, for friendly mention of some of our items.

Bud McInerny, Deputy County Clerk of Kenton county, was the guest of M. F. Wingate, Friday night.

Miss Ethel Terrill entertained a bevy of young folks at her home out on the Pike, Saturday evening.

Arthur Terrill met with another misfortune the other day. A young horse kicked and hurt him badly.

Tuesday was Decoration day and some of the graves in the cemetery were covered with flowers.

The Petersburg delegation got home from the mass meeting in time for Sunday-school the next day.

The cemetery directors are negotiating for two acres more of land on the east side for burial purposes.

Will Fenton has bought a $65 music box and has placed it in Buchanan & Berkshire's drug store, where it plays melodious melodies.

J. Frank Grant, of Baltimore, Md., is visiting his father here and superintending the erection of a nice monument in the cemetery.

In our last communication from here we said that Dr. Gill Rice was bound over to keep the peace by Judge Crisler, which was a mistake.

Lloyd Norris, of Osgood, Ind., was visiting his sister, Mrs. B. H. Berkshire, last week. Lloyed has grown to be a man weighing over 200 lbs.

J. J. Loder and Capt. Christy are painting Wm. Stephen's residence, and Joe Mcrrison and John Earley are painting Dick McWethy's residence.

The distillery closed down Saturday for the summer and may be for all time to come, as it has gone into the Trust. The cattle will be shipped Tuesday.

Chas. Williams, a young and industrious colored man, died of consumption, one day last week. Dart, as he was called, had lots of friends among the white people.

June 11th, is I. O. O. F. Memorial Day here, and the graves of all Odd-Fellow's in the cemetery will be decorated. A good program is on for the day, and all are invited.

The swells from the mail boat, Sunday, broke eight barges of coal loose at Lawrenceburg, which floated down opposite here, and two of them sunk with 20,000 bus. of coal on them. The Str. Gate City, tried to raise them, but failed.

As the Str. Gate City was passing up Sunday evening at about 4 p. m., with a number of barges loaded with pigiron and when nearly opposite the landing here, one of the barges collapsed and went to the bottom of the river in an instant, carrying with it two men, both of whom were drowned. One of the men came to the top and Ed Peas and Ira Theetge came near getting to him before he sank for the last time. The other man was never seen after the barge sank. We failed to learn their names or residence.

Marshal Harry Bahn went into the distillery, one day last week, on business, and some one on the second floor threw a bucket of white wash on him. He learned that Mark Gordon did it, and on Friday he met Mark near the mill office and asked if he did it? Mark said, "yes, what you going to do about it?" and struck at him. Harry warded off the blow and struck Mark a heavy blow on the mouth, making an ugly wound. Capt. Mathews separated them. Along in the evening Bob Hoffman, brother-in-law of Mark, assaulted the Marshal in front of Krutz's grocery Harry landed on Bob's head with his billie, knocking him down, then Dock Vesenmeir started at Harry with a spade, but Harry stool him off with his gun. It was a day of great excitement.

Constance.

Mr. P. Clut's wife has typhoid fever.

The Constance base ball club have received their new suits.

Mrs. Strubey, of Georgetown, Ohio, is visiting Mrs. H. Kottmeyer.

Master Joe West, of Mullensville, is visiting his sister, Miss Flora West.

Mr. L. A. Loder has a pocket knife which he has carried constautly since 1865.

Mr. M. Anderson had a cow which gave birth to triplets. Two of them are doing well.

Mr. Smith and sister, of Cincinnati, two mission workers, were in town Wdnesday, on mission work.

Mr. Lauer, a fisherman, had an epileptic fit and fell into the river and came near drowning, one day last week.

Sheriff Beall and County Attorney Lassing came down, last Monday, to serve a writ of possession on E. B. Rose, but were disappointed, as he had left.

Velmer Smith is visiting Mr. and Mrs. Henry Cottmeyer.—Walter Gordon, while taking some cattle through our town, Friday morning, had a very narrow escape from being killed. One of the cattle hooked him, jumped over Ben Hood's wire fence and ran to the river bank, and mired in the mud.—J. C. Hanklus was in our town, Thursday showing a very fine team he had purchased in town that day.—Mr. Ed Botts of Bellevue was in our town Friday. Come again Edward—glad to see you.—Roads are being repaired in this locality thanks be to goodness they needed it.—Many cherries and straw berries are being hauled to town.—The city sports are lufesting our town every Sunday now.—Miss Allie Butler who was voted by the Indianjshow the most popular youug lady in town was given a handsome lamp. Miss Sadie Zimmer was second.—Many attended the sale of Fred Proble (and of course stuff went high).—Rev. G. W. Watkins preached at the Christian church Saturday night.—Mrs. Geo. Rolson has been very sick but is on the mend now.—Mrs. John T. Moll has been very sick.—The Constance base ball team defeated the Erlanger team by a score of 17 to 4 Sunday.—Your correspondent was visiting friends at Waterloo Sunday.—Some from here went out on the beautiful Cincinnati and came back on the Louisville Sunday.—Edward Souther was visiting, his sister Sunday, Mrs. John Popham. Looks like Rosedale agrees with Edward, and future success is our wish to him.

Hebron.

Miss Neva Hafer spent Saturday night and Sunday very pleasantly with Miss Daisy Harding.—Mr. and Mrs. Noah Fealy were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Clore, Sunday.—Will Crisler, of Petersburg, called here Sunday. As to his host, we can not tell who he was.—Miss May Keck, of Walnut Hills, is visiting friends here.—Rev. Francis Keller, of Ill., delivered a very excellent sermon, here Sunday night. He is a brilliant speaker and touches the tender chords of a human heart.—Quite a number from this vicinity attended church and basket dinner at Mt. Pleasant Sunday.—The picnic next Saturday promises to be very delightful.—There will be a strawberry festival given by the Hebron church, next Saturday night, June 3. Every one come.

A CARD.

I wish to make the announcemeut to my friends and to the public, and find it more convenient to do so through the RECORDER, trusting, Mr. Editor, you will grant the space, that in the case of Ira D. Adams vs David H. Ryle, in the U. S. Court, in Covington, was decided by the Hon. Judge Evans in Ira D. Adams' favor, that the property which is involved in no one else but Ira D. Adams', and is not subject to other parties debts. Yours and oblige, IRA D. ADAMS, Sherman, Ky.

For sale—Two good milch cows. Enquire of N. E. Riddell at Burlington.

C. C. Hughes.

Buy a Buggy Where the Many Buy.

Our Goods are Reliable and of Good Standard Grades.

and will sell anything in our Store for the CASH as cheap

as you will buy elsewhere.

Our Motto: BUY for CASH sell for CASH,
GOOD GOODS AT LOWEST LIVING PRICES.

Respectfully,
L. B. HUNTER, Rising Sun, Ind.

OUR MILLINERY
DEPARTMENT

Is in full blast and is filled with Trimmed and Untrimmed Hats at LOWER PRICES than ever.

LADIES' SKIRTS, PETTICOATS and SHIRT WAISTS ranging in price from 25c up, and in fact the whole house is chucked full of BARGAINS.

W. H. CLARK,
Rising Sun, Indiana.

JOHN ALLISON,

UNDER- EMBAL-
TAKER MER,

Corner Pike & Russell Streets,
COVINGTON, - - KENTUCKY.

INDEPENDENT OF UNDERTAKERS' UNION.

Order Spring Suits
NOW

And we will make them up artistically and ready for you promptly on time. We have

Over Five Hundred Styles

Of Spring and Summer Woolens to Select from. They come direct from the looms of foreign and domestic manufacturers, and surpass in elegance and variety anything ever shown in Covington. In the assortment are many exclusive patterns—goods that cannot be duplicated by any other establishment in this city. Keep these facts in mind and place your order for a stylish suit with us. We promise you a faultless fit, the proper cut, and a price that will not be more than you can afford to pay.

H. F. BLASE.

H. F. BLASE,
535 Madison Avenue,
COVINGTON, - - KENTUCKY

A Word to the Public
MY STOCK OF
Dry Goods, Notions,
AND LADIES' AND GENTS'
TOILET ARTICLES

for the Spring Trade has been received, and to be appreciated must be seen. Fresh

DRUGS AND GROCERIES

received daily. A large stock of

PAINTS & OILS

on hand at all times. All Goods New and Clean, and are sold at the

LOWEST CASH PRICES.

—GIVE ME A CALL—

J. G. OELSNER, Florence, Ky.

Local News.

W. J. Rice has two sows and pigs for sale.

The weather, last week, was hard on the young grass.

For binder twine go to J. S. Clutterbuck's. The best grade.

James Clore started his coal train, last week, hauling 15 cent coal.

Last week, Anthony Bentler was working the roads in his bailiwick.

The streets became very dusty the latter part of last week, much like summer time.

Many fields of wheat are a failure, and some say the chinch bug is destroying the crop.

J. J. Tanner is the picture of contentment in his new home out on the Florence pike.

When the repairs on the interior of the Methodist Church are completed, it will look very nice.

In some localities cut worms have been cutting corn, causing considerable replanting to be necessary.

We have had the big locust bloom, and if a dry June follows a good crop of corn is assured for this year.

The proposed electric railway from Covington to Big Bone, appears to be taking a rest, for the present, at least.

The strawberry market opened up with nice berries, selling as low as four quarts for a quarter, Saturday morning.

Several of the members of the local Baptist church attended the Sunday-school convention at Big Bone, last Friday.

The periods for snow ball winter and the blackberry drizzle are passed and warm weather may now be counted on all the time.

Chas. Westhay and Geo. Blyth were hauling sand from Gunpowder, last week, for the foundation of D. E. Castleman's new house.

That nice rain that fell here last Monday, was worth a great deal to the farmers. Young grass and oats were very much in need of it.

The music for the picnic Saturday afternoon, June 3rd, will be furnished by Hill's Military Band of Cincinnati. A large crowd is expected.

Mrs. Geo. Gordon killed a young turkey the other day. The only offense of which the juvenile fowl was guilty was that of being the owner of four legs.

Rev. J. W. Harris, assisted by Rev. W. W. Green, of Warsaw, will begin a protracted meeting at the Burlington Methodist church, on Monday night, June 12th.

A mad bull came very near stampeding the entire city of Aurora, one day last week. The enraged animal emptied a coal yard into Hogan creek before he was captured.

Quite a large crowd attended the Sunday-school convention at Big Bone, last Friday, and the several subjects on the program were ably and thoroughly discussed.

Thursday the County Clerk issued a license for solemnizing the rites of matrimony between E. T. Rice, 25, son of B. L. Rice, and Miss Mattie Lee Cleek, 17, daughter of Charles Cleek, of Union.

The base ball talent of the different towns in the county is very slow about organizing clubs this year. Four or five good clubs could make expenses and have a great deal of sport during the season.

Elder Watkins called on the RECORDER, Thursday. In his conversation he said that he does not understand that the challenge published by Rev. Utz some time since for a theological discussion, was intended to include the Christian denomination.

William Green, of Rising Sun, spent a day or two of last week over here, looking for poles with which to construct his telephone line connecting Burlington and Florence. He finds those who have poles ask larger prices than he has to pay in Indiana.

The City of Cincinnati lowered the records on fast runs from Louisville to Madison. She made the run between the two points, a distance of 50 miles, up stream, in three hours and 12½ minutes. The other fast runs were: Telegraph No. 3, three hours, 19 minutes; City of Louisville, three hours and 16 minutes.

COUNTY COURT.

Martin S. Kemp allowed $2 for repairing rod on Court-house, and John Bentler allowed 50 cents for making collar for same.

Elbert C. Ryle, of Rabbit Hash, was granted a license to peddle merchandise in this county.

NOTICE—I will give $10 reward to ascertain the name of the party who mailed an anonymous letter to me in Covington, May 9, 1899. The reward money will be left at the RECORDER office and paid as soon as the writer of the letter is apprehended.
CHAS. GARNETT, Limaburg, Ky.

Last Sunday John Laughlin, Arthur Delph and others, were bathing in a deep hole of water in Woolper creek, when Delph took cramps and was about to drown. Laughlin went to Delph's rescue, and in their struggle in the water, Laughlin was drowned. The unfortunate young man was about 25 years old.

Jacob Platt will offer for sale, Saturday, June 3d, 1899, at Mountain Home Stock Farm, (opposite Lawrenceburg, Ind.,) 15 head of Trotting Bred Stock. Nine months credit will be give on all purchases if secured by negotiable notes bearing 6 per cent. interest with approved security; 6 per cent. discount for cash. Sale opens at 1 o'clock p. m. All information concerning pedigrees, &c., will be furnished.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Mr. and Mrs. F. P. Walton, of Utzinger, were visiting in Burlington, last Thursday.

James Mitchell came into town last Thursday, being conveyed by his bicycle buggy.

Mrs. H. W. Blyth is visiting her sister, Mrs. Jas. Gaines, in the Petersburg neighborhood.

Geo. W. Roberts and wife, of Verona, were guests of Judge Roberts and wife, Saturday and Sunday.

Messrs. Thomas and H. P. Crisler were guests of W. J. Rice and wife, Friday night and Saturday.

Lucian Clore and wife and Leonard Rite and wife, of Waterloo, were visiting at R. S. Cowen's, Sunday.

M. C. Carroll, of Midway, was in town Friday. He shows plainly the effects of his recent severe illness.

Miss Martha Lassing, of Union, has been the guest of her brother, J. M. Lassing and wife, for several days.

Robert Bradford, of Hebron, was in town, one day last week, and reported the sale of about 20 buggies this season.

Mrs. D. E. Castleman returned home, last week, after a pleasant visit with friends and relatives in Gallatin county.

Mr. and Mrs. Vess W. Gaines are now citizens of Burlington, having gone to housekeeping here in the last few days.

Atty. H. J. Gosphol, of Covington, was in town, Thursday, transacting business with Master Commissioner Duncan.

Mrs. Julia Clore returned home, Monday, after a visit of several days with her children out on the East Bend road.

Dr. H. C. Lassing and wife, of Union, and J. M. Collins and wife, of Crittenden, Grant county, were guests at J. M. Lassing's Sunday.

T. M. Rich and a couple of friends came out from Covington, last week, and spent a few days with Mr. and Mrs. Noah Clore.

Referee Winslow, of Carrollton, was in town, last Thursday, meeting the creditors of Morgan Beemon and H. Kroger, bankrupts.

Wm. Green came over from Rising Sun, Monday, and began driving stakes by which to set the posts for his telephone line to Florence.

William Mead Hallam, son of Hon. O. B. Hallam, will graduate to night from the Law Department of the Columbia University, Washington, D. C.

Col. John Moody, of Bellevue, was in town Monday, and informed us that his melon crop consists of six hills, named after the meanest Democrats he knows, to wit: S. S. Scott, J. O. Hawy and W. H. Baker, of Erlanger, F. Riddell, Judge Roberts and R. W. Adams, of Burlington. He says hills will produce according to the meanness of the person for which it is named.

In Loving Remembrance.

Died—At her home, May 7th, 1899, Mary B., wife of Ephraim Tanner. Great in her piety and faith in God, she was ready and willing, yea, longing to go and abide with her Lord, and calling us around her bedside told us not to grieve, that she was ready and waiting, and there would be no more pain or suffering there. Oh, how peaceful and beautiful she looked as she lay in the casket with those dear hands folded in death, that had toiled so hard for her loved ones. With heavy hearts we carried her to her last resting place in the cemetery at Hopeful, and placed her beside the son she loved so well, and since whose death her happiest moments were spent in the cemetery. She planted hyacinths on his grave whose life no tears, or prayers, or love itself could save. The bulbs, she planted, too, were placed deep in earthly soil, in hope that spring would see them graced with fair and fragrant bloom. As mother was deaf and could not hear a minister speak, she read with much pleasure and comfort the sermons in the Christian Herald, and in her last sickness she sat up in bed to read the sermon in the last paper.

She had entered upon the 72d year of her age, and to think that she had gotten nearly through with the vicissitudes of life was a joy to her. Like one on a long, tiresome journey glad she was nearing the end, desiring to depart and be forever with her Saviour.
NANNIE M. TANNER.

The principal event of the season in local social circles, was the barn party given last Thursday night by Misses Sheba and Susan Roberts and Hettie Riddell, at Judge Roberts' home out on the Bellevue pike. The large barn in which there is a splendid floor on which to execute terpsichorean flourishes, had been put in excellent condition and decorated for the occasion, and no hall ever afforded better conditions for those who enjoy dancing. The guests were received at the house in the most cordial manner by Mrs. Roberts and her accomplished daughters, assisted by Mrs. Roberts' sister, Miss Lizzie Rogers, of Walton, while the Judge was not losing any time making each and everyone feel free and perfectly at home. By ten o'clock the crowd numbering 106 persons had assembled, and the barn was the scene of unusual gaiety. Bert Parsons, Hubert Brady, Albert Conner and Elmer Beall made the music, and they were kept busy until about one o'clock, when a recess was taken, and everybody invited to repair to the house, where coffee, sandwitches, salads and ice-cream and strawberries were served. These excellent refreshments revived those who had begun to grow weary, and by two o'clock the dancing was faster and more furious than at any time previous, and did not slack until old sol was making his bow in the orient. "They danced all night, until broad day light, and went home early in the morning." The youth and beauty that was so prominent in this large crowd came from several neighborhoods, and each seemed to vie with the other in the enjoyment of the night, which was so pleasantly spent that the dawn of day was not welcomed as was made manifest by the leave taking of the affable host and hostess. This barn party was an occasion that will be always reverted to with pleasure by each one who was in attendance. The list of guests is too long to be given space.

W. M. RACHAL & CO.

DOLLARS DO DOUBLE DUTY HERE.

Standard Granulated Sugar, 18 lbs. $1 00.
Arbuckle Coffee 10 cents per lb.
Daniel Boone Soap, 3 bars for 5 cents.
Pittsburg Wire less than city prices.
Lime, Cement, White Lead, Oils, Varnishes, etc., as cheap as in the city.

Baby Shoes for 10c per pair up.
Misses' Shoes for 50c per pair up.
A full line of Men's, Ladie's and Children's Tan Shoes—Latest Styles, Best Quality, Lowest Prices.
Men's Dress Pants, 75c per pair.
Wonder Overalls, Shirts and Pants, the best made.

COME at ONCE. THESE PRICES are ONLY While Present Stock Lasts.

UNION, KENTUCKY. UNION, KENTUCKY.

ADLER'S

—THE PLACE TO BUY—
LADIES' • READY • MADE • GOODS.
A complete line of Silk Waists, Shirt Waists, Dress Skirts, Spring Capes in Silk or Cloth, Muslin, Underwear, &c., also dealer in Dry Goods, Furnishing Goods and Shoes.
ADLER'S, Parry Building Corner High and Walnut Streets LAWRENCEBURG, INDIANA.

For good, new and up to date goods at the Lowest Prices, go to the New Store at the Old Stand, at 123 Second St., AURORA, IND.
Having bought the stock of
Dry • Goods, • Notions • and • Shoes
of R. Mayhin, 123 Second St., Aurora, Ind.,
I have closed out the stock on hand at that time as nearly as possible, and have had the room remodled and have just received a
A New and Complete LINE OF Dry Goods, Notions and Shoes,
to which I invite your inspection, Boone Co., customers especially invited.
FRANK RIEMAN, - - AURORA, IND.

Deering Ideal Binder Folded.

Deering Binders, Mowers and Reapers

Posses the secret of LIGHT DRAFT, Deering Roller and Ball Bearings, Durability and convenience not excelled by any.
Be sure and examine these machines before purchasing.

Of those desiring anything in the Machinery line, Hay Rakes, Deering Repairs or Binder Twiner, we earnestly ask their patronage.

CROPPER & GAINES,
mch29tf UTZINGER, KY.

McALPIN & THOMSON,

Successors to RIGGS BROS.
Undertakers —AND— Embalmers,

LIVVERY, BOARDING & FEED STABLES.

Special Rates to Traveling Men. Pianos, Organs and Furniture Carefully Removed. First-class Carriages for hire with careful drivers for Families, Parties, Weddings, etc.
LEXINGTON PIKE, - - - ERLANGER, KY.
J. M. EDDINS, Agent, Burlington, Ky.

C. W. Mirick, of Huchuca, Arizona, writes: "Please send me sample copy of your paper, the RECORDER. I am a grandson of the late Paschal Conner, of Boone county, but a native of Missouri. For the past 17 years I have lived in Colorado. I passed the civil service examination for Engineer, and was appointed Mechanical Engineer in the Quartermaster Department at large by the War Department and was assigned to duty at this post."

Hon. William Goebel, candidate for the Democratic nomination for Governor will speak in Burlington, next Monday at 2 o'clock p. m.

Berkshire.

Mrs. T. M. Rich, of Covington, is visiting her daughter, Mrs. Marttia Story, who has been on the sick list for sometime.—The Lawn Fete at the Hughes school house was attended by a number from this vicinity.—Rev. G. W. Watkins preached a very interesting sermon at South Fork, Sunday.—Mr. and Mrs. B. B. Aliphin made a short visit on the creek, Friday.—Aaron Gray and wife had a grand reception in honor of his son, Clarence, who was married to Miss Ida Jones on the 2th.—Mr. Aliphin has purchased a fine buggy to electioneer in, as he is a candidate for matrimony.—T. B. Roberts and family were the guests of J. G. Finnell, Sunday.—Mrs. R. L. Roberts was visiting her mother-in-law at Verona, Thursday.—The Ladies' Aid Society met, last Wednesday, at South Frok with a large crowd They had one addition, Mrs. J. Sleet Hume.

Senator Goebel will speak in Burlington next Monday at 2 pm.

Midway.

The Baptist Sunday School Convention, which was held with Big Bone church last Friday, was pronounced by all those who were fortunate enough to be present, a grand, interesting and instructive affair. A sumptious dinner was served on the ground and every body enjoyed it hugely.

Squire J. Sam Noell, of Mudlick, was over at his farm last Friday reading the law to his bees which have become disposed to leave home and make honey for themselves. He succeeded in persuading most of them to remain by giving them other and better homes.

Mrs. Sallie Cleek, Marcie Cleek and Martha Osman, Misses Emma, Lizzie and Annie Cleek were visiting at Mrs. W. C. Johnson's last Thursday.

Central Covington Stock Yards,

COVINGTON, KY.

Are located so as to offer special inducements to shippers South of the Ohio river in saving them extra expense and time. In addition to the local buyers there will be Eastern and foreign buyers on the market for all kinds of stock. When shipping East, don't fail to consign our care privilege sellug which will be of benefit to you.

Central Covington Stock Yards Co.

Commission firms will give prompt attention to consignments.

When in Burlington Call on

J. S. CLUTTERBUCK
DEALER IN
DRY GOODS
Notions, Boots and Shoes,
Who has just received his stock of
SPRING & SUMMER SHOES,
the nicest stock ever in town. Have old stock which I AM SELLING AT GENUINE BARGAINS.
NICE LINE WALL PAPER,
At Prices to Suit the times.

DEERING IDEALS

BINDERS, MOWERS, HAY-RAKES, TWINES.
Guaranteed LIGHTEST DRAFT and Perfect Working. The Rollers and Balls tell the tale.

Also don't forget we are still in the ring with
CHESTER WHITE HOGS,
Holland Turkeys, eggs $2 per 13. B. P. Rock and B. Minorca Chickens, eggs $1 per 16.
COME AND SEE.
T. J. HUGHES,
BEAVER LICK, KY.

GO TO
C. T. DAVIS & CO., HEBRON AND CONSTANCE, General Merchants,
A Good Supply of Feed always in Stock.
GARDEN AND FIELD SEEDS.
Undertaking Given Special Attention,
A good supply of Coal on hand at Constance at all times.
Hebron. C. T. DAVIS & CO. Constance

W. H. HOSHAL & COMPANY,
COMMISSION MERCHANTS,
Cattle, Hogs and Sheep,
—UNION STOCK YARDS,—
Cincinnati, - Ohio.
—TELEPHONE 7346.—
Information Regarding Live Stock Cheerfully Furnished.
Consign Your Stock Direct to Us.

LUMBER!

LATHS,
SHINGLES,
DOORS,
BLINDS,
SASH.

If you want any kind of Lumber it will be to your advantage to visit our yard at Lawrenceburg, Indiana, before buying. Prices to Suit the Times.

M. E. LEMING & CO.

THE RECORDER.

W. L. RIDDELL, Publisher.

BURLINGTON, : : KENTUCKY.

CZAR NICHOLAS II. is said to have an aversion to the needless slaughter of animals of any kind. He has recently forsworn the pleasures of the chase and the shooting of game, and the birds and beasts in the imperial preserves live in undisturbed quiet.

THE tallest man in the United States navy has been selected to take the part of Uncle Sam in the peace jubilee, to be held in Washington in June. The man who will represent this character is Chief Yeoman Wills, who stands six feet seven inches and is well proportioned.

A FRENCH medical journal gives reasons for believing that consumption is of vegetable origin. It is said that certain kinds of grass harbor a parasite that produces practically the same results as the tubercle bacillus. If this is true it would account for the presence of the disease in so many cows.

MAJ. MARCHAND, the explorer, has received from the French academy of moral and political sciences the Audiffred prize of 15,000 francs "for the greatest act of devotion of any kind." About the same time the French government bestowed upon his sister, Mlle. Marchand, the right to keep a tobacco shop in the Rue de la Tour d'Auvergne in Paris.

A NEW method of illumination on the ocean consists of using a hollow cylinder of steel tubing, charged with calcium carbide. This shell is to be shot from a gun to a distance of two miles. When it strikes the water it generates acetylene gas and gives 1,000 candle power, which burns from the end which floats. This light can not be extinguished by water.

JERRY SIMPSON, according to the Chicago Record, is said to have saved enough from his congressional salary to keep him in reasonable comfort the rest of his life. He has a good ranch down at Medicine Lodge, which he "took up" as government land in early times; a bunch of 400 or 500 cattle, and various investments that cause him to be rated at $30,000 by the commercial agencies.

THE most magnificent tomb in the world is the Taj Mahal, in Agra, Hindustan. It was erected by Shah Jehan to the memory of his favorite queen. It is octagonal in form, of pure white marble, inlaid with jasper, cornelian, turquoise, agate, amethysts and sapphires. The work took 22,000 men 20 years to complete, and, though there were free gifts and labor was free, the cost was $20,000,000.

SWELL circles in New York are much exercised over the fact that Hetty Green, probably the richest woman in America, has taken a cottage at Newport for the season—a most unheard-of thing for Hetty to do. Some persons account for the extraordinary circumstance by saying she has determined to give her daughter a chance to pick a husband. Miss Green is a good-looking girl, possessed of a charming disposition.

THE largest flower in the world is the Rafflesia Arnoldi, of Sumatra. Its size is fully three feet in diameter—about the size of a carriage wheel. The five petals of this immense flower are oval and creamy white, growing round a center filled with countless long, violet-hued stamens. The flower weighs about 15 pounds, and is capable of containing nearly two gallons of water. The buds are like gigantic brown cabbage heads.

WHILE naval officers express the greatest affection for Adm. Dewey, it is stated that a homeward trip on board a vessel carrying an officer of Dewey's rank will not be one of great pleasure. The admiral will be given receptions and banquets, at all of which the junior officers will be obliged to attend. There will be inspections, reviews and exhibition drills, consequently those who return with Adm. Dewey are not especially envied by their brother officers.

ADM. DEWEY will pass under the largest triumphal arch of any hero in the world's history when he comes to New York. The plan to make of the Brooklyn bridge an arch and to decorate the structure in an elaborate manner in Dewey's honor has received the indorsement of Commissioner of Bridges Shea and Chief Engineer Martin. Bridge Commissioner Shea proposes that Adm. Dewey bring his flagship Olympia up the East river under the bridge to an anchorage to be selected by himself.

THE home-coming of Adm. Dewey has caused a boom in the dry goods trade. The demand for ordinary cloth and prints for conversion into bunting has nearly exhausted the supply, and it has been found necessary to take higher grades of materials, including what is known as "sixty-four square." In the trade it is estimated that at least 500,000 pieces, or 25,000 yards of bunting will be used to welcome the hero of Manila. This extraordinary demand, coming on a rising market, it is said, will influence prices greatly.

FREDERICK W. SCHNEIDER, late of the 1st South Dakota infantry, has reached home from the Orient, and he brings the story that it is the practice of the Filipinos to inoculate American prisoners with the blood taken from lepers. He knows of two cases and thinks it likely that there are others. The blood was drawn from the diseased men, and the skin was opened in the arms of the two soldiers and the diseased blood injected into the Americans. He also says the Filipinos released 200 lepers from a lazaretto and sent them in to Manila, hoping thus to infect American troops.

LEFT THE TRACK.

A Cloudburst Washed the Roadbed Leaving the Rails Unsupported.

Mail Coach Telescoped by the Baggage Car—Roof of the Sleeper Ploughed Through the Day Coach—Nine Persons Killed.

WATERLOO, Ia., May 29.—The through train from Chicago to Minneapolis over the Rock Island and Burlington, Cedar Rapids and Northern railways was wrecked early Sunday morning at the crossing of Sink creek, about four miles southeast of this place. The train consisted of six coaches, including mail and baggage cars, smoking car, two passenger coaches and sleeper. Nine persons were killed and 23 injured.

A cloudburst had washed the sand and gravel road bed leaving the track unsupported for a stretch of 20 feet. The rails held together and there was nothing to indicate the insecurity of the road. The engine struck the washout and was derailed in the ditch beside the track and behind it the cars were piled up in confusion. The mail car tipped over and telescoped by the baggage car behind, while the rear end of the baggage car in turn telescoped the smoker. The roof of the sleeper plowed its way through the day coach, while the lower half of the latter crashed through the sleeper.

The engineer and fireman jumped from the train and escaped with slight injuries.

Mr. Schwatte, of Alton, Ill., was brought to this city alive, but died at 8 o'clock. He was badly cut about the head, and it was evident from the beginning that his injuries were fatal. He was on his way to Minneapolis, where he was to be married Sunday. He asked his physician to telegraph his father and his sweetheart.

"Tell her," he gasped, "that I have been detained by a wreck and can not keep the appointment on time. Don't say any more."

The news was brought to this city by a mail clerk, the fire whistle was blown, a switch engine and coach hastily prepared and a relief train went very speedily to the scene. The injured passengers were extricated from the debris and brought here. Another relief train soon arrived from Cedar Rapids and took a number of the seriously injured to be treated in the hospital in that city.

F. J. Day, of Allison, a passenger, said: "The train was running at good speed, and at a point about three or four miles from Waterloo it left the track. The engine and baggage car were thrown about ten feet. The engineer evidently had his engine under excellent control, as I never saw such a sudden stop. The smoker, where I sat, telescoped the baggage car and I found myself with the brakeman on the roof the day coach."

WINDOW PANES BROKEN.

Over 2,000 Were Demolished by a Terrific Hailstorm at Hastings, Neb.—Chickens and Birds Killed.

HASTINGS, Neb., May 29.—A terrific hailstorm struck this city at 3:45 Sunday afternoon and continued 15 minutes, during which time over 2,000 panes of glass were broken, fruit and grain destroyed, chickens and birds killed and injured and several persons hurt. At the asylum for chronic insane, where hundreds of panes of glass were broken in the main building and 1,300 in the green house, where a great amount of damage was done. The hailstones were as large as hens' eggs, and came down with such force as to kill many chickens, knock birds out of trees, and break shutters on windows.

Mrs. J. H. Panfield was watching the storm when a large window pane was smashed striking her in the arm, making a painful wound. Several other persons were slightly injured. After the storm people scooped up hailstones by the pailful and some filled their refrigerators.

SEVERE STORM IN MICHIGAN.

Seven Houses Struck by Lightning in Benton Harbor—An Unknown Man Killed at Watervleit.

DETROIT, Mich., May 29.—Specials from cities in Berrien county report a severe and disastrous electrical storm at 12 o'clock Sunday. Seven houses are reported damaged by lightning in Benton Harbor. Considerable damage was also done at St. Joseph. Coloma and Watervliet report several houses badly damaged and in the latter place one man, whose name is unknown, was killed. He had taken refuge with his bicycle under a tree which was struck by lightning. He was instantly killed. Fields in a number of places were inundated.

A 50 Per Cent. Dividend.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 29.—The Bank of Commerce Saturday declared a dividend of 50 per cent. on its capital stock of $800,000. This dividend will be paid out of its surplus. The action taken is the result of the recent decision of the supreme court of the United States in Kentucky bank tax cases. Every bank in the state is expected to follow with a similar reduction. Taxes and charges on corporations have become so excessive that the financial institutions find it difficult to earn dividends.

EVACUATION OF ZAMBOANGA.

Text of Gen. Rios' Dispatch Informing His Government of his Command's Departure Therefrom.

MADRID, May 27.—Following is the full text of the dispatch which was sent by Gen. Rios, Spain's military representative in the Philippines, from Manila:

"Arrived here on board the Leon XIII. The occupation of the island of Jolo by the Americans was effected without special incident. The American warships saluted our flag with 21 guns when it was lowered.

"The Filipino batteries at Zamboanga, island of Mindanao, continued to shell the town and the port, causing losses in our garrison, but finally, after a lively attack by the Spaniards, the insurgents fled. They suffered numerous losses. Our losses were two officers and three soldiers killed and 19 soldiers wounded.

"One company of our troops attacked a battery, which the enemy then abandoned, and two other batteries were dismounted by our artillery. After this reverse the insurgents declared their adhesion to Spain and suspended hostilities.

"The evacuation of Zamboanga was accomplished in the most orderly way in spite of a violent storm, which caused the loss of several boats and the stranding of the steamer Porto Rico on the enemy's coast; every one was safely embarked.

"Two American warships were placed at my disposal by the admiral but we did not need them. The Spanish flag was saluted with 13 guns by the American ships.

"If the minister for war does not order the contrary I shall sail for Spain on board the H. De Satrustegui."

The cabinet Friday evening approved the plans of Gen. Rios.

The Spanish general, Montero, while on the way hither with the Spanish garrison from Zamboanga on the steamer Leon XIII., died of wounds received in a recent engagement with the Filipinos in Mindanao.

The Spanish steamer Leo XIII. landed the 23d regiment on the island of Jolo and took on board the Spanish garrison, the Americans paying the Spaniards the usual bonors.

The steamer then proceeded to Zamboanga. The troops there were put aboard the Leon XIII., the Puerto Rico, the Uranos and Dos Hermanos, and the three last named sailed for Spain. The insurgents agreed not to molest the Spaniards during the evacuation.

The Leon XIII. entered Manila harbor in the evening with her flags flying at half-mast in honor of Gen. Montero Rios, and with the officers of the garrison and their families on board. The insurgents, it is reported, were in possession of Zamboanga when the Spaniards left, and it will be necessary for the Americans to recapture the place.

KAUTZ TO BE CALLED BACK.

It is Reputed That the Admiral Has Been Ordered Home—The Letter Written to Cincinnati the Cause.

WASHINGTON, May 27.—The cruiser Newark, which is in the South Pacific, is expected to reach Valparaiso in a few days. It is generally understood she will go to Apia, but she has not yet received orders to this effect. It is understood, however, that orders will be sent to her at Valparaiso to proceed to Apia.

It is reported that Adm. Kautz has been recalled from Samoa because of certain letters sent to his cousin, Mrs. Lindley, of Cincinnati, in which he made allusions to the German consul at Apia as his "Silent, very silent partner."

This is said to have given offense to Germany, and the German embassy is said to have indicated clearly that this was the case, although no official complaint was lodged. It is said that Kautz's alleged indiscretion will lead to his being superceded by Commander Casper F. Goodrich, of the Newark, which will take the place of the Philadelphia as the flagship at Apia.

NEW YORK ANTI-TRUST LAW.

It Enables the Attorney General to Prosecute and Prevent Monopolies in Articles and Commodities.

ALBANY, N. Y., May 27.—Senator Donnelly's anti-trust bill, which was signed by the governor Friday, enables the attorney general to prosecute and secure testimony to prevent monopolies in articles or commodities of common use and to prohibit restraints of trade and commerce. Every person or corporation who shall enter into any such contract is guilty of a misdemeanor, and, if an individual, is punishable by a fine of not exceeding $5,000 or imprisonment for not longer than one year or both; and if a corporation, by a fine of not exceeding $5,000.

The Automobile Race Ended.

NEW YORK, May 27.—The automobile, which left Cleveland at 7 o'clock Monday morning to establish an automobile record between Cleveland and New York, arrived in front of the Astor house at 5:45 o'clock Friday afternoon. The record made was 707.4 miles in 40 hours and four minutes of actual running. This is an average of 17.6 miles an hour. The trip was accomplished with only one accident of a serious nature and the party is ready to go right back to Cleveland in the same way so far as the machine is concerned.

TERRIFIC STORM.

A Portion of Iowa, Nebraska and Missouri Wind-Swept For Hours.

Reported That Dows, Ia., Was Completely Destroyed—Other Property Damaged in the Path of the Cyclone—Lives Lost.

DES MOINES, Ia., May 29.—A special from Fonda, Ia., says: A hailstorm of greater severity than was ever witnessed by any citizen of this section passed over Fonda and vicinity between 6 and 7 o'clock Sunday evening. The hailstorm raged for one hour. Many of the hail-tones were from one to one and one-half inches in diameter and driven by a strong wind from the northwest. When they struck buildings and board fences the report was like the discharge of musketry. The hail, at the close of the storm, was lying in drifts six to eight inches deep on lawns and two feet deep on Main street, and the streets and brick pavements were flooded with water and slush. Nearly all the unprotected windows on the north and west sides of the houses were broken, and a great deal of damage has been done to the buildings and furniture. The trees are leafless, and everything has the aspect of winter.

KIRKSVILLE, Mo., May 29.—A terrific windstorm struck this city Sunday evening, folowed for two hours by severe lightning and rain. A few outbuildings were unroofed or toppled over and trees uprooted. Church services were suspended, so general was the fright and excitement. One residence was unroofed and the roof was blown through another. Apprehension prevailed because Prof. Waiman, who predicted Kirksville's tornado of April 28, when 32 people were killed and 100 injured, had prophecied a return of the storm throughout Missouri Sunday. People have had clothing and valuables packed to store in cellars. Cyclone caves have been constructed.

OMAHA, Neb., May 29.—A special from Chamberlain, S. D., says: Word just reached town Sunday afternoon of a disastrous and fatal cyclone which passed the county in the vicinity of Bijou Hills, 25 miles south of this city Saturday afternoon between four and five o'clock, resulting in the death of seven persons and the serious injury of two others.

OMAHA, Neb., May 29.—A special from Central City, Neb., says:

Probably the most destructive cyclone that ever visited Nebraska passed through the northern part of Hamilton county Sunday night at 7 o'clock, destroying from $75,000 to $100,000 worth of property, including 15 dwellings, one church, one schoolhouse, two iron bridges across the Blue river, barns, corn cribs, outbuildings, orchards, groves, fences and stock.

The funnel-shaped cloud first struck the farm of Peter Jacoby on Section 8, Township 11, completely destroying the house, barn and other buildings. The cloud then rose and did not strike the ground for two miles. It then descended and caught the dwelling, barn, outbuildings and windmill of W. P. Lantzen, leveling them flat to the ground. It next struck the residence of Josiah Fox, completely destroying all buildings.

Steel's large two-story house was the next object of the storm's wrath, all buildings and trees being leveled to to the ground.

C. R. Eastman's house was the next in the path of the storm, which destroyed his barn and other buildings. A number of head of stock were also killed.

I. Isaacs, living just across the road from Eastman, lost all of his buildings. T. L. Clothier's place came next, and here two fine buildings and outbuildings were destroyed. Mr. Clothier lost two horses and two cows. Cedar trees 16 inches through were broken off or uprooted as easily as corn hills. The family had taken refuge in a cellar. While in the cellar an old fashioned hay knife stuck in the wall by the side of Mr. Clothier's head. The knife was blown from Eastman's place a mile away.

STRUCK BY AN ELECTRIC CAR

Chris. Bowman and Mrs. Dora Lang Fatally Injured at a Crossing, Near Detroit, Mich., Sunday.

DETROIT, Mich., May 29.—Chris Bowman, aged 75, and Mrs. Dora Lang, both of this city, were fatally injured Sunday night by the collision of a rapid railway electric car with the carriage in which they were riding. Two other occupants of the carriage received serious but not fatal injuries. The accident occurred 15 miles from Detroit on Grattan road. The carriage endeavored to cross in front of the car.

Will Increase Taxes.

COLUMBUS, O., May 29.—The various city departments will ask the city council Monday night for increased appropriations, which if acceded to will boost the tax rate in this city to 3.45 or thereabouts. Chief of Police Walcott wants 30 additional patrolmen and a new patrol house. Chief Lauer, of the fire department, wants to increase the number of firemen and buy a quantity of new machinery, hose, etc. Director of Public Improvements Kauffman will also ask an increase for street cleaning purposes.

AMERICAN FORCE TOO SMALL.

A Much Larger Army Will Be Necessary to Establish Our Supremacy in the Philippines.

MANILA, May 27.—The events of the past week have emphasized the use of a much larger army here, without which, according to the best authorities in Manila, it would be attempting the impossible to expect to establish American supremacy in the Philippine Islands. The inadequacy of the American forces is said to be responsible for the large total loss in the number of small encounters, without material results as a compensation. Most of the fighting has been in the same territory which the Americans had swept, but had been compelled to abandon because they could not spare the troops to hold it.

The forces commanded by Gens. MacArthur and Lawton held two important lines of communication and commerce—the railroad to San Fernando and the Rio Grande river; but much of the country, including scores of the smaller towns and some of the larger ones, have been left uncovered, simply for want of men to hold them, and the insurgents have returned and are occupying the towns the Americans abandoned, and are camping in the jungles and woods outside of others, on the watch for chances to harrass the garrisons and attack scouting parties or detached companies with greater force. This is the kind of warfare they prefer to regular battles.

It appears that the Filipinos who attacked the 3d regiment between San Miguel and Balinag were part of Rio del Pilar's army. They came from the south across the mountains, presumably to meet a wagon train which Gen. Lawton expected along the road. They also planned to capture several large detachments, and were placed in ambush at different points. They fired from the jungle, at a distance of 200 yards, and gave the Americans one of the hardest fights experienced in the campaign. The Filipinos lost more heavily than the Americans in all the recent encounters.

The insurgent generals take the loss of arms more to heart than they do the loss of men.

Foreigners who have arrived here from the insurgent's country, under the recent order of expulsion, say the cemeteries in all the towns are filled with fresh graves. A majority of the Filipinos wounded die because the insurgent hospitals are inadequate, medicines are scarce and they have few surgeons, except Spanish captives who have been impressed.

A FUNNEL-SHAPED CLOUD.

Tornado Damages the Town of River Falls, Wis., and Vicinity—Several Persons Received Severe Injuries.

RIVER FALLS, Wis., May 27.—A well developed tornado struck this city shortly after 6 o'clock Friday afternoon. It seems to have had its inception in the Fourth ward of the city, where it reached down from a black cloud and picked up Michael Linehan's barn, which it tossed about and landed upside down. It then passed up South Fork valley. George L. Smith's brick yard sheds were demolished and considerable damage done. A small building used for the employes was wrecked, the inmates seeking refuge in the cellar and escaping injury. Half a mile further up the valley a large barn on the farm of O. P. Burnett was scattered over half an acre of land. Maj. Burnett's barn across the road was destroyed. Harvey Veydt, about 16 years old was, caught in the whirl at the brickyard and had several ribs broken. John Deis, 14, was struck by a flying missile and had his back punctured. Another boy is said to have been hurt. Large trees were twisted off or uprooted. The cloud was funnel-shaped, and, after moving up the valley three miles, began to move to the north and slowly lifted.

HER POSITION IS CRITICAL.

Futile Effort Made to Float the American Liner Paris—The Vessel is Rolling Heavily and May Go to Pieces.

COVERACK, Cornwall, May 27.—A supreme effort to float the American liner Paris commenced at 5:10 p. m. Friday. Smoke was then belching from all her funnels and the tugs assisting her churned the water into foam.

A fresh east, southeast breeze was blowing, and the sea was rising as the attempt was made to refloat the steamer.

When the tugs and the engines of the Paris were going full speed the latter appeared to be swaying a trifle, but the leakage in the steamer's engine room was increasing.

The attempt resulted in another failure. The Paris is in the same position.

M. De Staal Honored.

THE HAGUE, May 27.—Friday afternoon M. De Beaufort, the Dutch minister of foreign affairs, in the name of Queen Wilhelmina presented to M. De Staal, president of the conference, the grand cross of the Lion of the Netherlands.

Large Tobacco Acreage in Gallia.

GALLIPOLIS, O., May 27.—The tobacco acreage of Gallia county will exceed all former years by 39 per cent. Many farmers are putting out tobacco this spring that never did before.

"In Union There is Strength."

True strength consists in the union, the harmonious working together, of every part of the human organism. This strength can never be obtained if the blood is impure. Hood's Sarsaparilla is the standard prescription for purifying the blood,

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Never Disappoints

Patience and Practice.

A clever young physician here, who, like so many of his brethren everywhere, has had a weary time trying to build up a practice, nevertheless meets his hard fortune with smiling gayety. Like Warren Hastings, his motto is "Nitor in Adversitum."

In company with a friend, he had occasion the other day to go into the Hibernia bank, where, owing to the thinning of customers, he could not get his business transacted at once. After considerable delay, his companion, a nervous little man, complained irritably of the inconvenience to which they were subjected.

"Doesn't this put you out of patience, Doc?" he asked.

"My dear sir," returned the medico, gayly, "to be out of patients is my chronic condition. I haven't had one for a week."—San Francisco News Letter.

"Big Four Gift!"—Neely's Spanish-American War Panorama.

Contains 160 superb half-tone engravings, made from photographs taken of our Army in camp, on transports and in actual service, Spanish and American Gun-boats, Cuba, Havana, Manilla, Landscapes, Architecture; shows the manners and customs of the people of our new Islands; Pictures of our Heroes—Dewey, General Charles King (known as Capt. Charles King, the author), Wheeler, Hobson, Roosevelt, Sampson, Miles, Schley, Shafter, Lee, Brooks, Carroll; Groups of Officers, Cavalry, Artillery, Infantry, Ships, Rifle practice, Spanish Soldiers, Insurgents, Chickamauga, Jacksonville, Tampa, Last Farewell Letters Home, Hospitals, Clara Barton, Rough Riders, Santiago, San Juan, Manilla, the Beautiful Women of Cuba and Manilla.

The Album is 5½8 inches, weighs 12 ounces, printed on finest coated paper.

Sent FREE to any address in the United States, Canada or Mexico for 12 cents in stamps or coin, to cover postage and packing. Copy may be seen at any ticket office of the Big Four Route.

Order at once, as the edition is limited.

Address WARREN J. LYNCH, General Passenger and Ticket Agent, "Big Four Route," Cincinnati, Ohio.

Mark envelope "War Album."

Masculine Idea of a Tea.

Empty two quarts of dried peas into a bass drum and trim up the outside with pink baby ribbon and you have the average man's idea of his wife's five o'clock teas.—Atchison Globe.

How's This?

We offer One Hundred Dollars Reward for any case of Catarrh that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure.

F. J. Cheney & Co., Props., Toledo O.

We, the undersigned, have known F. J. Cheney for the last 15 years, and believe him perfectly honorable in all business transactions and financially able to carry out any obligations made by their firm.

West & Truax, Wholesale Druggists, Toledo, O.

Walding, Kinnan & Marvin, Wholesale Druggists, Toledo, O.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. Price 75c. per bottle. Sold by all Druggists. Testimonials free.

Hall's Family Pills are the best.

Conflicting Emotions.

Mrs. Joy—Oh, John, run for the physician. The baby's swallowed your diamond stud!

Bachelor Brother—Physician be hanged! I'll bring a surgeon.—Jeweler's Weekly.

Woman's Long Suit.

"Man was made to mourn," mused the old man with long white whiskers, "but women seem to have taken the job away from him! By hokey, but they do enjoy a funeral!"—Kansas City Independent.

You get more for your money, get faster colors and brighter colors, when you buy Putnam Fadeless Dyes, and it takes less time to dye and makes less muss and for the same price, 10c per package.

When a boy comes home with a string of fish, it is a mean trick to ask him if he caught them all.—Atchison Globe.

I believe Piso's Cure for Consumption saved my boy's life last summer.—Mrs. Allie Douglass, LeRoy, Mich., Oct. 20, '94.

In talking up a trade with a real horse-jockey, never close the bargain till the next day.—L. A. W. Bulletin.

A sallow skin acquires a healthy clearness by the use of Glenn's Sulphur Soap.

Hill's Hair and Whisker Dye, 50 cents.

The only thing a man can find around a house without assistance, is fault.—Atchison Globe.

[LETTER TO MRS. PINKHAM NO. 46,970]

"I had female complaints so bad that it caused me to have hysterical fits; have had as many as nine in one day.

"Five bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound cured me and it has been a year since I had an attack.

Mrs. Edna Jackson,
Pearl, La.

If Mrs. Pinkham's Compound will cure such severe cases as this surely it must be a great medicine—is there any sufferer foolish enough not to give it a trial?

LEAVE MANILA.

They Go on a Special Train Under a Flag of Truce.

The Enemy Repulsed in a Battle Near San Miguel—Loss 16 Killed—Large Number Wounded and Prisoners —American Loss Two Killed.

MANILA, May 26.—The Filipino commissioners left here by special train Thursday. They were escorted to their lines under a flag of truce. It is expected that they will return soon. President Gonzaga, of the Philippine commission, previous to his departure said:

We greatly appreciate the courtesy shown us. We have spent some time with your commissioners, incidentally considering the American constitution. Its principles impress us profoundly.

"The plan of government offered the Philippines seems, in theory, a good colonial system. But why should a nation with your constitution seek to make a colony of a distant people who have been so long fighting against Spain to secure the same rights your constitution gives? You fought the same battle in America when you fought against England."

In the fighting at San Fernando Wednesday 50 Filipinos were killed and many were wounded. The Americans had two killed and 12 wounded.

WASHINGTON, May 26.—Gen. Otis has forwarded the following dispatch to the war department:

MANILA, May 25.—Adjutant General, Washington: On 23d inst. 3d infantry returning to Balinag from San Miguel were attacked morning, noon and evening by a large force of the enemy, suffering in casualties two men killed and 13 wounded; enemy repulsed, leaving on the field 16 killed; large number wounded and prisoners. Yesterday enemy appeared in vicinity San Fernando, attacked by Kansas and Montana regiments, which suffered slight loss. Enemy driven through rice fields, leaving 50 dead, 38 wounded and 28 prisoners; 50 rifles and other property captured; their retreat through swamp land saved them from destruction; Lawton returning, leaving with MacArthur on the front regular troops to replace volunteers. OTIS.

MANILA, May 26.—A scouting party of American troops encountered a body of insurgents at Santa Rita, and the Americans being reinforced by Brig. Gen. Funston with the South Dakota regiment, a warm fight ensued.

A lieutenant and five men of the American force were wounded and ten of the insurgents were killed and several captured. Gen. Hughes who has been appointed to relieve Col. Smith as governor of the Visayas district will be succeeded as provost marshal by Brig. Gen. Williston who recently arrived here in command of the troops of the 6th artillery.

NEGRO LEADERS' MISSION.

They Must Make a Public Sentiment So Strong in Their Race That No Brute Can Fail to Be Impressed by It.

GREENSBORO, N. C., May 26.—Col. Julian S. Carr, in his address before the Colored Agricultural and Mechanical college here, declared that lynchings as a preventative of rape had proved a horrible failure. While no death was too terrible for the assailant of an innocent woman for the honor of the south lynchings should be stamped out and the law permitted to take its course.

Turning then from the responsibilities of the white race to those of the black, Col. Carr said:

"The question of the future of the southern Negro is one that must be referred for settlement until we have restored safety and a feeling of security to the humblest women in the poorest cabin of the most thinly settled portion of the south. The southern man can not restore that security. That is the mission of the leaders of the Negro race. They must make a public sentiment so strong in their race that no brute can fail to be impressed and deterred by it. Criminals must be made to understand that crime shuts the doors of respectable homes to the criminal. Let him be a Pariah, an Ishmaelite, an outcast to be received nowhere except by charity and upon probation."

Big Fire in Cleveland.

CLEVELAND, O., May 26.—Fire broke out shortly after 12 o'clock Friday morning in the boiler room of the big factory of the Ohio Sash and Door Co. on the flats. The building was soon a mass of flames and the fire communicated to the lumber yard of the Fisher & Wilson Co. The loss to the sash and door company is at least $50,000. The fire at 2 a. m. was burning fiercely and threatening the property of the Cleveland Elevator Co.

Removed From Office.

CLEVELAND, May 26.—Hugh J. Buckley, president of the board of elections, was removed from office by Mayor Farley Thursday. Mr. Buckley is charged with misconduct in office. The mayor refuses to make specific charges.

Was Declared Insane.

NEW HOLLAND, O., May 26.—Judge Van Cleaf has declared B. F. Tanquary, of this place, insane, and ordered him taken to the asylum at Columbus, which was done Thursday.

EXTINGUISHED THE FAMILY.

J. E. Moss, at Joplin, Mo., Murders His Wife and Three Children, and Puts a Bullet Through His Brain.

JOPLIN, Mo., May 26.—In and near a tent in the southeast part of town Thursday were found the dead bodies of J. E. Moss, his wife, an infant child, a girl of 7 years and a boy of 9. The heads of all save Moss had been mashed with a hammer. He had a bullet hole in his head and still clasped a revolver. He had apparently killed his family, then committed suicide.

The motive is a mystery. The tragedy is believed to have occurred on Tuesday night while the family were asleep. The woman was in a night dress and had evidently been killed before she could make resistance. The girl lay on a cot near her mother, the boy was stretched across two chairs and the body of the father and husband, partly undressed, sprawled on the ground. The infant, its head severed from the body, was found outside the tent, where dogs had dragged it. The bodies were partly decomposed.

Neighbors living within 200 feet of the tent knew nothing of the tragedy until Thursday. A shot was heard Tuesday night coming from the direction of the tent, but no investigation was made at the time. Moss had made his living scraping ore about the abandoned mines, and the tent furniture and clothes of the family indicate that he had prospered. The family came here two months ago and had formerly lived at Butler and at Nevada, Mo.

FAMOUS PEACE ADVOCATE.

Madame Selenka Presents the President of the Peace Conference an Illustrated Album Containing Peace Resolutions.

THE HAGUE, May 26.—Madame Selenka, the famous peace advocate and promoter of the woman's peace crusade, Thursday presented to M. De Staal, president of the conference and head of the Russian delegation, an illustrated album containing the text of resolutions in favor of peace adopted by meetings representing several million women. The album was accompanied by an address "in the name of the women of 18 nations," saluting the conference, assuring the delegates of the faith of the memorialists in the results of its labors, begging that the hopes of the people might not be deceived and that the conference would decide that the evils of the war could be cured. The address concluded as follows:

"Your sisters, on behalf of humanity, appeal to you to realize the ideal of fraternity, in order that war and tyranny may perish with the century."

M. De Staal had written Mme. Selenka that he could receive her for five minutes, but he was so interested that he kept her for half an hour. "Carmen Sylva," Queen Elizabeth of Roumania, contributed a poem to the album and Queen Wilhemina sent one of her secretaries to congratulate Mme. Selenka on the work of the associations.

RAILWAY MEN UNDER ARREST

They Are Held Responsible for the Disastrous Wreck on the Philadelphia & Reading Road at Exeter.

READING, Pa., May 26.—By direction of the district attorney, County Detective Kerschner Thursday swore out warrants for the four Philadelphia & Reading railroad men who were censured by the coroner's jury for causing the disastrous wreck at Exeter. The accused are: Wm. F. Wildermuth, engineer of the first section; his conductor, A. E. Magee; James J. Rourke, dispatcher, and Engineer Harry O'Rourke, of the second section. Bail in $1,000 will be demanded. Trainmaster Bowers, who was also censured, will be prosecuted in Philadelphia.

TO THE DEWEY HOME FUND.

President McKinley Sends His Check to Chairman Vanderslip—The President Interested in the Plan.

WASHINGTON, May 26.—Acting Secretary Cortelyou Thursday called upon Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Vanderlip, chairman of the Dewey home fund, and placed in his hands a check from the president constituting Mr. McKinley's contribution to the fund. In the course Mr. Cortelyou conveyed to Mr. Vanderlip the expression of the president's interest in the undertaking and his pleasure in contributing with the people to this testimonial to Admiral Dewey.

Lost Their Lives in a Well.

MONTGOMERY, Minn., May 26.—Mrs. Frank Glass and four-year-old son are dead as the result of two hours in a deep well, the mother having jumped in in an effort to save her child who had fallen in. The child was drowned, but Mrs. Glass died from the exposure immediately after the two had been removed from the well.

Senor Don Emilio Castelar Dead.

MADRID, May 26.—Senor Don Emilio Castelar, the distinguished republican orator and statesman, who had been suffering from an attack of pulmonary catarrh, contracted last winter, is dead.

One Hundred Houses Burned.

ST. PETERSBURG, May 26.—One hundred houses have been destroyed by fire during a heavy gale at Balyrki, in the government of Panza. There is great suffering among the homeless victims of the disaster.

GEN. OTIS' TERMS.

Nothing but an Unconditional Surrender Will Satisfy the American.

More Troops to Be Sent to the Philippines —Gen. MacArthur Favors the Experiment of Enlisting the Macabebees Against Tagals.

WASHINGTON, May 29.—"When you desire to re-enter the American military lines come prepared for an unconditional surrender. Otherwise you will not be admitted."

This in substance, it is said at the war department, is the parting message Aguinaldo's so-called peace envoy's received when they left Manila on their way to Aguinaldo's headquarters.

If our commissioners have not already received instructions to adhere to this decision they will receive them at once.

The foolhardiness of further negotiations with irresponsible leaders of defiant rebels is at last fully appreciated by administration officials. The insurgents must be whipped into submission.

The president, it is said, is now of this opinion. He regrets that he is unable to share in the optimistic opinions of Mr. Schurman, chairman of the commission, that the Filipino envoys will speedily come back to accept in full our own terms. Mr. Schurman expresssed similar views immediately after the first peace conference, more than three weeks ago, and thereby caused the president to fall into the mistake of expecting peace at once.

The fact that the authoritie shave again taken up the question of sending additional troops to the Philippines is a good indication that they consider the recent peace negotiations a failure. The 24th infantry (colored) has been slated for service in the Philippines, in addition to those already decided upon. Other regiments are also being talked of.

MANILA, May 28.—Gen. MacArthur is in favor of the experiment of enlisting the Macabebees against their old enemies, the Tagals.

A delegation of the leading Macabebees has visited the general, and its spokesman read an address assuring the American commander of the friendship of the Macabebees and of their willingness to the transfer of their allegiance from Spain to the United States. They complained that the Tagals murdered them and burned their villages and they asked to be protected and given arms to protect themselves.

The Macabebees have greatly assisted in posting the Americans on the country and the positions of the enemy.

Gen. MacArthur would arm a hundred of these men and use them as scouts, and, if the experiment proved successful, he would enlist more of them.

The United States transport Morgan City, which left San Francisco April 25 with 600 recruits for various regiments here on board, has arrived and will proceed to Iloilo.

Maj. A. M. Diggles, of the 13th Minnesota regiment, who was wounded in the head while reconnoitering May 8 at a point near San Miguel, and who was brought to a hospital here, is dead.

ST. PAUL, Minn., May 28.—Maj. Arthur M. Diggles, of the 13th Minnesota volunteers, was born in Boston in 1855. He was graduated from Yale college in '76. He had resided in Minneapolis for 13 years, being engaged in the real estate and life insurance business. His widow and a seven-year-old daughter live in Minneapolis.

MANILA, May 29.—The approach of the wet season finds the insurrection seemingly taking a new lease of life. All along the American lines the rebels are showing more aggressive activity, in their guerilla style, than at any time before since the fall of Malolos.

They keep the United States troops in the trenches, sleeping in their clothing and constantly on the alert against dashes upon our outposts, and they make life warm for the American garrisons in the towns.

The bands of Gen. Luna and Gen. Mascardo, which retreated toward Tarlac when they feared they would be caught between Gen. MacArthur and Gen. Lawton, have returned in force to their old trenches around San Fernaudo, where there are daily collisions.

Opposite our lines on the south protecting Manila all the way around to San Pedro Macati, the Filipinos have three rows of trenches most of the distance.

Reports from prisoners indicate that the insurgents construe the peace negotiations to mean that the Americans have had enough of fighting. The Filipinos are also encouraged by the belief that the Americans are preparing for an interval of inactivity during the wet season.

Favors a Revision of the Dreyfus Case.

PARIS, May 29.—It was reported Saturday that the report of the president of the civil section of the court of cassation, M. Balot de Baupre, to the president of the court of cassation, M. Mazeau, is in favor of a revision of the Dreyfus trial and urges resending the case before a court-martial.

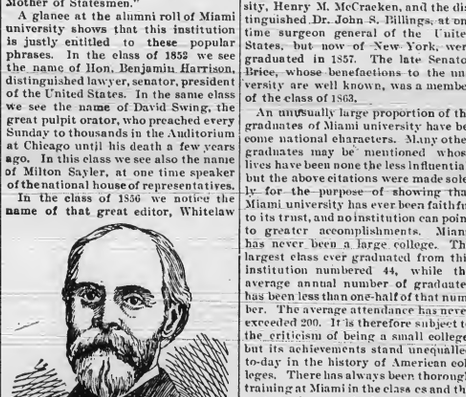
Conflagration at Port au Prince.

PORT AU PRINCE, Hayti, May 29.—Twenty houses have been destroyed here by fire. Two firemen were wounded while combating the conflagration.

MIAMI UNIVERSITY.

Seventy-Fifth Anniversary of "The Mother of Statesmen."

Origin and History of the Institution —Many Distinguished Men Numbered Among Its Graduates— The Exercises in June.



The seventy-fifth anniversary of the founding of Miami university, which will be celebrated the week of June 11, will be one of the most important college events of the present year, for the reason that it is the diamond anniversary of the first and most famous college founded in the west, and that it will be a reunion of many of our most prominent public men, who have been students within its halls.

Miami university was born in the spirit of the great ordinance of 1787, one of the chief mandates of which is that religion, morality and knowledge, being necessary to good government and the happiness of mankind, schools and the means of education shall ever be encouraged. Pursuant to this, congress provided that one complete township should be reserved, out of the land grant to John Cleves Symmes in 1792, for the support of an institution for higher education. In 1809 the state of Ohio accepted the trust of management of such an institution and passed "an act to establish Miami university." In 1818 the construction of the buildings was begun, and in 1824 the trustees opened this college under the presidency of Dr. Robert H. Bishop, who consecrated his life to the organization and upbuilding of the college.

Miami university at the outset took a high rank, and the youth of the first families of the west and south drank deep at its perennial spring of knowledge. Its graduates have taken prominent positions in all the walks of life, and no institution, when we compare it by the number of alumni, has graduated so many distinguished men as Miami university. In early years its position was so high and it occupied such a commanding influence that it was known as the "Yale of the West." In later years, as the sons of this famous institution were so frequently honored with grave and responsible public duties, it has been named "The Mother of Statesmen."

A glance at the alumni roll of Miami university shows that this institution is justly entitled to these popular phrases. In the class of 1852 we see the name of Hon. Benjamin Harrison, distinguished lawyer, senator, president of the United States. In the same class we see the name of David Swing, the great pulpit orator, who preached every Sunday to thousands in the Auditorium at Chicago until his death a few years ago. In this class we see also the name of Milton Sayler, at one time speaker of the national house of representatives.

In the class of 1856 we notice the name of that great editor, Whitelaw

WHITELAW REID.

Reid, of the New York Tribune, at one time the nominee of the republican party for vice president, and lately a member of the peace commission which framed the treaty of peace between the United States and Spain. Mr. Reid dealt with all the problems arising out of that great controversy, and as the commencement orator of Miami university this year, he has chosen for his text an international theme, and will treat of the new problems confronting us as a nation to-day in a way that will attract the attention of the entire country. Mr. Reid will deliver this address on Thursday morning, June 15, on the university campus at Oxford, Ohio.

Among the earlier graduates of Miami, the name of Gen. Robert C. Schenck, who served as minister to England under Grant, stands out preeminent. He was a graduate of the second class of Miami. Rev. William McClure Thompson, author of "The Land and the Book," graduated in 1828. The author of "Cotton Is King," Rev. Ebenezer Newton Elliott, belonged to the class of 1830. Duncan Kenner, who represented the confederate states at the court of Great Britain in 1864, was a member of the class of 1831. Charles Anderson, ex-governor of Ohio, and Rev. Benjamin W. Chidlaw, "the Robert Raikes of America," were graduated in the class of 1833. William S. Groesbeck, who defended President Andrew Johnson in the famous impeachment trial, and whose speech on that occasion electrified the whole country, was graduated in 1834. Of his classmates may be mentioned John J. McCrea, at one time governor of Mississippi and later a congressman; Rev. Joseph G. Monfort, who has been editor of The Herald and Presbyter since 1855, and who enjoys the distinction of being the oldest living alumnus of this institution, and Rev. Thomas E. Thomas, a noted minister and college president. William Dennison, the great war governor of Ohio, who had the distinction of being postmaster-general in Lincoln's second cabinet, was a member of the class of 1835. This also brings to mind that Caleb B. Smith, a student in the thirties, was secretary of the interior in President Lincoln's first cabinet.

In the class of 1836 we notice that James Birney attained great eminence and represented the United States at The Hague for seven years. James B. Howell, of the class of 1837, and John Stuart Williams, known as "Cerro Gordo" Williams, of the class of 1838, both served in the United States senate, the former from Iowa, the latter from Kentucky. George E. Pugh, of the class of 1840, was one of the distinguished senators from Ohio at the outbreak of the rebellion. Charles H. Hardin, of the class of 1841, served the state of Missouri as its governor for two years. His classmate, Samuel Shellabarger, attained the greatest eminence as a lawyer, and was appointed United States minister to Portugal by President Grant in 1869, but resigned two years later to accept a position on the United States civil service commission. Oliver P. Morton, who was a student for three years, from 1842 to 1845, was the celebrated war governor of Indiana and later served four years in the United States senate. Rev. Dr. David A. Wallace, of the class of 1846, was for 32 years a college president, and was one of the greatest administrators of college affairs the west has ever known. Rev. Dr. S. S. Laws, of the class of 1848, was president of the Missouri state university for 13 years. Alexander C. McClurg, at the head of the great publishing house of A. C. McClurg & Co., and Senator James W. McDill, of Iowa, were members of the class of 1853. The present chancellor of the New York university, Henry M. McCracken, and the distinguished Dr. John S. Billings, at one time surgeon general of the United States, but now of New York, were graduated in 1857. The late Senator Brice, whose benefactions to the university are well known, was a member of the class of 1863.

An unusually large proportion of the graduates of Miami university have become national characters. Many other graduates may be mentioned whose lives have been none the less influential, but the above citations were made solely for the purpose of showing that Miami university has ever been faithful to its trust, and no institution can point to greater accomplishments. Miami has never been a large college. The largest class ever graduated from this institution numbered 44, while the average annual number of graduates has been less than one-half of that number. The average attendance has never exceeded 200. It is therefore subject to the criticism of being a small college, but its achievements stand unequalled to-day in the history of American colleges. There has always been thorough training at Miami in the classics and the students have profited greatly by their intimate association with the renowned professors that it has always been the good fortune for Miami university to command. The college has always kept in view the fact that the noblest work of God is a manly man, and it has ever been the aim of Miami university to make manly men out of the youth intrusted to its care, and to ground them thoroughly in the fundamental principles of religion, morality, and knowledge, the sacred charge of the ordinance of 1787.

The faculty of the university now numbers fifteen. They are able and accomplished educators and their work is most thorough. The president of the university is Rev. Dr. William O. Thompson, who is justly famed as a sincere christian gentleman, earnest and industrious, who enjoys the highest confidence and esteem of the alumni and friends of the institution.

The most complete arrangements have been made for the celebration of the seventy-fifth anniversary on Wednesday, June 14. The colleges of the United States have been requested to send delegates to represent the institutions officially at these services. The governors and their staffs of the states of Ohio, Indiana, and Kentucky have been invited and are expected to be present. Prominent alumni from all parts of the United States have signified their intention of being present. The exercise and gathering will fitly celebrate the diamond anniversary of the most famous college of the west.

WALTER L. TOBEY.

"BUST THE TRUSTS."

Slogan of the Democrats in the Coming Campaign.

Conference at St. Louis Declares Against Monopolies—William J. Bryan Scores the Trusts.

At the conference of democratic leaders in St. Louis on Thursday, May 25, the slogan for the coming national campaign was sounded and plans were laid to wage bitter war upon trusts and monopolies. William J. Bryan was the principal speaker of the day, and upon the subject uppermost he said:

"An actor who visited Nebraska recently, upon learning from a republican that confidence had been restored, remarked that he had examined Webster's dictionary to learn what 'confidence' meant, and found confidence defined as 'trust,' and then he understood that confidence had been really restored.

"More trusts have been formed during the last two years than existed at the beginning of the present administration, and the nominal capitalization of the trusts now in existence approaches, if it does not equal in amount, the world's total supply of gold and silver. The influence of these trusts has become so enormous that the people, without respect to party, are making themselves how the evil can be remedied.

"The purpose of the trusts is to control the product of some article of merchandise, and the methods employed are: First, the union of all individual factories under one management or into one corporation, and, second, the crushing out of new rivals. A monopoly when once complete not only dictates terms to those who buy the product, but it also dictates terms to those who sell the raw material and to those who furnish the labor. If the trusts are permitted to continue, we shall find an industrial aristocracy growing up in the United States which will prove as destructive of our ideals as a landed aristocracy would.

Powers of Monopoly.

"The principle of monopoly is incompatible with our institutions. Man's necessities compel him to become a purchaser, and where there is but one seller the purchaser is completely at the mercy of the seller. Where there is competition between producers the purchaser is sure to obtain what he wants at a reasonable price. When competition is eliminated the price is controlled not by reason, but by the greed of the one who possesses the monopoly.

"It has been said that the power to tax is a power to destroy. A monopoly possesses the power to tax; it can levy such assessments as it will upon the purchaser, and we can no more afford to permit such a power to be exercised by private individuals than we could afford to authorize a private individual to use the machinery of taxation in order to enrich himself at the expense of his fellows.

"The government would be guilty of gross neglect if it permitted an individual to secure a monopoly even without legislative assistance, but it is still more culpable if by legislative act it furnishes the means by which a monopoly is secured. The corporation is the means now employed by those who seek to secure a monopoly. Since the corporation is a fictitious person, created by law, the power that creates can regulate, restrain or annihilate. To say that the government is impotent to prevent the organization of trusts is to say that it has called into existence a fictitious person, and that the fictitious person created has become greater than the creator.

Stronghold of the Trust.

"One of the difficulties which has been encountered in opposing trusts is that the trust hides behind the federal constitution when attacked by state legislation, and shields itself behind its state charter when attacked in the federal courts. No remedy will be complete that is not comprehensive with the federal government. If the extinguishment of the trusts is left to state legislation the public at large will be victimized as long as a single state will furnish a robbers' roost where the spoils collected in other states can be divided.

"Just now people are startled by the principle of monopoly as it manifests itself in the industrial trust, and well may they be startled. The principle, however, is the same as that which manifests itself in the effort of the national bankers to secure a monopoly of the issue of paper money. The greenback is a rival of the bank note, and its presence is a constant menace to the banks of issue. Some who recognize the evils that flow from a soap trust seem indifferent to the dangers that attend the formation of a paper money trust.

"The principle of monopoly not only lies at the foundation of the attempt to destroy the greenbacks, but it is the controlling principle that underlies the crusade against silver as a standard money. Between 1850 and 1865, when the production of gold was increasing and the production of silver was small, three nations demonetized gold and gave to silver a monopoly of mint privileges. Early in the '70s the financiers became alarmed at the increase in the production of silver, and conspired to destroy silver as a standard money and give a monopoly to gold, the production of which at that time was stationary.

Standard Money Trust.

"The standard money trust is not only the patent trust, but is in the hands of foreigners.

"The republican party is impotent to destroy the trusts. It is controlled by those who are interested in trusts, and its campaign funds and sinews of war are supplied by the trusts. Abraham Lincoln, in the very beginning of his presidential career, warned the country against the threatened attempt to put capital above labor in the structure of the government. Modern republicanism is fulfilling the prophecy made by Lincoln. It is putting the dollar above the man. The democratic party is opposed to the principle of monopoly wherever it manifests itself. It has declared war on the trusts. Not a little trust only, but a big trust as well. Not against one kind of trust only, but against all trusts. The man who opposes trusts in congress is entitled to as much credit for bravery as the man who swam a river or marched up San Juan hill."

——This is the logical sequel to trust supremacy. It is the most alarming aspect of conditions with which the country is brought face to face. The democratic party, to deserve the gratitude of the country, must lift this yoke from the neck of a free people, whose freedom has not been so endangered by alien foes since the foundations of their government were laid as now by a domestic foe.—St. Louis Republic.

——Secretary Gage admits that there will be a deficiency of $100,000,000 in the treasury at the close of the fiscal year on the 30th of next month. The McKinley administration is throwing away a hundred millions in the folly of waging a war of conquest and subjugation in the Philippines. The prosecution of the war, it may be, is now reduced to a necessity, but five months ago it could have been prevented by wise statesmanship and adherence to American principles and the shedding of a drop of American blood in a war with the Filipinos averted.—Pittsburgh Post.

STATE NEWS.

Nicholasville is to have a $33,000 public library.

'Squire Burt, 103 years old, died in Owen county, last week.

Five of the penitentiary guards at Frankfort, are Kenton county men.

The recent hailstorm in Madison county ruined hundreds of acres of wheat.

Richard Thompson, was accidentally killed by being thrown from a horse.

Two six year old boys were drowned in a catch-basin in Louisville one day last week.

Just $10,000 has been raised to pay off the debt of the Third Baptist Church of Owensboro.

Gov. Worthington pardoned Albert Sharp, of Pulaski county, who had served 13 years of a life sentence.

In eight days the southern railroad handled 150 car loads of strawberries grown in Tennessee and southern Kentucky.

On account of small pox in the Lexington jail the prisoners were moved to the pest house, where they are kept under guard.

A Harrodsburg planing mill firm has a contract to supply the government with 10,000 rifle stocks, to be made of the finest walnut.

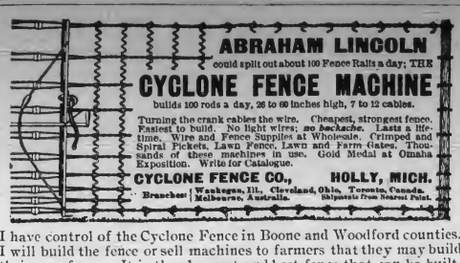
Will Glover, the negro who killed Jim Duncan at the Taylor mines in Ohio county, last March, was given a life sentence at Hartford.

John T. Woodford, of Montgomery county, sold seven horses to Wisconsin parties—brood mares at $2 00 and one yearling colt at $350.

The Court of Appeals affirmed the judgment of the Shelby Circuit Court in fining the C. & O., railroad $500 for failing to provide a separate coach for colored people.

The Citizens' Saving Bank, of Owensboro, has decided to pay off all depositors at once and go out of business. The Farmers' and Traders' Bank is also liquidating.

Wick Hall, a fourteen-year-old boy of Carrollton, was sitting down and a glass eye he had recently had put in to replace one lost by being struck with a rock several years ago, exploded or collapsed without warning, lacerating the socket.



R. M. McKee, who runs a sawmill at Sharpsburg, met with an unfortunate accident. He was sawing lumber and leaned too close to the saw which struck him at the left shoulder, splitting the arm to the elbow. It was amputated to save his life. McKee is sixty-eight years old.

Congressman A. S. Berry has received a letter from Washington, stating that the city of Newport will get one of the canons which was mounted on Cervera's fleet during the naval engagement at Santiago. As soon as it is definitely known what time the gun will arrive in Newport arrangements will be made to receive it in a fitting manner.

In the Goose Creek neighborhood of Nicholas county, Henry Prather found the body of Walter P. Hollan, a 17-year-old negro, hanging in the barn of Samuel Berry. He cut the body down and ran for assistance. Not finding anyone he returned to the barn and found that Hollan had retied the rope, climbed up higher, and re-hung himself, and was dead, his neck being broken. The coroner's jury found a verdict of suicide by hanging.

Charles C. Moore, the well known Kentucky prisoner, and formerly editor of the Bluegrass Blade, who is serving a term in the Ohio penitentiary for an illegal use of the mails, has addressed a letter to Gov. Bushnell in which he asks the executive to commute the sentence of Bruno Kirves, the Dayton prisoner who is now in the annex awaiting execution. Moore declares himself against capital punishment, and states that he will be willing, if possible, to serve several extra months in prison if Gov. Bushnell will accede to his request.

At the fair ground in Paducah an entertaining and amusing contest will be held. It will be a reunion of the old-time "haw-eating, poplar-log fiddlers, accordion-players and Jews' harp artists" of Western Kentucky. Prizes will be given to the tallest fiddler, the shortest fiddler, fattest and leanest fiddlers, fiddler with the biggest feet, fiddler playing "Snowbird on the Ashbark" best, fiddler playing "Sugar in the Gourd" best, "Leather Breeches," "Old Dan Tucker," "Arkansaw Traveler," "Hell Broke Loose in Georgia," "Black Satin;" and many other prizes will be given for the best rendition of old-time tunes that gladden the hearts of the pioneers of the "Dark and Bloody Ground." Ex-Governor Bob Taylor of Tennessee, has consented to act as one of the judges. The contest is given under the auspices of the Commercial Association.

ABRAHAM LINCOLN
could split out about 100 Fence Rails a day; THE
CYCLONE FENCE MACHINE
builds 100 rods a day, 26 to 60 inches high, 7 to 12 cables.

Turning the crank cables the wire. Cheapest, strongest fence. Easiest to build. No light wires; no backache. Lasts a lifetime. Wire and Fence Supplies at Wholesale. Crimped and Steel Pickets, Lawn Fence, Lawn and Farm Gates. Thousands of these machines in use. Gold Medal at Omaha Exposition. Write for Catalogue.

CYCLONE FENCE CO., HOLLY, MICH.
Branches: Waukegan, Ill., Cleveland, Ohio, Toronto, Canada, Melbourne, Australia. Shipments from Nearest Point.

I have control of the Cyclone Fence in Boone and Woodford counties. I will build the fence or sell machines to farmers that they may build their own fences. It is the cheapest and best fence that can be built.
Address G. CARTER GRADDY, BULLITTSVILLE, KY.

Commissioner's Sale.

Boone Circuit Court, Ky.

The Ky. Citizens Building and Loan Association's Assignee, Pltf.
vs } equity.
W. R. Gordon, &c., Defts.

By virtue of a Judgment and order of Sale of the Boone Circuit Court, rendered at the April term thereof, 1899, in the above cause, I shall proceed to offer for sale at the Court-House door in Burlington, Boone County, Ky., to the highest bidder, at Public Sale on Monday the 5th day of June 1899, at one o'clock p m., or thereabout, being County Court day, upon a credit of 6, 12 & 18 months, the following described property, to-wit:

Lying and being in Boone county, Ky., and bounded as follows: Being lot No. 1 in Norris' addition to the town of Petersburg, Boone county, Ky., and described as follows: Fronting 60 feet on First st, and running back in uniform width of 60 feet, 144 feet to an alley; this lot is bounded on the north by First st, and on the west by Grant st., and being same lot conveyed to W. R. Gordon by John D. Norris and wife on December 31, 1884, by deed, recorded in Deed Book 35, page 18, Boone County Clerk's office.

For the purchase price the purchaser with approved security or securities, must execute bonds, bearing legal interest from the day of sale until paid, and having the force and effect of a judgment, with a lien retained thereon until all the purchase money is paid. Bidders will be prepared to comply promptly with these terms. Amount to be raised by sale, $707 29.

J. W. DUNCAN, M. C. B. C. C.
Lassing & Riddell, attys. for Pltf.

Commissioner's Sale.

Boone Circuit Court, Ky.

The Ky. Citizen's Building & Loan Association's Assignee, Pltf.
vs } Equity.
Ralph C. Tilly, &c., Defts.

By virtue of a Judgment and order of sale of the Boone Circuit Court, rendered at the April term thereof, 1899, in the above cause, I shall proceed to offer for sale at the Court house door in Burlington, Boone county, Ky., to the highest bidder at Public Sale on Monday, the 5th day of June, 1899, at 1 o'clock p. m, or thereabout, being County Court day, upon a credit of 6, 12 and 18 months, the following described property, to-wit:

Certain lots or parcels of land lying and being in the town of Petersburg, Boone county, Ky., and bounded as follows: Being on the east side of Market street and fronting thereon 86 feet each or 120 feet, and running back in an eastern direction 141 feet to an alley, and designated as lots No. 142 & 143 as laid down on the official plan and plat of said town, and being same property conveyed to Ralph C. Tilly by O. G. Wooley and wife, by deed dated 25th day of October, 1892, and recorded in Deed Book 39, page 393, Boone Co., Court Records.

Or sufficient thereof to produce the sums of money so ordered to be made. For the purchase price of said land the purchaser, with approved security or securities, must execute bond, bearing legal interest from the day of sale until paid, and having the force and effect of a judgment, with a lien retained thereon until all the purchase money is paid. Bidders will be prepared to comply promptly with these terms.
Amount to be raised by sale, $786 86

J. W. DUNCAN, M. C. B. C. C.
Lassing & Riddell, attys. for Pltf.

Consign your Stock to

Rabenstein, Harris & Conner,
—Live Stock—
COMMISSION MERCHANTS,

COVINGTON STOCK YARDS,
Covington, Ky.,
OR UNION STOCK YARDS,
Cincinnati, Ohio.

When shipping East bill our care privilege selling Central Covington Stock Yards.
We will make it to your advantage and give your stock special personal attention.

Helms' - Barber - Shop,
PETERSBURG, KY.

Hair cut 15c, on Saturday 20c; Shave 10c; Shampoo 15c; Sea Foam 5c; Hair Singe 5c; Beard Trim 5c, other work proportionally as low in price. Ladies' and children's work a specialty. ☞All work guaranteed satisfactory or money refunded. Hair Oils, Tonics, Perfume, etc., for sale. Thanking all for past favors, I remain, &c.,
EVERETT HELMS, Prop.

LADIES—To the ladies that have not paid us a call, will say that Thursday is conceded to be their day. Ladies' Shampoo 25c; Sea Foam 15c; Bangs trimmed 10c. Hair dressed for special occasions a specialty, at reasonable rates. Courteous treatment is our motto. Give us a call.

Commissioner's Sale.

Boone Circuit Court, Ky.

J. J. Lillard, Pltf.
against } Equity.
Harriet Reib, &c. Defts.

By virtue of a judgment and order of sale of the Boone Circuit Court, rendered at the April term thereof, 1899, in the above cause, I shall proceed to offer for sale at the court-house door in Burlington, Boone County, Ky., to the highest bidder at public auction on Monday, June 5th, 1899,
at 1 o'clock p. m., or thereabout, being county court day, upon a credit of 6, 12 and 18 months, the following described property, to-wit:

Tract No. 1—Situated on the waters of Gum branch and bounded as follows: Beginning at a corner between Joseph L. Rich and herein described tract of land on Gum branch east of the public road, witnessed by a beech tree and stump on the west side thereof; thence up Gum branch n 9 e 25 poles, n 2 w 24 poles, n 16¾ w 23 8-10 poles to the lower corner of the Dower tract on said branch, witnessed by a stone on the west side thereof; thence s 76½ w 124 poles to a stone, corner of Dower tract and lot No. 2; thence s 4 w 23 poles to a stone, a corner of lot No. 2 in J. L. Rich's line; thence with said line s 86 e 127 poles to the beginning, containing 42 acres, and being lot No. 2 in the division of the lands of Thomas P. Johnson, deceased.

Tract No. 2 is bounded as follows: Beginning at a stone on Gum branch road, a corner of lot No. 2 in the division of the lands of Thomas Rich, deceased; thence n 51½ e 2 82 chs, n 33½ e 2.62 chs, n 21½ e 9.67 chs to a stone in Gum branch; thence n ¼ w 8.83 chains to a stone, a corner of W. Huey and Wallace Garrison; thence n 75 e 14.88 chains to a stone, a corner with said Garrison and the E. M. Allen tract of land; thence with said Allen's line s 43¾ e 12.50 chains to a corner of lot No 2; thence with a line thereof s 52 w 20.05 chs to a stone, corner of lots Nos. 2 & 4; thence with a line of lot No. 4 n 39½ w 11.15 chs to the beginning, containing 46¾ Ac. & 3p.

Excepting a passway for the benefit of lot No. 2 in the division of the lands of Thomas Rich, deceased. This tract is lot No. 1 in the division of the lands of said Thomas Rich.

Tract No. 1 will be offered and sold as a whole to pay J. Lillard's and A. G. Winston's claims, &c; if the amount realized from the sale of lot No 1 is insufficient to satisfy said claims, then tract No. 2 will be offered, or so much thereof as will satisfy the balance of the debt, interest and costs of said Winston.

For the purchase price the purchaser, with approved security or securities, must execute bond, bearing legal interest from the day of sale until paid, and having the force and effect of a judgment, with a lien retained therein until all the purchase money is paid. Bidders will be prepared to comply promptly with these terms Amount to be raised by sale, $1,450.54.

J. W. DUNCAN, M. C. B. C. C.
Lassing & Riddell, attys., for Pltf.

Commissioner's Sale.

Boone Circuit Court, Ky.

J. M. Lassing, Pltf.
vs } Equity.
Ernest Yager, &c., Defts.

By virtue of a Judgment and order of Sale of the Boone Circuit Court, rendered at the April term thereof, 1899, in the above cause, I shall proceed to offer for sale at the Court House door in Burlington, Boone County, Ky., to the highest bidder, at Public Sale on Monday the 5th day of June, 1899, at one o'clock p.m. or thereabout, being County Court day, on a credit of six months, the following described property to wit:

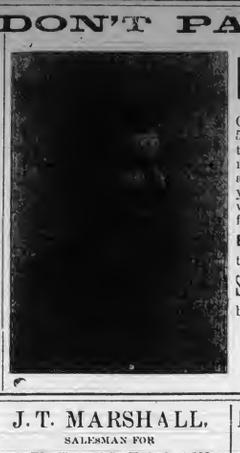
A lot or parcel of land lying and being in the town of Florence, Boone county, Ky., and bounded as follows: On the north by Bankhead st.; on the south by the lands of Mrs. Joseph Osborn and William Conner; on the east by the lands of William Carder, col'd., and Wm. Conner, deceased; and on the west by the lands of Wm. Conner, deceased; containing ½ of an acre more or less, and being property conveyed to Earnest Yager by J. R. Clutterbuck, by deed dated July 1, 1895, and recorded in Deed Book 41, p 406, Boone County Court Records.

For the purchase price the purchaser with approved security or securities must execute bonds, bearing legal interest from the day of sale until paid, and having the force and effect of a judgment, with a lien retained therein until all the purchase money is paid. Bidders will be prepared to comply promptly with these terms.
Amount to be made by sale, $265 06.

J. W. DUNCAN, M. C. B. C. C.
Lassing & Riddell, attys. for Pltf.

Notice of Dissolution.

The firm of Wilson & Riddell, merchants at Rabbit Hash, has been dissolved by mutual consent, Mr. Wilson retiring from the business, and those owing the firm are request to come forward and settle.



WILSON & RIDDELL.

NOTICE.

We will furnish pasture and attention to mares the parties would like to leave with us to breed to our horse and jack, at $1 per month. Pasturage to be paid before mare is removed.

BODDIE & RIDDELL,
Rabbit Hash, Ky.

DON'T PAY TWO PROFITS!
IF YOU WANT A

Buggy or Carriage

Go direct to the factory and save the 50 or 75 per cent. that agents add to the factory price; get all you can in material and workmanship — put agents commission in the vehicle or your pocket. Come and see us and we will prove to you that your home factory will give you

BETTER WORK for the MONEY

than can be gotten from any agents.

See Our 2500 Mile Dust Proof Axle,

before buying a vehicle. We warrant and stand by all our work.

BRADFORD BROS.,
FLORENCE, KY.

J. T. MARSHALL,
SALESMAN FOR
F. W. KASSEBAUM & SON,
Manufacturers and Dealers in
Granite and Marble Monuments.
GRANT P. O., KENTUCKY.

FRANK HOSSMAN,
Hebron, Ky.,
CARPENTER AND BUILDER,
—Also handles all—
KINDS of ROOFING.
Which is furnished and put on at the Lowest Prices consistent with good work.
I am prepared for moving buildings.
Your Work is Solicited.

ADDINGTON, No. 27008,
Will make the season at my stable, at $10 to insure a colt to stand up and suck. Addington is a brown, 16 hands high, sired by Declaration, by Young Jim, by Geo Wilkes; 1st dam, C. M. Clay 22; 2d dam by Almont 33.
J. A. RIDDELL, Hebron, Ky.

WHEN IN RISING SUN, INDIANA,
Stop and see

Jno. D. Baxter
—THE—
SADDLE and HARNESS
Man. He keeps a large stock of Saddles, Harness, Collars, Whips, Bridles, Trace Chains, Hames,
In fact everything kept in a 1st-class Harness Store, and at the Lowest Cash Prices; we buy strictly for cash and our customers benefit by it. Call and be convinced of the fact.
JOHN D. BAXTER,
THE OLD RELIABLE.

BUGGIES!

IF YOU WANT A GOOD
BUGGY
To suit you and stand the rough roads and made to order, call on ECKSTEIN NOVELTY CO.,
—AGENTS FOR—
JAMES & MAYER BUGGY COMPANY,
LAWRENCEBURG, IND.

CORNER
Drug Store
Rising Sun, Ind.
Is the place for anything in the Drug Line.
WALL PAPER, PAINTS, WINDOW SHADES, STATIONERY, PERFUMES, FANCY GOODS, &c.
B. F. BUCHANAN,
— DRUGGIST, —
Over thirty year's experience.

FARMERS
Take Notice!
If you want good
Fertilizer
PLEASE GIVE
B. F. ZIMMER
A CALL.
He will try to please you. He has the finest line of Fertilizer for 1899 he has ever handled. Write for particulars to
CONSTANCE, KY.

NOTICE.
J. E. Roper's Guernsey Bull "Jesson 2209" will be found at his father's this season—fee $1.

DR. A. P. WALTON,
DENTIST,
CINCINNATI,
The Lancaster Building 22 W. 7th, Bet. Vine and Race.

INSURE AT HOME
The Farmers' Mutual Fire
INSURANCE COMPANY,
OF BOONE COUNTY,
Is now completely organized and receiving applications for insurance.
Its Rates are Lower
Than those of any other Company and gives the farmers of Boone County
HITHERTO UNKNOWN ADVANTAGE
In keeping their property insured.
EVERY FARMER IN THE COUNTY should take a policy at once.

E. H. BLANKENBECKER, - President, Florence, Ky.
EDGAR CROPPER, - Vice-President.
OSCAR GAINES, Secretary, Burlington.
J. E. DUNCAN, Treasurer.
EXECUTIVE BOARD—Legrand Gaines, J. W. Conner, John Stephens.
J. E. SMITH, Assessor, - Burlington, Ky.
W. M. ROGERS, Agt. - Walton, Ky.

1899. SEASON 1899.
CRESCENT HILL STOCK FARM.
TIMOTHY BOY, No. 27854
Bay horse, foaled April 3, 1893, bred by D. Bedinger & Son, Richwood, Ky., sired by Wilkes Boy, 2:24; 1st dam, Alga by Artillery, 2:21½; 2d dam Valdosta by Nutwood, 2:18¾; 3d dam Emma Arterburn (dam of St. Arnould, 2:29, and 2 dam of two in 2:30 list) by Mambrino Patchen 58; 4th dam Jenny Johnson (grand-dam of three in 2:30 list) by Sweet Owen; thoroughbred, &c.
Wilkes Boy is one of the best sons of the great Geo. Wilkes, 2:22.
TIMOTHY BOY is one of the best bred horses in the State, is 16¼ hands high and weighs 1,300 lbs. in ordinary condition, a horse of great power, good bone, fine style and action, perfectly sound in every particular. He is a pure gaited trotter and his colts are large with plenty of style and action, the kind that are in demand all the time.
Service fee $10 to insure a live colt, money due when colt is foaled or mare parted with.
THE FINE MAMMOTH JACK,
Nutwood,
Will make the season of 1899 at $8 00 to insure a live colt, money due when colt is foaled or mare parted with.
DESCRIPTION & PEDIGREE.
Nutwood is a dark brown or black with white points, 16 hands high, very heavy bone and well built, large head and ears, heavy body and good action; foaled July 6, 1894, was bred by J. M. Park, Madison county, Ky. Nutwood is by Blackwood, 16½ hands high, one of the best mule and jennet jacks in Kentucky; 1st dam by Griggs' Big Tom, 16 hands high; 2d dam by the Hubbert jack, &c.
TIMOTHY BOY and Nutwood will make the season on Daniel Bedinger's farm on the Richwood & Beaver pike, 3 miles west of Richwood.
☞Pasture and attention furnished mares at $1.50 per month. Care taken to prevent accidents, but no responsibility should any occur.
J. C. BEDINGER, Richwood, Ky.

SEASON 1899.
OAKNOLL STOCK FARM
UGO!
Foaled 1892, sired by Simmons 2744, (record 2:28,) sire of 75 in 2:30, and 14 in the 2:12 list; by George Wilkes 519, (record 2:22); 1st dam by Almont Boy 4368; 2nd dam by Norman 25; 3d dam by C. M. Clay 18.
UGO is a dark chestnut, 16¼ hands high, weighs 1,150 pounds, a very kind prompt driver, also a good saddler.
Will make the season of 1899, on Thursdays, Fridays and Court days at Burlington, Ky., and the remainder of the time at my barn, one mile west of Uzinger, Ky., at $10 to insure a live colt, money due as soon as colt is foaled.
Care will be taken to prevent accidents, but I will not be responsible should any occur.
SCOTT CHAMBERS.

5 Per Cent. MONEY TO LOAN.
Real estate security. Any sum from $1,000 to $3,000 at 5½ per cent. Sums of $3,000 and over at 5 per cent. Interest payable semi-annually. No loans made for a less time than two years.
B. C. BEDINGER, Agent,
Beaver Lick, Ky.
☞Farms especially wanted. me99tf

D. E. CASTLEMAN,
ATTORNEY - AT - LAW.
BURLINGTON, KY.
Will practice in the Courts of Boone Kenton, Grant and Gallatin. Collections pushed energetically.

G. G. HUGHES,
ATTORNEY AT LAW.
BURLINGTON, KY.
Will practice in all the courts. Prompt attention given to all business entrusted to me.

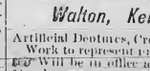
P. E. CASON,
ATTORNEY - AT - LAW.
BURLINGTON, KY,
Practice in all Courts. Promptness guaranteed.

J. G. TOMLIN,
ATTORNEY - AT - LAW.
WALTON, KENTUCKY.
—o—
Will practice in the Courts of Boone, Kenton Grant and Gallatin. Prompt attention given to Collections entrusted to him. mch22-y3.

W. E. VEST,
County Surveyor,
BURLINGTON, KY.
Is prepared to do all kinds of Surveying. All orders by mail promptly attended to.

J. M. LASSING. N. E. RIDDELL
LASSING & RIDDELL,
ATTORNEYS AT LAW.
BURLINGTON, KY.
Prompt Attention Given to Collections

S. GAINES,
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW.
BURLINGTON, KY.
Will practice in all the courts, and prompt attention given collections. Office—In residence near post-office.



S. W. ADAMS,
ATTORNEY - AT - LAW.
ERLANGER, KENTUCKY.
Will practice in the courts of Boone and Kenton counties. Collections and general law practice.

W. E. VEST,
Real Estate Agent.
Farms Bought, Sold or Exchanged, Money to Loan on Real Estate, Notes bought, sold & Negotiated. ☞All communications addressed to W. E. VEST, Burlington, Ky.

BOONE CO. DEPOSIT BANK.
(Incorporated 1856.)
CAPITAL, ... $30,000
Surplus and undivided profits, 20,000
—)o(—
Our facilities enable us to receive on favorable terms accounts of individuals and corporations. Collections promptly remitted for at lowest rates.

ERLANGER DEPOSIT BANK.
(INCORPORATED 1893.)
ERLANGER, - - KENTUCKY
CAPITAL PAID IN $50,000
SURPLUS, ... $ 3,000
Careful attention given collections and remittances promptly made. Deposit accounts solicited.

Dr. J. L. Adams,

DENTIST,
Walton, Kentucky.
Artificial Dentures, Crown and Bridge Work to represent natural Organs.
☞Will be in office at Union every Monday.
Satisfaction - Guaranteed.

JOHN L. VEST,
SURVEYOR
WALTON, KY.
Is prepared to do all kinds of work south of Burlington, Ky. Prompt attention given to all mail orders.

Take the Recorder, $1.50 a year.

BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

VOL. XXIV. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, JUNE 7, 1899. NO. 33.

HANNA is on top yet in Ohio, and he is going to remain there.

THIS year's crop of politics in Kentucky is more than an average.

THE free silver people had charge of Louisville a few days last week, the occasion being the convention of the Ohio Bimetallic League.

GOV. BRADLEY'S health has been giving him considerable trouble, and he will be glad when relieved of the duties of his office, which have been very annoying to him ever since he was inaugurated.

JUDGE TARVIN was reelected President of the Ohio Valley League of Bi-metallic clubs, at the Louisville convention, last week. The office will last until after the close of the 1900 campaign.

IT is beginning to occur to President McKinley that "to the victors belong the spoils" is the correct theory in politics, although he denounced the idea at the beginning of his administration. Live and learn.

ONE of the Covington delegates was robbed of $70 while attending the League Convention at Louisville, last week. That is an unusually large roll for a Covington man to carry except when going out to Latonia.

IN a few months the largest gun ever made in this country, will be tested at Sandy Hook. It is a sixteen inch rifle, three calibers larger than any gun of modern design heretofore made for either the army or navy.

W. J. BRYAN'S sojourn in Louisville, last week, was an uninterrupted ovation. Everybody wanted to see and cheer the great Democratic leader, and that was just what everybody did. Wherever Bryan goes enthusiasm goes.

THE Republicans are enjoying the triangular fight now being made in the Democratic party for the gubernatorial nomination, but it wont be long before it will not be necessary for them to leave home for amusement along that line.

SOME of those who pretend to be Democratic leaders in the State are not in position to support the nominee of the Louisville convention unless he should happen to be their favorite. Such leaders do the party more harm than good.

THE recent shake-up in the editorial department of the Kentuckian-Citizen has resulted in an improvement of the paper. The mechanical department has been improved also, and the paper now comes to hand with a handsome new dress and a clean face.

ADMIRAL DEWEY is now on his way home from Manilla. There is but little doubt but his health has been about destroyed in the tropics, and the lives of thousands of brave Americans are being snuffed out by the same cause that has resulted in the Admiral's collapse.

ACTING on the theory "that it is the early bird that gets the worm," the friends of Attorney General Taylor, have been pulling off the conventions in counties where the Republicans are favorable to Taylor for Governor, and the friends of the other candidates are objecting to the unseemly haste of the Taylor people.

HERE is what the Dispatch says against Senator William Goebel, in order to prejudice the people against him in his race for Governor: "Geobel's father was born in Germany, removed to Covington and received employment with the Kentucky Central Railroad, remaining with that corporation until 1868, when he opened a railroad boarding-house in Covington, and was engaged in that business until his death in 1877."

The above is a terrible offense against mankind. It remained for the Louisville Dispatch, a Democrat paper, to discover that being of humble parentage disqualifies a man from being honored by his fellow-citizens in this country.

IN his inaugural address President McKinley pledged himself to take no backward step in the matter of civil service reform, but he has forgotten the pledge so deliberately taken and has laid down the bars by which a large number of the faithful will now be allowed to partake of the flesh pots, and whoop it up for the President for a renomination next year. This action of the President is at variance with his every public expression on the subject, and can be construed in no other way than for his personal benefit. So long as the rank and file of the party only was to be benefitted by a modification of the civil service it could not be made, but when the time came for the President to reap the benefit of the change he did not hesitate to make it, and it will prove a beneficial electioneering scheme.

Senator Goebel spoke to a good sized audience here, last Monday. His speech was a plain, fearless manly declaration of his position in regard to the questions that most concern the people. He makes no attempt at oratory, but uses plain, strong language that carries conviction with it. No person who is a Democrat can take issue with him on the matters pertaing to State affairs as presented by him. He regards no question that concerns the people in the light of a diversion, and does not fear to express his opinion in regard there to. He is an expert in the use of sarcasm, and it is woe unto the person who provokes him unto its use. That his speech here Monday was a strong one was not so pronounced by his supporters alone.

Mr. Gosnell, candidate for State Treasurer, also spoke. Mr. Frazee, candidate for Commissioner of Agriculture, was mixing with the voters during the day.

The long drawn out contest between the Bank of Kentucky, Farmers Bank and Deposit Bank, of this city, over the taxation question was brought to a close on Monday by a decision in the U. S. Supreme Court, at Washington City, in which the contention of these banks that the decision rendered by Judge Pryor in the Court of Appeals of Kentucky, holding that these banks could not be taxed for local and municipal purposes, had made the case res judicata, and could not be reopened by a change of the personnel of the court, was upheld.

The court also holds that the other banks, who were not parties to that suit, do not come within the protection of that decision and are subject to taxation.

The National banks had heretofore been held exempt from a part of the taxes, and this decision reaffirms that doctrine.

This decision is a finality, and the banks interested now know the ground upon which they stand and can govern themselves accordingly.—Frankfort Roundabout.

At a meeting held by the Democratic State Executive Committee in the city of Lexington March 8, 1899 it was ordered that a State Convention be held in the city of Louisville on Wednesday, June 21, 1899, for the purpose of nominating Democratic candidates for State offices, to be voted for on November 7, 1899. Said Convention shall be called to order at 11 o'clock a. m.

Delegates to said Convention shall be chosen at County Mass Conventions, to be held at the various county court-houses in counties having but one Legislative District, of which due notice shall be given by the various County Chairman. In counties having more than one Legislative District there shall be a Convention for each Legislative District, to be held at some convenient point, to be indicated by the Chairman of the Legislative District Committee, who shall advertise in the local papers the location of said Convention at least ten days prior to the date fixed by this committee. Said County and Legislative District Conventions shall be held at 2 o'clock p. m., standard time, on June 17, 1899. Said Convention shall be called together by the Chairman of the respective County or Legislative District Committees.

The basis of representation of each county to the said State Convention shall be one delegate for each 200 votes and fraction consisting of one hundred or more votes cast for the head of the Democratic electoral ticket at the Presidential election in 1896; provided that each county shall have at least one delegate vote.

All known Democrats and others who supported W. J. Bryan for President, and those who pledge themselves to support the nominees of said convention shall be entitled to participate in the County or Legislative District Convention.

P. P. JOHNSTON, Chairman.
OWEN COCHRAN, Secretary.

THE location for the Carrollton Government Building has been selected, and work will begin at an early date.

THE time has come in the campaign when the candidates and their friends are claiming everything in sight.

SUMMER has come to stay, and if it continues to increase in intensity, this will be a terrible warm summer.

KENTUCKY needs a Governor whose position on State issues is known. Making a State campaign on national issues alone does not carry a business look.

THE county mass meeting to select delegates to attend the Democratic State convention at Louisville will be held in the several counties of the State, next Saturday week, in the afternoon. That will be a busy day with the Kentucky Democracy.

THE Ohio Republican State convention, last week, denounced trusts, and to prove its sincerity in the matter, defeated the only candidate before the convention who had ever made any fight on trusts. This is another instance in which actions speak louder than words.

HANNA brought the boys to time again over in Ohio, last week, and his candidate for Governor won out in the second ballot. In the preliminary contests in the convention the opposition seemed to have the best of the boss, but when it came to the decisive battle he routed the opposition without trouble.

THOSE who read headlines only would conclude from the report of the Louisville Dispatch of the League meeting there last week, that Goebel failed to say anything on the money question. It was only another effort on the part of the Dispatch to conceal real facts that are constantly contradicting its statements.

Paul Vandrvoort, Past Commander of the Grand Army of the Republic, has presented to President McKinley a plan to use part of the $3,000,000 set aside to pay Cuban soldiers in transporting veterans of the Union and Confederacy to Cuba to establish homes. He claims to have thousands of letters from both armies on the subject, and says he can raise a Western legion similar to Joe Shelby's Mexican brigade to settle in Cuba, thus guaranteeing peace and a stable government. He believes the most patriotic movement of modern times can be started, and Cuba colonized by veterans, who will be willing to fight or till the soil.

June brings us to the solstice point in our orbit around the sun, and deserves a more extended explanation and forecasts than we have space to attempt. There are several astronomical causes bearing on June this year that promise to make its storms and other phenomena exceptional. From the 3d to 6th, look for high temperature and many storms, progressively from western to eastern extremes. A Venus equinox is central on the 7th, and will be dominating influence in all the first half of June.—Much lightning may be expected. From 9th to 12th is an active time of rain and storms. Cooler weather will follow storms of rain, hail and thunder. The 15th to 18th is another marked storm period. Consult your barometer and watch the clouds. Many electrical displays from 21st to 24th, with heavy rains and wind. The 26th to 30th is the last regular storm period. Be on the watch for frequent and heavy showers through out the month.—Hicks.

Pith of the Press.

Of course, Bernhardt can play Hamlet, but wait till she tackles Falstaff.—Minneapolis Journal.

It might be just as well to leave John Sherman's forgettery in peace.—Memphis Commercial-Appeal.

For 40 years John Sherman has been too old to run for any office before the people.—Atlanta Constitution.

There is no direct evidence to show that Aguinaldo does not occasionally stop for meals.—Chicago Times-Herald.

Turn about is fair play. Mr. Astor dodges American taxes, and British society dodges him.—Philadelphia North American.

We have seen Admiral Sampson, and he doesn't look at all like the unprincipled villian he has been represented to be.—N. Y. Press.

Very little notice is being taken of the fact that the Pefferian whiskers are now streaming from the Republican ramparts.—St. Louis Republic.

Thomas C. Platt is embracing party harmony with all the fervor of a man who is convinced that it's no use to reach for his gun.—Chicago Record.

If General Otis can't make peace in any other way he still has a chance to turn the whole matter over to Jessie Schley.—San Francisco Chronicle.

Perhaps General Alger is looking over the articles of agreement before challenging Senator McMillan for a finish fight in Michigan.—Kansas City World.

Admiral Sampson says we cannot secure prosperity through fighting. The Admiral's big bunch of prize money rather tends to confirm this idea.—Washington Post.

Whether Peffer has returned to the Republican party or the Republican party has swung around to Peffer is still a debatable question—in Peffer's opinion.—Minneapolis Times.

Col. Browne should prove his patriotism by marching his Coxey army to the nearest seaport for embarkment to the Philippines. There is no need of an army just now at Washington.—N. Y. Herald.

Mr. Platt's announcement that he is for McKinley for a second term not only calls for apologies from Mr. Hanna, but renders necessary some explanation from Mr. Roosevelt.—Omaha World-Herald.

Of course, if a large force is needed, the troops will be sent, but we are not surprised that President McKinley is unpleasantly disappointed at the intimation of the probable necessity.—Boston Herald.

In paying the debt incurred for his nomination he put in places of responsibility a large number of politicians, of whom General Alger is the most conspicuous and Mr. Bliss was, in his time, the next.—N. Y. Times.

Senator Turley, of Tennessee, has attained national distinction for declining reelection to the United States Senate on the ground that he is "unwilling to devote the latter part of his life to a constant struggle for office."—Baltimore Sun.

Gov. Bradley, of Kentucky, is in danger of being arrested for having asked for a drink of whisky in Tennessee after 10 o'clock at night. The Tennesseans evidently have no sympathy for a Kentuckian in distress.—N. Y. Mail and Express.

It does not strike us as of sufficient importance to call for comment that Platt in New York and Penrose, the man Friday of Quay in Pennsylvania, have declared for McKinley as the next Republican candidate for the Presidency.—Boston Herald.

General Eagan has made himself heard from Hawaii in an interview in which he pompously declares that he is "still Commissary General of the United States army." This is the exact fact. He holds the position with full pay on a six years' vacation.—Minneapolis Journal.

THE next convention that is called to nominate a Democratic candidate for a State office, suppose the call embraces and recognize only those "holier than thou" Democrats, who cannot support a nominee unless he be their favorite before the convention, and see what they will accomplish for the good of the party.

CROP AND STOCK.

The Harrodsburg Democrat reports the purchase by a New York buyer of 392 fat cattle for $12,000.

A great many cattle have been dying throughout Taylor county from eating too freely of young clover.

A disease believed to be cholera is raging among the hogs in Letcher county, killing many of the porkers.

The Kentucky Trotting Horse Breeders Association offers $80,000 in stakes and purses to be trotted for at the October meeting.

Upon the ordinary farm four cents will pay the cost of growing a pound of young mutton, and the highest profit seems to be to the credit of the Southdowns.

Considering the dullness of the wool market, all kinds, sorts, sexes and breeds of breeding sheep are high in prices and in brisk demand, says the Sheep Breeder.

Ambrose Clayton sheared two sheep last week, the fleeces of which weighed 37 pounds. They were Cotswools, and the fleece of the buck pulled the beam at 20 pounds, and the ewe at 17.—Glasgow Times.

W. G. Cowen sold to Fox & McDowell, of Boyle, 160 lambs for June 15 to 20 delivery at $5,40. J. W. Powell is back from Saulsburg, N. C., where he sold another car load of hogs as high as a cat's back.—Interior Journal.

Two million pounds or 2,800 beeves have been shipped by the government from New York to the soldiers at Manila. The meat is not of the tainted kind, but is carefully stored away in a refrigerator ship, which is kept at a temperature or 32 degrees.

Mr. J. Ed Cosby, of Red House, who made numerous experiments last year, says he has discovered an exterminator for that pestiferous weed known to farmers as "iron weed." He says cut the weed off close to the ground with a hoe or scythe and sprinkle common barrel salt on the stump and in a few days it will turn black, rot clear to the roots, and you will be troubled with a new growth of the stalk no more.—Richmond Register.

THE candidates for representative were busy among the voters, Monday.

FROM now until the 17th of this month the politicians will have a hustle on them.

This weather is hot enough to cause the severe cold of last winter to be forgotten.

The Old Darling Distilling Co. has closed down for the season. This distillery has recently passed into the hands of the whisky trust and hereafter will be operated by it.—Carrollton News.

The Burlington Sunday School is making an effort to attend the Sunday school Convention at Pt. Pleasant, next Friday, in a body. The delegates are as follows; J. C. Revill, B. B. Allphin, J. O. Roberts, M. J. Hoover, Mrs. W. F. McKim, Mrs. B. W. Adams, Mrs. M. J. Hoover, Misses Ella Duncan and Katie Huey.

THERE is talk that an extra session of the Legislature will be called to pass legislation concerning the taxation of national banks. A recent decision of the supreme court holds that the national banks get their franchise from an act of Congress, and therefore that taxes from national banks must be upon the shares of stock in the hands of the owner, and thus the necessary legislation is needed. There is a doubt whether under the present law the shares of stock can be assessed, or whether at any rate there can be any accurate assessment of the shares of stock. If there is no extra session of the Legislature it is feared that the entire tax on national banks for two years will be lost. It is not likely that any steps will be taken until Bradley returns from his vacation, but it is highly probable that the Legislature will be called in extra session within the next few months.—Ex.

STATE NEWS.

Oil in paying quantities has been struck at Paintsville.

John Hinton was killed by lightning in Breckinridge county.

Lancaster has been selected as the place of encampment of the Kentucky G. A. R. next year.

"The mules" is the name of a band of regulators that is doing business in the Paintsville vicinity.

Geo. Thomas was arrested at Whitesburg by United States authorities for selling stamps at a discount.

Dr. H. C. Kasselman, of Midway, was elected President of the State Homeopathic Society. Next year's meeting will be held at Paris.

In the Democratic primary, in Larue county, to name a candidate for Representative, Robert Enlow and W. A. Robinson tied the vote. Another election has been called for June 12 to decide the matter.

The Queen & Crescent strawberry special is the fastest train running South of the Ohio river, and makes the run from Somerset to Cincinnati in 3 hours and 18 minutes, an average rate of speed of over fifty miles an hour.

The Rodbourn sawmill one of the largest in the state and owned by the Chemung Canal Bank of Elmira, N. Y., was burned at Morehead. Loss $100,000. The fire is thought to be of incendiary origin. The mill was well insured.

A short time ago at Maysville, officer Wallace had occasion to arrest Darius D. Moran and in doing so struck him on the head with a heavy club. Mr. Moran has now brought suit against the officer and his bondsmen for $1,000.

Ellis A. Williams, a candidate for Representative in the Carter-Elliott district, writes a card in the Grayson Bugle to deny the charge that he is an infidel. He says he is a member of the Methodist church, but does not claim to be immaculate.

Gov. Worthington issued an unusual commutation of sentence in the case of William Todd, of Madison county. Todd is serving a life sentence, and in response to a petition for clemency, the Acting Governor reduced this sentence to 30 years.

Geo. Murphy, serving out a $25 fine and a ten days' jail sentence in Louisville, was pardoned by Gov. Worthington, but refused to accept it on the grounds that he had not asked it and did not want it. The object in the pardon was to rearrest him on a more serious charge.

H. M. Jones, of near Freedom, Barren county, has a wooden clock that is eighty years old and has been running all the time and keeps as good time as any clock. He has a grease lamp that is about seventy-five years old that has been in regular use all the time. He has a rifle that is seventy-six years old.

Editor George Warren advertises that his paper, the Hickman Courier, is for sale. Mr. Warren has been identified with the publication of the paper for more than forty years. It is the oldest paper in Western Kentucky, and Mr. Warren has made an enviable record for ability, conservatism and journalistic fairness during his long service as editor.

Chas. H. Stone, claiming to be a resident of New York, and worth $175,000, struck Warsaw, a few weeks ago, and started a watch repair shop. After a week's courtship he married Miss Susan Griffin, and left for Cincinnati. At Lawrenceburg he abandoned his bride, and she had to write home for money to return on. Stone's whereabouts are unknown.

The Bardwell Push prints this little incident of the visit at Columbus: A stranger handed one of the Nashville's "jackies" a half dollar at Columbus and asked him to "show him around." The "jackie" tossed the money in the river, colored up and indignantly but politely informed the visitor that he was an American citizen, in the employ of his country and needed no half dollar for any courtesy he could extend an American citizen. It made a fellow feel glad he was a subject of Uncle Sam to see this ordinary seaman color up and say he was in pay of this government, which he was proud of, and needed no tips to extend courtesies to a person sharing the honor of a residence under the Stars and Stripes.

THE RECORDER.

W. L. RIDDELL, Publisher.

BURLINGTON, : : KENTUCKY.

JUNE—1899.

Sun.	Mon.	Tue.	Wed.	Thur.	Fri.	Sat.
....	....	....	....	1	2	3
4	5	6	7	8	9	10
11	12	13	14	15	16	17
18	19	20	21	22	23	24
25	26	27	28	29	30	....

IN 1891 the death rate in Russia rose from 32.7 to 38.2 per 1,000, or, expressing the same facts in absolute figures, the number of deaths attributed directly to the famine was 656,000. If the famine of 1899 is to leave these figures far behind, says a London exchange, there can be no question of its terrible intensity.

THE Berlin correspondent of the London Standard telegraphs: "The engineering committee of the army has received a report on the recent experiments with liquid air for blasting purposes carried out in a foreign country. They are stated to foreshadow a complete revolution in the application of explosives."

CHARLES BURKOWITZ, a blind beggar of New York, who for a long time has frequented the shopping district of the metropolis and who was arrested the other day for insulting a lady who refused to give to him, is said to be the owner of two tenements, each valued at $25,000, and to have large sums of money in several of the savings banks of the city.

SIBERIA is not the land buried in snow and peopled with exiles only that it is imagined to be, even by many Russians. In its southern parts it is as rich in natural productions as are the southern parts of Canada, and besides 500,000 of natives it has a population of more than 4,000,000 as thoroughly Russian as that to the north of Moscow.

PROF. RUDOLPH VIRCHOW delivered an important address before the tuberculosis congress, rejecting the theory of hereditary tuberculosis. This doctrine, he declared, was contradicted by all his pathological researches. He said he had never found tuberculosis in unborn or new-born infants, though it might be contracted during the first day's existence.

THE automobile is a successor to the horse and wagon, and will eventually banish the horse from the streets. In the process of evolution, and the certain cheapening of cost, it will yet be convenient and economical for men in fairly well to do circumstances to buy automobiles, and when they come into general use of course street railway traffic will be diminished.

CRATER bathing is a leading sport in Mexico and California, where volcanic baths are frequently taken on account of their recuperative and invigorating properties. The bathers do not plunge into either hot water or lava, as neither exist in the craters used for baths, nor do any flames or sulphurous vapors arise from the hollows. The substance into which the volcano bather lowers himself is ice-cold mud, of the consisteney of freshly mixed mortar.

ACCORDING to a foreign exchange recent experiments carried out at the machine works of Offenbach, show that with the proper appliances it is possible to stop even a large fly wheel within a fraction of a second. By means of two brakes affixed to the fly wheel of 150 horse power, making 80 revolutions per minute, the "whole of the machinery was brought to a standstill in less than a second after the fly wheel had accomplished one quarter of a revolution."

THE Chinese Almanac is the most largely circulated publication in the world, the number of copies printed and sold yearly reaching several millions. It is printed at Pekin, and is a monopoly of the emperor, no other almanac being permitted to be sold in that country. Although containing reliable astronomical information, its chief mission is to give full and accurate information for selecting lucky places for performing all the acts, great and small, of everyday life.

THE millionaire colony on Fifth avenue is about to erect between Ninetieth and Ninety-second streets a series of mansions which will shade into insignificance those of any thoroughfare in the world. Andrew Carnegie's new home will cost $1,000,000. In the next block the two Burden-Hammond houses, which Wm. Douglas Sloane is building for his daughters, will require an outlay of $5,000,000. Mr. Gud will spend $1,000,000 on a new house, and across the street from Mr. Carnegie Mr. Wm. K. Vanderbilt will erect a mansion at an expenditure of $2,000,000.

THE czar has just had made for himself a petroleum tricycle of burnished steel, fitted with all latest improvements. The machine is wholly devoid of ornament, except in the form of a silver escutcheon attached to the left steering bar, on which are emblazoned the imperial arms. In speed it is said to be a record breaker. A little chariot of wickerwork is being constructed for the use of the czarina, who will thus be towed behind her august consort. It is understood that these two vehicles are to accompany the young sovereigns in the visits which they propose to pay to various European courts.

HON. GEO. K. NASH.

Republicans of Ohio Nominate Him as Their Candidate for Governor.

Ex-Mayor Caldwell, of Cincinnati, Nominated for Lieutenant Governor, W. Z. Davis for Supreme Judge, and J. M. Sheets for Auditor of State.

THE AUDITORIUM, COLUMBUS, O., June 8.—Owing to the conferences of leaders during the night, and again Friday morning, it was late before the republican state convention reconvened although it had adjourned Thursday evening till 10 a. m. The Auditorium was unable to hold all having tickets. Many were unable to gain admittance. There were so many tickets given out that some holders could not secure standing room. While the band discoursed from the galleries, there were wild demonstrations as the leaders came into the hall, and especially when some of the winners of contested seats took their places

It was 1:20 when Chairman Kerr began ranging for order. Prayer was offered by Rev. H. Barbour.

THE PLATFORM.

The following platform was adopted:

The republican party of Ohio reaffirms the principles declared by the St. Louis platform.

We earnestly endorse the great administration of William McKinley. It is distinguished to a remarkable degree in the history of national administrations. Under the last democratic administration and, as a result of democratic principles and policy, our industries were destroyed, capital and labor were unemployed, the poor suffered as never before in our history, agricultural products could not be sold because consumers could not earn money with which to buy, and every branch of trade felt the blighting influence of the democratic tariff reform hard times; the treasury of the United States was depleted and the gold reserve disappeared. The government borrowed money to pay current expenses, increasing the public debt in times of peace by hundreds of millions of dollars.

The democratic party proposed to the people as a remedy for all these democratic ills, to depreciated and dishonest currency, which intensified every evil.

During all that period of depression and distress, the republican party stood fast for the principles and policies under which American industries had been built up and had flourished beyond example—the principles and policies under which the people had prospered and the nation had grown great for a generation; stood fast for a sound and honest currency, and, in 1896, elected to the presidency William McKinley, the best exponent of republicanism and true American ideas and policies, the friend of every American industry and the wise and patriotic defender and advocate of honest money.

JUDGE GEO. K. NASH,
Republican Nominee for Governor of Ohio.

Under his splendid republican administration public credit has been restored, prosperity of the people has developed, our commerce has grown great, our trade domestic and foreign, has increased to a degree never before known, and people are looking with confidence for greater things to come.

The magnificent achievements of our army and navy in the war with Spain for the liberation of the down-trodden and oppressed people of Cuba from the domination of Castilian despotism, accomplished under the master guidance of a republican administration, are necessarily subjects for highest encomium by a convention of Ohio republicans.

To the same master guidance, controlled by the great principles that have shaped the high destiny of the republican party, from Lincoln to McKinley, the people can safely commit the solution of the momentous problem of the future of Cuba, Porto Rico and the Philippines. Their wise solution will vastly increase our foreign trade, spread American civilization abroad and add to the honor and power and glory of this great nation.

We commend the president for the judicious modification of the civil service rules, recently promulgated.

For the national defense, for the reinforcement of the navy, for the enlargement of our foreign markets, for the employment of American workingmen in the mines, forests, farms, mills, factories and shipyards. We demand the immediate enactment of legislation similar to that favorably reported to each branch of the Fifty-fifth congress at its last session, so that American-built, American-owned and American-manned ships may regain the carrying of our foreign commerce.

We commend the action of the 73d general assembly of Ohio in passing the stringent law now on our statute books, prohibiting the organization of "trusts," and we denounce such unlawful combinations as inimical to the interests of the people.

We congratulate the people of the state upon the fact that a republican legislature enacted this law and we demand its rigid enforcement.

We pledge our party to such further legislation as experience may determine necessary to prevent the formation and operation of such iniquitous and dangerous combinations.

Other resolutions recommend laws for equalizing taxes, uniform system of selecting delegates for state conventions, protesting against lynching and strongly favoring the Ohio centennial at Toledo in 1902.

The reports of the committees on rules and order of business and on permanent organization were adopted, Chairman Kerr returned thanks for the endorsement in making the temporary organization permanent and proceeded to call for the report of credentials.

The report of this committee seating the Cox delegates from Hamilton county, the Holcomb delegates from Cuyahoga, the Nash delegates from Franklin, was adopted without opposition.

The counties were then called for the presentation of names for the nomination for governor, and it required a long time for these speeches.

Judge S. B. King, of Erie county, presented the name of Linn W. Hull, of Erie county, Hull's name was mildly applauded.

Judge Thomas, of Huron, seconded the nomination of Hull.

Judge L. W. Hull, of Youngstown, nominated Ashael W. Jones, of Mahoning county.

When Franklin county was called the convention went wild with applause. Henry C. Taylor presented the name of Judge George K. Nash, of Franklin county.

James M. Holcomb presented the name of Harry M. Daugherty, of Fayette county.

Daugherty's name was received with tumultuous applause.

Hon. Charles Besler, of Dayton, presented the name of Robert M. Nevin, of Montgomery.

Judge Moses M. Granger, of Zanesville, presented the name of F. A. Durban, of Muskingum county.

Ex-Gov. Charles Foster presented the name of Albert Douglass, of Ross county.

A ballot was then taken with the following result:

Nash	289
Daugherty	211
Nevin	82
Jones	76
Douglas	61
Durban	46
Hull	39
Orr	17
Total	881

No nomination.

Hamilton county cast her 56 votes, through Chairman Cox, as follows: Nash, 50; Nevin 3; Daugherty, 1; Rest scattered.

On the second ballot the changes were so much in favor of Nash as to indicate his nomination. Nash gained only one vote in Cuyahoga county, but when Cox cast the 56 votes of Hamilton county solid for Nash, there was a tremendous demonstration that was considered the band wagon signal.

On motion of Chairman Holcomb, of Cleveland, the nomination of Nash was made unanimous without a count.

George K. Nash is a leading attorney of Columbus, 45 years old, and a widower. He has been prosecuting attorney of Franklin county, attorney general of the state, member of the supreme court, and during four campaigns chairman of the state committee.

Hon. Harry M. Daugherty was then escorted into the hall and made a most eloquent speech, in which he said the convention had named the next governor, and he would not be behind any one in contributing to that end. He cheerfully joined in the ratification of the nomination of such a worthy man as Judge Nash.

Senators Foraker and Hanna and ex-Gov. Charles Foster, having been appointed for that purpose, escorted Judge Nash into the hall, and he accepted the nomination in a vigorous speech for an active campaign.

Judge James B. Swing presented the name of ex-Congressman John A. Caldwell for lieutenant governor.

A. R. Johnson presented the name of Capt. E. S. Wilson, of Ironton.

Judge J. A. Kohler presented the name of J. Park Alexander, of Akron.

Caldwell was nominated.

In the balloting for lieutenant governor, Cuyahoga county cast 52 of her 58 votes against Caldwell, of Hamilton county. The ballot resulted:

Caldwell, 549; Alexander, 214; Wilson, 78. Necessary to choice, 447.

W. D. Guilbert, of Caldwell, was renominated for auditor of state without opposition.

Isaac B. Cameron, of Lisbon, was nominated for state treasurer; James M. Sheets, of Ottawa, for attorney general, W. Z. Davis, of Marion, for supreme judge, and Frank Huffman for member of the board of public works.

The convention, after the usual routine business, adjourned at 3:45 p. m.

THE CHILD WAS CLAIMED.

The Baby Girl Abandoned in Buffalo, N. Y., Two Weeks Ago by a Man, Delivered to Its Alleged Mother.

BUFFALO, N. Y., June 3.—The 17-months-old baby girl which was abandoned in this city two weeks ago by a man giving his name as Robert Hall and his address as 1220 South Broadway, St. Louis, has been claimed by Mrs. Gustave Stephany, of Desoto, Mo. She says that Hall is her husband and that he deserted her, taking the child with him. When the child was first discovered in this city it was thought she was Mrrion Clarke.

Adm. Schley and Wife in Chicago

OMAHA, Neb., June 3.—Adm. Schley and wife left Omaha at 5 o'clock Friday evening, and will arrive at Chicago Saturday morning, and be the guest of the Loyal Legion at the Palmer house. He will remain in Chicago until Sunday afternoon, when he leaves for the east.

The Decision in the Col. Picquart Case.

PARIS, June 3.—The decision in the case of Col. Picquart will be rendered on Tuesday. It is expected that the case will end by the abandonment of the prosecution.

WAS ATTACKED.

President Loubet Assaulted While at the Races at Auteuil Sunday.

Several Persons Were Hurt and Many Arrests Were Made By the Police—Count Christiano Struck Loubet a Blow on the Head.

PARIS, June 5.—President Loubet, accompanied by Premier M. Dupuy, and the chief of the military household, Gen. McBailloud, drove to the Auteuil races Sunday afternoon, closely followed by Madame Loubet in a second landau. As they drove along the avenue Des Champs Elysees, the crowd bowed respectfully; but, on arriving at Auteuil, they were met by a violent demonstration evidently organized and directed against the president.

There was a storm of hoots, yells and cries of "Panama!" "A bas Loubet!" and "Vive l'Armie!" A few shouts of "Vive Loubet!" were drowned in the clamor.

A strong force of police kept order and arrested many of the disturbers, including a man who tried to force his way to the president's carriage.

During the second race the clamor increased to violence and was plainly directed by a committee of the League of Patriots, collected with their supporters both before and behind the presidential stand, around which a formidable affray proceeded.

During the grand steeplechase many blows were struck and several policemen were injured in their endeavors to prevent an invasion of the presidential stand.

At the crisis of the excitement, while shouts of "Vive PArmes" and "Vive Deroulede," were heard on all sides, Count Christiano rushed toward the president brandishing a stick and directed a blow against him, striking his hat.

The crowd rushed upon Chistiano, who only escaped severe handling by being taken under police protection.

President Loubet remained all the while unmoved talking to the premier while officers of his military household were defending him against violence.

Finally, after 30 arrests had been made the prefect of police ordered the republican guards to surround the presidential stand. The principal leaders of the demonstration were M. Jos. Lasies, anti-semite and nationalist, deputy for Geers; and M. Formin Faure, anti-semite and nationalist, deputy for Oran, Algeria.

Police Inspector Grilliere had his head seriously wounded during the melee, and president Loubet has since decorated him with the cross of the Legion of honor, in recognition of his devotion to duty.

It seems certain that the demonstration was organized by the Jeunesse royalists, the Ligue des Patriotes and the Anti-Semites, the rallying sign being a carnation in the button-hole. Count Christiano is a member of the steeplechase society, a very select body and his conduct has produced the greatest indignation.

A CONFERENCE AT MIDNIGHT.

The President and War Officials Have a Meeting Early Monday Morning—Its Nature or Result Not Known.

WASHINGTON, June 5.—Acting Secretary of War Meiklejohn and Adjt. Gen. Corbin had a conference with the president after midnight. They had been summoned by the president, it was understood. What the nature or result of the conference was can only be conjectured yet as the parties to it decline to discuss it.

Mr. Meiklejohn and Gen. Corbin were with the president about half an hour, leaving shortly before 1 o'clock Monday morning. The lateness of the meeting attracted more than usual attention, as there has been no recent occasion for late conferences. Upon returning to his hotel Mr. Meiklejohn said, in response to all inquiries, that there was nothing to make public, and that the subject under consideration was not of a serious character.

A COMBINATION IN LUMBER.

Shipbuilding Material on the Pacific Coast Will Be Much Higher Than it Has Been for a Long Time Past.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 5.—The Pacific coast export lumber manufacturers have consummated arrangements which will make the price of shipbuilding material much higher from now on than it has been for a long time past. The combine is composed of all the Pacific lumber mill companies in British Columbia, Washington and Oregon, controlling the entire output of pine on the coast. Under the new schedule lumber has been advanced about $1 per 1,000 feet, and the advance takes place at once.

Distilleries Closing Down.

LAWRENCEBURG, Ky., June 5.—The Kentucky Distilleries & Warehouse Co. is closing down its distilleries in this county for the season. The W. H. McBrayer distillery closed Tuesday and the T. B. Ripy and Waterfill & Frazier distilleries will stop next week.

Councilman Huges Is Acquitted.

VERSAILLES, Ky., June 5.—After being out 18 hours the jury in the case of Councilman Merritt J. Huges for killing A. F. Steele Saturday, returned a verdict of acquittal.

SPANISH-GERMAN CESSION.

The Movement Does Not Require Any Special Cognizance on the Part of the United States Government.

WASHINGTON, June 3.—While this government has been unadvised of the cession of the Marriano, Caroline and Palaos islands, the colonial policy of Emperor William has led the administration to expect that the German government would lose no opportunity to stretch out its domain in the Pacific. Administration officials do not regard the movement as requiring any special cognizance on the part of the United States, for, according to one member of the cabinet Friday night, this government has acquired all that it wants in that quarter. While Guam is in the midst of the other islands of the Ladrones that are ceded, that fact is giving no concern here, and this government is not disposed to raise any question upon even further extension of German sovereignty in that section of the globe should Germany follow up the present cession with other efforts. Most of the islands in the neighborhood in the past have been infested with pirates, the very name of the Ladrones indicating the former hotbed of piracy, and there are not a few islands yet where the black flag is common.

State department officials have been aware for some time that the German government has been in treaty negotiations with Spain for the cession of the islands referred to in the queen's speech in the cortes. The fact that this has been accomplished, however, had not been communicated to the authorities, and the announcement from Madrid, therefore, was news to them. Secretary Hay said Friday night that the question of cession was not one concerning which the United States would be consulted.

MAJ. ESTERHAZY CONFESSES.

He Declares That the Time Has Arrived When the Whole Truth Should Be Known—He Wrote the Bordereau.

LONDON, June 3.—The Daily Chronicle says that Maj. Compte Ferdinand Walsin Esterhazy called at its office Friday evening with a confidential friend, and, after declaring that the time had arrived when the whole truth should be told, although hitherto, by reason of constant orders and indictments, he had kept silence on the essential point, made the following statement:

"The chiefs of the army have disgracefully abandoned me. My cup is full and I shall speak out.

"Yes (raising his voice and glaring around), it was I who wrote the bordereau. I wrote it upon orders received from Sandherr."

Esterhazy, the Chronicle says, then proceeded to explain that for months before 1893 moral proofs had been obtained of leakages which were only possible through officers belonging to the ministry of war and it was necessary to catch the guilty party by material evidence. Hence the bordereau.

When asked what the chiefs of the French general staff would say to this confession, Esterhazy, shrugging his shoulders, disdainfully replied:

"They will lie as they know how to lie, but I have them tight. I have proofs that they know the whole thing and share the responsibility with me, and I will produce the proofs."

The Daily Chronicle got Esterhazy to sign the notes of the interview.

WILL BE TAKEN TO PARIS.

All Preparations Have Been Made at Devil's Island to Transfer Former Capt. Alfred Dreyfus.

KINGSTON, Jamaica, June 3.—Advices received from Cayenne, capital of French Guiana, say that all preparations have been made for transferring former Capt. Alfred Dreyfus, imprisoned on Devil's island, to the charge of officers from Paris who are said to be coming on board the French steamer Lafayette, which it is alleged will take the prisoner direct from Devil's Island on her return voyage to France.

The advices add that Dreyfus has been in the enjoyment of good spirits since he was notified that he was to be taken back to France for the purpose of undergoing a new trial.

According to these advices a water famine prevails throughout the colony.

Safe Blowers Found Guilty.

STEVEN'S POINT, Wis., June 3.—John Harrington, Edward Rattigan, John Harley and John Kelly, all of Chicago, were found guilty in the circuit court here Friday of the charge of blowing up the safe of the International bank of Amherst on March 10 and of stealing therefrom money and bonds to the extent of $5,000. They will be sentenced to the penitentiary probably for five years each.

Describing land as "lying on the south side" of a nonnavigable river, which is also named as a boundary, is held, in Hanlon vs. Hobson (Col.), 43 L. R. A. 502, to convey land to the center of the river. The question of the effect of bounding a grant on river or tide water is discussed, with a careful analysis of the decisions, in a note to this case.

No man is the wiser for his learning. It may administer matter to work in, or objects to work upon; but wit and wisdom are born with a man.—John Selden.

"Pride Goeth Before a Fall."

Some proud people think they are strong, ridicule the idea of disease, neglect health, let the blood run down, and stomach, kidneys and liver become deranged. Take Hood's Sarsaparilla and you will prevent the fall and save your pride.

Hood's Sarsaparilla
Never Disappoints

SONG OF THE SHIRT WAIST.

It Arises When the Airy, Fairy Favorite of the Ladies Makes Its Appearance.

Hark! the pipes of Pan are pleading—like a sweetheart interceding—in behalf of lazy fellows nowadays—for the proud and painted tulip—and the meek and minted julep—are a bloom again along life's arid ways!

Yes, it works a chap unloading—when he knows that nature's wooing—from the uplands and the lowlands and the meres—When the moonside glows in splendor—when the nights are soft and tender—and the captivating shirt waist reappears!

When the liver-pad is writing—and the lily-pad is tilting—on the breeze bedimpled bosom of the pool—When the ripe red rose comes pleasing—and the ripe red nose stops sneezing—and the little boys play hookey from the school.

It is lawful to be lazy—when each dear, old-fashioned daisy—breathes a message from the fragrant yester years—When the fields are sweet with clover—and (he still my heart) moreover—when the airy, fairy shirt waist reappears!

When the violet blossoms happy—on the coattel of the cappie—When we hustle out the old mosquito bar—When the tipsy holds wassail—in his honeysuckle castle—when the troubadour is tuning his catnrth.

When that tired, transcendent feeling—into every heart comes stealing—sweetly pensive, like a sunny maiden's tears—When the bird throats lift their voices—when, in short, all earth rejoices—and the innumerial shirt waist reappears!—N. O. Times-Democrat.

Those Absurd Names.

"What ridiculous names they have over there in the Philippines," said the man who had just walked up to the counter and been assured by the clerk that he could have the best room in the hotel. "There's Calumpit, for instance. That name would make a horse laugh. Who ever heard of anything so absurd as to give a town such a poetical name as that?"

Then he took the pen that the clerk had been holding out toward him and wrote upon the register:

"J. Crawford, Woonsocket, R. I."—Chicago Evening News.

Do Your Feet Ache and Burn?

Shake into your shoes, Allen's Foot-Ease, a powder for the feet. It makes tight or New Shoes feel Easy. Cures Corns, Bunions, Swollen, Hot, Callous, Sore, and Sweating Feet. All Druggists and Shoe Stores sell it, 25c. Sample sent FREE. Address, Allen S. Olmsted, Le Roy, N. Y.

Awful Competition.

Old Lady—I suppose, poor man, that you have fared badly because of hard times.

Weary Walker—Yes, mum. So many people been out o' work makes an awful competition fer us fellers ter struggle agin.—Philadelphia Record.

The Best Prescription for Chills and Fever is a bottle of GROVE'S TASTELESS CHILL TONIC. It is simply iron and quinine in a tasteless form. No cure—no pay. Price, 50c.

A Straight Tip.

Don't go to a doctor with a broken heart; he is likely to call it appendicitis and operate.—Puck.

To Cure a Cold in One Day

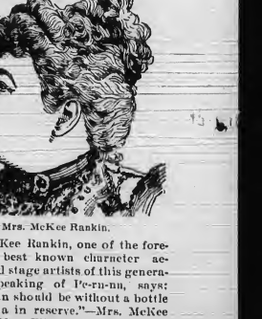
Take Laxative Bromo Quinine Tablets. All druggists refund money if it fails to cure. 25c.

An Expert.

Silas—Is your son still practicing medicine?

Reuben—Nope. He's learnt it now.—N. Y. Journal.

Putnam Fadeless Dyes give the brightest and fastest colors and color more goods per package than any other. Do not stain the hands or spoil the kettle. Sold by druggists at 10c per package.



She—"Do you love me as much as you did when we were married?" He—"More, I thinks—but not so much as I thought I loved you then."—Somerville Journal.

"Excellent photograph of Smith!" "Excellent! He looks enough like himself in it to be his own brother!"—Detroit Journal.

Blessed are they who know enough to let well enough alone.—Chicago Daily News.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY.

A BOOK THAT SHOULD BE IN THE HANDS OF EVERY WOMAN.

Mrs. McKee Rankin.

Mrs. McKee Rankin, one of the foremost and best known character actresses and stage artists of this generation, in speaking of Pe-ru-na, says: "No woman should be without a bottle of Pe-ru-na in reserve."—Mrs. McKee Rankin. Mrs. Eliza Wike, 120 Iron street, Akron, Ohio, says: "I would be in my grave now if it had not been for your God-sent remedy, Pe-ru-na. I was a broken down woman, had no appetite; what little I did eat did not agree with my stomach. It is now seven years past that I used Pe-ru-na and I can eat anything."—Mrs. Eliza Wike.

Every woman should have a copy of Dr. Hartman's book entitled "Health and Beauty." This book contains many facts of especial interest to women. Dr. Hartman has treated more ailments peculiar to women than any other physician in the world. This book gives in brief his long and varied experience.

Send for free books on catarrh. Address Dr. Hartman, Columbus, Ohio.

REBELS' DEFEAT.

Gen. Hall Has Two Battles With Insurgents on Morong Peninsula.

In the Battle a Large Force of Rebels Were Routed in a Mountainous Country—American Loss, Four Killed, 15 Wounded.

MANILA, June 5.—Gen. Hall's column in the movement upon the Morong peninsula completed a circuit of 24 miles over rough and mountainous country, having two engagements with the insurgents, one of them severe and keeping up an almost constant fire against scattered bands of rebels for nearly 24 hours from 4 o'clock Saturday morning when the column left the pumping station.

The Filipinos were driven in every direction, and the country through which Gen. Hall passed was pretty thoroughly cleared. At 10 o'clock Sunday morning the column reached a point a few miles from Taytay, where Gen. Hall was met by Gen. Lawton, who had already entered the town and found it deserted. Gen. Hall's objective point was Antipolo, ten miles off, and there was desultory firing all along the line of march. The gunboats could be heard shelling the hills in advance of the column.

The column, after driving the rebels from the foot hills, near Maria Cliino, about noon Saturday, with a loss of but two or three slightly wounded, proceeded with all possible haste toward Laguna de Bay, the 4th cavalry in the lead, the Oregon regiment next and the 4th infantry last. At 5 o'clock these three regiments fought their second battle of the day, and it resulted, like the first, in the complete rout of a large Filipino force, located in the mountains, and having every advantage of position. In this fight the American loss was four killed, three of the 4th cavalry and one Oregonian and about 15 wounded.

The Filipino loss could not be ascertained, but the terrific fire which the Americans poured into them for half an hour must have inflicted severe punishment. In this engagement our troops made one of the most gallant charges of the war, and the enemy was forced to flee in the greatest disorder. It was the intention to press on to Antipolo Saturday night, but this was found impossible owing to the two fights and the constant marching for more than 12 hours with nothing to eat since morning and no supply train in sight. The troops moreover suffered from the intense heat, many being prostrated and all greatly exhausted. Consequently they bivouacked for the night on the second battlefield.

The cavalry, the Oregonians and two companies of the 4th infantry had just crossed a small creek about 5 o'clock Saturday afternoon and entered upon a sunken road from which they were emerging upon a small valley surrounded on all sides by high and heavily wooded hills, when the rebels, concealed in the mountains on the three sides of the plain opened a hot fire and sent showers of bullets into the ranks of the Americans. The latter deployed immediately in three directions. Then followed a charge across the rice fields and ditches and up the hillsides, from which the shots came all the time pouring in a terrific hail while the air resounded with the constant rattle of musketry. The 4th cavalry being in front suffered the severest loss when the attack opened, two of their killed being sergeants and the other a private. The Oregonian killed was a private.

The natives were unable to stand the vigorous firing of the Americans long, and at the first sign of their wavering the cavalry, Oregonians and 4th infantrymen broke into wild cheers and charged still faster up the hillside, pouring in volley after volley until the enemy left the places where they were partially concealed by the thicket, fled over the summit in the wildest confusion and disappeared in the surrounding valleys.

The troops, after camping for the night on the battlefield, started at 5 o'clock Sunday morning for Antipolo, where it was expected a strong resistance would be made. Antipolo is a place far up in the mountains, which the Spaniards had said the Americans could never capture. It has cost Spain the lives of 800 troops.

The progress of the column was considerably delayed while passing up the steep mountain grade, by a small band of insurgents, but these were effectually routed by the 4th cavalry, which was in advance, and the troops reached Antipolo in a few hours.

Our lines were immediately thrown around on three sides of the town and then the final advance was made. But it was found unnecessary to fire a shot. Not a rebel was visible and the town was entirely abandoned.

Must Close on Sunday.

LOVELAND, O., June 5.—Loveland will be closed up tight Sunday for the first time in many years. This in pursance of an edict of the new mayor and village council. The drug stores, bakeries and livery stables will be open.

Taken to Columbus for Trial.

DAYTON, O., June 5.—Andrew White, alias Charles Proctor, charged with committing a post office robbery near Newark, has been taken to Columbus for trial.

THOSE BOX CAR TOURISTS.

Weary Willies Will Meet in Chicago in Convention—Will Discuss Causes of Their Condition.

CHICAGO, June 2.—A unique open-air convention of rusty "Weary Willies," or hobos, as they are better known, will be held on sand lot, owned by "Onion" Colton, a hotel proprietor at that place, on June 15. Elaborate preparations are already being made for the distinguished travelers and a royal good time is anticipated. The everlasting tempting amber fluid, or barrel-house rye, to which so many are attached, is omitted from the programme.

College graduates in disguise or reduced by drink will be among the eloquent orators at the meeting. Charles Noe, a wealthy young man of Sycamore, Ill., who styles himself a "society tramp," had 10,000 posters printed and distributed at his expense under the name of "Box Car Tourists' Union No. 67." More than 300 hobos of Chicago have organized to get in readiness for the convention. Discussions of the economical and social conditions out of which the hobo evolved himself or has been evolved will be made.

SAMUEL T. JACK'S BEQUESTS.

The Well Known Threatrical Manager Wills His Wife Emma to His Brother James C. Jack.

NEW YORK, June 2.—Sam T. Jack willed his wife to his brother James C. Jack. The last testament of the actor and theatrical manager proprietor of several theaters, "Creole" and other burlesque companies, who died April 27, last, was filed for probate Thursday in the office of the surrogate.

It contains this remarkable provision: "It is my wish, first and foremost, that my brother James and my wife Emma shall become husband and wife."

Mrs. Jack, the "Emma" of the will, was Miss Emma Ward, the favorite actress in the old Lily Clay burlesque company, which was playing at Niblo's in 1892 when Sam T. Jack married her. James C. Jack was asked if he would accept the bequest of his brother, but he would make no statement.

The estate is valued at $75,000, of which $60,000 is said to be in banks in this city and Chicago. The testator left one-third of his property to his wife Emma, one-third to his brother, James C. Jack, and divided the remainder among other relatives.

A STREET FIGHT IN ATHENS.

Four Men Were Wounded, at Least Two of Them Fatally—The Quarrel Started Over a Business Transaction.

ATHENS, Ala., June 2.—A street fight occurred here Thursday in which four men were wounded, at least two of them fatally. The battle was between the Yarbrough brothers, Bert, Walter and Will on the one side, with Charles Campbell and his brother-in-law, Jesse Surgringer, on the other. It grew out of a quarrel between Bert Yarbrough and Surgringer over a business transaction. The two came to blows when the other Yarbroughs rushed up, as they came to separate the combatants. Surgringer, thinking the three brothers were attacking Campbell, fired into the crowd, and Bert Yarbrough fell with a bullet in his lung. He is thought to be dying. Surgringer continued to shoot, Walter Yarbrough receiving two wounds, which will prove fatal. The other brother, Will, is shot in the breast and has a chance for life. Campbell is badly beaten up, but not seriously injured, while Surgringer, who is unhurt, is under arrest. Five shots were fired, all by Surgringer, and but one of them missed the mark.

Maj. Marchand Arrives in Paris.

PARIS, June 2.—Maj. Marchand arrived in Paris at 9 o'clock Thursday morning. He was welcomed at the railroad station by M. Loekrey, minister of marine; M. Guillaine, minister of colonies; Gen. Zurlinden, military commander of Paris, and several other high officials. The public was excluded.

Filipinos Took the Offensive.

MANILA, June 2.—The insurgents reoccupied the lines around San Fernando Wednesday. Thursday morning they attacked the Iowa regiment's outposts and wounded two men. Capt. French took the remainder of the 22d infantry to Canadaby Wednesday, the insurgents having appeared in considerable force there beabouts.

Freight Handlers' Strike Settled.

BUFFALO, N. Y., June 2.—An agreement on weights, etc., was reached at a conference between committees of the striking freight handlers and the employers. The agreement was ratified later at separate meetings of dock men and house men and the men voted to return to work.

Female Bandit Held Up a Stage Coach.

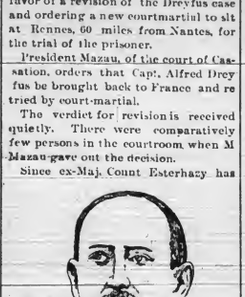
PHOENIX, Ariz., June 2.—The Globe and Florence stage was held up by a man and woman. The woman was dressed in man's clothing. She terrorized four passengers and the driver, while her companion relieved them of $350, a pistol and a gold watch.

Did Not Call a Doctor.

CHICAGO, June 2.—Another death under Christian Science treatment has been reported to the coroner. The victim was Nathaniel True, aged 14, and diphtheria took him off.

TO GET JUSTICE.

A New Trial is Granted to Ex-Capt. Dreyfus, the Exile on Devil's Island.



The New Court-Martial Will Be Held in the Interior of France Where the Prisoner Will Receive Justice —Will Be Acquitted.

PARIS, June 3.—The court of cassation Saturday rendered a verdict in favor of a revision of the Dreyfus case and ordering a new courtmartial to sit at Rennes, 60 miles from Nantes, for the trial of the prisoner.

President Mazau, of the court of Cassation, orders that Capt. Alfred Dreyfus be brought back to France and retried by court-martial.

The verdict for revision is received quietly. There were comparatively few persons in the courtroom when M. Mazau gave out the decision.

Since ex-Maj. Count Esterhazy has acknowledged in more than one published interview that he was the author of the bordereau, the document which convicted Dreyfus, there is left almost nothing to be desired in clearing up the Dreyfus mystery, and except for the formalities yet to be gone through with in acquitting Dreyfus, this famous affair is closed.

CAPT. DREYFUS.
(From a Picture Taken After His Degradation.)

As Esterhazy was once tried on the charge of writing the bordereau and acquitted, he can not be retried, and De Clam, now under arrest, is the only available scapegoat for those implicated in the famous conspiracy.

A new court-martial in an interior town will see final justice done to Dreyfus, who will then be allowed to retire in obscurity to regain his shattered health.

A NUMBER OF DISASTERS.

They Follow in Quick Succession While the Funeral of an Accident Victim Was in Progress at Arthur, Ill.

ARTHUR, Ill., June 5.—A strange chain of disasters began at 10 o'clock Sunday morning when the local grand army post buried T. P. Wells, who was asphyxiated by gas at the Hays hotel in Chicago last Wednesday night. While the ceremony was in progress at the cemetery news reached Gus Baker that his 13-year-old son had been drowned while swimming. The shock prostrated Mr. Baker, and he had to be taken home in a carriage. When the news was broken to his wife she went frantic and became unconscious. Both are in a precarious condition.

The boy was drowned about 10 o'clock and his body was not recovered until evening. While the funeral procession was returning from the cemetery Michael Mentzer's team and carriage ran over Mrs. William Sullivan's little two-year-old daughter, mangling her in a horrible manner. The recovery of the child is doubtful.

Miss Ola Clark, a witness to the latter accident, fainted and was carried to the nearest house, where she lay for four hours before recovering sufficiently to be removed to her home.

WAS FOUND DEAD IN BED.

The Dread of Having to Answer a Wife's Charge Caused a Pittsburgh Doctor to Commit Suicide.

PITTSBURGH, June 5.—Fear of having to appear in court Monday to defend a charge of attempting to kill his wife, forced Dr. Robert Jennings, Jr., the best known veterinarian of this section, to suicide. He was found dead in bed at his home, 541 Second avenue, Sunday morning. On the bed lay a two-ounce vial which had contained prussic acid.

Skilled as he was in the chemistry of drugs, Dr. Jennings had taken but a small quantity of the deadly stuff, which he had procured from his well stocked laboratory. He was 53 years old and had been drinking. His wife charged him with attempting to kill her, and the case was the first on the trial list for Monday.

Mother Stewart Ill.

SPRINGFIELD, O., June 5.—Mother Stewart, the Christian temperance leader, is confined to her bed and may never recover. She was taken ill last Tuesday and has been in an alarming condition ever since. A short time ago she celebrated her 83d birthday.

Opera House Sold.

TOLEDO, O., June 5.—Al. Wilbur, the well known manager of opera companies, bought the People's theater at receiver's sale, paying for it $50,000. He will manage the house permanently.

A STRANGE ROBBERY CASE.

Box Containing $25,000 Stolen From on Board the Steamer Alameda on Her Trip From Australia.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 3.—There was great excitement on board the steamer Alameda upon her arrival from Australia Friday when it was discovered that a box containing 5,000 sovereigns was missing. Seven hundred and fifty thousand dollars had been sent by the steamer from Sydney. The money was shipped in 30 steel boxes, each containing $25,000 in British gold. One of these boxes was abstracted from the steamer's treasure room during the voyage.

The theft is apparently shrouded in the deepest mystery. To thoroughly understand the peculiar deftness of the crime it is necessary to explain that large sums of money frequently exceeding a million in amount, comes from Australia by every steamer. The consignments of gold represent the balance of trade in favor of the United States. So common a feature of the cargo of the Australian ships are these shipments of gold that each vessel belonging to the Oceanic Steamship Co. has a special steel tank constructed for the safe carriage of the treasure.

On the Alameda this vault, as it may be called, is formed of steel plates each five-sixteenths of an inch thick. It is located under the steerage dining room and the only mode of entering it is through a small trap door secured with an iron bar and a Yale lock. The lock was sealed with the stamp of the steamship company after the boxes of sovereigns had been counted and receipted for by the purser, and the key of the lock placed in the safe in the purser's room. The purser declares that the key to the lock has never been taken from the safe from the time the steamer sailed from Sydney until the arrival here. The seal over the lock was unbroken and yet the consignment was short 5,000 overeigns.

The generally accepted theory is that a number were implicated in the theft, and that when the box of sovereigns was secured it was opened and the gold divided among the robbers.

The police have arrested five men who came on the steamer on suspicion.

The suspects gave their names as William Green and John H. Porter and the the former was on the passenger list as Willard Reed. The officials scout the idea that Purser Smith is in any way implicated in the theft. He has grown gray in the service of the company and he is declared to be absolutely above suspicion in the matter.

The last theory of the police is that the missing box was never in the steel tank. As the boxes are heavy, each weighing about 90 pounds, as they were brought on board they were checked by the purser and chief officer and carried to the strong room by two porters. It is now believed that a game of flimflam was played at this stage and the box instead of being placed in its proper receptacle was opened and the money either taken on shore before the steamer sailed from Sidney or else divided among the confederates who were among the passengers. Nothing is known about Reed, alias Porter.

THE NURSE UNDER ARREST.

Carrie Jones Alias Bella Anderson, Confesses to Assisting in the Abduction of Little Marion Clarke.

NEW YORK, June 3.—The World Saturday morning says:

Carrie Jones, the nurse, who had charge of little Marion Clark, was arrested at Summit, N. J., Friday night.

Before a notary public Bella Anderson made the following confession:

"I aided in the abduction of Marion Clark, the infant child of Arthur W. Clarke, of the city, county and state of New York. In this abduction I was prompted by Mark Beauregard and his wife, Jennie.

"I was told by them that I would get half of any ransom paid for the return of the child. I was poor, tired of hard work and wanted money. I was told that there would be absolutely no danger.

"The Beauregards schooled me in the way to abduct the child. We had determined to take the first child that would command a ransom.

"The plan was suggested this spring by Mr. Beauregard. I hesitated, but they persuaded me to act."

The Transport Sheridan Delayed.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 3.—The United States transport Sheridan will not go to the Philippines as soon as was expected. Under a hydrostatic test of the boilers, two socket bolts blew out and it will take about 25 days to repair the damage. The City of Pueblo will probably be re-chartered to carry the troops intended for the Sheridan.

Grant to Gen. Kitchener Recommended.

LONDON, June 3.—In the house of commons Friday the government leader, Mr. Balfour, present d a message from the queen recommending a grant of £30,000 to Maj. Gen. Lord Kitchener, of Khartoum, the sirdar of the Egyptian army.

Du Paty De Clam Attempts Suicide.

PARIS, June 3.—The Petite Republique prints a rumor to the effect that Lieut. Col. Du Paty de Clam attempted suicide immediately after his arrest Thursday evening.

DUTY OF DEMOCRACY

John P. Altgeld's Address to the Bimetallic League.

Results of Demonetization of Silver —Evils of Gold Standard—Trusts and Monopolies—Democratic Principles.

Before the League of Bimetallic Clubs, which met at Louisville, Ky., May 31, John P. Altgeld spoke at some length upon the great issue of bimetallism and touched up with much vigor the gold standard, trusts, monopolies, etc. In the course of his speech Mr. Altgeld said:

"In 1896 the true democrats of America decided that we did not need two political parties to represent the corrupt commercial interests, and they again made the issue of 16 to 1 stand for the interests of the great masses of the people. They declared for definite principles, they promulgated a second declaration of American independence. But there was an element in the party which did not approve of this—an element in the party which looks to the corrupt concentration of capital for favors; an element which, while pretending to be democratic, wants to play the aristocrat. In all essential particulars this element represents the same things that the republican party represents, but it formerly remained in the democratic party because there it could achieve a prominence and a personal preferment which it could not in the republican party. This element of our party remained hostile and is again seeking power. It commands vast wealth and is looking by secret means corrupt and otherwise to secure control of our councils. It is proclaiming that we be in favor of this or of any other pretense, that we must abandon the principles we stood for in 1896, or else be defeated. They tell us that we should adopt a platform broad enough to cover anything; that is a meaningless platform; they tell us that we should raise some new cry, and that then we might sweep the country. And we find that those high officials of the land who have only an appetite for office, are inclined to listen to this talk. Let us look at this question a moment and see what is involved. We are told that we must be silent on the ratio and simply declare for bimetallism. Now, if it were a new and an original question it may be that theoretically a different ratio would be just as good as the one we declared for. The boom men have told us that one reason why Europe gentlemen adopted the ratio fifteen and one-half to one was that that was about the ratio at which the precious metals were produced in the world. Whether that be correct or not it is true that the financial systems of Europe rested on that ratio, and that in our country for the last 80 years that ratio was given to one, and our financial system was based upon that. And inasmuch as silver was wrongfully and stealthily demonetized by the arbitrary act of government, and inasmuch as a great wrong was done, and we are asking to have that wrong righted, are asking simply for a restoration of what the world formerly had; asking for a restoration of conditions under which the world had done business and prospered for 200 years. This fact alone would be a good reason for adhering to that ratio. But there is another reason which rises above all others, and that is this: The moment you abandon that ratio you are at sea. No two men will agree upon what the new ratio should be. For 20 years prior to 1896 the country saw that the eastern financial manipulators were able to control congress and to dictate the policy of the government, and that just so long as this matter was left to congress and the government the people were helpless. This fact led the people to the determination to take the matter into their own hands and to leave it open, and they feel as strongly on that subject now as they did then. The fact is, my friends, if left open you would get no legislation at the hands of our government in a thousand years. For Wall street will again be in absolute control. This being so, it is apparent that the moment we abandon the ratio that moment we abandon the cause. The question which, therefore, presents itself is, are we prepared to abandon the cause. Everything that was predicted by the bimetallists as the legitimate result of the demonetization of silver has come to pass—first, universal paralysis of the world's business and its industries; second, the starting anew on a lower basis for the great producing masses. The evils that resulf from the gold standard have not been exaggerated or overstated. Time has sustained the bimetallist, and that man makes a fatal mistake who thinks that the American people are ready to abandon this cause, and, inasmuch as the abandonment of the ratio practically amounts to the abandonment of the cause, that politician makes a fatal mistake who thinks that the ratio can be abandoned without disintegrating and destroying the democratic party. For every score of wealth-worshiping gold democrats who would be brought to our standards by such an abandonment of principle 10,000 men of deep convictions would leave us.

"But the money question is not the only great question that confronts us. Calamities go in groups and the gold standard has brought with it a brood of evils, each of which threatens the life of the republic. You will find that as a rule gold democrats are not willing to take a definite position on any of these questions. As they look for favors, they are not willing to take a position which might incur its ill will. There is the great question of government by injunction, a system under which a federal judge elevated to office by corporation influences strikes down the right of free speech, and with a contempt cus wave of the hand brushes aside the right of trial by jury, that bulwark of English liberty, at the mere request of a corporation agent. The Anglo-Saxon race has shed more blood to maintain the right of free speech, and the right of trial by jury than for any other purpose, and yet here in free America we see the very foundation of liberty flippantly brushed aside, and I have not heard a vigorous protest against this practice from a single gold standard man in America. Again, with this commercialism, the establishment of this gold standard, has come an era of corruption, of bribery in government, whereby the national, the state and municipal legislatures are debauched and the rights of people betrayed. The only effective remedy for this evil that has yet been suggested is what is termed "initiative and referendum." The temptations offered by corrupt capital being too great for the ordinary man to withstand, it is evident that as long as these temptations are offered they will be effective. By the establishment of the system of "initiative and referendum" the fruits of bribery could be taken away, and thus the inducement to bribery would be destroyed. Under that system, when a city council or a state legislature passed an act betraying the interests of the people a given number of citizens could have that act submitted to a popular vote with the provision that if not sustained there it should be void. Under this system not every matter would have to be submitted to the people, but it would be in the power of a respectable portion of the inhabitants of a city or a state to prevent wholesale bribery. Likewise could they make reforms which corporations now prevent. Have you heard of a single gold standard man who has come out and openly advocated the adoption of this system, or of any other effective system to end corruption in public affairs? I have not. Again, this is an age of concentration, of the formation of great corporations, of great trusts, and of great monopolies. It is found that by concentration the cost of production can be cheapened, and if the public got the benefit of this it might be a blessing, it would shorten the hours of labor and advance civilization, but instead of that the benefit of it under the republican administration goes to a few private individuals, who, by making themselves complete masters of the market and having absolute control of the output of articles of necessity to the people, are able to arbitrarily fix the price of that article on the one hand, and are able to arbitrarily to fix wages on the other hand. In consequence of this fact these monopolies are not only a curse to the country but are threatening to overthrow our institutions, for they furnish the corruption fund that are destroying us. For a quarter of a century both political parties have denounced corporations, trusts and monopolies. Nearly every state in the union has legislated against them. The federal government has legislated against them, yet in spite of this denunciation, in spite of all this legislation, state and federal, they have gone on multiplying. State legislation has been found to be absolutely futile, because federal judges uniformly declared it to be unconstitutional.

"Federal legislation has likewise been found to be futile. The trusts are masters of the situation. It is evident that to simply go on denouncing trusts is an ill suit to the intelligence of the American people. It is the cheapest kind of political demagogy. The time has come when some knowledge of dealing with these monopolies must be adopted. The experience of other countries, as well as a thorough consideration of the question, shows that it is impossible to reduce many of these monopolies back to their original element. They have come to stay, and therefore it is the mission and the duty of the democratic party, as a matter of justice, to the monopoly for the public—for the people, that means municipal and governmental ownership of all monopolies which it is practicable for a government as yet to control. Have you heard any gold standard democrat declare himself openly to be in favor of this, or of any other practicable manner of dealing with monopolies? Instead of that, what do they propose? They tell us that we should adopt a platform denouncing trusts. That is, we shall do what we have been doing for a quarter of a century, indulge in declarations that signify nothing. Mr. Depew lately declared that the republican party would in its platform denounce trusts. What is the purpose of this? Why simply to fool the people, entertain the people. Trust lawyers and men who secretly serve monopolies will draw the declarations denouncing trusts, and it will be a farce.

"That politician makes a mistake who thinks that by a mere denunciation of trusts you can fool a great number of democrats in 1900. The people want to know what we propose to do about it. Look at the situation from any standpoint and you will find that the so-called gold standard democrats are not earnestly and heartily with us on any of the great questions that now confront our people. By affinity, taste, interest, affiliation and natural selection they are on the other side. The idea of abandoning principle and adopting some cheap common cry, with the hope of thus sweeping the country and getting offices, even if it were possible to succeed that way, is unworthy of a moment's consideration at the hands of any man who loves his country. But it would be futile, and if the national democratic convention of 1900 should adopt such a course it might as well issue a certificate of election to William McKinley. I hear it said that we cannot carry the country unless we get New York, and that in order to get New York we must abandon our principles. In the first place, I dispute both propositions, and in the second place I want to say that the time has gone by when the democracy can carry New York on a bleary-eyed platform. The rank and file of the democratic party in New York is aroused, and it is as devoted to the principles of the Chicago platform as is the party anywhere in this country, and competent judges tell me that Gov. Roosevelt's election was made possible by the votes of democrats who preferred supporting an open enemy to a democrat who stood for nothing. For 20 years prior to 1896 the democratic party so melted away in a number of states that the populists and other independent parties gained absolute control, but as soon as our party again stood for definite democratic principles these men returned to our standard. For over three years we have been preaching devotion to principle. The democrats of the country have held their heads up, they have breathed the pure and invigorating air of independence, they are ready to face a thousand defeats, but they are not willing to speak down the dark alley of tricky politics. Men have said to me, why don't you people take up a soldier hero and sweep the country? I answer, first, our people want to know what their candidate stands for. They want to know what government policy he will resolutely carry out; they want to know what influences will be skipping up his ear afterward, and filling his council chamber. I answer, second, is there not danger of war heroes getting cheap?

"Compared with the mighty civil war, the late Cuban war was scarcely risen to the dignity of a skirmish, yet the heroes of the late war seem to be more numerous than all the heroes, union and confederate, of the civil war. I have no doubt myself, that we are not hero worshipers; that, on the other hand, are we devoted to the fortunes of any one man. We view this whole situation coldly. We rate men not by the clothes they wear, but by the principles they stand for, and by the services they render their country. And viewed from that standpoint never before in the history of any country or any people was the cause of freedom, the cause of a great people, so heroically and so ably maintained in all its integrity, as it has been during the last three years by William J. Bryan. And when we say this, we are not indulging in hero worship, but are simply recognizing a great fact."

——Millions are finding their struggle harder as the industrial combines absorb their means of existence. The small business man is crushed to the wall because he has no means to withstand the pressure brought to bear upon him by the trust. He is forced to give up his business and retire to the ranks of the wage earners. But these ranks are overcrowded and every new day sees so many wage earners thrown on the street by the combines, and there is no room left for him there. What is he going to do to support himself and his family?—Denver Post.

——The "great protective principle" has passed out of American politics as a controlling element. There will never again be a general campaign with that as the main issue. If the old fight is resumed the protectionists will not hoist the false colors of "American industry" and "American labor" and "a home market." They will have to run up the black flag of piracy, and the battle will be waged directly between the forces of monopoly and the masses of the people.—Boston Post.

——"I am anti-Hanna, but everybody is for McKinley and the administration," says Gov. Bushnell, of Ohio. Perhaps Bushnell will explain how he can be for the shadow while rejecting the substance; for the creature, and opposed to the creator.—Chicago Democrat.

BOONE CO., RECORDER.

Wednesday, June 7, 1899.

Advertising Rates:

One inch, one time.....$1.00
Each additional time.....25
Obituaries, Tributes of Respects or notices of a like nature, per inch .50

W. L. RIDDELL. - - Publisher.

We are authorized to announce J. W. KENNEDY, of Union, as a candidate for the Legislature, subject to the action of the Democratic party.

Neighborhood News.

Maple Grove.

Wheat looks nicely.

Both of our schools closed last week.

Elbert Brown was visiting his parents here, Sunday.

John Popham and wife spent Sunday with Monte Sothorn, of Covington.

Miss Emma Beall was visiting friends at North Bend, Ohio, last Sunday.

There will be a large acreage of late potatoes planted in this vicinity.

J. M. Lassing's road proposition is not favorably received in this vicinity.

Richwood.

Henry Conner was visiting his aunt, Mrs. C. B. Rice, last Sunday.

Mrs. Dr. Menefee was visiting her old home at Gardnersvilla, Grant county, last week.

A number of the young people of this place attended the meeting of the Literary Society at Miss Ethel Griffith's at Beaver Lick.

Mr. Wade Bediuger came home from Central University, Richmond, last Friday, and will spend the summer with his father.

Limaburg.

Lambs are doing nicely.

Some clover will be cut this week.

Wallace Tanner is improving slowly.

Bees are making a good crop of honey.

Bert Rouse has a fresh milk cow with twin calves for sale.

Wheat is getting the golden color on, and harvest will soon be here.

Some of the dirt roads have not been worked, and they are in a bad condition.

Mrs Harriet Hicks and Mrs. Lora Shannon, and family, of Cincinnati, were out on Sunday to visit George Baker.

Mrs. Emma Rouse, Miss Lillie Heggner and Mrs. Nannie Fiefler, of Cincinnati, were visiting some of their friends in this neighborhood on the 4th.

Bullittsville.

Miss Lacy Kirtley's school closed last week.

Mr. Max Kennedy spent several days with Dr. Hays, recently.

Mr. Winston Gaines has returned home from school to spend vacation.

Misses Byrde and Emma Graves, of Missouri, are spending the summer with their aunt, Mrs. Thos. Grant.

Misses Lutie Gaines and Lizzie Stephens and Master Keuneth Balsly attended the commencement exercises at Rugby, last week.

Mr. Wm. Watts and his best girl visited the Soldier's Home at Dayton, Decoration Day, and so far as we can learn, had a delightful time.

Mr. Graddy has just completed a wire fence in front of Chas. Balsly's beautiful lawn, which adds greatly to the appearance of both house and lawn.

North Bend.

May 28.—Tom Watts and son, Snyder, were seen in this neighborhood, Tuesday evening.

E. L. Riley made a short call on his father, Friday.

Mr. Wm. H. Harrison, who has been ill for some time, is slowly recovering.

Prof. H. L. Harrison, of Camel's Hill, was down here for a short time, Thursday.

Mr. Chas. R. Wayman, of Dayton, Ohio, spent the 30th inst., with relatives here.

Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Ellis, of Loveland, Ohio, spent Decoration day with Mr. and Mrs. G. M. Riley.

Miss Annabel Riley, who is teaching music at Dayton, Ohio, came home, Saturday, to stay until after Decoration day with her parents.

Miss Bessie Cropper entertained a number of her girl friends from the Bullittsville neighborhood, Wednesday. Miss Cropper makes a charming hostess and has a knack of making every one enjoy themselves. Those present were, Misses Zaday Gaines, Lizzie Graddy, Bernice Dunean, Nellie Duncan, Lutie Gaines, Lacy Kirtley, Sadie Kirtley, Beulah Gaines, Faunie Willis, Mary Riley, Mrs. Chester Davis; Messrs. Elmo and Louis Gaines.

Midway.

Joe and Tun Rich are prepariug to build a large tobacco barn on their farm near here.

Mr. James Taylor, near the Springs, is building a large tobacco and feed barn on his farm.

Fruit of all kinds is very scarce here, the extreme cold of last winter having killed the young buds and many of our finest quality of fruit trees.

Very few from here attended the mass meeting at Burlington on the 30th ult. Our people, generally, are in favor of a primary election, believiug it gives better satisfaction.

J. D. Moore, one of our prosperous merchants, of the Springs, visited Indianapolis, Ind., recently, on a pleasure trip. Mr. Moore was once a citizen of that city and has a kindly regard for it.

So far our candidates for legislative honors have by negligence or careful intention failed to mention their position on the Boone county dog law. This is an issue that should not be unceremoniously relegated to oblivion, as the standing of many of our great ex-legislators rests upon the merits or demerits of our present elaborate canine statute.

Rev. Sam Adams preached to a large and appreciative audience at Beaver, Sunday morning the 28th ult. There were three additions to the church by letter—Mr. Jesse Slayback and wife, and Mrs. Enoch Snow. In the afternoon he preached at Aunt Sallie Underhill's, on Big Bone creek. After services Mr. John T. Rich was baptized in the creek near her home.

Bellevue.

Mrs. Lamora Huey is the guest of son, in Ohio.

The willow crop is selling from 5 to 5½ cents per pound.

New peas will soon be a thing of the past and potatoes will take their place.

Noah Clore and M. L. Aylor, of Erlauger, were guests of Perry Clore on Sunday last.

Wm. Clore and family, of Clore's Ridge, were guests of his brother, Perry, Sunday.

Tobacco is nearly all set. E. L. Grant's tenant, Wm. McMurray, has planted 20 acres.

The peach crop in this section is not an entire failure, as Capt. John Smith has a tree in his yeard bearing fruit.

Miss Delia Wingate and Mrs. Harry Wingate, of Rabbit Hash, were guests of Mrs. Fannie and Minnie Clore on the 4th inst.

Walter Kelly a Revenue official from this part of the county, attended the reunion of the Kelly family, which took place last Saturday.

The ferryman at Aurora, caught one of the men who drowned near Petersburg. This body showed unmistakable evidence of injury before drowning.

Chas. Craig and wife, of East Bend, guests of Dan Lawell and wife on the 31st ult. Friend Chas. has our sympathy in his sad affliction, viz; loss of eyesight.

One week ago the farmer said "we're needing rain." Now he says "too much rain." Well might the Psalmist say "what is man that thou are mindful of him"

H. Morwessel, druggist, of Covington, and nephew by marriage of Jos. Birkle, and his family, were guests of Mr. B. several days the past week. Miss Blau, of the same place, accompanied them.

During the violent storm, last Thursday afternoon, the lightning made some strange freaks in the eastern part of the town. It took some of the bark from a maple south of Jacob Cook's, killed a fine rooster, played along the wire stretched above his fence, and ran around in front of the house some 60 feet or more and damaged the gate and posts considerably. The occupants were not at home.

Walton.

Miss Lizzie Kipp is recreating with friends in Covington, Newport and Cincinnati.

Miss Emma Graham has returned home after spending a couple of weeks most pleasantly with relatives in Lexington and Nicholasville.

Wayne, the second son of Esq. John C. Byland, is very fond of cherries. In his eagerness to get n supply of the luscious fruit he fell out of a tree and broke his arm.

Brittenhelm Brothers have removed their store up the street to the building once occupied by Henry Percival. It has been remodeled and is the neatest room in town.

Mr. Edward Stamler, our Walton architect, is becoming noted all over the country. He has just completed a design for a beautiful cottage to be built forthwith for Mr. James Bind, of Verona.

Misses Myrtle Jones, Mary Rouse, Mattie Rouse, with their escorts E. S. Edwards, John Crow and Willie Norman, enjoyed a Sunday visit to Mr. and Mrs. Ira Percival. Strawberries and croquet were the topic of discussion.

Miss Ethel Waltz, who won the prize in the declamatory contest at the commencement of the Walton Academy, took her gold piece to the city and had a handsome medal made of it. On its face it has "Ethel Waltz, First Honors Class of '99, on the reverse "Declamatory Contest, Walton Academy."

At Hamilton College, Lexington, Miss Edna May Ransler, a Walton girl, daughter of Mr. Geo. Ransler, swept the honors of the graduating class. Having entered the Senior Class she was required to make an average of 96, while the other girls who had entered the College in the lower classes were only required to make 95 to graduate with honor. The President stated that Miss Ransler had made 96 and over. All Walton congratulates her.

Union.

Uncle Frank Smith has rheumatism.

Elder Moore preached at Sardis, Friday.

There is very little sickness in this section at present.

Mrs. Mike Knaly lost fifty chickens by the storm, last Monday.

J. M. Wilson attended a three days' meeting at Salem, last week.

The protracted meeting closed Thursday, with sixteen additions.

Miss Nannie Bristow closed her spring school at Grange Hall, Friday.

Jack Berkshire will build a house for L. W. Lassing and remodel one for Burl Conner.

Willie Smith has made improvements in his home—new chimney, grate, &c.

Mrs. J. H. Corbin and Mrs. Sallie Anderson were the guests of Mrs. Harriet Taliaferro, Friday.

Wm. Batterson, of Hebron, will do the stone work for J. W. Conner's new addition to his residence.

Charley Baker thinks he will not have 5 acres of wheat out of 60 or 70, worth cutting, and believes the straw will fall down and smother the grass.

Tom Judge reports 10 acres of corn and 10 acres of rye completely demolished by the recent storms. He whistles and sings while painting the barn all the same.

J. W. Kennedy has purchased in Owen and Boone together about 250,000 pounds of tobacco and of course is watching the out look, out-put and other prospects for higher prices with great concern.

A large acreage of tobacco was put out last week. Plants were abundant and very fine. The Adams Bros. have a fine crop of old leaf on hand and refused 8c all round for it.

The Eagle Hotel, one of Union's landmarks, will be a thing of the past. The modernized building with veranda and other new features will be known as "White Hall." That's alright!

Walter Lassing has a trotter that steps a mile in 1:00, and according to Walter's idea, "burns the pike." He gave your correspondent a ride down the pike recently, and came so fast that the friction created in passing through the air almost melted the buckles on the harness, and the iron work on the buggy, but the wood work was all right and the pike did not burn.

A good soaking rain was badly needed in this section, and Monday tubs were set out and most people looked forward with pleasure to its coming, as signs were favorable in the morning. About 10 o'clock a dark, angry cloud came down on us and for 10 or 15 minutes things looked scaly indeed. The most vivid lightning and terrific peals of thunder opened up the storm. The rain came down in torrents for 5 minutes, then hail ranging in size from a musket ball up and down, began to fall and in five minutes it had demolished all the gardens, knocked fruit from trees, cut wheat and rye fields to shreds and done all kinds of damage. Then the rain poured again and continued to pour for several days. The gardens in Union were looking unusually fine and would have soon put peas, beans and other vegetables on the tables; but, oh, my! you ought to see them now. They look like a tribe of goats had been feeding on them for ten days, and then wound up the feast by butting the dam out of a mill pond and letting the entire contents flow over them. Onions seem to have received special attention from the storm king, for they are torn all to pieces; onion beds that looked like a regiment of well uniformed soldiers marching in perfect order and regulations 18 inch step, now look like a band of Philipino insurgents that had run through a jungle for 75 miles, and had about clothes enough left to wad a pop gun. While the hail was coming down with thunderous noise and the wind was cutting the edges off the things, from four points of the compass at one and the same time, we saw an old hen with her chicks try to cross an open space in the yard and reach her coop. The chickens were knocked down and would have perished right then and there, but mother hen stopped, let the chickens get under her and took the pounding herself and it was a good one, too, for about one-half her feathers were beaten off, and her back bruised. Talk about your heroes from Santiago and Manila, but that old hen is a heroine if she hasn't feathers enough left to flag a hand car on the new electric road from Covington to Hamilton.

Hebron.

Frank Jackson, of Cincinnati, is visiting friends here.

Joel Clore, of Cincinnati, spent Sunday with his father near here.

Your writer had a lively experience in a wind storm, last Thursday.

Chas. Clore and wife spent Sunday with Geo. Baker and wife, of Limaburg.

June has opened up with such tropical weather that one feels as if he were in Africa.

Cleve Hankins and family, of Gunpowder, were calling on relatives in Hebron, Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. John Fulton, of Florence, were guests of J. W. Clore and wife, one day last week.

Mrs. Jennie Gaines and daughter, Miss Mary, were visiting Mrs Hattie Clore and daughter, Tuesday.

The C. E. Society met Sunday evening with Walter Crigler as President. The topic "was Sowing and Reaping."

The Indian Medicine Co., is in full blast here this week. The little 3 year old Indian girl sang at Sunday school, Sunday afternoon.

Not many from here attended the picnic at the Harvest Home Grounds Saturday, and those who did were either in the rain or the mud.

The strawberry and ice cream festival, Saturday night, was a success, notwithstanding the inclement weather. Collections, $25 85. Thanks are due those who donated, and also to the Indian Medicine Co. for the use of their lights, so kindly furnished.

Beaver.

Geo. Sleet is convalescing.

Merit Jack and family visited friends in Newport, Sunday.

A. C. C. Sleet shipped 70 fat hogs to Cincinnati, Wednesday.

Mrs. Arthur Pitcher, who has been sick for the past two weeks, is improving.

Miss Pearl Hughes, who has been visiting her brother, Mr. Geo. Hughes, in Illinois, has returned home.

Mrs. Kate Noell and her brother, Barnet Franks, of Grant county, visited friends here Saturday and Sunday.

Miss Nellie Cleek came home from Lexington, Wednesday, where she has been attending school. Her many friends welcome her home.

J. T. Hughes sold a threshing machine and engine to a Mr. Jones over on South Fork. Jake sells anything from a mouse trap to a steam engine.

Everybody in this locality was done setting tobacco, and the hard rains did much damage to the crop. A few will shovel up the ground and take another start.

Francesville.

Miss Laura Hoshal fell, last Thursday, and broke her left arm.—Mrs. Brown, who fell and crippled herself some time since, is improving.—Rev. Hoover preached a most excellent sermon here, Sunday morning, followed by Rev. Utz with another that evening.—Several from here attended the picnic, last Saturday afternoon, and report a delightful time.—Coming from the river, Sunday afternoon, Lee Pepper was taken violently ill, and had to be assisted home. He is better.—We expect a basket meeting here in July, the occasion being the ordination of deacons.—Rev. Utz and wife spent last Saturday and Saturday night with Mr. and Mrs. Holland Goodridge. Walter Goodridge, who has been ill for quite a while, gets no better.—Carlton Crisler, of Ludlow, was visiting Mr. and Mrs. Temp Gaines, last Saturday and Sunday.

Gasburg.

Tobacco setting is finished. About the usual acreage was set.

Andy Grasser, of Lawrenceburg, spent last Sunday with Jake Klopp and family.

The strawberry season is about over. The yield was good and prices better than usual.

Georgia Parker and Maud Terrill are visiting their aunt, Mrs. H. Lee Early, of Home City, Ohio.

Rain greatly interrupted the program on decoration day at Riverview cemetery, opposite this place.

Gunpowder.

Tobacco about all planted.

Lulie Tanner, of Florence, is visiting her parents, B. C. Tanner.

Robert O. Rouse has moved on the Roland Rouse farm, near Union.

David Beall was in the neighborhood on business, the first of last week

We heartily endorse Mr. Lassing's plan for improving the roads in our county.

Considerable hail fell here Monday week, and did some damage to the growing crops.

J. H. Aylor sold to J. S. Surface some of his thoroughbred short horn cattle, Saturday.

W. A. Carpenter and daughter, Miss Ottie, of Covington, were guests of Uncle William Tanner, last Sunday.

Mr. Watt Brown, of Burlington, was in the neighborhood, Friday, and bought a horse of Elbert Vaughn.

Rev. Lentz returned home last Saturday, and filled his regular appointment at Ebenezer, Sunday morning.

Hathaway.

Born, to John Horton and wife a son.

Everybody got his tobacco set, last week.

The noise of guns is heard in the woods.

Mrs. Emily Presser went to the city, last Friday.

Johnnie Aylor, who is on the sick list, is better.

C. S. Smith and son, Jim, went to the river fishing, last Friday.

Robert Adams worked the roads in this neighborhood, last week.

W. S. White and son made a business trip to the city, last Friday.

Mrs. Emily Presser had the misfortune to loose her old and reliable work mule.

Mrs. Cynthia White and Miss Minnie Sullivan called on E. R. Smith, Wednesday.

Chas. Stephens, of the Locust Grove, neighborhood, was in our burg last Thursday evening.

Ben Rue and wife went to the Big Bone cemetery, Friday to remodel their infant's grave.

Robert Conley was the pleasant guest of David Clements and wife, several days last week.

Lafayette Presser and wife, of this place, spent Saturday night with Mr. and Mrs. Clark Rouse.

James White and family, of Woolper Heights, were visiting his parents at this place, Sunday week.

Last Monday between one and two o'clock, L. M. Stephens was returning from his brother Charles', a horse and spring wagon. Upon arriving at Gunpowder creek he found it past fording. After waiting a while for the creek to fall, he attempted to cross, and had gone but a little ways in when the horse was washed down stream with the wagon. In trying to get out the horse became unmanageable when the wagon capsized, causing the occupant to leap out. The horse got loose from the wagon and the current washed it down stream about fifty yards, where it got its feet tangled in the lines causing the animal to lose control of itself when it washed down the creek a good distance and landed against some bushes, when Frank Rue came to the rescue and cut the lines and released the horse from its perilous condition.

Rabbit Hash.

Mrs. Myra Stephens has been quite sick for several days.

Dick Stephens shipped hogs from here to Cincinnati, last Tuesday night.

John Calvert and H. Clay Pearson attended decoration festivities at Rising Sun May 30th.

Miss Lutie Stephens and Mr. Bert Scott attended the festival at Bellevue, last Saturday night.

The Graphaphone here Friday evening was very good and attendance was large, for the notice they had.

Last Sunday was childrens' day at East Bend Methodist church, and those who took part in the exercises did credit to themselves and instructors.

Last week while digging gravel on John McConnell's farm, Wm. Hodges found a human skeleton, which Dr. Cowen pronounced to be that of a woman.

The postoffice here will change to a money order office soon, and our genial postmaster will have something more to do than bitch horses for the ladies, who visit here.

Mr. and Mrs. James H. Hastings returned home from West Virginia, where they spent three weeks visiting their daughter. Mrs. Hasting was sick most of the time while away.

About two week's ago Jim Conner bought of T. C. S. Ryle 4 head of cattle. They tried to weigh two of them but failed, letting one get away. After hunting for it about 10 days they found it in Solon Stephens pasture.

Hume Store.

Very little tobacco has been set in this vicinity.

Mr. Tom Finnell has completed a new dwelling house at this place.

Mrs. David Houston was visiting relatives near Union, last Friday and Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Florence were the pleasant guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Powers, Sunday.

Misses Grace Cotton and Susan Houston, were calling on friends at Gardnersville, Sunday.

Miss Pearl Martin, of Dayton, Ky., is visiting her grandmother, Mrs. Blackburn, at this place.

Denton Cotton has returned from Elwood, Indiana, where he has been employed as hotel clerk for the past three months.

John Bentler avails himself of this means of thanking the public for the liberal patronage extended him while in Burlington, and to say he will be glad to have the people of this place and vicinity to call on him at Erlanger.

NOTICE.—This will be a competa tive examination for those wishing to enter the State College at Lexington, for the full course, held in Burlington on the third Friday and Saturday—June 16 and 17. L. H. Voshell, Co., Supt.

There will be a meeting held at the commissary, on the Bellevue pike, on the fourth Saturday in June to organize a beef club. Meeting at 1 p. m.

For sale.—2 good milch cows and one horse. Apply to Edson Riddell.

Buy a Buggy Where the Many Buy.

Our Goods are Reliable and of Good Standard Grades.
and will sell anything in our Store for the CASH as cheap
as you will buy elsewhere.

Our Motto: BUY for CASH sell for CASH,
GOOD GOO[illegible] LOWEST LIVING PRICES.

Respectfully,
L. B. HUNTER, Rising Sun, Ind.

OUR MILLINERY
DEPARTMENT

Is in full blast and is filled with Trimmed and Untrimmed Hats at LOWER PRICES than ever.

LADIES' SKIRTS, PETTICOATS and SHIRT WAISTS ranging in price from 25c up, and in fact the whole house is chucked full of BARGAINS.

W. H. CLARK,
Rising Sun, Indiana.

JOHN ALLISON,

UNDER-TAKER EMBALMER,

—Corner Pike & Russell Streets,—
COVINGTON, - - KENTUCKY.
INDEPENDENT OF UNDERTAKERS' UNION.

Order Spring Suits NOW

H. F. BLASE.

And we will make them up artistically and ready for you promptly on time. We have

Over Five Hundred Styles

Of Spring and Summer Woolens to Select from. They come direct from the looms of foreign and domestic manufacturers, and surpass in elegance and variety anything ever shown in Covington. In the assortment are many exclusive patterns—goods that cannot be duplicated by any other establishment in this city. Keep these facts in mind and place your order for a stylish suit with us. We promise you a faultless fit, the proper cut, and a price that will not be more than you can afford to pay.

H. F. BLASE,
535 Madison Avenue,
COVINGTON, - - KENTUCKY

A Word to the Public
MY STOCK OF
Dry Goods, Notions,
AND LADIES' AND GENTS'
TOILET ARTICLES

for the Spring Trade has been received, and to be appreciated must be seen. Fresh

DRUGS AND GROCERIES

received daily. A large stock of

PAINTS & OILS

on hand at all times. All Goods New and Clean, and are sold at the

LOWEST CASH PRICES.

—GIVE ME A CALL—
J. G. OELSNER, Florence, Ky.

Local News.

It rained on five days last week.

Williamstown is to have a telephone system.

The Petersburg distillery closed down on the 1st inst.

Strawberries have sold cheaper than usual this spring.

Boone is in for an average tobacco crop again this year.

Harvest is close at hand, and some are predicting a poor yield.

The stock men will soon begin gathering their 1899 purchase of lambs.

There have been some washing rains in the south part of the county this spring.

The "hello" poles are being put up along the pike between Burlington and Florence.

☞Go to A. Corbin & Son's for first-class Kauawha Coal at 9 cents per bushel of 76 pounds. au-1

Mary F. Sholey has filed suit in the Boone Circuit Court for a divorce from her husband John Sholey.

The rains, last week, made certain a large crop of potatoes, a very popular article of food with all classes.

If strawberries continue to increase in size, it will be only a few years before they are as large as ordinary apples.

The squirrel hunters have made no big killings yet. It is said there are a great many of the bushy tail tribe this spring.

Mr. and Mrs. Ves W. Gaines thank the people of Burlington for the many and useful presents received last Thursday evening.

Mrs. Mary Rice, of Bellevue, was in town, one day last week, and conveyed to James Rogers her interest in Ellen Green's dower.

The posters containing the premium list for the next exhibition of the North Kentucky Agricultural Association, will be out in a few days.

Lightning struck the Williamstown Baptist church, last Thursday, demolishing the belfry and injuring the church building considerably.

Chas. Clore's paint brush has made Walton's corner present a very handsome appearance. Charles is a swift painter, and does not protract a job.

Rural telephone systems are becoming numerous throughout the country, and it wont be many years until neighborhood systems will be introduced.

John Laughlin, who was drowned in Woolper creek, several days ago, lost his life in an effort to save that of a fellowman. Such heroes are few and far between.

The Cincinnati base ball team is not giving its rooters any encouragement this season. It seems to be trying to capture the position of tailender. It will come after awhile.

R. S. Cowen and Robert and Charles Wilson, remodeled a portion of the stone pavement near the Baptist church one day last week. The work was not done before it was needed.

A large barn belonging to John Dixon, of Crescent, was struck by lightning, last Wednesday afternoon, and burned, together with about 20 tons of hay and some farming implements.

Lightning struck a locust tree in front of John Ryle's residence in Florence, one day last week. The same day the telephone instruments at Florence and Erlanger were burned out by lightning

The North Kentucky Agricultural Association will present a premium list again this year that will stimulate competition. There are quite a number of good premiums to be awarded during the exhibition.

The two sermons preached by Elder Carnell at his last appointment at Mt. Pleasant, were exceedingly fine. He will not preach there on the fourth Sunday in this month. At that time he will be in Canada.

The bodies of the two men who were drowned, at Petersburg about ten days ago, by the sinking of a barge being towed by the Gate City, have been recovered. One was found at Petersburg, the other, at Aurora.

The heavy wind, last Thurday about noon, did considerably damage to the fruit, and the shade trees and frightened Sheriff Beal badly. It was the heaviest blow experienced in this part of the country in a long time.

A better season for planting tobacco could not have been provided for the growers, had the arrangement of matters been solely in their hands. The plants had just reached the proper size and never wilted after being transplanted.

An outing party composed of three men and a boy from Cincinnati, acquaintances of J. F. Blyth, spent last Sunday down on Gunpowder The water was too muddy for fishing, and they put in the time manipulating a kodac, and securing several nice pictures.

That wedding couple who came to Burlington one day last week in order that the city papers might not get a report of the wedding, found it in an afternoon paper when they reached the city, if they bought a copy, while the Enquire of the next morning contained the item also.

Last Wednesday about noon a twister demolished two barns in Indiana, immediately across the river from W. W. Grimsley's, at the mouth of Big Bone creek. Mr. Grimsley began to think his time had come, when he saw the timbers flying through the air, but it seems the wind spent its force on these two barns.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Miss Mary A. Thompson is visiting friends at Erlanger.

Joseph Kennedy, of Covington, was in town, last Saturday.

Sheriff Beall is now ready to receive and receipt for your 1899 taxes.

Mr. and Mrs. S. W. Tolin entertained Senator Goebel at dinner Monday.

G. H. Gordon left, Saturday, to visit his brother, M. H. Gordon, at Muncie Indiana.

Robert P. Rice, of Florence, the hustling Deering agent, was in town one day last week.

Jacob Klopp and son, Philip, from down on Woolper, were transacting business here Saturday.

Edward and Tommie Hogan came out from the city and spent decoration day with their parents.

Lucien Clore and wife and Leonard Kite and wife, of Waterloo, were visiting R. S. Cowen's, Sunday.

Mrs. Thos. G. Tupman, of Bakersfield, California, is visiting her sister, Mrs. W. L. Riddell, of this place.

Uncle Noah Clore and Martin L. Aylor, of Florence, were visiting Mr. Clore's brother at Bellevue, Sunday.

B. F. Menifee, of Crittenden, was in Burlington, last Thursday, looking to business he has pending in the courts here.

Col. G. C. Graddy, of Bullittsville, was in town Saturday, arrayed in his courting togs, and on his way to the picnic.

Misses Louis Souther and Clementine Waiton, of Point Pleasant, spent Saturday night with Miss Jessie Gordon, of this place.

Our old friend, James McAtee, of the Waterloo neighborhood, was in town Friday, looking hale and hearty, and in his usual good humor.

D. E. Castleman and Henry Quick went to Warsaw, one day last week, on business connected with the building of Mr. Castleman's residence.

Col. Z. T. Baker, the Democratic "war hoss" of the Big Bone precinct, was among the first from a distance to show up in town Monday morning.

H. W. Blyth and wife and W. J. Rice, wife and sister, went out to W. L. Aylor's, Sunday, and assisted Mr. and Mrs. Aylor to open the fried chicken season.

Wm. Bentler had quite an accident happen him since he went to Erlanger. He was driving a stake when his ax caught on a clothes line, striking him in the forehead, making quite an ugly wound that required several stitches to close.

Richard Irving Bruce, son of R. S. Bruce, formerly of this county graduates from William Jewell College, in Missouri, this week. The RECORDER congratulates its young friend on his completion of his education.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Gordon entertained, last Tuesday, Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Gordon, and Miss Fannie Gordon, of Hebron, Mrs. Dr. Juett and Prof. J. C. Gordon, of Eminence, Miss Mamie Hill, of Horton, Ill., Miss Gussie Williams, Dr. F. D. Crigler and Wm. Savage, of Ludlow.

Mr. and Mrs. Ves W. Gaines were given a housewarming, last Thursday day evening, and packages of various sizes and kinds were hurried thither notwithstanding the weather was so very unfavorable for the event. Those present were pleasantly entertained by Mr. and Mrs. Gaines.

Nathaniel Carpenter, of Gallatin county, is visiting among his friends and relatives in this county. He left this county many years ago, having the confidence and esteem of everybody, and he has a host of friends here who are glad to have him among them again, and will do all they can to make his visit pleasant.

J. C. Gordon, of Eminence, was visiting his parents in this county, last week, and made the RECORDER a call. He is now practicing law, and his friends here predict for him success in his chosen profession. He is a young man of rare attainments and great energy and of such the front rauk of the legal profession is composed.

The Indian Medicine Co., now showing at Hebron, will open in Burlington next Monday night for two weeks' entertainment. Exhibition free.

All teachers who want to apply for the public school in district No. 4 (Bullittsburg) must put in their applications during the month of June—the board meets the first Saturday in July.

M. C. Mahon 26, bookkeeper, of Chicago, Ill., and Blanche Beckner, 25 of Cincinnati, were married in the Boone House parlor, by Rev. M. J. Hoover, on Tuesday afternoon of last week. They were decidedly the spooniest couple that ever struck the town. It was with considerable trouble that they secured a marriage license.

R. L. Roberts declining to qualify as Justice of the peace to fill the vacancy in the office in the third district, the County Judge has appointed T. E. Roberts, to fill the vacancy. T. E. Roberts has had considerable experience in that office, having served one term in the district composed of the Verona and Walton precincts.

They do say that Jailer Adams missed the road the day he went to the Sunday-school Convention at Big Bone, and had it not been that he met Glen Crisler he would have returned to Burlington instead of going to Big Bone. Uncle Tom admits that he did unintentionally, swing around a circle that day, but that he had got his bearings before Glen met him.

Capt. W. W. Mead, the Covington naval officer, who commanded the Marblehead during the several bombardments of the Cuban coast during Admiral Sampson's blockade, and was afterward temporarily in command of the flagship Brooklyn, of Admiral Schley's fleet, has been notified that he would be assigned to be second in command at the Mare Island Naval Station. Capt Mead is a son of Sacket Mead, who taught school in Burlington many years ago, and the Captain is a native of Burlington.

W. M. RACHAL & CO.

DOLLARS DO DOUBLE DUTY HERE.

Standard Granulated Sugar, 18 lbs. $1 00.
Arbuckle Coffee 10 cents per lb.
Daniel Boone Soap, 3 bars for 5 cents.
Pittsburg Wire less than city prices.
Lime, Cement, White Lead, Oils, Varnishes, etc., as cheap as in the city.

Baby Shoes for 10c per pair up.
Misses' Shoes for 50c per pair up.
A full line of Men's, Ladie's and Children's Tan Shoes—Latest Styles, Best Quality, Lowest Prices.
Men's Dress Pants, 75c per pair.
Wonder Overalls, Shirts and Pants, the best made.

COME at ONCE. THESE PRICES are ONLY While Present Stock Lasts.

UNION, KENTUCKY. UNION, KENTUCKY.

ADLER'S

—THE PLACE TO BUY—

LADIES' • READY • MADE • GOODS.

A complete line of Silk Waists, Shirt Waists, Dress Skirts, Spring Capes in Silk or Cloth, Muslin, Underwear, &c., also dealer in Dry Goods, Furnishing Goods and Shoes.

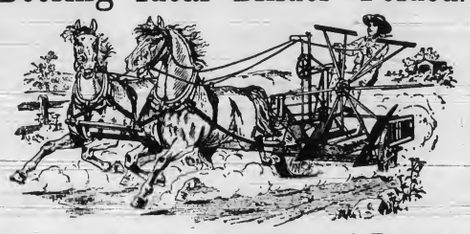
ADLER'S, Parry Building Corner High and Walnut Streets LAWRENCEBURG, INDIANA.

FOR good, new and up to date goods at the Lowest Prices, go to the New Store at the Old Stand, at

123 Second St., AURORA, IND.

Having bought the stock of

Dry Goods, Notions and Shoes



of R. Maybin, 123 Second St., Aurora, Ind., I have closed out the stock on hand at that time as nearly as possible, and have had the room remodled and have just received a

A New and Complete LINE OF Dry Goods, Notions and Shoes,

to which I invite your inspection, Boone Co., customers especially invited.

FRANK RIEMAN, - - AURORA, IND.

Deering Ideal Binder Folded.

Deering Binders, Mowers and Reapers

Posses the secret of LIGHT DRAFT, Deering Roller and Ball Bearings, Durability and convenience not excelled by any. Be sure and examine these machines before purchasing.

Of those desiring anything in the Machinery line, Hay Rakes, Deering Repairs or Binder Twiner, we earnestly ask their patronage.

CROPPER & GAINES,

mch29tf UTZINGER, KY.

McALPIN & THOMSON,

Successors to RIGGS BROS.

Undertakers —AND— Embalmers,

LIVERY, BOARDING & FEED STABLES.

Special Rates to Traveling Men. Pianos, Organs and Furniture Carefully Removed. First-class Carriages for hire with careful drivers for Families, Parties, Weddings, etc.

LEXINGTON PIKE, - - - ERLANGER, KY.

J. M. EDDINS, Agent, Burlington, Ky.

THE SHOW IS IN TOWN This Week.

We have no circus, but we can show the finest line of

CLOTHING

Ever exhibited. We are offering the Largest and Finest —Assortment of—

MEN'S NICE SUITS in Cassimere and Chiviots, at..... $5.00
MENS'S NICE LIGHT SUITS, Worsted and Cassimeres—the latest things at..... $7.50
MEN'S ELEGANT SUITS, Cassimeres, Worsted and Fancy Chiviots, at..... $10.00
MEN'S FINE ALL-WOOL SERGE SUITS, Finest ever Shown, at..... $7.50, $10, $11
MEN'S AND BOYS' LIGHT PANTS, a finer line was never shown at from..... $1.50 to $5
IT WILL INTEREST YOU TO INSPECT OUR BOYS' SUITS.
CHILDREN'S SUITS, in Double-Breast and Vestee,..... 1$ to $5
CHILDREN'S WASH SUITS, They are beauties—an entire new line..... 50c and up
MEN'S CAMALET PANTS, Something cool and comfortable 50c
MEN'S OFFICE COATS..... 50c

BEAR IN MIND!—These goods are all brand new having been made specially to our order for this summer's trade, There is not a carried over garment in our store.

ROLFES & WACHS, No. 1 Pike Street, Cor. Madison Ave.

COVINGTON, KENTUCKY.

Take Your County Paper.

When in Burlington Call on

J. S. CLUTTERBUCK

DEALER IN

DRY GOODS

Notions, Boots and Shoes,

Who has just received his stock of

SPRING & SUMMER SHOES,

the nicest stock ever in town. Have old stock which I AM SELLING AT GENUINE BARGAINS.

NICE LINE WALL PAPER,

☞At Prices to Suit the times.☜

DEERING - MACHINES

Are the favorites in every land where grass and grain grow. They are adopted to all conditions. They are the "Acme" of strength, durability, simplicity and light draft. We will carry a full line of Repairs. Buy the Machine that is fully guaranteed and handy to obtain repairs for.

Also remember we are headquarters for all kinds of

Farm Machinery

At bottom prices. We handle nothing but the best and fully guarantee all.

Also the Largest and Cheapest

Stock of Shoes

In the county, and a full line of

General -- Merchandise.

—CAN SAVE YOU MONEY.—

COME AND SEE.

T. J. HUGHES,

BEAVER LICK, KY.

GO TO C. T. DAVIS & CO., HEBRON AND CONSTANCE, General Merchants,

A Good Supply of Feed always in Stock.

GARDEN AND FIELD SEEDS.

Undertaking Given Special Attention,

A good supply of Coal on hand at Constance at all times.

Hebron. C. T. DAVIS & CO. Constance

W. H. HOSHAL & COMPANY,

COMMISSION MERCHANTS,

Cattle, Hogs and Sheep,

—UNION STOCK YARDS,—

Cincinnati, - Ohio.

—TELEPHONE 7346.—

Information Regarding Live Stock Cheerfully Furnished.

Consign Your Stock Direct to Us.

LUMBER!

LATHS,
SHINGLES,
DOORS,
BLINDS,
SASH.

If you want any kind of Lumber it will be to your advantage to visit our yard at Lawrenceburg, Indiana, before buying. ☞Prices to Suit the Times.

M. E. LEMING & CO.

Brother Gardner.

He Has Some Remarks On "English As She Is Spoke."

By M. QUAD.
Copyright, 1898.

When the routine business of the regular meeting of the Lime-Kiln club had been concluded, Brother Gardner arose and looked up and down the aisles over his spectacles and said:

"Doorin' de past two weeks I hev bin clusly watchin' sartin members of dis club, and I hev bin pained and grieved to diskiver dat de advice I hev frequenuly given has gone fur naught. A dozen times in de last three years I hev advised and cautioned against de way a majority of you use de English language, but it 'pears to hev done no good. Eber since I was 'lected president of dis Lime-Kiln club I hev sot you an example in dis matter. I hev spoken plainly and simply, sayin' what I meant and meanin' what I said. De English language as she is spoke am good 'nuff fur anybody. Nobody need go huntin' around fur big words to make hisself understood. Nobody need lose his breath in findin' language to ask de way to de post office or de time o' day.

"If Brudder Samuel Shin am wid us yere to-night he will riz up," continued the president, after a rather painful pause.

Samuel had crowded in behind the stove and was just falling asleep, and he was a long minute in getting out where he could be seen. Then Brother Gardner said:

"Brudder Shin, de odder day, when you was buyin' 'taters in a grocery, I heard you say to de grocer dat 'de ambiguity of de sinuosity didn't 'pear to be commensurate wid de comparison.'

Brother Gardner Arose.

De grocer didn't fall dead, but he will not be a well man again for some weeks. Jest what did you mean by dem words, Brudder Shin?"

"I dunno, sah," was the hesitating reply.

"Was it your objeet to paralyze dat grocer?"

"Can't say."

"Did your words refer to 'taters, 'lasses, watermillyons, or what?"

"Dunno."

"I thought not. You may sit down, Brudder Shin. You jest picked up dem words one by one, and when de time come you shot 'em off altogether. If you imagine dat you lowered de price of 'taters any let me tell you dat you am mistaken, and dat de captation of de duration will soon dominate de jurisdiction. In other words, de next time I cotch you puttin' frills on de English language you will come yere to find de doah locked agin you and your name crossed off de rolls.

"And Brudder Bebee," said the president, as he motioned for that individual to arise, "I hev a few words to say to you. I happened into a place de odder day whar' 15 cull'd men was shootin' craps. I was lookin' for my lost dawg. You was one of dem 15 men. You didn't see me, but I heard you say dat 'de climax of de occasion apprehended de similitude of de paragen.' I writ de words down in my book, and yere dey am. Will you kindly explain de pint you was tryin' to make?"

"We was talkin' 'bout de wah, I reckon," replied Brother Bebee in a shame-faced manner.

"Oh! I see! And did dem big words of yours refer to boom-shells, or what?"

"Reckon it was boom-shells, sah."

"Yes? Did you ever see a boom-shell?"

"No, sah."

"Well, I hev. Dey was invented to lift folkses up in de air and blow 'em all to pieces. I will gin you one week to git de kinks out o' your tongue and git back to de plain English language. At de end of dat time, if you heven't done it, you will find a bomb-shell waitin' fur you at de head of de alley stairs, and de pomposity of de affiliation will produce a consanguinity to articulate de diaphragm. In plain English, Brudder Bebee, dat boom-shell will scatter you ober a square mile of territory, and your widder will begin lookin' around fur a man wid sense in his head. You look tired and homesick, and you may now sot down."

As Brother Bebee fell back on his chair with a great jar the president asked for Shinalig Watkins. The brother was in his place, and as he stood up he was asked:

"Brudder Watkins, was you in a woodyard de odder day to git a job?"

"Y-yes, sah," was the reply.

"Did you notice an old bald-headed cull'd man sorter hangin' around dere?"

"No, sah."

"Well, dere was one, and it was me. I sorter wanted to hear what you would say to dat man. When he axed if you had had any experience in runnin' a saw you answered dat you had, and dat de emergency of de domestical had always jubilated de non-existent. Do I quote your words correctly, sah?"

"I—I reckon."

"And as to deir meanin'? I hev worked in a woodyard myself, but I can't make out what dey refer to. Do dey mean dat you am a hustler?"

"Yes, sah."

"Did de woodyard man so understand?"

"Reckon not, sah."

"No, I reckon he didn't. In fact, I'm sure he didn't. I wasn't fur off when he riz up and took you by de collar and put his foot agin you and bounced you out. Ee didn't know you was tryin' to tell him dat you was a hustler from Hustleville, and could keep dat saw redhot all day long, and so it was bad fur you. I've got jest a word to say to you. De next time you come up yere you will find Brudder Giveadam Jones waitin' on de stairs. You jest luquare of him if de perspicacity of de resolution has absorbed de climax of de catastrophe, and he will begin de work of makin' you feel weary. If you don't drap back on plain English befo' you strike de bottom step den Brudder Jones will git fined $5 and costs fur not hevin' his kickin' masheen in good condition!"

The president helped himself to a glass of water, wiped the dew off his spectacles and kindly inquired if anybody had seen Elder Toots within the last month. The elder was only ten feet away, and he looked anxious and worried as he rose up.

"Elder Toots," softly began Brother Gardner, "did you eber meet up wid de tranquility of de precarious reflection?"

"No, sah, I nebber did."

"Did it eber occur to you dat de munificence of de problematical might enter into de radation of de epitome?"

"No, sah."

"You will scuse me fur axin' de questions, elder, but a day or two ago, when you was buyin' a spool of thread in a store, I heard you tellin' de clerk dat owin' to de impressiveness of de fluctuation you felt obleeged to prevert de ostensible deliberation. You know what you meant, don't you?"

"Not skassely, sah."

"Was it your objeck to paralyze dat clerk?"

"I reckon it was."

"And I reckon you did it. At least, he thinks you ar' a fool or a lunatic. Now, den, one brief word to you and all others. Dis foolin' wid de English language has got to stop or dis Lime-Kiln club will be busted all to smash. When you want codfish go to de grocery and ax fur it in so many words. When you talk of war, politicks or religion, you don't need any big words. I'm all out o' patience wid sich foolin' around and fur de last time I warn you dat de enlimination of de infatuation wi l lead to a convolution of de perspiration. We will now poar de contents of de waterpail into de fire and go home."

Her Way.

Ma—It's a funny thing for Tom Justwed to call his wife a little insurgent.

Dot—An insurgent? Why?

May—Well, you see, every time they have a fight she always looks for a cash compromise.—Judge.

An Expert Opinion.

Judge—Do you mean to state that you recognize that the letter was written by the prisoner by the character of the handwriting?

Witness—Naw, yer honor; the man who wrote that letter never had no character.—Brooklyn Life.

One Way.

She—How can one go about applying for a divorce?

He—Well, applying a flatiron to the side of his head is a pretty good way.—Indianapolis Journal.

M QUAD'S VEIN OF HUMOR

COPYRIGHT, 1898.

His Excuses Were Reasonable.

I was stopping over night at the cabin of a mountaineer when a colporteur came along and was taken in, and after supper he expressed his surprise that no place of worship had been erected in the neighborhood.

"It's jest all owin' to two or three men," explained the settler. "I've offered to give the land and put in the foundations, but every time we've got together to talk it over old Jim Lee would be on hand. He'd keep shet until we'd got things about settled, and then he'd git up 'n say:

"'I'm in fur a church, same as the rest of yo', but befo' goin' any further, I want it known that I kin out-jump any darned critter in this crowd!'

"Yo' can't talk about a church when a man's blowin' around that way," said the mountaineer. "Yo' jest have to drop the church bizness and go out and jump. We'd allus to do that, and befo' the jumpin' was over we'd forgit everything else. It would run along for awhile, and then a dozen of us would git together agin. We'd reckon that we'd orter build a church, and we'd be sayin' how much we'd give, when that critter of a Pete Wharton would riz up and say:

"'I'm in fur a church, as yo' all know, but befo' we begin work I want it settled that I kin lay any man in this town on his back. I'm claimin' that I kin out-wrassle anything what stands on legs, and I want to prove it.'

"Couldn't none of us stand any such bluff as that, yo' know, and so we'd drap the church to go out and wrassle. That would set things all back agin. Bimeby somebody would stir 'em up agin, and we'd git together to make a beginnin'. When things was purty near fixed Tom Lee would suddenly remember sunthin' and git up and say:

"'I'm no hand to brag, as yo' all know, but I've got a mewl out yere who kin outrun anything on this road fur money.'

"That would bust the church bizness agin," explained the host. "We'd drap the church fur a mewl-race, and mabbe it would be a year befo' it come up agin."

"But how are things now?" asked the good man.

"Wall, we're goin' to hold another meetin' next week."

"And do you think the matter will go through?"

"I'm hopin' so, suh—I'm hopin' so, but it all depends. We'll git together fur a solid talk, and we'll all agree that we orter hev a church, and if old Joe Keller don't riz up and bluff somebody to trade hogs, or Tom Mensloe don't start us off on a bar hunt over the hills, yo' kin sot it down that we'll git up and hump ourselves, and that the Lord will smile on our efforts!"

A Sage Who Had Been There.

One day as the Sage was gathering clams along the sea shore he was approached by a man who cried out in distress:

"O, Sage, I have come to ask for justice at your hands!"

The Sage picked up the cork of a brandy bottle, smelled of it and threw it away with a sigh, and said:

"I am here upon earth to see justice done to all men. State your case."

"There is a man who owes me four dollars, and he will not pay. It is a just debt, but he revises me and tells me to go to a place that is hotter than this."

"My subjects must not treat one another thus," said the Sage, as his face grew stern. "He who contracts a just debt must pay it, even though he sells his shirt off his back. By what name is this shirker and reviler known?"

"It is one James O'Flynn, O Sage, and he is in the plumbing business."

"What! A plumber refuse to pay his debts! Of a verity, but a man who collects $2.50 for stopping a pin-hole leak in a water pipe must either pay his dues to his fellow-men or go to jail. I will send this plumber word of my decision."

"And there is another man also, O Sage, who owes me a bill and will not hand over the rhino," said the distrustful man.

"Ah! another yet? Hast asked him often to requite?"

"About a hundred times."

"And what saith he?"

"Same as the other, but a little more vigorously. He has even called me a robber for wanting mine own."

"And his name and occupation?"

"He is called Green, and he is in the ice business, O Sage."

"What! A man in the ice business, who gives 18 pounds for 25, refusing to pay his honest dues! It seems incredible. Hast made no mistake about Mr. Green?"

"None whatever, O Sage. He owes me three dollars, and he will not pay."

"Then I will make him eat a ton of his own ice, and it shall be honest weight at that! Thou canst spread the news that I will do this. By the way, what is your name and business?"

"I am called Consolidated, O Sage, and I run a gas plant."

"And the plumber and the ice man owe you for gas consumed?"

"That is the indebtedness. See—here are the bills. I knew that you were a just man and would not screw me—"

"Begone, caitiff—begone!" roared the Sage, as he threw up his hands. "As I told you before, I am upon earth to see justice done, but when a gas man complains of a plumber and an ice man it is carrying things altogether too far. The plumber has ever overcharged me, and the ice man has given me short weight, but the gas man has billed me three dollars for the month my house was closed up tight as a drum. Go to, thou man of gall—go to!"

HOUSEHOLD HINTS.

Suggestions Regarding Culinary Matters Which May Be of Value to the Busy Housewife.

Shad is again in season, and happy the man or woman who has a "plank" seasoned and in store for the reception of this prince of fishes. Every lover of good things to eat knows that a newly-sawed plank or one of soft wood would never do for so dainty a use. The plank that stands facile princeps is of cedar, well seasoned, freed by time from a too pronounced reminder of the forest, and impregnated with the juices from frequent cookings. Oak and hickory are also desirable, the delicate fish slowly broiled before a fire of glowing coals, absorbing the fragrant odors of the heated wood.

It requires months of care to fit a new board for use, and the family who possesses an heirloom of this sort is to be envied. The planks may be purchased—churned and seasoned—for $10 or $25, according to size; and if well cared for, will last for years. The plank should never be washed, but should be rubbed with a dry cloth after using and then sandpapered off.

In preparing the fish for planking, split down the entire back. Have the plank very hot, then nail the cleaned and opened fish to it with the skin to the plank. Set in front of the glowing coals, and bake for 15 minutes. Then reverse the plank and for end, and continue the baking until the flesh flakes. Season with salt, pepper and butter, and serve on the plank, which may be laid in a japanned tray.

Rolled jelly cake served with or without whipped cream makes an excellent addition to the supper or luncheon table or for a dessert for dinner. It is made like sponge cake, with the addition of a little butter or cream for shortening. A good rule calls for three eggs, whites and yolks beaten separately; one cupful of sugar, one tablespoonful of melted butter or three of cream, one cupful of pastry flour sifted twice, with one teaspoonful of cream tartar and half a teaspoonful of soda. Add the sugar to the beaten yolks, then the butter or cream, next the flour, and lastly the whites of the eggs, carefully folded in. Turn on a long shallow tin well buttered, and bake in a moderate oven. Turn out, and while hot spread with jelly. Break the edges with a knife handle and roll at once.

"Brown Betty" is as simple and wholesome a dessert as its name would indicate, and should be a stock dish in families where children "do abound." They always like it; the materials for its manufacture are usually on hand, and even the plainest of plain cooks can be taught to make it as it should be. Pare, core and slice six or seven tart apples. Butter a pudding dish, and put in thin layer of stale bread crumbs at the bottom, then a layer of the apple. Sprinkle lightly with sugar, add a few bits of butter and a dusting of cinnamon, cover with bread crumbs, then more apple. Proceed in this order until the dish is full, having a layer of crumbs at the top; add half a cup of water to half a cup of molasses, pour over the crumbs and bake in a moderate oven for an hour. Serve hot with sugar and cream or hard sauce.

An excellent substitute for sweetbreads, so good an imitation, in fact, that it is hard telling the one from the other, may be made of calves' brains. Soak the brains three hours in salt water, having first carefully cleaned them, removing all the red membrane. Put them into a pint of cold water, with one tablespoonful of lemon juice and a half tablespoonful of salt, boil them ten minutes and then plunge into cold water. Meanwhile make ready two or three boiled eggs, some tiny boiled potatoes and a pint of cream sauce, to which has been added at the last a little minced parsley. Arrange the brains in an oval mound in the center of a hot platter, surround it with a ring of the potatoes, and then a circle of the sliced eggs, and pour the hot cream sauce over all.—Washington Star.

SWELL BOOK AGENTS.

They Sell Works of Rare and Antique Character and Make Large Incomes.

The really swell book agent is one who sells books of rare and antique character. There is a fortune in this class of books. The prices range from $50 to $500 or more, and the persons who buy the works are only too glad to receive a visit from the agent who makes this class of books his specialty. They leave their addresses at all book stores and advertise their hobby far and wide. A rare edition they will pay almost any money to obtain, and there is a correspondingly large profit for the agent.

Works of art or classics in limited editions are disposed of only in this manner. They cannot be obtained through the usual channels of trade.

The sale of rare old books in England last year amounted to more than $500,000. There is no report of the sales of limited editions, which are never advertised, but are disposed of only through agents. These limited editions are printed on the richest materials and they are works of art as to the print as well as illustration, which is often in etchings and water colors. Vignettes are often tinted by hand, and the artist's proofs of etchings are also finished in water color by hand.

It is more easy to dispose of this class of work than is realized by the canvasser for ordinary books, and the agent sometimes makes $10,000 a year in the business.—N. Y. Herald.

Apple Fritters.

Beat five eggs until quite light, then stir in half a teaspoon of salt, one tablespoon of fine white sugar, the grated rind and juice of half a lemon, one pint milk, one-half pound apples chopped fine and one-half pound of flour. Stir well together and fry to a light brown, drain, sift fine white sugar upon them and serve hot with wine or lemon sauce.—Boston Globe.

CHAMPION OF THE TRUSTS.

President McKinley Has Permitted Trust Formation to Pass Unheeded.

As chief magistrate of the republic President McKinley is sworn to take care that the laws shall be faithfully executed. No discrimination as to statutes can lawfully be made. He cannot properly make mental reservation, assuming that he may discriminate as to statutes, enforcing those which he deems proper and refusing to give effect to those which do not meet his approval. He must enforce the laws—all of them—or he fails necessarily in the full performance of his sworn duty.

Doubtless Mr. McKinley, who is a close and shrewd observer of the trend of public opinion, as has been his habit for a lifetime, notes with some uneasiness the growing sentiment of the community against trusts and combinations in restraint of trade. The more trusts the greater the feeling of public indignation at the fact that they are permitted unrebuked to organize. As a matter of course a candidate for reelection, he calculates the force of this opposition, which, gathering strength, may be sufficiently powerful to overturn him. He knows that he has deliberately ignored the Sherman anti-trust law and that trusts have been organized and operated with absolute impunity under his administration. They have found a useful defender in his attorney-general, who discovers various reasons why he should not proceed against them.

But, solicitous as he may be on the effect of this agitation against trusts, McKinley will stand by them. All his political life has been devoted to championship of the protective tariff, under which trusts flourish. Trusts have made him politically. Trusts will furnish the sinews of the campaign that he will enter upon next year. The people may cry out in indignation, but the president will disregard them. He is bound up with the trusts. Sink or swim, survive or perish, he must be with his friends. If he were to disclose hostility to the trusts by an active, aggressive, sincere attempt to apply the federal law against them and therein merely discharge his duties as chief magistrate they would turn upon him and rend him.

If any citizen of the United States should engage his attention sufficiently to point out to him the obligation which he is under to enforce all federal laws, the Sherman anti-trust law as well as any other, he would probably suavely point to the fact that the St. Louis convention which named him for the presidency forbore to make any declaration concerning trusts. But, as is inevitable, the agitation in opposition continues, and he will concur with equal complacency in the suggestion that a platform declaration be made against trusts, explaining to his familiars that as a president may ignore a statute that he has sworn to execute he may pay no attention whatever to a platform declaration of the piecrust order.—Chicago Chronicle.

A CHANGE WILL COME.

The President's Policy Towards the Philippines Will Always Prevail.

The absurd notion that the attitude of Aguinaldo and his "wild and ignorant" followers is due to the encouragement of the anti-imperialists at home is exposed and exploded by a letter from a soldier in Manila, published in the New York Evening Post. From this letter we learn that not only the "wild and ignorant" natives uninformed as to what is going on in the United States, but our own soldiers do not know what the people at home are thinking or saying. He writes:

"The lie one thing the army suffers from which is extremely aggravating, and that is the lack of telegraphic news from home. For a full month the men have been fighting, and yet not even an inkling of what the people at home think of the matter has reached the troops, except one or two telegrams of congratulation. They would like to know whether the people are backing the army up, or whether the fact that we are compelled to fight the natives has strengthened the sentiment against holding the islands. They would also like to know the fate of the army bill, and the probable policy of the administration in the matter of sending the volunteers home. Not that the latter are so anxious to go home as they were. They are having a little fun now, and are willing to remain awhile longer to enjoy it; but when that is over they will clamor to go home as loudly as ever."

It will be borne in mind that a military censorship is exercised in the Philippines, and the only free communication is through private letters between soldiers and their families. All dispatches and news must pass the censorship both ways. So we learn only what Gen. Otis desires us to know, and the soldiers learn only what Gen. Otis permits them to know. How, then, can Aguinaldo and his "wild and ignorant" followers who are cut off from all communication whatever with America know that they are being "encouraged;"

The clamor of the soldiers to return which was told in this letter is already heard. The department at Washington is being reminded daily of the fact that the war for which the soldiers volunteered is over, and not five per cent. of the volunteers are willing to remain in the service to perform garrison duty or to slaughter the Filipinos. A turning point in the policy towards the Philippines is surely coming.—Utica Observer.

——If the protection which has been abused and turned against those whose benefit it was nominally laid were taken away from every industry that has come under the control of a trust we would have a chance to buy home-made goods as cheaply as the foreigner. At present he has a decided advantage over us in the purchase of many articles which are made right under our eyes and shipped thousands of miles to him.—Atlanta Journal.

PRICE AND COST.

Defenders of Trusts Fallaciously Argue That Monopolies Reduce Expense of Consumer.

It has been argued by some trust defenders that since monopoly can reduce the cost of production there must of necessity follow a reduction of cost to the consumer.

This conclusion does not follow, because the trusts will not give the consumer the benefit of the reduction.

But here is another answer to this argument which has been made by W. J. Bryan, who in discussing this matter says:

"But, even if it could be shown that a monopoly would reduce the cost of production and give to the consumer the benefit of the reduction, the trust would still be undesirable, because of its tendency to destroy individual independence. A landed aristocracy, which would secure to a few the ownership of all the land and condemn an ever-increasing number to perpetual tenancy, would be no more destructive of our national ideals than a system of industrial monopoly which promises hereditary wealth to the few at the top and hopeless toil to the bread winners, upon whom our social structure rests.

"If it is admitted that the trust is wrong, then the only question remaining is: Is it possible to destroy it? As trusts are impossible except through the organization of corporations, and as corporations cannot exist except by legislative permission, there would be a complete remedy in the withdrawal of all corporate rights; but so radical a remedy is not necessary."

As a matter of fact, the difficulty in dealing with trusts has been that while the people have been hostile to the principle of monopoly the instrumentalities of government have been largely under the control of those who hold sympathy with the trusts.

The problem, then, is not so much the devising of a law which will destroy trusts as the putting of men in office who will enforce the law which is already upon our statute books.

It is vain to hope to secure such men in the ranks of the republican party; therefore the necessity of establishing democratic supremacy.—Chicago Democrat.

THIS YEAR'S ELECTIONS.

Democratic Chances Are on the Increase in Some Doubtful States.

There will be few elections this year. Iowa, Kentucky, Maryland, Massachusetts, Mississippi and Ohio are the only states that elect governors and state officers. In all these, with the exception of Maryland and Ohio, the result can be predicted with reasonable certainty.

Without doubt Kentucky will supplant her present republican governor with a democrat. In Maryland the race will be close, with the probabilities favoring democratic success, owing to the result of the recent mayoralty race in contest in Baltimore.

In Ohio the situation is too mixed for confident prediction. If democratic sentiment has been crystallized and increased to the extent apparent in several other states, the outlook for democratic victory in the Buckeye state is by no means discouraging. The evolution of Mayor Jones, of Toledo, as an anti-machine republican candidate for governor is expected to increase democratic chances.

It goes without saying that Mississippi will go democratic and Massachusetts the other way. In Pennsylvania the republicans will elect judges, and in New York and New Jersey, where trust money is largely in evidence, a majority of the legislatures will probably be elected by the party which depends on trusts and on which trusts depend.—St. Louis Republic.

PRESS COMMENTS.

——According to the Syracuse Post-Standard, Alger is losing heart. But McKinley isn't losing Alger.—Chicago Democrat.

——Michigan republican leaders are impressed with the necessity of dropping all of their convictions and principles and getting together.—Detroit Free Press.

——Ohio has queer politicians. One faction of the republican party declares that it is against Hanna but not against McKinley. As though that were possible.—Milwaukee Journal.

——The war in the Philippines and the beef scandal are about all that is left of our trouble with Spain. Of course, McKinley and Alger are still on our hands, but their official days are numbered.—Kansas City Times.

——If we want to carry out President McKinley's policy of "benevolent assimilation" all copies of the declaration of independence should be edited by the press censor before being admitted to the Philippines.—Buffalo Times.

——The talk that the republican party is opposed to trusts will count for absolutely nothing as long as the republican party, with full control of the legislative and executive branches of the government, does nothing to check trusts.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

——Protected wool is now being exported and sold under the pauper wool of Europe. However, the wool used to pull over the eyes of American consumers is not being exported. And it will not be until the tariff taxers find that the people will no longer stand for it.—Omaha World-Herald.

——Some of the shouters for the empire are irritated because David B. Henderson, of Iowa, an anti-imperialist, is leading in the race for speaker of the house. "Does Henderson stand by the policy of the administration?" they shout. He can readily answer this and floor his interrogators by asking: "What is Mr. McKinley's policy?"—N. Y. World.

FAVORS EXPANSION.

Dr. Talmage Discusses an Absorbing Theme.

Points Out the Way for the American People to Perform a Mighty Work—A Splendid Opportunity.

[Copyright, 1899, by Louis Klopsch.]

In this discourse Dr. Talmage steers clear of the political entanglements of our time and recommends that which will meet the approval of all who hope for the perpetuity of our republic and the welfare of other lands; text, Genesis 28:14: "Thou shalt spread abroad to the west and to the east."

Since the American-Hispanic war is concluded and the United States ambassador is on the way to Madrid and the Spanish ambassador is on the way to Washington the people of our country are divided into expansionists and anti-expansionists. From a different standpoint from that usually taken I discuss this all-absorbing theme. I leave the political aspect of this subject to statesmen and warriors and pray Almighty God that they may be enabled to rightly settle the question whether the islands in controversy shall be finally annexed or held under protectorate, or resigned to themselves, while I call attention to the fact that a campaign of moral and religious expansion ought to be immediately opened on widest and grandest scale.

At the close of this war God has put into the hands of this country the key to the world's redemption. Heretofore the religious movement in pagan lands had to precede the educational. After in China and India and the islands of the sea the missionaries have labored over 50 or 75 years the printing press and the secular school came in. Now to better advantage than ever before religious and secular enlightenment may go side by side, and so the work be accomplished in short time and more thoroughly. Starting with the fact that in Cuba and Porto Rico and the Philippine Islands at least three-fourths of the people can neither read nor write, what an opportunity for school and printing press! Within five years every man in those islands may be taught to read not only the Bible, but the Declaration of Independence and the constitution of the United States and the biography of George Washington and of Abraham Lincoln.

It seems to me that the government of the United States ought by vote of congress afford common schools and printing presses to those benighted regions. Our national legislature by one vote appropriated $50,000,000 to give bread and medicine to Cuba. Why not by a similar generosity give $50,000,000 for feeding and healing the minds and souls of those ignorant and besotted archipelagoes. In the name of God, I nominate a school for every neighborhood of Cuba, Porto Rico and the Philippines. As soon as the gavel falls at 12 o'clock of next December 4 on the table of senate and house of representatives and the roll has been called and the preliminaries observed let some member of our national legislature, with mind and soul and voice strong enough to be heard not only through those halls, but through Christendom, propose a measure for the mental and moral disenthrallment of the islands in controversy.

What has made American civilization the highest civilization the world has ever seen? Next to the Bible and the church, schools, common schools, schools reaching from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and from British America to the gulf of Mexico. Five years under such educational advantages and the whole subject that keeps our public men agitated, some of them to frothing at the mouth, will settle itself. Give those islands readers, spellers, arithmetics, histories, blackboards, maps, geographies, globes. Let the state legislatures at their next meeting, some of them assembling in early autumn, take parts of those islands under their especial educational patronage. What is needed is state and national action in this matter of schools.

Still further, here is a wide open door for Christianity. First of all, we have the attention of those people. The heathen nations are for the most part soporific. The American missionaries heretofore had great difficulty in getting heathendom to listen. They excited some comment by their attire, so different was the parting of the hair, and the shape of the hat, and the cut of the coat, and the formation of the shoe of the evangelizers, but the questions constantly around the verge of the missionary: "Who is he?" "What is he here for?" And then the interrogator would relax into the previous stupid indifference. But that condition of things has passed. The guns of our American navy have awakened those populations. They do not ask who we are. They have found out. They are now listening to what American civilization and our Christian religion have to say on any subject. Now is the time, while their ears and eyes are wide open, to tell them of the rescuing and salvable and inspiriting power of the Gospel of Jesus Christ, the Saviour of the world. The steam printing press which secular education plants there may be used and will be used to print religious newspapers and tracts and sermons and mighty discussions of questions temporal and eternal.

Now, church of God, now all Christian philanthropists, is your opportunity. Nothing like it has occurred since Christ came. Perhaps there may be nothing like it until His second coming. Here is a definiteness of aim that is most helpful and inspiring. The millions of dollars given for the redemption of the world and the thousands of glorious missionaries who have as volunteers gone forth among barbaric nations, were given and enlisted under a great and immeasurable idea. But when they come to add to the great and immeasurable idea the idea of definiteness we will infinitely augment the work. More than 300,000,000 of heathen in India, more than 300,000,000 of people in China, and more than millions of heathen than can be guessed outside of those countries, sometimes stagger and confound and defeat our faith. But here in these islands of present controversy we can farm out the work among the churches, and in five years, under the blessing of God, not only fit the people for the right of suffrage, but prepare them for usefulness and Heaven. The difference between the general idea of the world's evangelization and some particularized field of evangelization is the difference between the improvement of agriculture among all nations and the improvement of 75 acres put under one's especial care and industry. By all means let the general work go on. But here is the specific field for religious concentration and development. This is not chimerical or impractical. I read this morning that the American Missionary association of the Congregational church has already begun the work at San Juan, Utuado and Alhonito, and all denominations of Christians, in six months, will be in those islands; fields, and we will help with our prayers and contributions to cheer them on to take for God and righteousness those regions which our American navy has captured from Spanish perfidy.

It has been estimated that this American-Spanish war cost us $300,000,000. It would not cost half of that to proclaim and carry on and consummate a holy war that will rescue those archipelagoes from satanic domination. Who will volunteer? I beat the drum of a recruiting station. Who will enlist under the one starred, blood striped banner of Immanuel? Cuba and Porto Rico and the Philippines are stepping stones for our American Christianity to cross over and take the round world for God. We need a new evangelical alliance organized for this one purpose. In all denominations there are those with large enough hearts and who have been thoroughly enough converted to join in such an advanced movement; men who, putting aside all minor differences of opinion, "believe in God the Father Almighty, Maker of Heaven and earth, and in Jesus Christ, His only begotten Son," and who would march shoulder to shoulder in such a Gospel campaign. The result would be that those islands, after a scene of gospelization, would assort themselves into denominations to suit themselves, and some would be sprinkled in holy baptism, and others would be immersed in those warm rivers, and some would worship in religious assemblages silent as the Quaker meeting house, and others would have as many jubilant ejaculations as a backwoods camp meeting, and some of those who preached would be gowned and surplieed for the work, and others would stand in citizens' apparel or in their shirt sleeves preaching that Gospel which is to save the world.

Mark you well that statesmanship, however grand it is, and wise men of the world, however noble, cannot do this work. Mere secular education does not moralize. Some of the most thoroughly educated men in all the world have been the worst men. Quicken a man's intellect, while at the same time you do not make his morals good, and you only augment his power for evil. Geography and mathematics and metaphysics and philosophy will never qualify a people to govern themselves. A corrupt printing press is worse than no printing press at all, but let loose an open Bible upon those islands and let the apocalyptic angel once fly over them and you will prepare them to become either colonies of the United States government, or, as I hope will be the case, independent republics.

God did not exhaust himself when he built this nation. Those islands will yet have their Thomas Jeffersons, qualified to write for them declarations of independence; and George Washingtons, capable of achieving their liberties; and Abraham Lincolns, strong enough to emancipate their serfdoms; and Longfellows and Bryants, capable of putting their hills and their rivers and their landscapes into poems; and their Bancrofts and Prescotts to make their histories, and their Irvings to write their sketch books; and their Charles O'Connors and Rufus Choates to plead in their courtrooms; and their Daniel Websters and John G. Crittendens to move their senates.

The day cometh—hear it all ye who have no hope for those islands of bedwarfed and diseased illiterates—the day cometh when those regions will have a Christian civilization equal to that which this country now enjoys, while I hope by that time this country will be as superior to what it now is as to-day Washington and New York are better than Manila and Santiago.

Christ has started for the conquest of the nations, and nothing on earth or in hell can stop it. The continents are rapidly rolling into His dominion, and why not those islands, which for the most part are only fragments broken off from continents, the interval lands having been sunk by earthquakes, allowing the ocean to take mastery over them? Each mother continent has ground it a whole family of little continents. If the continents are being so rapidly evangelized, why not the islands? If America, why not Cuba and the Bahamas? If Asia, why not the Philippines and the Moluccas? If Europe, why not the Azores and the Orkneys? If Africa, why not Madagascar and St. Helena? The same power that broke them off the mainland can lift them into evangelization.

In the old book, which has become a new book by reason of modern discoveries, especial attention is called to the islands. "Declare the Lord's praise in the islands," commands Isaiah. "Let the multitudes of the islands be glad thereof," says the Psalmist. "All the islands of the heathen shall worship Him," writes Zephaniah. "He shall turn His face to the islands," prophesies Daniel. "The inhabitants of the isles shall be astonished at thee," foretells Ezekiel. "Hear it and declare it to the islands afar off," exclaims Jeremiah. You see from this the islands are not to be neglected. Perhaps they are the Lord's favorites, as in households if there is any favoritism at all it is for the weakest. The islands too small to take care of themselves have the eternal God to take care of them. Let nations look out how they tread on the islands, however small and weak, for they are omnipotently defended. They may not be able to marshal large armies or to send out navies to sweep the sea, but better than that, they have the chariots of Heaven on their side and the drawn swords of the Almighty. I have as much faith in the salvation of the smallest island of the Fulklands, of the Canaries, of the Ladrones, of the Carolines, of the Fijis, of the Barbadoes, of the Cape Verdes, of the Society islands as I have in the salvation of America.

The continents themselves are only larger islands, and the world in which we live is only a still larger island, and the solar system is a group of islands, and the universe is an archipelago studded with islands of worlds surrounded by the great ocean of infinitude and immensity. So you see when God planned the universe He diagrammed it into islands, and He will look after the interest of each of those islands, however small, and England and France and Germany and America must not treat the smallest and weakest island that comes under their sway any different from the way they treat the strongest nation of all the earth. God may chiefly deal with individuals in the next world, but He deals with nations only in this world, and when persistently a nation practices injustice against other people it is only a question of time when the offender will find his doom. The path of time is strewn with the carcasses of nations that because of their maltreatment of other nations perished. The higher such offending empires rise the harder will be their fall.

I believe the United States government will last as long as the world lasts. I believe the fires of the judgment day will leap on the domes of our state and national capitols while yet they are in their full power. I believe the last earthquake will put in its explosion under our national foundations while yet they stand firm. I believe the republican and democratic form of government will be the universal form of government for all nations when they have been evangelized, for then the nations will be capable of self-government and will have demanded and secured that right. It will be either that or a theocracy, which will be the direct government of Christ in His personal reign on earth, as many Bible students believe. Yet that jubilant expectation is founded not on the skill of human statesmanship or human legislation, but upon the belief that this nation will submit to Divine guidance, and obey the Divine law, and carry out its divine ly imposed mission. But if we defy the God of nations our doom is fixed.

We concluded a few days ago the annual decoration of northern and southern graves. Three years ago, at this season, in memorial sermon I proposed the twisting of two garlands, one to be put upon the grave of the northern soldier and the other to be put on the grave of the southern soldier, but this year we need three garlands, the third to be put upon the graves of those who fell in this America-Hispanic conflict. The third garland needs to be quite as fragrant and as radiant as the other two. These last heroes braved more than bayonets; they braved the pestiferous breath of the tropics, whole battalions whole regiments, whole brigades whole armies of death ful malaria. They confronted those oppositions of the torrid climes which no sword can pierce no agility climb, no stratagem flank, no torpedo explode, no courage conquer Under the awful charge of visible and invisible hosts about 6,000 men went down, some to instant death and others through lingering pangs in hospital.

If in this third wreath you twist the crimson rose, suggestive of sanguinary sacrifice, and the white calla lily, suggestive of glorious resurrection, put it also a few forgetmenots, suggestive of remembrance, and a few passion flowers, suggestive of the love that mourns the slain, and a few heliotropes, suggestive of the fragrance of their memory. Then let the night's dew put the tears in the blue eyes of the violets and all the soldiers' cemeteries be as many censers burning incense before the throne of that God who has been the friend of this nation from the time of Lexington to the time of San Juan hill, from the guns of the United States warships Constitution and Constellation, at the beginning of the century to the guns of the United States warships Olympia, Oregon, Brooklyn and other loaded thunders, at the close of this century.

Week before last, in this capital of the nation, we set three nights on fire in celebration of naval and soldiery heroines, and there were rockets of fire and spouting fountains of fire, and bombardments of fire, and ships of fire sunk in billows of fire, and those three nights were three garlands of fire; but now we are in softer and quieter mood, and the three garlands of to-day are woven of blossoms and corollas of all colors and all pungencies of aroma, and we bethink ourselves that this third garland was needed to chain together the northern garland of other decorative times to the southern garland of other decorative times. Floral chain of three links! For the first time in 40 years the north and south stand in complete brotherhood. Heroes of Vermont and Alabama, of Massachusetts and South Carolina, of Maine and Louisiana, shoulder to shoulder. May that alliance remain until the last oppression is extirpated from the earth and all nations stand in the liberty with which Christ would make all people free.

LONG ISLAND.

A marked peculiarity about New York, the empire state, is the fact that while it is the main entryport of the United States and has more maritime trade and vessels of every size and description carrying flags of all nations constantly coming and going, its only seacoast is Long Island. This Island, whose west end rests south of the city, extends one hundred and thirty-four miles to the eastward of Montauk Point, shutting off the ocean from New York's main land and a portion of New England forming Long Island Sound, hence the state secures, instead of a very small portion of coast line, an aggregate of about two hundred and fifty miles, counting the ocean and Long Island Sound, and the beautiful bays at the east end of Long Island. The island itself is unique in many respects. Geologists tell us that it was formed by glacial action aided by the ocean. The South Shore is wonderfully attractive to all lovers of the ocean, its grandeur and its pleasures. For half its South Shore the Island proper is protected from the Atlantic by a long low beach line called Fire Island, which forms the Great South Bay, noted for its opportunities for yachting in safety and comfort to those who are not full fledged salts, and furnishing still water bathing. The attractions for the fishermen are great. All kinds of fish abound, the gamey blue fish being perhaps the favorite. Blue Point, just west of Patchogue, is famous the world over, as it is the home of the Blue Point oyster. Little Neck clams are found in great profusion on both shores of the Island, as are oysters of superior excellency. While the South Shore is particularly attractive on account of its beaches and ocean frontage, it is not a stretch of sand or absolutely level for its entire length. The Shinnecock Hills have long been of interest to scientists and artists. These furze clad knolls have many picturesque, winding roads.

In many points one sees a marked resemblance to New England villages. Rows of magnificent elms and flowering trees of every description abound. Even Montauk Point itself, swept as it is by all the winds, is covered with verdure, and has, like other points, a number of fresh water lakes, one of them two and three-quarters miles long. These lakes, like Artist Lake, Lake Ronkonkoma, West Hills at Patchogue, Lake Success, near Hyde Park, are fed by streams coming in from the bottom. No inlet or outlet appears on the surface. Besides these lakes a number of beautiful streams flow across the Island, and the fact that clear, cold water of great purity can be obtained anywhere on the island at no great depth has led scientists to declare that this water came from the mountains of New England. Analysis shows that the water is, in most cases, the same as the mountain streams of Vermont and New Hampshire.

The North Shore of the Island is high. The roads dipping up and down over the hills, and the heavy woods comprise all varieties of shade trees; elms, maple, locusts, walnut and sycamore grow in great perfection.

Through the center of the Island the entire length from Brooklyn to the east end run a line of wooded hills called the backbone. These hills slope away to either shore. The North Shore has many beautiful harbors well known to all yachtsmen, as they afford a safe port in any storm.

Dewey Bought a Ticket.

When Commodore Dewey left Washington in November, 1897, to take command of the fleet in the Pacific Ocean, he did not ride on a pass or a half-rate ticket. Being a personal friend of S. B. Hege, General Agent of the Baltimore & Ohio passenger department in Washington, the new famous sea fighter bought two first-class tickets from Washington to San Francisco via the B. & O., Chicago & North-Western, Union Pacific and Southern Pacific lines. Lieut. Brumby accompanied the admiral and they departed on November 27th.

Some time ago Manager of Passenger Traffic D. B. Martin, of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, set out to collect the coupons of the ticket and only recently secured all of them. He has had the ticket, containing Dewey's signature, lithographed, and is issuing fac-similes as souvenirs.

"Sonny," said Uncle Eben, "lookout foh 'Jeshere proverbs. Dey tells you dar's books in de common schools, but don't you 'magine yous gwuine get yoh education goin' in swimmin'."—Washington Star.

THE MARKETS.

CINCINNATI. June 5.
LIVESTOCK—Cattle, common to	$3 00	@ $4 00
Select shippers	4 50	@ 4 65
CALVES—Fair to good	6 00	@ 6 50
HOGS—Common	3 20	@ 3 35
Mixed packers	3 70	@ 3 80
Light shippers	3 65	@ 3 80
SHEEP—Choice	4 25	@ 4 50
LAMBS—Spring	6 50	@ 7 00
FLOUR—Winter patents	3 90	@ 4 00
GRAIN—Wheat, No. 2 red		66 @ 66
No. 3 red		62 @ 62
Corn—No. 2 mixed		32½ @ 32½
Oats—No. 2 mixed		26 @ 26
Rye—No. 2		47 @ 47½
HAY—Prime to choice		6 00 @ 6 50
PROVISIONS—Mess pork		8 00 @ 8 25
Lard		4 80 @ 4 80
BUTTER—Choice dairy		9½ @ 11
Prime to fancy creamery		15 @ 16½
APPLES—Choice to fancy	4 00	@ 4 40
POTATOES—New, per bu	1 10	@ 1 25
CHICAGO.
FLOUR—Winter patent	3 65	@ 3 75
GRAIN—Wheat, No. 2 red	58	@ 59¼
No. 3 Chicago spring	52	@ 53
Corn—No. 2	35½	@ 35¾
OATS—No. 2	25½	@ 25¾
PORK—Mess	8 07	@ 8 10
LARD—Steam	4 90	@ 4 95
NEW YORK.
FLOUR—Winter patent	4 00	@ 4 10
WHEAT—No. 2 red		66 @ 66½
CORN—No. 2 mixed		39 @ 39½
RYE—No. 2	62	@ 64
OATS—Mixed		27 @ 27½
PORK—New Mess	8 25	@ 8 50
LARD—Western		4 95 @ 5 00
BALTIMORE.
FLOUR—Family	3 45	@ 3 70
GRAIN—Wheat, No. 2 red	64	@ 64
Southern	61	@ 68
Corn—Mixed	37½	@ 37¾
O ts—No. 2 white	28½	@ 28¾
Rye—No. 2 Western	60	@ 60
CATTLE—Extra quality	4 00	@ 4 00
HOGS—Western	4 10	@ 4 40
INDIANAPOLIS.
GRAIN—Wheat, No. 2 red		65 @ 65½
Corn—No. 2 mixed		36 @ 36½
Oats—No. 2 mixed		26 @ 27½
LOUISVILLE.
FLOUR—Winter Patent	3 75	@ 4 00
GRAIN—Wheat, No. 2 red		63 @ 63
Corn—Mixed		36 @ 36½
Oats—Mixed		26 @ 26
PORK—Mess		11 00 @ 11 00
LARD—Steam		4 87½ @ 4 87½

Victoria Getting Young.

In view of the fact of the Queen's approaching visit to the continent, Englishmen are especially interested in her majesty's health. It is announced that her hearing has grown acute and her eyesight keener. Youthful faculties in old age depend merely upon the health. The blood should be kept pure and the stomach sweet with Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. It cures indigestion, constipation, biliousness, nervousness, liver and kidney troubles, as well as malaria and fever and ague. It keeps people young.

Reliable Criterion.

Mrs. Newlywed—Oh, mother, I wish I'd never been born. George doesn't love me any more. It's plain as daylight.

Her Mother—Why, how can you tell?

"Well, I'm glad to know about it."

all our expenditures. The first month we were married our living expenses amounted to $104, the second month $82, and last month just $38. And George says we're going to do even better than that hereafter!"—N. Y. World.

$100 Reward $100

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Address F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O.

Sold by Druggists, 75c.

Hall's Family Pills are the best.

Very Busy.

May and Edith are sisters, four and five years old respectively. May had been very naughty, and mamma had taken her over her knee to administer corporal punishment, when Edith suddenly pushed the door ajar and peeped in. Turning her chubby face as far round toward her sister as her peculiar position would admit, May said very gravely:

"Go out, Edie, don't you see I'm busy?"

It is needless to add that mamma granted a respite.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

"Big Four Gift!"—Neely's Spanish-American War Panorama.

Contains 160 superb half-tone engravings, made from photographs taken of our Army in camp, on transports and in actual service, Spanish and American Gun-boats, Cuba, Havana, Manilla, Landscapes, Architecture; shows the manners and customs of the people of our new Islands; Pictures of our Heroes—Dewey, General Charles King (known as Capt. Charles King, the author), Wheeler, Hobson, Roosevelt, Sampson, Miles, Schley, Shafter, Lee, Brooke, Carroll; Groups of Officers, Cavalry, Artillery, Infantry, Ships, Rifle-practice, Spanish Soldiers, Insurgents, Chickamauga, Jacksonville, Tampa, Last Farewell Letters Home, Hospitals, Clara Barton, Rough Riders, Santiago, San Juan, Manilla, the Beautiful Women of Cuba and Manilla.

The Album is 8x8 inches, weighs 12 ounces, printed on finest coated paper.

Sent FREE to any address in the United States, Canada or Mexico for 12 cents in stamps or coin, to cover postage and packing. Copy may be seen at any ticket office of the Big Four Route.

Order at once, as the edition is limited.

Address WARREN J. LYNCH, General Passenger and Ticket Agent, "Big Four Route," Cincinnati, Ohio.

Mark envelope "War Album."

Friendly Relations Established.

George—How is your suit with Miss De Pink progressing?

Jack—Finely. When I call now her dog wags its tail.—Stray Stories.

Rev. (now Bishop) Joseph S. Key, wrote: "We gave your Teethina (Teething Powders) to our little grandchild with the happiest results. The effects were almost magical and certainly more satisfactory than from anything we ever used."

"Mrs. Wall says she is interested in high art." "No doubt. Her husband is a treasurer."—Philadelphia Bulletin.

I could not get along without Piso's Cure for Consumption. It always cures.—Mrs. E. C. Monlton, Needham, Mass., Oct. 22, 94.

Friendship is worth more than its gifts.—Ram's Horn.

An Excellent Combination.

The pleasant method and beneficial effects of the well known remedy, SYRUP OF FIGS, manufactured by the CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO., illustrate the value of obtaining the most beneficial laxative principles of plants known to be medicinally laxative and presenting them in the form most refreshing to the taste and acceptable to the system. It is the one perfect strengthening laxative, cleansing the system effectually, dispelling colds, headaches and fevers gently yet promptly and enabling one to overcome habitual constipation permanently. Its perfect freedom from every objectionable quality and substance, and its acting on the kidneys, liver and bowels, without weakening or irritating them, make it the ideal laxative.

In the process of manufacturing figs are used, as they are pleasant to the taste, but the medicinal qualities of the remedy are obtained from senna and other aromatic plants, by a method known to the CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO. only. In order to get its beneficial effects and to avoid imitations, please remember the full name of the Company printed on the front of every package.

CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO.
SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.
LOUISVILLE, KY. NEW YORK, N.Y.
For sale by all Druggists.—Price 50c. per bottle

A Happy Mother's Gratitude

[LETTER TO MRS. PINKHAM NO. 26,785]

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM—I have many, many thanks to give you for what your Vegetable Compound has done for me. After first confinement I was sick for nine years with prolapsus of the womb, had pain in left side, in small of back, a great deal of headache, palpitation of heart and leucorrhœa. I felt so weak and tired that I could not do my work. I became pregnant again and took your Compound all through, and now have a sweet baby girl. I never before had such an easy time during labor, and I feel it was due to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I am now able to do my work and feel better than I have for years. I cannot thank you enough."—MRS. ED. ELLINGER, DEVINE, TEX.

Wonderfully Strengthened.

"I have been taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, Blood Purifier and Liver Pills and feel wonderfully strengthened. Before using your remedies I was in a terrible state; felt like fainting every little while. I thought I must surely die. But now, thanks to your remedies, those feelings are all gone."—MRS. EMILIE SCHNEIDER, 1244 HELEN AVE., DETROIT MICH.

HEAD ACHE

"Both my wife and myself have been using CASCARETS and they are the best medicine we have ever had in the house. Last week my wife was frantic with headache for two days, she tried some of your CASCARETS, and they relieved the pain in her head almost immediately. We both recommend Cascarets"
CHAS. STEUFERD.
Pittsburg Safe & Deposit Co., Pittsburg, Pa.

CANDY CATHARTIC
Cascarets
TRADE MARK REGISTERED
REGULATE THE LIVER

Pleasant. Palatable. Potent. Taste Good. Do Good. Never Sicken, Weaken, or Gripe. 10c. 25c. 50c.
... CURE CONSTIPATION. ...
Sterling Remedy Company, Chicago, Montreal, New York. 327

NO-TO-BAC Sold and guaranteed by all druggists to CURE Tobacco Habit.

DR. MOFFETT'S
TEETHINA
TEETHING POWDERS

Aids Digestion, Regulates the Bowels and Makes Teething Easy. TEETHINA Relieves the Bowel Troubles of Children of Any Age and Costs Only 25 Cents. Ask Your Druggist for it.

Kansas in the Philippines

Is making a reputation for courage and patriotism that stirs our blood.

Kansas in the Cornfields,

Wheatfields and orchards has already made a reputation for gigantic yields that astonishes the world. Oil wells, coal beds and mines furnish a basis for industrial development. Send for free copy of

"What's the Matter

With Kansas?" and for information about homeseekers' excursion tickets via Santa Fe Route.

Address General Passenger Office,
The Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Railway,
CHICAGO.

YOUR OLD WHEEL

Made GOOD as NEW by addition of a PEACOCK CHAIN. They are accurate and never give trouble. Send $1.60 for one of these chains, delivered FREE. Specify number of links and width, 28 or 30 inches, centers.

CLINTON CHAIN WORKS,
142 South Clinton Street, Chicago

COLLEGE HILL ASSEMBLY,

College Hill, O., under the direction of the Cincinnati Social Settlement. Lectures on Literature, Science and Economics. Prof. F. V. N. Myers, Prof. J. R. Porter, Prof. J. S. Van Cleve and many others. Located in healthful suburb of Ohio hill, 5 miles of the most beautiful suburbs of Cincinnati. Hours from 8:30 a week up. Opens Oct. 3. July 1 closes Aug. 5. For circular and information address,
F. E. SCHNEIDER, Business Manager,
Dept A. Station G, CINCINNATI, O.

READERS OF THIS PAPER DESIRING TO BUY ANYTHING ADVERTISED IN ITS COLUMNS SHOULD INSIST UPON HAVING WHAT THEY ASK FOR, REFUSING ALL SUBSTITUTES OR IMITATIONS.

"THE DAWN OF DEWEY" the world's greatest hero, by Murat Halstead. AGENTS WANTED. Only $1.50. OUTFIT FREE. S. C. HILLER, Lakeside Bldg., CHICAGO.

PISO'S CURE FOR
CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS.
Best Cough Syrup. Tastes Good. Use in time. Sold by druggists.
CONSUMPTION
25 CTS. 50 CTS.

A. N. K.—B 1764

WHEN WRITING TO ADVERTISERS please state that you saw the Advertisement in this paper.

"THE MORE YOU SAY THE LESS PEOPLE REMEMBER." ONE WORD WITH YOU, SAPOLIO

An exceptionally large crowd was at Grant, Ky., last Saturday night to attend a festival given by the members of the Baptist church of that city, at the large warehouse of Clore & Walton. The attendants were favored with an excellent musical program by the talent present, and enjoyed the liberal hospitality which is always consistant with our neighboring State. Among the evenings entertainment were vocal solos by Mr. Wm. Green, Jr., of Rising Sun, and Mrs. Ida Grant, of that place, and also some piano duets by Misses Hannah Davis and Mary Green. A large party were present from Rising Sun, enjoying the pleasureable ride on the Str. Swan to and from, which in itself was a feature in the evenings outing. The Rising Sun guests express a high appreciation and gratitude of the pleasant time given them, particularly the accommodation and lovely moonlight ride on the water. They were: Misses Anna Mullen, Blanch Lostutter, Nettie Marble, Mary Moody, Hannah Davis, Alice Perkins, Maggie Welch, Jessie Waldo, Mamie Martin, Mary Johnson, Cynthia Coles, Tousson Mullen, Della Birdzell, Mertle Love, Hannah Buchanan, Lizzie Coles; Messrs. Emerson Rockafellar, Earl Seward, Dudley Kelley, Issac Heyn, Eugene Espey, Joe Schroeder, William Burns, Harold Perkins, Martin Green, William Green, Louis Thorn and Chas. Kelso.

Rising Sun, Ind. C. E. K.

The Kelly family had their annual reunion near the old homestead at the residence of A. C. Kelly, last Saturday. There were 70 people in attendance Of the direct descendants of Jesse and Jane Kelly there were present 10 children, 59 grandchildren and 15 great-grandchildren. Messrs H. P. Marshall and Samuel Wingate were the oldest persons present, each being in his 83rd year, while the combined ages of the six oldest persons present was 440. Dinner was served in the shade of the grove near the house. The frying of the fish was superintended by Z. T. Kelly, with Henry Phipps and Perry Beemon as assistants. Jay Calvert presided over the soup with the assistance of Charles and Wesley Kelly. W. B. Kelly received the guests and waited on the ladies; Cyrus Kelly made the coffee. In the afternoon the guests were invited by A. C. Kelly to his famous strawberry patch to partake of the berries, which were very fine indeed. The ladies supplied the table with all the delicacies of the season. Supper was served at 6 o'clock in the evening. After supper the young folks of the neighborhood, who had assembled spent the time until midnight in dancing, the older people looking on with equal enjoyment. Everybody was on their good behavior and seemed reluctant to leave when midnight came.

The picnic season was inaugurated at the popular Harvest Home grounds, last Saturday, with as nice a picnic as any person should want to attend. The attendance was not so large as to crowd the platform and annoy the dancers, and was composed of young people from many neighborhoods. The music was excellent, and it was kept busy until the shades of the evening were aslant the grove. About the middle of the afternoon a large number concluded a storm was approaching and they left for home, while those who remained were not inconvenienced in the least, and the dancing proceeded without interruption. James Clore, the popular dispenser of refreshments was at his post, and with that ever present smile renewed his acquaintance with the dancers as they lined up at his counter, and called for the cool and refreshing goods, an abundance of which he had provided for the occasion. It was a happy, handsome crowd of young people, and they spent the afternoon as only such an assemblage could.

We are reliably informed that Prof. M. A. Cassidy, candidate for Supt. of Public Instruction, who has served 14 years as Superintendent of schools in Fayette county and City of Lexington, gets text books for the children of the county cheaper than they are furnished to anyother county in the State.

For sale—Two Shorthorn bull calves, one old enough for service.

W. H. Rouse.

Resolutions of Respect.

Hall of Bellevue Lodge, No 544, F. & A. Masons, May 20th, 1899.

Whereas, It has pleased the Allwise God in His infinite wisdom to call our beloved brother, Elija Ryle, from earth to his reward on high; therefore be it

Resolved, That in his death this Lodge has lost a good and faithful member and the last charter member; his family a kind father; his church a good and faithful member; the community a good citizen.

Resolved, That we bow with submission to our Heavenly Master's command and feel great sorrow at the departure of our brother.

Resolved, That we tender our sympathy to his bereaved friends and relations, and that this Lodge be draped in mourning for thirty days.

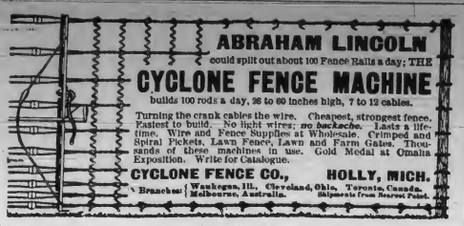
Resolved, That these resolutions be spread on the minutes of this Lodge and a copy sent to the family, and to the Boone County RECORDER for publication.

W. H. Marshall,
R. T. Stephens, } Com.
Moses Scott,

Hall of Bellevue Lodge, No. 544, F. & A. Masons, May 20th, 1899.

Whereas, It has pleased the Creator out of His mercy, to remove our brother, B. K. Ryle, from the cares and troubles of a transitory existence to a state of eternal duration; therefore be it

Resolved, That we lament the loss of a worthy brother—one faithful to the principles of Masonry and ever awake to its call, and



Resolved, That the community has lost a kind neighbor and useful citizen; the family an indulgent father and affectionate husband.

Resolved, That we extend our heartfelt sympathy to the bereaved wife and son, hoping that He Who tempers the wind to the shorn lamb will be compassionate to them in their hour of desolation.

Resolved, That we wear the usual badge of mourning for thirty days.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be spread on the minutes of the Lodge and one sent to the family of the deceased, and one to the Boone County RECORDER for publication.

C. G. Riddell,
S. J. Stephens, } Com.
R. T. Stephens,

ABRAHAM LINCOLN
could split out about 100 Fence Rails a day; THE
CYCLONE FENCE MACHINE
builds 100 rods a day, 26 to 60 inches high, 7 to 12 cables.
Turning the crank cables the wire. Cheapest, strongest fence. Fastest to build. No light wires; no backache. Lasts a lifetime. Wire and Fence Supplies at Wholesale. Crimped and Spiral Pickets, Lawn Fence, Lawn and Farm Gates. Thousands of these machines in use. Gold Medal at Omaha Exposition. Write for Catalogue.
CYCLONE FENCE CO., HOLLY, MICH.
Branches: Waukegan, Ill. Cleveland, Ohio. Toronto, Canada. Melbourne, Australia. Shipments from Nearest Point.

I have control of the Cyclone Fence in Boone and Woodford counties. I will build the fence or sell machines to farmers that they may build their own fences. It is the cheapest and best fence that can be built.
Address G. CARTER GRADDY, BULLITTSVILLE, KY.

Taylorsport.

Lon Rouse has a bad case of measles.

The graves of the veterans of the civil war were decorated, last Tuesday.

George Clore and family, of Independence were visiting J. H. Eddins and wife, Sunday.

Mrs. Cints died of typhoid fever, the first inst. The deceased leaves a husband an four children. The remains were buried in the cemetery at Bromley.

A sharper struck these parts a few days since, and caught several. He represented that he was an agent for the Conroy Furniture Co., selling a box of soap for $6, the purchaser to receive a beautiful piece of furniture, but the furniture failed to apperr.

Berkshire.

G. B. Miller and wife were the guests of M. V. Black, last week.

Some of the farmers in this neighborhood had to plant there corn over.

Zack Miller and wife, of St. Louis Mo., were visiting relatives here several days last week.

Mrs. W. T. Stewart and mother, Mrs. C. C. Hume, made a business trip to Warsaw, Wednesday.

Miss Pierolina Allphin and little sister, Sallie, were the guests of their grand-parents several days last week.

One day last week a honey bee stung Robert Finnell on the eye lid and his head and eye was badly swollen for several days.

One day last week Mrs. M. V. Black's horse broke through a bridge near Big Bone, throwing her and her three children off backwards, giving the oldest child an ugly cut on its mouth, and bruised Mrs. Black a little.

FROM OWEN COUNTY.

[News]

It is something remarkable about the almost universal observance of this National holiday in Owenton. Tuesday the cemeteries, both white and colored, were crowded with people putting flowers on the graves of friends and loved ones.

Attilla Brock, the bright and handsome son of J. Mike Brock, accompanied by Geo. W. Maddox, the talented alternate, leaves Sunday for West Point, where he will try for a cadetship, having won the competitive examination.

Over thirty subscribers to a telephone system for Owenton were secured in a short time last week. With fifty-a splendid exchange is assured.

[Herald.]

Last Friday morning John Jump, the eighteen-year old son of Newt Jump, of this place, met with a frightful accident at Elliston Station. He, in company with Frank Hancock, Herndon Hutcheson, Pat Campbell and Charles King, went fishing on Eagle Creek the day before and passed the night at Sparta. The next morning John and Charlie boarded a freight train North. When it reached Elliston, where no stop was to be made, John attempted to get off, and in doing so was injured as stated. His skull was fractured in several places, besides sustaining other injuries. He was returned to Sparta by the first train, where his father and uncle James Jump, met him with a conveyance and brought him home that evening. His wounds were examined and cared for by Drs. Estes and Botts, who have been unremitting in their attentions since. There is said to be some chance for his recovery, although he is in a bad fix. He has not been able to give any account of how the accident occurred, nor does any one else seem to know the particulars.

The Arlington News thinks that town "has a kick coming" and states its grievance thus: "It has now been nearly three weeks since Arlington applied to the Governor for a commission for our newly-elected Police Judge, but not even a reply has been received. Governor Bradley was not at home, and the time of Acting Gov. Worthington was occupied in issuing pardons hence the delay."

The last stone in Fayette's magnificent new court house was laid last week and it is hoped to have the building completed by July 4.

At a Street Fair in Maysville, George W. Burton, aged 19, and Miss Mary Jane Collins, aged 20 were publicly married, in the presence of a large crowd. Eleven couples applied and a selection was made by lot. The license was given to the couple, the preacher charged nothing for marrying the couple, and nearly every business man made them a present.

MONTHLY SUFFERING.

Thousands of women are troubled at monthly intervals with pains in the head, back, breasts, shoulders, sides hips and limbs. But they need not suffer.

These pains are symptoms of dangerous derangements that can be corrected. The menstrual function should operate painlessly.

McELREE'S Wine of Cardui

makes menstruation painless, and regular. It puts the delicate menstrual organs in condition to do their work properly. And that stops all this pain. Why will any woman suffer month after month when Wine of Cardui will relieve her? It costs $1.00 at the drug store. Why don't you get a bottle to-day?

For advice, in cases requiring special directions, address, giving symptoms, "The Ladies' Advisory Department," The Chattanooga Medicine Co., Chattanooga, Tenn.

Mrs. ROZENA LEWIS, of Oenaville, Texas, says: "I was troubled at monthly intervals with terrible pains in my head and back, but have been entirely relieved by Wine of Cardui."

Consign your Stock to Rabenstein, Harris & Conner,
—Live Stock—
COMMISSION MERCHANTS,
COVINGTON STOCK YARDS, Covington, Ky.,
OR UNION STOCK YARDS, Cincinnati, Ohio.
When shipping East bill our care privilege selling Central Covington Stock Yards.
We will make it to your advantage and give your stock special personal attention.

Helms' - Barber - Shop,
PETERSBURG, KY.
Hair cut 15c, on Saturday 20c; Shave 10c; Shampoo 15c; Sea Foam 5c; Hair Singe 5c; Beard Trim 5c, other work proportionally as low in price. Ladies' and childrens' work a specialty. ☞All work guaranteed satisfactory or money refunded. Hair Oils, Tonics, Perfume, etc., for sale. Thanking all for past favors, I remain, &c.,
EVERETT HELMS, Prop.
LADIES—To the ladies that have not paid us a call, will say, that Thursday is conceded to be their day. Ladies Shampoo 25c; Sea Foam 15c; Bangs trimmed 10c. Hair dressed for special occasions a specialty, at reasonable rates. Courteous treatment is our motto. Give us a call.

Central Covington Stock Yards,
COVINGTON, KY.
Are located so as to offer special inducements to shippers South of the Ohio river in saving them extra expense and time. In addition to the local buyers there will be Eastern and foreign buyers on the market for all kinds of stock. When shipping East, don't fail to consign our care privilege selling which will be of benefit to you.
Central Covington Stock Yards Co.
Commission firms will give prompt attention to consignments.

DON'T PAY TWO PROFITS!
IF YOU WANT A
Buggy or Carriage
Go direct to the factory and save the 50 or 75 per cent. that agents add to the factory price; get all you can in material and workmanship — put agents commission in the vehicle or your pocket. Come and see us and we will prove to you that your home factory will give you
BETTER WORK for the MONEY
than can be gotten from any agents.
See Our 2500 Mile Dust Proof Axle,
before buying a vehicle. We warrant and stand by all our work.
BRADFORD BROS.,
FLORENCE, KY.

J. T. MARSHALL,
SALESMAN FOR
F. W. KASSEBAUM & SON,
Manufacturers and Dealers in
Granite and Marble Monuments.
GRANT P. O., KENTUCKY.

FRANK HOSSMAN,
Hebron, Ky.,
CARPENTER AND BUILDER,
Also handles and
KINDS of ROOFING,
Which is furnished and put on at the Lowest Prices consistent with good work.
I am prepared for moving buildings.
Your Work is Solicited.

ADDINGTON, No. 27008,
Will make the season at my stable, at $10 to insure colt to stand up and suck. Address—Green Brown, 16 hands high, sired by Dictation, by Young Jim, by Geo Wilkes; 1st dam, C. M. Clay 22; 2d dam by Almont 33.
J. A. RIDDELL, Hebron, Ky.

WHEN IN RISING SUN, INDIANA,

Stop and see
Jno. D. Baxter
—THE—
SADDLE and HARNESS
Man. He keeps a large stock of Saddles, Harness, Collars, Whips, Bridles, Trace Chains, Hames,
In fact everything kept in a first-class Harness Store, and at the Lowest Cash Prices; we buy strictly for cash and our customers benefit by it. Call and be convinced of the fact.
JOHN D. BAXTER.
THE OLD RELIABLE

BUGGIES!

IF YOU WANT A GOOD
BUGGY
To suit you and stand the rough roads and made to order, call on ECKSTEIN NOVELTY CO.,
—AGENTS FOR—
JAMES & MAYER BUGGY COMPANY,
LAWRENCEBURG, IND.

CORNER
Drug Store
Rising Sun, Ind.
Is the place for anything in the Drug Line.
WALL PAPER, PAINTS, WINDOW SHADES, STATIONERY, PERFUMES, FANCY GOODS, &c.
B. F. BUCHANAN,
— DRUGGIST, —
Over thirty year's experience.

FARMERS
Take Notice!
If you want good
Fertilizer
PLEASE GIVE
B. F. ZIMMER
A CALL.
He will try to please you. He has the finest line of Fertilizer for 1899 he has ever handled. Write for particulars to
CONSTANCE, KY.

NOTICE.
J. E. Rouse's Guernsey Bull "Jesson 3662," will be found at his father's this season—fee $1.

J. T. MARSHALL,
SALESMAN FOR
F. W. KASSEBAUM & SON,
Manufacturers and Dealers in
Granite and Marble Monuments.
GRANT P. O., KENTUCKY.

FRANK HOSSMAN,
Hebron, Ky.,
CARPENTER AND BUILDER,
Also handles and
KINDS of ROOFING,
Which is furnished and put on at the Lowest Prices consistent with good work.
I am prepared for moving buildings.
Your Work is Solicited.

ADDINGTON, No. 27008,
Will make the season at my stable, at $10 to insure colt to stand up and suck. Address—Green Brown, 16 hands high, sired by Dictation, by Young Jim, by Geo Wilkes; 1st dam, C. M. Clay 22; 2d dam by Almont 33.
J. A. RIDDELL, Hebron, Ky.

WHEN IN RISING SUN, INDIANA,

Stop and see
Jno. D. Baxter
—THE—
SADDLE and HARNESS
Man. He keeps a large stock of Saddles, Harness, Collars, Whips, Bridles, Trace Chains, Hames,
In fact everything kept in a first-class Harness Store, and at the Lowest Cash Prices; we buy strictly for cash and our customers benefit by it. Call and be convinced of the fact.
JOHN D. BAXTER.
THE OLD RELIABLE

BUGGIES!

IF YOU WANT A GOOD
BUGGY
To suit you and stand the rough roads and made to order, call on ECKSTEIN NOVELTY CO.,
—AGENTS FOR—
JAMES & MAYER BUGGY COMPANY,
LAWRENCEBURG, IND.

DR. A. P. WALTON,
DENTIST,
CINCINNATI,
The Lancaster Building 22 W. 7th, Bet. Vine and Race.

INSURE AT HOME
The Farmers' Mutual Fire
INSURANCE COMPANY,
OF BOONE COUNTY,
Is now completely organized and receiving applications for insurance.
Its Rates are Lower
Than those of any other Company and gives the farmers of Boone County
WITHERTO UNKNOWN ADVANTAGE
In keeping their property insured.
EVERY FARMER IN THE COUNTY should take a policy at once.
E. H. BLANKENBECKER, President, Florence, Ky.
EDGAR CROPPER, - Vice-President.
OSCAR GAINES, Secretary, Burlington.
J. E. DUNCAN, Treasurer.
EXECUTIVE BOARD—Legrand Gaines, J. W. Conner, John Stephens.
J. E. SMITH, Assessor, - Burlington, Ky.
W. M. ROGERS, Agt. - Walton, Ky.

1899. SEASON 1899.
CRESCENT HILL STOCK FARM.
TIMOTHY BOY, No. 27854
Bay horse, foaled April 3, 1893, bred by D. Bedinger & Son, Richwood, Ky. Sired by Wilkes Boy, 2:24, 1st dam, Alga by Artillery, 2:21½; 2d dam Valdosta by Nutwood, 2:18¾; 3d dam Emma Arterburn (dam of St. Arnould, 2:29, and g.-dam of two in 2:30 list) by Mambrino Patchen 58; 4th dam Jenny Johnson (grand-dam of three in 2:30 list) by Sweet Owen, thoroughbred, &c.
Wilkes Boy is one of the best sons of the great Geo. Wilkes, 2:22.
TIMOTHY BOY is one of the best bred horses in the State, is 16¼ hands high and weighs 1,300 lbs. in ordinary condition, a horse of great power, good bone, fine style and action, perfectly sound in every particular. He is a pure gaited trotter and his colts are large with plenty of style and action, the kind that are in demand all the time. Service fee $10 to insure a live colt, money due when colt is foaled or mare parted with.
THE FINE MAMMOTH JACK,
Nutwood,
Will make the season of 1899 at $8.00 to insure a live colt, money due when colt is foaled or mare parted with.
DESCRIPTION & PEDIGREE.
Nutwood is a dark brown or black with white points, 16 hands high, very heavy bone and well built, large head and ears, heavy body and good action; foaled July 6, 1894, was bred by J. M. Park, Madison county, Ky. Nutwood is by Blackwood, 16¾ hands high, one of the best male and jennet jacks in Kentucky; 1st dam by Griggs' Big Tom, 16 hands high; 3d dam by the Hubbert jack, &c.
TIMOTHY BOY and Nutwood will make the season on Daniel Bedinger's farm on the Richwood & Beaver pike, 3 miles west of Richwood.
☞Pasture and attention furnished mares at $1.50 per month. Care taken to prevent accidents, but no responsibility should any occur.
J. C. BEDINGER, Richwood, Ky.

SEASON 1899.
OAKKNOLL STOCK FARM
UGO!
Foaled 1892, sired by Simmons 2744, (record 2:28,) sire of 75 in 2:30, and 14 in the 2:12 list; by George Wilkes 519, (record 2:22); 1st dam by Almont Boy 4308; 2nd dam by Norman 25; 3d dam by C. M. Clay 18.
UGO is a dark chestnut, 16¼ hands high, weighs 1,150 pounds, a very kind prompt driver, also a good saddler.
Will make the season of 1899, on Thursdays, Fridays and Court days at Burlington, Ky., and the remainder of the time at my barn, one mile west of Uniongrr, Ky., at $10 to insure a live colt, money due as soon as colt is foaled.
Care will be taken to prevent accidents, but I will not be responsible should any occur.
SCOTT CHAMBERS.

5 Per Cent. MONEY TO LOAN.
Real estate security. Any sum from $1,000 to $2,000 at 5½ per cent. Sums of $2,000 and over at 5 per cent. Interest payable semi-annually. No loans made for a less time than two years.—No loans under $1,000 considered.
B. C. BEDINGER, Agent,
Beaver Lick, Ky.
☞Farms especially wanted. me0tf

D. E. CASTLEMAN,
ATTORNEY - AT - LAW.
BURLINGTON, KY.
Will practice in the Courts of Boone Kenton, Grant and Gallatin. Collections pushed energetically.

G. G. HUGHES,
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW.
BURLINGTON, KY.
Will practice in all the courts. Prompt attention given to all business entrusted to me.

P. E. CASON,
ATTORNEY - AT - LAW.
BURLINGTON, KY.
Practice in all Courts. Promptness guaranteed.

J. G. TOMLIN,
ATTORNEY - AT - LAW.
WALTON, KENTUCKY.
Will practice in the Courts of Boone, Kenton Grant and Gallatin. Prompt attention given Collections entrusted to me.

W. E. VEST,
County Surveyor,
BURLINGTON, KY.
Is prepared to do all kinds of Surveying. All orders by mail promptly attended to.

J. M. LASSING. N. B. RIDDELL
LASSING & RIDDELL,
ATTORNEYS AT LAW.
BURLINGTON, KY.
Prompt Attention Given to Collections

S. GAINES,
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW.
BURLINGTON, KY.
Will practice in all the courts, and prompt attention given collections. Office—In residence near post-office.

S. W. ADAMS,
ATTORNEY - AT - LAW,
ERLANGER, KENTUCKY.
Will practice in the courts of Boone and Kenton counties. Collections and general law practice.

W. E. VEST,
Real Estate Agent.
Farms Bought, Sold or Exchanged, Money to Loan on Real Estate, Notes bought, sold & Negotiated.
☞All communications addressed to W. E. VEST, Burlington, Ky.

BOONE CO. DEPOSIT BANK.
(Incorporated 1886.)
CAPITAL, ... $30,000
Surplus and undivided profits, 20,000
Our facilities enable us to receive on favorable terms accounts of individuals and corporations. Collections promptly remitted for at lowest rates

ERLANGER DEPOSIT BANK.
(INCORPORATED 1893.)
ERLANGER, - - KENTUCKY
CAPITAL PAID IN $50,000
SURPLUS, ... $ 3,000
Careful attention given collections and remittances promptly made. Deposit accounts solicited.

Dr. J. L. Adams,

DENTIST,
Walton, Kentucky.
Artificial Dentures, Crown and Bridge Work to represent natural organs.
☞Will be in office at Union every Monday.
Satisfaction - Guaranteed.

JOHN L. VEST,
SURVEYOR
WALTON, KY.
Is prepared to do all kinds of work south of Burlington, Ky. Prompt attention given to all mail orders.

Take the Recorder, $1.50 a year.

BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

VOL. XXIV. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, JUNE 10, 1899. NO. 34.

At a meeting held by the Democratic State Executive Committee in the city of Lexington March 8, 1899 it was ordered that a State Convention be held in the city of Louisville on Wednesday, June 21, 1899, for the purpose of nominating Democratic candidates for State offices, to be voted for on November 7, 1899. Said Convention shall be called to order at 11 o'clock a. m.

Delegates to said Convention shall be chosen at County Mass Conventions, to be held at the various county court-houses in counties having but one Legislative District, of which due notice shall be given by the various County Chairman. In counties having more than one Legislative District there shall be a Convention for each Legislative District, to be held at some convenient point, to be indicated by the Chairman of the Legislative District Committee, who shall advertise in the local papers the location of said Convention at least ten days prior to the date fixed by this committee. Said County and Legislative District Conventions shall be held at 2 o'clock p. m., standard time, on June 17, 1899. Said Convention shall be called together by the Chairman of the respective County or Legislative District Committees.

The basis of representation of each county to the said State Convention shall be one delegate for each 200 votes and fraction consisting of one hundred or more votes cast for the head of the Democratic electoral ticket at the Presidential election in 1896; provided that each county shall have at least one delegate vote.

All known Democrats and others who supported W. J. Bryan for President, and those who pledge themselves to support the nominees of said convention shall be entitled to participate in the County or Legislative District Convention.

P. P. JOHNSTON, Chairman.
OWEN COCHRAN, Secretary.

THE county mass meetings to be held next Saturday will close one of the most active gubernatorial campaigns ever waged in the ranks of the Democratic party in this State, and no matter which of the three candidates receives the nomination by the convention that assembles at Louisville on the 21st inst., there will be disappointment on the part of the friends of the other two candidates, but all simon-pure Democrats will at once line-up for the nominee, and do their part to carry his banner to victory in November. The Democrats may have their family scraps, but when the time comes to fight the common enemy, the past should be forgotten and they stand shoulder to shoulder.

THE proposed electric road from Covington to Big Bone has created considerable interest on the part of the leading business men of Covington, to which city it would take a very large rural trade that now goes elsewhere, and there is no doubt but the land owners along the route will give those who have the matter in hand very substantial aid, as nothing could be done that would prove a greater and more lasting benefit to them. A road from Covington to Big Bone would traverse a wealthy portion of Boone county, and would soon bring Big Bone Springs to the front as a very popular health resort. The proposed road is needed badly.

SOME of the Ohio people say that certain combinations that dominated the last Republican convention in that State, indicate that Senator Foraker will be compelled to surrender his toga to Geo. B. Cox, of Cincinnati, two years hence. The prediction is based on the belief that Cox owns one end of the State and Hanna, the other, and the fact that they have formed a political trust.

IT is sincerely hoped that the Good Roads convention that met in Lexington, last Saturday, succeeded in evolving some plans for the providing of better public highways in Kentucky a plan that can be put in operation and sustained in a manner equitable and just to all, and will meet the approbation of those who would have the burden to bear.

KENTUCKY CROP REPORT.

Reports were received this month from 157 correspondents, representing 109 counties.

WHEAT—The Weekly Bulletins of the Climate and crop Service of the Weather Bureau show a general deterioration of the wheat crop in the principal winter wheat growing States.

In Ohio there has been general falling off in condition due to rust and the Hessian fly. The Indiana crop has also suffered from the same cause. In Illinois there has been some improvement in early sown wheat, while the late now shows up very poor. Michigan reports widespread damage by the "fly," and the crop has fallen off in condition generally. In Missouri damage by rust and Hessian fly, combined with the presence of an unusual amount of cheat, make the crop as a whole "a poor prospect." In Kansas many counties report an improvement in condition, but a greater number report a loss. Chinch bugs have made their appearance there, and serious damage is threatened.

In Kentucky the wheat crop has suffered a loss in condition during the month. The condition averages 73 while on May 1st it was 80. By sections the following averages are shown: Western, 62; central, 76; southeastern, 81. It should be noted that by far the highest average condition is shown in the southeastern section where comparitively little wheat is grown. There is a general complaint of "fly" in early wheat. Rust is also frequently reported, but so far is confined to the blades. Medium early wheat now promises the best yield. Late wheat is overrun with weeds. "Heads short, low and thin on ground," is the expression most frequently used by correspondents in describing the condition of the crop.

CORN—Both western and southeastern sections report corn planting not completed with close of month. In the central section corn is all above ground and some is quite forward. Much replanting has been found necessary due to defective seed. The acreage compared with acreage of 1898 is 92. The condition compared with average years is 84. The condition June 1st 1898, was 82. The several sections show the following conditions: Western, 80; central, 85; southeastern, 86. In the western section the crop in many counties is getting foul, cultivation being retarded by excessive rainfall.

OATS—The oat crop is small in acreage, and appears to be receiving little attention. There has been an improvement in condition during the month from 75 on May 1st to 82 on June 1st.

TOBACCO—Tobacco plants are plentiful and setting has been rushed. In some counties there was a lack of season until the closing days of the month. In western Kentucky rain has prevented preparation of the ground. Per cent. of crop set prior to June 1st: In western section 48, central 53, and southeastern 35. Grasshoppers and cut worms have played havoc with early set tobacco in a number of counties. Indications point to an average acreage in the principal tobacco growing districts.

PASTURES AND MEADOWS Pastures are unusually luxuriant, especially in the central district, where the condition compared with average years is 103. Clover meadows promise a find yield of excellent quality but timothy meadows are overrun with "white blossom."

The wool clip is estimated at 91 per cent. of the clip of 1898. The price for "clear unwashed" wool averages 20c, which is a drop of 1c from prices of last year.

FRUIT—There has been a decided decline in fruit prospects during May. Apples have fallen off until the condition compared with average years is but 67, whereas it was 91 on May 1st. Pears have declined from 69 to 47 and grapes from 81 to 67.

LUCAS MOORE,
Commissioner of Agricultural.

IT may be that Attorney-General Taylor is not the Administration candidate for Governor, but it is a fact that the attitude of many of the Administration machine in this State indicates as much.

Pith of the Press.

Looks as if Foraker is now to be ground under the heels of the Administration's hob-nailed brograns.—Toledo Bee.

Mr. Platt is cultivating Mr. Foraker's habit of submitting gracefully to the inevitable.—Knoxville Sentinel.

Governor Roosevelt's LL. D may remind us that he is something else than a Rougd Rider.—Philadelphia Ledger.

So Colonel Dick is to manage the Republican campaign. Plenty of space should be left for the error column.—Columbus Dispatch.

Joey Foraker is looking as pleased as a bull pup that has swallowed a camphor ball for a gum drop.—Memphis Commercial Appeal.

Admiral Kautz is also on his way home. Here's a hero who deserves some Deweyizing for his good deeds.—Philadelphia North American.

David W. Parker, colored, who prints a Democratic newspaper the Tribune, at Tuscaloosa, Ala., is delivering lectures in Western Kentucky towns.

President McKinley says Cuba is held "in trust." About everything with which the Administration is connected is "in trust."—Chicago Democrat.

Somebody sent Mr. Cleveland a brace of mud hens. Politically speaking, Mr. Cleveland is that kind of a hen himself just now.—New Haven Union.

The Mr. Cleveland who broke the bass fishing record is we believe, the same Mr. Cleveland who broke the shirt collar record.—Omaha World-Herald.

After reading the Ohio platform we can't understand why any correspondent should presume to say that Mr. Hanna has no sense of humor.—Detroit Tribune.

It is believed that Mr. Hanna's opposition to the trusts can be measurably overcome by proper peace offerings before the next National Convention.—Detroit Tribune.

Mr. Hanna said he wanted to take a clear conscience to Europe. If he does this he will be sure to have all sorts of trouble with the fussy custom inspectors.—Washington Post.

The voters may ask Mr. Hanna why the party in power does not take a few whacks at trusts immediately instead of waiting to demolish them in its platform.—Chicago Record.

We are bidden General Henderson bids us to support Mr. McKinley's Philippine policy. Perhaps we would if we knew what it is, but does anybody ?—N. Y. Evening Post.

Mr. Reed relinquished the Speakership because he could not become expansionist. Mr. Henderson becomes an expansionist in order to acquire the Speakership.—Detroit Free Press.

It will not be a great while now until either Mr. Jeffries or Mr. Fitzsimmons will be made aware of his mistake in presuming himself a better slugger than the other.—Pittsburg Times.

Addick's friends blew out the gas again, and the Republican majority in Wilmington, Del., was asphyxiated. Can't something be done with Addicks, too?—Brooklyn Standard Union.

J. Sterling Morton, Jerry Simpson, John Ingalls and William Alfred Peffer have solved the question of the statesman out of a job. They have all gone into the newspaper business.—Denver News.

The announcement of Mr. Jones, of Toledo—the famous Golden Rule Mayor—that he is out of state politics looks ominous for the Republican candidate for Governor of Ohio.—Kansas City Star.

WHILE Auditor Stone was preparing his circular address to the people, showing why he should be the Republican nominee for Governor, Attorney-General Taylor was busy setting up county conventions and securing the delegates, and delegates are what count.

STATE NEWS.

Dry weather killed some of the tobacco that was planted late.

Fayette county will soon have free mail delivery along its 408 miles of turnpike.

Bowling Green's ice factory broke down, last week, and the town got very hot.

Grasshoppers are already worrying farmers, doing much damage to early crops in some communities.

T. T. Garrard, of Manchester, has a book that is 314 years old. It is a commentary on the "Acts of the Apostles."

The annual convention of the K. of P. lodges composing the second district, will be held at Williamstown next Friday.

The total assessed value of taxable property in Kentucky is $563,288,686. This will produce for the State a little less than $300,000,000.

Wash Oliver, of Claysville, fell down stairs, says the Paris News, and cut off the lower lid of his right eye as clean as if a knife had been used.

Fifty-eight thousand six hundred and twenty-seven sheep were imported into the United Kingdom from the United States during the first three months of the year.

In Winchester one jennet brought $72, one yearling jack $110 and one two-year-old jack $80. Good prices are being obtained for all mules and jack stock being offered for sale in Clark county.

The farmers around Red House, Madison county, have found a new pest in the form of the grub worm, and claims that the destruction wrought by these pests is greater than that of the much-dreaded cut worms.

The Carrollton Telephone Co., has obtained the line from this place to Ghent, and if they can make satisfactory arrangements to extend their line on to Warsaw Sparta, New Liberty, Owenton and other points they will do so.—Carrollton News.

Clel Ewing recently sold to the Prendergast Lumber Company $4,000 worth of timber on Mill creek. He sold this year a tract of land in Mississippi for $25,000 cash, to the W. J. Fell Company, a tract of timber above Ragland's mill, this county, for $40,000.—Owingsville Outlook.

A mysterious disease is killing cattle near Owingsville. The disease manifests itself by copious frothing at the mouth and then the animal becomes apparently crazy, rearing and plunging and running with all its might, and running over any obstacle in its way. This is followed by exhaustion, when death ensues.

Uncle Daniel Muir, colored, residing a few miles from town, and an old chair bottomer, has for years been a familiar personage in and about town. A few days ago he was bitten by a tick, and when same was removed from his flesh blood poisoning set up, causing his death. He was about 70 years of age.—Elkton Progress.

The judgment of the Breathitt Circuit Court, awarding W. B. Dotson $13,000 against Frank V. Titford and others, was affirmed in the Court of Appeals. The appellee sold Titford and others 2,000 walnut trees standing in the counties of Pike, Knott, Letcher, Perry and Leslie, at $10 each. The suit was for breach of contract by failing to take the timber. The appellants are Eastern parties.

Pulaski county will vote on a proposition to bond the county for $100,000, the proceeds of which is to be used for the purpose of building turnpikes. It is thought that the proposition will carry, as there is little or no opposition. Pulaski county has now no bonded indebtedness, and is one of the wealthiest mountain counties in the State. It is estimated that the county will be able with the proceeds of the bonds sold to build about 70 miles of pike.

The trial of Eugene Wilson at London last week upon the charge of murder, resulted in a hung jury. The trial lasted ten days, Hon. W. W. Dickerson, of this place, being the leading counsel for the defense. The testimony of the prosecution was largely broken down and the case not nearly so bad a one as had been reported by the press. The jury stood, when finally polled, eight for acquittal, two for conviction, and two who had not made up their minds. Wilson was admitted to bail in the sum of $3,000 which he gave with his father and Ben T. Riggs, his uncle. The case will come up for trial again in the October term of the court at which time Wilson is confident that he will be acquitted. Dr. Wilson and family who had been attending the trial returned home on Monday; Mr. Dickerson returning home at an earlier date.—Williamstown Courier.

One of the most distinctive needs of our public schools, says an agricultural exchange, is a more practical course of instruction. For instance, boys who are spending their lives on the farm should be taught the elementary principles of scientific farming. There is no subject more fascinating, and it is of far more practical importance than many of the studies now taught in our public schools. It is almost equally essential that a girl whose chief life work is to preside over a home, should be taught the first principles of up-to-date housekeeping. These subjects can be taught in the common county school in such a manner as to add interest and attractiveness to the course without in anyway interfering with the essential branches now taught. We have Agricultural Colleges and Cooking Schools doing splendid service along this line, but only the common country school can reach all the people who need such instruction.

For several days last week the people of Middlesboro noticed that nothing was seen of the wife of D. M. Sampson, a drunken shoemaker. An investigation of the premises where the Sampson family lived revealed a horrible sight. The woman was found to be in a dying condtion from wounds inflicted by her husband. She had been struck in the face with a bludgeon of some kind and her teeth knocked out and otherwise badly bruised and beaten. She was rendered all the assistance possible but died the next day. Before dying she made a statement accusing her husband of the murder and saying that after knocking her down with a large piece of wood, he had kicked her and stuck awls in her body.

Sampson fled but was captured by the Middlesboro police force and brought here and lodged in jail. There was much talk of Judge Lynch taking a hand in the game while the prisoner was in Middlesboro but this spirit was quelled and the law will take its course. Judge Moss at once impanelled a grand jury, who in a short time returned an indictment charging Sampson with murder in the first degree. He was at once brought out and his trial set for next Wednesday.—Pineville Courier.

How the Trusts Effects Farmers.

Farmers, as a rule, attend strictly to their own business and do not read or thing a great deal about the business affairs of others. Absorbed in the problem of scratching the breast of Mother Earth so as to gain a living—for riches are already beyond their grasp—they often fail to take note of important economic changes which are taking place. For instance, they pay little attention to revenue acts passed by Congress. These are things which touch them generally in only an indirect manner. They send few telegrams and do not use a great number of checks. The formation of great steel and copper combines has not troubled them either because they were organized affairs and the names of the incorporations even were strangers to them. But recently the farmers are getting awake to the facts which are new to them, facts which strike at the very base of their prosperity. Some are not aware of the causes of things and are prone to lay the blame upon those who are innocent. Let us explain. Within the past few days farm wagons have gone up. A wagon costs from $3 to $5 more than it formerly did, and this advance is a permanent thing and not a matter of thirty days standing. Binders of all makes will advance $10 each July 1. Plows have already as follows: Walking plows $1 each; sulky plows, $3 each, and gang plows $5 each. Binder twine is up from 8 cents last year to 12½ cents this year with prospects of another raise soon. Nails sell at $3.50 instead of $2.50 which was the former price. Hinges and locks are up 40 per cent. All other things which the farmer buys are up in proportion. Many farmers think these advances have been made by their local dealers. This is not the case. The local dealer is not getting one cent more profit than he did before—it would not be quite so bad if he were. These things have passed into the control of the trusts and these trusts have no competition. They fix prices at their will and a high tariff protects them in doing so. Foreigners cannot compete with them and they are the whole thing. They agree upon what prices they will charge and notify their retail dealers that their prices have been raised. The local dealer cannot help himself. The result is that the farmer has to pay more for his stuff without the compensation of having the price of anything he has to sell raised to compete with those who buy his products. This state of affairs is sure to put the farmer in a bad hole. It will eat up his profits and put his nose to the grindstone unless he can get more for what he sells.

The following is a list of the products now being manufactured from corn without the use of any other component material:

Mixing glucose, of three kinds, used by refiners of table syrups, brewers, leather manufacturers, jelly makers, fruit preserves and apothecaries.

Crystal glucose, of four kinds, used by manufacturing confectioners.

Grape sugar, of two kinds, used by brewers principally, and also by tanners.

Anhydrous sugar, used by ale and beer brewers and apothecaries.

Pearl starch, used by cotton and paper mills.

Powder starch, used principally by baking powder manufacturers, and also by cotton and paper mills.

Refined grits, used in the place of brewers' grit; they are giving better results.

Flourine, used by mixers of flour without detriment, except as to the feeling that a corn product is taking the place of a wheat product.

Four kinds of dextrine, used by fine fabric makers, paper box makers, mucilage and glue makers, apothecaries and many industries requiring a strong adhesive agent.

Corn oil, used by table oil mixers, lubricating oil mixers, manufacturers of fiber, shade cloth manufacturers, paint manufacturers, and in many similar industries where vegetable oils are employed.

Corn oil cake, gluten feed, chop feed and gluten meal, all cattle feeding stuffs of a very high grade and capable of being scientifically fed with superior advantages.

Rubber substitute, a substitute for crude rubber, and very extensively used.

Corn germ, the material from which the oil and cake are obtained.

British gum, a starch which makes a very adhesive medium, and is used by textile mills for running their colors, as well as by manufacturers who require a very strong adhesive medium that contains no trace of acid.

Granulated gum, which competes with gum arabic, is used successfully in its place, and finds a ready preference by reason of the absence of any offensive odor.

Probably the most important in the above list of products is rubber substitute, the substance which Chicago Chemists have recently brought to perfection; this new rubber, made from the waste of ordinary corn, will cheapen the price of rubber 25 per cent. Corn rubber must be combined with an equal quantity of Para rubber to give it general utility; twenty chemists have been employed at the Chicago refinery for a year in bringing this new rubber to perfection.

TALKS ON BIGOTRY.

Rev. Dr. Talmage Discusses a Delicate Subject.

Deplores Sectarian Difference in the Home—Cautions Parents as to Its Evil Effect on the Children.

[Copyright, 1899, by Louis Klopsch.]

In this sermon Dr. Talmage discusses a topic which will interest domestic circles everywhere. The text is Genesis xiii., 8: "Let there be no strife, I pray thee, between me and thee, and between my herdmen and thy herdmen. Is not the whole land before thee?"

Uncle and nephew, Abram and Lot, both pious, both millionaires, and with such large flocks of bleating sheep and lowing cattle that their herdmen got into a fight, perhaps about the best pasture, or about the best water privilege, or because the cow of one got hooked by the horns of the other. Not their poverty of opportunity, but their wealth, was the cause of controversy between these two men. To Abram, the glorious old Mesopotamian sheik, such controversy seemed absurd. It was like two ships quarreling for sea room in the middle of the Atlantic ocean. There was a vast reach of country, cornfields, vineyards, harvests and plenty of room in illimitable acreage. "Now," said Abram, "let us agree to differ. Here are the mountain districts, swept by the tonic of sea breeze and with wide-reaching prospect, and there is the plain of Jordan, with tropical luxuriance. You may have either." Lot, who was not as rich as Abram and might have been expected to take the second choice, made the first selection, and with a modesty that must have made Abram smile, said to him:

"You may have the rocks and the fine prospect; I will take the valley of the Jordan, with all its luxuriance of cornfields, and the river to water the flocks, and the genial climate, and the wealth immeasurable." So the controversy was forever settled, and great-souled Abram carried out the suggestion of the text: "Let there be no strife, I pray thee, between me and thee, and between my herdmen and thy herdmen. Is not the whole land before thee?"

Well, in this, the last decade of the nineteenth century, and in this beautiful land, which was called America, after Americus Vespucius, but should have been called Columbia, after its discoverer, Columbus, we have a wealth of religious privilege and opportunity that is positively bewildering—churches of all sorts of creeds, and of all kinds of government, and all forms of worship, and all styles of architecture. What opulence of ecclesiastical opportunity! Now, while in desolate regions there may be only one church, in the opulent districts of this country there is such a profusion that there ought to be no difficulty in making a selection. No fight about vestments, or between liturgical or nonliturgical adherents, or as to baptismal modes, or a handful of water as compared with a riverful. If Abram prefers to dwell on the heights, where he can only get a sprinkling from the clouds, let him consent that Lot have all the Jordan in which to immerse himself. "Let there be no strife, I pray thee, between me and thee, and between my herdmen and thy herdmen. Is not the whole land before thee?"

Especially is it fortunate when families allow angry discussion at the breakfast or dinner or tea table as to which is the best church or denomination, one at one end of the table saying he could never endure the rigid doctrines of Presbyterianism, one at the other end responding that she never could stand the forms of Episcopacy, and one at one side of the table saying he did not understand how anybody could bear the noise in the Methodist church, and another declaring all the Baptists bigots. There are hundreds of families hopelessly split on ecclesiasticism, and in the middle of every discussion on such subjects there is a kindling of indignation, and it needs some old Father Abram to come and put his foot on the loaded fuse before the explosion takes place and say: "Let there be no strife, I pray thee, between me and thee, and between my herdmen and thy herdmen. Is not the whole land before thee?"

I undertake a subject never undertaken by any other pulpit, for it is an exceedingly delicate subject, and if not rightly handled might give serious offense, but I approach it without the slightest trepidation, for I am sure I have the Divine direction in the matters I propose to present. It is a tremendous question, asked all over Christendom, often asked with tears and sobs and heartbreaks and involving the peace of families, the eternal happiness of many souls. In matters of church attendance should the wife go with the husband, or the husband go with the wife?

First, remember that all the evangelical churches have enough truth in them to save the soul and prepare us for happiness on earth and in Heaven. I will go with you into any well-selected theological library, and I will show you sermons from ministers in all denominations that set forth man as a sinner and Christ as a deliverer from sin and sorrow. That is the whole Gospel. Get that into your soul, and you are fitted for the here and the hereafter. There are differences, we admit, and some denominations we like better than others. But suppose three or four of us make solemn agreement to meet each on important business, and one goes by the New York Central railroad, another by the Erie railroad, another by the Pennsylvania railroad, another by the Baltimore & Ohio railroad. One goes this way because the mountains are grander, another takes this because the cars are more luxurious, another that because the speed is greater, another takes the other because he has long been accustomed to that route and all the employes are familiar. So far as our engagement to meet is concerned, it makes no difference if we only get there. Now, any one of the innumerable evangelical denominations, if you practice its teaching, although some of their trains run on a broad gauge and some on a narrow gauge, will bring you out at the city of New Jerusalem.

It being evident that you will be safe in any of the evangelical denominations, I proceed to remark, first, if one of the married couple be a Christian and the other not, the one a Christian is bound to go anywhere to a church where the unconverted companion is willing to go, if he or she will go to no other. You of the connubial partnership are a Christian. You are safe for the skies. Then it is your first duty to secure the eternal safety of your lifetime associate. Is not the everlasting welfare of your wife imperiled or your husband imperiled of more importance than your church relationship? Is not the condition of your companion for the next quadrillion of years a mightier consideration to you than the gratification of your ecclesiastical taste for 40 or 50 years? A man or a woman who would stop half a minute to weigh preferences as to whether he or she had better go with the unconverted companion to this or that church or denomination has no religion at all, and never has had, and I fear never will have.

You are loaded up with what you suppose to be religion, but you are like Capt. Frobisher, who brought back from his voyage of discovery a ship load of what he supposed valuable minerals, yet, instead of being silver and gold, were nothing but common stones of the field, to be hurled out as finally useless.

Mighty God, in all Thy realm is there one man or woman professing religion, yet so stolid, so unfitted, so far gone unto death that there would be any hesitancy in surrendering all preferences before such an opportunity of salvation and heavenly reunion? If you, a Christian wife, are an attendant upon any church and your unconverted husband does not go there because he does not like its preacher, or its music, or its architecture, or its uncomfortable crowding, and goes not to any house of worship, but would go if you would accompany him somewhere else, change your church relations. Take your hymn book home with you to-day. Say good-by to your friends in the neighboring pews and go with him to any one of a hundred churches till his soul is saved and he joins you in the march to Heaven. More important than that ring on the third finger of your left hand it is that your Heavenly Father command the angel of mercy concerning your husband at his conversion, as in the parable of old: "Put a ring on his hand."

No letter of more importance ever came to the great city of Corinth, situated on what was called the "Bridge of the Sea," and glistening with sculpture, and gated with a style of brass the magnificence of which the following ages have not been able to successfully imitate, and overshadowed by the Acro-Corinthus, a fortress of rock 2,000 feet high—I say no letter ever came to that great city of more importance than that letter in which Paul puts the two startling questions: "What knowest thou, O wife, whether thou shalt save thy husband? Or how knowest thou, O man, whether thou shalt save thy wife?" The dearest sacrifice on the part of the one is cheap if it rescue the other. Better go to the smallest, weakest, most insignificant church on earth and be copartners in eternal bliss than pass your earthly membership in most gorgeously attractive church while your companion stays outside of evangelical privilege. Better have the drowning saved by a scow or a sloop than let him or her go down while you sail by in the gilded cabins of a Majestic or Campania.

Second remark: If both of the married couple be Christians, but one is so naturally constructed that it is impossible to enjoy the services of a particular denomination and the other is not so sectarian or punctilious, let the one less particular go with the other, who is very particular. As for myself, I feel as much at home in one denomination of evangelical Christians as another, and I think I must have been born very near the line. I like the solemn roll of the Episcopal liturgy, and I like the spontaneity of the Methodists, and I like the importance given to the ordinance of baptism by the Baptists, and I like the freedom of the Congregationalists, and I like the government and the sublime doctrine of the Presbyterians, and I like many of the others just as much as any I have mentioned, and I could happily live and preach and die and be buried from any of them. But others are born with a liking so stout, so unbending, so inexorable for some denomination that it is a positive necessity they have the advantage of that one. What they were intended to be in ecclesiasticism was written in the sides of their cradle, if the father and mother had eyes keen enough to see it. They would not stop crying until they had put in their hands as a plaything a Westminster catechism of the Thirty-nine Articles. The whole current of their temperament and thought and character runs into one sect of religionists as naturally as the James river into the Chesapeake. It would be a torture to such persons to be anywhere outside of that one church.

Now, let the wife or husband who is not so constructed sacrifice the milder preference for the one more inflexible and rigorous. Let the grapevine follow the rugosities and sinuosities of the oak or hickory. Abram, the richer in flocks of Christian grace, should say to Lot, who is built on a smaller scale: "Let there be no strife, I pray thee, between me and thee, and between my herdmen and thy herdmen. Is not the whole land before thee? As you can be edified and happy anywhere, go with your companion to the church to which he or she must go or be miserable.

Remark the third: If both the married couple are very strong in their sectarianism, let them attend the different churches preferred. It is not necessary that you attend the same church. Religion is between your conscience and your God. Like Abram and Lot, agree to suffer. When on Sabbath morning you come out of your home together and one goes one way and the other the other, heartily wish each other a good sermon and a time of profitable devotion, and when you meet again at the noonday repast let it be evident, each to each and to your children and to the hired help, that you have both been on the Mount of Transfiguration although you went up by different paths, and that you have both been fed by the bread of life, though kneaded by different hands in different trays and baked in different ovens. "But how about the children?" I am often asked by scores of parents. Let them also make their own choice. They will grow up with reverence for both the denominations represented by father and mother if you by holy lives commend those denominations. If the father lives the better life, they will have the more favorable opinion of his denomination And some day both the parents will for at least one service, go to the same church. The neighbors will say: "I wonder what is going on to-day, for I saw our neighbor and his wife, who always go to different churches, going arm in arm to the same sanctuary?" Well, I will tell you what has brought them arm in arm to the same altar. Something very important has happened. Their son is standing in the aisle, taking the vows of a Christian. He has been somewhat wayward and gave father and mother a good deal of anxiety, but their prayers have been answered in his conversion, and as he stands in the aisle and the minister of religion says: "Do you consecrate yourself to the God who made and redeemed you, and do you promise to serve Him all your days?" and with manly voice he answers: "I do," there is an April shower in the pew where father and mother sit and a rainbow of joy with arches both their souls that makes all the difference of creed indifferential. And the daughter, who has been very worldly and gay and thoughtless, puts her life on the altar of consecration, and as the sunlight of that Sabbath streams through the church window and falls upon her brow and cheek she looks like their other daughter, whose face was illuminated with the brightness of another world on the day when the Lord took her into His heavenly keeping years ago.

I should not wonder if, after all, these parents pass the evening of their life in the same church, all differences of church preference overcome by the joy of being in the house of God where their children were prepared for usefulness and Heaven. But I can give the cue for ruining your children. Angrily contend in the household that your church be right and the church of your companion is wrong. Bring sneer and caricature to emphasize your opinions, and your children will make up their minds that religion is a sham, and they will have none of it. In the northeast storm of domestic controversy the rose of Sharon and the lily of the valley will not grow. Fight about apostolic succession, fight about election and free agency, fight about baptism, fight about the bishopric, fight about gown and surplice, and the religious prospect of your children will be left dead on the field. You will be as unfortunate as Charles, duke of Burgundy, who in battle lost a diamond the value of a kingdom, for in your fight you will lose the jewel of salvation for your entire household. This is nothing against the advocacy of your own religious theories. Use all forcible argument, bring all telling illustration, array all demonstrative facts, but let there be no acerbity, no stinging retort, no mean insinuation, no supercilliousness, as though all others were wrong and you infallibly right.

But do not reject Christianity, as many do, because there are so many sects. Standing in Westminster hotel, London, I looked out of the window and saw three clocks, as near as I can remember — one on the parliament house, another on St. Margaret's chapel, another on Westminster abbey — and they were all different. One said 12 o'clock at noon, another said five minutes before 12, another said five minutes after 12. I might as well have concluded that there is no such thing as time because the three timepieces were different as for you to conclude that there is no such thing as pure Christianity because the churches differ in their statement of it.

But let us all rejoice that, although part of our family may worship on earth in one church and part in another church or bowed at the same altar in a compromise of preferences, we are, if redeemed, on the way to a perfect church, where all our preferences will be fully gratified. Great cathedral of eternity, with arches of amethysts and pillars of sapphire, with floors of emerald and windows aglow with the sunrise of Heaven! What stupendous towers, with chimes angel hoisted and angel rung! What myriads of worshipers, white robed and coroneted! What an officiator at the altar, even "the great High Priest of our profession!" What walls, hung with the captured shields and flags, by the church militant passed up to the church triumphant! What doxologies of all nations! Coronet to coronet, cymbal to cymbal, harp to harp, organ to organ! Pull out the tremulant stop to recall the sufferings past! Pull out the trumpet stop to recall the victory!

When shall these eyes Thy Heaven built walls
And pearly gates behold.
Thy bulwarks, with salvation strong,
And streets of shining gold?

Pretty girls, as a rule, are not fit for much else.—Atchison Globe.

A RESULT OF DINGLEYISM.

Tariff Troubles That Have Been Engendered Between the United States and Canada.

Washington dispatches are very severe on Canada just now because the Canadian government has imposed some pretty harsh regulations on Americans who have been dabbling in business on the other side of the line. There is also wrath in Washington because Canada stands in the way of the settlement of the boundary dispute between Alaska and British territory. Washington is full of threats of retaliation against the Canadians for their insolence in trying to interfere with the business plans of our lumber kings. It is said that:

"The treasury department will take a prominent part in the dispute between Canada and the United States, and within a short time a commercial war will be waging between the two. Canada has prohibited the exportation of logs from the province of Ontario. Its object is to force American sawmills this side the line along the border to relocate in Canada near the source of supply of forest products. To meet this Secretary Gage, at the instance of the state department, is preparing a retaliatory measure, to force the Canadians to terms. It will begin with the issuance of an order prohibiting the importation of Canadian logs into the United States, and may be extended until Canada and this country are involved in retaliatory commercial war affecting all products.

"The attitude of Canada was considered at a meeting of the cabinet, and the grant of the state department was approved. It is the opinion of cabinet members that Canada will have to be brought to terms before there can be any further efforts to peaceably settle the mooted questions, and that retaliation is the quickest method."

It is quite probable that the short-sighted policy of retaliation will be adopted. The blind believers in the efficacy of the tariff to do all things are in the saddle at Washington. They believe that the tariff can be made a club to beat rivals. They do not recognize the fact that the present trouble is the result of the club rebounding on their own heads. The Canadian hostility is the result of our mistaken policy of Dingleyism. We were going to club Canada. But the people across the line discovered a way to make the club react, and they are doing it. We put a duty on Canadian lumber to "protect" American lumbering interests. Canada puts an export duty on logs and says: "If you want our lumber you must saw it on this side." According to the Washington policy this would be high statesmanship on the part of Canada. But Washington is going to "retaliate" on Canada for "protecting" her own industries. But as sure as we do it the club will react again on our own heads. We will be merely going deeper into the mire than we now are. The pernicious Dingley tariff is at the bottom of the difficulty between the United States and Canada. If we meet Canada on the basis of fair reciprocity instead of on the basis of retaliation by a stronger nation upon a weaker one, there would be no delay in settling the difference between the two countries. To what pernicious lengths the tariff evil can penetrate is aptly illustrated by the present situation between this country and our northern neighbor.—Utica Observer.

OPINIONS AND POINTERS.

——"Civil service reform," remarks the Watertown Standard, "seems to go steady by jerks." That last jerk which McKinley gave it nearly broke its neck.—Albany Argus.

——President McKinley has made a grave blunder in his latest executive order, and has disheartened the friends of good government by taking the backward step he pledged himself, his party and the country not to take.—Philadelphia Ledger.

——Some of the republican editors are laboring hard with coats off and electric fans going, to prove that the president's recent order is really another advance step in civil service reform, but the republican spoilsmen are getting upon their chairs and howling with delight.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

——The condition of politics in Ohio is strikingly illustrated in the announcement of the results of the Columbus convention. The public is informed that "G. K. Nash, the favorite of Senator Hanna, was nominated for governor," and "I. A. Caldwell, the favorite of George B. Cox, was nominated for lieutenant governor." Nothing is said in the entire report as to the desire of the people.—Kansas City Star.

HANNA'S DECLARATIONS.

Republicans Are Getting Ready to Draw in Their Lines on the Trust Question.

Senator Hanna, having conciliated opposition in his own party in his own state, not this time "with an ax," but with the making of some 1,400 promises to give opponents that many federal jobs recently released from civil service rules by McKinley, now comes forward with the announcement that the matter of trusts is by no means a political question.

With a fine grasp of the situation Hanna serves notice on all those who oppose the trusts, and especially on all democrats, that this matter "cannot be made a party issue."

With splendid hypocrisy, Mark Hanna says that the next republican national convention will meet this question fearlessly and intelligently, "without the hysteria of prejudice and popularism, but with due regard to the actual effects of these combinations upon labor and competition. That platform will not declare for confiscation or repudiation. It will carefully differentiate between the combinations that reduce the price of commodities to the consumers and those that seek to limit production, thus increasing prices and diminishing the opportunities for labor."

No doubt Hanna is correct. The republican national convention will meet the trust question just as "fearlessly" and just as "intelligently" as the St. Louis republican convention met the question of bimetallism and of civil service.

And after it has thus "fearlessly and intelligently" met the trust question, if it secures votes enough to put it in power, the republican party will "fearlessly and intelligently" break every sacred promise made concerning trusts.

It is astonishing how this sort of hypocritical cant manages to fool the people. It won victory for the republican party in 1896 and the same tactics are to be followed in 1900.

How voters can believe for one moment the men who lied to them three years ago, who have broken every promise made them whenever political expediency seemed to demand such perfidy, is a question which must remain a puzzle.

That the republicans are preparing to hedge on the trust question is evident from Hanna's declarations. Will the people allow this arch trickster to fool them again and yet again? It is to be hoped that they will not, but hope seems almost vain in the light of past experiences.—Chicago Democrat.

TEACHING THE DOCILE BEAST A NEW TRICK.

The Philippine Outlook.

President McKinley is facing a very serious difficulty in the definitely acknowledged necessity for the sending of additional troops to the Philippines and the confessed likelihood that the war in these islands is to be protracted far beyond the time limit set by even the most apprehensive persons at its beginning. It now seems extremely probable that before the war is ended there will be a call for volunteers to supplement the full strength of the regular commands available for use in the Philippines campaign. There is no question as to the promptness with which such a call would meet with a satisfactory response. The national pride of the people of the United States will make this response certain. But it will not silence adverse criticism of bungling methods responsible for the war. With the rainy season in the tropics now intervening to check the movements of the American army, it is virtually certain that the war will be prolonged into the presidential campaign opening next spring, and that its conduct and the causes leading to such a situation will figure very largely in that campaign. This prospect must be anything but satisfactory to the administration.—St. Louis Republic.

——To placate the spoilsmen President McKinley has violated the pledges of the platform upon which he was elected in 1896. He may gain the support of some who are spoils hungry, and for a time may close the mouths of Gen. Grosvenor and the other spoilsmen of his party who are bitterly opposed to the merit system. To placate this element, however, the president should beware lest he offend grievously those who regard the spoils system as one of the greatest evils of our political institutions.—Baltimore Sun.

SCHOOL AND CHURCH.

There are 3,750,000 persons in London who never enter a place of worship.

There are in the United States over 50 distinct secret orders, with more than 70,000 lodges and 5,000,000 members.

The state of education in Russia may be judged from the fact that there is only one village school for every 12,000 persons.

The following are the number of chaplains to each denomination in the British army: Church of England, 314; Presbyterian, 153; Roman Catholic, 288; Wesleyan, 153; Baptist, 5. Total, 913.

In the course of 17 years—from 1882 to 1899—the late Frederick F. Thompson gave Williams college gifts to the value of $265,000. The gifts ranged in variety from a gymnasium clock to a handsome new laboratory building.

A Detroit woman, whose name is not made public, has given the University of Michigan $10,000 to endow a chair "to be occupied by some woman of acknowledged ability." The donor's letter to the trustees places no restriction on the character of the professorship except that it is not to deal with athletics in any form.

It is proposed to change the name of Wesleyan to Grace college, one of the reasons advanced in behalf of the change being that "there are between 25 and 50 'Wesleyan' institutions of academic or collegiate grade, for male or female students, which makes the statement that one is an undergraduate or alumnus of Wesleyan decidedly ambiguous and indeterminate." It is pointed out that Trinity, once known as Washington college, was distinctly benefited by a change of name.

POSE AS PREACHERS.

South Carolina Darkies Are Fond of Dressing to Look Like Ministers.

Deputy Sheriff Jennings, of Charleston, S. C., went down to the county jail the other day to release a negro prisoner who had been sent there from the district court to serve a short sentence for tampering with the mails. The negro was past middle age and was known as an amateur class leader on Sundays, when he was not in the clutches of the law. When the prison rags were removed the negro donned some old summer clothes, and Mr. Jennings told him to come along and he would set him up to a brand new suit. The negro was happy. He walked along behind the sheriff to a second-class clothing store.

"Now look over the stock," said Mr. Jennings, "and pick out a suit to your liking."

The negro could not find anything. Finally he called Mr. Jennings aside.

"Boss," said he, "should you hab no objections I would like to hab a minister's suit. I kin put up a better front wid de preacher's weeds, an' dey can't tell I hab bin in de jug."

He got the minister's garb and went away happy.

The efforts made by many negroes to affect the air and ways of a minister are often amusing. In the Lake City lynching trial the other day a witness was called; "Johnny Braveboy," cried a deputy, and a small, black, bullet-head negro walked in. His coat was a cross between a cutaway and a frock. On the stand he made a statement of what he knew about the lynching, and then he was dismissed by the counsel for the defense on the cross-examination.

"You are a preacher, aren't you?" asked Lawyer Legare.

"Sometimes I nm, boss," replied the negro.

"Well, aren't you the same preacher who left the pulpit one Sunday night to fight the class leader in the amen corner?"

"I nm de same, boss."

"Well, didn't the class leader bite off your finger?"

"No, boss; I bit off his'n. You know de fight could not be got around. De leader he tried to saw my thum' wid his teeth, but I hab de honor to say to de court dat I bit off de class leader's finger. No, sir, boss, I did not get a scratch."—N. Y. Sun.

WHY SAILORS QUARREL.

Sudden Freedom from Restraint on Shore Leave Induces Blitheness.

The list of casualties in the fight between Admiral Sampson's sailors and Jamnica boatmen at Kingston was greater than the losses of the American navy in the battles off Santiago and Manila, which proves that rocks and clubs and angry fists may be used with deadlier effect than 11-inch guns and armor-piercing shells.

The reason that American sailors and marines are inclined to fight in foreign ports is—first, that they are restrained from indulging in liquor on board ship, and, second, because it is the time-honored rule of the navy to fight anybody, anywhere, at the drop of the hat. There is always a convenient cause for combat when the sailor of marine lands, after an enforced abstinence from rum and succeeding tedium of a long cruise or voyage.

There does not seem to be any way to remedy this condition unless it would be to take into the navy only persons of decorous conduct and abstemious habits, which would probably weaken the efficacy of warships in battle. Or a reform might be brought about by paying the sailors and marines from $75 to $100 a month, and then require good behavior on pain of being discharged. But that would make the navy cost so much that even the United States couldn't stand the expense. But it is certain that men penned up in ships for months and deprived of intoxicants are bound to enjoy themselves by looking for trouble when they go ashore.—Kansas City Star.

A SLIP SOMEWHERE.

As a newspaper man, I had been through the jail at Black Hill with the sheriff, and he had introduced me to Dan Needham, who was charged with stage-robbing and killing. Dan didn't look fierce enough, according to my way of thinking, for such a terrible man as they made him out to be, but there was proof sufficient to hang him. We were sitting on the steps outside, when a body of 40 men rode up. As the leader dismounted he said to the sheriff:

"Well, Joe, you got Dan Deedham in here, haven't you?"

"Yes, had him three days," was the reply.

"We've come to hang him."

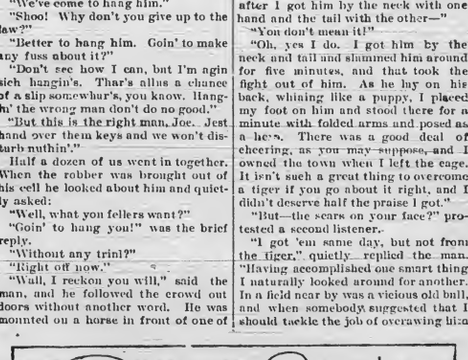
"Shoo! Why don't you give up to the law?"

"Better to hang him. Goin' to make any fuss about it?"

"Don't see how I can, but I'm agin sich hangin'. Thar's allus a chance of a slip somewhur's, you know. Hangin' the wrong man don't do no good."

"But this is the right man, Joe. Jest hand over them keys and we won't disturb nuthin'."

Half a dozen of us went in together. When the robber was brought out of his cell he looked about him and quietly asked:



"Well, what you fellers want?"

"Goin' to hang you!" was the brief reply.

"Without any trial?"

"Right off now."

"Wall, I reckon you will," said the man, and he followed the crowd out doors without another word. He was mounted on a horse in front of one of the men, taken two miles out of town and hanged to a limb. Some of the citizens who went out came back at the end of an hour and reported, adding that the victim was perfectly cool and made no protests. This was at 11 o'clock in the morning. At three in the afternoon five tough-looking men rode into town and up to the jail. As the sheriff came out one of them said:

Goin' To Make Any Fuss About It

"Mebbe you've got a man in thar' who calls hisself Dan Needham?"

"I had one, but they took him out and hung him this morning," was the reply.

"Then they hung the wrong man."

"I told 'em they might be making a mistake."

"I am Dan Needham as sure's your born."

"Shoo! Shoo! Jest went and hung the wrong man!"

"They did that. I was passing by, and thought I'd stop and tell you. If the crowd comes back, give 'em my love."

The sheriff watched the gang out of sight and then turned and brought his fist down into the palm of his hand and exclaimed:

"I say it ain't k'reet! Hangin' is all right if you happen to git hold of the right man, but if you hang a man who don't deserve to be hung, then it ain't he square, fair thing, and I'll allus kick to it that it ain't. It ain't law, to begin with; and it ain't justice, to go further; and last of all, it surprises and injures the feelin's of the man who gets hung, and makes out that he didn't have no square show."

HE FAILED ON THE BULL.

The man with the claw-marks on his face and the lobe of his left ear gone felt that he was an object of curiosity to the group, and after a time he said:

"I made a fool of myself, and my case should be a warning to all young men. I was traveling with a lightning-rod outfit through western Ohio when we struck a small town in which a circus was exhibiting. There were only five or six animals in the menagerie part, and one of those was a tiger in a cage by itself. All hands of us had been drinking a little too much that day, and as we visited the circus and stood before that tiger we began to dare each other to poke him up. I finally offered to bet $25 even up that I would enter the cage and remain five minutes."

"You must have been a very reckless man," observed one of his listeners.

"Well, I was 25 years old and full of whisky, and you know what that means. A dozen different men offered to take the bet, and I thought it would be the smartest trick of my life to win it. The circus folks opposed the idea, of course, but there were enough of us outsiders to hold them off, and we did so. I took another drink, peeled off my coat, and next minute I was in the cage with that Bengal tiger."

"Good lands! And how did he receive you?"

"Well, he did a heap of growling on the first go-off, and everybody expected to see me torn to pieces. However, after I got him by the neck with one hand and the tail with the other—"

"You don't mean it!"

"Oh, yes I do. I got him by the neck and tail and slammed him around for five minutes, and that took the fight out of him. As he lay on his back, whining like a puppy, I placed my foot on him and stood there for a minute with folded arms and posed as a hero. There was a good deal of cheering, as you may suppose, and I owned the town when I left the cage. It isn't such a great thing to overcome a tiger if you go about it right, and I didn't deserve half the praise I got."

"But—the scars on your face?" protested a second listener.

"I got 'em same day, but not from the tiger," quietly replied the man. "Having accomplished one smart thing I naturally looked around for another. In a field near by was a vicious old bull, and when somebody suggested that I should tackle the job of overawing him I was ready at once. To do the thing up brown I decked myself out in red, and carried a red flag in either hand. As I got into the field I made straight for the bull, and for a minute or so he must have thought himself dreaming. I was within 30 feet of him, and looking for him to turn tail, when—when he didn't turn."

"How do you mean?"

"I mean that he uttered a bellow that shook the earth for four miles around and lowered his head and came for me. I started across lots for a town 16 miles away, but was pitched up on the old fellow's horns and tossed through a barbed wire fence."

"And the tiger didn't claw you?"

"No."

"And the bull didn't cripple you?"

"No."

"And you got those wounds on a plebeian barbed wire fence?"

"Just so. Sorry it was that way when I had set out to be a hero, but I couldn't help myself. Perhaps it was just as well, however. If I'd conquered that bull I was going to tackle a kicking mule, and I'd have been laid out for sure!"

A Change for the Better.

When Mr. George Davidson took charge of the Red Lion saloon last month he quietly hinted that he would introduce eastern ways and methods to a considerable extent. He has carried out his promise, and we take pleasure in noting the change for the better. His bartenders are quiet and civil-spoken, and no clubs or revolvers are seen lying around loose. All callers are treated like gentlemen, and the moral atmosphere of the place at once has an effect. Now and then it becomes necessary to eject some vulgar individual, but it is done quietly and without any attempt to break his back or drive him head-first through a wall. One hears no brawling about the place, and nothing is said to the man who calls for two flagers of whisky and so far forgets himself as to pour out four. We trust that others of our saloonists may observe and follow suit. There should be at least four places in a town of this size where a gentleman can drop in for an appetizer and feel as safe as in the bosom of his family.

The finding of an extraordinarily large opal is reported from Winton, Queensland. The value of the opal is between $35,000 and $50,000.

GULCH GOSSIP

Social and Other Happenings at Giveadam Gulch.

By M. QUAD. Copyright, 1898.

In order that no mistakes may be made or blunders committed we deem it best to announce right here and now that the editor of the Arizona Kicker, who is ourself, will continue to lead the social world at Giveadam Gulch in the future as in the past. There was a rumor afloat around town last week that we intended to withdraw from society this winter and devote our evenings to the game of seven-up, but our friends need pay no attention to such gossip. We have had our dress-suit cleaned up, patched and reburnished, our white shirt lengthened and overhauled, and we shall introduce several Chicago and St. Louis ideas into the high teas and card parties to be held among our elite. Our new way of tucking a blue-bordered table napkin down behind a red-spotted necktie is just too swagger for anything, and other pleasant surprises will be sprung as time goes on and opportunity admits.

The "G. G." Idea.

We regret to announce that Mrs. Col. Anderson, Mrs. Judge Truefoot and two or three other female leaders of our town society are out with address cards in which the letters "G. G." are substituted for Giveadam Gulch. This looks to us like cutting things rather too fine. The man who founded this town was old Dave Coppinger. He was a man of noble sentiments, and in naming the place was actuated by lofty patriotism. Here was a spot where the sun always shone, and the grass was green for ten months in the year. Cussaway creek brought down the mountain's water as pure as pearls, and the soil needed only to be scratched with a stick to grow beautiful crops. Old Dave put up a shanty, killed a bear, and as he looked around him he decided that it was a paradise on earth, and that he didn't give a dam for any other locality short of heaven. It pains us that any of our people should go back on an honest name, and one which signifies so much. While "G. G." stands for Giveadam Gulch, the letters also stand for "Great Guns" and several other things, and are calculated to mystify a stranger. Let us have no feeling of false pride about this thing. Giveadam Gulch is euphonious, expressive and significant. It is a name you can dwell on. It strikes the ear of a stranger with no uncertain sound. Any attempt to change it to "Roseville" or "Daisyville" would simply mix up our saloons and poker rooms and set society back for half a century.

Social Jottings.

Mrs. Brutus Johnson returned from Florence Sunday evening, after a two weeks' visit to her sister, and it is understood that she will give at least six hops during the winter. Gossip also has it that she has a new receipt for hair-dye which makes an old gold color in one night.

We regret to announce that Maj. Callahan, who acted as floor manager at so many cotillions last winter, will not be with us this season. He intended to return from Salt Lake last week, but through some irregularity in handling public funds he will be "detained" for a year or two.

John Q. Jones, the architect, informed us the other day that he had no less than five orders for stairways on Cochise place to replace old-fashioned ladders. The day will soon be here when all our best residences will be provided with these conveniences, and the ladder relegated to the past.

Mrs. Jack Thompson arrived here the other day on a visit to Mrs. John Hepworth, and may remain for a month. She speaks three different languages, kills rattlesnakes with a club, and is the only woman in the territory who can skin to the top of an 80-foot tree without getting dizzy-headed.

It All Depends.

It looks now as if there was to be a boom in theatricals on this circuit this season, as most of the dates are filled, but still a good deal depends on the managers of the various companies. Our people want what they want in the theatrical line, and will have nothing else. Managers who want crowded houses and barrels of money will consult the taste of the public instead of their own convenience. We want Shakespearean plays, but we want them with variations. Shakespeare probably never heard of a sand-jig or a clog-dance, and none of his heroines were ever carried off by Indians, but that was his misfortune instead of being our fault. Hamlet can just as well be mixed up with a few fancy dances and whoop-la songs as to keep him in the grave-digging business all the evening, and a boxing match between the two Dromios would not hurt the play for any other town, while tickling our people most to death. Uncle Tom's Cabin has always taken well when the managers heeded our fatherly advice. Uncle Tom and Little Eva must be cut short and a stage coach hold-up dragged in to give the boys a chance to enthuse. When the "Lady of Lyons" was here a year ago we suggested that the heroine be captured by Apaches and rescued by cowboys, and the manager had the sense to adopt the idea. The result was a bag of dollars which he could hardly lift into the stage. The theater is an educator of the people, and Giveadam Gulch is proud of its snug little hall and of the combinations which travel this circuit, but the manager who goes contrary to the idioms of our people will meet with misfortune and have only himself to blame.

A good Arabian horse can canter in the desert for 24 hours in summer and 48 hours in winter without drinking.

AN OUTING PARADISE.

Long Island is an undiscovered country to a great number of people. Very few realize that the little line shown on the large map is one hundred and thirty-four miles long and of varying widths up to twenty-five miles. Few realize that it was the first section of the United States settled by colonists from both England and Holland, and that their towns are to-day full of picturesque houses, beautiful avenues of trees, in fact with all the inland beauties and in addition the various attractions of the seashore.

While the South Shore for a portion of its length is almost level, the North Shore is hilly and heavily wooded. Every portion of the island is well suited for man's abiding place. It has in a most marked degree the three great necessities of life and civilization, Good Air, Good Water and Good Roads. The western section (Queens and Nassau Counties) is crossed in every direction by the best of macadam roads; six hundred miles having been built within three years. The eastern end of Suffolk County has excellent roads consisting of macadam, gravel, shell and country roads running through the woods or along the shore. Fishing, hunting, driving, yachting, cycling and golfing are all indulged in under most perfect conditions.

A NEW EXPERIENCE.

Phebe Ann Was Greatly Worried Over the Actions of the Trees and Houses.

She is only a little black pickaninny who lives down in Georgia. She is under a dozen years in age and until a short time ago had passed all of her life on a rural plantation. Trains and their attendant movements were utterly unknown. Indeed, what Phebe Ann knew of anything outside of that plantation would not make the beginning of a primer. She was being educated for a house servant and hence was not permitted to roam to any great extent. She was busy about the big house all day and at night retired to the shack set apart for her family.

Along in the season, for some good reason, it became necessary for the family to move into a city. The little negro girl was wanted, for she had much skill in soothing the children were of the heir to the estate. So it was decided that she must accompany the expedition. From the time she entered the carriage to ride to the railway station Phebe Ann was in a state of suppressed excitement. She sat beside "Miss Amy," as she called her mistress, and with staring eyes took in all that passed without comment.

When she was taken into the train her wonderment was amusing. She sat ginger's on the cushions, looked out of the window and generally seemed uncertain concerning the possibilities of the future. She was silent until the train commenced to move. Then her fear took shape. She saw the landscape passing rapidly before her and her eyes filled, her lip quivered and she sniffed audibly.

"What's the matter, Phebe Ann?" asked her mistress.

"Oh, Miss Amy," wailed the pickanning, "whah all dem houses and trees a-goin' at?"

A rent on the floor was the only means possible to quiet the fears of the child.—Chicago Chronicle.

An Irritating Phrase.

"Are you seriously ill?" asked the well meaning friend. "Oh, no," answered the dyspeptic, with a jarring, sarcastic laugh. "I hurt all over and don't care whether the sun rises tomorrow or not. But I'm not seriously ill. I'm jocosely, flippantly and facetiously ill. I'm going through all the symptoms, but don't mean one of them."—Washington Star.

His Practice.

"Say, you knew Deacon Hardway's boy Hen, who went up to the city to study medicine, didn't you?"

"Oh, yes; I knowed Hen well. What about him?"

"He killed himself day before yesterday."

"You don't say! What was the matter? Couldn't he git no outside practice?"—Chicago Times-Herald.

It should be remembered to the everlasting credit of men that when a woman becomes famous, no men claim that they were once engaged to her.—Atchison Globe.

Figures may not lie, but estimates are often misleading.—Chicago Daily News.

THE MARKETS.

CINCINNATI, June 12.

LIVE STOCK—Cattle, common	$2 50	@ 4 25
Select shippers	4 50	@ 4 85
CALVES—Fair to good light	6 25	@ 6 75
HOGS—Common and heavy	3 25	@ 3 60
Mixed packers	3 75	@ 3 85
Light shippers	3 75	@ 3 80
SHEEP—Choice	3 25	@ 3 85
LAMBS—Spring	6 50	@ 7 00
FLOUR—Winter patent	3 90	@ 3 75
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 red		70
No. 3 red		68
Corn—No. 2 mixed		29
Oats—No. 2		23½
Rye—No. 2		45
HAY—Prime to choice	11 00	@ 11 50
PROVISIONS—Mess pork		@ 9 50
Lard		@ 4 77½
BUTTER—Choice dairy		@ 11
Prime to choice creamery		@ 20
APPLES—Fancy, per bbl	4 00	@ 4 50
POTATOES—New, per ½ bbl	1 15	@ 1 25

CHICAGO.

FLOUR—Winter patent	3 65	@ 3 75
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 red		72½ @ 73½
No. 3 Chicago spring		71 @ 74½
CORN—No. 2		33½ @ 34½
OATS—No. 2		@ 29
PORK—Mess	7 15	@ 8 05
LARD—Steam	4 80	@ 4 92½

NEW YORK.

FLOUR—Winter patent	3 90	@ 4 00
WHEAT—No. 2 red		68 @ 68½
CORN—No. 2 mixed	41	@ 41½
RYE		@ 64½
OATS—Mixed	31½	@ 31
PORK—Mess	8 25	@ 8 75
LARD—Western	4 5	@ 4 59

BALTIMORE.

FLOUR—Family	3 35	@ 3 60
GRAIN—Wheat, No. 2 red	76½	@ 76½
Southern	71	@ 76
Corn—Mixed	37	@ 37½
Oats—No. 2 white	30	@ 30½
Rye—No. 2 wes ern	56	@ 62½
CATTLE—Prime quality	4 00	@ 4 90
HOGS—Western	4 00	@ 4 15

INDIANAPOLIS.

GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 red		72½
Corn—No. 2 mixed		32½
Oats—No. 2 mixed		25½

LOUISVILLE.

FLOUR—Winter patent	3 75	@ 4 00
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 red		68 73
Corn—Mixed		35 @ 35½
Oats—Mixed		25 30
PORK—Mess		@ 10 00
LARD—Steam		@ 4 87½

MISSING THE JUBILEE.

There Was One Woman Who Seemed to Be Ignorant of the Fact That Peace Had Come.

It was in the midst of the peace jubilee and the editor was the busiest individual in town, but the visitor got in on him, and, what was worse, sat down and showed by his signs of remaining, none of which the editor encouraged.

"Excuse me," said the visitor of his own volition, "but can't I ask you an important question?"

"What is it?" responded the editor, without looking up from his work, which is always a sign that anybody ought to understand.

"Ain't this a peace jubilee we're having in this town?"

"It certainly is."

"And the peace jubilee is a celebration of peace, ain't it?"

"Exactly."

"And peace means that war is off, don't it?"

"Of course it does."

"And that the olive branch is hanging low, and that everybody is falling on everybody else's neck, and that everybody is glad the war clouds have rolled by, and that good fellowship is now prevailing everywhere, and that every bosom throbs responsive to the gentle coo of the dove, and that everybody is wearing white wings, and that there won't be any more scraps, and that everybody is kissing and making up; it means that, don't it?"

"Exactly," responded the editor, pleased to discover so comprehensive a knowledge from such an unsuspected quarter.

"I thought so," said the visitor, rising. "I'll go back home and tell my wife about it. When I left there an hour ago I don't believe she knew it had happened. Good-morning." And the visitor went out before the editor had time to extend his sympathy.—Washington Star.

The United States a Power for Good.

A distinguished historian writes, while referring to this nation's advent as a colonizing power, that we represent the "century's political conscience," and that our influence for good over European spheres will be immense. This result was just as inevitable as is the cure which follows the use of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, the great remedy which is found in every home and drug store throughout the country. It cures indigestion, constipation, overworked kidney and liver, allays nervousness, and tones up the whole system.

Overheard in a Cemetery.

Boyle—I am strongly opposed to cremation. I think it is carrying things entirely too far.

Coyle—How so?

"We would then be compelled not only to earn our living but to urn our dead."—N. Y. World.

A Dainty Summer Bath.

For a refreshing summer bath use soft water. Make a dozen or more cheese cloth bags. Fill them with oat meal, and finely-shaved Ivory Soap, add a little powdered orris root, mix well, and tie up securely. One bag in a tub full of warm water will make a delightful, cleansing bath, and render the skin soft and smooth as velvet.

ELIZA R. PARKER.

Diagnosing Her Case.

He—If I were rich, darling, would you love me more than you do?

She—I might not love you any more, Henry, but I know I would look forward to our wedding day with a degree of impatience that never seems to possess me at present.—Chicago Evening News.

You Can Get Allen's Foot-Ease FREE.

Write to-day to Allen S. Olmsted, LeRoy, N. Y., for a FREE sample of Allen's Foot-Ease, a powder to shake into your shoes. It cures sweating, hot, swollen, callous, aching feet. It makes tight shoes easy. Cures Corns, Bunions and Ingrowing Nails. All druggists and shoe stores sell it. 25 cents.

God help me to keep from under the thumb of the man who rigidly observes the letter of the law, but who has no conception of its spirit.—Virginia Etchings.

For stockings and mittens for the children, dye the wool with Putnam Fadeless Dyes, Scarlet, Cardinal or Turkey red. Each time you wash them makes them brighter.

If one friend's advice doesn't suit you, keep on asking your friends until one gives the kind you want.—Atchison Globe.

Piso's Cure is a wonderful Cough medicine.—Mrs. W. Pickert, Van Salen and Blake Aves., Brooklyn, N. Y., Oct. 26, '94.

Some people demand that the world not only be patient with their foolishness, but that it applaud.—Atchison Globe.

Hall's Catarrh Cure

Is a Constitutional Cure. Price, 75c.

Some smart men are fools for revenue only.—Chicago Daily News.

When a river has a run on its banks it floats a lot of stock.—L. A. W. Bulletin.

Does Your Head Ache?

Are your nerves weak? Can't you sleep well? Pain in your back? Lack energy? Appetite poor? Digestion bad? Boils or pimples? These are sure signs of poisoning.

From what poisons? From poisons that are always found in constipated bowels.

If the contents of the bowels are not removed from the body each day, as nature intended, these poisonous substances are sure to be absorbed into the blood, always causing suffering and frequently causing severe disease.

There is a common sense cure.

AYER'S PILLS

They daily insure an easy and natural movement of the bowels.

You will find that the use of

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

with the pills will hasten recovery. It cleanses the blood from all impurities and is a great tonic to the nerves.

Write the Doctor.

Our Medical Department has one of the most eminent physicians in the United States. Tell the doctor just how you are suffering. You will receive the best medical advice without cost. Address,

DR. J. C. AYER,
Lowell, Mass.

"Arkansas Valley Truth"

Is an illustrated Journal describing the Varied Resources of the Arkansas Valley in eastern Colorado.

Here are successfully raised, by irrigation, great quantities of fruits, grains and alfalfa.

Crops are Sure and profitable, and climate exceptionally healthful.

Write for free copy of "Truth," also for information about home-seekers' excursion tickets.

Address General Passenger Office,
The Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Railway,
CHICAGO.

READERS OF THIS PAPER DESIRING TO BUY ANYTHING ADVERTISED IN ITS COLUMNS SHOULD INSIST UPON HAVING WHAT THEY ASK FOR, REFUSING ALL SUBSTITUTES OR IMITATIONS.

Whiskers Dyed
A Natural Black by
Buckingham's Dye.

Price 50 cents of all druggists or R. P. Hall & Co., Nashua, N. H.

A. N. K.—E 1765

WHEN WRITING TO ADVERTISERS please state that you saw the Advertisement in this paper.

WINCHESTER

Factory Loaded Shotgun Shells.

"LEADER" loaded with Smokeless powder and "NEW RIVAL" loaded with Black powder. Superior to all other brands for UNIFORMITY, RELIABILITY AND STRONG SHOOTING QUALITIES.

Winchester Shells are for sale by all dealers. Insist upon having them when you buy and you will get the best.

SAPOLIO

LIKE A GOOD TEMPER, "SHEDS A BRIGHTNESS EVERYWHERE."

DR. MOFFETT'S TEETHINA
TEETHING POWDERS

Aids Digestion, Regulates the Bowels, Makes Teething Easy. TEETHINA Relieves the Bowel Troubles of Children or Any Age.

Costs Only 25 Cents. Ask Your Druggist for It.

BOONE CO., RECORDER.

Wednesday, June 10, 1899.

Advertising Rates:
One inch, one time.....$1.00
Each additional time.....25
Obituaries, Tributes of Respects or notices of a like nature, per inch .50

W. L. RIDDELL. - - Publisher.

We are authorized to announce J. W. KENNEDY, of Union, as a candidate for the Legislature, subject to the action of the Democratic party.

Neighborhood News.

Richwood.

The literary club meets next Friday at the residence of Mr. Robt. Chambers, at Kensington.

Mr. Hicks is frequently seen riding about for exercise and is gradually regaining his activity.

Misses Sarah Bedinger, Minnie Hudson, Sallie Hicks and Mattie Davis have returned home from Bellewood Seminary, and their friends are glad to welcome them.

The strawberry festival at the Richwood Manse on Friday night, was largely attended. Every one seemed to have a good time and the affair was a success financially.

Francesville.

We have been blessed with good rains recently.

What has become of our Mouudfield correspondent?

Harry Kilgour and others, of this place, attended the show at Hebron, Friday night.

Miss Cordelia Craven's school will close on Tuesday the 13th, with an entertainment.

Miss Magdaline Brown is staying with her aunt, Mrs. Jim Brown, of Utzinger, who has been quite sick.

The families of J. W. Watts, Wm. Graves and Templeton Gaines spent a very pleasant day with Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Cropper, of North Bend.

Utzinger.

The growing tobacco was never fluer. John Jones has the lead so far.

Mrs. Elizabeth Huey, of Union, is visiting relatives here.

Mrs. R. C. Gaines and Virginia, returned after a two weeks' visit to the blue grass region.

The farmers are at a loss now to lay in their usual complaints as there is no line of their business that is not booming.

The musical entertainment at the Stevens home, Saturday evening, was the most enjoyable event of the season. The music was rendered by some of our home talent and several fine performers from Cincinnati. The instruments were their new piano and sweet toned violins.

Erlanger.

Robt. Riggs is the guest of his father, David Riggs, of Erlanger Road.

Mrs. Wm. Sexton has gone to spend a week with friends at Sherman.

Good Faith Lodge conferred the Fellow Craft degree on a candidate, last Saturday.

Bernard Holtmeier and Frank Berning and their families were the guests of Judge Morelli and wife, Sunday.

Geo. Schoepfel is erecting an elegant new house on Erlanger Road. Alouzo Victor, the contractor is making a first-class job.

St. Henry's church had a gala day Sunday, Rev. Father Kolb giving the children their first communion. The church was finely decorated and the singing excellent.

Walton.

Miss Ethel Waltz is visiting relatives in Louisville.

Miss Allie Wilson, of Bank Lick, was in town, last week.

Mrs. Beatrice Ricketts and little son, R. L., are on a visit to her sister, Mrs. Judge Botts.

Chas. Chambers and Estill Holder passed examination and were sworu into the U. S. Navy, last week.

Miss Lizzie Kipp is at home again and brought her friend, Mr. Geo. Reis, of Covington, whom she was visiting, with her for a summer trip.

Miss Mabel Bagby and Leon Pryor, of the Georgetown College, are spending their vacation at home, having passed a highly successful examination for entrance into the junior class of next year.

Rev. Isaac Selby lectured on "Superstition," last Sunday evening, at the Christian church to a large and appreciative audience. He had a debate on this subject not long ago in Cincinnati with Hon. Robt. J. Ingersoll, the noted infidel.

Gunpowder.

Children's day exercises at Hopeful the fourth Sunday at 9:30.

A large crowd attended church at Hopeful, last Sunday morning.

Mrs. Rosa Moore, of Cincinnati, was visiting Mrs. J. C Hankins, last Saturday.

The oat crop is looking well, and the recent rains will help the meadows wonderfully. Otherwise they would have been short.

A heavy rain fell here, Sunday afternoon, and the continued wet weather is putting some of the farmers back with their work.

Robert Houston, of Covington, passed through our burg, Sunday morning enronte to Verona neighborhood, to visit his father, David Houston.

M. M. Tanner and Robt. Houston delivered their tobacco to T. J. Stephens, at Erlanger, last Saturday. Mr. T. got 5½ cents per pound for all grades, except the trash, for which he got 2 cents per pound, and Mr. H. received 7 cents per pound for all grades except the trash, and 2 cents for the trash.

Your correspondent had the pleasure of attending the Sunday School Convention at Point Pleasant, last Friday, which was a grand success in all of its features. While there were a few on the program that were not present, the majority of them were there and gave very interesting talks on the subjects assigned them. One notable feature was the warm reception given us by the pastor and people, and it caused us to feel that we were welcome and were mingling with good Christian people. A bountiful dinner was spread in the church yard, to which the entire audience responded at the first call. The day was profitably spent and enjoyed by all present.

Union.

Wm. Kinney has the finest potato patch we have seen.

Harry Riley has been beautifying his home with a coat of paint.

Rev. Adams preached at the Baptist church Saturday and Sunday.

Uncle Mott Houston was thrown from his horse, Saturday, and had his leg badly bruised.

Grauville Rouse built a line of woven wire fence for Jas. Bristow this week around the gardeu.

Joseph Meyers has built a lot of new feuce arouud his garden, yard and barn lot, and the appearance of his place is much improved.

Mr. and Mrs. Elbert Rice have gone to house keepiug and seem just as happy and contented as any couple we know of in this part of the moral vineyard.

The report reached Union, Sunday that Congressman Albert S. Berry has taken up the Hardin banner and will make every effort in his power to carry it to victory.

Mr. Dunbar has been suffering with heart trouble lately, and while in Covington, recently, had a fainting spell that made him very uneasy for a few miuutes, but he is around all right again.

The following reasons were offered the other day as evidence that Geo. Smith is a successful farmer: 1st, he is a hard worker; 2nd, he has a fat bank account; 3rd, he has plenty of corn in the crib; 4th, he has a fat wheat bin to draw on when wheat is a good price.

We spent a few minutes with the RECORDER'S scribe at Beaver, Saturday, and he was hustling—horseshoeing and talking politics right along. George Sleet, jr., says any man that can deal with two as hard problems as horseshoeing and politics at the same time is a "good one" and we believe it. So here's to the RECORDER scribe at Beaver.

Union precinct will send a large delegation to Burlington, Saturday, and they will help Boone county heap honor on itself and on the party by selecting delegates to the Louisville convention, and instruct them to cast their votes for a man who wears a name that is woven into every thread of Kentucky's history by deeds of virtue and honesty; a name that is a synonim of distinctiou in soccal, political and business circles throughout the State; a name that in '95 stood pat on his principles 16 to 1, and met defeat, and for this reason and many more is the most logical candidate in the world today. If those in position to know tell the straight of it, a name that will sound well as Governor P. Wat Hardin, of Ky., Sir.

Saturday, as we were figuring on potato prospects and wondering whose watermelon patch we could cabbage a big one out of in July and "break our neck on the ice as we run away with it" (unless it was Prof. D. M. Snyder's at Bellevue,) we met our friend, Ezra Rouse, of Florence, with one eye skinned for nice larubs and the other for good roads. He congratulated us on the loss of our big toe nail and hoped the next time we threw a 75 lb. bench on our foot it would take the little toe off in place of the big one, as a little toe was not so expensive and would not hurt as bad. We thanked him kindly for the deep interest taken in our toe, and asked him if he had any items of luterest on road? He said, a good road was hard to get, but if every farmer in the county would spend a week hauling rock every year when they had nothing else to do, every road in the county would soon be a good one.

Pt. Pleasant.

Born—to Jacob Stahl and wife, on the 9th inst, a son.

Mr. Perry Allen is the popular owner of a fine new buggy.

Miss Eva Riggs, of Erlanger, is the guest of Mrs. J. W. Riggs.

Mrs. Sue Anderson, whose condition has been much worse, is better.

Mrs. Mary Walton, of Petersburg, is visiting relatives in this vicinity.

Miss Clemintine Walter was the guest of Miss Nora Rucker, last Friday night.

Mrs. Julia Stansifer and Miss Rachel Stansifer of Covington were the guests of Miss Maggie Youell Sunday.

The S. S. Convention was a decided success in every respect. A large crowd was present, in spite of the unsettled condition of the weather.

Miss Louis Souther will leave in a few days for Eminence, Ky., where she will spend several weeks with her aunt, Mrs. Dr. Jewett.

Miss Grace Russell will be the guest of Miss Minta Robluson, of Ludlow, the latter part of the week, and atteud the Y. P. S. C. E. convention held at Newport, Ky.

Flickertown.

Everybody is done setting tobacco.

Ask Jim Gaines if he knows what a parachute looks like.

Bob Paterson, of Riddell's Run, was in our town, Sunday week.

Miss May Smith has a new organ and now she wants some one to play it.

Lystra Smith had a horse to get crippled by being kicked one day last week.

Chas. Sebree had a valuable horse killed by lighting, last Thursday night.

Orin Phipps was driving Jno. Hogan's 2:30 mare to his huckster wagon, last week.

Elijah Parker, of Gasburg, was talking politics with some of our citizens, one day last week.

Mrs. Emily Rucker, of Petersburg, was visiting her sister, Mrs. Nichols, one day last week.

Leslie Nichols was taken sick at Sam Hensley's last Friday, and is not yet able to go home.

Henry Smith killed three black snakes one day last week, each measuring nearly six feet.

Everett Helms says Chess Aylor goes to Petersburg to get shaved. We suppose Everett knows.

John Laughlin's funeral will be preached at the Woolper school house next Sunday at 3 o'clock.

Judging from the way some of the young ladies have been talking to your correspondent, there has been more than one girl in this neighborhood who sent a letter to the wrong fellow.

Petersburg.

Everything down here seems a la Goebel.

The distillery is now in the hands of the trust.

Vote for Senator Goebel, the poor man's friend.

W. D. Rector has bought a new Piano binder.

Miss Cordia Rector can weave 25 yds. of carpet in one day.

A large acreage of tobacco has been set and is living nicely.

A Mr. Willis, of Houston, Tex, is visiting relatives here.

There are 18 Odd-Fellows buried in the Petersburg cemetery.

Mrs. Irvan Theetge gave a select party Wednesday evening.

Ed Cox sold $30 worth of peas off of one-eighth of an acre of ground.

Wingate & Thompson are gathering up their lambs—finest for years.

The Str. Kentucky Home, made her initial trip up the river, Sunday.

Frank Collier is now engineer on the handsome little steamer, Pauline.

Adam Vesenmire received $20 for catching the floater from the Gate City.

Geo. Baker, of Limaburg, and Chas. Clore, of Hebron, were in town Monday.

Nominate and elect Goebel governor and the combines will have to flee the State.

Brooks and Snelling are getting ready to take their threshing machine out again.

Hon. Geo. R. Berkshire has the finest prospects for melons of any one in the bottoms.

Ira Theetge has returned from Huntington, W. Va., where he went a few days ago.

The watermelon bugs made a raid on the melon vines, one night last week, and destroyed nearly all in the bottoms.

They say that Geo. R. Berkshire is Ky. correspondent for the Aurora Independent.

Lon Yerkes, Michael Tafferty, Wm. Mahan and Ed Keim are working in Cincinnati.

Mrs. Susan Jarrell spent last week visiting relatives out in the Plattsburg neighborhood.

Louis Jarrel, book agent, is doing a land office business. He cleared $30 in 5 days I hear.

Capt. Alden is having a new barge built to take the place of the one snuk a few days ago.

Will Casey took a barge load of salt down the river, last week. He had no trouble in selling it.

Will the two Kenton county men be powerful euough to control the meeting next Saturday?

Miss Minnie Hartman has returned from a very pleasant visit with relatives in Cincinnati.

W. T. Stott has set another acre of strawberries. He says it is like finding money to raise them.

Misses Maud Wingate, Pearl Crisler and Birdie Holton are the handsome bicyclist in our town.

The small boy and the green apple has got on intimate terms again and laudanum is in demand.

Miss Elizabeth Knipfer gave her young friends a party at the home of her aunt, Mrs. Brooks.

The Y. W. C. T. U. met Saturday night at the beautiful suburban home of the Misses McWethy.

Frank Smith and wife are the proud parents of a 10 pound boy, which first saw the light of day Sunday.

Capt. Jacob Piatt's horse sale was largely attended and some of his blooded stock sold for good prices.

One hundred and twenty University students, of Cincinnati, came down on the Workum, Friday evening.

J. I. Wingate and wife, of Aurora, were visiting Mr. Wingate's father and mother, Saturday and Sunday.

Dick and Wes Kittle went out in Ohio county, Ind., last week, squirrel hunting. They killed 15 lu two days.

W. T. Stott says a man can clear $100 from one acre of strawberries. He has tried it and knows what he is talking about.

The body of the young man drowned at Lawrenceburg, Sunday evening, was caught just above town Monday morning.

Miss Julia Smith is visiting Misses Lizzie and Annie Weindel. Miss Julia is just recovering from an attack of typhoid fever.

The potato crop will be the largest raised here for quite a number of years. Lots of folks have early Ohio's as big as goose eggs.

J. E. Vezey, of Cincinnati, is talking of opening up a saloon here. I hear the city councilmen fixed the town license at $350.

Robt. Hoffman, Fleet Hoffman, Jno. and Glen Hurd, Joe and Geo. Weindal and Louis Geiszlar are employed at Mildale, Ky.

Miss Lucie, the pretty daughter of Capt. and Mrs. T. B. Mathews, is home from College, spending her vacation with her parents.

F. P. Walton, of Utzinger, and Dudley Rouse, of Burlington, were in town last Wednesday. Mr. Rouse had not been here for 15 years.

That informal ballot that was taken at the Senatorial mass meeting, a few weeks since, was a puzzler to some of the boys down this way.

John Wells bridled and saddled the milch cow and rode her down town to the drug store, hitched her to the rack, made his purchase and rode back home.

While trying to bridle a horse, the other day, Jas. Moreland got his hand in the animals mouth and it bit two of his fingers so badly they had to be amputated.

Mrs. Wm. Appleton celebrated her 73d birth day, last Sunday, by giving her numerous friends a nice dinner. H. J. Marshall and family, of Aurora, were over.

The sling shot in the hands of some of our younger citizens is proving quite a nuisance, and little chaps broke a $7.00 window glass in the Blue Grass Grocery store.

Misses Ogla and Leola McWethy, the handsome daughters of Mr. and Mrs. J. I. McWethy, entertained the young folks, Saturday night. All the delicacies of the season were served.

Earl Walton, known as "Cooney" among his associates here, has accepted a good position with a large storage house in Brooklyn, N. Y. Success to the biggest hearted young man that ever left Pete to seek his fortune elsewhere.

The Y. P. S. C. E. meeting has been changed from Sunday afternoon to Wednesday night. The society is about 100 strong. Next Wednesday night will be business meeting after services, when new officers will be elected.

Carl and Raymond, sons of Homer Grant, graduated from the Aurora High School, last week. They are both bright boys, Ray, aged 16, being the youngest High School gradute in Indiana or Kentucky. Carl is 18. They'll study for some profession.

The congregation of the Christian church will present Rev. Finley with a silver water set, lined with gold, as a wedding present. The presentation will be at 7:30 p. m. at the Christian church next Saturday. I hear the present will cost $100, and is very beautiful.

Some persons will kick like a Texas steer when a correspondent of the RECORDER writes the truth in regard to happenings, but the Cincinnati dailies can distort it into a deadly feud and nothing is said about it. We make a specialty of attending to our own business and are neutral in regard to the troubles recently taken place here. Be just boys, a falsehood don't hurt any one, its the truth that hurts.

The political editor of the Petersburg Sky-scraper, heard the following on Berkshire & McWethey's corner, the other night:—M. F. Wingate and B. B. Allphin will speed for the Sheriff's office; D. E. Castleman, Sidney Gaines and F. E. Curley, for County Attorney; W. T. Stott and S. C. Johnson, for Assessor; A. B. Rouse and Chas. Roberts, for County Judge; D. M. Snyder, P. E. Cason and Prof Cullins, for County Superintendent; R. W. Adams, J. H. Rogers and Scott Chambers, for County Clerk.

The memorial services Sunday afternoon, over the graves of departed Odd-Fellows, was attended by about 400 persons. The procession started from the hall at 2 o'clock, headed by the Petersburg cornet band. Next came the children, carrying baskets of flowers, and followed by about 60 members of the order, S. G. Botts and J. H. McWethy, the two oldest members, bringing up the rear in a carriage. The graves of 18 deceased Odd-Fellows were strewn with flowers. S. G. Botts gave a short biography of each of the deceased, and T. B. Mathews, Thos. Hymes, Solon Early, J. W. Berkshire and J. M. Grant, recited beautiful selections for the repose of the dead. John Minor Botts was grand marshal of the occasion and was kept busy getting the little ones in line. Following members of Aileen Lodge of Bellevue, were present and took part in the services: Xen Scott, Eugene Kelly, Colon Kelly, Solon Stephens, Henry Clore, Chas. Maurer, Will Deck, Ephriam Clore, Owen Allen, James White, Henry Hunt, Wm. Suelling, Hon. T. B. Mathews dismissed the crowd at the entrance to the hall in a neat little talk.

Constance.

Good times in our town now—everybody is working.

Ab Hankins has secured a position at the Cullum mill.

Chicken thieves have made their appearance about this place.

Miss Grace Russell has returned home after a long stay in California.

Mr. Ed Berkshire, of Burlington, was visiting B. F. Zimmer, recently.

Mr. John Klassner ran a pitchfork in his foot, causing him much pain.

Wm. Harrison broke all rat catching records, Monday week, catching fifteen rats in one trap at one time.

George Wetzel has become quite a base-ball umpire. George ought to apply to Nick Young for a job.

The big Sycamore which stood on the river bank on Ben Hooda' place is no more. It was a victim of the recent storm.

The children are all happy. School has closed. The children were treated by their teacher, Miss Lulu Souther, to ice cream, cake and pie.

The Constance base-ball team went to Addyston, O., and after five innings of ball playing, the game broke up with a score of 7 to 5 in favor of Addyston.

Scott Peno had a very narrow escape from being hurt during a storm. While delivering some goods for C. T. Davis' store, the top of an old tree fell, striking the rear end of his wagon.

Mrs. James Peno is improving in health.

Potato bugs are being fed lavishly on Paris Green.

Rev. Riley closed a very good meeting at the Christian church Sunday.

Henry Cottmeyer and Will Peno caught a drowned man in the river at the ferry. They could find nothing on his person by which to identify him.

Miss L. Ryle, of Waterloo neighborhood, was visiting W. B. Reves and wife, and of course Mr. Willie Price had to see the young lady safely home last Sunday.

Our river shores remind one of war times, by the white tents here and their, and the merry times the fishers have remind one of the kind of fighting they do.

The Constance base ball team was defeated by a team from Mullinsville, by a score 11 to 7. Wm. Tanner, of Constance team, pitched a splendid game, striking out 8 men.

Hathaway.

Corn is looking well.

Wheat harvest will soon be here.

James Aylor commenced working the roads last Friday.

The Recorder failed to reach this office last Thursday from some cause.

Mrs. Cynthia Mason and Miss Edna McElroy went to Rising Sun, last Wednesday.

Hal Presser had a valuable cow to die, one day last week, from an unknown cause.

A couple of Cincinnati men were the guests of Dave Williamson, several days last week.

Miss Daisy Macrander, of Verona, was the pleasant guest of Miss Mary White, last Saturday night and Sunday.

Master George and Willie White, of Elickertown, were visiting their grand parents last Thursday here.

Your correspondent and wife and W. S. White, were visiting Jas. White and family, of Woolper Heights, last Sunday.

Miss Mira Craig, Addie Stephens, Mable Ryle, John Stephens and Frank Scott were visiting John D. McNeely and family, last Saturday night and Sunday.

For sale.—2 good milch cows and one horse. Apply to Edson Riddell.

Buy a Buggy Where the Many Buy.

Our Goods are Reliable and of Good Standard Grades.

and will sell anything in our Store for the Cash as cheap

as you will buy elsewhere.

Our Motto: BUY for CASH sell for CASH, GOOD GOODS AT LOWEST LIVING PRICES.

Respectfully,

L. B. HUNTER, Rising Sun, Ind.

OUR MILLINERY DEPARTMENT

Is in full blast and is filled with Trimmed and Untrimmed Hats at LOWER PRICES than ever.

LADIES' SKIRTS, PETTICOATS and SHIRT WAISTS ranging in price from 25c up, and in fact the whole house is chucked full of BARGAINS.

W. H. CLARK,

Rising Sun, Indiana.

JOHN ALLISON,

UNDER- EMBALMER,

—Corner Pike & Russell Streets,—

COVINGTON, - - KENTUCKY.

INDEPENDENT OF UNDERTAKERS' UNION.

Order Spring Suits NOW

And we will make them up artistically and ready for you promptly on time. We have

Over Five Hundred Styles

Of Spring and Summer Woolens to Select from. They come direct from the looms of foreign and domestic manufacturers, and surpass in elegance and variety anything ever shown in Covington. In the assortment are many exclusive patterns—goods that cannot be duplicated by any other establishment in this city. Keep these facts in mind and place your order for a stylish suit with us. We promise you a faultless fit, the proper cut, and a price that will not be more than you can afford to pay.

H. F. BLASE.

H. F. BLASE,

535 Madison Avenue,

COVINGTON, - - KENTUCKY

A Word to the Public

MY STOCK OF

Dry Goods, Notions,

AND LADIES' AND GENTS'

TOILET ARTICLES

for the Spring Trade has been received, and to be appreciated must be seen. Fresh

DRUGS AND GROCERIES

received daily. A large stock of

PAINTS & OILS

on hand at all times. All Goods New and Clean, and are sold at the

LOWEST CASH PRICES.

—GIVE ME A CALL—

J. G. OELSNER, Florence, Ky.

Local News.

"Injins" in town.

T. B. Ronse has a good fresh cow and calf for sale.

We have had, already, enough torrid weather for one summer.

Edson Riddell was on the saw-dust, one day last week, selling a horse.

Some fields of corn are now jointing, and are receiving their last plowing.

Miss Julia Clore is having her house painted, Charles Clore, of Hebron, artist.

Some of the gardeners have begun expectation on the size of their growing potatoes.

Wheat harvest is close at hand. The crop will not be near so good as was expected.

James H. Aylor and Tucker passed through town Monday, headed towards the north.

D D. Castleman is pushing the work on the cellar and foundation for his new residence.

It is said that chinch bugs are injuring the wheat considerably in some neighborhoods.

☞ Go to A. Corbin & Son's for first-class Kanawha Coal at 9 cents per bushel of 76 pounds. au-1

So far as heard from the local machine agents claim to have done a good business this season.

"Varmints" have killed 200 young chickens, this spring for Mrs. J A. Riddell, of the Hebron neighborhood.

Protracted meeting began at the Methodist church Monday night, Rev. Green, of Warsaw, assisting Rev. Harris.

The Bellevue ball team played a Covington team at Erlanger, Sunday, the score being 25 to 21 in favor of Covington.

The interior of the Methodist church has been very much improved in appearance by the papering it has recently received.

The Missionary Institute of the Erlanger Circuit will be held at Mt. Zion, Sunday, June the 25th. Come, and bring baskets to stay all day.

In some places the meadows are a total failure, and the farmers cannot account for it as the weather all spring has been very favorable to grass.

Kentucky politicians will be swarming in Louisville by this time next week, and there will be a hot time in that old town for a few days at least.

For sale—Nice, fresh muly Jersey cow, calf 3 weeks old and will weigh 150 pounds. Second calf. Price reasonable. C. L. CRISLER, Burlington.

Some of the special premiums to be given at the next fair did not reach the printer in time to get on the posters, but they will appear in the catalogue.

Uncle Henry Jarrell, the Woolper mathematician, says that the square root of an acre shows that one side of an acre is exactly 12 rods, 3 yards, 1 foot and 8¼ inches.

Quite a good crowd of Burlington people attended the Sunday-school convention at Pt. Pleasant, last Friday, and a pleasant time and a most excellent dinner are reported.

A friend furnishes the RECORDER the following item: In the year 1874 it rained every day in June, and until the 4th of July. Not a clear day in all that time and when fall came a good corn crop was gathered.

Master Henry, son of jailer Adams, came home Saturday from his brother's over in Indiana, and has since been suffering with a sprained knee. The injury was received while playing the evening before he came home.

Duncan, Wingate & Thompson made their first run of lambs, last week. They had 240 nice ones in the drove. Among other Boone county traders they met on the market were the Neal Bros., of Buffalo, who had some nice stuff in the pens.

The telephone line connecting Burlington, Limaburg and Florence is up, and will be ready for use as soon as the 'phones are received and put in place. The Burlington office will be in Mr. Dudley Rouse's store, while that at Limaburg will be in Rouse Bros.' store. We have not learned at what place the Florence office will be located.

E. S. McKim reached under a rock in the creek, a few days since, to catch a fish, but instead of getting his hand on a fish, one of his fingers invaded a turtle's mouth, which could not resist the temptation to close down on the intruder. Ed made a desperate jerk that released his finger in a mutilated condition, and he at once registered a vow never to run his hand under another rock in pursuit of a fish.

When the hole for the telephone pole was dug at the corner of the bank lot, last Thursday, some distance down a portion of an ash pole was struck, and several who were here in 1844, say it was a part of a Henry Clay pole raised during the '44 campaign for the Presidency, in which James K. Polk was the Democratic candidate, and Henry Clay the Whig candidate. Two Clay poles were raised on that corner in Burlington during that campaign, the first being bored down by some Democrat.

Vincent Ross, aged 72, who lived in the South Fork neighborhood, just across the line in Gallatin county, died suddenly, last Saturday afternoon. He had been in bad health for some time, but on the day of his death he had been out on his farm, and had come to the house and was sitting in a chair when the summons came. His funeral was conducted by the Big Bone Masonic lodge of which he was a member, and occurred at South Fork church Sunday in the presence of a very large number of friends and relatives.

PERSONAL MENTION.

J. L. Clore was laid up a day or two last week for repairs.

Miss Sheba Roberts is visiting in the Walton neighborhood.

R. B. Huey, of the Waterloo neighborhood, was in town Monday.

R. R. Revill and wife, of Covington, spent last Sunday in Burlington.

Thos. Tupman, of Bakersfield, California, spent Sunday in Burlington.

Mrs. A. L Williams, of Indianapolis, is visiting her mother and sister at this place.

P. E. Cason and wife were visiting Mr. and Mrs. Elijah Parker, of Gasburg, Sunday.

Mrs. P. G. Cropper and little daughter, of Louisville, are visiting relatives in this county.

Henry Quick seems inclined to summer in Burlington. He is a good man to have about.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Cason, of Ludlow, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Asa Cason, Sunday.

H. P. Stephens, of Nashville, Tenn., was the guest of F. Riddell and wife, one night last week.

Messrs. Ome Rogers and Robert Riggs, of Erlanger, were calling in Burlington, Sunday afternoon.

Johnnie Hogan went out to O. P. Conner's Monday morning, to begin prizing Owen's purchase of tobacco.

Miss Martha Lassing, of Union, returned home, last Wednesday, after a visit of two or three weeks here.

Capt. Josh Masters and Orin Phipps are as regular as Monday morning with their gasoline supply crafts.

Revs. Hoover and Davis occupied their respective pulpits in Burlington, last Sunday morning and evening.

John Herndon, of Louisville, and candidate for State Treasurer, was in town, Saturday, looking after his political interests.

Hon. W. W. Dickerson, of Williamstown, and A. M. Edwards, of Walton, were transacting business in the Circuit Clerk's office, last Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. F. P. Walton, of Utzinger, spent Sunday in Burlington, attending services at the Presbyterian church in the forenoon and evening.

Rev. T. L. Utz requests us to say that he was not at all selfish in his challenge for a theological discussion, but that on the contrary the challenge included all denominations.

Rev. J. A. Kirtley passed through town Monday morning enroute home from Big Bone. He can, apparently, make that long journey with as little fatigue as many men considerably his junior.

W. L. Aylor and wife, of Hebron; Zeke Aylor and wife, of Francesville; James Gaines, of the Petersburg neighborhood, and J. A. Riddell and wife, of Hebron were guests of Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Blyth, Sunday.

WOLF-STEPHENS.

Amid most beautiful surroundings and fortunate greetings was the marriage of Miss Ethel Stephens, of Piner, and Mr. Will A. Wolfe, of Walton, solemnized, last Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock. The nuptials were celebrated in the church of the bride, which was completely filled with an audience of about 300 which evinced a deep interest in the affair. Outside a vast concourse gathered to catch a glimpse of the pretty young bride and noble groom as they entered. The church had been handsomely decorated; the rostrum was banked with ferns and the organist concealed behind a screen of luxuriant verdue with clusters of white roses artistically arranged. White and green were the colors adhered to to complete the symbolic idea of "pure and everlasting love." Under a decorated arch from which suspended a marriage bell of white roses stood the bride and groom plighting their troth and giving the nuptial vow. Mendelssohn's wedding march announced the bridal party. They were heralded by the ushers Mr. C. Otis Morgan and Dr. S. P. Rich. Following them was the officiating minister, Rev. Dr. Adams, of Walton; then came the bridesmaids and groomsmen, Miss Anna Lee Wolfe, of Verona, Rev. John Lee Maddox, of Georgetown, Miss Laura Lucas, of Georgetown, Mr. Myron Stephens, Miss Stella Stephens, of Piner, and Dr. E. F. Wolfe, of Fiskburg. All of the maids looked beautiful in white and carried white carnations. Immediately preceding the bride and groom was the maid of honor, prettily gowned in pink mousseline de soie and carried pink and white carnations. Very sweet and fair was the the young bride in lovely white silk with garniture of chiffon and lace and carried a superb cluster of white roses. Over her shapely head of dark hair was thrown a long tulle veil, which enveloped her and fell in fleecy folds around her. She is a typical brunette, tall and graceful, and was the embodiment of beauty in her bridal robe. As the wedding march died away the ceremony began. In a few minutes the final responses were made and the minister pronounced them man and wife. After the benediction, during the egress, "Call me thine own," was beautifully sung by Miss Flora Rich, of Covington, accompanied by the organ. As soon as they entered the hack they were driven immediately to their home in Walton, where she donned her traveling dress and they left on the evening train, amid showers of rice and good wishes, for Georgetown, where an elegant reception was tendered them by his sister, who resides there. On their return to their return to their home in Walton Saturday night, they were welcomed by the ladies of the church and a number of intimate friends, who gave them another royal reception and served a most excellent supper. Before the merry company took their departure, the Walton band came to serenade them and wooed sweetest strains from the mandolin and other instruments, which floated softly out on the calm evening air. They were remembered with a number of beautiful presents.

We pray that divine benediction ever rest upon their wedded life. May it prove even brighter and happier than it promises and bring to them every good that marriage life bestows on those whom "God has truly joined together." WALLIE M. MORGAN.

W. M. RACHAL & CO.

COLLARS DO DOUBLE DUTY HERE.

Standard Granulated Sugar, 18 lbs. $1 00.
Arbuckle Coffee 10 cents per lb.
Daniel Boone Soap, 3 bars for 5 cents.
Pittsburg Wire less than city prices.
Lime, Cement, White Lead, Oils. Varnishes, etc., as cheap as in the city.

Baby Shoes for 10c per pair up.
Misses' Shoes for 50c per pair up.
A full line of Men's, Ladie's and Children's Tan Shoes—Latest Styles, Best Quality, Lowest Prices.
Men's Dress Pants, 75c per pair.
Wonder Overalls, Shirts and Pants, the best made.

COME at ONCE. THESE PRICES are ONLY While Present Stock Lasts.

UNION, KENTUCKY. UNION, KENTUCKY.

ADLER'S

—THE PLACE TO BUY—
LADIES' • READY • MADE • GOODS.
A complete line of Silk Waists, Shirt Waists, Dress Skirts, Spring Capes in Silk or Cloth, Muslin, Underwear, &c., also dealer in Dry Goods, Furnishing Goods and Shoes.
ADLER'S, Parry Building Corner High and Walnut Streets LAWRENCEBURG, INDIANA.

FOR good, new and up to date goods at the Lowest Prices, go to the New Store at the Old Stand, at 123 Second St., AURORA, IND.
Having bought the stock of
Dry Goods, Notions and Shoes
of R. Maybin, 123 Second St., Aurora, Ind.,
I have closed out the stock on hand at that time as nearly as possible, and have had the room remodled and have just received a
A New and Complete LINE OF Dry Goods, Notions and Shoes,
to which I invite your inspection, Boone Co., customers especially invited.
FRANK RIEMAN, - - AURORA, IND.

Deering Ideal Binder Folded.

Deering Binders, Mowers and Reapers
Posses the secret of LIGHT DRAFT, Deering Roller and Ball Bearings, Durability and convenience not excelled by any.
Be sure and examine these machines before purchasing.
Of those desiring anything in the Machinery line, Hay Rakes, Deering Repairs or Binder Twiner. we earnestly ask their patronage.
CROPPER & GAINES,
UTZINGER, KY.

McALPIN & THOMSON,

Successors to RIGGS BROS.
Undertakers —AND— Embalmers,

LIVVERY, BOARDING & FEED STABLES.
Special Rates to Traveling Men. Pianos, Organs and Furniture Carefully Removed. First-class Carriages for hire with careful drivers for Families, Parties, Weddings, etc.
LEXINGTON PIKE, - - - ERLANGER, KY.
J. M. EDDINS, Agent, Burlington, Ky.

Are Your Dollars Worth Saving?

Come ye of little faith; only those who have tasted of the sweets in trading at our store can realize what the word "Saving" means.

CLOTHING

MEN'S NICE SUITS in Cassimere and Chiviots, at..... $5.00
MENS'S NICE LIGHT SUITS, Worsted and Cassimeres—the latest things at $7.50
MEN'S ELEGANT SUITS, Cassimeres, Worsted and Fancy Chiviots, at $10.00
MEN'S FINE ALL-WOOL SERGE SUITS, Finest ever Shown, at..... $7.50, $10, $11
MEN'S AND BOYS' LIGHT PANTS, a finer line was never shown at from..... $1.50 to $5
IT WILL INTEREST YOU TO INSPECT OUR BOYS' SUITS.
CHILDREN'S SUITS, in Double-Breast and Vestee,..... 1$ to $5
CHILDREN'S WASH SUITS, They are beauties—an entire new line..... 50c and up
MEN'S CAMALET PANTS, Something cool and comfortable 50c
MEN'S OFFICE COATS 50c
BEAR IN MIND!—These goods are all brand new having been made specially to our order for this summer's trade. There is not a carried over garment in our store.

ROLFES & WACHS, No. 1 Pike Street, Cor. Madison Ave.
COVINGTON, KENTUCKY.

Take Your County Paper.

When in Burlington Call on
J. S. CLUTTERBUCK
DEALER IN
DRY GOODS
Notions, Boots and Shoes,
Who has just received his stock of
SPRING & SUMMER SHOES,
the nicest stock ever in town. Have old stock which I AM SELLING AT GENUINE BARGAINS.
NICE LINE WALL PAPER,
☞ At Prices to Suit the times. ☜

DEERING - MACHINES

Are the favorites in every land where grass and grain grow. They are adopted to all conditions. They are the "Acme" of strength, durability, simplicity and light draft. We will carry a full line of Repairs. Buy the Machine that is fully guaranteed and handy to obtain repairs for.

Also remember we are headquarters for all kinds of
Farm Machinery
At bottom prices. We handle nothing but the best and fully guarantee all.

Also the Largest and Cheapest
Stock of Shoes
In the county, and a full line of
General -- Merchandise.
—CAN SAVE YOU MONEY.—
COME AND SEE.
T. J. HUGHES,
BEAVER LICK, KY.

GO TO
C. T. DAVIS & CO., General Merchants,
HEBRON AND CONSTANCE,
A Good Supply of Feed always in Stock.
GARDEN AND FIELD SEEDS.
Undertaking Given Special Attention,
A good supply of Coal on hand at Constance at all times.
Hebron. C. T. DAVIS & CO. Constance

W. H. HOSHAL & COMPANY,

COMMISSION MERCHANTS,
Cattle, Hogs and Sheep,
—UNION STOCK YARDS,—
Cincinnati, - Ohio.
—TELEPHONE 7346.—
Information Regarding Live Stock Cheerfully Furnished.
Consign Your Stock Direct to Us.

LUMBER!

LATHS,
SHINGLES,
DOORS,
BLINDS,
SASH.

If you want any kind of Lumber it will be to your advantage to visit our yard at Lawrenceburg, Indiana, before buying. ☞ Prices to Suit the Times.
M. E. LEMING & CO.

THE RECORDER.

W. L. RIDDELL, Publisher.

BURLINGTON, : : KENTUCKY.

JUNE—1899.

Sun.	Mon.	Tue.	Wed.	Thur.	Fri.	Sat.
....	....	....	....	1	2	3
4	5	6	7	8	9	10
11	12	13	14	15	16	17
18	19	20	21	22	23	24
25	26	27	28	29	30	....

THE most curious paper weight in the world is said to belong to the prince of Wales. It is the mummied hand of one of the daughters of Pharoah.

THE Maine tramp law is driving Dusty Rhoades and Weary Waggles out of the Pine Tree state. Judge Bose recently sentenced several tramps to jail for ten months at hard labor, and their associates are tumbling across each other in their anxiety to get across the state line.

THE mere thought of eating an octopus is enough to make the everyday civilized being shudder; yet in the Hawaiian islands these devilfish, as they are commonly called, are a much-prized delicacy among the natives, while the imported Chinese and Japs have also acquired the taste.

A MINER casually descended 15 yards into an old flooded mine near Wellingborough, Eng., by means of a rope, to see if the waters were subsiding. All his efforts to get back were unavailing, and for 11 days he was entombed. A visitor to the spot hearing a voice below secured the man's release. Though provided with water he had been without food the whole 11 days.

ACCORDING to the annual summary of births, marriages and deaths in London made by the registrar general, the population of the metropolis last year was 4,534,796, showing an increase of 41,791 on the figures of the preceding 12 months. The births numbered 132,432 and the deaths 83,936. There were 2,016 marriages, giving the highest rate recorded since 1877; whereas the birth rate was one point below what it has been in the previous 10 years.

THE traditions of Yale university have been smashed by the election of Prof. Hadley as president of that institution. He is under 43 years old for one thing. Then he is not a clergyman, which has hitherto been regarded as an iron-clad qualification in a presidency of Yale. In addition to all that, he is not a professor of Greek, Latin, philosophy or any other of the so-called "culture" branches of education, but of political science—the science of government in its broadest sense.

CHICAGO will be wiped off the map in 1,500 years. This is what Prof. G. K. Gilbert, the geologist, says. This city is gradually being engulfed in Lake Michigan by the gradual tilting of the earth's crust. The water, according to the professor, is rising at the rate of nine or ten inches in a century, and by he year 3390 will be flowing uninterruptedly over the natural watershed that separates the Mississippi and the great lakes. Prof. Gilbert's investigations have been in progress several years.

GEN. FRED FUNSTON, of Kansas, is not the first soldier of that name to distinguish himself on the field of battle. Col. Oliver Funston, of the 13th Virginia regiment, made a record during the rebellion which entitles him to stand in almost the same class as his distinguished namesake. The first Col. Funston weigned over 300 pounds, and rode an enormous horse. The sight of Col. Funston, charging at the head of his regiment, is said to have been one of the most terrifying spectacles of the war.

THE late William Morris' views on the laureateship, as made public in Mr. Mackail's biography, were peculiar and interesting. Mr. Gladstone was willing to offer Morris the succession to Tennyson, but, on being sounded, the socialist poet, although pleased with the honor, declined unreservedly, stating that, in his opinion, the function of poet-laureate was that of a ceremonial writer of verse, and that the marquis of Lorne, the languidly literary son-in-law of Queen Victoria, was the fittest person to fulfill it.

JASON WEBB, of Cumberland, Ky., can probably boast the largest family in the world. He has 19 children, 175 grandchildren and 100 great-grandchildren. His brother, Miles Webb, who died at 78 (Jason is still flourishing at 80), has had more than 400 descendants, of whom 255 were either grandchildren or great-grandchildren. Other members of the family have been almost equally prolific, and adding to direct descendants other relations, the Webbs in the district of Cumberland number altogether about 12,000 persons.

HOMESTEAD COURT, the modern hotel for women, which is to be erected by a building trust in Boston, promises to be a most successful investment for shareholders, as well as one of the attractions, architectural and otherwise, of the Hub. There are upward of 50,000 women wage-earners in Boston, many of whom are seeking accomodations where the comforts of living can be secured at a reasonable cost. The building is fireproof in construction, with elevator and janitor service, light, well ventilated rooms, steam heat, home cookery, gymnasium, roof garden and bowling alleys.

ARMY ADVANCES

Americans Sweep the Country Between the Bay of Manila and Bay Lake.

Many of the Wounded Left Behind by the Rebels in Their Retreat—The Americans Lost Two Officers Killed and 21 Privates Wounded.

MANILA, June 12.—At daybreak Saturday a force of 4,500 men, under Gens. Lawton, Wheaton and Overshine, advanced from San Pedro Macati, sweeping the country between the bay of Manily and Bay lake, south of Manila. By noon the country had been cleared almost to Paranaque. The Americans lost two officers killed and 21 soldiers wounded.

The rebels resisted desperately at the stronger of their positions, and left 50 dead in the trenches. Many more wounded were left behind by the rebels in their retreat.

The heat during the day was overpowering, and there were many prostrations of American soldiers from that cause.

Gen. Lawton's force consisted of two battalions, each of the 21st and 9th infantry, six companies of the Colorado volunteers and a detachment of artillery. The Nevada cavalry was under Gen. Wheaton and the 13th and 14th infantry, the 4th cavalry and a detachment of light artillery were under Gen. Overshine.

It was scarcely dawn when the troops, in a long, silent procession, wound up the hillside behind the American trenches and formed a skirmish line. Concealed in the jungle, the advance rebel outposts fired a few shots before being seen.

The artillery, the Colorado infantry and the Nevada cavalry swung around the hill top on the left and opened the battle at 6:30. The rebels made no response from the hills and the Colorado men cautiously advanced through the grass until they were confronted by a trench, from which a few weak volleys were fired. A spirited response followed and a charge into the trench found it to be deserted.

In the meantime, part of the 13th and 14th regimens formed in skirmish line, extending a mile to the right and supported by the rest of the regiments, swept down the valley and up the hillside toward another trench. Approaching the morass seriously hampered the 14th, and the rebels taking advantage of this, poured a galling fire upon them for 30 minutes. The 14th was twice compelled to withdraw for the purpose of finding a safe crossing in the swamp. Finally the trench was infiladed on both flanks. The rebels fled to the woods and sustained a severe loss. Gen. Lawton then pushed his entire command south, through the center of the isthmus, until a few miles south of Paranaque, when he swung around and halted on account of the heat.

The double-turreted monitor Monadnock and three other vessels shelled Paranaque Saturday morning and the rebels promptly evacuated the place.

WASHINGTON, June 12.—The war department Sunday received a report from Maj. Gen. Otis, of the military movement Saturday to the south of Manila for the purpose of clearing out the rebels in that section. It shows that the movement was a great success and that the enemy's loss was considerably greater than stated in the press dispatches. Gen. Otis' cables as follows:

"MANILA, June 11.—Terrific heat would not permit troops to reach positions as hours designated; enabled majority of insurgents to escape in scattered organizations south and westward, which they effected during the evening and night. Movement great success, however; enemy disorganized and routed, suffering heavy loss; troops resting to-day at Laspinas and Paranque. Navy did excellent execution along the shore of bay; but many insurgent detachments retired in that direction, protected by the presence of women and children whom they drove along with them. Our loss, four killed and some thirty wounded. Report of casualties later. Conservative estimate of enemy's loss about four hundred.

(Signed) OTIS."

A Jealous Man's Crime.

FORT SMITH, Ark., June 12.—John Moore, recently a member of the Salvation army here, became jealous of his wife, alleging that she was receiving too much attention from the captain of the Salvation army. Moore and his wife separated.

Sunday he met her and the captain taking a walk together. He drew a pistol and fired two shots at the captain. Neither took effect. Then Moore shot his wife dead and with the fourth and last bullet killed himself. Moore has been a laundryman. Little is known of him here.

Sharkey Still Claims the Championship.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 12.—Tom Sharkey has issued a statement in which he declares he "is still the champion heavyweight of the world," and that Jeffries will have to dispose of him before laying claim to that title. He thought Jeffries had greatly improved.

Shot in a General Fight.

MIDDLESBORO, Ky., June 12.—In a general fight at a disreputable house, Minnie Sutton was shot and seriously injured, it is altered, by John Marcum.

HOWARDS AND THEIR ALLIES

They Are in Possession of the Baker-Howard Feud Ground—Assassination of Tom Baker From Ambush.

LONDON DEPOT, Ky., June 12.—The Howards and their allies, the Whites, are in possession of the ground in the Baker-Howard feud and few Bakers or Baker sympathizers are left to molest them. After Tom Baker, the head of the Baker faction, met his tragic death Saturday afternoon at the hands of an assassin, whose deed stands alone the coldest blooded in the history of Kentucky feudal wars. The state militia, under Col. Williams, with Wiley, Jim, Dee and Al Baker, shorn of their arms, left over the mountain road for Barboursville, where there the charges of murdering Burch Stores and Wilson Howard will be tried on a change of venue granted by Judge Cook.

Baker, when shot, was in his tent and within 70 feet of the assassin who fired from the porch of Sheriff Bev White's house, diagonally across the street. Baker told his wife that he was tired and would stand up for fresh air, when he did so a bullet pierced his breast. Col. Williams sounded assembly and the battalion of militia charged White's house. They found the gates locked and the doors barred, but the boys in blue broke the locks and bars and found inside nothing save a stack of Winchester rifles; upon examination one of these guns was found to contain a freshly exploded cartridge, and it is this which sent the leaden missle through the heart of the most fearless feud leader Kentucky ever produced.

The people of this place and along the road to Manchester are wild with excitement. Sympathy for the Bakers is expressed on every side. The troops are powerless under Kentucky law to protect or execute the simplest duty, being subject to the orders of the county sheriff, who in this case is not in sympathy with their purpose. John G. White, of Winchester, a brother of Sheriff Bev White, with two guards, passed through here Sunday going to the scene. It was stated Sunday night that Special Judge A. King Cook will order a special grand jury and attempt to indict the slayer of Tom Baker, but the fact that Judge Cook is not the regularly elected judge will make an uphill task for him.

Sheriff Beverly P. White is now under arrest charged with the murder of Tom Baker, leader of his faction in the Baker-Howard feud, in the courthouse yard Saturday afternoon. The sheriff is under the same military guard that was sent here in a vain endeavor to protect Baker's life, but Col. Williams has taken every precaution to see that his new prisoner if found guilty shall pay the penalty without the premature fate of his alleged victim. Nevertheless, blood for blood is the cry of Baker's relatives and those who know them say they are bound to get it. Thorough investigation has established the fact beyond doubt that the shot that killed Baker was fired from the house of Sheriff White. It came from a window in the front room on the left side of the house, between 75 and 100 yards from where the camp was pitched. It develops that Baker was not standing outside the guard house tent when killed. Though repeatedly warned not to expose himself, Baker, too confident of the protection afforded him, walked to the entrance and leaned on the center pole, still keeping under canvas. But this much exposure was enough for the keen-eyed murderer concealed across the street.

LYNCHED BY COLORED MEN.

Five Hundred Negroes Took Simon Brooks, Colored, From Jail at Sardis, Miss., and Put Him to Death.

SARDIS, Miss., June 12.—Simon Brooks, colored, was lynched by a mob of 500 Negroes near here, having been taken from the jail some time between midnight and dawn. The crime, which thus avenged, was most atrocious. Saturday night a Negress named Armistead while returning from a shopping tour to her home was assaulted by Brooks and another Negro. The woman was outraged, her throat was cut and she was severely beaten about the head and her jaws were tightly tied to prevent breathing. Her body was then concealed in rubbish. The woman rallied sufficiently to give the alarm and the names of her assailants. Part of the goods taken from the woman was later found in a trunk belonging to Brooks. The mob, which was composed entirely of Negroes, did its work quietly. The white people knew nothing of the affair hours after it occurred.

The Iowa at Puget Sound Naval Station.

BREMERTON, Wash., June 12.—The battle ship Iowa arrived at Puget Sound naval station Sunday night.

Minister Storer in Madrid.

MADRID, June 12.—Mr. Bellamy Storer, United States minister to Spain, Mrs. Storer, Mr. Stanton Sickles, secretary of the legation, and their servants, arrived here by the Southern express at 11:40 p. m. Saturday.

A Million Dollar Fire.

NEWCASTLE-ON TYNE, June 12.—Three of the largest shops connected with the Armstrong-Whitworth ordnance works here were destroyed by fire Sunday morning. The damage is estimated at £200,000.

THREE KILLED.

A Tornado Wrecks the Home of the Malloys Near Salix, Ia.

Malloy and Wife Instantly Killed and Harry Malloy Died a Few Hours Later—Tom Malloy Probably Fatally Hurt—Other Houses Blown Down.

SIOUX CITY, Ia., June 12.—A terrific funnel-shaped tornado struck 16 miles south of here near the town of Salix, Ia., about 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon. The storm did not cover a large territory but caused death and terrible havoc wherever the funnel-shaped cloud touched the earth.

The first house struck was that of John Malloy. Malloy and family of seven boys and one girl had gone into the cellar when the sky grew dark, but, after remaining there a few moments, came to the conclusion that it was only a thunderstorm and started to go upstairs again just as the cloud struck the house, tearing it into small splinters. John Malloy and his wife, Kate, were instantly killed. Harry Malloy, 16 years of age, was terribly injured and died in a few hours. Tom Malloy, aged 19, was badly mangled and will probably die.

The house of Mrs. Cora Hassel, a widow, was next in the storm's path, and was blown into hundreds of pieces. The family had entered the cellar and escaped. The homes of Phil Beiger, Joe Beinard and Patrick O'Neil were all reduced to kindling wood. The occupants, it is reported, all escaped serious injury. Pat Malloy, who was brought to Sioux City on a special train, tells a graphic story of the storm. He says houses, barns, live stock and human beings were sucked up by the terrible funnel-shaped cloud. The air appeared to be filled with wrecked buildings and debris for over half a mile high.

At Homer, Neb., across the river from here reports of considerable damage by wind have been received but no loss of life has been reported. At Homer an evangelist's tent was blown down while the meeting was in progress but all escaped injury but one unknown woman, who it is said will die. Hail stones as big as eggs fell during the storm.

BRIDE ACCIDENTALLY SHOT.

Distressing Accident at a Charivari Party Near Watonga, Okla.—The Groom Was Badly Wounded.

WICHITA, Kan., June 12.—While a party of young men were serenading Mr. and Mrs. Ray Higgins, near Watonga, Okla., Friday night, the bride and groom of two hours appeared on the front porch and ordered the serenaders to leave.

The charivari party, composed of about 20 friends of the young married people, refused to go. Instead, they continued to make deafening noises by beating on pans and firing guns.

The first party, Harry Randall, deliberately pointed his gun at the young couple and fired. The bride's face and breast was filled with buckshot. She fell fatally injured, shot through the lungs and died an hour later. The groom was also shot in the face, but not fatally.

After the accident the charivaring party fled. No arrests have been made yet. A small brother of the bride was also wounded, but not seriously.

TWO CELEBRATED BUILDINGS

The Lincoln Log Cabin and Uncle Tom's Cabin Will Soon Be Transferred to Lincoln Park, Chicago.

CHICAGO, June 12.—The Lincoln log cabin, where President Lincoln spent his early days in Southern Illinois, and Uncle Tom's cabin, which is supposed to have been the home of the original of Harriet Beecher Stowe's character in the great anti-slavery novel of that name, will soon be transferred to Lincoln park. The two relics, which were part of the World's fair, and later have been doing duty at the Libby prison, will be turned over to the Lincoln park board by the Libby Prison association, notice of such transfer having been given by Charles F. Gunther, president of the association. The transfer is necessary, as Libby prison is being demolished to make room for the Coliseum building that will soon occupy the Libby prison site on Wabash avenue.

His Medal Was Stolen.

COLUMBUS, O., June 12.—Maj. Thos. Osman Summers, of the 5th army corps, was robbed of a medal received during the Paris commune in 1871, it is charged, by a bell boy at the Davidson hotel. The youth asserted that he, too, was an old soldier, and had served at San Juan. The boy was arrested Saturday afternoon, and the missing medal found in his trunk.

Thief Beaten by a Woman.

VINCENNES, Ind., June 12.—Miss Luey Kluck, while going home alone, was met by a young man, who grabbed her pocketbook, and started to run. She pursued him, caught him, got her purse and then beat him. He begged for mercy before she released him.

Criminal Assailant Sentenced.

CHILLICOTHE, O., June 12.—Isaac Chaney, convicted of criminal assault upon Miss Minnie Cottrell, was sentenced to three years in the penitentiary, a motion for a new trial being overruled.

NEWS ITEMS.

The Clerical II Cittadino, of Genoa, says the pope has decided to establish a permanent apostolic delegation in Canada.

Seventeen native miners were killed and 30 injured Sunday in a mine at Kimberly, in Griqualand west, by the explosion, it is supposed, of a dynamite magazine.

The French cruiser Sfax left the island at 6:20 Saturday morning with Dreyfus on board. The latter embarked on the war ship at 7 o'clock Friday morning.

Gen. Brooke, commanding at Havana, has informed the war department of the death, on June 9, of Private Cooney, Company A, 5th infantry, of intestinal gangrene.

It is rumored in Rome that Count Nigra, head of the Italian delegation at the peace conference, will propose that the pope have a permanent seat on the arbitration tribunal.

The government has decided to abandon the old site of the government building at Indianapolis, Ind., and immediately will advertise for bids for another site for the new building.

Secretary Long's decision Thursday to purchase $400 armor for four monitors and three battle ships will make a total of 21,000 tons, all harveyized. Delivery will begin by the end of this year.

J. C. Henson, of Denmark, arrested at Keokuk, Ia., Friday, on a warning circular issued by masonic relief associations of the United States and Canada, charged with swindling masons.

Rev. Alfred De Barritt, who four months ago founded a Congregational church in the city of Havana, has returned to this country for help in aid of his religious and educational work in Cuba.

Mrs. Hester Sherman White died at Asheville, N. C., at the age of 74. She was a native of New York state, a sister of the late Isaac Sherman, the New York financier, aunt of Mrs. Bradley-Martin and great-aunt of the countess of Craven.

About 400 employes of the Norton Bros. tin can factory at Maywood, Ill., struck Thursday because 25 men had been discharged. Manager Norton refused to see representatives of the canmakers' union.

Rev. W. H. P. Faunce, pastor of the Fifth Avenue Baptist church, New York, Sunday announced that he would resign the pastorate of that church immediately to accept the presidency of Brown university.

The United States cruiser Olympia, with Adm. Dewey on board, arrived at Singapore Sunday from Hong Kong. Adm. Dewey's health continues to improve. The Olympia will probably leave Singapore on June 16.

At Bangor, Me., the county authorities Thursday night arrested eight men as a step toward identifying the men who tarred and feathered Evangelist Higgins, of the "Holy Ghost" sect at Levant, on Monday night.

Six large open air meetings under the auspices of the Chicago Single Tax club were held in Chicago Sunday. The speakers in vigorous terms espoused the doctrine and theories made famous by the late Henry George.

Col. Charles E. Compton, 4th cavalry, was retired Friday by order of the president, in order that a colonel for the regiment, Lieut. Col. Michael Cooney, 7th cavalry, might be appointed, to go to Manila to command it.

At London the American chess player, Marshall, won both of his adjourned games with Jones and Esser Thursday night, and thereby took the lead in the minor tournament of the international congress now in progress in London.

The tournament of the Central Schuetzen Bund of North America, to be held at Dubuque, Ia., June 22 to 25, promises to be one of the largest sporting events of the year. About 1,000 sharpshooters from various points between the Ohio river and the Pacific coast will contest for the $5,000 or more offered in prizes.

A strike of 25,000 coal miners in the central district of Pennsylvania is threatened. Secret meetings have been held at Robertsdale and Clearfield, at which the national and district officers of the United Mineworkers' association were authorized to prepare the machine miners of the whole district for a strike to be declared within a month or six weeks.

The remains of Augustin Daly, who died in Paris on Wednesday, arrived at Southampton Saturday from Havre. The casket was inclosed in a case marked "A. D., New York." It was quietly removed from the steamer and placed in a railroad vehicle, which transferred it to the Empress dock for shipment to the United States by the American line steamer New York, which sailed Saturday.

Dr. P. F. Chambers, of New York, has received a letter from his brother, Chief Justice Chambers, of Samoa, dated Apia, May 18. The letter is of a personal nature, but the chief justice says that everything was quiet then at Apia.

The Italian Crown Prince Victor Emanuel, accompanied by the crown princess, arrived at Christiana Friday to join the expedition of the duke of Abruzzi in search of the north pole. They will accompany the duke as far as the borders of the ice field and Spitzbergen.

"Evil Dispositions Are Early Shown."

Just so evil in the blood comes out in shape of scrofula, pimples, etc., in children and young people. Taken in time it can be eradicated by using Hood's Sarsaparilla, America's Greatest Medicine. It vitalizes and enriches the blood.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Never Disappoints

SHE PREFERRED DEATH FIRST

Would Brave the Horrors of the Deep Before She Would Make a Fright of Herself with a Life Preserver.

She was a very plump woman. There are people who say they would like to be just as plump, but the woman herself is always thinking of ways and means by which her appearance of diameter and circumference may be reduced, and anything that will apparently increase she regards with a dislike that is little short of abhorrence. But if there is one thing that she dislikes more than her comfortable plumpness, it is the water. So, when one day, on a steamer in a fog, there was a collision, she was even more unhappy than most people are under such circumstances, though it was related afterward that she behaved with great coolness. There was fortunately no more serious result from the collision than several hours delay, but no one was quite sure in that time what the next minute would bring forth. The husband of the woman with the comfortable plumpness, like the good husband that he was, immediately after the accident found life preservers, and in a matter of fact way started to assist his wife to put one on. But she recoiled with such horror that for a moment he was not sure but the shock had deprived her of her senses.

"Put on one of those things?" she almost shrieked. "Never! Just look at that fat woman over there with one of them on She looks a perfect sight."

And she didn't put the life preserver on and it was her good fortune that she had no reason to regret it.—N. Y. Times.

"Big Four Gift!"—Neely's Spanish-American War Panorama.

Contains 160 superb half-tone engravings, made from photographs taken of our Army in camp, on transports and in actual service, Spanish and American fortifications, Cuba, Havana, Manilla, Landscapes, Architecture; shows the manners and customs of the people of our new Islands; Pictures of our Heroes—Dewey, General Charles King (known as Capt. Charles King, the author), Wheeler, Hobson, Roosevelt, Sampson, Miles, Schley, Shafter, Lee, Brooks, Curtail; Groups of Officers, Cavalry, Artillery, Infantry, Ships, Rifle-practice, Spanish Soldiers, Insurgents, Chickamauga, Jacksonville, Tampa, Last Farewell Letters Home, Hospitals, Clara Barton, Rough Riders, Santiago, San Juan, Manilla, the Beautiful Women of Cuba and Manilla.

The Album is 5x8 inches, weighs 12 ounces, printed on finest coated paper.

Sent FREE to any address in the United States, Canada or Mexico for 12 cents in stamps or coin, to cover postage and packing. Copy may be seen at any ticket office on the Big Four Route.

Order at once, as the edition is limited.

Address WARREN J. LYNCH, General Passenger and Ticket Agent, "Big Four Route," Cincinnati, Ohio.

Mark envelope "War Album."

Family Duties.

Mabel—Wonder what Mrs. Flayabout does to kill time?

Sue—Why, she has a bicycle and a husband, so she divides her time between them—blowing them up.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

The Best Prescription for Chills, and Fever is a bottle of GROVE'S TASTELESS CHILL TONIC. It is simply iron and quinine in a tasteless form. No cure—no pay. Price, 50c.

Feminine Impartiality.

When a girl is interested in a man, if he isn't howlegged and squint-eyed, she says he is as "handsome as a Greek god."—N. Y. Press.

To Cure a Cold in One Day

Take Laxative Bromo Quinine Tablets. All druggists refund money if it fails to cure. 25c.

"It were better to be right than to be president," but it were still better to be both.—Virginia Etchings.

A Story of Sterility, SUFFERING AND RELIEF.

[LETTER TO MRS. PINKHAM NO. 69,186]

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM—Two years ago I began having such dull, heavy dragging pains in my back, menses were profuse and painful, and was troubled was leucorrhœa. I took patent medicines and consulted a physician, but received no benefit and could not become pregnant. Seeing one of your books, I wrote to you telling you my troubles and asking for advice. You answered my letter promptly and I followed the directions faithfully, and derived so much benefit that I cannot praise Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound enough. I now find myself pregnant and have begun its use again. I cannot praise it enough."—MRS. CORA GILSON, YATES, MANISTEE, MICH.

"Your Medicine Worked Wonders."

"I had been sick ever since my marriage, seven years ago; have given birth to four children, and had two miscarriages. I had falling of womb, leucorrhœa, pains in back and legs; dyspepsia and a nervous trembling of the stomach. Now I have none of these troubles and can enjoy my life. Your medicine has worked wonders for me."—MRS. S. BARNHART, NEW CASTLE, PA.

The Greatest Railway Systems of the United States

Use CARTER'S INK

They wouldn't use it if it wasn't good. Costs you no more than poor ink. Insist upon having it.

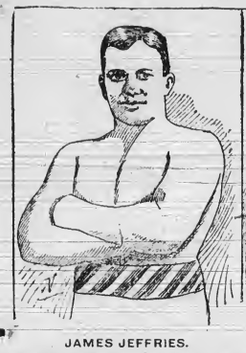
"THE LIFE OF DEWEY" the world's greatest hero, by Murat Halstead. AGENTS WANTED. Only $1.50. OUTFIT FREE. S. C. MILLER, Lakeside Bldg., CHICAGO.

25 CTS. PISO'S CURE FOR CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS. Best Cough Syrup. Tastes Good. Use in time. Sold by druggists. CONSUMPTION 25 CTS.

NEW CHAMPION.

Jeffries Defeats Fitzsimmons in Eleven Rounds of Heavy Fighting.

The Californian Had the Australian Defeated From the Ninth Round—Jeffries Had the Advantage in Weight and Age.



NEW YORK, June 10.—James J. Jeffries, another sturdy young giant, has come out of the west to whip champion pugilists. At the arena of the Coney Island Athletic club Friday night he defeated Robert Fitzsimmons, world's champion in two classes—middleweight and heavyweight—in 11 rounds of whirlwind fighting. He came to the ring a rank outsider and left it the acknowledged master of the man he defeated. He was never at any time in serious danger and after the size-up in the early rounds of the contest took the lead. He had the Australian whipped from the ninth round.

It was acknowledged that Jeffries would have an immense advantage in weight, height and age, but the thousands who tipped and backed his opponent to win were sure that he was slow and that he would in that respect be absolutely at the mercy of the past master at the science of fighting that he was to meet. He proved on the contrary that he was just as fast as the man he met and beat him down to unconscious defeat in a fair fight. He is a veritable giant in stature and marvelously speedy for his immense size. Less than a year ago he appeared in New York a great awkward, ungainly boy. To-day he is the lithe, active, alert, trained athlete.

MORE TROOPS ARE WANTED.

Gen. Otis Sends an Urgent Request for Thirty Thousand Men—Recruiting Going Forward.

WASHINGTON, June 10.—An urgent request for 30,000 more soldiers for immediate service in the Philippines, in addition to half that number that are required for garrison purposes, was contained in a cable-

JAMES JEFFRIES.

ROBERT FITZSIMMONS.

gram received Thursday from Gen. Otis, the full contents of which are guarded with the greatest secrecy. The government has paid prompt heed to the request by urging the speedy enlistment of regulars at all recruiting stations.

It is estimated that 15,000 men are now needed for garrison purposes, and the number required increases with every town captured.

Otis is also said to have again urged the immediate recall of President Schurman, of the peace commission, whose treatment of Aguinaldo's emissaries has been extremely distasteful to the commanding general. Schurman will be allowed to resign on his return. Denby and Worcester, the other members of the commission, will remain, as they agree with Otis in the necessity for unyielding methods.

THE MUNICIPAL FRANCHISES.

The Construction of Urban Trolley Roads, Electric and Gas Lighting Systems on the Island of Porto Rico.

WASHINGTON, June 10.—The war department is considering the advisability of judiciously distributing some municipal franchises in Porto Rico for the construction of urban trolley roads, electric and gas lighting systems and other public works. The broader franchises for steam railroads and telegraphs will not be allotted yet. The war department, should this decision be confirmed, will be guided largely by the feeling of committees affected. Contrary to general belief the Foraker resolution forbidding the allotment of franchises applies only to Cuba and not to Porto Rico.

Attorney Wife Dead.

CHICAGO, June 10.—David J. Wile, the attorney who was shot a few weeks ago by Mabel Burke, who shot and killed herself at the same time, died Thursday night of blood poisoning. Wile was about 42 years old and was prominent in his profession.

The Augustin Daly Funeral.

NEW YORK, June 10.—The funeral of the late Augustin Daly will be held from St. Patricks cathedral in the week following the arrival of the body here from Paris.

MINISTER BELLAMY STORER.

He Will Arrive in Madrid Saturday Afternoon and Present His Credentials to the Queen Regent Monday.

MADRID, June 10.—Mr. Bellamy Storer, United States minister to Spain, arrived here Saturday evening from San Sebastian, the summer residence of the Spanish court, whither Mr. Stanton Sickles, secretary of the legation, has gone to accompany him to Madrid. His delay has no significence whatever. He simply desired to find a residence for his use when the court goes to San Sebastian, and it is now expected that he will present his credentials to the queen regent next Monday.

During Mr. Storer's sojourn in San Sebastian there have been no popular demonstrations and there is nothing to indicate that he will be received here otherwise than courteously. It is quite improbable that there will be any annoyance or demonstration in connection with his arrival. Mr. Storer has wired asking that apartments be prepared at the United States legation for himself, his wife and their servants, but as the legation building is very small he will probably be obliged to have recourse to a hotel until a large house can be chosen for the legation.

BRITISH REDCOATS TO MOVE.

England Orders Thousands of Her Soldiers to the Transvaal—Lord Kitchener May Be in Command.

NEW YORK, June 10.—A London dispatch says: Lord Kitchener is daily at the war office, where the staff is planning for the contemplated operations in the Transvaal. It is proposed to raise the British effective force in South Africa from 9,000, the present number to 32,000. Of these, 2,000 will be British troops and 10,000 will certainly be drawn from India and Australia. In addition, Canada will probably send a number of regiments.

England has virtually committed herself to a policy in dealing with the Transvaal which will not allow of backdown. Some time ago the queen received the petition of 21,000 Outlanders protesting against the unjust condition in which they lived under the Boer regime and begging for assistance from the home government. The petition, on careful examination, was found genuine and the protests of Outlanders were well taken. The colonial office sent a reply, promising that England would see that the desires of the petitioners were satisfied.

In the conference at Bloemfontein the franchise was the chief subject of discussion because this was the subject of the Outlanders' grievance. Kruger's proposals were insufficient. Sir Alfred Milner saw that further parley was not increasing the dignity of his position and broke off the conference summarily.

The Chronicle is responsible for the statement that the government on Thursday asked a well-known firm how soon and on what terms it could supply 1,300 military transport wagons.

REMAINS BURIED AT SEA.

Death of Lieutenant Commander Wainright Kellogg, U. S. N., on Board the Steamer Augusta Victoria.

NEW YORK, June 10.—The steamer Augusta Victoria, which arrived here Friday night from Hamburg, Southampton and Cherbourg, reported the death at sea of Lieutenant Commander Wainwright Kellogg, U. S. N., who was a passenger on the vessel. Lieutenant Commander Kellogg embarked on the Victoria at Hamburg, having been at Carlsbad for several weeks undergoing medical treatment. He was ill when he came on board, and on the evening of June 3 died of heart disease. He was buried at sea.

To Tender Their Services.

CHICAGO, June 10.—Col. Hartigan, of the 7th regiment, telegraphed Gov. Tanner Friday requesting him to tender its services to President McKinley to reinforce the troops in the Philippines.

Cuban Forgers Arrested.

HAVANA, June 10.—The payment of the Cuban troops continues in a satisfactory manner. At Jurueo several men forged the names of soldiers and received money. They were soon discovered, however, and arrested.

THE SITUATION.

Reported That Aguinaldo Dissolves Congress and Becomes Dictator.

Many of the Filipinos Are Coming Into the American Lines and Asking for Protection—Returning Troops to Have Pleasant Voyage.

WASHINGTON, June 9.—The situation in the Philippines is described by Gen. Otis in the following cablegram:

MANILA, June 8.—Adjutant General, Washington: Result movements Morong province was to drive insurgents into mountains, capturing Antipoli and other towns in that section with point of land projecting into bay. They retreated and scattered before our advance, leaving 25 dead on the field; our loss four killed and few wounded, mostly slight. City of Morong only on land route on bay garrisoned, all other troops withdrawn. Inhabitants of provinces profess friendship, ask protection; large numbers wish to enter Manila; refuse, as city population increasing too rapidly. Leading natives throughout land, including active insurgent leaders, seek permission to send families to Manila; considered only place of personal security. OTIS.

WASHINGTON, June 9.—Gen. Otis cables as follows regarding the return of volunteers:

MANILA, June 8.—Adjutant General, Washington: Oregon request to defer time of departure until 12th; will leave for Portland on transports Ohio and Newport. Sixth infantry upon arrival will relieve Californians at Negros. Hancock sails in few days with Nebraska and other troops. OTIS.

MANILA, June 9.—The United States cruiser Boston, Capt. Whiting, has sailed for San Francisco by way of Nagasaki, Japan, with long service officers and men from the various American war ships.

The United States gunboat Albany, one of the vessels purchased from the Spaniards, and commanded by Ensign W. H. Standley, has captured three sailing vessels and one steamer off the island of Negros. Nine of these boats (of the Albany class) are now in commission and are now doing good service in the shallow waters of the southern islands.

Favorable reports are still being received from the party of 15 Americans, belonging to the gunboat Yorktown, headed by Lieut. J. C. Gilmore, of that vessel, captured on April 13 by the Filipinos not far from Baler. The prisoners are all well and are receiving fair treatment.

WASHINGTON, June 9.—The conclusions drawn by war department officials concerning the condition in the Philippines given by Otis in his dispatch are that the insurgents are little more than marauding bands which will continually decrease when the men find that there is life and liberty under American government. These bands are regarded as something like the band of Indians 25 and 30 years ago, and the people who are coming into the American lines asking protection are considered like those who sought protection in the forts during early stages of American development in the west. Nothing is yet said as to the intention of Gen. Otis to continue active hostilities, but this is a matter that will be left wholly in his discretion, and he will no doubt fight or rest as circumstances determine.

Gen. Otis has been advised that it is the wish of this president that all arrangements be made to give the returning troops a comfortable voyage, and that the best of care be taken so that no sickness may break out among them. It is also said that precaution will be taken not to load the transports too heavily, so that the returning troops may have plenty of room.

THE LEGATION FROM SPAIN.

Headquarters Have Been Re-Established in the Quarters Formerly Occupied by Ministers De Lome and Polo.

WASHINGTON, June 9.—The Spanish legation has been re-established in the handsome quarters formerly occupied by Ministers Dupuy De Lome and Polo, at the corner of Massachusetts avenue and 18th street. The archives of the legation have been taken from the Austrian-Hungarian legation and set up in the place they formerly occupied.

The Spanish government is rapidly completing its consular representation in this country and the newly acquired possessions, and Duke D'Arcos has been informed of the following additional appointments:

Consul at Cienfuegos, Cuba, Senor Alvarez; consul at San Juan, Porto Rico, Martinez Tulela; vice consul at San Juan, Jose Cabrero; consul at Manilla, Don Nicolas Rivero; consul at Iloilo, Don Guilliam Leyra.

Fred Douglass Statue.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., June 9.—This city will celebrate the memory of Frederick Douglass, Friday next. A handsome bronze statue will be unveiled in Central Square park. Gov. Roosevelt will make an address.

Dreyfus on Board the Sfax.

CAYENNE, French Guiana, June 9.—Capt. Dreyfus was taken aboard the cruiser Sfax Thursday afternoon. The Sfax anchored off Devil's island. He was taken aboard by a dispatch boat.

THE AMERICAN LINER PARIS.

Her Position on the Rocks Off the Manacles, Where She Grounded, Is Critical—May Break Up at Any Moment.

COVERACK, Cornwall, June 10.—The position of the American liner Paris, which is on the rocks off the Manacles, where she grounded on May 21, is critical. A heavy easterly swell has broken the cables connecting with the steadying anchors, and the steamer has been buffeted severely and much strained. The inrush of water into her has been increased. There are now 20 feet of water in her fore and aft, which has extinguished the fires in the engine rooms.

All hands were called on deck Friday evening in anticipation of the breaking up of the steamer, which, it is feared, will happen unless the weather improves.

All attempts to float her will be abandoned, should there be no improvement in the conditions.

TROOPS WERE SUMMONED.

Serious Riots in the Madras Presidency—Several Villages Have Been Attacked and Plundered

BOMBAY, June 10.—Serious riots have broken out in the Tinnevilley district of the Madras presidency between the Maravars and Kullars on the one hand and the Shanari on the other at Sivakasi.

Several villages have been attacked and plundered, a number of houses burned and some lives lost.

Troops have been summoned to the scene of disturbance from Trichinopoly, an important Anglo-Indian military post.

Lye Recommended for Hog Cholera.

JEFFERSONVILLE, Ind., June 10.—Some time ago a lot of hogs belonging to William Watson, in Oliver township, became afflicted with cholera, and the affected animals were turned into a lot near the house. Soap making was in progress, and one of the sick hogs ate the contents of a can partially filled with lye, and immediately began to recover. Another supply of lye was procured and fed to the other patients, and in every instance the animals recovered. It is now asserted in that neighborhood that concentrated lye is a panacea for the disease, and that the hogs will eat it with avidity.

Hotel for Women.

CHICAGO, June 9.—Within two weeks Chicago will have a hotel conducted by women and exclusively for women. A ten-year lease has been taken on the 100-room hotel building on Michigan avenue known as the Richelieu Annex, and for the last six weeks workmen have been putting it in condition for occupancy. When completed it is to be a home for Chicago business women and women travelers. It will be called the Laurel Club hotel.

May Form a Combination.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., June 10.—A meeting of glass tableware manufacturers is now in session in this city to consider a proposition to form a combination. Twenty-three manufacturers, including the United States Glass Co., owning 20 plants, are represented at the meeting. It was announced that 90 per cent. of the output favored the combination.

Arranging for Quarters.

PHILADELPHIA, June 10.—A delegation of 21 veterans, representing the G. A. R. of Ohio, visited G. A. R. headquarters Friday to arrange for free quarters during the national encampment in September for 600 men, and also to provide entertainment in hotels and boarding houses for a large number of Ohioans able to pay for their accommodations.

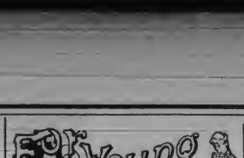
Mediation Suggested.

LONDON, June 10.—The Westminster Gazette Friday afternoon says a rumor is current from a well informed sonrce that it has been proposed in a responsible quarter that the United States mediate between Great Britain and the Transvaal. It is added that the suggestion is being considered and "it is even not improbable that such mediation may be undertaken."

French Press Tells of a Filipino Victory.

PARIS, June 10.—The Matin Friday printed a jubilant Filipino dispatch from Manila saying that Gen. Lawton has been completely routed and that Aguinaldo has regained all his lost territory. Gen. Luna, according to the telegram, has captured hundreds of American prisoners and Manilo is besieged by the Filipinos. The French press accepts this story as true.

Schooner Wrecked.



ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., June 10.—The three masted schooner George A. Howes, the home port of which is Philadelphia, was found wrecked Friday night two miles off Barnegat by the life saving crew of the Barnegat Station. The schooner's crew is believed to have been drowned.

The News Suppressed.

WASHINGTON, June 10.—Dispatches from Gen. Otis continue to come into the war department, and just as steadily are they metamorphised into secret dossiers. They are not for the public, says Acting Secretary Meikeljohn. He says they refer to matters of detail and contain no alarming news.

Hon. Timothy Guy Phelps Dying.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 10.—Hon. Timothy Guy Phelps, chairman of the board of regents of the University of California, is dying.

WHEN TEDDY SMITH.

When Teddy Smith first put on pants,
He felt so very grand
He wouldn't mind his mother,
Or he wouldn't hold her hand.

But on the street he walked ahead,
And tried to whistle some.
He thought perhaps he'd go to war,
And fire an awful gun.

He wouldn't ride his hobby-horse,
He called Jack Spratt "a fib!"
He sat at meals in father's chair,
And scorned his gingham bib.

His mother mustn't spread his bread,
Nor cut things on his plate;
She mustn't say: "No more, my dear!"
No matter what he ate.

She mustn't kiss him when he fell
And bumped him on the stones,
And she must say: "Dear sir," just as She did to Mr. Jones!

So hard to please this gentleman
His loving mother tried,
It quite enlarged his dignity,
And swelled his lofty pride.

And all was brave, and all was well,
Until that mother said,
At eight o'clock: "Of course, dear sir,
You'll go alone to bed!"

Ah, would you have me say what then
Befell the great big man?
For if you undertake to guess—
I hardly think you can!

He turned the corners of his mouth
Most fearfully awry,
He rubbed his grown-up fist awhile
Across his grown-up eye,

Then burying in his mother's lap
Both pride and manly joy,
He said in just the littlest voice:
"I guess I'm just a boy!"

—Catharine Young Glen, in Youth's Companion.

BABY ON AN ELEPHANT.

Children in India Have One Pleasure at Least of Which Our Youngsters Are Deprived.

Lilian Allen Martin describes in St. Nicholas a baby's ride on an elephant. Cuna Moon, the nurse, took Ruth from her crib and sniffed with her nose the warm little cheek and neck; this is the Laos way of kissing. "Nai noy pi doy!" ("The little lady is going on the mountain!") she repeated many times while dressing her. Out on the broad veranda where Ruth spent all her waking hours it was very lively and entertaining. Such a running about and ordering and packing as there was! Mattresses, pillows and blankets were strewn over the floor; dishes, clothing and provisions were being packed into bamboo baskets. In the open space before the house, below the high veranda, four big elephants leisurely broke up and chewed long, juicy banana stalks, making a great rustling noise as they swept the broad leaves over the ground. By and by the hubbub on the veranda quieted down. The filled baskets were fastened two by two, one on each end of a short pole; this pole was hoisted over a man's shoulder, and off he trotted with his load.

BABY ON AN ELEPHANT.

Down among the elephants was a great shouting and groaning and straining. The elephants were made to kneel down while the heavy howdahs, or elephant saddles, were put in place on their backs. Two of the howdahs were packed with bedding, two folding chairs, a coop of chickens, a stone water filter, cans of kerosene—whatever could not be put into the bamboo baskets. The third elephant was led up to the first landing of the long flight of veranda stairs, and Ruth's mamma stepped upon a chair, then on the stair railing and then on the elephant's head, whence it was easy to reach the seat of the howdah. Papa made the passage to the howdah more quickly and with less trepidation. Lastly, dear Dr. McGilvary, who was speeding the expedition, handed the baby over to papa, and a chorus of "Nai noy pi doy" went up from an admiring crowd assembled below. The procession moved out of the gate, the brass bells at the elephants' necks chiming melodiously.

Tattooing and Snake Bites.

While scientific minds are discussing the anti-toxin serum treatment of disease as if it were a new thing, the people of ancient Burmah are calling attention to the fact that for centuries the material they have used in the common custom of tattooing has been an efficient anti-toxin for snake bites. The tattooed Burmese regard the bites of poisonous snakes as harmless. This, at least, is the statement of a gentleman from Burmah, who brings testimony to bear in corroboration of his singular statement.

A Thoughtful Child.

"What is the trouble, Birdie?"

"Father said we mustn't kiss anybody, 'cause we might exchange microbes, an' I was just thinking that Tommy Raglan must have a lot of microbes, and I ought to get 'em back."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

NEPAL'S YOUNG KING.

This Asiatic Boy Has a Vast Army of Seasoned Warriors at His Beck and Call.

Sumshere Jung is the name of the young king of Nepal, one of the strangest governments and countries in the world. It lies between Thibet and India, and contains the highest mountains of the loftiest of the earth's ranges, the Himalayas. This little king has 100,000 of the best warriors in the continent of Asia at his back, and it is therefore easy for him to command the respect of all the neighboring tribes and governments. Even the English remain on friendly terms with him and hire some of his soldiers to help them conquer the Hindus.

The people of Nepal are a strange mixture of races.

The ruling tribes are the Ghoorkas, whose prowess has given them the supremacy. They are of Aryan stock, whiter than the Hindus, and despise all arts save that of war. The religion of the different tribes varies between Buddhism and Brahminism, but not much of what we call civilization is to be found there. The capital city is Kathmandu, where the rajah or king lives in a queer palace made up of a large number of small pagodas, surrounded by shrines erected to the Hindu gods. These are often smeared with the blood of the sacrifices brought to the gods, giving a most savage appearance to the palace environs.

THE BOY KING OF NEPAL.

Of course this rajah is too young now to do the actual ruling, which is in the hands of his chief minister, but the power of the ruler is absolute, and he can order life or death for anyone who displeases him. The people are so afraid of foreign influences that they will not permit Europeans to even enter their dominions, so it has been impossible to survey the country and ascertain the height of the mountains, which tower thousands of feet in air. The Chepangs, one of the tribes, live in a savage state in huts made of branches and eat wild fruits or the animals that they hunt. Another tribe, the Meehs, is famous for its beautiful women, who are in such great demand that their parents are enriched by the prices paid for them, for wives are openly bought by the highest bidder. The Tibetan lamas have made many converts in Nepal and have a great Buddhist temple three miles from the city. Sumshere Jung is king over many thousands of human beings, but any little American boy will have much more that is worth living for than he.—Cincinnati Commercial Gazette.

THIS IS WORTH TRYING.

If You Hold Your Hand and Fingers as Shown in Picture They Cannot Be Parted.

If you will hold your two hands together as shown in the picture no one can pull them apart by catching hold of your wrists from beneath, with the thumbs toward the wrists, as shown. Your hands are to be held open in front of you, with the finger tips just touching.

HOLD YOUR HANDS THIS WAY.

OLD-FASHIONED GAME.

For Little Boys and Women to Play After the Birthday Feast Has Been Eaten.

After the goodies had been eaten, all the French crackers pulled with a snap, and the boy and girl guests at a birthday party are growing tired of new fashioned amusements, here's something to play—an old-fashioned game called "the flour and the ring."

This is the way you do it. Somebody must mold in a coffee cup a mound of flour. It only takes a little practice to turn the shape out perfectly upon a plate. When the mound is formed drop into the center of it some little gift—a ring, a pretty pin or any small article a boy or girl would fancy.

Whoever starts the game must take a knife and cut through the mound to the plate. Each one in the circle repeats this until the lucky boy or girl comes across the hidden prize, when he or she must pick it out with the teeth.

The floury nose, cheeks and chin of the prize winner look enough like a clown's after this last proceeding to amuse a whole roomful of merry children.

First Intoxicate the Fish.

In order to capture fish a South American tribe whips the water with the wood of a tree which contains a substance having a narcotic influence on the fish, which are then readily caught.

Limaburg.

Wallace Tanner is able to be about.

Ezra Aylor has a felon on one of his fingers.

E. J. Rouse had a good milch cow to die last week

Mr. Hografly and family were guests of Everett Dixon Sunday.

Jas. Crisler is building a barn on Henry Clore's Gunpowder land.

The Harvest Home board met Saturday and fixed the premium list.

Mrs. Ezra Rouse and Mr. Henry Holman, of Cincinnati, will be married on the 20th inst.

Miss Flora Youell's school closed last Friday. She treated the children with ice cream and candy.

Dogs raided Chas. Youell's sheep, one night last week, and killed 12 and wounded several that will die.

Wm. Batterson, of Mound Field, stopped here the other day and invested in a patent mouse trap, to catch the little pests that are destroying his supply of potatoes left over from last year.

For sale at Burlington, June 17, on a credit of 3 months, 1 phaeton and one barouche. Both in first class condition.
BRADFORD BROS.

It is hoped that Green Bros. will receive encouragement sufficient to induce them to continue the work of erecting telephone lines in this county, until they complete a system connecting all the county towns. This done there will be but little trouble to get connection with all the surrounding counties.

A few days ago one of the sons of Elijah Parker, who lives near the mouth of Woolper creek, plowed up an old cutlass that has been lost many, many years. Just across the river from Mr Parker's was where a terrible battle was fought by the Indians and whites, in early days, and it is believed that this cutlass took part in that battle.

The fourth annual exhibition of the North Kentucky Agricultural Association will be held at its grounds at Florence, August 30th and 31st and September 1st and 2d. The first day will be for mules, draft horses, sheep, fruits and pantry and dairy. Second day.—Beef cattle, saddle horses, hogs, flowers, and paintings and drawings, with a potato race first thing after dinner as a special feature. Third day.—Dairy cattle, harness horses, embroidery and quilts, with a colored cakewalk immediately after dinner as the special feature for the day. This is the day for the fancy turnout, also. Fourth day.—All purpose horses, grains, vegetables, poultry and ladies riding.

COUNTY COURT.

N. L. Moore, Geo. W. Crouch and J. W. Quigley each granted a license to peddle merchandise for the period of one year.

W. H. Metcalf, J. A. Sanders and James Watson were appointed to view a proposed change in the road leading up McCoy's Fork.

Michael Cahill was granted a license to keep hotel in Florence.

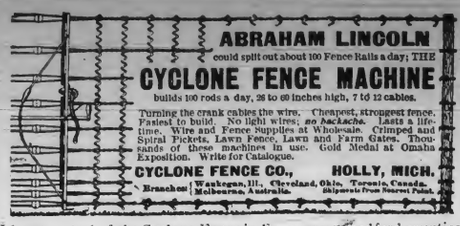
Will of B. H. Ryle, deceased, probated, and Annie C. Ryle qualified as administratrix.

Will of L. B. Stephens, deceased, admitted to probate, and D. L. Frazier and J. D. Sbouse qualified as executors.

Chief Rolling Rear is now at Bulington with his Medicine Company and village of white tents, coming here Monday, from Hebron, where they delighted large audiences every night for two weeks, and where the Chief left everybody his friend. Mrs. Dr. Sayer was awarded the gold watch, she having been voted the most popular lady of Hebron. The Chief and Mr. Kelsie, a champion checker player, had several interesting games, winning two each while there were six draws. Chief Rolling Bear, of the once great Iroquois Nation, is the grand-son of the celebrated Chief, "Red Jacket," of the Tuscarora tribe, the first people to make peace with the whites, and to help maintain it, making it possible for them to own this now great country. Princess Rising Sun, is the Indian lady. She tells by looking at you your disease, for which she makes no charge for it.

To the Editor of the Recorder:

Last Saturday's sun shone on one of the most pleasing events of the season, viz: The closing exercises of the spring school at Grange Hall, taught by Miss Nannie Bristow. Before the noon hour the patrons and friends began to arrive, and, greatly to the pleasure and surprise of the children, brought well filled baskets, and, oh! what a spread, my tongue cleaves to the roof of my mouth and my pen stops in palsied confusion for the lack of descriptive words. Various and numerous were the substantials, followed by delightful ices, until the most famished appetite was thoroughly appeased. At two o'clock, the school bell bade us assend to the upper room where, for about two hours, we were most royally entertained by the bright, happy youth there assembled. Words fail me in attempting to describe the program, so well rendered. I should like to make special mention of each, but time and space forbid, suffice it to say, it was a credit to both pupils and teacher. Those of us who are parents, had reason to feel proud of our children, and would I not bespeak the sentiment of all, to say, feel under lasting obligations to our most excellent teacher in her untiring efforts to instruct?



A PATRON.

CINCINNATI, June 12, 1899.

To the Editor of the Recorder:

Dear Sir:—I wish to say to the public through your columns that the Central Covington Stock Yards have been doing a very nice business since their opening, and we anticipate a good business from this date on, as the time has come that Kentucky stock will begin to move to market.

I am proud to say that the management has arranged so that we may have a leading lamb market for this season. While our receipts have been some less for the past week than at Cincinnati, prices have been higher; Cincinnati prices last week, 6¼ to 7c.; at Covington, 6¾ to 7¼ c., several loads selling at the latter price, and feeling confident that on no day will we have to take less than Cincinnati prices, as the prices have been very good and many lambs can be used daily, we are free to solicit Boone and adjoining counties at our new place, knowing the

ABRAHAM LINCOLN
could split out about 100 Fence Rails a day; THE
CYCLONE FENCE MACHINE
builds 100 rods a day, 26 to 60 inches high, 7 to 12 cables.
Turning the crank cabies the wire. Cheapest, strongest fence. Fastest to build. No light wires; no Jackarbs. Lasts a lifetime. Wire and Fence Supplies at Wholesale. Crimped and Spiral Pickets, Lawn Fence, Lawn and Farm Gates. Thousands of these machines in use. Gold Medal at Omaha Exposition. Write for Catalogue.
CYCLONE FENCE CO., HOLLY, MICH.
Branches: Waukegan, Ill., Cleveland, Ohio, Toronto, Canada, Melbourne, Australia. Galvanic Free Secret Paint.

I have control of the Cyclone Fence in Boone and Woodford counties. I will build the fence or sell machines to farmers that they may build their own fences. It is the cheapest and best fence that can be built.
Address G. CARTER GRADDY, BULLITTSVILLE, KY.

handlers will be benefitted We are also glad to say that we handled our hog trade to the best advantage, at no time selling below Cincinnati prices.

We have also sold several car loads of butcher cattle above Cincinnati prices, and when the heavy cattle begin to move, we can safely say that our market will exceed any of the past five years for this grade.

Hoping all dealers may note the above, and consider the benefit, as the writer, with a long experience, well knows, that it is much to their advantage.

Very respectfully, J. M. CONNER.

It keeps raining.

Weeds are growing rapidly.

Strawberries have played out, and raspberries have succeeded them.

To the Editor of the Recorder:

A portion of the people of Boone county have, of late, been employing their minds in regard to free turnpikes. Men generally are for or against this question as they think it will be beneficial or injurious to their interests. I heard a prominent hay-hauler say some time since that he was for free turnpikes because it would be for his interest. He seemed not to care how large the taxes of his friends were, so he could drive through the toll gates, his speed unchecked, his purse unmolested. This thing we call selfishness, destroys principle, lays aside the golden rule, "do unto others as you wish others to do unto you," and would make us favor free clothes and free hash, free drinks, and, in fact, free and unlimited everthing provided we got the benefit while the other fellow pays the bill. This hay-hauler thought he would save the amount of his toll. In this he is mistaken. Competition would force him to pay that much more per load to the farmers.

Some think that free turnpikes means new pikes also. This is a mistake. The law says no more than 25 cents on the $100 shall be taxed annually for road purposes. We have been taxed 10 cents on the $100 in addition to a poll tax for working the road this has been the for several years. This 10 per cent is two fifths of the tax allowed, and what benefit does the county derive from it, and what reasons have we for believing that the other three-fifths would not be sufficient to keep the pikes now built in repair, and the only chance for new pikes would be a hardship on many of our people.

The people who travel pikes most or those who live on or near pikes and the free turnpike system would simply tax the remainder of the county for their benefit.

Mr. Lassing's plan is partly right, so far as it builds pikes by subscription, but wrong as to county aid. It simply causes the man who lives on a dirt road that will never be macadamized to pay as much tax per acre toward enhancing the value of the farmers possessions who is fortunate enough to live on the thorough-fares, as he does. The road tax a man pays should be spent on the road in which he is most interested. Yet the Lassing plan is profferable to our unexecuted system. Our present system will be all right when the appointing power learns he must rise or fall by his administration; when he learns that by appointing men as road overseers who want it for what there is in it, the county invariably gets the hot end of the poker; when he learns that when God "made man upright and in his own image," he did not take into consideration the average road overseer. If he had he surely would have been two days longer on the works of creation; when he learns all this and acts accordingly, our present road system will have but few opponents. VERONA.

To the Editor of the Recorder:

Mr. J. M. Lassing's road plan may seem all right to some, but it would not be just to give one end of the county the road money to build pikes, and the other end to wait, perhaps, eight or ten years to build a pike for them. To work the roads by hand system as we use to do would increase the tax in the start one more dollar on each road worker. More than this it would add the privilege to call you out more than two days in a year. The only fair way to settle the road problem is to leave it to an open vote of a majority of the people who have to bear the burden of taxation. J. E. HALL.

FROM OWEN COUNTY.

[News]

The extremely hot weather has injured the newly set tobacco, to a large extent. A great deal will have to be re-set.

The prospects for wheat this season are not very flattering. It is thin, the heads are small, and the rust has injured it greatly.

We'll wager that Owenton is the greatest town, and Owen the greatest county in the country for swell turnouts and rubber tired vehicles. It's really wonderful the immense number sold, and many are of the highest priced variety.

Mr. J. Van Sutter and Tim Jusett, two prominent tobacco growers of the Monterey precinct, were in town Saturday, and called at this office. They both said that grasshoppers and snails were completely devastating the tobacco crop in that section.

Some miscreant has been getting into John Sebree's store quite often lately and Sunday night he "layed for them." About ten o'clock they attempted it again and he opened up on them with his rapid firing artillery. The theives escaped but it was made pretty hot for them.

In the District Court of the United States, for the District of Kentucky, in Bankruptcy.

In the matter of Hiram Long a Bankrupt

In this 4th day of May, A. D., 1899, on considering the petition of the aforesaid bankrupt for discharge, filed on the 27th day of April, A. D., 1899, it is ordered by the court that a hearing be had upon the same on the 8th day of July, A. D., 1899, before said court at Louisville in said district at 10 o'clock, in the forenoon, or as near thereto as practicable, and that notice thereof be published one time in Boone County Recorder, a newspaper printed in said district, and that all known creditors and other persons in interest may appear at said time and place and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of said petitioner should not be granted.

Witness the Honorable Walter Evans, Judge of said Court, and the seal thereof, (L. S.) at Covington, on the 4th day of May, A. D., 1899.
JOS. C. FINNELL, Clerk.

Consign your Stock to
Rabenstein, Harris & Conner,
—Live Stock—
COMMISSION MERCHANTS,
COVINGTON STOCK YARDS, Covington, Ky.,
OR UNION STOCK YARDS, Cincinnati, Ohio.
When shipping East bill our care privilege selling Central Covington Stock Yards.
We will make it to your advantage and give your stock special personal attention.

Helms' ~ Barber ~ Shop,
PETERSBURG, KY.
Hair cut 15c, on Saturday 20c; Shave 10c; Shampoo 15c; Sea Foam 5c; Hair Singe 5c; Beard Trim 5c, other work proportionally as low in price. Ladies' and childrens' work a specialty. ☞All work guaranteed satisfactory or money refunded. Hair Oils, Tonics, Perfume, etc., for sale. Thanking all for past favors, I remain, &c.,
EVERETT HELMS, Prop.

LADIES—To the ladies that have not paid us a call, will say, that Thursday is conceded to be their day. Ladies Shampoo 25c; Sea Foam 15c; Bangs trimmed 10c. Hair dressed for special occasions a specialty, at reasonable rates. Courteous treatment is our motto. Give us a call.

Central Covington Stock Yards,
COVINGTON, KY.
Are located so as to offer special inducements to shippers South of the Ohio river in saving them extra expense and time. In addition to the local buyers there will be Eastern and foreign buyers on the market for all kinds of stock. When shipping East, don't fail to consign our care privilege selling which will be of benefit to you.
Central Covington Stock Yards Co.
Commission firms will give prompt attention to consignments.

DON'T PAY TWO PROFITS!
IF YOU WANT A
Buggy or Carriage
Go direct to the factory and save the 50 or 75 per cent. that agents add to the factory price; get all you can in material and workmanship — put agents commission in the vehicle or your pocket. Come and see us and we will prove to you that your home factory will give you
BETTER WORK for the MONEY
than can be gotten from any agents.
See Our 2500 Mile Dust Proof Axle,
before buying a vehicle. We warrant and stand by all our work.
BRADFORD BROS.,
FLORENCE, KY.

J. T. MARSHALL.
SALESMAN FOR
F. W. KASSEBAUM & SON,
Manufacturers and Dealers in
Granite and Marble Monuments.
GRANT P. O., KENTUCKY.

FRANK HOSSMAN,
Hebron, Ky.,
CARPENTER AND BUILDER,
Also handles all
KINDS OF ROOFING,
Which is put on and put on at the Lowest Prices consistent with good work.
I am prepared for moving buildings.
Your Work is Solicited.

ADDINGTON, No. 27008,
Will make the season at my stable, at $10 to insure colt to stand up and suck. Addington is a brown, 16 hands high, sired by Dictation, by Young Jim, by Geo Wilkes 2.22 dam, C. M. Clay 22; 2d dam by Almont 33.
J. A. RIDDELL, Hebron, Ky.

WHEN IN RISING SUN, INDIANA,
Stop and see

Jno. D. Baxter
—THE—
SADDLE and HARNESS
Man. He keeps a large stock of Saddles, Harness, Collars, Whips, Bridles, Trace Chains, Hames, &
In fact everything kept in a first-class Harness Store, and at the Lowest Cash Prices; we buy strictly for cash and can save customers benefit by it. Call and be convinced for yourself.
JOHN D. BAXTER.
THE OLD RELIABLE

BUGGIES!

IF YOU WANT A GOOD
BUGGY
To suit you and stand the rough roads and made to order, call on ECKSTEIN NOVELTY CO.,
—AGENTS FOR—
JAMES & MAYER BUGGY COMPANY,
LAWRENCEBURG, IND.

CORNER
Drug Store
Rising Sun, Ind.
Is the place for anything in the Drug Line.
WALL PAPER, PAINTS, WINDOW SHADES, STATIONERY, PERFUMES, FANCY GOODS, &c.
B. F. BUCHANAN,
—DRUGGIST,—
Over thirty years experience.

FARMERS
Take Notice!
If you want good
Fertilizer
PLEASE GIVE
B. F. ZIMMER
A CALL.
He will try to please you. He has the finest line of Fertilizer for 1899 he has ever handled. Write for particulars to
CONSTANCE, KY.

NOTICE.
J. E. Rouse's Guernsey Bull "Jesson 3662." will be found at his father's this season—fee $1.

DR. A. P. WALTON,
DENTIST,
CINCINNATI,
The Lancaster Building 22 W. 7th, Bet. Vine and Race.

INSURE AT HOME
The Farmers' Mutual Fire
INSURANCE COMPANY,
OF BOONE COUNTY,
Is now completely organized and receiving applications for insurance.
Its Rates are Lower
Than those of any other Company and gives the farmers of Boone County
HITHERTO UNKNOWN ADVANTAGE
In keeping their property insured.
EVERY FARMER IN THE COUNTY should take a policy at once.
E. H. BLANKENBECKER, - President, Florence, Ky.
EDGAR CROPPER, - Vice-President.
OSCAR GAINES, Secretary, Burlington.
J. E. DUNCAN, Treasurer.
EXECUTIVE BOARD—Legrand Gaines, J. W. Conner, John Stephens.
J. E. SMITH, Assessor, - Burlington, Ky.
W. M. ROGERS, Agt. - Walton, Ky.

1899. SEASON 1899.
CRESCENT HILL STOCK FARM.
TIMOTHY BOY, No. 27854
Bay horse, foaled April 3, 1893, bred by D. Bedinger & Son, Richwood, Ky. Sired by Wilkes Boy, 2:24, 1st dam, Alga by Artillery, 2:21½; 2d dam Valdosta by Nutwood, 2:18½; 3d dam Emma Arlington (dam of Sir Armond, 2:22, and 2-dam of two in 2:30 list) by Mambrino Patchen 58; 4th dam Jenny Johnson (grand-dam of three in 2:30 list) by Sweet Owen, thoroughbred, &c.
Wilkes Boy is one of the best sons of the great Geo. Wilkes, 2:22.
TIMOTHY BOY is one of the best bred horses in the State, is 16½ hands high and weighs 1,200 lbs. In ordinary condition, a horse of great power, good bone, fine style and action, perfectly sound in every particular. He is a pure gaited trotter and his colts are large with plenty of style and action, the kind that are in demand all the time. Service fee $10 to insure a live colt, money due when colt is foaled or mare parted with.
THE FINE MAMMOTH JACK,
Nutwood,
Will make the season of 1899 at $8.00 to insure a live colt, money due when colt is foaled or mare parted with.
DESCRIPTION & PEDIGREE.
Nutwood is a dark brown or black with white points, 16 hands high, very heavy bone and well built, large head and ears, heavy body and good action; foaled July 6, 1891, was bred by J. M. Park, Madison county, Ky. Nutwood is by Blackwood, 16½ hands high, one of the best mule and jennet jacks in Kentucky; 1st dam by Griggs' Big Tom, 16 hands high; 2d dam by the Hubbert jack, &c.
TIMOTHY BOY and Nutwood will make the season on Daniel Bedinger's farm on the Richwood & Beaver pike, 3 miles west of Richwood.
☞Pasture and attention furnished mares at $1.50 per month. Care taken to prevent accidents, but no responsibility should any occur.
J. C. BEDINGER, Richwood, Ky.

SEASON 1899.
OAKKNOLL STOCK FARM
UGO!
Foaled 1892, sired by Simmons 2744, (record 2:28,) sire of 75 in 2:30, and 14 in the 2:12 list; by George Wilkes 519, (record 2:22); 1st dam by Almont Boy 4308; 2nd dam by Norman 25; 3d dam by C. M. Clay 18.
UGO is a dark chestnut, 16½ hands high, weighs 1,150 pounds, a very kind prompt driver, also a good saddler.
Will make the season of 1899, on Thursdays, Fridays and Court days at Burlington, Ky., and the remainder of the time at my barn, one mile west of Uzlinger, Ky., at $10 to insure a live colt, money due as soon as colt is foaled.
Care will be taken to prevent accidents, but I will not be responsible should any occur.
SCOTT CHAMBERS.

5 Per Cent. MONEY TO LOAN.
Real estate security. Any sum from $1,000 to $2,000 at 5½ per cent. Sums of $2,000 and over at 5 per cent. Interest payable semi-annually. No loans made for a less time than two years.—No loans under $1,000 considered.
B. C. BEDINGER, Agent,
Beaver Lick, Ky.
☞Farms especially wanted, me0tf

D. E. CASTLEMAN,
ATTORNEY - AT - LAW,
BURLINGTON, KY.
Will practice in the Courts of Boone Kenton, Grant and Gallatin. Collections pushed energetically.

G. G. HUGHES,
ATTORNEY AT LAW,
BURLINGTON, KY.
Will practice in all the courts. Prompt attention given to all business entrusted to me.

P. E. CASON,
ATTORNEY - AT - LAW,
BURLINGTON, KY.
Practice in all Courts. Promptness guaranteed.

J. G. TOMLIN,
ATTORNEY - AT LAW,
WALTON, KENTUCKY.
Will practice in the courts of Boone, Kenton Grant and Gallatin. Prompt attention given to Collections entrusted to me. mch22-93.

W. E. VEST,
County Surveyor,
BURLINGTON, KY.
Is prepared to do all kinds of Surveying. All orders by mail promptly attended to.

J. M. LASSING. N. L. RIDDELL
LASSING & RIDDELL,
ATTORNEYS AT LAW.
BURLINGTON, KY.
Prompt Attention Given to Collections

S. GAINES,
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW.
BURLINGTON, KY.
Will practice in all the courts, and promptattention given collections. Office—In residence four fast of office.

S. W. ADAMS,
ATTORNEY - AT - LAW,
ERLANGER, KENTUCKY.
Will practice in the courts of Boone and adjoining counties. Collections and real estate law practice.

W. E. VEST,
Real Estate Agent.
Farms Bought, Sold or Exchanged, Money to Loan on Real Estate, Notes bought, sold & Negotiated.
☞All communications addressed to W. E. VEST, Burlington, Ky.

BOONE CO. DEPOSIT BANK.
(Incorporated 1880.)
CAPITAL, ... $30,000
Surplus and undivided profits, 20,000
—)o(—
Our facilities enable us to receive on favorable terms accounts of individuals and corporations. Collections promptly remitted for at lowest rates

ERLANGER DEPOSIT BANK.
(INCORPORATED 1893.)
ERLANGER, - - KENTUCKY
CAPITAL PAID IN..... $50,000
SURPLUS..... $ 3,000
Careful attention given collections and remittances promptly made. Deposit accounts solicited.

Dr. J. L. Adams,

DENTIST,
Walton, Kentucky.
Artificial Dentures, Crown and Bridge Work to represent natural organs.
☞Will be in office at Union every Monday.
Satisfaction - Guaranteed.

JOHN L. VEST,
SURVEYOR
WALTON, KY.
Is prepared to do all kinds of work south of Burlington, Ky. Prompt attention given to all mail orders.

Take the Recorder, $1.50 a year.

BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

VOL. XXIV. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, JUNE 21, 1899. NO. 35.

NEW TWO DOLLARS.

The new silver certificate of the denomination of $2 will soon be issued. The portrait of Lincoln will be the central feature on the face. The general scope of the design will be similar to the new certificates for $1, in leaving as much white paper blank as possible, in order to show the silk threads, and in making the figures plain and distinct. The back will be similar to the present one-dollar certificates, with a liberal display of white paper, but will contain even more artistic lathe work done by the best machinery in the Bureau of Engraving and Printing. The effort is being made, insubstituting new designs for the present gracefully drawn models, to secure simplicity and clearness. A large figure in each corner of the note, or at least one at each end, has been gracefully provided, in order to facilitate the counting of notes by cashiers, and much space has been left blank in order to aid in the detection of counterfeits. The large, clear figures also contribute to prevent raising the denomination of notes. A one-dollar silver certificate of the new design recently reached the Secret Service Division of the Treasury, which had been raised to $10, in spite of the large, clear figures of the genuine note.—Washington Special New York Times.

[Commonwealth, June 10th.]

In his charge to the grand jury yesterday Judge Tarvin said:

"There is absolutely no hope that can be indulged in by the people of the United States that the National Administration, whose duty it is to destroy these trusts, who can destroy them whenever it chooses to do it, will do so. The Attorney-General of the United States, the officer created for the purpose of prosecuting violators of law, the officer created for the purpose of exterminating and wiping out things like this, that officer is a man who owes every dollar he ever had in his life to trusts, who was made Governor of the State of New Jersey by the trusts, who was created by the trusts, who is owned by the trusts to-day. It was found that no other man in the United States could be got hold of fit to fill the office of attorney-general. He fills that office today, and you know as well as I do, and as well as the man who put him in that office, that he is not going after these trusts; that he was not put there for the purpose of going after them, but that he was put there for the purpose of prostituting that high office in defiance of the people, when he ought to be engaged in wiping these concerns out.

Judge Tarvin in his charge says that such offenses as selling cigarettes to minors, operating poolrooms, etc., are matters over which the violation of this anti-trust law takes precedence and lays particular stress upon the distillery business in Covington, which is said to be controlled by a trust. He charged the grand jury to demand the books of these distilleries, adding that he would see that they got the books demanded.

In concluding his charge Judge Tarvin cites that it has come to be a matter of gossip that agents of certain companies doing business in Kentucky are banded together, in violation of the law, to extort money, and recommends that if such is the case such agents be indicted.

In this issue appears the announcement of ex-County Judge Benjamin Stephens, of Florence, as a candidats to represent this county in the Lower House of the next General Assembly. He is too well known to need any introduction. His democracy is unquestioned, and if he is elected he will make the county a good representative.

Never before was the Democratic party in Kentucky worked up over a contest within its own lines like it is over that now ready for submission to the convention at Louisville, and is hoped that the like of it may never again occur.

Foraker and Kohlsatt are both among the living yet.

Hot time in the old town of Louisville, now.

STATE NEWS.

Forty of the 600 cases on the Christian Circuit Court docket are for divorce.

The local option contest at Greenup has been carried to the Circuit Court.

In Louisville, during May, there were 235 deaths, 240 births and 24 marriages.

David Casey, of Robertson county, was bitten by spider, and life for awhile despaired of.

The annual meeting of the General Association of Kentucky Baptists met at Mt. Sterling, last week.

There are said to be but three or four mild cases of smallpox in Butler county, and all patients are rapidly recovering.

The Lexington Canning Factory expects to can tomatoes, peas and other vegetables from 125 acres of land this season.

The postoffice at Covington has been advanced to a first-class office and the salary of the postmaster increased from $2,000 to $3,100 a year.

At Sadieville, while loading logs on car, chain broke, letting log fall upon Mansell Morris, crushing shoulder blade and inflicting other injuries.

Oil leases are being taken throughout the section of Lawrence county south and east of Blaine creek. Reports from the Blaine well are still good.

Mrs. Williams, an old lady of near Oxford, while returning from a visit to her son in Leesburg neighborhood, her horse fell on her, breaking arm near wrist.

The Fiscal Court of Pulaski county will submit the proposition to the voters in November for a bond issue of $100,000 to construct turnpikes.

The Rev. J. H. Anderson has resigned the pastorate of the Owenton Baptist church after a long and faithful stewardship, and will locate probably in Atlanta.

Rev. Thos. Cooper was fined $20 for disturbing public worship at Moreland. He interrupted another minister who did not preach the gospel according to his notions.

At Lexington, Will Robinson, negro employed on new courthouse, fell from scaffolding on second floor; was badly bruised about body, and intestines torn loose.

Tuberculosis has developed in the milch cows at the Eastern Kentucky Lunatic Asylum, and three of the herd have been killed to prevent the spread af the disease,

In Anderson, Wm. Brown, of Brown's store, died of cancer on the face. Two years ago a little pimple was shaved off his face by a barber, and in less than a year it was a large cancer.

Rev. Dr. B. F. Zimmerman, pastor of Christ's Church at Beattyville and Proctor, drowned while bathing in Kentucky river; leaves a wife who was visiting in Ohio at time of accident.

Gov. Bradley has promised to give Lexington the Spanish gun which the Federal authorities have awarded to Kentucky as an evidence of the Nation's signal victory in the recent war with Spain.

Three new churches are to be built at Guthrie as soon as it is possible to raise the money. The Southern Methodists, the Baptists and the Presbyterians are all taking subscriptions for new church buildings.

The good roads convention at Lexington was largely attended. A committee was appointed to investigate the road laws of other States with a view to amending the Kentucky statutes on the subject. The committee will hold a meeting in Louisville this fall.

David Rider, who persisted in paying attention to Mrs. Thompson, who was being sued for divorce, was taken from her room in Hardin county by a mob, and after being tarred and feathered, was placed astride a rail and jolted around till he was almost dead.

The story that Bert Stout, of Marion, Ky., had been killed in battle with the insurgents near Manila, was without foundation. In a recent letter to a relative the brave Crittenden county boy says he is well and doing battle for Uncle Sam, says the Marion Gazette.

Rumor has it that oil in paying quantities has been found on the Floyd Mason farm at the mouth of Deer creek, four miles above this place, says the Hawesville Plaindealer, but the well has been calked up, and leases are being taken throughout that whole region.

Clarence Hendricks, a young man of Carter county, called on a young woman and stayed so late that he undertook to save time by taking a short cut to his home. He lost his bearings and walked over a cliff about ninety feet high. He fell in the top of a beech tree, which saved him.

Pat Curran found on his place two and one-half miles north of Elkton what promises to be a rich find, says the Todd county Times. It is a large piece of lead, fully 80 per cent. pure, and he says the piece which he showed us is only one of many which he has picked up on his farm.

The Harrodsburg Democrat is responsible for the following:—"Peter Vandiver cut a bee tree on Scott McClure's farm. Besides two swarms of bees and a tub of honey, he captured seven pole cats, one dry land tarrapin, three fox squirrels and a big owl. All the animals were getting along amicably together."

A precocious Paris child surprised his mother a few nights ago with an unexpected addition to his evening prayer. He had been told to pray for the safety of his father while the latter was away from home, and on the night of his return the delighted child added to his prayer "much oblige to you, Lord, for bringing my papa home."

The Court of Appeals in a decision rendered by Judge Paynter holds the Convict Parole law to be constitutional and of full force and effect. The opinion holds, however, that the law is enforceable only by the State Sinking Fund Commission and not by the present Board of Prison Commissioners. Judge Guffy dissents from the opinion.

Capt. P. B. Thompson purchased two or three gallons of strawberries the other day of a man from Garrard county. They were without doubt, the largest berries that have been sold here this season—the smallest being as large as a hen egg. They were so large that it was necessary to slice them up before serving. When one of the largest was cut open a full grown mouse jumped out, scaring the cook until she almost fainted. —Harrodsburg Democrat.

The Mormon elders are still having trouble at Pleasant Hill, Lewis county. Trustee Moore, of the Pleasant Hill school, went into the school house during Mormon services, Sunday, and broke up the meeting. He drove them from the house, ordering them not to return. The Mormons say that they will hold their meetings in spite of Moore, and there promises to be trouble between them and the trustee and his friends.—West Union Defender.

Greenville is one of the oldest towns in the State, but in the annals of our town's history there is no mention made of such protection to foster the hog industry as we are now enjoying. People who own the hogs do not have the trouble or expense of feeding them. But a man who furnished, without consent, a midnight lunch of a hen and fourteen chickens for a strange hungry sow says hog-killing season is going to come earlier this year than has ever been known—Greenville Record.

The jury in the $125,000 damage suit of W. B. Tate against the Drummond and other tobacco companies at Louisville, reported a verdict for the defendants. Tate who formerly conducted a warehouse, charged that the defendants conspired against him and, after a boycott, forced him out of business. He charged defendants with being members of a trust formed to control the tobacco market. The defendants claimed to have quit dealing with Tate because of his manner of doing business, and denied all his allegations.

The following is told on one of our Hickman clerks who was engaged in showing a lady some parasols. He had a good command of language, and knew how to commend his goods. As he picked up a parasol from the lot on the counter and opened it, he struck an attitude of admiration and, holding it up, said: "Now, there, isn't it lovely? Look at that silk. Particularly observe the quality, the finish, the general effect. Pass your hand over it," he said, as he handed it to the lady; "isn't it a beauty?" "Yes," said the lady, that's my old one; I just laid it down there."—Hickman Courier.

One day last week the family physician was called to see the little daughter of Mr. W. F. Woodsides, who lives some five miles east of town, and he found symptoms of lockjaw. She nor none of the family could tell any injury that could possibly lead to this fearful affliction. The physician began close examination and found a little abrasion of the skin between two of her toes, and a splinter was removed. The little patient then remembered of hurting the toe some two weeks before. A severe case of lockjaw soon developed, and despite all the skill and effort that could be brought to bear by the physicians, the little girl grew worse, one paroxysm following another until death brought relief. — Marion Press.

W. G. Cram, of Grant county, has the unique distinction of receiving dividends on his own tombstone. The tombstone, or monument, stands in the cemetery at Williamstown. Twelve years ago a marble works company made a proposition to Mr. Cram to erect a monument in his private lot, to be paid for at once, but to bear the rate of 10 per cent interest, to be paid to him by the company as long as he should live. The terms were accepted and the monument, costing $1,500, was erected. Mr. Cram has passed the age of three score and ten, but is still alive, with many more years promised. The monument has already paid him in dividends $300 more than the original cost of building it. It was damaged during a recent windstorm, but will be repaired at the company's expense.

A Lexington correspondent says the tobacco of Central Kentucky will be curtailed this year at least one-third. The Blue Grass country is a great hemp growing section of Kentucky, and the good prices being paid for this product has induced many farmers to plant their lands in hemp instead of tobacco, which crop is not overdone. The counties adjoining Fayette hold little of the old crop as we can hear of but few farmers that have any quantity of tobacco on hand. And it is plausible to say that the crop now being held will be disposed of quickly, as the prospect for the next crop is good, which will make those holding realize it is useless to hold any longer, as better prices cannot be expected under present conditions and prospects of a full crop this year. Quoting one of the best posted men of the trade, "now is the time to sell."—Ex.

Another bloody chapter has been added to the Baker-Howard feud. The storm that has been gathering over the town of Manchester, up in the mountains of Clay county since the Bakers have been there in the custody of the soldiers, burst Saturday evening when Tom Baker, the recognized leader of his faction, was shot down in the court house yard while standing in front of his tent and was killed. The shooting was done after Special Judge A. King Cook had granted the Bakers a change of venue and the prisoners were to have been taken to Barbourville the next morning bail having been refused. The murderer of Baker succeeded in effecting his escape so quickly and in covering his tracks so completely that no clew to his identity has been discovered. It has been established beyond question that the shot was fired from the house of Sheriff Beverly White. The Bakers and Howards have scores of friends in the county and it is feared that more serious trouble will result.

Queer Pleas for Divorce.

There is only one State in the Union, South Carolina, where it is impossible to shake off the matrimonial chain through process of law. In some States it is remarkably easy, where incompatibility of temper and similar broad-guage roads lead smoothly into the land of freedom. Some novel and ludicrous pleas have been set up in various States by both men and women seeking divorce.

A man recently sued for a divorce from his wife because he discovered after marriage that she had a glass eye. The judge in denying the petition said: "It is not necessary for a woman during courtship to inform her intended husband of any device or attachment used to improve the work of nature in the construction of her face, form or figure. If a glass eye, concealed before marriage, be a fraud, why are not false teeth, false hair or any other false art peculiar to the fair sex, good grounds for divorce?"

†‡†

This recalls an act passed by Parliament in the reign of Charles I., providing that "all women of whatever age or rank, profession or degree, whether maids or widows, who shall impose upon and betray into matrimony any of His Majesty's male subjects by scents, paints, cosmetics, washes, artificial false hair, Spanish wool, iron stays, hoops, high-heeled shoes or bolstered hips, shall incur the penalty of laws now in force against witchcraft, sorcery and such like misdemeanors, and the marriage, upon conviction, shall stand null and void."

†‡†

Mrs. Russell, of Soux City, Ia., asked for a divorce, the custody of her children and $10,000 alimony from her husband on the grounds that, in anticipation of a spring trip to Alaska, he began training in the early winter, refusing to have any fires in the house, keeping the windows open and keeping the family on a choice diet of "salt horse," lime juice and other dainties popular in the Klondyke regions. She got her divorce.

†‡†

A man tried for some time in vain to induce a sixteen-year-old girl to consent to marry him. Finally he brought into play the time-worn expedient of threatening to take his own life if she continued obdurate. Being young and inexperienced, the maiden believed him, and was horrified at the prospect of becoming responsible for the death of a human being. To prevent his self-destruction she married him, but having gone with him to the altar she considered that she had made sufficient sacrifice, and she positively refused to live with him. Later she brought suit for divorce, which was granted on the ground that her consent to the marriage had been obtained by force and misapprehension.

†‡†

In West Virginia a woman wanted a legal separation from her husband because he was an infidel. She asserted in her petition that he did not believe in God, and that this caused her great grief and suffering, so much so that she could not get along with him. The court decided this to be adequate grounds for divorce.

†‡†

"Desertion" is in many States sufficient reason for granting a divorce, but it must be proved that a man voluntarily deserts his wife. A Pennsylvania woman accused her husband of a criminal offense which caused him to be lodged in jail. He broke jail and left the country, and some time later his wife sued for divorce, alleging desertion. It was refused, however, the Judge, declaring that she had caused the separation in the first place by putting him in jail, and that he had fled from the country not to desert his wife, but to escape the consequences of his crime.

†‡†

They have strange manners and causes of granting divorce in the Klondike country. An Indian woman named Ellen wanted a divorce from her white husband, Finney. Sixty miners heard the case. It was brought out in evidence that Ellen, who was large and vigorous, could only be reduced to submission by large quantities of whisky, and that her husband, when he wanted to chastise her, was accustomed to give her copious draughts of fire water. He admitted that he had done this, but claimed that by such means only could he administer the beatings which she needed from time to time. Moreover, he asserted in his defense that she was the best dressed squaw in Circle City.

The court of miners, however, granted Ellen her divorce and gave her the sewing machine and the dog as alimony.

†‡†

Marriage and divorce are both queer in Utah. P. Anderson and his wife Eliza, who lived in Salt Lake City, were unhappy. Anderson wore long hair coiled in weird fashion about his head and made a fetich of vegetarianism. When his wife ate meat he beat her and knocked her about until she had to take refuge in the cellar. When he merely suspected her of meat eating he maltreated and called her vile names, on account of which treatment she left him and he has now entered suit for divorce on the ground of desertion. The Judge has ordered the vegetarian to pay $5 a week pending the suit and $15 attorney's fees.

SOME NEGLECTED PRESIDENTIAL GRAVES.

Some of the graves of the former Presidents of the United States are being sadly neglected by indifferent descendants. Including among the number are the graves of Madison and Tyler. Madison sleeps in the midst of an old family burial ground in Virginia remote from the centers of life in that State and seldom visited by pilgrims. Grass and tangle-wood completely cover the grave of the former President. Such is the fate in death of the illustrious father of the constitution. Speaking of the grave of Tyler, some one in Harper's Weekly says: "Of all the occupants of the presidential seat, Tyler alone may be said to have been wholly and persistently neglected in his place of sepulture. "Tyler, whose administration was a stormy one and marked by stirring events, died in January, 1862, and was buried with great honor in Hollywood cemetery, at Richmond, Va., in what is known as the 'president's plot.' This is a section of ground containing 804 square feet, which was purchased by Governor Wise, of Virginia, on behalf of the State, the original intention having been to bury therein all of Virginia's sons who attained to the Presidency. The plan failed of execution, however, and James Monroe and John Tyler only have been buried in the president's plot. They lie there side by side, in undisturbed repose. Monroe's grave is marked by a modest monument, but only a spreading magnolia tree shows where Tyler takes his long rest; and if those who pass along the cemetery walks have any idea that beneath that little mound of green lie the ashes of one whose part in American history was neither languid nor unesteemed and small. Could the fulfillment of President McKinley's suggestion, that the confederate cemetery be placed under national control, be better prefaced by anything than by the erection over John Tyler's grave of a fit memorial, raised from funds subscribed by the people of the whole country? Especially now, when the flag of the nation is floating over distant lands, it is appropriate for the American people to remember that the man who was largely instrumental in securing the annexation of Texas and the vast territory beyond sleeps to-day in an unmarked grave, unhonored, and so far as the nation is concerned, neglected and unknown."

While Hardin has the advantage in the matter of instructed votes, yet the nomination may be said to be anybody's. If Hardin organizes the convention he will seat his contesting delegates and he will be nominated, but, on the other hand, if Goebel and Stone combine and capture the organization, the fight for the nomination may be a long and hard one, with the result in doubt until the nomination is nailed down. Each of the candidates below Governor sees certain victory just ahead, and they are a very happy set of fellows, and are hustling for everything in sight.

Kenton county Republicans instructed for Attorney-General Taylor for Governor, Monday.

THE RECORDER.

W. L. RIDDELL, Publisher.

BURLINGTON, : : KENTUCKY.

A full-grown lion will tip the scales at 500 pounds. Five hundred and forty pounds is the record for an African lion. His bone is solid and heavy as ivory. The tiger runs the lion very close. A Bengal tiger, killed two years ago by an English officer, scaled 520 pounds.

The United States government has issued some interesting statistics as to the rapid advances which American women have made during the last 28 years. Since 1870 the female architects have increased from 1 to 55, the dentists from 24 to 417, the lawyers from 5 to 417, the physicians and surgeons from 527 to 6,888 and the "clergy women" from 67 to 1,522.

It is not generally known that Ex-Empress Eugenie's mother was a Scotch woman, viz.: Miss Maria Manuela Kirkpatrick of Closeburn, Dumfrieshire, who married, at Grenada, the Compte Cyprian Montijo. Through her the empress traces, without a flaw, through Euphemia, sister of King Robert Bruce, her descent up to Kenneth McAlpine, king of Scotland, A. D. 833.

Thomas Foley, after an absence from his Philadelphia home of 14 years, during which he had many adventures and vicissitudes, a participation in the naval battle of Manila being among them, has returned home to find his wife, who believed him dead, married to another man and the mother of several children. He says he will go out into the world again and leave his old wife and her new family alone.

From England comes the word that women play golf with more regard to rules than men. The reason is that women have more leisure time in which to master the rules, and more head for details, and keep them better in mind. To play contrary to rule means to be unfair to opponents, and in the Ashdown Ladies' Golf club they have a regular examination day, when prizes are awarded to those who best know the golf catechism.

Wm. J. Wood, jr., now in an insane asylum in Kansas, has been declared the rightful owner of the famous Emma gold mine at Aspen, Col., valued at $2,000,000. His father discovered the mine and died soon after, and all the children but William sold their life interests in the property to the Aspen Mining and Smelting Co. All these children are now dead and the mine falls to the lunatic. The litigation has been going on since 1885.

A Paris photographer has introduced a novel style of taking photographs, which he calls "mummy photography." The subject is swathed in mummy cerements, put into a genuine sarcophagus imported from Cairo, and pictured in an upright position. A smiling, living face looking out from embroidered grave clothes gives an odd effect. No French actress' salon is complete without a counterfeit presentment of her own mummy.

The German government possesses several torpedo boats constructed of aluminum, and it has equipped four army corps in all their metal accouterements with aluminum; these including cartridge boxes and cartridge cases, canteens, cups, sword handles, bayonet scabbards, the devices on their helmets, and the metal work of the stirrups and saddles. Even the buttons on their uniforms and the pegs in their boots are constructed of the same light metal.

There is a general revival of building operations throughout the south, and especially in all Georgia cities and towns. Atlanta is experiencing a veritable boom in the building industry, with an increased demand for materials and men. One of the most important items is the construction of new and improved cotton and woolen mills, of which scores are being erected, and the extension, improvement and remodeling of others to increase their productive capacity.

Miss May Goelet, the heiress, now in London, has been spoken of as a representative American girl. Her parents were both Americans. When very young her father, the late Ogden Goelet, undertook to teach her the value of money and the good it would do. At five years of age some small charities were endowed in her name. When she was 15 years old she was a summer benefactress to the poor children in Newport. When Miss Goelet is 21 she will inherit about $30,000,000.

Since the production of precious metals began in Colorado that state has contributed to the world's supply of gold and silver over $300,000,000. Other portions of the wild west have been productive even to a greater degree. The gold and silver output of California has exceeded $1,300,000,000; the sage-brush plains of Nevada, formerly the bed of an inland ocean, have yielded $560,000,000; the crags of Montana have given up $400,000,000; Idaho has contributed $150,000,000; Arizona has furnished over $80,000,000; South Dakota, $50,000,000.

The most beautiful and costly fishes in the world come from China, and the rarest and most expensive of all is the brush-tail gold fish. Specimens of these have sold for as high as £140 each, and in Europe the prices range from £50 and £100. The brush-tail gold fish is so small that an American silver dollar will cover it, and probably there is no living thing of its size and weight that is worth so much money. The fish has a body nearly oval in form, with rainbow hues. It is stocky built, and has wonderful breast and tail fins as beautifully and delicately formed as lace work.

ON THE DEFENSE.

Insurgents Take the Offensive and an Assault on Our Outposts Expected.

War Department Officials Reported to Be Uneasy—A Rigid Blockade of Luzon Has Been Decided on by the Administration.

MANILA, June 19.—Every precaution is being taken to guard against an unexpected return of the Filipino troops under Gen. Noriel and a consequent assault of the American outposts in the territory from which the former were driven on Tuesday. A force of insurgents is reported to be at Salitran and a battalion of the 18th infantry has been sent from Imus to watch their movements and reconnoiter the adjacent country.

WASHINGTON, June 18.—Despite the war department's statement that no uneasiness is felt over the boldness of the Filipinos in attacking the Americans at San Fernando, it is evident that the situation is regarded as grave. It is more than four months since the Filipinos took the initiative in making an attack, and, while they were soundly thrashed for their pains, nothing permanent seems to have been accomplished. Current news does not confirm the statements that the Filipinos have been whipped into submission. Nearly 500 Americans have been killed in action and 1,500 wounded since hostilities began in February.

The department confines its expressed anxiety to Aguinaldo's whereabouts. It is not denied that the Filipinos have shown a remarkable ability to recover from disasters, and another battle is expected to take place between Gen. MacArthur's troops and those of Aguinaldo. There is good reason to believe that the insurgents are massing and organizing again in the Calumpit region, and the encounter will probably take place there. Gen. MacArthur has about 7,000 men.

WOMAN CAN KEEP A SECRET.

After Nearly Thirty Years a Sister Tells of a Murder Committed by Her Brother Alexander.

WICHITA, Kan., June 19.—Because her wealthy brother refused to obey her whims Mrs. Cornelius Street, of Shawnee, Okla., has written Sheriff Simmons here demanding he be arrested for murder.

On May 2, 1871, Alexander Jester murdered his traveling companion, William Gates, near Warrensburg, Mo. Jester then stole Gates's wagon, team and money and escaped. At Valley Center, Kan., a few weeks later Jester was arrested and confessed. He was taken to Warrensburg, but escaped before his trial was called. Thousands of dollars were spent in searching, but to no avail.

It is now claimed that Jester went to Shawnee, Okla., under the name of W. H. Hill, as he is now living. The alleged murderer is 80 years old, wealthy and influential. He will be arrested at once.

AFTER THE TRAIN ROBBERS.

They Leave the Hole in the Wall Country and Are Now Heading Toward the South—The Posse Still in Pursuit.

CASPER, Wyo., June 19.—Eight of the posse hunting the Union Pacific train robbers in the Hole in the Wall country returned to Casper Sunday. The robbers have left the Hole in the Wall mountains and are traveling back south. The last heard of them was at Powder river coming south. They seemed to be heading toward Wolton. A large party is following them now.

Sunday the guards were placed at all the bridges across the Platte river, and new men with fresh horses started for the Wolton country. The pursuing party at Sullivan's sheep camp, where the robbers ate breakfast and took a packhorse and bed, were 12 hours behind.

UNCLE SAM: "CERTAINLY, WILLIE; I HAVE ALL I WANT."

At the last cabinet meeting before President McKinley's departure for Holyoke, Mass., the following decisions were reached:

1. That in view of the strength of Aguinaldo in the north, as developed in dispatches from Gen. Otis, the aggressive campaign against the rebel chief must be renewed with vigor.

2. That the army and navy must cooperate to maintain a tight blockade of Luzon in order to prevent the landing of supplies of any character to the rebel forces.

The object of the blockade is to prevent the landing of munitions and other supplies which in some mysterious way keep flowing into Aguinaldo. By a blockade it is hoped that this will be checked.

Train Robber Sentenced.

SEDALIA, Mo., June 19.—The jury in the case of Ed J. Stubblefield, charged with the attempted robbery of a Missouri Pacific express train near here in November last, returned a verdict Sunday, finding Stubblefield guilty and fixing his punishment at ten years' imprisonment in the state penitentiary. The trial of James I. West, Stubblefield's alleged accomplice, began Monday morning.

The Bills of Indictment Ignored.

READING, Pa., June 19.—The Berks county grand jury Saturday ignored the bills of indictment charging certain Reading railway employes with being responsible for the recent wreck at Exeter, where 29 persons were killed and many more injured.

Found Dead in Her Bed.

CINCINNATI, O., June 19.—Mrs. Mary Holleran, aged 102 years, was found dead in bed at the home of her daughter, Mrs. John Garr, Gladstone avenue, this city.

JOINT GRANITE MONUMENT.

The American and English Sailors Will Erect It to the Memory of the English Speaking Men Slain at Samoa.

VAN COUVER, B. C., June 19.—Australian advices say that the officers of the British and American war ships, who have been fraternizing during the recent trouble in Samoa, have decided to erect a joint monument in memory of the English speaking slain in the various engagements. It is intended to erect a granite monument with the names of the British engraved on one panel and the Americans on the other, surmounting the roll of the killed with the British and American flags intertwined.

New Market for American Manufacturers.

WASHINGTON, June 19.—The reciprocity treaty with the British colony of Barbadoes has been signed and will continue five years or longer. The islands depend upon the United States for their food supply, but have been getting nearly all of their manufactured goods from England. Sugar is their chief product, and Americans bought over $2,000,000 worth of it last year.

Gasoline Explosion.

CLEVELAND, O., June 19.—The entire front of the brick house of Abraham Kohn, at 23 Wadsworth street, was blown out by an explosion of gasoline Sunday, and Kohn, his wife and child are in the hospital. The baby will surely die, and Kohn, himself, is believed to be fatally burned. Mrs. Kohn was cleaning some garment with gasoline and she left the vessel uncovered in the house while she went out in the yard, the door being closed. In some way the gasoline was ignited and the explosion followed.

VOYAGE ENDED.

Gen. Grant and 1,600 Men Arrive at Manila on Transport Sherman.

Gens. Hale and Funston Desire to Accompany Their Regiments Home—The Pennsylvanians Will Start for Home This Week.

MANILA, June 19.—The United States transport Sherman, which sailed from San Francisco May 24 with 1,800 men and 75 officers, under command of Brig. Gen. Fred D. Grant, has arrived here after a smooth voyage. One private died after the transport arrived.

The troops brought by the transport will go to the island of Negros to relieve the California troops. Gen. Bates, who arrived on the transport, and Gen. Grant will be probably assigned to the command of the volunteers, some generals of whom will leave for home soon.

Gens. Hale and Funston desire to accompany their regiments home. The Utah artillery, it is announced, will accompany the Nebraska troops on board the transport Hancock, leaving their guns here. The Pennsylvanians will start for home on the transport Senator this week. The Indiana sailed Monday with 500 discharged and sick soldiers. She will go into dock for a few days at Nagasaki, Japan. Military operations against the insurgents in the south have apparently been planned.

Gen. Wheaton at Imus, sent out reconnoitering parties Monday to locate the enemy and other reconnaisances are being made from Cavite.

THE PRESIDENT AT HOLYOKE.

He Is the Guest of Mr. Whitney—Sunday for President McKinley Was Anything But a Day of Rest.

HOLYOKE, Mass., June 19.—The president's special train arrived at 10 o'clock. At Springfield Miss Grace McKinley and Col. Roger Morgan, of this city, boarded the train, Col. Morgan conveying the welcome of Gov. Wolcott to the distinguished visitors. In honor of the presence of President McKinley this city was in gala dress Saturday. Mr. Whiting will be the president's host.

HOLYOKE, Mass., June 19.—Sunday for the president was anything but the day of rest that was hoped for. The continual crowding of the curious citizens, the immense jam at the church Sunday morning and later in the day an unexpected and totally unprepared-for reception in connection with the baccalaureate exercises at Mount Holyoke college made the day long and tiresome for all.

THE PROHIBITION IS RAISED.

American Neat Cattle and Swine Can Now Be Imported Into Belgium Under Terms of the 1897 Decree.

WASHINGTON, June 19.—Special Plenipotentiary Kasson has just received an authenticated copy from Belgium of the decree recently enacted by the Belgian government raising the prohibition on the importation into Belgium of American neat cattle. This will be formally published at once for the information of the meat inspectors in this country. The decree recites the preceding decrees prohibiting importations of cattle from America and the opinion of the veterinarians and announces that American neat cattle and swine can now be imported into Belgium under the terms of the decree of 1897 prescribing the places where they may be landed and slaughtered.

ELEVEN FIREMEN INJURED.

Allen Bros., Wholesale Grocery, Omaha, Burned With a Loss of $115,000 on Building and Contents.

OMAHA, Neb., June 19.—At an early hour Sunday morning the building occupied by Allen Bros., wholesale grocery, was discovered on fire. The blaze started on the fifth floor and burned downwards, destroying the fourth and fifth floors and their contents. The damage to the stock is estimated at $100,000 and is covered by $170,000 insurance. The building is damaged $15,000, the loss being covered by insurance. During the progress of the fire a magazine filled with powder which the firemen were moving to a place of safety, exploded. Eleven firemen including the chief were injured, two seriously.

The Missionaries Are Safe.

HONG KONG, June 19.—The reports that Rev. H. S. Phillips, Mrs. Phillips and Miss Sears, missionaries of the Church Missionary society, with three native converts, were recently killed by rioters in the province of Nan Wei, is contradicted, and it is now announced that all are safe.

The Sfax Passes Cape Verde Islands.

PARIS, June 19.—A dispatch from the Cape Verde islands announces that the French second-class cruiser Sfax, carrying Capt. Dreyfus, has passed here en route for Brest, where she is not expected before Saturday next.

Kentuckian Drowned.

CLARKSVILLE, Tenn., June 19.—Near Hill's island, up the Cumberland, a man named Loveman of Frankfort, Ky., was drowned. He was pushed from a ferryboat by frightened horses.

THE TRAGIC DEATH OF LUNA.

A Spanish Prisoner Claims to Have Been an Eye-Witness to the Assassination of the General.

MANILA, June 17.—A Spanish officer who has been a prisoner in the hands of the rebels and who was released by Aguinaldo, has come through our lines to Manila. He claims to have been a witness of the assassination of Gen. Luna. According to his story the relations between the two Filipino leaders had been strained because of Luna's attempt to assume control of affairs and the final rupture was forced by Aguinaldo issuing secret orders to the provincial officials to [illegible] Luna the Filipino notified Aguinaldo, demanding copies of the documents, and Aguinaldo replied that Luna was a general of the army and that the civil government did not concern him. Luna, on opening the reply at his headquarters, in the presence of his officers, exclaimed hotly: "He will be dead to-morrow."

One officer, who was friendly to Aguinaldo, hastened to warn him, and Aguinaldo called together 20 trusted soldiers, fellow townsmen of his, and stationed them around his house, with instructions to kill any one attempting to enter, regardless of rank.

Luna appeared next day and saw Aguinaldo at the window.

A member of the guard said: "Aguinaldo has gone to inspect his troops."

Luna then exclaimed: "You are a liar!" drew his revolver, struck at the guard and tried to force an entrance into the house. Before he could use his revolver one of the guards bayoneted him, another shot him in the back and others stabbed him. In all he had 20 wounds. Luna's aide de camp was killed in the same way.

The Spaniard's story has not entirely dispelled the doubts of Luna's death and bets that he is alive are freely made. Some people think that Aguinaldo has taken pains to send the Spaniard here with this story, furtherance of some diplomatic scheme, while others suspect that Aguinaldo has been assassinated by Luna's men.

Since the Americans withdrew from Candaba recently the rebels have returned and have wreaked vengeance upon those who befriended the Americans. They slaughtered the natives who surrendered the town and displayed their heads on poles in the public square.

WILL INCREASE THE ARMY.

Not Before the First of August Can the Number of Soldiers in the Philippines Be Brought to the Limit.

WASHINGTON, June 17.—Under the most favorable circumstances it will be hardly possible for the government to increase its army in the Philippines up to the 35,000 limit before the first of August. About 6,000 of the troops destined for service in the Philippines, and included in the proposed 35,000 force, are still in this country and will not be able to reach the scene of action for five or six weeks. The officials of the war department are making every effort, however, to expedite their departure; and to that end have arranged for the immediate preparation of the transports Sheridan, Pennsylvania, Zealandia and Valencia. These vessels are all at San Francisco, and have a total capacity of 4,400. Unless present plans miscarry all these vessels will start for Manila before the end of the month. In addition to these reinforcements provisions will have to be made for the transportation of about 1,700 recruits now undergoing instructions at the Presidio of San Francisco, and the 19th regiment of infantry, numbering about 1,300 men, now in camp at Middletown, Pa.

KIDNAPER BARROW GUILTY.

He Gets a Fourteen-Year Sentence—Carrie Jones, the Nurse Girl, Will Serve Four Years in State's Prison.

NEW YORK, June 17.—The jury trying George D. Barrow, the kidnaper, retired to consider their verdict at 11:50 a. m., Friday. They were out only 25 minutes, and then returned with a verdict of guilty. Judge Furman immediately sentenced Barrow to 14 years and 10 months at hard labor in Sing Sing.

After Barrow had been sentenced, Bella Anderson, alias Carrie Jones, the nurse girl, was called to the bar and sentenced to four years' imprisonment.

Clemency was accorded Carrie Jones because she confessed and turned state's evidence.

Reported Assassination of Aguinaldo Denied.

HONG KONG, June 17.—The Filipino junta here says there is no truth in the report circulated here and cabled to the United States that Aguinaldo had been assassinated.

Killed While Blowing Up Stumps.

WAPAKONETA, O., June 17.—George Varnhorst, while blowing stumps with dynamite on his farm in the eastern part of the county, was struck by the flying debris and instantly killed Friday. His brother was killed in the same manner five years ago.

After the Tobacco Trust.

COLUMBUS, O., June 17.—Attorney General Monnett Friday night filed suit in the supreme court to oust the Continental Tobacco Co., known as the trust, from doing business.

"Better Be Wise Than Rich."

Wise people are also rich when they know a perfect remedy for all annoying diseases of the blood, kidneys, liver and bowels. It is Hood's Sarsaparilla, which is perfect in its action—so regulates the entire system as to bring vigorous health.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Never Disappoints

An Argument.

Here the voice of counsel for the defense thrilled with emotion.

"Gentlemen of the jury," he cried, "you cannot believe the prisoner to be the cool, calculating villain the prosecution would make him out to be! Were he cool and calculating would he have murdered his wife, as he is accused of doing? Would he not rather have spared her in order that she might be here at this trial to weep for him and influence your verdict with her tears?"

Only the thoughtless think lawyers do not assist the ends of justice.—Detroit Journal.

"Big Four Gift"—Scely's Spanish-American War Panorama.

Contains 100 superb half-tone engravings, made from photographs taken of our Army in camp, on transports and in actual service, Spanish and American Gun-boats, Cuba, Havana, Manila, Landscapes, Architecture; shows the manners and customs of the people of our new Islands; Pictures of our Heroes—Dewey, General Charles King (known as Capt. Charles King, the author), Wheeler, Hobson, Roosevelt, Sampson, Miles, Schley, Shafter, Lee, Brooks, Carroll; Groups of Officers, Cavalry, Artillery, Infantry, Ships, Rifle-practice, Spanish Soldiers, Insurgents, Chickamauga, Jacksonville, Tampa, Last Farewell Letters Home, Hospitals, Clara Barton, Rough Riders, Santiago, San Juan, Manilla, the Beautiful Women of Cuba and Manilla.

The Album is 8x8 inches, weighs 12 ounces, printed on finest coated paper.

Sent FREE to any address in the United States, Canada or Mexico for 12 cents in stamps or coin, to cover postage and packing. Copy may be seen at any ticket office of the Big Four Route.

Order at once, as the edition is limited.

Address WARREN J. LYNCH, General Passenger and Ticket Agent, "Big Four Route," Cincinnati, Ohio.

Mark envelope "War Album."

Fruitless Ambition.

"Did you see that pale young man calling out 'Cash!' at the ribbon counter?"

"Yes."

"Fate's awfully funny, sometimes. Ten years ago, when we were boys together, his one ambition was to be a mighty hunter and catch lions with a lasso."—Berlin (Md.) Herald.

International Convention, Baptist Young People's Union of America.

Richmond, Va., July 13 to 16, 1899, the C. H. & D. Ry. will make a rate of one fare for the round trip good going July 11, 12 and 13, good returning from Richmond not later than July 31. By depositing ticket with joint agent on or before July 21 and payment of 50 cents, return limit may be extended to leave Richmond not later than August 15, 1899. See C. H. & D. agents for information.

No Wonder.

"She has a remarkable voice."

"In which respect?"

"In timbre."

"No wonder. She used to call a logging camp to dinner."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

To Cure a Cold in One Day

Take Laxative Bromo Quinine Tablets. All druggists refund money if it fails to cure. 25c.

It is not creditable for any girl to have several young men "on the string."—Atchison Globe.

A bloodhound is noted for his dogged perseverance.—L. A. W. Bulletin.

How Old She Looks

Poor clothes cannot make you look old. Even pale cheeks won't do it.

Your household cares may be heavy and disappointments may be deep, but they cannot make you look old.

One thing does it and never fails.

It is impossible to look young with the color of seventy years in your hair.

Ayer's Hair Vigor

permanently postpones the teil-tale signs of age. Used according to directions it gradually brings back the color of youth. At fifty your hair may look as it did at fifteen. It thickens the hair also; stops it from falling out; and cleanses the scalp from dandruff. Shall we send you our book on the Hair and its Diseases?

The Best Advice Free.

If you do not obtain all the benefits you expected from the use of the Vigor, write the doctor about it. Probably there is some difficulty with your general system which may be easily removed. Address,

DR. J. C. AYER, Lowell, Mass.

25 CTS. PISO'S CURE FOR CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS. Best Cough Syrup. Tastes Good. Use in time. Sold by druggists. CONSUMPTION 25 CTS.

THE MISSION OF ART.

A Potent Factor in Uplifting the Human Race.

Dr. Talmage Preaches on the Influence of "Pleasant Pictures" in the Development of Christian Character.

[Copyright, 1899, by Louis Klopsch.]

Dr. Talmage shows in this discourse how art may become one of the mightiest agencies for the elevation and salvation of the human race. The text is Isaiah 2:12-16: "The day of the Lord of Hosts shall be * * * upon all pleasant pictures."

Pictures are by some relegated to the realm of the trivial, accidental, sentimental or worldly, but my text shows that God scrutinizes pictures, and whether they are good or bad, whether used for right or wrong purposes, is a matter of Divine observation and arraignment. The divine mission of pictures is my subject. That the artist's pencil and the engraver's knife have sometimes been made subservient to the kingdom of the bad is frankly admitted. After the ashes and scoria were removed from Herculaneum and Pompeii, the walls of those cities discovered to the explorers a degradation in art which cannot be exaggerated. Satan and all his imps have always wanted the fingering of the easel. They would rather have possession of that than the art of printing, for types are not so potent and quick for evil as pictures. The powers of darkness think they have gained a triumph, and they have when in some respectable parlor or public art gallery they can hang a canvas embarrassing to the good, but fascinating to the evil.

It is not in a spirit of prudery, but backed up by God's eternal truth, when I say that you have no right to hang in your art rooms or your dwelling houses that which would be offensive to good people if the figures pictured were alive in your parlor and the guests of your household. A picture that you have to hang in a somewhat secluded place, or that in a public hall you cannot with a group of friends deliberately stand before and discuss, ought to have a knife stabbed into it at the top and cut clear through to the bottom and a stout finger thrust in on the right side, ripping clear through to the left. Pliny the elder lost his life by going near enough to see the inside of Vesuvius, and the farther you can stand off from the burning crater of sin the better. Not till the books of the last day are opened shall we know what has been the dire harvest of evil pictorials and unbecoming art galleries. Despoil a man's imagination, and he becomes a mere carcass. The show windows of English and American cities, in which the low theaters have sometimes hung long lines of brazen actors and actresses in style insulting to all propriety, have made a broad path to death for multitudes of people. But so have all the other arts been at times suborned of evil. How has music been bedraggled? Is there any place so low down in dissoluteness that into it has not been carried David's harp, and Handel's organ and Gottschalk's piano, and Ole Bull's violin, and the flute, which, though named after so insignificant a thing as the Sicilian eel, which has seven spots on the side, like flute holes, yet for thousands of years has had an exalted mission? Architecture, born in the heart of Him who made the worlds, under its arches and across its floors, what bacchanalian revelries have been enacted! It is not against any of these arts that they have been so led into captivity!

What a poor world this would be if it were not for what my text calls "pleasant pictures!" I refer to your memory and mine when I ask if your knowledge of the Holy Scriptures has not been mightily augmented by the wood cuts or engravings in the old family Bible which father and mother read out of and laid on the table in the old homestead when you were boys and girls. The Bible scenes which we all carry in our minds were not got from the Bible typology, but from the Bible pictures. To prove the truth of it in my own case, the other day I took up the old family Bible which I inherited. Sure enough, what I have carried in my mind of Jacob's ladder was exactly the Bible engravings of Jacob's ladder, and so with Samson carrying off the gates of Gaza, Elisha restoring the Shunammite's the massacre of the innocents, Christ blessing little children, the crucifixion and the last judgment. My idea of all these is that of the old Bible engravings, which I scanned before I could read a word. That is true with nine-tenths of you. If I could swing open the door of your foreheads, I would find that you are walking picture galleries. The great intelligence abroad about the Bible did not come from the general reading of the book, for the majority of the people read it but little, if they read it at all, but all the sacred scenes have been put before the great masses, and not printer's ink, but the pictorial art, must have the credit of the achievement. First, painter's pencil for the favored few and then engraver's plate or wood cut for millions on millions!

What overwhelming commentary on the Bible, what reenforcement for patriarchs, prophets, apostles and Christ, what distribution of Scripturnl knowledge of all nations in the paintings and engravings therefrom of Holman Hunt's "Christ in the Temple," Paul Veronese's "Magdalen Washing the Feet of Christ," Raphael's "Michael the Archangel," Albert Durer's "Dragon of the Apocalypse," Michael Angelo's "Plague of the Fiery Serpents," Tintoretto's "Flight Into Egypt," Rubens' "Descent from the Cross," Leonardo Da Vinci's "Last Supper," Claude's "Queen of Sheba," Bellini's "Madonna," at Milan; Oreagna's "Last Judgment" and hundreds of miles of pictures, if they were put in line, illustrating, displaying, dramatizing, irradiating Bible truths until the Scriptures are not today so much on paper as on canvas, not so much in ink as in all the colors of the spectrum. In 1833 forth from Strasburg, Germany, there came a child that was to eclipse in speed and boldness anything and everything that the world had ever seen since the first color appeared on the sky at the creation, Paul Gustave Dore. At 11 years of age he published marvelous lithographs of his own. Saying nothing of what he did for Milton's "Paradise Lost," ambiguzing it on the attention of the world, he takes up the book of books, the monarch of literature, the Bible, and in his pictures, "The Creation of Light," "The Trial of Abraham's Faith," "The Burial of Sarah," [illegible] by His Children," "The Brazen Serpent," "Boaz and Ruth," "David and Goliath," "The Transfiguration," "The Marriage in Cana," "Babylon Fallen" and 205 Scripturnl scenes in all, with a boldness and a grasp and almost supernatural afflatus that make the heart throb and the brain reel and the tears start and the cheeks blanch and the entire nature quake with the tremendous things of God and eternity and the dead. I nervously staggered down the steps of the London art gallery under the power of Dore's "Christ Leaving the Praetorium." Profess you to be a Christian man or woman, and see no divine mission in art, and acknowledge you no obligation either in thanks to God or man?

The world and the church ought to come to the higher appreciation of the Divine mission of pictures, yet the authors of them have generally been left to semistarvation. West, the great painter, toiled in unappreciation till, being a great skater, while on the ice he formed the acquaintance of Gen. Howe, of the English army, who, through coming to admire West as a clever skater, gradually came to appreciate as much that which he accomplished by his hand as by his heel. Poussin, the mighty painter, was pursued and had nothing with which to defend himself against the mob but the artist's portfolio, which he held over his head to keep off the stones hurled at him. The pictures of Richard Wilson, of England, were sold for fabulous sums of money after his death, but the living painter was glad to get for his "Alcyone" a piece of Stilton cheese. From 1640 to 1643 there were 4,000 pictures willfully destroyed. In the reign of Queen Elizabeth it was the habit of some people to spend much of their time in knocking pictures to pieces. In the reign of Charles I. it was ordered by parliament that all pictures of Christ be burned. Painters were so badly treated and humiliated in the beginning of the eighteenth century that they were lowered clear down out of the sublimity of their art and obliged to give accounts of what they did with their colors.

The oldest picture in England, a portrait of Chaucer, though now of great value, was picked out of a lumber garret. Great were the trials of Quentin Matsys, who toiled on from blacksmith's anvil till, as a painter, he won wide recognition. The first missionaries to Mexico made the fatal mistake of destroying pictures, for the loss of which art and religion must ever lament. But why go so far back when in this year of our Lord to be a painter, except in rare exceptions, means poverty and neglect, poorly fed, poorly clad, poorly housed, because poorly appreciated? When I hear a man is a painter, I have two feelings—one of admiration for the greatness of his soul, and the other of commiseration for the needs of his body. But so it has been in all departments of noble work. Some of the mightiest have been hardly bestead. Oliver Goldsmith had such a big patch on his coat over the left breast that when he went anywhere he kept his hat in his hand closely pressed over the patch. The world renowned Bishop Asbury had a salary of $64 a year. Painters are not the only ones who have endured the lack of appreciation. Let men of wealth take under their patronage the suffering men of art. They lift no complaint; they make no strike for higher wages. But with a keenness of nervous organization which almost always characterizes genius these artists suffer more than anyone but God can realize.

There needs to be a concerted effort for the suffering artist of America, not sentimental discourse about what we owe to artists, but contracts that will give them a livelihood; for I am in full sympathy with the Christian farmer who was very busy gathering his fall apples and some one asked him to pray for a poor family, the father of which had broken his leg, and the busy farmer said: "I cannot stop now to pray, but you can go down into the cellar and get some corned beef and butter and eggs and potatoes; that is all I can do now." Artists may wish for our prayers, but they also want practical help from men who can give them work. You have heard scores of sermons for all other kinds of suffering men and women, but we need sermons that make pleas for the suffering men and women of American art. Their work is more true to nature and life than some of the masterpieces that have become immortal on the other side of the sea, but it is the fashion of Americans to mention foreign artists and to know little or nothing about our own Copley and Allston and Inman and Greenough and Kensett. Let the affluent fling out of their windows and into the back yard valueless daubs on canvas and call in these splendid but unrewarded men and tell them to adorn your walls not only with that which shall please the taste, but enlarge the minds and improve the morals and save the souls of those who gaze upon them. All American cities need great galleries of art, not only annually for a few days on exhibition, but which shall stand open all the year round, and from early morning until ten o'clock at night, and free to all who would come and go.

What a preparation for the wear and tear of the day a five minutes' look in the morning at some picture that will open a door into some larger realm than that in which our population daily drudges. Or what a good thing the half hour of artistic opportunity on the way home in the evening from exhaustion that demands recuperation for mind and soul as well as body! Who will do for the city where you live what W. W. Corcoran did for Washington and what others have done for Philadelphia and Boston and New York? Men of wealth, if you are too modest to build and endow such a place during your lifetime, why not go to your iron safe and take out your last will and testament and make a codicil that shall build for the city of your residence a throne for American art? Take some of that money that would otherwise spoil your children and build an art gallery that shall associate your name forever not only with the great masters of painting who are gone, but with the great masters who are trying to live, and also win the admiration and love of tens of thousands of people, who, unable to have fine pictures of their own, would be advantaged. By your benefactions build your own monuments and not leave it to the whim of others. Some of the best people sleeping in Greenwood have no monuments at all or some crumbling stones that in a few years will let the rain wash out name and epitaph, while some men, whose death was the abatement of a nuisance, have a pile of Aberdeen granite high enough for a king and eulogies enough to embarrass a seraph. Oh, man of large wealth, instead of leaving to the whim of others your monumental commemoration and epitaphology, to be looked at when people are going to and fro at the burial of others, build right down in the heart of our great city, or the city where you live, an immense free reading-room, or a free musical conservatory, or a free art gallery, the niches for sculpture and the walls ahloom with the rise and fall of nations, and lessons of courage for the disheartened, and rest for the weary, and life for the dead; and 150 years from now you will be wielding influence in this world for good. How much better than white marble, that chills you if you put your hand on it when you touch it in the cemetery, would be a monument in colors. In beaming eyes, in living possession, in splendors which under the chandelier would be glowing and warm, and looked at by strolling groups with catalogue in hand on the January night when the necropolis where the body sleeps is all snowed under!

The tower of David was hung with 1,000 dented shields of battle; but you, oh man of wealth, may have a grander tower named after you, one that shall be hung not with the symbols of carnage, but with the victories of that art which was so long ago recognized in my text as "pleasant pictures." Oh, the power of pictures! I cannot deride, as some have done, Cardinal Mazurin, who, when told that he must die, took his last walk through the art gallery of his palace, saying: "Must I quit all this? Look at that Titian! Look at that Correglo! Look at that deluge of Caracci! Farewell, dear pictures!"

As the day of the lord of hosts, according to this text, will scrutinize the pictures, I implore all parents to see that in their households they have neither in book nor newspaper nor on canvas anything that will deprave. Pictures are no longer the exclusive possession of the affluent. There is not a respectable home in these cities that has not specimens of woodcut or steel engraving, if not of painting, and your whole family will feel the moral uplifting or depression. Have nothing on your wall or in books that will familiarize the young with scenes of cruelty and wassail; have only those sketches made by artists in elevated moods and none of those scenes that seem the product of artistic delirium tremens. Pictures are not only a strong but a universal language. The human race is divided into almost as many languages as there are nations, but the pictures may speak to people of all tongues. Volapuk many have hoped, with little reason, would become a worldwide language; but the pictorial is always a worldwide language, and printers' types have no emphasis compared with it. We say that children are fond of pictures; but notice any man when he takes up a book and you will see that the first thing he looks at is the pictures. Have only those in your house that appeal to the better nature. One engraving has sometimes decided an eternal destiny. Under the title of fine arts there have come here from France a class of pictures which elaborate argument has tried to prove irreproachable. They would disgrace a barroom, and they need to be confiscated. Your children will carry the pictures of their father's house with them clear on to the grave, and, passing that marble pillar, will take them through eternity.

Furthermore, let all reformers and all Sabbath school teachers and all Christian workers realize that, if they would be effective for good, they must make pictures, if not by chalk or blackboards or kindergarten designs or by pencil on canvas, then by words. Arguments are soon forgotten, but pictures, whether in language or in colors, are what produce stronger effects. Christ was always telling what a thing was like, and his sermon on the mount was a great picture gallery, beginning with a sketch of a "city on a hill that cannot be hid," and ending with a tempest beating against two houses, one on the rock and the other on the sand. The parable of the prodigal son, a picture; parable of the sower, who went forth to sow, a picture; parable of the unmerciful servant, a picture; parable of the ten virgins, a picture; parable of the talents, a picture. The world wants pictures, and the appetite begins with the child, who consents to go early to bed if the mother will sit beside him and rehearse a story, which is only a picture.

A SERIOUS MINE DISASTER.

Eleven Men Were Killed in an Explosion in the Old Dominion Colliery at Glace Bay, Cape Breton.

NORTH SIDNEY, C. B., June 17.—The most appalling disaster in the Cape Breton coal mining regions occurred at the Caledonia mine at Glace Bay, the colliery of the Dominion Coal Co., Friday, when two explosions occurred, causing the death of eleven men, including Thomas Johnson, the underground manager of the works, and brother of the assistant manager of the Dominion Coal Co. Up to noon Friday all the bodies had been recovered.

The explosions occurred in the west pit, at a depth of about three-quarters of a mile, and were caused by gas which had accumulated in the old workings. The full force of men employed in the mine at night is about 150, but the night shift had just stopped work and all but about 50 had left the mine. There was scarcely an intermission between the concussions. The first was a dull boom. Then there was a rumbling noise like an earthquake, succeeded by a deafening, prolonged and awful roar, which reverberated among the hills for miles, and the shock of which shattered glass in every direction, in the immediate vicinity of the disaster. The meaning of the sound was well understood throughout the mining district and anxious people flocked to the mine entrance. Before they arrived suffocating volumes of coal smoke began to pour out, showing that fire had followed the explosion.

The officials of the mine were among the first to reach the shaft. A tally of the men showed that some three score were missing, but later a number of the miners appeared, having escaped by a slope. There were about 25 in the company who were able to report their presence to the anxious friends at the shaft, but several others who had managed to get out of the slope had fallen, overcome by the exhaustion of the fumes which they had inhaled. When these had been reached it was evident that at least 20 men, and possibly 30, had been cut off by the explosion and perished. Any who survived the explosion would quickly have perished from suffocation.

Of the incidents attending the explosion, the survivors were for a long time too confused to give an intelligent account. There was no apparent danger at midnight, nor up to 2 o'clock, when the underground manager, Thomas Johnson, now missing, last reported.

Shortly after 4 o'clock the watchman smelled gas and burning wood, and Manager Thomas Brown was notified. He opened the shaft just as the explosion occurred. The work of rescue was promptly undertaken by Assistant General Manager Johnson and Daniel Merlin, underground manager of the Hub colliery, with a large number of miners.

The party were confronted with many difficulties. Men, women and children hung about the opening of the slope, weeping and distracted. Down below a pitchy darkness prevailed, lighted by occasional brilliant bursts of the conflagration raging through the pit. The lamps of the rescuing party shed feeble gleams, and the volunteers groped their way down into the mine, the poisonous gasses almost choking them. After a brief time a body was brought up, then another, and another, until 11 had been brought to the surface. None of them were mangled, but all were blackened. The bodies were laid side by side in the large room in the office building.

In the midst of the excitement at the mouth of the shaft, the unconscious form of Manager Brown was brought to the surface. The opening of a door in one of the passages was followed by an explosion, and Mr. Brown fell down, having been made senseless by the shock.

In spite of the efforts of the rescuing party, the proportions of the fire in the pit soon forced them to give all attention to that. The work had to be stopped at frequent intervals owing to danger from fire damp, and with each retreat of the men the fire traveled with double fury.

NORTH SYDNEY, C. B., June 17.—At 2:30 Friday afternoon all the miners had been accounted for except 11. The body of Donald Martin was the only one missing.

New York Hotel Burns.

NEW YORK, June 17.—St. John's Park hotel, on Hudson street, was gutted by fire Friday morning, and four guests were rescued by firemen with scaling ladders. Mr. and Mrs. Morey, of Ellensville; Reuben Donnelly, a traveler, and S. S. Swartz, news dealer, were taken from the building unconscious. The other guests fled to the roof and escaped. The cause of the fire is a mystery.

Bunker Hill Day Celebration.

BOSTON, June 17.—The flag ship New York and the battle ships Massachusetts, Indiana and Texas, of the North Atlantic squadron, Rr. Adm. Sampson in command, arrived in the inner harbor and dropped anchor about 5 o'clock Friday afternoon. The customary courtesies were exchanged with Fort Warren and the navy yard battery. All arrangements have been for the parade of marines and blue jackets from the war vessels Saturday in connection with Charleston Bunker Hill day celebration.

FUNNY FOLKS

Sure to Find It.

"Bridget," he said to the family maid, "I am unexpectedly called out for the evening, and I want you to see that your mistress gets this note."

"Yes, soor," responded Bridget. "I'll lave it in the pocket of the trousers ye've just taken off, then she'll be sure to find it."—Spare Moments.

They Must Have It.

Men may live and be happy.
'Tis claimed, without books,
And some day fair science
May banish the cooks;
But never while people
Still labor and hope
Will men agree to Dispense with soft soap.
—Chicago Times-Herald.

PUNISHED FOR HIS HONESTY.

"So your boy is in the house of correction?"

"Yes, I'm sorry to say! He was always so honest, and when he stole anything he always brought it home, and that's how he got caught! — Heitere Welt.

Small Boy Speaks.

I don't want to be an angel,
And with the angels stand;
I'd rather be a drum-major,
And lead the village band.
—Chicago Daily News.

Domestic Catastrophe.

"Then there is no hope?" said the man desperately.

"None," she calmly replied. "The iceman must have stolen it."

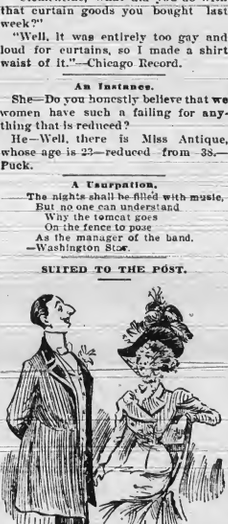
She had saved a piece of pie from luncheon for his dinner, and now it was gone.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Just in Vogue.

"Clementine, what did you do with that curtain goods you bought last week?"

"Well, it was entirely too gay and loud for curtains, so I made a shirt waist of it."—Chicago Record.

An Instance.



She—Do you honestly believe that we women have such a failing for anything that is reduced?

He—Well, there is Miss Antique, whose age is 23—reduced from 38.—Puck.

A Usurpation.

The night's shall be filled with music,
But no one can understand
Why the tomcat goes
On the fence to pose
As the manager of the band.
—Washington Star.

SUITED TO THE POST.

"My position is quite a sinecure—I have really nothing to do."

"My dear fellow, you are quite equal to it."—Ally Sloper.

The Men Who Give Advice.

If "all the world's a stage—"
And who can doubt it any?—
You'll certainly agree
The prompters are too many.
—Puck.

Playing for Safety.

Ned—You spend too much money on that girl. Remember, girls always accept everything a man gives them and then marry the fellow that saves his money.

Ted—I know. That's the reason I'm spending mine.—N. Y. World.

Obeyed Orders.

Merchant—If the man was out, why did you no wait until he came back, as I told you?

Messenger—Dere was a notice on de door what says: "Retoln at Wunst."—Town Topics.

He Was Quite Sure.

Irate Father—Are you sure you love my daughter for herself alone?

Suitor—Quite sure. If she marries me I shall never ask any of her relatives to live with us.—N. Y. Journal.

Her Reasons.

Lawyer—So you want a divorce from your husband, the flying-machine inventor. What are your reasons?

Client—Well, he is flighty, and his machines ain't.—Judge.

Some Other Girl.

Chapple—The fortune teller said I was to marry soon! What do you think of that?

Miss Peachly—You can't prove it by me!—Puck.

A Drama with a Lesson.

"But they marry in the last act, do they not?" he asked.

"No," she replied. "It seems to be understood that they will some day, but there is no definite arrangement when."

She sighed and he took the hint.—Puck.

Another Burden Added.

Mrs. Gotham—I bear your husband has brought you twin bedsteads.

Mrs. Church—That's right.

"Good gracious! Isn't one bedstead enough to have to look under every night, without having two?"—Yonkers Statesman.

Bit of Everyday Philosophy.

Old Lady—What time does the next train go to Yonkers?

Ticket Seller—Twelve o'clock.

Old Lady—Dear me! Isn't there one before that?

Ticket Seller (calmly)—Madam, there is never one before the next.—Harlem Life.

The Brute.

Mrs. Younghusband—How did you know the pie I made for dinner to-day wasn't the same as the one I made yesterday?

Younghusband—Because it gave me a different kind of pain in my stomach.—N. Y. World.

A Frugal Soul.

"Where's your bottle of cough medicine, Josiah?"

"What do you want with it?"

"Well, you won't take it, and as it cost 65 cents it shan't be wasted. I'm going to polish the piano with it."—Chicago Record.

The Ideal and Real.

How our hearts with joy uprise
When within them love has birth
Love may lift us to the skies—
Marriage draws us down to earth.
—Harlem Life.

POPULAR SCIENCE.

Susie—Oh, mamma, I'll never disobey you again!

Mamma—Why, Susie, what have you done?

Susie—Well, I drank my milk at lunch and then I ate a—pickle; and the milk said to the pickle: "Get out!" and the pickle said: "I won't!" and they are having an awful time.—Harlem Life.

As It Should Be.

Ben and Ann the parson sought,
And soon were much elated;
For Bene-fitted was the groom,
And the bride was Anna-mated.
—Chicago Daily News.

His Memory.

"Did you ever find that when you stood up to talk before an assemblage that you forgot everything you ever knew?"

"No," answered Senator Sorghum. "I never was investigated."—Washington Star.

Stygian Amenities.

Nero—What do you think was the real reason that I fiddled while Rome was burning?

Queen of Sheba—To add to the torture of the populace, I suppose.—N. Y. World.

A Way Out of It.

Boarder—Really, madam, I cannot wipe myself dry with such a small towel.

Landlady—Very well; I'll tell the chambermaid to bring you less water.—Tit-Bits.

About the Size of It.

Ideals die too fast, 'tis said,
But then why should we mourn;
For everyone that shuffles off
At least two more are born.
—Chicago Daily News.

FRESH FROM THE PAWNSHOP.

Mother (to her son, just home from college)—What is that number on your overcoat for?

Son—It's the coatroom number—I was at the theater.

Mother—But here are your trousers! You didn't leave them at the coatroom, too, did you?—Heitere Welt.

Nebraska in 1893 added $8,008,000 to its mortgage debt. In 1898 that debt was reduced by $6,000,000.

BOONE CO., RECORDER.

Wednesday, June 21, 1899.

Advertising Rates:

One inch, one time.....$1.00
Each additional time.....25
Obituaries, Tributes of Respects or notices of a like nature, per inch .50

W. L. RIDDELL, - - Publisher.

We are authorized to announce J. W. KENNEDY, of Union, as a candidate for the Legislature, subject to the action of the Democratic party.

We are authorized to announce BENJAMIN STEPHENS, of Florence, as a candidate for the Legislature, subject to the action of the Democratic party.

Neighborhood News.

Richwood.

A great many farmers are raising tomatoes for the Walton factory.

J. W. Grubbs, of Grant county, will spend the summer among his Boone county friends.

Robert Robinson, who fell from a horse, one day last week, and injured his leg, is getting along nicely.

The people of this neighborhood can get a telephone by a small subscription. Mr. P. T. Farnsworth, of Cincinnati, will put up local telephones in Kentucky.

Francesville.

Jake Reitman was the first to commence cutting wheat, this year.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Morton, of Indianapolis, are visiting their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Abraham Wainscott.

A party was given at Henry Schafer's last Saturday night in honor of the bride and groom, Mr. and Mrs. Andy Muntz.

Spring school here closed, last Friday afternoon. The speeches and dialogues were excellent and enjoyed by all present.

Mr. Andy Muntz and Miss Annie Schafer were married, last Thursday. They will go to housekeeping in a week or two at Coal City, Ohio.

Erlanger.

Mrs. William Boite gave a "Kaffee Klatch" at her house for the benefit of St. Henry's church, last Thursday.

The citizens are subscribing for celebrating the 4th of July, and Mr. Alouzo Victor has charge of the funds for the fireworks.

Misses Piatt and Fiack gave an entertainment at the K. of P. Hall, Saturday, for the benefit of the new Catholic school house.

Surveyors of the C. N. & C. electric railway of Covington have started to make a survey for the new electric road from Covington to Erlanger along the Lexington pike.

North Bend.

The farmers are through cutting wheat in this neighborhood.

Mr. J. E. Snyder was seen in this neighborhood, one day last week.

Mrs. W. O. Kirtley and son, Robert, have been sick but are now improving.

The marriage of Mr. Thomas W. Baisley and Miss Emma Warmley is announced for June 22.

Thornton Snyder came home from the Cincinnati Law School, last Wednesday, to spend vacation.

Coal City, a small town about three miles from here on the Ohio side of the river, has several cases of small pox in it.

Miss Clara Harrison, of Walnut Hills, Ohio, was called home suddenly last Monday, on account of her father's illness.

Mrs. C. N. Cropper and daughter, Mrs. Green and grand daughter, Miss Roberta Green, of Louisville, arrived at Bahly's Landing Friday morning on the City of Louisville. They are visiting W. P. Cropper and family, at present.

Bellevue.

The reaper is heard in the land.

The honey supply in the white clover is abundant.

Joseph Maurer has an order for 300 nests of baskests.

Miss Julia Dinsmore shipped 25 fat hogs on the 15th inst.

James Rogers has 100 acres of wheat, and has bought a McCormick binder with which to harvest it.

Miss Pearl Corbin, of Aurora, and Miss Katie McPherson, of Wood, Ind., have returned home after a visit of several days among relatives and friends.

Bro. Fail, we would suggest that you wait until August to pluck that fruit of which you made mention. Come along and we have some Rocky fords as well.

Boone Rogers had a family reunion last Sunday. His father-in-law, Nathaniel Carpenter, of Gallatin, and Carry Carpenter and family, of Petersburg, were also present.

Kassebaum recently put up some nice work at this place—monuments, marking the grave of Elijah Ryle and wife in the old cemetery, on the family burying ground of Scott Rice, deceased, and one in the new cemetery in memory of Hubert Aens. The last one named deserves special mention because of its beauty in material.

Gunpowder.

W. A. Carpenter, of Covington, was in this neighborhood, last Sunday.

Misses Jennie and Mattie Snyder entertained with croquet, last Saturday.

M. R. Tanner and family visited William Smith near Union, last Sunday.

Nearly all the boys from here attended the convention at Burlington last Saturday.

Mrs. Ada Surface was on the sick list a few days last week, but she has about recovered.

Tobacco is all planted and is starting off nicely. With a favorable season the crop will be good.

The Rouse Milling Company of this place shipped a car load of fine walnut lumber north, last week.

Mrs. Amanda Rouse and Henry Quick, of Hebron, were guests of aunt Lizzie Quick, last Sunday.

Otis Rouse, with his best girl, passed through our burg last Sunday evening, enroute to the Big Bone neighborhood.

Mrs. Jno Swim celebrated her birthday last Saturday week with a croquet party. The guests began arriving early in the afternoon and continued until evening. The number present was 80.

Wheat harvest began, last week, but the most of it will be cut this week. The yield will not be as good as was anticipated, while the grain is very good. Some fields are very thin and the fly or someother insect is damaging the wheat considerably.

Walton.

Mesdames E. P. Holder and Emma Lemond had a pleasant visit on Sunday to Mr. and Mrs. Fred Utz, of Florence.

Mrs. Judge Botts and her sister, Mrs. Robt. Ricketts, of Shelby county, are on a visit to their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Wilson, of Bank Lick.

Mr. Albert Britteuheim has not up to this time had any definite offer for the luxuriant crop of cocket burrs growu on the handsome lot on pike st., although the heaviest crop it has borne in several years.

Chas. S. Chambers and Estill Holder, U. S. N., left on Friday to accompany the other recruits from Cincinnati to San Francisco for the long cruise of the Hartfords training. The lads were enthusiastic and will give a good account of themselves.

The exercises for Children's day were given in a very creditable manner at the Christian church, Monday evening. The little folks who took part won many compliments to repay them for their faithful work, and also for the many pennies and nickels dropped by them into the basket.

Miss Lena Dalling, on a visit to her aunt in Ludlow, missed the jollification Sunday, the anniversary of her father's forty ninth birthday. Quite a number of friends and relatives came from the city in a large conveyance, drawn by spirited horses and drew up at the residence of Henry Dalling on High Street, and then music, mirth and feasting ruled the day.

Hathaway.

Wheat harvest is here.

Harvest hands are very scarce.

Robert Sullivan, of Riddell's Run, was on the sick list last week.

Sam Stephens and wife were the guests of his son, last Thursday.

Tom Horton has purchased a new binder, and is cutting wheat to kill and cripple.

J. D. McNeely and family were visiting W. S. White and family, last Sunday.

G. L. Smith and your scribe bought a binder last week, and began tieing up the golden sheaves.

Mrs. G. L. Smith and Cynthia Mason were the guests of their aged parents, one day last week.

Mr. Applegate, of Aurora, was in the Locust Grove neighborhood, last Tuesday, doing surgical work.

C. B. Mason and wife and son went to Rising Sun, last Sunday, to visit Mrs. Wilbur, who has been sick for some time.

Mr. and Mrs. Hal Presser were entertained until a late hour last Saturday night a week by the Hathaway string band.

Union.

Mrs. Harriet Taliaferro is the guest of her brother in Walton, this week.

Rouse & Son have been hauling logs and sawing framing timbers recently.

Mr. and Mrs. Kualy were entertaining Andy Collins, Sr., of Richwood, Sunday.

The wheat harvest has opened up in earnest and the quality is reported to be good.

Mr. and Mrs. Gibson and Uncle Lynn are entertaining their nephew, Frazier Bonny, of Louisville.

Ben Riley and Lawrence Kluney were driving the handsomest rigs we saw on the road Sunday.

Lucien Dickerson, Jr., made a flying visit to Indianapolis, recently, and thinks that city s beauty.

Mrs. Thos. Winters, of Cairo, returned home Tuesday, after a pleasant visit with her sister, Mrs. Lida Conner.

The meadows are not so good as usual in this section, as white top and other weeds are very much in evidence.

Henry Rose and Lew Clarkson were hauling corn through town, last week, but claim it has been gathered some time. We thought bit.

B. L. Corbid has painted up his residence to a Queen's taste and is now painting his High street property with the assistance of Col. Childress.

We went to Burlington, Saturday, "met the enemy and were his'n." There's no kick coming from the Union precinct, but she claims the banner, bakery, pies and all for having the boss delegation and ought to have it.

Jeff Norman and family, of Alabama, are the guests of M. C. Norman and family. Jeff tried farming for one year but found digging sheckles out of Alabama "hard pan" slow business and returned to railroading and seems to be flourishing like a bay tree.

Thos. Garrison, J. W. Conner, Robt. Willis, F. M. Howlett and many other close buyers have bought lead, oil and other painters materials in Union, this spring, because they can buy them at city prices, save a long trip to the city, give their patronage to home industries, &c.

Your correspondent was called upon by Mr. John Herdman Sleet, of Beaver, to repair the damages done his residence by the storms of 12 years ago. After two week's hard labor and several hundred pounds of lead with numerous gallons of oil and 50 pounds of putty the damage was repaired. Mr. Sleet said, "Well done thou good and faithful fellow," and we came home believing no better people live in that section than J. H. Sleet and family.

Prof. Collins desires to return his sincere thanks to the people of Uulon and vicinity for many favors shown him as teacher of their school, and as a citizen, &c. Mr. Collins has been appointed principal of the West Covington High School, and will be a citizen of that town in the future. We congratulate the Professor on his good fortune and hope for him a bright and prosperous future, at the same time regretting that he will have to leave Union, where he has a large circle of friends.

High street from Main to the school house has been about as rough and rocky as a road could very well be. L. W. Lassing employed a man and put him to work Monday morning breaking rock, digging out the ditches and putting it in a condition for hauling over. Mr. Lassing has begun the erection of a tenement building on the "Hamilton place" and needs a good road to haul over. Henry Quick, of Hebron, will do the carpenter work instead of Mr. Berkshire as we were informed.

Our quiet village was stirred up, last Thursday, by the presence of a large delegation from Beaver and Big Bone, being brought in by the famous Mcintire-Jump trial. Col. David Castleman, of Burlington, and Capt. Cy Dyas, of Walton, were the legal lights in the trial and succeeded in illuminating the situation to their own satisfaction, but the jury failed to see it their way, and hung fire. The High Sheriff of Boone and the High Constable of Big Bone, made up the jury, and rounded the boys up to a queen's taste.

Constance.

Miss Zadie Zimmer has been ill the past week.

Corn looks well, but pike looks like there had been no rain for a year.

Bruce Anderson is running two bread wagons. His business is brisk.

Mrs. Lizzie Klassner, who has been quite ill the past week, is improving.

A large crowd of city people had a picnic at Dry Creek, a few days since.

Henry Getker and family were visiting Eck Anderson and family, Sunday.

The machines have begun to sling and the wheat and grass have begun to fall.

The Constance, Jr., base ball team defeated the Pt. Pleasant team 11 to 8, last Saturday.

The young folks danced until the wee sma' hours at Rosen's drug store Thursday night.

Mrs. Annie Richmond, of Blue, Ind., is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Zimmer.

A large crowd of Mission workers from the city held a good meeting at the Constance Mission.

Large crowds passed through our town to the Lutheran Conference held at Hebron, last Saturday.

It is said that work on the street car line from Anderson's Ferry to Rising Sun, will begin this month.

Leon Loder mashed one of his toes very badly by allowing a barrel of flour that he was putting in a wagon, to fall.

L. C. Reeves and family, and Miss Edith Goings, and Mr. and Mrs. Language, of Newport, were callers at W. B. Reeve's, Sunday.

The Junior ball team defeated the Covington Stars Sunday morning, 34 to 10, but in the afternoon they were defeated by a fishing camp team 9 to 8.

The Jones Fertilizer Co. is going to put on a night crew, and our town is so badly stricken by prosperity that there is not a man idle who wants to work.

Misses Susie and Celia Winters and Ella England, and Albert Riggs and your correspondent spent Sunday evening at the pleasant home of B. F. Zimmer.

R. K. McManama, of Big Bone, was in town Monday. His eyes have been in a bad condition for a long time, but they are now getting better. He has had a cataract taken off of each of his eyeballs.

C. L. Crisler lost his pocket book here in town, last Saturday. It contained some papers with his name on them. He will be very thankful to the finder if he will return the pocket book and its contents.

Claude Holton, son of Elijah Holton, of Petersburg, Geo. Wendell and Adam Fezenmyer, all from Petersburg, enlisted in the U. S. Navy, and left last Saturday morning for their post of duty. The young men leave behind many friends who hope they will distinguish themselves in Uncle Sam's service.

Chief Rolling Bear has a handsome gold watch that he will present to the lady receiving the largest number of votes as the most popular lady in Burlington. The watch will be presented next Saturday night, the last night of the show. A ticket for one vote will be given you for each 10 cents you invest with Chief Rolling Bear's show between now and its close next Saturday night.

Several barns were demolished by a wind storm in Grant county, last week. One man was killed by lightning. The Courier says: "The gang of men working on the Williamstown section, 12 in number, sought shelter in a barn this side of Sherman, from the approaching storm. They had hardly entered the friendly shelter when the barn was struck by lightning and eleven of their number knocked down and dazed or partially rendered unconscious."

The following, received at this office, on a postal, explains itself:

To the Editor of the Recorder:

Bro. Utz is knocking at the right door, if he wants a discussion. We are glad that we can accommodate our brother. The challenge is accepted. Let him name his man and we will meet him. Am ready to meet Bro. Utz to settle arrangements.

Respect, GEO. W. WATKINS.

Mr. Thos. Jack writes from St. Louis about some old guns he has seen there. He says, "These guns were a part of the armament of the British man-of-war, Acton, which was sunk during an attack on Ft. Moultre in Charleston Harbor, S. C., June 28th, 1776. In 1887 a British vessel entering the harbor struck a sunken obstruction. The fact was reported to the U. S. authorities, who sent down a diver, and 50 guns of the old warship were discovered. They were raised by the U. S. Engineer Corps and ordered sold at auction, all with the exception of three guns were broken up and used in rip rap in the harbor improvement then in progress. These three guns were purchased by the Missouri Commandry of the Military Order of the Loyal Legion of the U. S., and subsequently presented to the Commissioners of Lafayette Park to be here placed as a reminder of that heroic struggle, which resulted in the birth of this nation. Those guns I measured, one is 5½ feet long the other two are over 9 feet long, and they had layed in the water so long and, rusted so, great flakes of iron have dropped off. They are now mounted on wooden carriages, some saying the way they were mounted when being used, only their carriages were iron, the wooden ones representing the kind they used."

PERSONAL MENTION.

Mrs. S. H. Riley is visiting her son, Dr. Furnish, of this place.

Uncle L. Nichols, of the Utzinger neighborhood, was in town Monday.

Miss Sallie Rogers, of Walton, was the guest of Mrs. Judge Roberts, last week.

D. M. Snyder and wife, of Bellevue, were guests of W. R. Rouse and wife, Friday.

H. W. Blyth attended the K. P district meeting at Williamstown, last Friday.

Mrs. J. H. Ryle, of Florence, is the guest of her daughter, Mrs. J. S. Clutterbuck.

Miss Martha Roberts, of Verona, is the guest of Misses Sheba and Susan Utz.

Mrs. Brady has returned home from a visit to friends and relatives at Jacksonville, Illinois.

Mr. A. D. Robbins was visiting her daughter, Mrs. J. M. Eddins, of this place, last Snuday.

H. G. Blanton and Oue Rogers, of Erlanger, were among the visitors to Burlington, last Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. B. B. Allphin attended the Carlisle-Howard nuptials in Gallatin county, last Thursday.

Mrs. Everett Stephens, of Walton, was the guest of her sister, Mrs. M. L. Riddell, a few days last week.

Jas. Brown was in town the other day hunting a stonemason to lay the foundation for his 30x40 barn.

From one or two neighborhoods come the reports that the temperature was only two degrees above freezing, last Thursday night.

Lewis Smith, of Sandford, Florida, is visiting his father, Dr. J. F. Smith, of this place. He holds a position in the car-shops in that city.

Mrs. H. C. Latham, of Illinois, and Mrs. R. C. Walker, of Crittenden county, are visiting W. C. Brown, of this place, and Mrs. J. O. Huey, of Erlanger, the latter being their brother and sister.

Miss Fannie Hogau was taken to a hospital in Cincinnati, last week, where one of her arms was operated on to straighten it, the bone having become crooked, and was getting worse all the time.

Quite a jolly fishing party, from the Hebron neighborhood, hied their way to Judge Stephens' pond, near Florence, last Wednesday, in pursuit of fish. Soon after their arrival the Judge and his son, Ben, had plenty of fish ready, some of them very fine, and which were cooked in a most delightful and palatable style, and served with coffee and corn cakes and other edibles. A most enjoyable day was spent by those present, among which number were Mr. and Mrs. John Stephens, Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Gordon, Mr. and Mrs. Harrison Clore, Mesdames Fred Utz, Dr. J. W. Juett, Chester Davis, Misses Lizzie Stephens, Bernice Duncan, Fannie Gordon, Messrs William Watts, J. C. Clore and Dr. Hays.

The streets are terribly dusty.

The Baptists are having their church papered.

Occasionally you hear of a field of good wheat.

Geo. Blyth has bought a new Milwaukee binder to put to work today.

The small boy, the green apple and salt make a combination that is hard to knock out.

Chief Rolling Bears' Medicine Co. will open up with its show in Union, next Monday night, the 26th inst.

Licences were issued by county clerk Adams, Monday, for the marriage on Tuesday of Mr. O. E. Rouse, son of Lewis Rouse, of the Union neighborhood, and Miss Georgia Huey, daughter of Mrs. Eva Huey, and niece of W. C. Brown of this place.

As Mrs. James, of Covington, and Mrs. Cutter, of Erlanger, were going to Benjamin Hewitt's, Monday, the horse they were driving, became frightened at some cows along the pike at the cemetery, and jumped off the road and upset the buggy against a barbed wire fence. The buggy was injured some, while one of the ladies got an arm hurt slightly. Some men who chanced to be near at hand went to the rescue, and assisted the ladies to Colonel Crisler's where Mrs. Crisler dressed the ladies wounds, while Colonel repaired the injuries to the vehicle, and the ladies were soon on their way again.

GRAND

FOURTH OF JULY

CELEBRATION

—AT THE—

Lawrenceburg

Fair Ground,

Lawrenceburg, Ind.

COL. WINFELD T. DURBIN

Will be the orator of the day.

161st INDIANA INFANTRY

will hold its first reunion.

PRIZE DRILLS,

SHAM BATTLES,

DANCING AND

All kinds of amusements will be the order of the day.

The celebration will commence at the break of day by the firing of a cannon that was captured from the Spaniards at Santiago de Cuba, July 4, 1898.

Grand Fire Works at Night.

Buy a Buggy Where the Many Buy.

Our Goods are Reliable and of Good Standard Grades.

and will sell anything in our Store for the CASH as cheap

as you will buy elsewhere.

Our Motto: BUY for CASH sell for CASH,

GOOD GOODS AT LOWEST LIVING PRICES.

Respectfully,

L. B. HUNTER, Rising Sun, Ind.

OUR MILLINERY

DEPARTMENT

Is in full blast and is filled with Trimmed and Untrimmed Hats at LOWER PRICES than ever.

LADIES' SKIRTS, PETTICOATS and SHIRT WAISTS ranging in price from 25c up, and in fact the whole house is chucked full of BARGAINS.

W. H. CLARK,

Rising Sun, Indiana.

JOHN ALLISON,

UNDER-  EMBAL-

TAKER MER,

—Corner Pike & Russell Streets,—

COVINGTON, - - KENTUCKY.

INDEPENDENT OF UNDERTAKERS' UNION.

Order Spring Suits NOW

H. F. BLASE.

And we will make them up artistically and ready for you promptly on time. We have

Over Five Hundred Styles

Of Spring and Summer Woolens to Select from. They come direct from the looms of foreign and domestic manufacturers, and surpass in elegance and variety anything ever shown in Covington. In the assortment are many exclusive patterns—goods that cannot be duplicated by any other establishment in this city. Keep these facts in mind and place your order for a stylish suit with us. We promise you a faultless fit, the proper cut, and a price that will not be more than you can afford to pay.

H. F. BLASE,

535 Madison Avenue,

COVINGTON, - - KENTUCKY

A Word to the Public

MY STOCK OF

Dry Goods, Notions,

AND LADIES' AND GENTS'

TOILET ARTICLES

for the Spring Trade has been received, and to be appreciated must be seen. Fresh

DRUGS AND GROCERIES

received daily. A large stock of

PAINTS & OILS

on hand at all times. All Goods New and Clean, and are sold at the

LOWEST CASH PRICES.

—GIVE ME A CALL—

J. G. OELSNER, Florence, Ky.

Local News.

The Republicans of Boone county will meet in mass convention, Monday, July 3d, 1899, at 1 o'clock p. m., in the Court House at Burlington, for the purpose of selecting delegates to the State convention which meets at Lexington, July 12th. Also for the purpose of nominating a candidate for State Senator.

T. R. MATHEWS,
Chairman Executive Committee.

Saturday was a nice day for a conventiou.

Wheat and hay harvests are now in full blast.

Leslie Goodridge began cutting his wheat last week.

Cool nights have prevailed for nearly a week now.

A great many of the Recorder's friends called on it Saturday.

W. J. Rice and wife entertained several friends at dinner, last Sunday.

The Commissary Beef Company will reorganize next Saturday afternoon.

C. I. Hood, the advertiser, has a Jersey bull which is insured for $50,000.

Wheat harvest is now at hand, some beginning to cut their grain, last week.

The colored people had a big basket meeting at their church here, last Sunday.

Willis Clore and Robert Bradford, of Hebron, are painting Noah Clore's residence.

Frank Hossman, of Hebron, has the contract for building D. E. Castleman's new residence.

The protracted meeting is still in progress at the M. E. Church. No additions to date.

The Indian Medicine Co., did a lively business, Saturday, giving three exhibitions that day.

☞ Go to A. Corbin & Son's for first-class Kanawha Coal at 9 cents per bushel of 76 pounds. au-1

Lawrenceburg is preparing for the biggest fourth of July celebration in the history of that city.

"He who laughs last laughs best," and it is very uncertain who will laugh last in the race for Governor.

Had Burlington been a-wide-open place there would have been a hot time in the old town last Saturday.

The new board of trustees will make an effort to raise money by subscription, to paint the school house

Frank Hossman and John Taneous have the contract for the carpenter's work on Castleman's residence.

The local political hustlers should take a few weeks rest before dividing off in the race for representative.

The next contest for which the Democratic forces in this county are to be mustered is that of representative.

Master Henry Adams has been having a serious time with his knee, of which mention was made last week.

All get ready to pull for the election of the nominees of the Louisville convention, let them be who they may.

It is now said that the electric road down the river from Cincinnati will extend no further than Lawrenceburg.

T. N. Grimsley, of Big Bone, after nine years' effort, was granted a pension of $8 a mouth, a few days siuce.

A beer wagon was in town Monday, said to be in search of the beer kegs that were emptied here last Saturday.

Tony Bentler has bought a new boiler and engine for running his threshing machiue. He will get it home this week.

James Beall and Henry Quick raised the bell and to some extent remodeled the bellfry on the Baptist church, last week.

From each neighborhood in the county comes the statement that the wheat crop is not as good as was anticipated.

A theological discusiou in this county is in store for the near future, unless some one backs down, and that is not all likely.

The Burlington delegation to attend the Louisville convention, went to the city yesterday afternoon to take passage down on the evening boat.

So far Judge Roberts has been unable to find anyone who will accept the office of justice of the peace in the Rabbit Hash—Big Bone district. Who wants it?

There is some very fine tobacco in the county. The plants that were set neverstopped growing when they were drawn, and in a few weeks topping will begin.

The watch contest is drawing to a close, and it is very close between the two leaders, Sebree and Eddins, and the best hustler from now until July 1st will win out.

There were 12 applicants for teachers' certificates on examination last Friday and Saturday, while one teacher, Miss Viola Walker, was examined for admission to the State college at Lexington.

The jury in the case of Clark Littell against Dr. John Violett in the Grant circuit court for $10,000 damages was gained by the defendant, last week. The plaintiff charged the defeudant with mal-practice in setting one of his legs that was broken.

The Republican county convention to select delegates to the State convention, will meet in Burlington next county court day. As both the candidates for Governor has a followiug in this county, the contest in the convention may prove to be a warm one.

THE MASS CONVENTION.

Never in the history of Kentucky was this county so thoroughly worked up in a contest for a guberuatorial nomination as it was in the contest that closed here last Saturday in the presence of 1,500 or 1,600 people who had come from every nook and corner of the county. The people began coming at an early hour, and kept coming until the mass meeting was called together. They came on horseback and in all kinds of conveyances, some coming from the Verona and Walton precincts in jolt wagons.

The Goebel men were given badges as soon as they arrived, and it was apparent that they were in the lead all day, and when Petersburg's Goebel delegation, 150 strong and headed by a brass band, arrived at noon, there was no longer any questiou as to who was the stronger man, Goebel or Hardiu.

A few minutes before 2 p. m., the army of Democrats, lead by a brass band, started for the base ball park, to dispose of the business for which they had assembled. Wheu the forces had been mobilized, D. E. Castleman, chairman of the County Executive Committee, after some effort got the crowd quieted so he could call for nominatious for permanent chairman, and the Hardiu men nominated W. H. Baker and the Goebel men, N. S. Walton. To decide as to the choice of the meeting, the chairmau attempted to divide the crowd, separating the Hardin and Goebel men that they might be counted, but after some considerable confusion this plan was abandoued, and a locatiou was designated for the assembling of the voters from each precinct, a plan that worked nicely. The precincts having taken their places and separated for the couut, the tellers that had been divided equally between Hardin and Goebel and appointed for each district proceeded with the couut, which resulted as follows by precincts:

	Goebel.	Hardin.
Burlington	145	55
Bullittsville	94	60
Petersburg	145	19
Bellevue	22	34
Rabbit Hash	5	34
Big Bone	44	52
Beaver	43	24
Verona	40	15
Walton	67	35
Florence	78	96
Union	15	123
Coustance	44	8
Total,	742	555

The result of the count as announced at its conclusion was Baker, 552, Walton, 708, but the vote as given us foots up as above. In each instance where there was any dispute between the tellers as to the count, the Goebel men accepted the Hardin teller's count.

Mr. Walton was declared elected permanent chairmau, aud upon being introduced, made a brief but spleudid speech. W. L. Riddell was elected secretary.

The meeting being organized proceeded to business, and the chair appointed J. M. Lassiug, Chas. Schramm and Geo. W. Roberts a committee on delegates, and while the committee was making up the list of delegates, on motion of D. E. Castleman, the delegates appointed to attend the Louisville convention, were instructed to vote for Wm. Gobel for governor.

The followiug resoiutiou, offered by D. E. Castleman, was adopted:

Resoived, that this mass meeting reaffirms each aud every plank of the Chicago Democratic platform, and declares that W. J. Bryan is its choice for President in 1900.

B. L. Rice was then called and made a brief speech, declaring his fealty to the uominee of the Louisville convention for Governor whoever he may be.

The committee on delegates reported the following list of delegates to cast Boone's 12 votes in the Louisville conqueution: D. E. Castleman, S. W. Tolin, J. F. Blyth, J. C. Byland, A. C Coilins, H. B. Adams, Chas. Schramm, J. G. Furuish, Geo. W. Roberts, J. W. Berkshire, J. S. Clutterbuck, O. S. Watts, J. M. Lassing, Elmer Beall, A. B. Rouse, B. A. Dulaney, Frank Curley, C. W. Waller, G. E. Carroll, J. M. Grant, N. E. Riddell, R. O. Powers, Walter Gordon, W. T. Stott.

Twenty-four delegates were selected, and in the event they all attend the convention each delegate will be entitled to one-half a vote. Those present will cast the entire 12 votes.

The report of the committee was adopted, and after short speeches by J. M. Lassing and N. S. Walton, the convention adjourned.

NOTES.

It was a delightful day for a political gathering.

C. L. Crisler dispensed free soup, that was made by Owen Aylor.

Several of the boys got so top heavy that they could hardly walk.

Boone county is becoming famous for large political conventions.

There are a great many things said on an occasion, like that of last Saturday, that would better be left unsaid.

Nathaniel Carpeuter, of Gallatin county, viewed the largest crowd of his native county people he had seen for a long time.

It was a good thing that the majority for the leadiug candidate was so large—otherwise there might have been a rough time.

Castleman kept his head perfectly duriug the preliminary proceediugs, although a desperate effort was made to rattle him.

Rabbit Hash came very near sending a solid delegation for Hardin, while Coustance came very near doing the same thing for Goebel.

Ed McKiin aud Otto Crisler dispensed refreshments from a stand in the Court-house yard, while Wilbert Westbay sold lemonade at the Boone House.

There are not many counties in the State in which 1,500 people can be brought together on an occasion like that of last Saturday, aud everything pass off as quietly as it did here. Boone county people know how to behave.

A Mr. Plunkett from the Beaver neighborhood, was in town, last Saturday, the first time for 24 years, and has been a citizen all that time. This shows the interest that was manifested in the governor's race in this county.

O. P. Conner is prizing and shipping his purchase of tobacco, while he and Johnnie Hogan are getting together a partnership purchase.

W. M. RACHAL & CO.

COLLARS DO DOUBLE DUTY HERE.

Standard Granulated Sugar, 18 lbs. $1 00.
Arbuckle Coffee 10 cents per lb.
Daniel Boone Soap, 3 bars for 5 cents.
Pittsburg Wire less than city prices.
Lime, Cement, White Lead, Oils. Varnishes, etc., as cheap as in the city.

Baby Shoes for 10c per pair up.
Misses' Shoes for 50c per pair up.
A full line of Men's, Ladie's and Children's Tan Shoes—Latest Styles, Best Quality, Lowest Prices.
Men's Dress Pants, 75c per pair.
Wonder Overalls, Shirts and Pants, the best made.

COME at ONCE. THESE PRICES are ONLY While Present Stock Lasts.

UNION, KENTUCKY. UNION, KENTUCKY.

ADLER'S

—THE PLACE TO BUY—
LADIES' • READY • MADE • GOODS.
A complete line of Silk Waists, Shirt Waists, Dress Skirts, Spring Capes in Silk or Cloth, Muslin, Underwear, &c., also dealer in Dry Goods. Furnishing Goods and Shoes.
ADLER'S, Parry Building Corner High and Walnut Streets LAWRENCEBURG, INDIANA.

FOR good, new and up to date goods at the Lowest Prices, go to the New Store at the Old Stand, at 123 Second St., AURORA, IND.
Having bought the stock of
Dry Goods, Notions and Shoes
of R. Mayhin, 123 Second St., Aurora, Ind.,
I have closed out the stock on hand at that time as nearly as possible, and have had the room remodled and have just received a
A New and Complete LINE OF Dry Goods, Notions and Shoes,
to which I invite your inspection, Boone Co., customers especially invited.
FRANK RIEMAN, - - AURORA, IND.

Deering Ideal Binder Folded.

Deering Binders, Mowers and Reapers
Posses the secret of LIGHT DRAFT, Deering Roller and Ball Bearings, Durability and convenience not excelled by any.
Be sure and examine these machines before purchasing.
Of those desiring anything in the Machinery line, Hay Rakes, Deering Repairs or Binder Twiner, we earnestly ask their patronage.
CROPPER & GAINES,
UTZINGER, KY.
mch29tf

McALPIN & THOMSON,
Successors to RIGGS BROS.
Undertakers
—AND—
Embalmers,

LIVERY, BOARDING & FEED STABLES.
Special Rates to Traveling Men. Pianos, Organs and Furniture Carefully Removed. First-class Carriages for hire with careful drivers for Families, Parties, Weddings, etc.
LEXINGTON PIKE, - - - ERLANGER, KY.
J. M. EDDINS, Agent, Burlington, Ky.

Are Your Dollars Worth SavinG?
Come ye of little faith; only those who have tasted of the the sweets in trading at our store can realize what the word "Saving" means.

CLOTHING

MEN'S NICE SUITS in Cassimere and Chiviots, at	$5.00
MENS'S NICE LIGHT SUITS, Worsted and Cassimeres—the latest things at	$7.50
MEN'S ELEGANT SUITS, Cassimeres, Worsted and Fancy Chiviots, at	$10.00
MEN'S FINE ALL-WOOL SERGE SUITS, Finest ever Shown, at	$7.50, $10, $11
MEN'S AND BOYS' LIGHT PANTS, a finer line was never shown at from	$1.50 to $5
IT WILL INTEREST YOU TO INSPECT OUR BOYS' SUITS.
CHILDREN'S SUITS, in Double-Breast and Vestee,	1$ to $5
CHILDREN'S WASH SUITS, They are beauties—an entire new line	50c and up
MEN'S CAMALET PANTS, Something cool and comfortable	50c
MEN'S OFFICE COATS	50c

BEAR IN MIND!—These goods are all brand new having been made specially to our order for this summer's trade. There is not a carried over garment in our store.

ROLFES & WACHS, No. 1 Pike Street, Cor. Madison Ave.
COVINGTON, KENTUCKY.

Take Your County Paper.

When in Burlington Call on
J. S. CLUTTERBUCK
•DEALER IN••
DRY GOODS
Notions, Boots and Shoes,
Who has just received his stock of
SPRING & SUMMER SHOES,
the nicest stock ever in town. Have old stock which
I AM SELLING AT GENUINE BARGAINS.
NICE LINE WALL PAPER,
☞At Prices to Suit the times.☜

DEERING - MACHINES
Are the favorites in every land where grass and grain grow. They are adopted to all conditions. They are the "Acme" of strength, durability, simplicity and light draft. We will carry a full line of Repairs. Buy the Machine that is fully guaranteed and handy to obtain repairs for.
Also remember we are headquarters for all kinds of
Farm Machinery
At bottom prices. We handle nothing but the best and fully guarantee all.
Also the Largest and Cheapest
Stock of Shoes
In the county, and a full line of
General -- Merchandise.
—CAN SAVE YOU MONEY.—
COME AND SEE.
T. J. HUGHES,
BEAVER LICK, KY.

GO TO
C. T. DAVIS & CO., HEBRON AND CONSTANCE, General Merchants,
A Good Supply of Feed always in Stock.
GARDEN AND FIELD SEEDS.
Undertaking Given Special Attention.
A good supply of Coal on hand at Constance at all times.
Hebron. C. T. DAVIS & CO. Constance

W. H. HOSHAL & COMPANY,
COMMISSION MERCHANTS,
Cattle, Hogs and Sheep,
—UNION STOCK YARDS,—
Cincinnati, - Ohio.
—TELEPHONE 7346.—
Information Regarding Live Stock Cheerfully Furnished.
Consign Your Stock Direct to Us.

LUMBER!
LATHS,
SHINGLES,
DOORS,
BLINDS,
SASH.
If you want any kind of Lumber it will be to your advantage to visit our yard at Lawrenceburg, Indiana, before buying. ☞Prices to Suit the Times.
M. E. LEMING & CO.

Muldoon's Methods

What One Patient Experienced During a Week's Treatment

By M. QUAD.

(Copyright, 1898.)

"Um!" growled Mr. Muldoon, after he had taken me in from head to foot and back again.

Mr. William Muldoon, in his own office, on his own training farm, is rather more formidable than the average physician. The physician who instructs you to take a dose of this or that three times a day and at bedtime seldom inquires afterward if you have followed his directions. You realize at once that Mr. Muldoon is going to oblige you to toe the mark. In fact, he's got you where he wants you—away from home and under his thumb. You don't meet with iron bars or armed sentinels, but you have a dim feeling that you are a prisoner. If, in days gone by, when

WAVED ME THROUGH THE AIR.

Mr. Muldoon was a professional wrestler, and you were present at an exhibition and hoped the other fellow would win, you regret the fact as you face him in his office and pray that he never heard of it.

"Well," he said, after another look, "I can't say until you peel off. Peel!"

I removed my coat and vest and stood before him in humble attitude. The first move he made was to place a hand on either of my shoulders and give me a wrench which nearly dislocated my neck. Then he thumped me on the breast-bone—one of his gentlest taps—in a way to drive me back against the wall with a crash. Then he toyed with my ribs and looked up in wonder as I sighed and groaned. At last test he picked me up with one hand and waved me through the air and turned me over and over like a wheel and smiled grimly as my shouts of "murder!" filled the room. He was testing to find whether my spinal column was plumb or out of true.

"You can begin training," he said as he released his hold and dropped me into a chair.

When the chairs and the room and Mr. Muldoon and the house and the farm and the state of New York had got through dancing around me I had become a lodger and a pupil. It was quite early in the day, and I expected the first move would include a prime cigar and a swing in the hammock. I was disappointed, however.

"We'll begin by a little stroll," said Mr. Muldoon, and as he set off I followed him.

My idea was that we were to wander along the shady paths and watch for humming birds and butterflies, and pause now and then to listen to the notes of the quails and robins, and I had a suspicion that when we reached some shady dell Mr. Muldoon would bid me sit down and tell him the story of my life. But I was mistaken all around. There was no strolling or wandering. Mr. Muldoon began from the first to get over the earth at the rate of six miles an hour, and when I would have lingered to cull a daisy he yelled: "Come along with you!" in a voice which lifted my hat by an inch. My natural gait at that time was a mile an hour, with frequent pauses to see the ambulance or patrol wagon go by. Mr. Muldoon increased my gait until the fence rails seemed only tooth-picks as we whirled past. When I sighed he growled. When I groaned he muttered. When I asked him in the name of common humanity to let up for a minute and let me draw a breath or two he uttered words to hurt my feelings. When we had traveled six times around the county and I had only one more minute to live, we brought up at his house, and as I fell in a heap on the steps Mr. Muldoon savagely demanded knowledge as to whether I was a man or a fish-worm, and ordered me to get ready for a rub-down. There was only a framework of bones to rub, but Mr. Muldoon's rubber wasn't surprised and didn't seem to care. He was there to rub. He began at my ears and finished at my toes. I protested when he lengthened my neck by six inches, and I cried out at the top of my voice when he dragged my shoulders down along my ribs and swept away the last vestige of my kneecaps, but he was a callous-hearted man and whistled blithely as he wrecked my anatomy. I forget his estimate of the quantity of perspiration which that stroll had brought out of me, but he said something about three barrels, and I presume he hit it within a gallon or two.

AT THE RATE OF SIX MILES AN HOUR.

After the rub-down I wanted to loll and smoke and read, but Mr. Muldoon objected. He sternly ordered me into bed, and added that if I was over five minutes falling asleep he would see about it. I thought best to obey orders. Seven hours later I didn't want to get up, but Mr. Muldoon gave me just 30 seconds in which to tumble out or be mashed by a baseball bat. I believe I turned out. I wasn't afraid of him, but I turned out because six o'clock dinner was ready downstairs. I had my order all made out in my head before I got down. There were to be fried oysters, cream potatoes, plum preserves, ice cream and—

"There!" said Mr. Muldoon, as he heaped my plate with rare beefsteak and boiled potatoes—"pitch in and fill up."

I had no idea of eating that food, but after a look from Mr. Muldoon I fell to. When I had finished I went out to enjoy a cigar and swing in a hammock and hear the nightingales sing. I had scarcely reached the veranda, and not a nightingale had piped his evening song, when a voice behind me directed:

"You'll go upstairs now for a light gymnastics."

It was Mr. Muldoon's voice, and it was Mr. Muldoon who backed it up. As I had slept a good share of the day I was to be put through. When we reached the gymnasium I was instructed in bag-punching. I refused to hurt the bag. Mr. Muldoon encouraged and ordered and demanded. He declared it my duty to myself, family and country to knock that bag's blamed head off and end its earthly career then and there, but the savage instincts within my breast refused to bubble up and the most I accomplished was the feat of disturbing a fly which had gone to roost for the night under a feeling of misplaced confidence. Moved by the unfeeling language of Mr. Muldoon I changed from the bag to the turning-pole. Under his arbitrary directions I hung from the bar like a bag of sand—I turned about like a man hung from a limb—I put both shoulders out of joint and fell on my head and dislocated my neck. When I had recovered consciousness the man was seated before me reading a newspaper as calmly as you please, and when I asked what the doctor had said about my case he ordered me off to bed and added that he had a 20 years' job on his hands. I crept off to bed, and it didn't seem as if five minutes had passed when I opened my eyes to find the gray of dawn stealing into the room. The gray of dawn and Mr. Muldoon were there together, and Mr. Muldoon brutally demanded to know why I hadn't turned out half an hour before. We had some conversation in the English language, and he got the best of it. In order to convince me of the fact he bustled me into a room constructed for a bathroom and a morgue combined. The ice water showered upon me stabbed me to the heart a hundred times over, but my loud calls for help brought no one, and Mr. Muldoon almost had a smile on his face as I sunk down in a dying condition and wondered if there would be a good turnout of Knights Templar to the funeral.

I BELIEVE I TURNED OUT.

I wanted frogs' legs on toast for breakfast. I had given my order, and was about to add to it when Mr. Muldoon appeared with beefsteak and potatoes and eggs and set them before me with a warning look. The advantage seemed to be with him, and I concluded to live on for a few hours longer. While finishing the meal I decided to pass the forenoon with the daily papers and a hammock and a cigar—two or three cigars. I had gone out to enter upon my pleasant enterprise when Mr. Muldoon followed after to observe that the horses would be around in a minute and we would take a jog. I started out to inform him that I hadn't backed a horse for 20 years, and that it was necessary for me to keep posted on political affairs, but he stopped me with a wave of his hand and muttered something in the Latin tongue, with which I am unfamiliar. We did not start right off for Denver as soon as I was in the saddle. On the contrary, Mr. Muldoon had to pull and haul on me, and order me to sit this and that way until much valuable time had been consumed and the tail of the horse seemed to have got where his nose ought to be. I demurred and protested and remarked and observed, but I was simply treated as cipher. When we finally got started the gait was 40 miles an hour, and we hadn't gone 40 feet before I lost the stirrups and was clinging to the pommel. Mr. Muldoon didn't even look back to see whether I was coming or not. He had set the pace and was headed for the Rocky mountains, and if I fell off that was my lookout. He must have heard me when I cried out in fear and pain—when I yelled "fire!" and "police!" at the top of my voice—when I offered him $1,000,000 in cash to head for a soft spot on which I could tumble, but he never drew rein.

After lunch I wanted to smoke and read and make my will, but Mr. Muldoon had other plans in view. He ordered me out on the lawn to limber up.

FELL ON MY HEAD.

I was to do it by a bop, step and a jump. I couldn't please him, try my best, and when I finally fell down and rolled among the bushes he seized me and flopped and banged me about until I thought the earth and the heavens had come together. I wanted three days in which to get my breath again, but he wouldn't give me three minutes. He said we must be off on our afternoon stroll, and I had to follow him. He led the way, up hill and down—over fences and through thickets—in and out of the woods and over logs, and as I followed him with rivers of perspiration running down my legs and tears in my eyes I could think of only one object in living till night—to murder him in cold blood as he slept. We may have taken in Boston, Buffalo, Cleveland and Philadelphia as we made the circle. Mr. Muldoon wouldn't even tell me the names of the states and cities as we passed through, and I was too wretched and hopeless to ask. I remember that we finally got back home, and that I was put in the hands of the rubber again, and that he said something in a far-away voice about six weeks and 5,000 miles. I wanted to die that night. I felt that I was more innocent than I would be next day, and that it would be to my advantage, but Mr. Muldoon wouldn't permit of it. He wanted to save me for that old trotting horse, and for more circuits of the globe, and for further contortion acts in the gymnasium and on the lawn He wouldn't let me die next day, nor the next, but savagely insisted that I live on and even increase my exercise I was bumbled, but not altogether crushed. I had spirit enough left to protest, but as his replies were in Latin be always succeeded in beating me down. Only once did he show a gleam of pity, and I am not quite sure whether that was pity or surprise. I asked for some angels' food and ice cream as a finish to dinner and he came around and felt of the top of my head and murmured: "Poor boy! He's got 'em for sure!"

FINALLY FELL ON MY HEAD.

I went up to stay with Mr. Muldoon for at least a month. At the end of a week I counted up and found that I had stared death in the face exactly 74 times, and that if every bone in my body hadn't been broken 20 times over there had been a mistake somewhere. If I left the place I might live a month or so. If I remained ——. Well, it is natural to cling to life. I got up at midnight and fled. Mr. Muldoon suspected my intentions and followed me, but I dodged him in the darkness and made my way home, and have never seen him since. At this distance from his training farm I can realize that he must be a good man and a just man, and that his sole object in riding and walking me to death and breaking my neck and mashing my bones was to make me all over on a new and improved scale, but it is too late. I forgive him and wish him well, but I am not for him.

MANUFACTURING AN ISSUE.

Dodging Tactics of the Republicans —Abandonment of the Principle of Self Government.

The republicans, we are told, will hold a series of conferences to discuss not only the house caucus scheme of currency reform, but all the different projects of financial reform, with a view to the creation of a general financial policy for the next session of congress."

"The importance of this," we are told, "will be seen at once when it is remembered that any legislation on the currency at the next session will necessarily become an issue before the national conventions and in the presidential campaigns of next summer."

Yes, this will be seen at once by people who have not seen it before. What is more suggestive is the fact that it has been foreseen ever since McKinley was inducted into office, and that everything like a serious attempt at currency reform has been deliberately postponed to the last hour.

The currency question was the one upon which the last presidential election turned. It was the "burning issue" of the campaign of 1896, yet it has been persistently dodged ever since. Instead of urging currency reform at the outset McKinley called an extra session of congress before he was fairly warm in his seat to give the country a tariff worse than the one which bore his name, and he relegated the currency question to a back seat in the top gallery and has kept it there ever since.

This was about as deliberate an insult as he could offer to the men without whose votes by his own admission he could never have been elected. He did precisely that to which the democrats who supported him, directly or indirectly, were most opposed, and made no effort to do that which they wished to have done, and for the sake of which they sundered old party ties.

Now another presidential election is approaching, and the leaders of the McKinley party are holding long conferences for the purpose of manufacturing a currency issue for the coming campaign. They manifestly have no intention of settling the question and taking it out of national politics, as it ought to be. Their intention evidently is to patch up some colorless measure out of which they hope to get an issue through indiscreet democratic opposition. But it is farthest from their purpose to do anything decisive and dispose of the currency question in a manner likely to be final.

The fact that they have done nothing all this time sufficiently proves that they do not care to do anything. They are mortally afraid to face the people squarely on the issue of imperialism—the abandonment of the fundamental principles upon which the republic is based as enunciated in the Declaration of Independence, the principle of self government. They are mortally afraid to meet the people on the question of the war of subjugation which has been waged for four months, and which, apparently, has just begun, in which our soldiers are required not only to shoot down people whose only crime is that of our revolutionary fathers, but to shoot to death that very doctrine of self government which until now has always been that in which Americans have most gloried and for which they have been ready to lay down their lives.

Fearing to meet the people on this, the most vital issue which has appeared since the revolution of 1776, the republican leaders are hoping to get them wildly excited once more over an empty currency issue, and they trust to the folly of the democratic leaders to help them on with that vicious enterprise.—Chicago Chronicle.

The Future of Mark Hanna.

Hanna is to be accounted one of the most potent influences—probably the most potent influence—in the government, as long as McKinley is president. Whether he has attained anything beyond this is more open to question. We see no proof of his influence in the senate, aside from what this affords him. He has certainly taken no leading position in debate there. We find him neither originating nor connecting his name with any important question of public policy. His fellow senators do not refer to him any further than he is supposed to represent President McKinley. President McKinley's own course upon public questions has been negative or tentative, according to the native bent of his mind. He has never put forward any policy through Hanna, and Hanna has, apparently, no policy of his own with symptoms of enterprise in it on the currency or the foreign affairs of the currency. There is obvious reason why he should be reticent on that of trusts. He stands in the senate solely as the reputed confidant of McKinley, and in his attitude he is not enterprising. We see no indication that he is to be a power in republican politics after McKinley leaves the official stage.—Boston Herald.

—When Candidate McKinley sought a presidential nomination it was Mark Hanna who conducted his winning campaign, and this same unscrupulous, serviceable friend raised a corruption fund of millions to make his election sure. The friendship thus cemented has grown in strength and fervor. The president's gratitude has taken the form of a complete surrender. Hanna's political notebook has been a slight draft on the administration. Whether it called for a postmastership at a cross roads village or a special rate in the tariff schedule, a cabinet portfolio or a doorkeeper's place in one of the departments, the obligation was immediately honored. Mark Hanna had carte blanche in his plans to nominate and elect William McKinley. He did his work thoroughly, and the public treasury has paid the bills.—N. Y. Journal.

IN THE HANDS OF SPOILSMEN.

President McKinley Makes a Bad Mess of the Civil Service Matter.

After months of shivering on the brink President McKinley has finally taken the plunge. The order modifying the civil service restrictions so as to exempt a large number of offices from the classified service was approved in cabinet meeting the other day and will be signed and promulgated as soon as some changes have been effected.

The number taken out from under the protec... civil service rules and thrown to be scrambled for by the spoilsmen is not so large as originally demanded, and there will be great disappointment in consequence. Nevertheless, it is no slight percentage of the whole number in the classified service. Out of 65,000 offices now in the classified list 4,000 are to be withdrawn, being a little over six per cent. of the whole.

Four thousand offices are not enough to go around the anxious and hungry expectants, and three times that number of office seekers will be disappointed and angry. But there may be more before long if the pressure upon the president is kept up.

The important thing is that the lines of civil service protection have been broken down at one point. It is the first breach that counts. Hitherto there has been a steady building up and strengthening of the civil service defenses. Now a part has been broken down and that will weaken all the rest.

President McKinley has taken a step which he may have cause to regret. He may have strengthened himself with the spoils politicians, but he has weakened his hold on the thinking people of his own party and has deeply grieved thousands of independent citizens who voted for him after his acceptance of the platform which declared:

"The civil service law was placed upon the statute book by the republican party, which has always sustained it, and we renew our repeated declarations that it shall be thoroughly and honestly enforced and extended wherever practicable."

It is a republican president, elected on that platform, pledged to it, and who in his inaugural said: "Reforms in the civil service must go on," who has restricted instead of extended the operations of the civil service law and who has effected a retrogression in civil service reform when he had promised that it should "go on."

Where is the McKinley backbone?—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

PARAGRAPHIC POINTERS.

——Democrats who want to pass a resolution against trusts will find the plank in the Ohio republican platform recently expressed.—St. Louis Republican.

——The apologies for the president's blow at the civil service law are so lame as to indicate that the president's best friends realize that he has made a bad blunder.—Atlanta Journal.

——The intention of the republican members of the finance committee to hold their conference in New York behind closed doors is only another suggestion of how little there will be for the public in the entire currency reform programme of the administration.—Detroit Free Press.

——If President McKinley's new civil service order is right, it ought to have been issued two years ago. If it is wrong, it ought not to have been issued at all. With characteristic vacillation, Mr. McKinley has taken just the right course to show that he is doing what he believes to be wrong.—Albany Argus.

——Now that the republicans of Ohio in convention assembled have "officially" rated Mr. McKinley with Abraham Lincoln, there can be no longer any reason for Lincoln's oldest and best friends in the party, like Sherman, Hoar and Edmunds, to have any opinions of their own about the administration.—Columbus (O.) Press-Post.

——We are inclined to believe that, for once in his life, Hon. Mark Hanna is mistaken. He declares that the question of trusts is in no sense a political one. If he doesn't change his mind about it before the republican national convention he will have cause to do so when the returns from the presidential election are in.—Chicago Chronicle.

——The humorous side of Mr. Hanna was shown when he had a resolution adopted by the convention condemning trusts. Unless he is grossly misrepresented his strong box holds more or less of stock of every good-paying trust in America. But the republican leaders themselves admit that the convention did not remove the cause of the several factions, and none of them is sanguine that Ohio will go republican this fall.—Kansas City Times.

——The most amusing defense of McKinley's backsliding on civil service reform is the claim that he yielded partially to the spoilsmen in order to keep them from overthrowing the entire merit system, but of course this will not wash. McKinley had no reputable motive whatever in dishonoring his own word, breaking his promise and repudiating the platform of his party. He was actuated either by cowardice or self-interest, and that's all there is to it.—Memphis Commercial-Appeal.

——A year or two ago, when the farmer was not enjoying his present degree of prosperity, the manufacturers of agricultural machinery never thought of organizing into a trust and increasing the prices of their goods; the farmer did not have money then, and it was not thought worth while to "work" him. But no sooner does he become solidly prosperous than it occurs to the manufacturers of farm machinery that it would be a good thing to increase their profits 25 per cent.—Sioux City Tribune.

SCHOOL AND CHURCH.

The Central Presbyterian church of New York gave last year $20,011 for missions.

The London Tract society has carried on work in all parts of the world and in no less than 229 languages, dialects and characters.

The Mission to Lepers in India and the East has under its charge at present in its own homes, adults and children, 1,438 lepers.

India is considered to be a heathen country, yet Calcutta is said to have the largest number of college students of any city in the world.

A petition bearing the signatures of over 16,000 persons has been received by D. L. Moody from Australia, asking him to hold revival services in that country.

The recent Christian Endeavor convention in Jamaica was held in a courthouse where 75 years ago a number of Baptist ministers were tried and found guilty of preaching to slaves without license.

The white Catholic population of New Zealand is reported to be nearly 160,000, with 340 churches, 143 priests, two colleges for boys and 21 boarding schools for girls, and 98 preparatory schools, attended by 11,361 pupils.

During March, this year, 27 libraries, 1,231 slides, 407 photographs and 14 will pictures were loaned by the board of regents of the state to schools, study clubs and public libraries and to communities without library facilities.

Contrary to the general belief, Oxford has more representatives on the English bench than Cambridge. Of the 40 judges of the high courts of justice 14 are graduates of Oxford, nine of Cambridge, four of Trinity college, Dublin, five of London, three of Scotch universities and six are not college men. So says the Saturday Review.

BOND IN CONVERSATION.

Two Wearers of Eyeglasses Never Need Be Without a Subject.

He is one of those enthusiastic men whose hobby is his friends. His chief aim in life seems to be getting those he most admires together in his home or at the club, and then leaves them to get acquainted while he writes a letter or attends to some equally unimportant piece of business.

Not long ago he caused to become acquainted a man whose one desire is to thoroughly understand agriculture, and a broad minded, free thinking lawyer, who cares no more about why things grow than a goldfish does for a mouse. They are both intelligent, but the only thing similar about them is that they both wear glasses.

"Mr. Jones, this is Mr. Brown. Now, if you will excuse me, I'll write a letter," said mine host in his usual way, as he withdrew.

They both lighted cigars, and the lawyer began a story of the day, but the agriculturist merely smiled a faint, far-away smile. The lawyer talked of a difficult case he had just won, and of numerous well-known cases over the country, but called forth no answering remarks from his companion. He discoursed at length upon the theaters and all the latest music and gossip, but to no avail. He narrated on the virtues and failing of past and modern literature, religion, art, science, the Australian ballot system and national politics. His companion listened, but said nothing, showing he was not interested. In despair, the lawyer commenced a discourse on the meteoric showers, when he noticed the agriculturist remove his spectacles and wipe them on a corner of his handkerchief. A bright idea came to him.

"I see you wear spectacles," he said. "It is said there is a vast difference in results of wearing nose glasses and spectacles. I suppose you have worn both? Can you tell me what it is?"

The agriculturist had, could and did. He talked on what was the matter with his eyes, what he did for them, how certain lights and things affected them, what sort of prisms to wear, who is the best oculist, and listened attentively and eagerly to like remarks from the lawyer. When mine host returned, they were still discussing the subject and were apparently the best of friends, which goes to prove that, no matter how far apart you are, a man or a woman, if you wear glasses there is always a bond of fellowship and interest between you, and an open sesame to conversation. Try it some day and see. —Florida Times-Union.

Mushrooms Made by Hand.

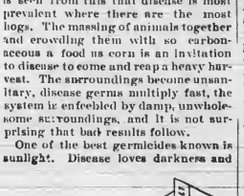
A mushroom manufacturer is the latest thing in novelties. An individual living in the department of the Aveyron, France, struck by the high price at which mushrooms were being sold in his district, conceived the idea of fabricating the delicacy out of turnips. He cut the turnips into rounds, dried them, and, after giving them a lab with the paint brush, disposed of them to unsuspecting customers as the genuine article. For some time he drove a thriving trade, but, unluckily for him, he one day sold a batch to a gourmet, who was not so easily to be taken in. Indignant at the trick played on him, the gourmet brought an action, which has just resulted in the condemnation of the mushroom manufacturer to two months' imprisonment. —Stray Stories.

A Date Cake.

Bake an ordinary cup cake in three layers about three-fourths of an inch in thickness. Spread between the layers a mixture of one cup of chopped dates and half a cup of whipped cream; ice the loaf, and scatter over the top some whole dates, stoned and stuffed with almonds.—Housewife.

Doleful Sort of Pleasure.

Some people find as much pleasure in whining about their misfortunes as others do in boasting of their good luck. —Chicago Daily News.



AGRICULTURAL HINTS.

SANITARY HOG HOUSE.

Dry, Sunshiny Quarters Are Absolutely Necessary to the Steady Health of Swine.

In some of the counties of Illinois half of the hogs often die on account of disease. In Iowa severe losses are reported. Indiana, Kansas, Nebraska and Missouri report loss, but to a smaller extent. Kentucky is comparatively free. Wisconsin, Minnesota and the Dakotas are usually light sufferers. It is seen from this that disease is most prevalent where there are the most hogs. The massing of animals together and crowding them with so carbonaceous a food as corn is an invitation to disease to come and reap a heavy harvest. The surroundings become unsanitary, disease germs multiply fast, the system is enfeebled by damp, unwholesome surroundings, and it is not surprising that bad results follow.

One of the best germicides known is sunlight. Disease loves darkness and dampness. Dry, sunshiny quarters are absolutely necessary to continued health. All animals must have the sunshine to bask in or they will not thrive, and especially young animals require sunshine. These facts are too well known to call for proof. They are stated as a reminder and to point out a way to arrange a hog house so as to provide the needed sunshine inside. It is a simple thing to get the sunlight to stream in at the south side, but although it reaches the floor near the south side it will not reach far back. The problem is to get the sun's rays to the north side of the building. This can be done and the north side of the hog house made warm and sunny, even warmer than the south side.

HEALTHFUL HOG HOUSE.

To do this build the house extending east and west and of any size desired, depending upon the size of the herd it is to accommodate. Then put the "peak" of the roof south of the center of the building. Give both sides of the roof the same pitch. To do this the roof of the north side will run higher than the roof of the south side in the place where the roofs meet. The cut illustrates the plan. Suppose the roof of the north side to be 24 to 30 inches higher at the ridge than the roof of the south side. Then there will be a chance to put in glass below the one roof and above the other, and the sun will stream through to the north side and kill disease germs by the millions and tone up the system of pigs and shotes and make them thrifty and healthy.

The alley runs through the center of the building and the central windows are therefore just over the south side of the alley, and the sun will shine over the alley and into the pens north of it. The whole building is made sunny and pleasant by this center light, but if wished glass can also be put along the south side of the building to give direct light to the pens on the south side of the alley. A building like this will be particularly prized in early spring as a place to raise early pigs. For summer pigs there is no better place than out in a good pasture.—C. E. Bennett, in Orange Judd Farmer.

HINTS FOR STOCKMEN.

Hogs sometimes get seasick traveling on the cars.

A horse broad in the forehead will generally be intelligent and kind.

Standing on bare, hard floors cannot but be injurious to the horses' feet.

Arrange the windows in the stable so that the light will strike both eyes with equal force.

Small, unsalable, cooked potatoes are good for the hogs; mix with skim milk and a little corn meal.

The purer the race of the parent, the more certainty there is of transmitting its qualities to its offspring.

When giving horses rest, give them the full benefit by making their quarters as comfortable as possible.

When the dam is seen to lie down to let her pigs suckle, and then jump up quickly to try to push the pigs away, sometimes not without giving utterance of pain, the trouble is with the teeth of the pigs, which have become sharp. These sharp teeth should be broken off or filed down. They can be easily distinguished by examining the mouth of the pig, and quickly corrected.—Western Plowman.

Cow Peas and Fires.

Here is an argument in favor of cow peas in orchards that is novel and sound. It is written by R. C. Morris, of Olney, Ill.: "I must not neglect to call your attention to another very important matter. Peas and beans are in their greatest stage of growth when we are often losing thousands of trees and dollars from fires set by railroad locomotives and hunters in August and September. Where peas and beans grow there is no possible danger from fire." Some dry crop like oats or grass will take fire from a spark, while green peas or beans will escape. For the good of the orchard, also, it is better to have the green crop growing late in the season.

HANDLING THE BEES.

It Should Be Avoided, if Possible, on Cool Days and Rainy Days in Summer.

No one should think of opening the hives and working with bees in cold weather in winter, or in cool weather in summer. There are but few days during the winter that one can do any successful work with bees, says a writer in Texas Farm and Ranch, and that is only an occasional day that is warm enough for them to fly, and at any other time it will be a detriment to them to molest them. Bees should remain in absolute repose during all cold weather. There should not be a path or roadway near where the hives are sitting that is to be traveled by either man or beast during winter. The jarring that hives frequently get from heavy winds is very injurious to them. Not only in winter, but in spring and summer there is a wonderful difference in results by handling bees at the proper time. All handling of bees on cool days and rainy days ought to be avoided if possible. It makes bees irritable to be thus handled, and with but little effort we can have them at a fighting pitch. This is also true when handling them early in the morning or late in the evening. The proper time to work with bees is on bright days, and from nine o'clock a. m. to four o'clock p. m. Much better work can be done, and with greater satisfaction, when the bees are busy at work gathering honey, and the more busily they are occupied the less liable they are to show any opposition. During the honey season bees may be handled right along every day without the aid of smoke, and much better work can be performed without smoke if we but go about it in a proper manner. Handling bees at the time above referred to, and doing the work carefully so as to avoid arousing them by rough usage, we can almost dispense with the bee smoker during the honey season and get along much better without it. To use the smoker whenever we handle a colony of bees is to whip them into subjection, which is absolutely wrong, for if the little fellows want to be on friendly terms with us, and allow us to handle them thus, why should we make battle with them and whip them into subjection, without any provocation on their part? Such treatment would seem that we had less intelligence than they.

TEXAN ANGORA GOATS.

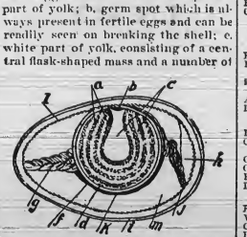
Many Range Men in the Lone Star State Are Substituting Them for Their Sheep.

Owing to the fall in the price of wool Angora goats are replacing sheep upon many Texan ranges, especially such as are rocky, hilly or well timbered and provided with plenty of water.

When the goats were first introduced many were killed by wolves, but for the last six years farmers have waged war on them with steel traps, setting them under the ten-wired fence wherever a goat had been killed. The traps are generally set three together, and a wolf rarely runs more than 300 feet with such an ornament before they seek shelter in thickets and lie down. Of course the trail is readily followed by dogs.

When the goats have just been sheared it is not easy even for a wolf to catch one, but just before shearing the long hair catches in every thicket and impedes flight.

The goats are much more intelligent than sheep and are easily trained to come home at sundown, though some range men find it more profitable to keep them within a "wolf-proof" fence.



The quantity and quality of mohair sheared depends much on the range, though the goats will get fat where other stock would starve. The goats should be shorn twice a year and have been known to yield as much as seven pounds at a clipping. The hair sells in Texas at 35 to 45 cents a pound, and the meat of the goat at about five cents a pound.

No more beautiful pet animal than the Angora goat with its long, perfectly white hair can be imagined. They are most happy in a rough and hilly pasture where they can have high and difficult obstacles to climb, and their gymnastic feats are as amusing in Texas as those of the Harlem goat in his rocky fastnesses.—N. Y. World.

STRUCTURE OF AN EGG.

An Interesting Picture Showing Cross Section of a Hen's Egg Before Incubation.

The cut shows a cross section of a hen's egg before incubation. A, yellow part of yolk; b, germ spot which is always present in fertile eggs and can be readily seen on breaking the shell; c, white part of yolk, consisting of a central flask-shaped mass and a number of layers arranged around it, the outer layer of white yolk lying just beneath the vitelline membrane, d. Outside this membrane is f, a layer of more fluid albumen; g, chalaze; h, air space; i, shell membranes; j, shell; k, layer of thicker albumen outside the yolk; l, boundary between outer and middle parts of the albumen or white of the egg.—Orange Judd Farmer.

STRUCTURE OF AN EGG.

A sloppy, watery mess should never be given young pigs, for by gorging themselves with it, they become pot-bellied, have indigestion and scours.

TOLD OF WOMEN.

A woman exacts love from a man as a duty and confers it as a favor.—Atchison Globe.

A woman's way to buy a present is to bring home two or three to examine.—Washington Democrat.

A woman may listen to the advice of her husband, but she invariably does as she pleases just the same.—Aurora News.

The average woman never quits growing. As soon as she quits growing up she begins to grow sideways.—N. Y. Press.

A woman's idea of studying a man's character is to hint around to try and find out if he has ever been in love.—Galveston News.

When a woman has a husband that nobody else on earth can get along with she says he is "a diamond in the rough."—N. Y. Press.

In Finland women work as carpenters, bricklayers, paper hangers and bakers. They also have the right of suffrage.

The suburbanite who has a daily shopping memorandum from his wife could make a few eloquent remarks anent the "White Man's Burden."—Philadelphia Times.

A woman who would never tell a lie would pad her form, dye her hair and conceal her wrinkled face beneath paint and powder, which, when discovered, would occasion ridicule.—Boston Herald.

Belle Fulton, a pretty 16-year-old girl of Flushing, L. I., is driving her grandfather's public cab. At first she only went out occasionally when the old man was indisposed, but lately she takes the vehicle out all the time and has become a regular hackwoman. The other hack drivers are complaining that she gets most of the trade.

FOR THE STAMP COLLECTORS.

The next new issue for collectors is that of Porto Rico.

Now that the Omaha stamps are obsolete many collectors are inquiring at the post office for sets at face value, and not getting them.

The current two-cent stamp of Hawaii has been changed from brown to pink. This, it is said, is the last stamp of the old series that will be issued.

Italy is the home of postage stamp counterfeiters, and the work is so cleverly done that European collectors are kept in a constant state of apprehension for fear they will be swindled.

Two varieties have been found in the new two-cent envelope stamps. In one the head is pointed at the top and the lower part of the bust is rounded. The other shows a broken "I," and the embossing is much better, the face and hair standing out prominently.

It is rumored that a number of prominent business men of the west will shortly agitate the question of domestic rates of postage to the new colonies. At present they apply only to mail addressed to the officers and men of the army and navy, all other matter being subject to the old rate.

SHORT RULES FOR THE HOME.

Put self last.

Be prompt at every meal.

Take little annoyances out of the way.

Always speak politely and kindly to servants.

Tell neither of your faults nor those of others.

Have a place for everything and everything in its place.

Hide your own troubles, but watch to help others out of theirs.

Never interrupt any conversation, but watch patiently your turn to speak.

Look for beauty in everything, and take a cheerful view of every event.

Carefully clean the snow and mud from your feet on entering the house.

When good comes to anyone, rejoice. When anyone suffers, speak a word of sympathy.

When inclined to give an angry answer, press your lips together and say the alphabet.

When pained by an unkind word or deed, ask yourself: "Have I never done an ill and desired forgiveness?"—Soldier and Servant.

THE MARKETS.

	CINCINNATI, June 19.
LIVE STOCK—Cattle, common	$ 50	@ 4 35
Select butchers	5 00	@ 5 10
CALVES—Fair to good light	6 50	@ 7 75
HOGS—Coarse and heavy	3 90	@ 3 95
Mixed packers	3 95	@ 3 99
Light Yorkers	3 95	@ 3 99
SHEEP—Choice	3 25	@ 4 00
LAMBS—Spring	3	@ 5 40
FLOUR—Winter patent	3 50	@ 3 70
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 red		@ 75
No. 2 spring		@ 73
Corn—No. 2 mixed		@ 37½
Oats—No. 2		@ 28
Rye—No. 2		@ 68
HAY—Prime to Choice	11 00	@ 11 25
PROVISIONS—Mess Pork		@ 9 75
Lard		@ 4 85
BUTTER—Choice dairy		@ 11
Prime to choice creamery		@ 21
APPLE—Choice to fancy	4 00	@ 4 25
POTATOES—New, per ½ bbl	75	@ 90
CHICAGO.
FLOUR—Winter patent	3 65	@ 3 75
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 red		@ 70½
No. 3 Chicago spring	73½	@ 76
CORN—No. 2	34½	@ 34½
OATS—No. 2		@ 26½
PORK—Mess	7 40	@ 8 50
LARD—Steam	4 90	@ 5 07½
NEW YORK.
FLOUR—Winter patent	3 85	@ 4 00
WHEAT—No. 2 red		@ 72½
CORN—No. 2 mixed		@ 42
RYE—		@ 55½
OATS—Mixed		@ 30½
PORK—New mess	8 75	@ 9 00
LARD—Western		@ 5 12½
BALTIMORE.
FLOUR—Family	3 80	@ 3 90
GRAIN—Wheat, No. 2 red		@ 72½
Southern	70	@ 72½
Corn—Mixed		@ 36½
Oats—No. 2 white	32	@ 32½
Rye—No. 2		@ 55½
CATTLE—First quality	4 70	@ 4 90
HOGS—Western	4 00	@ 4 15
INDIANAPOLIS.
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 red		@ 71
Corn—No. 2 mixed		@ 37½
Oats—No. 2 mixed		@ 28
LOUISVILLE.
FLOUR—Winter patent	3 75	@ 4 00
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 red		@ 72
Corn—Mixed		@ 34½
Oats—Mixed		@ 27½
PORK—Mess		@ 9 50
LARD—Steam		@ 5 70

A SWEET REVENGE.

Clarence Was Weak on Spelling and She Brought It Up in Red Ink.

"Oh, Eleanor, I am so glad to find you here. I went up to your house, and your mother said you had come here to be fitted," and as Eleanor grasped the speaker's hand the dressmaker frowned, for she didn't want the fit of the new gown interfered with.

"Well, Daisy," said Eleanor, "I am glad, too, for I see by your eyes that you've something to tell me."

"Yes. This morning I went over to see Kit, and I ran up to her room, as we always do, you know."

"Yes," asserted Eleanor.

"And she was crying. All around her on the floor were letters, and on the bed more letters. I said: 'Mercy, Kit, what's the matter?' Every now and then she would make a vicious jab at a letter and appear to be writing.

"'Oh, Daisy! I am almost wild! I'm so busy.'

"'What are you doing?' I asked.

"'Well,' said Kit, 'you know Clarence and I have had a quarrel—and I'm glad of it—and here she sobbed the gladdest kind of a sob—'and—and—he sent all my letters back—and the silver bookmark—and the lovely pipe I gave him with his name engraved on it—and—oh, Daisy! I can't use any of them—how can I?—and so I'm getting his letters ready to return. I'm—I'm correcting them,' and then she laughed and made another jab with her pen.

"'Correcting them?' I gasped.

"'Yes—correcting them. You know Clarence is a terrible speller, so I have gone over each letter in red ink and made him see that it was intentional. Humph! I'll bet he won't tell another man he broke it off!'

"I couldn't help laughing, but wasn't it a fine revenge?"—London Tit-Bits.

GOLFING AND CYCLING.

These two great sports go hand in hand. The links are perforce situated at some distance from town, and the easiest and quickest way to reach them is with the bicycle. For golf good links are needed; for cycling Good Roads. Golf links can be made anywhere by digging holes, and making artificial barriers. On Long Island Nature has been particularly kind. Its North Shore is all rolling country, in many places glacial action has formed hills and hollows of perfect delight to the followers of this sport. The level and beautiful ocean shore is broken in many places by rolling hills covered with grass and shrubs which go to make up links so close to the Scottish ideals that all who have played in the old country are struck at once by their wonderful fitness for the sport, and added to this the fact that the cool South breeze comes up every day throughout the Summer from across the ocean and brings with it a bracing and exhilaration that nothing else can give. Nowhere but on Long Island do these conditions exist. It is unique in this as it is in its varied scenery and its unsurpassed attractions in every line. The roads are good and many beautiful side paths and cycle paths wind through the woods. The tour around the Island which can be made in three days is most enjoyable, and a week taken to the trip can be filled very full of pleasure. The camera should not be left at home, as the scenery is constantly changing, and its beauties are well worth preserving for future enjoyment.

Genius.

"How is it Wilkins over there looks so cool when everything else is sweltering?"

"Ah, Wilkins is smart. Do you see those old papers he is reading? Well, they contain the account of February's blizzard. Every time Wilkins begins to feel the least bit warm he reads about the twenty-some below zero and shivers. His scheme is cooler than fans and cheaper than ice."—Chicago Evening News.

The Top of Politeness.

The most polite man in four counties has been discovered. He is George A. Tracy, the milk dealer. When you call on Mr. Tracy he takes you down cellar and seats you in a chair in front of a barrel of cider. Then he starts a siphon like arrangement; the cider flowing in an amber stream through a small hose. Mr. Tracy then places the business end of the hose in your mouth—and goes away.—Willimantic Weekly Journal.

Drift: it is just as pleasant down the river as up.—Atchison Globe.

From Mrs. Gunter to Mrs. Pinkham.

[LETTER TO MRS. PINKHAM NO. 76,224]

"One year ago last June three doctors gave me up to die, and as I had at different times used your Vegetable Compound with good results, I had too much faith in it to die until I had tried it again. I was apparently an invalid, was confined to my bed for ten weeks, (I believe my trouble was ulceration of womb).

"After taking four bottles of the Compound and using some of the Liver Pills and Sanative Wash, at the end of two months I had greatly improved and weighed 155 pounds, when I never before weighed over 138. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the best medicine I ever used, and I recommend it to all my friends."—Mrs. Anna Eva Gunter, Higginsville, Mo.

Mrs. Barnhart Enjoys Life Once More.

"Dear Mrs. Pinkham—I had been sick ever since my marriage, seven years ago; have given birth to four children, and had two miscarriages. I had falling of womb, leucorrhœa, pains in back and legs; dyspepsia and a nervous trembling of the stomach. Now I have none of these troubles and can enjoy my life. Your medicine has worked wonders for me."—Mrs. S. Barnhart, New Castle, Pa.

Exhibits at Paris.

There will be a large exhibit from this country at the Paris exposition in 1900, which will prove very interesting to all who may attend, but no more so than the news that the famous American remedy, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, will positively cure dyspepsia, indigestion, constipation, biliousness and nervousness. To all sufferers of the above complaints a trial is recommended, with the assurance that when honestly used a cure will be effected. It also tones up the entire system.

Would Be Bad Form.

"No real gentleman, Mr. Hopkins, would ever have his photograph taken in a dress suit."

"What do you mean, Miss Simpkins?"

"In order to do so he would have to wear it in daylight."—The Rival.

Do Your Feet Ache and Burn?

Shake into your shoes, Allen's Foot-Ease, a powder for the feet. It makes tight or New Shoes feel Easy. Cures Corns, Bunions, Swollen, Hot, Callous, Sore, and Sweating Feet. All Druggists and Shoe Stores sell it, 25c. Sample sent FREE. Address, Allen S. Olmsted, Le Roy, N. Y.

Far Back.

Greene—What a far-away look that poet has.

De Witt—Yes; he's thinking of his last meal.—Cleveland Leader.

The Best Prescription for Chills, and Fever is a bottle of GROVE'S TASTELESS CHILL TONIC. It is simply iron and quinine in a tasteless form. No cure—no pay. Price, 50c.

We believe, in spite of statistics, that more girls kill themselves eating pickles than kill themselves skipping rope.—Detroit Journal.

You do not have to dry goods in the shade colored with Putnam Fadeless Dyes. They are fast to sunlight and washing. 10c per package.

Some people are like clocks: they show by their faces what sort of a time they are having.—Golden Days.

I cannot speak too highly of Piso's Cure for Consumption.—Mrs. Frank Mobbs, 215 W. 22d St., New York, Oct. 29, 1895.

Laziness makes all tasks seem hard; industry makes them seem light.—L. A. W. Bulletin.

Hall's Catarrh Cure

Is taken Internally. Price 75c.

Money is an uncertain quantity; it's so changeable.—Golden Days.

An Excellent Combination.

The pleasant method and beneficial effects of the well known remedy, SYRUP OF FIGS, manufactured by the CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO., illustrate the value of obtaining the most laxative principles of plants known to be medicinally laxative and presenting them in the form most refreshing to the taste and acceptable to the system. It is the one perfect strengthening laxative, cleansing the system effectually, dispelling colds, headaches and fevers gently yet promptly and enabling one to overcome habitual constipation permanently. Its perfect freedom from every objectionable quality and substance, and its acting on the kidneys, liver and bowels, without weakening or irritating them, make it the ideal laxative.

In the process of manufacturing figs are used, as they are pleasant to the taste, but the medicinal qualities of the remedy are obtained from senna and other aromatic plants, by a method known to the CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO. only. In order to get its beneficial effects and to avoid imitations, please remember the full name of the Company printed on the front of every package.

CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO.
SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.
LOUISVILLE, KY. NEW YORK, N. Y.
For sale by all Druggists.—Price 50c. per bottle

CYCLISTS

insured against Chain Troubles for $1.60

The "police" is a "Peacock"

Chain. The only simple and satisfactory chain manufactured. Send for one, delivered FREE on receipt of price. State number of links and width, whether 3-16, ¼ or 5-16 centers.....

CLINTON CHAIN WORKS,
142 South Clinton Street, Chicago.

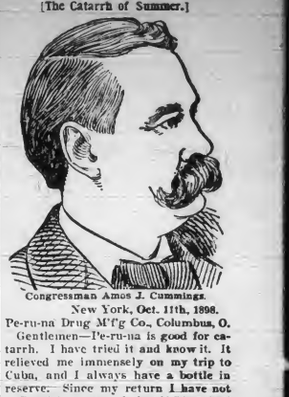
READERS OF THIS PAPER DESIRING TO BUY ANYTHING ADVERTISED IN ITS COLUMNS SHOULD INSIST UPON HAVING WHAT THEY ASK FOR. REFUSING ALL SUBSTITUTES OR IMITATIONS.

COLLEGE HILL ASSEMBLY,

College Hill, O., under the direction of the Cincinnati Social Settlement, Opens Lectures on Literature, History, Science and Economics, by Prof. P. V. N. Myers, Prof. J. H. Dorsey, Prof. J. S. Van Cleve and many others. Housed in buildings of Ohio Mil. Inst., one of the most beautiful suburbs of Cincinnati. Board, rooms, $4 a week up. Opens Sat. July 8, closes Aug. 5. For circular and information address,

F. E. SCHNEIDER, Business Manager.
Dep't A. Station G, CINCINNATI, O.

DR. MOFFETT'S TEETHINA



TEETHING POWDERS

Aids Digestion, Regulates the Bowels, Makes Teething Easy. TEETHINA Relieves the Bowel Troubles of Children of Any Age.

Costs Only 25 Cents. Ask Your Druggist for It.

Great Tammany Leader.

[The Catarrh of Summer.]

Congressman Amos J. Cummings.

New York, Oct. 11th, 1898.

Pe-ru-na Drug M'f'g Co., Columbus, O.

Gentlemen—Pe-ru-na is good for catarrh. I have tried it and know it. It relieved me immensely on my trip to Cuba, and I always have a bottle in reserve. Since my return I have not suffered from catarrh, but if I do I shall use Pe-ru-na again. Meantime you might send me another bottle.

Yours, Amos J. Cummings, M. C.

Summer catarrh assumes various forms. It produces dyspepsia and bowel complaint. It causes biliousness and diseases of the liver. It deranges the kidneys and bladder. Summer catarrh may derange the whole nervous system, when it is known to the medical profession as a systemic catarrh. Pe-ru-na is a specific for all these forms of catarrh. Pe-ru-na never disappoints. Address Dr. Hartman, Columbus, Ohio, for a free book on summer catarrh.

Sour Stomach

"After I was induced to try CASCARETS, I will never be without them in the house. My liver was in a very bad shape, and my head ached and I had stomach trouble. Now, since taking Cascarets, I feel fine. My wife has also used them with beneficial results for sour stomach."
Jos. KREHLING, 1611 Congress St., St. Louis, Mo.

CANDY CATHARTIC
Cascarets
TRADE MARK REGISTERED
REGULATE THE LIVER

Pleasant. Palatable. Prcent. Taste Good. Do Good. Never Sicken, Weaken, or Gripe. 10c. 25c. 50c.

CURE CONSTIPATION.
Sterling Remedy Company, Chicago, Montreal, New York.

NO-TO-BAC Sold and guaranteed by all druggists to CURE Tobacco Habit.

Oklahoma Offers Opulent Opportunities

To those who desire new lands and homes; also unsurpassed chances for industrial investments by capitalists and manufacturers.

Its Farm Products in 1898 include 25,000,000 bushels of wheat, 140,000 bales of cotton, and millions of dollars worth of other grains, fruits, etc.

Send for free copy of pamphlet entitled "The Truth About Oklahoma." At stated times low rate

Homeseekers' Excursion tickets are sold via Santa Fe Route to Oklahoma.

Address General Passenger Office,
The Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Railway,
CHICAGO.

"BIG FOUR"
"The Sea Level Route"
TO
NEW YORK.

DOUBLE DAILY SERVICE.
WAGNER SLEEPING CARS.
DINING CARS.

E. E. INGALLS, President. E. O. McCORMICK, Pass. Traffic Mgr.
WARREN J. LYNCH, Asst. Gen. Pass. & Ticket Agt.

LIVE STOCK CUTS.

We will furnish duplicates of LIVE STOCK CUTS or any OTHER CUT shown in any SPECIMEN BOOK, at or below quoted prices for same.

A. N. KELLOGG NEWSPAPER CO.,
335 W. Fifth St., Cincinnati, O.

A. N. K.—E 1766

WHEN WRITING TO ADVERTISERS please state that you saw the Advertisement in this paper.

TO LOOK ON THE BRIGHT SIDE OF THINGS, USE
SAPOLIO

Pith of the Press.

Mr. Reed is too young and too ambitious to retire from public life.—San Francisco Bulletin.

Colonel Dick is an honest man. His record in Ohio is an open checkbook.—Columbus Press-Post.

Mayor Jones, of Toledo, is writing a book and his enemies are preparing to rejoice.—Minneapolis Times.

Mr. McKisson's experience in Ohio appears to have been a sad succession of eleventh rounds.—Washington Star.

Hazen S Pingree can't retire from Michigan politics, because there wouldn't be anything left.—Detroit Tribune.

When wireless telegraphy is perfected it may be possible to communicate with Aguinaldo.—Memphis-Commercial-Appeal.

Fitzsimmons should never have ventured upon the task of keeping an Ohio man down. It can't be done.—Kansas City Star.

The cable car which barely missed striking Senator Hanna at Cleveland the other day made a narrow escape.—Kansas City Star.

Again it is demonstrated that it is the early home influences that tell in after life. Jeffries's father is a preacher.—Detroit Free Press.

Hanna says he has been working for other people so long, he is going to work a little for himself. Does he mean McKinley?—Denver News.

It may be that Thomas B. Reed's resignation went ashore on the Manacles, and that they haven't yet been able to lift it off the rocks.—Boston Herald.

President McKinley says Cuba is held "in trust." He should go to New Jersey and take out incorporation papers to make the holding effective.—Denver Post.

With Dewey for a hero, Jeffries for a champion and William Waldolf Astor for an enemy, the United States have much to be thankful for.—Columbus Citizen.

The critical and half-angry eyes of every patriotic citizen are fixed upon you to-day. William McKinley. President and Commander in Chief?—Washington Times.

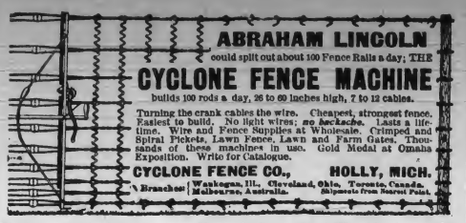
As a politician President McKinley has always been ready to shift his position whenever such a change promised the slightest advantage.—Chicago Democrat.

Senator Thurston has a voice that his friends believe could be distinctly heard even from the subterranean recesses of the Vice Presidency.—Kansas City Journal.

About the only thing President McKinley's Peace Commission seems to have accomplished in the Philippines is a very distinct postponement of peace.—St. Louis Republic.

According to Hon. William B. Allison Attorney-General Griggs is thoroughly armed with a most drastic law against trusts, but, at the same time, there are no trusts.—St. Paul Globe.

A good many people will not like Speaker Henderson because he will be friendly to the Administration, but that, by the way, is the principal reason why he will be chosen to preside over the House.—Cleveland Leader.



It was easy for Democrats to vote for McKinley then. It will be much harder next year, not only because of his tolerance of Alger and because of the dissent of many Democrats from his war policy.—N. Y. Times.

Senator Allison says he doesn't see what Congress can do toward the suppression of illegal trusts. Most everybody can guess what a Republican Congress is likely not to do in such a case.—Minneapolis Times.

Herman Kohlsaat, baker and newspaper proprietor, in endeavoring to besmirch Senator Foraker, has probably bitten off more than he can masticate with any degree of satisfaction. Kohlsaat is properly classed among the fool friends of the Administration.—Mansfield (Ohio) News.

Senator Foraker is now reaping the whirlwind. He has stood by the Administration even to the destruction of his once powerful band of Stalwarts. Now all that is left to be done is to destroy him—and Kohlsaat, the Chicago bugler of the Administration, has sounded the clarion of attack.—Mansfield (Ohio) Shield.

Last week while the waters of Russell's creek were raging, an infant child was seen to go over the dam at Milltown and disappear beneath the waves. Several men went in search of the child, but nothing more was learned of it. During the same rise, only a few miles further down the creek, at Pickett's mill, a cradle was seen to go over the dam and was seen no more.

ABRAHAM LINCOLN
could split out about 100 Fence Rails a day; THE
CYCLONE FENCE MACHINE
builds 100 rods a day, 26 to 60 inches high, 7 to 12 cables.
Turning the crank cables the wire. Cheapest, strongest fence. Easiest to build. No light wires; no backache. Lasts a lifetime. Wire and Fence Supplies at Wholesale. Crimped and Spiral Pickets, Lawn Fence, Lawn and Farm Gates. Thousands of these machines in use. Gold Medal at Omaha Exposition. Write for Catalogue.
CYCLONE FENCE CO., HOLLY, MICH.
Branches: Waukegan, Ill. Cleveland, Ohio. Toronto, Canada. Melbourne, Australia. Shipments from Nearest Point.

I have control of the Cyclone Fence in Boone and Woodford counties. I will build the fence or sell machines to farmers that they may build their own fences. It is the cheapest and best fence that can be built.
Address G. CARTER GRADDY, BULLITTSVILLE, KY.

Senator Blackburn is thoroughly disgusted with the Louisville Democratic machines. While at Lexington, one day last week, he said:

"The best thing that could happen for the Democracy of Kentucky would be for Louisville to be swallowed. If I had my way I would not allow a delegate from Louisville to ever sit again in a State Convention. I have never known of an honest election being held there.

"The political condition there is rottener than that of Philadelphia and this exhausts comparisons. If you have political business in Louisville you must deal with the Whallen or the Haldeman crowd, and they are both rotten to the core.

"This fight for the governorship we all regret and deplore on account of its savageness. Thirty days ago I thought that the party was in better shape than in thirty years, but now it is in more danger, and all due to the intensity of feeling in the governor's race. For God's sake, gentlemen, harmonize your differences.

"I did not want to see the convention held in Louisville. It is like casting pearls before swine to hold a Democratic convention in that city. I would rather it had been held at Middlesboro or in the outlying limits of perdition, for, holding it in Louisville, one of the gang of jugglers and traffickers will try to control it. But it is to be held and all you can do is to bring it there in a harmonious condition."

Pointed Paragraphs.

Troubles and babies grow larger by nursing them.

Artistic is often a synonym for useless and expensive.

The Indians never use smokeless powder in their pipes of peace.

It is easy to see through people who make spectacles of themselves.

Don't get too swift; you can walk father in a day than you can run.

Lives of great men oft remind us how easy it is not to achieve greatness.

Contact with a sharp man is very apt to dull one's confidence in humanity.

A grain of theoretical wisdom may turn out to be a pound of practical folly.

A sensible girl has no more use for a fresh young man than for one that is stale.

No one ever heard a pretty girl say anything about her beauty being only skin deep.

On life's highway everybody is not only willing but anxious to take the rich man's dust.

It might be well while correcting your disobedient offspring to remember that you did not die young.

If a young man is unable to win a girl's affections any other way he should bribe her parents to oppose the match.

Nothing—Something the rich man wants, the poor man has, the miser spends and the spendthrift saves.—Chicago News.

If Hon. William McKinley is hunting trouble let him come out here and interfere with the gubernatorial aspirations of Hon. John R. Tanner.—Chicago Chronicle.

SIXTH YEAR OF Walton :-: Academy
—OPENS—
First Monday in September.

First-class Instruction in all Common School Branches.

Higher Arithmetic, Elementary and Higher Algebra, Book-Keeping, Plain and Solid Geometry, History, Rhetoric and Literature, Physiology, Geography, Physics, Astronomy, Logic and Psychology. Latin includes Cesar, Cicero, Nepos, Virgil. Greek including Beginners, Greek and Xenophon.

Terms:—Tuition and Board in the building, five days in the week, under the care of the teacher, $105.75, for nine months; Board the full week or Music $18.50 additional for the full term.

Mrs. S. H. MYERS, Prin.

Consign your Stock to
Rabenstein, Harris & Conner,
—Live Stock—
COMMISSION MERCHANTS,
COVINGTON STOCK YARDS, Covington, Ky.,
OR UNION STOCK YARDS, Cincinnati, Ohio.
When shipping East bill our care privilege selling Central Covington Stock Yards.
We will make it to your advantage and give your stock special personal attention.

Helms' ~ Barber ~ Shop,
PETERSBURG, KY.
Hair cut 15c, on Saturday 20c; Shave 10c; Shampoo 15c; Sea Foam 5c; Hair Singe 5c; Beard Trim 5c, other work proportionally as low in price. Ladies' and childrens' work a specialty. All work guaranteed satisfactory or money refunded. Hair Oils, Tonics, Perfume, etc., for sale. Thanking all for past favors, I remain &c.
EVERETT HELMS, Prop.

LADIES—To the ladies that have not paid us a call, will say, that Thursday is conceded to be their day. Ladies Shampoo 25c; Sea Foam 15c; Bangs trimmed 10c. Hair dressed for special occasions a specialty, at reasonable rates. Courteous treatment is our motto. Give us a call.

Central Covington Stock Yards,
COVINGTON, KY.
Are located so as to offer special inducements to shippers South of the Ohio river in saving them extra expense and time. In addition to the local buyers there will be Eastern and foreign buyers on the market for all kinds of stock. When shipping East, don't fail to consign our care privilege selling which will be of benefit to you.
Central Covington Stock Yards Co.
Commission firms will give prompt attention to consignments.

Executor's Notice.

All persons indebted to the estate of L. B. Stephens, deceased, are hereby notified to come forward and settle same; those having claims against said estate must present them to the undersigned proven according to law.
J. D. FRAZER,
L. D. SHOUSE, Executors.

Look In Your Mirror
Do you see sparkling eyes, a healthy, tinted skin, a sweet expression and a graceful form? These attractions are the result of good health. If they are absent, there is nearly always some disorder of the distinctly feminine organs present. Healthy menstrual organs mean health and beauty everywhere.
McELREE'S
Wine of Cardui
makes women beautiful and healthy. It strikes at the root of all their trouble. There is no menstrual disorder, ache or pain which it will not cure. It is for the budding girl, the busy wife and the matron approaching the change of life. At every trying crisis in a woman's life it brings health, strength and happiness. It costs $1.00 of medicine dealers.
For advice in cases requiring special directions, address, giving symptoms, "The Ladies' Advisory Department," The Chattanooga Medicine Co., Chattanooga, Tenn.
MRS. ROZENA LEWIS, of Oenaville, Texas, says—"I was troubled at monthly intervals with terrible pains in my head and back, but have been entirely relieved by Wine of Cardui."

Of course he has to satisfy Mr. Platt with regard to things he does but Mr. Platt, who is proverbially an "easy boss," never tries to tell the Governor when he shall look his desk in the evening, and how much time he can have for lunch.—N. Y. Journal.

DON'T PAY TWO PROFITS!
IF YOU WANT A
Buggy or Carriage
Go direct to the factory and save the 50 or 75 per cent. that agents add to the factory price; get all you can in material and workmanship — put agents commission in the vehicle or your pocket. Come and see us and we will prove to you that your home factory will give you
BETTER WORK for the MONEY
than can be gotten from any agents.
See Our 2500 Mile Dust Proof Axle,
before buying a vehicle. We warrant and stand by all our work.
BRADFORD BROS.,
FLORENCE, KY.

J. T. MARSHALL,
SALESMAN FOR
F. W. KASSEBAUM & SON,
Manufacturers and Dealers in
Granite and Marble Monuments.
GRANT P. O., KENTUCKY.

FRANK HOSSMAN,
Hebron, Ky.,
CARPENTER AND BUILDER,
—Also handles all—
KINDS of ROOFING,
Which is furnished and put on at the Lowest Prices consistent with good work.
I am prepared for moving buildings.
Your Work is Solicited.

ADDINGTON, No. 27008,
Will make the season at my stable, at $10 to insure a colt to stand up and suck. Addington is a brown, 16 hands high, sired by Declaration, by Young Jim, by Geo Wilkes; 1st dam, C. M. Clay 22; 2d dam by Almont 33.
J. A. RIDDELL, Hebron, Ky.

WHEN IN RISING SUN, INDIANA,
Stop and see

Jno. D. Baxter
—FOR—
SADDLE and HARNESS
Man. He keeps a large stock of
Saddles, Harness, Collars, Whips, Bridles, Trace Chains, Hames,
In fact everything kept in a first-class Harness Store, and at the Lowest Cash Prices! we buy strictly for cash and our customers benefit by it. Call and be convinced of the fact.
JOHN D. BAXTER,
THE OLD RELIABLE

BUGGIES!

IF YOU WANT A GOOD
BUGGY
To suit you and stand the rough roads and made to order, call on ECKSTEIN NOVELTY CO.,
—AGENTS FOR—
JAMES & MAYER BUGGY COMPANY,
LAWRENCEBURG, IND.

CORNER
Drug Store
Rising Sun, Ind.
Is the place for anything in the Drug Line.
WALL PAPER, PAINTS, WINDOW SHADES, STATIONERY, PERFUMES, FANCY GOODS, &c.
B. F. BUCHANAN,
— DRUGGIST, —
Over thirty year's experience.

FARMERS
Take Notice!
If you want good
Fertilizer
PLEASE GIVE
B. F. ZIMMER
A CALL.
He will try to please you. He has the finest line of Fertilizer for 1899 he has ever handled. Write for particulars to
CONSTANCE, KY.

NOTICE.

J. E. Rouse's Guernsey Bull "Jesson 3662," will be found at his father's this season—fee $1.

DR. A. P. WALTON,
DENTIST,
CINCINNATI,
The Lancaster Building 22 W. 7th, Bet. Vine and Race.

INSURE AT HOME
The Farmers' Mutual Fire
INSURANCE COMPANY,
OF BOONE COUNTY,
Is now completely organized and receiving applications for insurance.
Its Rates are Lower
Than those of any other Company and gives the farmers of Boone County
HITHERTO UNKNOWN ADVANTAGE
In keeping their property insured.
EVERY FARMER IN THE COUNTY should take a policy at once.
E. H. BLANKENBECKER, - President, Florence, Ky.
EDGAR CROPPER, - Vice-President.
OSCAR GAINES, Secretary, Burlington.
J. E. DUNCAN, Treasurer.
EXECUTIVE BOARD—Legrand Gaines, J. W. Conner, John Stephens.
J. E. SMITH, Assessor, - Burlington, Ky.
W. M. ROGERS, Agt. - Walton, Ky.

1899. SEASON 1899.
CRESCENT HILL STOCK FARM.
TIMOTHY BOY, No. 27854
Bay horse, foaled April 3, 1893, bred by D. Bedinger & Son, Richwood, Ky. Sired by Wilkes Boy, 2:24, 1st dam, Alsea by Artillery, 2:21¼; 2d dam Valdosta by Nutwood, 2:18¾; 3d dam Emma Arterburn (dam of St. Arnould, 2:29, and g.-dam of two in 2:30 list) by Mambrino Patchen 58; 4th dam Jenny Johnson (grand-dam of three in :30 list) by Sweet Owen, thoroughbred, &c.
Wilkes Boy is one of the best sons of the great Geo. Wilkes, 2:22.
TIMOTHY BOY is one of the best bred horses in the State, is 16¼ hands high and weighs 1,300 lbs. In ordinary condition, a horse of great power, good bone, fine style and action, perfectly sound in every particular. He is a pure gaited trotter and his colts are large with plenty of style and action, the kind that are in demand all the time.
Service fee $10 to insure a live colt, money due when colt is foaled or mare parted with.
THE FINE MAMMOTH JACK,
Nutwood,
Will make the season of 1899 at $8.00 to insure a live colt, money due when colt is foaled or mare parted with.
DESCRIPTION & PEDIGREE.
Nutwood is a dark brown or black with white points, 16 hands high, very heavy bone and well built, large head and ears, heavy body and good action; foaled July 6, 1894, was bred by J. M. Park, Madison county, Ky. Nutwood is by Blackwood, 16½ hands high, one of the best mule and jennet jacks in Kentucky; 1st dam by Griggs' Big Tom, 16 hands high; 3d dam by the Hubbert jack, &c.
TIMOTHY BOY and Nutwood will make the season on Daniel Bedinger's farm on the Richwood & Beaver pike, 3 miles west of Richwood.
Pasture and attention furnished mares at $1.50 per month. Care taken to prevent accidents, but no responsibility should any occur.
J. C. BEDINGER, Richwood, Ky.

SEASON 1899.
OAKKNOLL STOCK FARM
UGO!
Foaled 1892, sired by Simmons 2744, (record 2:28,) sire of 75 in 2:30, and 14 in the 2:12 list; by George Wilkes 519, (record 2:22); 1st dam by Almont Boy 4308; 2nd dam by Norman 25; 3d dam by C. M. Clay 18.
UGO is a dark chestnut, 16¼ hands high, weighs 1,150 pounds, a very kind prompt driver, also a good saddler.
Will make the season of 1899, on Thursdays, Fridays and Court days at Burlington, Ky., and the remainder of the time at my barn, one mile west of Uzlinger, Ky., at $10 to insure a live colt, money due as soon as colt is foaled.
Care will be taken to prevent accidents, but I will not be responsible should any occur.
SCOTT CHAMBERS.

5 Per Cent. MONEY TO LOAN.
Real estate security. Any sum from $1,000 to $2,000 at 5½ per cent. Sums of $2,000 and over at 5 per cent. Interest payable semi-annually. No loans made for a less time than two years.—No loans under $1,000 considered.
B. C. BEDINGER, Agent,
Beaver Lick, Ky.
Loans promptly wanted. m6m

D. E. CASTLEMAN,
ATTORNEY - AT - LAW.
BURLINGTON, KY.
Will practice in the Courts of Boone Kenton, Grant and Gallatin. Collections pushed energetically.

G. G. HUGHES,
ATTORNEY AT LAW.
BURLINGTON, KY.
Will practice in all the courts. Prompt attention given to all business entrusted to me.

P. E. CASON,
ATTORNEY - AT - LAW.
BURLINGTON, KY.
Practice in all Courts. Promptness guaranteed.

J. G. TOMLIN,
ATTORNEY - AT - LAW.
WALTON, KENTUCKY.
Will practice in the Courts of Boone, Kenton Grant and Gallatin. Prompt attention given t Collections entrusted to him. mch22-93.

W. E. VEST,
County Surveyor,
BURLINGTON, KY.
Is prepared to do all kinds of Surveying. All orders by mail promptly attended to.

J. M. LASSING. N. E. RIDDELL
LASSING & RIDDELL,
ATTORNEYS AT LAW.
BURLINGTON, KY.
Prompt Attention Given to Collections

S. GAINES,
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW.
BURLINGTON, KY.
Will practice in all the courts, and prompt attention given collections. Office—In residence near post-office.

S. W. ADAMS,
ATTORNEY - AT - LAW,
ERLANGER, KENTUCKY.
Will practice in the courts of Boone and Kenton counties. Collections and general law practice.

W. E. VEST,
Real Estate Agent.
Farms Bought, Sold or Exchanged, Money to Loan on Real Estate, Notes bought, sold & Negotiated.
All communications addressed to W. E. VEST, Burlington, Ky.

BOONE CO. DEPOSIT BANK.
(Incorporated 1886.)
CAPITAL, ... $30,000
Surplus and undivided profits, 20,000
Our facilities enable us to receive on favorable terms accounts of individuals and corporations. Collections promptly remitted for at lowest rates

ERLANGER DEPOSIT BANK.
(INCORPORATED 1893.)
ERLANGER, - - - KENTUCKY
CAPITAL PAID IN..... $50,000
SURPLUS,..... $ 3,000
Careful attention given collections and remittances promptly made. Deposit accounts solicited.

Dr. J. L. Adams,

DENTIST,
Walton, Kentucky.
Artificial Dentures, Crown and Bridge Work to represent natural organs.
Will be in office at Union every Monday.
Satisfaction - Guaranteed.

JOHN L. VEST,
SURVEYOR
WALTON, KY.
Is prepared to do all kinds of work south of Burlington, Ky. Prompt attention given to all mail orders.

Take the Recorder, $1.50 a year.

BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

VOL. XXIV. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, JUNE 28, 1899. NO. 36.

It should be a long time before another political convention is sent to Lovisville.

The platform adopted by the Louisville convention appears in full in this paper. It is clear-cut – no straddle on any subject mentioned.

The Louisville convention would have been a hot one even had there been but one office to make a nomination for, and only one candidate for that,

Louisville, politically, is a disgrace to Kentucky. Everything pertaining to politics is controlled by her thugs, of which there is a very large army in that city.

The Kohlsatt-Foraker newspaper war is thought to be more interesting to the President just at this time than that little affair he has on his hands over in the Philippines.

Instructed votes for Taylor, candidate for the nomination for Governor, continue to accumulate, and he claims he will have all competitor distance when the convention meets,

Taylor is claiming such a great lead in the matter of uninstructed votes for the Republican nomination for Governor, the Stone men in this county may be bluffed out next Monday.

A Democrat who is constantly criticising the action of his party ought to withdraw and affiliate with a party that does things more in accord with his notions. The same holds good as to Republicans, but there are none of that class about here in the Republican party.

It is now evident that very little progress has been made by the American forces in the Philpines. The territory over which American arms was supposed to have absolute control is giving the troops considerable trouble, and hard fighting has been experienced there in the last few weeks.

The Georgetown Times says: "The white Republicans received something of a surprise at the convention held here Monday afternoon. They were generally for Taylor for Governor, as nearly all of them are office-seekers. The colored members of the party outnumbered the whites two to one and run the convention to suit themselves."

Of all the political conventions ever held in Kentucky the one that assembled in Louisville, last week, was the most rantankerous. But it was exactly of the character for which a large class of the Louisville thugs had been tutored by men who have been assisting to defeat Democracy in the recent past, but who are now considered the main guys in the Democratic push in Kentucky.

At the time this paragraph goes into type the contest for the Democratic Gubernatorial nomination is still in the realm of doubt with the chances of the three candidates apparently equal. Let the result be what it may the Recorder will not kick—neither will it pout—that is the kind of Democrat it is. Another thing it will not do—it will not furnish a Republican any ammunition to be used on either of the candidates in case of his success.

The cost of the ballots required by the voters of New York City at a general election is $25,000. Rental of the election booths foots up over $75.000. Inspectors and clerks cost nearly $200,000. Advertising nearly $40,000. Other expenses make the aggregate about $400,000, or nearly 80 cents for every one half million votes cast in the Greater New York. The suffrage is free, but the taxpayers foot the bill.—Leslie's Weekly.

It now looks like the Republicans of this county will have quite an interesting fight in their convention here next Monday. There are two factions in the county, and one has espoused the cause of Taylor and the other that of Stone, for Governor, and each has been endeavoring to muster its full strength for next Monday's fight, if signs are at all reliable. If two hundred Republicans reach Burlington next Monday a lively convention will be the result.

STATE NEWS.

In Lincoln county a cow snake measuring 8 feet was killed.

Sending the troops to Clay county cost the State $400,000.

The potato crop in Breckinridge county is the poorest in years.

The new 2,000 pound bell in the Lexington court house is a daisy.

Chas. Wood, 70, of Grant county, was thrown by a horse and killed.

G. M. Heaton, of Columbia, was drowned in Russell creek while bathing.

In Bourbon county 200,000 bushels of blue grass seed have been saved.

Robert Kelley, while drunk, was run over by a train at London and killed.

William Bingham shot and perhaps fatally injured John Riddle near Pineville.

Rev. E. S. Alderman has been re-elected president of Bethel College, Russellville.

Robertson county citizens will vote at an early date on the question of local option.

Thieves have been looting houses at Cloverport, Stephensport and in Cannelton, Ind.

The convicts in the penitentiary at Frankfort will soon begin the publication of a newspaper.

R. Q. Hathaway, a prominent Owensboro business man, was found dead in his bed at a hotel in Louisville.

A colored lawyer, L. R. Diggs, of Lexington, has located in Georgetown for the practice of his profession.

Elk Dan Peed, of Paris, 6 feet 4 3-4 inches tall, will compete for the prize offered at St. Louis for the tallest Elk.

The Garrard county Republican convention split, after a red hot session, and two sets of delegates will be sent to Lexington.

Ruggles' campmeeting near Flemingsburg, begins on July 27 this year, and closes on August 6. Eminent divines will be present.

S. S. Thompson, of Flemingsburg, who was thrown from his horse some time ago, has become insane as a result of his injuries.

Onie B. Sinclair, of Scott county, enlisted in the United States army and was started to San Francisco to do service in the Philippines.

Three carrier boys on the Owensboro Messenger went out on a "strike" Tuesday morning just before the time to start on their delivery of papers.

Sam Rupart and wife were killed by a train in Clark county while on the way to the funeral of a relative who had been killed in a similar manner.

An attempt was made to assassinate Chris Jackson in Clay county. Jackson was Tom Baker's brother-in-law. He was wounded, but not seriously.

Walker Smith was found dead in Adair county, with part of his head blown away and a gun lying by his side. Theories of murder and suicide are advanced.

Editor C. C. Moore, of Lexington, is to be entertained with a dinner at Columbus, O., upon his release from the Ohio State penitentiary Saturday, July 8, by leading Free Thinkers.

There were sixteen applicants examined at Shelbyville for school certificates last week by Superintendent Money for teachers' certificates, fifteen applying for county certificates, and one for a State certificate.

A new Cumberland Presbyterian church has been organized at Hydro, Warren county, with between forty and fifty members. The Rev. J. S. Grider will preach there the second Sunday in each month.

If white top is a sign of drouth as old folks say, we need look for no more rain, says the Lebanon Falcon. At a little distance the fields look as if they were covered with snow, and we have never seen such a crop of this plant.

Duane H. Sinclare, manager of the State capital office of the Postal Telegraph Company, at Frankfort, has been at work for some time past on the model of a new insulator that will do away with the glass one now in general use.

John B. Patrick, a professional diver, caught a mammoth catfish at Paducah. The fish weighed 156 pounds and was nearly 6 feet long. It is said to be the largest one ever caught in that vicinity. Mr. Patrick discovered it in a big hollow log near the Paducah Furniture Company's mill.

Lee Clark, a negro prisoner in the Franklin county jail at Frankfort, assaulted Jailer Holton and a general fight followed, in which the officer, the inmates and two outsiders took part. Clark was beaten into insensibility, and several other prisoners were hurt.

The blackberry crop is almost a complete failure, says the Nicholasville Democrat. This is the poor man's best friend as regards fruit, and the absence of this berry means that numbers of little mouths will not be made sweet and kissable with the delicious "jaw."

"I have on my place a sheep that has five horns," remarked Mr. Wm. Harston, of the Cedar Springs country, yesterday, "and I doubt if a parallel case can be found anywhere. On either side of the wether's head are two well-developed horns, and in the center of the head is another, thus making the five.—Scottsville Times.

Judge Guffy has not asked for anything in a political way during the past forty-eight hours. Nobody ever had better health than the Judge when he was first elected to the Court of Appeals, and no one should think now that he hoo-dooed the voters who elected him. What is making him sick now, is, his family ain't large enough.—Western Argus.

It is not generally known that there is a tract of land of over 300 acres in Lincoln county, without an owner, but such is the case, says the Stanford Journal. It lies back of Crab Orchard and to th east of Dripping Springs. Several cabins have been built on the land, and families have lived on it for several years without paying rent. It is known as the "Big Survey."

'Squire Wingate says he killed near his barn last Thursday the largest spreading viper that he ever saw, and he has been killing one or more for many years past. he now being seventy-two years old. This viper was only about two and a half feet long, but would have weighed eight pounds. His head was spread until it was wider than the 'Squire's hand, and that is saying a good deal for it.—Owenton Herald.

In a report just made to Gov. Bradley, State Inspector Lester asserts that Knott county is overrun by a lawless element operating on the old-time kuklux plan. He says the organization is so thorough and extensive that it is impossible to convict its members and he recommends that juries be summoned from distant counties to try indictments against them, or that the cases be removed to distant counties.

Dr. Shaw's hens, which acquired fame by flying 200 feet in the air to chase away a hawk have developed along with their remarkable courage and ability as high flyers a wonderful intelligence. These birds range some distance from the house, but when the noon whistles blow they know it means dinner, and they run home as fast as their legs and wings will carry them. The doctor himself vouches for this story. —Russellville Herald-Ledger.

The Cain family at Claysville, one of the best in the county, is noted for the size of its men folks. One of the "boys" was in town Tuesday, and some one remarking on his size, he said that he was a little hefty, but so were his brothers. There are five of them that average 220 pounds each, one in Colorado that weighs 270, one 165 and one 172. The seven sons and their father average 207 pounds each. Is there another such abig family in Kentucky?—Cynthiana Democrat.

The recent trip of the soldiers to Manchester for the purpose of keeping order during the trial of Tom Baker has cost the State $1,800. After all this expense, Baker was shot by an assassin right in the presence of the soldiers. The feud is now greater than ever and a war of extermination may result. Instead of shooting down a lot of savage Filipinos who are fighting for their liberty, this government would do better to attend to its lawlessness at home.—Nicholasville Democrat.

In the Court of Appeals Judge DuRelle handed down an opinion reversing the decision of the Franklin Circuit Court in the case of the Etna Insurance Company, and seventy-six others, vs. the Commonwealth—the insurance conspiracy case. The whole court sat in the case, and Judge Guffy dissents from the general principles laid down in the opinion. The court holds that the offense is not an indictable one, and says; "We conclnde that by the common law of Kentucky it is not an indictable offense to combine for the purpose of maintaining rates of insurance."

Circuit Clerk Bright, of Mt. Sterling, met with a very serious and probably fatal accident this morning. He bought a pistol and in attempting to close the weapon after putting the loads into it, a cartridge was discharged and the ball struck him in the right ear, ranging downward to the base of the brain. He was in the basement of the courthouse at the time of the accident. Mr. Bright's wedding day was set for next Wednesday, he being engaged to wed Miss Bettie Owings, one of the most popular young ladies in the country. Dr. Barrows of Lexington was summoned, but thought the case too serious for operation at this time.

Near Columbia, S. C., this brave Southern general, over 80 years old, now lives in two small rooms and has proudly refused a fine home which the people of his State have wanted to give him. He was once a very rich man and the Governor of South Carolina. Many titled people of Europe have been guests at his home. During the war he was one of the bravest fighters in the South and when his fine house was burned he built up a pretty cottage from the ruins. Not long ago this cottage, too, was burned, all but two small rooms in which he now lives. In the fire he lost everything but his sword. His little dog Bruce was burned. At the risk of his life the brave General went into the burning house after him and had his hair and beard burned badly, but he was too late. But General Hampton is not poor in all things. He is rich in the love of thousands of people North and South, and that is something that money could not buy.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Clay county boys are enlisting, preferring army hostilities to feudal wars at home.

In Kentucky's feudal regions they teach the young idea how to shoot straight.—St. Louis Chronicle.

Kentucky should in imitation of the general government establish a press censorship.—Montgomery Age-Herald.

Kentucky should corrall her feudists on a reservation and make them fight it out at once.—Pittsburg Chronicle Telegraph.

The Hon. Jim Howard, of Kentucky, is still alive, but his enemies are well suppled with ammunition and are hopeful.—Washington Post.

The officials of Eastern Kentucky could save considerable expense and avert much danger by turning the Bakers and the Howards loose on each other.—Washington Post.

Mr. John Proctor, of Kentucky, who is the only Democratic member of the Civil Service Commission, handles President McKinley without gloves for his recent action in so wantonly violating the civil service rules. John may as well make up his mind to go home, for as soon as Mark gets back from Europe he will lose his job.—Houston Post.

The following is the platform adopted by the Louisville Convention:

1. The Democrats of Kentucky, in convention assembled reaffirm, without the slightest qualification, the principles and policies declared in the Democratic national platform adopted at Chicago in 1896. Our faith in bimetallism is vindicated by events. The necessity for the restoration of the double standard was acknowledged by the President and Congress in 1897, when a commission was sent to Europe to entreat other nations to aid in establishing bimetallism, and the failure of the commission to secure European co-operation confirms the friends of free coinage in their belief that relief can only come by the independent action of the United States. The present legal ratio of 16 to 1 is the only ratio at which bimetallism can be restored, and opposition to it is confined to those who oppose bimetallism at any ratio, and to those who misapprehend or ignore the reasons which led three National Conventions to adopt it.

2. We denounce the present Republican National Administration for its reckless extravagance in the conduct of public affairs, for its cruel and inhuman neglect in its treatment of our soldiers and sailors during the late Spanish war, for its complete subordination to the interest of organized wealth, for its protection and encouragement of trusts and combinations, and especially for its appointment and retention in office of an Attorney-General devoted to the interests of trusts and combinations.

3. We refer to the incompetency of the present Republican Administration in Kentucky; to the abuses and scandals in the management of penitentiaries and asylums while under Republican control, and we commend the wisdom of the last General Assembly of Kentucky in the enactment of laws which secure the wise and economical administration of the penitentiaries and other public institutions of the state under Democratic control; to the increase in the rate af taxation; to the vetoing of all Democratic legislation favorable to the interests of the people and hostile to the oppressions and extortions of organized wealth. We declare that after four years the Republican Administration is incapable of upholding and maintaining the laws of the Commonwealth and of efficiently enforcing its laws, and of preserving peace and order in the Commonwealth, and we especially condemn the present Republican Governor for surrounding the state capital with the military arm of the Government in time of profound peace, thus attempting to influence and terrorize the General Assembly pending the election of a United states senator.

4. We believe the trust is the result in a large measure of the policies adopted and pursued by the Republican party, chief among which are the demonetization of silver, by which the volume of currency has been kept below the demands of business and the enactment and enforcement of vicious, unwise and unpatriotic legislation, such as the protective tariff laws known as the McKinley and Dingley bills, whereby there is discrimination in favor of corporate wealth and against individual enterprise. We favor the removal of the causes. The re-establishment of independent bimetallism at 16 to 1 and the repeal of all protective tariff laws would do more to cripple and destroy the organization and operation of the trusts than any other laws.

6. We believe that the law in Kentucky known as the anti-trust law should be so amended as to make unlawful any agreement, combination or arrangement by corporations or individuals under which the carrying on of any business the prices charged should thereby be fixed, controlled or regulated. And we believe that said law should be further so amended as to provide that all contracts made by any combination, generally known as a trust, in any kind of business, should be void and not enforcible as to such trust or combination, and we especially demand that all trust controlled articles be placed on the free list.

6. We indose the amendment to the State election law passed by the last Democratic Assembly of Kentucky over the veto of a Republican Governor. We declare the amendment to the law to be in the interest of fair and honest elections. Its faithful enforcement will render impossible the commission of such frauds and robberies as were perpetrated in this State in 1896, whereby the will of the people was overthrown and the State lost to William J. Bryan.

7. We indorse the provisions of the bill passed by the Democratic General Assembly of Kentucky for the prevention of the extortionate, unfair discrimination and ruinous freight rates by transportation companies, which bill was vetoed by a Republican Governor, and we likewise indorse the provisions of a blll passed by said General Assembly to insure competition in the sale of school books for the use of the children of the State, the purpose of which bill was to destroy the extortionate and oppressive prices now maintained by the School Book Trust in this State, and we pledge the Democracy to such revision or amendment as time or necessity may show is beneficial to the school children of this State.

8. We hereby express or continued confidence in William J. Bryan and favor his nomination for the Presidency of the United States by the Democratic National Convention of 1900.

9. We recommend to the Democracy of Kentucky J. C. S. Blackburn as the successor of William Lindsay in the United States Senate.

10. We indorse the war carried to success for the freedom of the enslaved Cubans, and we appreciate and honor the courage and heroism of our soldiers and sailors therein engaged. But we declare the conduct of the present National Administration as to the Philippines to be repugnant to every line of the bill of rights, the constitution and the declaration of independence.

The Richmond Register touches upon a matter that is timely and of interest to every school teacher and school trustee in the State. The Register says:

"The trustees of common school districts who were elected last fall will assume the duties of office July 1. Not half the contracts made with teachers each year conform to the law, In order that these may be legal a meeting of the board must be called for that purpose and each trustee must have due notice of the meeting, and the teacher must be employed at this meeting. The old way by which one trustee would sign the contract in a tobacco patch, another at the mill and the third one in town is not legal. A due observance of the law may save trouble."

This is a peculiar world, says an authority. One man is saving money to build a house, another trying to sell his for less than it cost him to build it. One is spending all the money he can make in taking his girl to the theatre and sending her flowers with the hope of making her his wife, while his neighbor is using what money he has getting a divorce. One man escapes all the diseases flesh is heir too and gets killed on a railroad. Another escapes with only a scratch and dies with the whooping cough. One man stands off his creditors and goes traveling to the lakes or springs, while another stays at home and pays his debts.—Ex.

When we close our columns the convention is yet in session with good prospects for it to remain in session all summer. Its session has been remarkable for disorder, the responsibility for which the friends of each candidate disclaim. Thirteen ballots for governor have been taken. Gen. Hardin's withdrawal was a rank fake, and did not stampede the delegates to him as it was expected. No more such conventions are wanted in this state.

The boys are expected home from Louisville to spend the 4th.

If you contemplate attending a political convention, you would better take out a life policy.

Fine weather, this

THE RECORDER.

W. L. RIDDELL, Publisher.

BURLINGTON, . . . KENTUCKY.

ACCORDING to a paper recently communicated to the Academie dis Sciences, Paris, M. Phisalix has found that some kinds of mushroom afford a vaccine against the venom of snakes. The juice of the mushroom renders a person immune against vipers for a month or two.

A CORRESPONDENT in the Frankfurter Zeltung draws a lurid picture of the increasing demoralization of Madrid. The present population includes, he says, 20,000 professional beggars, the same number of abandonded women, 5,000 thieves and there are hundreds of gambling houses.

IN 1831 the population of Crewe, England, was 52. Ten years later it had reached 908. Now it is over 30,000, a growth which puts in the shade most of the "boom" towns of America. And this is all owing to the fact that the London & Northwestern railway saw fit to locate their works in this lucky village.

AMONG the small islands which came into the possession of the United States with Porto Rico is the barren peak of rocks which the Spaniards called La Mona. On this island tradition says the old buccaneers deposited great treasure. In 1889 an American company was formed to seek the hidden riches. No jewels were found, however, though the deposit of guano made the venture a financial success.

THE headquarters of George Washington on the Valley road in Mont Clair, which the Daughters of the Revolution have been endeavoring to preserve as a landmark, will soon be a thing of the past. The owner of the property, a Mr. Crane, who lives in California, is to have the building torn down and the ground divided into building lots. The building was erected in 1715. In 1780 it was the temporary headquarters of Washington and Lafayette.

THE Pittsburgh trolley lines run express cars. There are large sliding doors in the sides through which express packages are received and delivered at any point on the line. Automobile delivery wagons wait at various points and scurry about from house to house immediately upon the arrival of the express cars, the work of transshipment being rushed through without delaying regular passenger traffic.

AN electrician of St. Paul, Minn., has devised a way to preserve eggs "in an edible condition" by electrifying them. He first places the eggs where he can exhaust the air from about them and from within them. Taking them from this vacuum he next paints them with an airproof composition. Afterward he places the painted eggs in a barrel of water and passes them through a current strong enough to destroy any germ life within them.

AN exceedingly unobtrusive storm or sunshade for horses has been designed by Schooler C. Harn, of Bladensburg, O. It is a cup of a general flat shape, and designed to fit closely to the head of the animal. Inside of this a damp sponge may be placed in warm weather, and in cold weather it it acts alone as a protection from the wet and cold. One of the features of this patent is the arrangement of slotted feet on the bottom, which permits of its instant adjustment to any harness without straps or buckles.

E. C. LARRABEE, of Salem, Mass., has just completed a picture of President McKinley which is composed of 20 different kinds of wood skillfully inlaid, the woods used coming from Cuba, Porto Rico, the Philippines, the Hawaiian islands and other places with which the administration is identified. The portrait is to be presented to the president by its maker through Congressman Moody. It is a good likeness and the work is very cleverly done. No less than ten pieces of wood are inlaid in the button on the coat alone.

ROSA BONHEUR dressed like a man, looked like a man and painted like a man, says the Boston Herald, yet she had the heart and soul of a woman, as many a poor peasant of Fontainebleau and Barbizon will tell you. She had, too, strange power over the animals she collected around her and a thrilling tale of her subjection of a young lion that was sent to her as a souvenir and model is recounted in the art circles of that enchanting country celebrated as the home of Millet, Rousseau and many other distinguished artists.

ESCROQUERIE is a crime which has no distinct counterpart in any country but France. An English lady was recently sentenced to 12 months' imprisonment for ordering a costume she was not able to pay for, and an English governess was sentenced to six weeks' imprisonment for taking a cab without being able to pay the fare. The French are eminently practical people, and see no great difference between running off with an article and getting it without paying for it. It often happens that the English fall under the law with regard to escroquerie.

A MOVEMENT of great importance to the rice planting interests of Savannah and vicinity is well under way. It is a proposed consolidation of all the rice planting interests on the Carolina side of the river. A capitalization of over $1,000,000, with a bonded indebtedness of about $4,000,000, is proposed. The object of the bonded indebtedness is to construct a twenty-mile levee, which will guarantee absolute security to the rice crops during the harvest season from storms and freshets which have proved so frequent of recent years, and have wrought immense loss to planters.

IMMENSE DEAL.

New York Capitalists Are Forming a Cattle and Ranch Company in Texas.

The Organization is Nothing More Than an Immense Transaction—Options Have Been Taken on Cattle and Ranches to Amount of $20,000,000.

FORT WORTH, Tex., June 26.—George B. Loving, who is at the head of the great deal having as its object the formation of a gigantic cattle and ranch company in Texas, in an interview Saturday night said that the company will be an American organization comoosed of New York capitalists and not Englishmen, as reported.

The intention is to form a company with $40,000,000 capital, $35,000,000 or $30,000,000 of which are to be used in the purchase of cattle and ranch property in this state, the balance of the capital stock to be used in operating the big concern. It is claimed the business can be more successfully conducted and at less expense under a single management.

For the past two months parties representing Mr. Loving have taken options on cattle and ranches to the amount of twenty millions. These options expire July 1, but it is understood if necessary they can be renewed. No doubt is expressed but that the big deal will be consummated, for the prices to be paid are fair.

Mr. Loving says there is no intention to form a cattle trust, merely an effort to conduct an extensive cattle business, the largest in the world. The are six million cattle in Texas, valued at $120,000,000. Mr. Loving says there is no intention to disregard the anti-trust laws of the state; that the organization of the company is nothing more than an immense cattle transaction.

CRUISER TAGE PUTS TO SEA.

It Is Thought That She Has Been Sent to Meet the Sfax, Which Is Carrying Dreyfus Back to France.

BREST, France, June 26.—The French first-class cruiser Tage put to sea Sunday evening, the official explanation being that she has gone to experiment with carrier pigeons. She is, however, a much larger cruiser than the Sfax, which is bringing Capt. Dreyfus, and the dispatch of such a big vessel with carrier pigeons is quite unprecedented.

Usually a torpedo boat is sent and the opinion, therefore gains ground, that the Tage has gone to meet the Sfax and to take Capt. Dreyfus on board. The pigeons can be used to announce the transfer and the Tage might proceed to another port to land the prisoner.

As against this theory and as an indication that the landing of Dreyfus will be effected here, there is the fact that a large number of gendarmes from the country around Brest were arriving and were expected to arrive Sunday night.

THE FOURTH AT SAN JUAN.

The Citizens Propose to Show Their Patriotism and Fidelity by Celebrating it in the American Style.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—The citizens of San Juan, the capital of Porto Rico, propose to display their patriotism and fidelity to the government of the United States by celebrating the 4th of July in good American style.

The committee of 25 of the leading citizens of San Juan have prepared an elaborate programme for the occasion. There will be addresses by prominent citizens upon the significance of the day, and at night there will be a great display of fireworks.

In order that the display may meet public expectations the committee have requested Acting Secretary of War Meiklejohn that the government waive tariff charges on the fireworks needed for the occasion, and that the fireworks be given free transportation to San Juan on one of the government's transports. This request Acting Secretary Meiklejohn promptly granted by cable.

WERE LOST IN THE DESERT.

A Party of Twenty Miners Bound for the Pintada Placers, California, Died From Thirst.

CHICAGO, June 26.—A special from San Diego, Cal., says:

"Word has been received here that a party of 20 miners, bound for the Sierra Pintada placers, lost their way in the desert and wandered around a long time, finally dying of thirst.

The information came in a letter received by J. P. Cantlin, one of the charterers of the schooner Thomas S. Negus, which took a party of 60 prospectors to San Roque landing, from L. J. Allen, purser of the Negus.

A Shortage of About $25,000.

NORWICH, Ct., June 26.—A partial examination Saturday of the books of ex-Tax Collector George L. Griswold, who was arrested Saturday, a self-confessed embezzler, shows a shortage of about $25,000.

Death of "Fatty" Walsh.

NEW YORK, June 26.—Thomas Walsh, the noted east side politician, better known as "Fatty" Walsh, died Saturday night of heart failure, aged 63 years. He was the father of Blanche Walsh, the actress.

ARRIVAL OF CAPT. DREYFUS.

He Will Be Landed at the Arsenal in Brest —Then Will Be Taken in a Special Train to Rennes.

BREST, France, June 24.—The inhabitants of this port are absorbed in the pending arrival of Dreyfus. The question on every one's lips is, "When will he arrive?" But no one seems able to reply. The town, however, is perfectly calm. Along the favorite promenade, the Cours Dajot, on the cliff overlooking the splendid harbor, in which half a dozen picturesque old three deckers are lying moored alongside modern cruisers, were a few groups of sailors and marines, gazing seaward. When questioned they admitted that they were watching for the French cruiser Sfax, bound from French Guiana with the famous prisoner on board, but in the same breath expressed the belief that she would not arrive in the daytime. They think the war ship will be kept outside the harbor until night and that then Dreyfus will be landed inside the arsenal. This is also the general opinion of the townspeople who are eager to witness the landing.

The military and civil authorities profess to know nothing about the matter, not even if the Sfax is coming to Brest.

A press representative called at the maritime prefecture Friday afternoon and had an interview with the port admiral, Barrera, who was typical of French politeness, but who displayed most praiseworthy ignorance. He said:

"Up to now I have received absolutely no instructions. I am waiting orders from the new minister of marine. I can not even say Dreyfus will be landed here. In any case he can not arrive yet," and taking a map he traced the course of the Sfax from the Cape Verde islands which she left Tuesday, adding: "You see, she can not have passed the Canary islands before Thursday. She will not arrive here at the earliest until Sunday or perhaps Monday."

The prefect of police also said that he had not received any instructions regarding Dreyfus.

In spite of these declarations La De Peche, of this city, publishes an interview with a naval officer who is quoted as saying positively that the authorities received the fullest instructions long ago respecting the military and police precautions.

It is understood that Dreyfus will be landed at the arsenal at night and strict orders have been given to prevent any one from entering the arsenal. He will then be whisked off to Rennes by special train without staying an hour in Brest. It would be easy, however, to land Dreyfus on the coast in the vicinity of Brest and place him on board a train without the fact becoming known. The military signal man at the semaphore stations Thursday received the strictest orders to exclude all strangers.

No doubt a big crowd will be present to witness the landing of Dreyfus, if he is allowed to be seen, but no disorders are expected.

A detachment of secret police has arrived here from Paris and has been distributed about the town.

WAS GIVEN A NAVAL BURIAL

Funeral of Lieut. Lansdale at San Francisco—The American and British Flags at Half-Mast.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 24.—The funeral of Lieut. Philip Van Horne Lansdale, who was killed at Samoa, was held Friday from St. Luke's Episcopal church. Bishop Moreland delivered the sermon. The church was crowded with sympathetic friends, the navy and army being largely represented.

The body was removed from the cruiser Philadelphia under a naval escort similar to that which attended the body of Ensign Monaghan Thursday. American and British flags were displayed at half-mast at many places, particularly along the water front. The body was buried at Cypress Lawn cemetery, naval officers, band and men attending.

Gov. Roosevelt Offers Troops.

KANSAS CITY, June 24.—Gov. Roosevelt telegraphed President McKinley Friday informing the president, that, in the event of a call for volunteers being made, New York was prepared to furnish all the men the government might ask for and asked that an opportunity be given New York state to do so.

Secretary Alger for Senator.

DETROIT, Mich., June 24.—Gov. Pingree gave out a public statement Friday to the effect that he had combined with Secretary Alger in the interest of Alger's senatorial candidacy. Gen. Alger will not withdraw under any circumstances, nor will he spend any money in the campaign.

Killed by Falling Tree.

CUMBERLAND, Md., June 24.—Frank Anderson, aged 27, was killed by a falling tree, his head being mashed to a jelly. He was employed in a lumber camp near Davis, and was to have been married next Wednesday.

Compressed Air as a Motive Power.

DOVER, Del., June 24.—A certificate of incorporation of $25,000,000 was filed Friday at the office of the secretary of state. The company was incorporated for the purpose of manufacturing with compressed air as a motive power.

CUBAN POLITICS.

Society of Veterans of Independence Being Organized by Military Leaders.

A General Convention Will Be Held and Department Chiefs Selected Who Will Facilitate Arrangements for the Presidential Election.

HAVANA, June 26.—The Society of Veterans of Independence, organized by the leaders of the former military assembly, continues growing and enlisting all who are willing to work unitedly. It is composed of three classes—members of the army, civilians who acted as agents in the Cuban cities during the war, and those who were deported by the Spaniards. Headquarters will be established in the capitals of provinces. A prominent member of the society said Saturday:

"Just as soon as our organization is complete we shall ask Gov. Gen. Brooke for recognition and permission to operate as a political body. Then each district will name delegates to a provincial convention, with instructions as to how to vote in electing representatives to sit in a general convention.

"The general convention will select department chiefs, who will arrange for clubs in the various provinces and in other ways facilitate preparations for the election of a president, using, in the meantime, every effort to secure harmony among the various elements. Members of the organization will be required to give assistance in a general scheme for educating the people. Free day and night schools with volunteer teachers will be opened wherever it is possible. Only adults will be admitted to membership in the society."

STREET CAR STRIKE OVER.

Many of the Citizens of Cleveland Refuse to Ride on Cars Manned by Non-Union Men—One Outbreak.

CLEVELAND, O., June 26.—Only one outbreak of violence attended the resumption of traffic on all the lines of the Big Consolidated Sunday morning. There was objection in some parts of the city to the retention of the non-union men who were kept by the company. A party of 25 men assembled near the Brooklyn bridge, just south of the city, and whenever a car came along with a non-union crew the passengers were asked to alight and wait for a car manned by a union crew. In most cases the passengers did as requested. Finally a non union conductor undertook to argue with the crowd and he was promptly struck over the head with a club and he and the motorman driven away. The mob refused to permit the car to move until a union crew came along and pushed it to the barns.

As a rule the old men were glad the strike was settled, though there was some grumbling because the non-union men were kept. It is predicted that all the non-union men will be glad to leave the city within 30 days, though the company imposed as one of the conditions of the agreement for the settlement of the trouble that all the men should be treated with consideration by the old empioyes.

THE SMYRNA FIG INDUSTRY.

Probable Success of the Effort of the Agricultural Department to Establish It in California.

WASHINGTON June 26.—The agricultural department has issued a bulletin treating of the probable success of the efforts of the department to establish the Smyrna fig industry in California. It appears that the fruiting of the Smyrna fig is dependent upon the introduction from south Europe and the estimate in California of a little insect which fertilizes the fig.

Experimental introductions of the insect were thereupon begun, and some of them brought over in 1898 have succeeded in penetrating the closed flowers of the Capri fig growing at Fresno, making the first step of the experimental work a success.

NEGRO BURNED IN JAIL.

It Is Believed Escaped Prisoners Returned to the Structure and Set It on Fire—A Posse in Pursuit.

BRUNSWICK, Ga., June 26.—An unknown Negro was burned to death in Everett City jail about 3 o'clock, and the sheriff and county officers are after the men who are believed to be the ones who set fire to the building. The Negro was placed in jail for stealing a ride from Jacksonville on a Florida Central & Peninsular train. He would not give his name.

A few hours previous to the burning several prisoners escaped from the jail, and it is believed that the men returned and set fire to the structure.

Joe Kennedy Seriously Injured.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 26.—Joe Kennedy, the local heavyweight who received the decision over Gus Ruhlin at the conclusion of a 20-round contest on Friday night, was thrown from a buggy Sunday, and is said to be seriously injured.

Attempted Self-Murder.

PEORIA, Ill., June 20.—Eugene Harriman, aged 15 years, of Atlanta, Ill., attempted to commit suicide at Farmer City, Ill., Sunday by shooting himself in the head and is not expected to live.

THEY ARE COMING TO TERMS.

The Street Car Strikers Will Allow the Company to Retain 100 of Its Present Employes.

CLEVELAND, O., June 24.—The strike among the employes of the Big Consolidated street railway is in a fair way to be settled at a meeting of the council peace committee Saturday morning. On Thursday the officers of the Big Consolidated issued what they styled their ultimatum. It was to the effect that the company was willing to take back all but 100 men, which would mean that 80 per cent. of the striking employes would be reinstated.

In the matter of other grievances the company made no changes, but its concessions have recently been agreeable to the strikers. The strikers Thursday night refused to accept the proposition of the company, saying the union men would not submit to work with the non-union men.

Friday the peace committee of the city council issued a call for a meeting of the strikers, which was held at Arch hall in which an effort was made to induce the men to agree to the last proposal of the company. The result of the meeting was that a statement was framed by the strikers, which they said was their ultimatum. The statement practically agreed to the proposition of the company.

They agreed to allow the company to retain 100 of its present employes at put in a clause which said that hereafter in case of any difficulty between the company and employes that the latter should have the right to appoint a committee which would discuss the grievances. This is not contrary to the stand taken by the company which has agreed at all times that all matters pertaining to the employes would be discussed with them.

The strikers asked primarily for the recognition of the union. The council peace committee, however, persuaded them that it was to their benefit to submit and they have practically agreed to do so. The final decision will be reached at a meeting to be held at 9 o'clock Saturday morning. This time has been asked by both sides in order that both may be sure there is no trick hidden in the statement of either side.

THE CONFERENCE FOR PEACE.

The Work Is Now So Far Advanced That It May Possibly Take a Holiday After June 28.

THE HAGUE, June 24.—The drafting committee of the arbitration commission spent the afternoon in considering Articles 1 and 7 of the Russian proposals. All that is left now is the drafting of regulations for the board's procedure.

The information from Germany is that Emperor William will not separate himself from the powers in the arbitration question and the German delegates anticipate a favorable decision on that point. The work is now so far advanced that the conference will probably take a holiday after June 28 in order to allow the delegates to refer to their respective governments for final instructions.

Mr. Frederick Holls, of the American delegation, alluding Friday evening to the German attitude, says:

"This matter is much exaggerated. Active negotiations took place but Germany is in no way irreconcilable and would not hesitate more than the other powers to agree to an arbitration court established on an acceptable basis.

"The Turks themselves state that no one is able to say they object to the arbitration scheme and that when the proposal has been finally shaped they will examine it and only then give an opinion, referring to Constantinople if the wording of the scheme contains points not covered by their instructions."

FIVE OF THEM DROWNED.

Sad Accident to a Bathing Party in a Creek Near Lampasas, Tex.—Two Bathers Were Saved.

HOUSTON, Tex., June 24.—A special from Lampasas, Tex., says: Mrs. T. J. Lloyd, living seven miles northwest of this place with her five daughters and a visitor, Moss Childers, went in bathing in a creek Friday. The three youngest girls went beyond their depth when their eldest sister and Moss Childers went to their rescue and all five were drowned. Mrs. Lloyd saved her other daughter only by heroic efforts. The bodies were recovered.

Suicided by Taking Morphine.

ST. LOUIS, June 24.—Adm. Schwitzer, of Sioux City, Ia., aged 39, died at the city hospital Friday of morphine poisoning. Schwitzer took the poison on the river bank Thursday and then jumped into the river. A policeman saved him and he was sent to the hospital.

Will Attend the Saengerfest.

CHICAGO, June 24.—Eighteen of the German singing societies of Chicago, with a total membership of 600, have practically completed arrangements to attend the golden jubilee saengerfest of the North American Saengerbund, to be held in Cincinnati for three days, beginning next Wednesday.

More English Troops for South Africa.

PORTSMOUTH, Eng., June 24.—The 2d battation of the Shropshire infantry has been ordered to hold itself in readiness to proceed to South Africa.

"Durability is Better Than Show."

The wealth of the multi-millionaires is not equal to good health. Riches without health are a curse, and yet the rich, the middle classes and the poor alike have, in Hood's Sarsaparilla, a valuable assistant in getting and maintaining perfect health.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Never Disappoints

A COSTLY ERROR.

The Merchant Thought the Assessor Was a Representative of Bradstreet's.

One of the lawyers says that a client of his is the hero of this story, and that it happened here within a year or two. A man from the assessor's office went into the store of a Hebrew merchant in the pursuit of his duties. The two had a slight acquaintance, so that the assistant assessor did not think it necessary to explain his business. He was rather surprised when, in answer to his questions, the storekeeper proceeded to dilate on the value of his stock. "De finest in any store of de size in de city. It isn't vort' a cent less than $5,000."

"Suppose I put it down at that, then," said the assessor's man.

"Do it. Do it," said the proprietor. "Yer won't maig no mistake."

So the assessor's man did it. There was lamentation in the store when the tax bill showed the proprietor that he was taxed on $5,000 personal, and he rushed over to the assessor's office with all possible speed.

"Vat iss dis? Vat iss dis?" he asked them, excitedly. "I have no personal but de stock in my store. I'm a liar if it's vort' $800. Come down and look it ofer."

They told him that the records showed that he had given the figure to the assistant assessor.

His hands went up over his head in horror. "My goodness, my goodness!" he shouted. "Vas dat your man? I thought he vas from Bradstreet's."—Worcester Gazette.

YACHTING.

With nearly all who are seeking a place to spend the vacation time, or to live for the summer season a prime requisite is suitable water for sailing. There are many desires and different ideas on this subject as on fishing or any other sport. For some racing alone is attractive, for others long cruises with frequent stopovers making good harbors necessities, and then there are a great many who desire quiet water and with whom safety is the first thought. Long Island with its two hundred and fifty miles of coast line offers to every class of sailor his heartfelt desire. Yachtsmen have found the sail around Long Island one of the most attractive and varied courses known. Along the track of the big liners on the Ocean or South Shore, or down the Sound with its numberless bays, beautiful harbors and safe anchorage; the harbors surrounded as they are by wooded hills, beautiful towns and picturesque villages, abrupt bluffs and stretching beauties of the South Shore give new pleasures each day. In the Sound the early trials of all the famous racers which have successfully defended the cup against all comers for years have been made. Many of the most famous clubs have fine houses and every possible comfort for the yachtsmen. On the South Shore there is another attraction in its Great South Bay, Shinnecock Bay and the many connections separated from the Ocean by Fire Island. While the water is constantly changing, and the breezes meet little obstruction, there are no heavy rollers and white caps, and the factor of safety is raised to a very high point. The fastest cat-boats are built in this section, and are known everywhere, and many a famous yachtsman of to-day took his first lessons and gained his skill and experience on these waters. An unequaled advantage is the fact that all points on the Island are in close touch with Grenter New York by fast express trains and further by telegraph and long distance telephone.

Descriptive Heading.—"I'm in trouble again," said the new reporter. "Here's a story of a debate at the deaf and dumb institute. What head shall I put on it?" "That's easy," suggested the snake editor. "Make it 'Hand-to-Hand Contest.'"—Catholic Standard and Times.

To Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass.

[LETTER TO MRS. PINKHAM NO. 41,207]

"DEAR FRIEND—A year ago I was a great sufferer from female weakness. My head ached all the time and I would get so dizzy and have that all gone feeling in the stomach and was so nervous and restless that I did not know what to do with myself.

"My food did me no good and I had a bad case of whites. I wrote to you and after taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as directed, I can truly say that I feel like a new woman and cannot tell you how grateful I am to you.

"I have recommended it to all my friends and have given it to my daughter who is now getting along splendidly. May you live many years to help our suffering sisters."—MRS. C. CARPENTER, 253 GRAND ST., BROOKLYN, N. Y.

Over eighty thousand such letters as this were received by Mrs. Pinkham during 1897. Surely this is strong proof of her ability to help suffering women.

25 CTS. PISO'S CURE FOR CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS. Best Cough Syrup. Tastes Good. Use in time. Sold by druggists. CONSUMPTION 25 CTS.

HARDIN GIVES UP.

He Withdrew From the Democratic Race for the Nomination for Governor.

GOEBEL AND STONE IN NOMINATION.

Eleven Ballots Taken Amid Confusion Without Result and Convention Adjourned Until Monday.

The Platform Declares for Bimetallism, Denounces Trusts, Indorses Goebel Election Law, Condemns McKinley's War Policy.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., June 22—The democratic convention was called to order Wednesday afternoon by Chairman Johnson. The Goebel-Stone people placed Judge David P. Redwine in nomination for temporary chairman. W. H. Sweeney, of Marion county, was nominated by the Hardin faction.

The first ballot resulted: Redwine, 510; Sweeney, 416, but a number of counties were passed on account of contests, and the vote was held up pending a decision as to how the vote of these counties were to be cast.

As 507 votes were required to elect a temporary chairman, there were enough contested delegates to throw the victory to either side, this proved the turning point of this factional fight. There was a warm controversy lasting an hour or more over the construction to be placed on a resolution adopted by the state central committee Tuesday night giving the chairman instructions that were supposed to be explicit as to which delegates he should recognize from counties where there were contests.

The Davies county contested votes went to the Stone-Goebel column. Only nine votes were then needed to elect Redwine, and the Goebel men said they were certain of landing Redwine a winner.

At 6:45 o'clock the democratic convention, after sweltering for three hours over a tedious hearing of contests, broke up in a great disorder, caused by an attempt to eject a noisy guest from the stage. This caused a stampede but no one was injured. In the midst of the excitement Chairman Johnston declared the convention adjourned until 8 p.m.

When the convention got together Wednesday evening Chairman Johnston took the Kenton county contest under advisement, after which he decided in favor of the regular delegates in two districts and threw out the third. Capt. Johnston then announced the result of the ballot for temporary chairman, declaring Redwine elected by a vote of 511 to 509 1-6 for Sweeney. This marked the success of the first step in the Stone-Goebel combination.

The announcement was received with tumultuous applause. Judge Redwine made a very brief speech of thanks to the convention and assumed the chair. After empowering the chairman to appoint committee members for the state at large, the convention adjourned until Thursday.

Senator Farris, of Garrard county, nominated Wm. Cromwell, of Frank ort, for temporary secretary, and he was elected by acclamation.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., June 22.—The democratic convention held but a short session Thursday morning and adjourned shortly before noon until 7 o'clock Thursday evening to allow the committees to work. This will allow an afternoon for wire pulling and the three candidates for governor are making the most of the opportunity. The fight between these elements as open as it has been at any time despite the Stone-Goebel combination on temporary organization.

The convention reassembled Thursday evening. The credentials committee had scarcely begun its work when the convention adjourned until 9 o'clock Friday morning.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., June 21.—The convention was called to order at 9:30 a.m. Friday, and after the adoption of eulogistic resolutions in memory of the late Richard P. Bland, took a recess until 4 o'clock Friday afternoon to wait the report of the committee on credentials.

An important phase of the business of the credentials committee, which at one time threatened to cause dissensions between the parties to the Stone-Goebel combination, was settled at a conference held after the convention took a recess. This was the probable effect of the Jefferson county or Louisville vote upon the chance of Stone or Goebel, whichever happened to receive it. It seemed to be generally understood that the Weaver, or city administration delegates, would be seated and the Stone followers were fearful that this bunch of 7½ votes, with a leaning toward Goebel, if thrown in that direction, might give the Kenton county leader an advantage that would defeat the avowed object of the combination—the nomination of Stone for governor. It was decided to divide the 7½ votes between Stone and Goebel.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., June 21.—The convention met shortly after 4 o'clock and took another recess until 8 o'clock.

For the third time in as many days the democratic state convention Friday night broke up in disorder. It will enter upon the fourth day of its session Saturday without having accomplished anything more than temporary organization. The report of the committee on credentials was reached in the order of business Friday night, but its consideration was prevented by the disturbing influence of persons who were admitted to the floor of the convention, though not entitled to seats.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., June 23.—When Chairman Redwine rapped for order Saturday morning the report of the credentials committee was presented and read. The committee disposed of contests in 32 counties involving about 357 seats. These were all decided in favor of Stone or Goebel delegates except in three cases—Gallow.y county and the Fourteenth legislative district of Louisville, where Hardin delegates were seated, and Nicholas county, where the delegation was divided between contestant and contestee.

A minority report was presented by the Hardin people.

The good humor which prevailed Saturday morning was in refreshing contrast with the rancor of Friday. Good order prevailed from the start, and a marked disposition to expedite business was shown. Twenty minutes were allowed to each side for debate on the credentials report. Many protests were made by representatives of unseated delegations, and the family quarrels of county organizations were aired at such length that in several cases the convention took the matter in hand and cried down several obstreperous delegates with grievances.

Finally a call of the roll was reached, the question being the adoption of the minority report of the committee on credentials. The vote resulted: Ayes, 827; nays, 411. The majority report of the convention was then unanimously adopted, both sides cheered together—the first rays of harmony broke upon the convention after a week of wrangling over nominees which several times threatened to result in a split.

The applause had barely subsided when Gen. P. Wat Hardin emerged from the crowd on the stage and started another demonstration. The time had come, he said, when an expression from him was necessary to the united party. With a few cordial words of thanks to followers he announced his withdrawal from the race for governor, and appealed earnestly for the undivided support of the party in behalf of the nominee.

The committee on organization then reported.

It recommended the continuation of the temporary organization, with Judge Redwine as chairman and was unanimously adopted. The report of the committee on resolutions was then presented by JAMES Rhea.

THE PLATFORM.

The platform, which was written by Judge James P. Tarvin, of Covington, contains the following:

The democrats of Kentucky in convention assembled reaffirm, without the slightest qualification, he principles and policies declared in the democratic platform adopted at Chicago in 1896.

Our faith in bimetallism is vindicated by events. The necessity for the restoration of the double standard was acknowledged by the president and congress in 1897 when a commission was sent to Europe to entreat other nations to aid in establishing bimetallism, and the failure of the commission to secure European co-operation confirms the friends of free coinage in their belief that relief can only come by the independent action of the United States. The present legal ratio of 16 to 1 is the only ratio at which bimetallism can be restored and opposition to it confined to those who oppose bimetallism at any ratio and to those who misapprehend or ignore the reasons which led three national conventions to adopt it.

We denounce the present republican national administration for its reckless extravagance in the conduct of public affairs; for its cruel and inhuman neglect in its treatment of our soldiers and sailors during the late Spanish war; for its complete subordination to the interest of organized wealth; for its open election and encouragement of trusts and combination; and especially for its appointment and retention in office of an attorney general devoted to the interests of trusts and combinations.

We call attention to the incompetency of the present republican administration in Kentucky; to the abuses and scandals in the management of penitentiaries and asylums while under republican control, and we commend the wisdom of the last general assembly of Kentucky in the enactment of laws which secure the wise and economical administration of the penitentiaries and other public institutions of the state under democratic control; to the increase in the rate of taxation; to the vetoing of all democratic legislation favorable to the interests of the people and hostile to the oppressions and extortions of organized wealth.

We believe the trust is the most large measure of the politics adopted and pursued by the republican party, chief among which are the demonetization of silver, by which the volume of currency has been kept below the demands of business, and the enactment and enforcement of odious, unwise and unpatriotic legislation, such as the protective tariff laws, known as the McKinley and Dingley bills, whereby there is a discrimination in favor of corporate wealth and against individual enterprise. We favor the destruction of the trust as well as the removal of the causes. The re-establishment of independent bimetallism at 16 to 1 and the repeal of all protective tariff laws would do more to cripple and destroy the organization and operation of the trust than any other laws.

We believe the law in Kentucky known as the anti-trust law should be so amended as to make unlawful any agreement, combination or arrangement by corporations or individuals under which, in the carrying on of any business, the prices charged should thereby be fixed, controlled or regulated. And we believe that the law should be further so amended as to provide that all contracts made by any combination, generally known as a trust, in any kind of business shall be void and not enforcible as to such trust or combination, and we especially demand that all trust controlled articles be placed on the free list.

We hereby express our continued confidence in Wm. Jennings Bryan and favor his nomination for the presidency of the United States by the democratic national convention of 1900.

We recommend to the democracy of Kentucky J. C. S. Blackburn as the successor of Wm. Lindsay in the United States senate.

We endorse the war carried to success for the freedom of the enslaved Cubans; and we appreciate and honor the courage and heroism of our soldiers and sailors therein engaged; but we declare the conduct of the present national administration as to the Philippines to be repugnant to every line of the spirit of rights, the constitution and the declaration of independence.

In the matter of state affairs, the platform indorses the election law passed by the last legislature, known as the "Goebel law" and the law "to prevent extortion, unjust and discriminating freight rates by transportation companies," both of which were passed over Gov. Bradley's veto. The law to insure competition in the sale of schools books is also indorsed.

The reading of the platform provoked a great deal of enthusiasm, particularly the reference to Bryan and Blackburn. The resolutions were then adopted as reported. Next came the nominations for governor. Hon. John S. Rhea placing the name of Capt. W. J. Stone before the convention. Congressman Wheeler seconded it. Judge Tarvin nominated Goebel.

Judge Hargis, of Louisville, created a sensation by seconding Goebel. C. J. Bronston also seconded Goebel.

A vote was ordered and the roll call proceeded with considerable disorder.

On the first ballot Goebel reached 558½ votes. Changes then cut him down to 489½. At this time Stone had 443½. Hardin 136. Ex-Gov. Brown 17. These figures are unofficial and counties are changing from column to column, amid the greatest confusion. Five hundred and forty-seven votes are necessary to a choice.

Delegates saw there was no likelihood of a nomination on the first ballot.

There were deafening cries of "Hardin!" and a Hardin stampede will not be a surprise.

The convention adjourned at 2:45 until 6 p.m. without making a nomination.

The second reapplication resulted only in scratched and illegible tally sheets. Changes are ready to be made whenever they are needed. Nothing can be done, and the representatives of the three candidates confer and agree on an adjournment until 8 o'clock. The motion to adjourn is put and carried. No vote is announced. A reporter's ballot sheets show at adjournment: Goebel, 285 5-12; Stone, 710 2-3; Hardin, 350 11-12. To nominate 549 votes must be had. Before the first reapplication ballots were recorded for Goebel.

At the evening session nine ballots were taken before the convention adjourned until Monday morning. The two taken at the afternoon session were not announced. The nine ballots taken Saturday night and so announced to the convention were as follows:

Ballot.	Stone.	Goebel.	Hardin.
Third	379 5-6	353 2-3	243 5-12
Fourth	381 5-12	354 1-6	236 3-12
Fifth	384 5-12	376 1-6	240 3-12
Sixth	384 5-12	354 2-3	262 11-12
Seventh	382 5-12	358 1-6	371 5-12
Eighth	394 1-4	341	366 3-4
Ninth	398 3-4	348 1-2	354 3-4
Tenth	373 3 1	361 1-2	354 3-4
Eleventh	376 2-4	346 3-4	365 1-2

BIBLE MATHEMATICS.

Dr. Talmage Discourses on the Numeral Seven.

A Favorite Number with the Divine Mind—Take Care of the Present; God Will Take Care of the Future.

[Copyright, 1899, by Louis Klopsch.]

Many of the important doctrines of the Bible are by Dr. Talmage presented in this sermon in a very unusual way. Genesis ii, 3: "God blessed the seventh day."

The mathematics of the Bible is noticeable; the geometry and the arithmetic, the square in Ezekiel, the circle spoken of in Isaiah, the curve alluded to in Job, the rule of fractions mentioned in Daniel, the rule of loss and gain in Mark, where Christ asks the people to cipher out by that rule what it would "profit a man if he gain the whole world and lose his soul." But there is one mathematical figure that is crowned above all others in the Bible. It is the numeral seven, which the Arabians get from India and all following ages have taken from the Arabians. It stands between the figure six and the figure eight. In the Bible all the other numerals bow to it. Over 300 times it is mentioned in the Scriptures, either alone or compounded with other words. In Genesis the week is rounded into seven days, and I use my text because there this numeral is for the first time introduced in a journey which halts not until in the close of the book of Revelation its monument is built into the wall of Heaven in chrysolite, which in the strata of precious stones is the seventh.

In the Bible we find that Jacob had to serve seven years to get Rachel, but she was well worth it, and, foretelling the years of prosperity and famine in Pharoah's time, the seven fat oxen were eaten up of the seven lean oxen, and wisdom is said to be built on seven pillars, and the ark was left with the Philistines seven years, and Naaman, for the cure of his leprosy, plunged in the Jordan seven times; to the house that Ezekiel saw in vision there were seven steps; the walls of Jericho, before they fell down, were compassed seven days; Zechariah describes a stone with seven eyes; to cleanse a leprous house the door must be sprinkled with pigeon's blood seven times; in Canaan were overthrown seven nations; on our occasion Christ cast out seven devils; on a mountain he fed a muntitude of people with seven loaves, the fragments left filling seven baskets, and the closing passages of the Bible are magnificent and overwhelming with the imagery made up of seven churches, seven stars, seven candlesticks, seven seals, seven angels and seven heads and seven crowns and seven horns and seven spirits and seven phials and seven plagues and seven thunders.

Yea, the numeral seven seems a favorite with the Divine mind outside as well as inside the Bible, for are there not seven prismatic colors? And when God with the rainbow wrote the comforting thought that the world would never have another deluge He wrote it on the scroll of the sky in ink of seven colors. He grouped into the Pleiades seven stars. Rome, the capital of the world, sat on seven hills. When God would make the most intelligent thing on earth, the human countenance, He fashioned it with seven features—the two ears, the two eyes, the two nostrils and the mouth. Yea, our body lasts only seven years, and we gradually shed it for another body after another seven years, and so on, for we are as to our bodies septennial animals. So the numeral seven ranges through nature and through revelation. It is the number of perfection, and so I use it while I speak of the seven candlesticks, the seven stars, the seven seals and the seven thunders.

The seven golden candlesticks were and are the churches. Murk you, the churches never were and never can be candles. They are only candlesticks. They are not the light, but they are to hold the light. A room in the night might have in it 500 candlesticks and yet you could not see your hand before your face. The only use of a candlestick, and the only use of a church, is to hold up the light. You see it is a dark world, the night of sin, the night of trouble, the night of superstition, the night of persecution, the night of poverty, the night of sickness, the night of death; aye, about 50 nights have interlocked their shadows. The whole race goes stumbling over prostrated hopes and fallen fortunes and empty flour barrels and desolate cradles and deathbeds. How much we have use for all the seven candlesticks, with lights blazing from the top of each one of them! Light of pardon for all sin! Light of comfort for all trouble! Light of encouragement for all despondency! Light of eternal riches for all poverty! Light of rescue for all persecution! Light of reunion for all the bereft! Light of Heaven for all the dying! And that light is Christ, who is the light that shall yet irradiate the hemispheres.

But murk you, when I say churches are not candles, but candlesticks, I cast no slur on candlesticks. I believe in beautiful candlesticks. The candlesticks that God ordered for the ancient tabernacle were something exquisite. They were a dream of beauty carved out of loveliness. They were made of hammered gold, stood in a foot of gold and had six branches of gold blooming all along in six lilies of gold each, and lips of gold, from which the candles lifted their holy fire. And the best houses in any city ought to be the churches—the best built, the best ventilated, the best swept, the best windowed and the best chandeliered. Log cabins may do in neighborhoods where most of the people live in log cabins, but let there be palatial churches for regions where many of the people live in palaces. Do not have a better place for yourself than for your Lord and King. Do not live in a parlor and put your Christ in a kitchen.

These seven candlesticks of which I speak were not made of pewter or iron. They were golden candlesticks, and gold is not only a valuable, but a bright metal. Have everything about your church bright—your ushers with smiling faces, your music jubilant, your handshaking cordial, your service attractive. Many people feel that in church they must look dull, in order to be reverential, and many whose faces in other kinds of assemblage show all the different phases of emotion have in church no more expression than the back wheel of a hearse. Brighten up and be responsive. If you feel like weeping, weep. If you feel like smiling, smile. If you feel indignant at some wrong assailed from the pulpit, frown. Do not leave your naturalness and resiliency home because it is Sunday morning. If as officers of a church you meet people at the church door with a black look, and have the music black and the minister in black preach a black sermon, and from invocation to benediction have the impression black, few will come, and those who do come will wish they had not come at all.

Golden candlesticks! Scour up the six lilies on each branch and known that the more lovely and bright they are the more fit they are to hold the light. But a Christless light is a damage to the world rather than a good. Cromwell stabled his cavalry horses in St. Paul's cathedral, and many now use the church in which to stable vanities and worldliness. A worldly church is a candlestick without the candle, and it had its prototype in St. Sophia, in Constantinople, built to the glory of God by Constantine, but transformed to base uses by Mahammed the second. Built out of colored marble, a cupola with 24 windows soaring to a height of 180 feet, the ceiling one great bewilderment of mosaic, galleries supported by eight columns of porphyry and 87 columns of green jasper, nine bronze doors with alto relievo work fascinating to the eye of any artist, vases and vestments incrusted with all manner of precious stones. Four walls on fire with indescribable splendor.

Though labor was cheap, the building cost $1,500,000. Ecclesiastical structure, almost supernatural in pomp and majesty. But Mohammedanism tore down from the walls of that building all the saintly and Christly images, and high up in the dome the figure of the cross was rubbed out that the crescent of the barbarous Turk might be substituted. A great church, but no Christ! A gorgeous candlestick, but no candle! Ten thousand such churches would not give the world as much light as one homemade tallow candle by which last night some grandmother in the eighties put on her spectacles and read the Psalms of David in large type. Up with the churches by all means! Hundreds of them, thousands of them, and the more the better. But let each one be a blaze of heavenly light, making the world brighter and brighter, till the last shadow has disappeared and the last of the suffering children of God shall have reached the land where they have no need of candlestick or "of candle, neither light of the sun, for the Lord God giveth them light, and they shall reign forever and ever." Seven candlesticks the complete number of lights! Let your light shine before men, that they, seeing your good works, may glorify your Father which is in Heaven.

Turn now in your Bible to the seven stars. We are distinctly told that they are the ministers of religion. Some are large stars, some of them small stars, some of them sweep a wide circuit and some of them a small circuit, but so far as they are genuine they get their light from the great central sun around whom they make revolution. Let each one keep in his own sphere. The solar system would be soon wrecked if the stars, instead of keeping their own orbits, should go to hunting down other stars. Ministers of religion should never clash. But in all the centuries of the Christian church some of these stars have been hunting an Edward Irving or a Horace Bushnell or an Albert Barnes, and the stars that were in pursuit of the other stars lost their own orbit, and some of them could never again find it. Alas for the heresy hunters! The best way to destory error is to preach the truth. The best way to scatter darkness is to strike a light. There is in immensity room enough for all the stars and in the church room enough for all the ministers. Two ministers who give up righteousness and the truth will get punishment enough anyhow, for they are "the wandering stars for whom is reserved the blackness of darkness forever."

The ministers are not all Pecksniffs and canting hypocrites, as some would have you think! Forgive me if, having at other times glorified the medical profession and the legal profession and the literary profession, I glorify my own. I have seen them in their homes and heard them in their pulpits, and a grander array of men never breathed, and the Bible figure is not strained when it calls them stars. And whole constellations of glorious ministers have already taken their places on high, where they shine even brighter than they shone on earth. Edward N. Kirk of the Congregational church, Stephen H. Tying of the Episcopal church, Matthew Simpson of the Methodist church, John Dowling of the Baptist church, Samuel K. Talmage of the Presbyterian church, Thomas De Witt of the Reformed church, John Chambers of the Independent church, and there I stop, for it so happens that I have mentioned the seven stars of the seven churches.

I pass on to another mighty Bible seven, and they are the seven seals. St. John in vision saw a scroll with seven seals, and he heard an angel cry: "Who is worthy to loose the seals thereof?" Take eight or ten sheets of foolscap paper, paste them together and roll them into a scroll and have the scroll at seven different places sealed with sealing wax. You unroll the scroll until you come to one of those seals, and then you can go no farther until you break that seal. Then unroll again until you come to another seal, and you can go farther until you break that seal. Then you go on until all the seven seals are broken and the contents of the entire scroll are revealed. Now that scroll with seven seals held by [illegible] was the prophecy of what was to come on earth. It meant that the knowledge of the future was with God, and no man and no angel was worthy to open it, but the Bible says Christ opened it and broke all the seven seals. He broke the first seal and unrolled the scroll, and there was a picture of a white horse, and that meant prosperity and triumph for the Roman empire, and so it really came to pass that for 90 years virtuous emperors succeeded each other—Nerva, Trajan and Antoninus. Christ in the vision broke the second seal and unrolled again, and there was a seal of a red horse, and that meant bloodshed, and so it really came to pass, and the next 90 years were red with assassinations and wars. Then Christ broke the third seal and unrolled it, and there was a picture of a black horse, which in all literature means famine, oppression and taxation, and so it really came to pass. Christ went on until He broke all the seven seals and opened all the scroll. Well, the future of all of us is in a sealed scroll, and I am glad that no one but Christ can open it. Do not let us join that class of Christians in our day who are trying to break the seven seals of the future. They are trying to peep into things they have no business with.

Do not go to some necromancer or spiritualist or soothsayer or fortune teller to find out what is going to happen to yourself or your family or your friends. Wait till Christ breaks the seal to find out whether in your own personal life or the life of the nation or the life of the world it is going to be the white horse of prosperity or the red horse of war or the black horse of famine. You will soon enough see him pass and hear him neigh. Take care of the present, and the future will take care of itself. If a man live 70 years, his biography is in a scroll having at least seven seals. And let him not during the first ten years of his life try to look into the twenties, nor the twenties into the thirties, nor the thirties into the forties, nor the forties into the fifties, nor the fifties into the sixties, nor the sixties into the seventies. From the way the years have got the habit of racing along I guess you will not have to wait a great while before all the seals of the future are broken. I would not give two cents to know how long I am going to live or in what day or what year the world is going to be dismolished. I would rather give $1,000 not to know. Suppose some one could break the next seal in the scroll of your personal history and should tell you that on the next Fourth of July, 1901, you were to die, the summer after next, how much would you be good for between this and that? It would from now until then be a prolonged funeral. You would be counting the months and the days, and your family and friends would be counting them, and next Fourth of July you would rub your hands together and whine: "One year from to-day I am to go. Dear me! I wish no one had told me so long before. I wish that necromancy had not broken the seal of the future." And meeting some undertaker, you would say: "I hope you will keep yourself free for an engagement the Fourth of July, 1901. That day you will be needed at my house. To save time you might as well take my measure now, 5 feet 11 inches." I am glad that Christ dropped a thick veil over the hour of our demise, and of the hour of the world's destruction when He said: "Of that day and hour knoweth no man; no, not the angels, but My Father only." Keep your hands off the seven seals.

There is another mighty seven of the Bible—namely, the seven thunders. What those thunders meant we are not told, and there has been much guessing about them. But they are to come, we are told, before the end of all things, and the world cannot get along without them. Thunder is the speech of lightning. There are evils in our world which must be thundered down and which will require at least seven volleys to prostrate them. We are all doing nice, delicate, soft handed work, in churches and reformatory institutions, against the evils of the world, and much of it amounts to a teaspoon dipped out of the Atlantic ocean, or a clam shell digging away at a mountain, or a tack hammer smiting the Gibraltar. What is needed is thunderbolts, and at least seven of them. There is the long line of fraudulent commercial establishments, every stone in the foundation and every brick in the wall, and every unit in the rafter made out of dishonesty, skeletons of poorly-paid sewing girls' arms in every beam of that establishment, human nerves worked into every figure of that embroidery, blood in the deep dye of that refulgent upholstery, billions of dollars of accumulated fraud intrenched in massive storehouses and stock companies manipulated by unscrupulous men, until the monopoly is defiant of all earth and heaven. How shall the evil be overcome? By treatises on the maxim: "Honesty is the best policy?" Or by soft repetition of the Golden Rule that we must "Do unto others as we would have them do to us?" No, it will not be done that way. What is needed and will come is the seven thunders.

An Economical Occupation.

"What a liberal thinker Joe Scrimper is."

"Yes; it doesn't cost him any cash to think."—Chicago Record.

NEWS ITEMS.

Capt. Jas. Entwistle, of the navy, is to be retired July 8.

The United States cruiser Newark, commanded by Capt. Goodrich, has arrived at Valparaiso.

The strike of 1,300 textile workers at Brunn, Moravia, after lasting two months has been settled by a compromise.

George Odom, the 14-year- old jockey, has signed a contract to ride for W. C. Whitney in 1900, 1901 and 1902 at a salary of $10,000 a year.

The house of Andrew Johnson, a lake engineer, at Mayville, N. Y., was burned Saturday morning. Johnson was unable to escape and was burned to death.

At Berlin the bricklayers' strike has been settled by a court of arbitration and the men will get an advance in wages in special September and December of next year.

The Southern Stove Makers' association held a meeting in Chattanooga, Tenn. Friday, and decided to advance the price of all grades of stoves ten per cent. from that date.

The Daily News of Shanghai publishes a dispatch from New Chwang saying two Russian Engineers and ten Cossacks have been killed by brigands near Kirnin, Manchuria.

Cardinal Count Franz De Paula Von Schonbern, archbishop of Prague and primate of Bohemia, died Saturday in Vienna in his 55th year. He was raised to the cardinalate in 1889.

A notice has been posted at the navy department that mail intended for the officers and men of the Newark and Marblehead should be sent to Callao, Peru, until further notice.

The town of Kieng-Ning-Foo, in the province of Fo-Kien, has been widely placarded with bills offering a reward of $1,000 for the heads of missionaries. Anti-foreign riots are feared.

Eastern and northern Finland, according to a dispatch to the Times from St. Petersburg, are threatened with famine and floods. The late cold weather has ruined the rye crops.

The government of the South African republic, according to a dispatch to the London Daily Mail from Rome, is ordering large quantities of rifles from Italian firms for immediate shipment.

The chamber of commerce of Huntsville, Ala., has called an industrial convention to meet in Huntsville, September 4, to consider the best method of leveloping the resources of the south.

It is officially explained that the German-American cable contract will go to an English firm because the firm possesses the sole right of granting a concession for a cable to land in the Azores.

For the first time since 1870 the vatican party has obtained a majority in Rome in the municipal elections, and the fronts of the churches are fantastically illuminated nightly in honor of the success.

The village of St. Raymond, 35 miles from Quebec, was almost wiped out by fire Sunday morning. About 40 buildings were burned and the convent badly damaged. The loss is about $50,000, well insured.

The Dominion Steel & Smelting Co., with a capital stock of $20,000,000, was formed at Montreal Thursday. The works will be situated near Sydney, Cape Breton, and will give employment to 5,000 men.

The British second-class cruiser Doris, with Rr. Adm. Sir Robert Hastings Harris, commander-in-chief of the Cape of Good Hope and Western African squadron, left Simon's bay Friday for the east coast.

Twenty deaths from yellow fever out of 40 cases have occurred in the city of Panama since the 1st of May. Six cases are now under treatment, but strong hopes are entertained that the disease there will soon be erad cated.

At Danbury, Ct., James Rasmussen, aged 45, a tailor; his son John, aged 6, and Randolph Johnson, of Bethel, aged 45, were drowned in the Eastlake reservoir Thursday night. They were fishing from a boat, which was overturned.

Rr. Adm. Kautz, who returned from Apia on the Philadelphia, refuses to be intervied about the troubles in the islands and will make no statement of any character concerning the prospects of a peaceful termination of the international squabble.

C. J. Matthews & Co.'s morocco factory and warehouse, two five-story brick buildings at American and Willow streets, Philadelphia, were destroyed by fire of unknown origin Thursday evening. Loss $100,000, covered by insurance.

The Uncas has been placed in commission at the League Island yard. She will leave in a few days for San Juan under the command of Lieut. Jayne for service as a station ship. She is a large tug purchased for use during the Spanish war.

At the United Norwegian Lutheran session Friday in St. Paul, Prof. O. Lokensgaard and Rev. S. N. Garmoe introduced a resolution denouncing the army canteens and requesting President McKinley to close those institutions. The matter was referred.

Joe Walcott, the colored welterweight boxer, was given the decision over Dan Creedon, the Australian middleweight, at the end of a hard fought 20-round bout before the New Broadway Athletic club, New York, Friday night. Johnny White was the referee.

BOONE CO., RECORDER.

Wednesday, June 28, 1899.

Advertising Rates:

One inch, one time.....$1.00
Each additional time..... .25
Obituaries, Tributes of Respects or notices of a like nature, per inch .50

W. L. RIDDELL, - - Publisher.

We are authorized to announce J. W. KENNEDY, of Union, as a candidate for the Legislature, subject to the action of the Democratic party.

We are authorized to announce BENJAMIN STEPHENS, of Florence, as a candidate for the Legislature, subject to the action of the Democratic party.

Neighborhood News.

Hume Store.

Farmers are busy cutting wheat.

A very heavy rain fell here Saturday evening.

Miss Rose Wilson, of Hamilton, was calling on friends at this place, Sunday week.

Miss Ida Arnold, of Crittendeu, was the pleasant guest of Miss Lorena Cotton, last week.

Misses Grace Cotton and Rope Whitson, were the pleasant guests of Susan Houston, one day last week.

Mr. Frank Houston and sister, of Central Covington, are spending vacation with their graudparents at this place.

Limaburg.

Tobacco is looking fine.

Some corn has been laid by.

Thermometer stood 96 here, Friday.

A heavy rain fell here, last Saturday.

Wheat is all cut with a good average crop.

Farmers will be too busy to take the 4th of July.

Jas. W. and Legrand Utz sold their lambs at $4.50.

W. R. Rouse has been on the sick list the past week.

Chas. Clore, of Hebron, is painting in this neighborhood.

Henry Clore put up a nice lot of clover hay, last week.

Mrs. Mary Ellen Crigler entertained a number of her friends, Sunday.

Elbert McDanell had a fine two-year old colt killed by lightning on the 20th

Albert Beemou's house was struck by lightning on the 20th inst., and damaged to some extent.

Otho Rouse and Miss Kate Crigler Were married, last Wednesday, by Rev. Max Leutz. They left for Louisville for a short stay. We extend our congratulations.

Francesville.

Archy McGlasson is at home for his vacation. He has been attending school in Covington.

Prof. Omer Henry and his mother started, last Friday morning, for a few days' visit to their relatives in Indiana.

One day last week while Chas. Beall was passing through a gate on his farm, his horse got frightened and threw him from the cart, breaking one of his ribs.

Quite an accident happened to Will Cruse While out plowing, last Saturday, the team ran away, dragging him quite a distance. Fortunately he escaped with but a few injuries, but he lost his pocket book, which contained about $20.

Mrs. Amanda Graves entertained a few of her friends, last Sunday. Among them were Rev. Utz and wife, Holland Goodridge and family, Harry Kilgore and family, Will Graves and wife, Mrs. Alvin Corn, Mrs. Matilda Goodridge, Mrs. Lou Morris and her little son, Sheldon.

Constance.

Mr. F. Kleymer, of Cincinnati, called to see his best girl, Sunday.

The new pike to Covington will be extended to the Dry Creek bridge.

Gus Moore, while playing base ball, caught a foul tip on his nose breaking it.

A floater was caught at Auderson, Sunday, by Wm. Peno, who towed it to the Ohio side.

Bryer Utz's 8 year old child fell off of a cart and broke a boue in its arm, one day last week.

Wm. Reeves, who has been laid up with his arm, cause from vaccination, is able to be about again.

Wm. Price has handed in his resignation as clerk of Davis & Co.'s store. Wm. wanted more wages.

James Loder and sou, of Cincinnati, and Mr. Swing, of Nightstown, Ind., were visiting B. F. Hood, last week.

Work on the electric railroad from Anderson Ferry to Lawrenceburg will commence as soon as the ties and rails arrive. The Telephone Co., has commenced to remove their poles.

Gunpowder.

There was about three inches of rain fell here last week.

George Barlow and family speut Sunday with J. M. Utz.

Ezra Blankenbecker and family were visiting W. P. Utz, Sunday.

Robert Rouse and wife were guests of your corespondent, Sunday.

Mrs. Alice Rouse, of Hebron, was visiting Mrs. Eli Rouse, Sunday.

Wheat harvest is about over and the rattle of mowing machines is heard over the land.

Children's Day Services were held at Hopeful, Suuday morning, and attended by a large crowd.

Wallace Tanner, who has been prevented from attending church by sickness, was seen in the audience Sunday.

Lightning struck the residence of Albert Beemon, on the night of the 20th., but fortunately it was not seriously damaged.

Otis Rouse and Miss Georgia Huey were married on the 20th, at the home of Mr. Napoleon Bristow. After the wedding ceremony, ice cream and cake were served, after which the bride and groom started for the bride's home in Cincinnati, amid showers of rice and old shoes. The presents were numerous and valuable.

Florence

The heaviest rain of the season fell here Saturday evening.

Miss Daisy Dixou, of Woodford county, is visiting her cousin, Mrs. Carrie Thomas, of this place.

Dr. and Mrs. Moffett entertained Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Buckner, of Erlanger, at supper, Friday, evening.

Mrs. Emma Morris left, Monday, to spend several weeks with Dr. O B. Yager and family at Glencoe.

W. R. Bradford, who has been dangerously ill of pneumonia for the past three weeks, we are glad to report much better.

Venus Lodge I. O. O. F. requests all her members to be present next Saturday night, as there is important business to attend to.

J. S. Berkshire, while working on a new building at Beri Conner's made a mislick with his hatchet, cuttiug his leg severely, and was laid up for several days, but he is about able to go to work again. Jack, you ought to have an accident policy in the Pacific Mutual. See A. M. Thomas for rates.

Our friend, Joseph Scott, has added to his herd of Jerseys, Mollie Victor Pogis, purchased of J. H Martiu, of Granville, N. Y. Molly Victor Pogis is two years old and has a test of 15 lbs. and 10 ozs. of butter a week. She is a solid dark fawn, and a very fine cow. She is a daughter of Melia Ann's Victor Pogis, sire of Princess Darset, 35 lbs. 1 oz., and 23 others; dam, Molly Pedro, test 17 lbs., 2 oz.; traces four times to Pedro; 30 in list, and first prize at Chicago; 4 times to Mahkuuac, 4 in list and second prize at Chicago. She is not only a great butter-bred cow, but she is a show cow herself, and comes of a long line of prize winners. Her dam and graud-dam have won several first prizes Mr. Scott is to be commended iu his efforts to build up the dairy business in Boone county.

Union.

Mike Kualy has bought a new bindter.

Miss Nannie Bristow is visiting in Covington.

Esq. Baunister has been on the sick list for teu days.

H. G. Blanton, of Erlanger, was calling in Union, Sunday.

Mr. Burgie, of Covington, was the guest of R. L. Willis, last week.

Mrs. Wm. Sutherland, of Florence, is the guest of Mrs. J. W. Conner.

J. L. Frazier and "Uncle Will" Wilson finished their wheat harvest, last Friday.

Mrs. Bonny, of Louisville, attended church Sunday, and is the guest of her sister, Mrs. Gibsou

We are anxious that Revs. Utz and Watkins will hold their debate in Union. It is a central point.

J. W. Kennedy purchased the Adam Bros', tobacco at 8¼c all round and it weighed 7,755 lbs. Mr. K. says it is the nuest veen crop he ever bought or saw.

Just for curiosity, we measured and found that a mole had rooted 81 feet in a bee line through Claud Carpenter's corn field and he had evidently done the job in 24 hours.

Your cor. called on T. A. Huey at his country home, "Cedar Hill," Wednesday, and found him hustling around and looking like the fresh air and sun shine agreed with him.

Jack Berkshire let a hatchet slip from his hand while working at J. W. Conner's, and it cut a gash in his leg that required three stitches to close up. Kirb Tauner, of Burlington is helping Mr. Berkshire.

Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Garrison were decorating their house with handsome combinations of wall paper this week. We had heard they were about to move upon the pike near Union, but certainly they could not find a lovelier place in the county than their present home. It is a beauty.

Prof. Voshell is trying to work up a telephone from Florence to Union, like you have at Burlington. Mr. Voshell desires to be in close touch with Prof. Hicks, the weather prophet, and be able to telephone the news of and discoveries he may make in the line of comets with his telescope. He is having good luck.

Esq. Byland, of Walton, was in Union, Saturday, and reported Louisville the hottest old town he ever saw. He was a delegate to the convention, but left early that the Insurance Company might not lose one of their trusted agents and some funeral director get a job without his (the deceased) consent The Squire is right.

J. S. Houston says Mr. Briggs, of Big Bone, has a wonderful talent for dodging and gave an exhibition of it one evening last week. The horse Mr. B. was driving got scared and he intended to jump and catch him by the bit, but jumped down between the shafts behind the horse and was only saved by dodging like a prize fighter, the vicious kicks hurled at him by the horse.

The Blade Club called a meeting Saturday night and discussed topics of interest for three hours. The president said he believed in the old saying that "Politics is h—l." The political editor of Union Blade said he was anxious to learn how this country can prosper when the appropriatious of Congress for the fiscal year '99, amounted to more cash dollars than seven of the leading products of our country will sell for takiug government statistics as evideuce of their value.

The elegant house of N. S. Bristow presented a brilliant appearance Tuesday evening. The day was lovely and at 4 o'clock the sun was shining, the birds were singing and a soft, balmy breeze was blowing from the south, making it an ideal wedding day. The house was beautifully decorated with roses, daises and ferns. Mr. and Mrs. Bristow received the guests with their usual hospitality and kindness, so that by 4 o'clock their home was filled with a large assemblage of friends and relatives anxious to see two young lives bound together as one in the holy bonds of marriage; to see two people whose dreams of love were to become a reality and fondest expectations realized. As the hands of a lovely cathedral clock pointed to the hour of 4, and all the guests were anxiously awaiting the bride and groom coming, Mrs. John Garrison began playing a favorite wedding march and as its inspiring strains echoed through the rooms and re-echoed in the heart of every guest, the bride and groom marched in and were united by Rev. James Kirtley in the sacred bonds of wedlock. The bride, Miss Georgia Huey, and the groom, Mr. Otis Rouse, were a handsome couple and have a bright future before them. After the marriage ceremony, ices, cake and coffee were served; congratulations offered and the young couple left for Cincinnati. Guests present from a distance were, Mrs. Dixon and Miss Moss, of Visalia; Mrs. and Miss Latham, of Illinois; Mrs. Walker, Southern Ky.; Rev. Kirtley and son, of Petersburg; J. E. Bristow, of Kenton county; Mr. Dills, of Cincinnati; Mr. Oscar Huey and Miss Hattie Huey, of Erlanger, and Miss Louise Huey, of Cincinnati.

Verona.

Henry Willliford has the banner crop of wheat in this vicinity.

Harvest is in full blast, and wheat will make about half a yield.

Several persons in this vicinity purchased Deering harvesting machines.

James Hind is collecting the stone for the foundation for his new dwelling.

Edgar Powers and wife were the guests of A. C. Roberts and wife, last Sunday.

Uncle Nat Hind, who has been in very poor health for several months is no better.

Miss Pattie Hume, who has been very poorly for some time, is thought to be some better.

Thos. Vest's cottage is about completed, and is a neat building. Perry Rice is the contractor.

J. M. Powers, Henry Cotton and Dave Huston have each taken quite a lot of honey this season.

Miss Lizzie Roberts has had her hen house given a fresh coat of paint, which adds much to the appearauce.

Chas. A. Roberts, jr., after spending several weeks in the eastern part of Illinois, has returned to his drug business.

Geo. W. Roberts, one of the delegates who attended the Louisville convention, came home and reported a hot time in that city.

Dentou Cotton's horse ran off with him and Rube Huston, while attached to a buggy a few days since. It scared at a threshing machine near the road and ran into Orvil Winu, breaking his leg. The horse was stopped without any further damage to horse, buggy or occupants.

There will be an all day basket meeting at New Bethel church, the 4th of July. One among the best Missionary Alliance Preachers, with other good speakers, will address the crowd. The iuvitation is extended to youug and old to come and spend a profitable day in the Lord's house.

Miss Garvey, of Owen county, is the guest of Miss Letha Callahan.

Mr. Showers has bought the store house where Robertes sell goods.

Mr. Clareuce Kemper, of Glencoe, was calling in Verona, last Sunday.

The little son of W. M. Whitsou fell from a cherry tree and broke his arm.

Miss Annie Wolfe returned, last week, from Mt. Sterling, where she had been visiting Miss Blount.

Rev. Hughes, the M. E. pastor, did not fill his appointment here, as he is engaged in a protracted meeting.

Bro. Adams filled his regular appointment here, Saturday and Sunday. Two candidates were received by baptism on Sunday.

Flickertown.

Henry Passons is visiting his parents up on Ashby.

Farming in this neighborhood is done cutting wheat.

Wm. Hensley went to Louisville on the City of Louisville, Sunday.

Something caught 34 of Mrs. Lystra Smith's turkeys, last Saturday night.

Jim Green is improving the looks of our town by having his house painted.

Gordon and Botts, of Petersburg, commenced work on Miss Julia Smith's new house, last week.

Miss Edna Sullivan stepped on a rusty nail, one day last week, cuttiug an ugly hole in her foot.

Miss Ethel Fehrer was visiting Miss Maud Jarrell, of the Gasburg neighborhood, several days last week.

Rumor says a certain young man from near here will lead one of Petersburg's fair maids to the altar in the near future.

Jas. Thompson, of Petersburg, was in this neighborhood one or two days last week, gathering lambs to ship to Cincinuati.

John Jones' new buggy is a perfect beauty. It is a side bar with green running gear and a black top with his name on the bed. Cost—$80.

Midway.

Master Carroll Coyle, of Crescent Springs, Kenton county, was visiting his brother-in-law, Ed Slayback, at Midway, last week.

The outlook for blackberries is promising, and visions of jam aud cordial haunt the small boy, and the large fellows, too, as far as that is concerned.

Lo! the hum and whistle of the steam thresher is heard in the land, and busy hands are catching the golden grain as it pours from the separater.

Mrs. Sallie Cleek and Mrs. W. C. Johnson left here Monday morning early to visit Mrs. Martha Burus, of Staffordsburg, Kenton county, who is very poorly.

Mr. Arthur Stevenson, one of the Verona neighborhood's most prominent youug farmers, was visiting Hamilton last Sunday afternoon, presumably getting his summer hat trimmed.

Quite a number of Midway's church going people visited Mt. Zion church, in Grant county, last Sunday, to attend the M. E. Church Quarterly Conference. A bountiful dinner was spread at the noon hour, and all present enjoyed the day's services.

Rev. Sam Adams, of Walton, baptized four new converts in Mr. J. J. Cleek's pond, near here, last Sunday afteruoon, after which he preached an able and impressive sermon at the Beaver Lick Baptist church, receiving them into full membership.

The telephone line from Walton to Hamilton, passing through Midway is assured, and only awaits the completion of the pike, so that the line poles may be planted along the new road. If there is anything in hustling enterprize, surely we people's locality is on the boom.

Last Saturday morning, just as Old Sol was peering over the eastern horizon, Jim K. Polk Hamilton drew from the turbid waters of Gunpowder creek two "yaller cats," with pole and line, which weighed 13 pounds. Polk hurried home, and had them served for dinner, saying that all he wanted was a good mess.

Without a doubt farmers are the most difficult set to satisfy on the globe, for while they view the present copious showers with glad anticipations of large yields of "yaller corn and toburley backer," they are invariably writhing in agony as they behold their wheat fields and meadows spoiling for attention. 'Twas ever thus with poor farmers.

Capt. R. K. McManama, of Normansville, and W. R. Miller, p. m. at Big Bone, became engaged in the dirty handling of unmentionable epithets, one day last week, and the Captain had the p. m. arrested for assault and battery. The trouble originated over some land which Mr. Miller's sons were cultivating of Mr. McManama's.

Jack Sandford has a cow and calf for sale.

Farmers are too busy to come to town now.

Toney Bentler has nine 40 pound shoats for sale.

Lots of nice dew-berries are being put on the market.

The Walton and Burlington baseball teams will play here next Saturday. Game called at 2 p. m.

Miss Fannie Hogan, who had her arm operated on in Cincinnati a few days ago, is getting along nicely.

One of Ed Hawes' hands is giving him considerable pain. It is badly swollen, supposed to result from the bite of a spider or someother insect.

The protracted meeting at the M. E. Church closed, last Thursday evening, and Rev. Green returned to his home at Warsaw. There were no additions during the meeting.

James Hogan and O. J. Ryle are laying the foundation for a residence in the new addition. When Oscar comes home at night he looks like he had just swum a river.

Mrs. Brady furnished us with a copy of Mrs. W. J. Bryau's excellent speech on "American Womanhood," at the 69th Commencement of the Academy for Young Women, at Jacksonville, Ill.

COUNTY COURT.

A. B. Rouse qualified as notary public.

Will Smith was granted license to peddle merchandise.

Copy of Contract.

Agreement made this 14th day of June, 1899, between Miss Ida LeRoy, of Mt. Vernon, Ohio, and E. V. Newman, Secretary of Fire Company of Rising Sun, Indiana: Miss Ida LeRoy agrees to make one Hot Air Balloon ascension and parachute leap at Rising Sun, Indiana, on July 4th, 1899, for said Fire Company, for which said Fire Company agrees to pay her the following named price: Balloon ascension and side parachute leap, $125.00. Should inclement weather prevent the ascension the said Fire Company agrees to pay Miss Ida LeRoy $30,00. Said Fire Company agrees to furnish Miss Ida LeRoy a life preserver and one man in a boat while the ascension is being made. Miss Ida LeRoy agrees to furnish everything necessary for the ascension, and guarantees the ascension to be first-class, weather considered. Money to be paid to Miss Ida LeRoy, or order on demand, immediately after ascension has been made.

MISS IDA LEROY.
Signed. E. V. NEWMAN, Sec'ty
Rising Sun Fire Co.

An exhibit of gallant courage and bravery was shown last Friday night at the home of Mrs. William Moody on Second street. The family have been frequently bothered with a burglar who insisted that he would gain an entrance to the house. It was about 11 o'clock on this occasion and shortly after Miss Mary Moody's gentleman company had departed for home. Loud shaking of the side door was heard and Miss Mary went up stairs blowing out the light at the top of the steps. She stepped to the side window and fired at the man, who had changed his position to another part of the yard. The first shot brought no result and luckily for the gentleman the gun would not repeat its unmerciful howl, on account of being rusted. The fellow lost no time in getting over the fence. On turning to her mother who was close by, she was found in a faluting condition. The person who it seems had planned the trick to test the courage of the young lady, has no doubt of her courage now.—Rising Sun news in Aurora Bulletin. Miss Moody is the granddaughter of Col. Jno. M. Moody, of Bellevue.

GRAND
FOURTH OF JULY
CELEBRATION
—AT THE—
Lawrenceburg
Fair Ground,
Lawrenceburg, Ind.

COL. WINFELD T. DURBIN
Will be the orator of the day.

161st INDIANA INFANTRY
will hold its first reunion.

PRIZE DRILLS,
SHAM BATTLES,
DANCING AND
All kinds of amusements will be the order of the day.

The celebration will commence at the break of day by the firing of a cannon that was captured from the Spaniards at Santiago de Cuba, July 4, 1898.

Grand Fire Works at Night.

Buy a Buggy Where the Many Buy.

Our Goods are Reliable and of Good Standard Grades.
and will sell anything in our Store for the CASH as cheap
as you will buy elsewhere.

Our Motto: BUY for CASH sell for CASH,
GOOD GOODS AT LOWEST LIVING PRICES.

Respectfully,
L. B. HUNTER, Rising Sun, Ind.

OUR MILLINERY DEPARTMENT

Is in full blast and is filled with Trimmed and Untrimmed Hats at LOWER PRICES than ever.

LADIES' SKIRTS, PETTICOATS and SHIRT WAISTS ranging in price from 25c up, and in fact the whole house is chucked full of BARGAINS.

W. H. CLARK,
Rising Sun, Indiana.

JOHN ALLISON,

UNDER-  EMBAL-
TAKER MER,
Corner Pike & Russell Streets,
COVINGTON, - - KENTUCKY.
INDEPENDENT OF UNDERTAKERS' UNION.

Order Spring Suits NOW

H. F. BLASE.

And we will make them up artistically and ready for you promptly on time. We have

Over Five Hundred Styles

Of Spring and Summer Woolens to Select from. They come direct from the looms of foreign and domestic manufacturers, and surpass in elegance and variety anything ever shown in Covington. In the assortment are many exclusive patterns—goods that cannot be duplicated by any other establishment in this city. Keep these facts in mind and place your order for a stylish suit with us. We promise you a faultless fit, the proper cut, and a price that will not be more than you can afford to pay.

H. F. BLASE,
535 Madison Avenue,
COVINGTON, - - KENTUCKY

A Word to the Public

MY STOCK OF
Dry Goods, Notions,
AND LADIES' AND GENTS'
TOILET ARTICLES

for the Spring Trade has been received, and to be appreciated must be seen. Fresh

DRUGS AND GROCERIES

received daily. A large stock of

PAINTS & OILS

on hand at all times. All Goods New and Clean, and are sold at the

LOWEST CASH PRICES.
—GIVE ME A CALL—
J. G. OELSNER, Florence, Ky.

Local News.

The Republicans of Boone county will meet in mass convention, Monday, July 3d, 1899, at 1 o'clock p. m., in the Court House at Burlington, for the purpose of selecting delegates to the State convention which meets at Lexington, July 12th. Also for the purpose of nominating a candidate for State Senator.

T. B. MATHEWS,
Chairman Executive Committee.

Hope the real hot weather is over.

It is about time big potato stories are ripe.

The blackberry crop is a failure this year.

The rains last week interrupted harvesting some.

The crop of chickens for frying is ripening rapidly.

The remainder of the wheat will be put in the shock this week.

This certainly has been a very favorable season to the potato crop.

This is cyclone week, if the prognosticators know whereof they predict.

Mr. and Mrs. G. G. Hughes' little girl has been quite ill for several days.

A drowned boy was caught by the ferryman at Constance, Sunday morning.

Leonard Ruth, the Petersburg butcher, is trying to establish a beef trade here.

Weeds are growing rapidly. They have taken possession of every neglected spot of ground.

☞Go to A. Corbin & Son's for first-class Kanawha Coal at 9 cents per bu shel of 76 pounds. an-1

Lawrenceburg will put up a big entertainment for her fourth of July visitors next Tuesday.

A very hard rain fell here Saturday afternoon. In some places the ground was washed badly.

The fourth of July celebration in Rising Sun, next Tuesday, will be worth going miles to attend.

Teachers in contracting for schools should see that the law applicable to contracts is complied with.

NOTICE.—The examination for Common School graduates will be held in Burlington next Thursday, June 29.

Take your clock to Kirtley Rice to have it cleaned and repaired—cleaning 50 cents; putting in main spring, 50 cents.

Tony Bentley has bought a new boiler and engine for running his threshing machine. He will get it home this week.

Elder Archie Brown will preach at Salem church, between Walton and Verona, the first Saturday and Sunday in July.

The material for D. E. Castleman's new house was put on the ground, last week. It came from Warsaw via of Bellevue.

From each neighborhood in the county comes the statement that the wheat crop is not as good as was anticipated.

The Baptist congregation held services in the Methodist Church Sunday, the inside repairs on their church not being completed.

Read the contract in this issue for the balloon ascension and parachute leap in Rising Sun, July 4. That will be a gala day with our neighbors.

Rising Sun, Indiana, is going to have a big fourth of July celebration next Tuesday, and all Kentuckians who attend will be made glad that they were there.

In the last few weeks 7 or 8 of the jury in the Kite Story case have requested the RECORDER to say that they did not sign the petition for Story's pardon.

A photographer was in town Saturday taking free pictures. In a few days he will return to sell the fruits of his labor. This scheme has been worked here quite often.

The lamb buyers have a move on, and are gathering their purchase as rapidly as they can. The lamb crop brings a large sum of money into this county every year.

The town crop of dogfennel is larger than it has been for several years. It would not require much muscle aided with a good, sharp scythe to remove this ugly weed from along the sides of the streets.

Last Monday P. E. Cason killed a large, black spreading adder in his yard. The reptile was three and a half feet long. Sunday an adder crawled from under the door steps at Stanley Clutterbuck's, and was killed by Eddie McKim.

Lightning struck the Christian church at Bullittsville, one night last week, damaging the building slightly. The same night lightning knocked a chimney off of Bart Aylor's house, in the Hebron neighborhood. It is said Bart's slumbers were not disturbed by the performance.

W. R. Miller, of Big Bone, was arraigned before Judge Roberts, Monday, on a warrant sworn out by R. K. McManama, charging Miller with a breach of the peace, by using abusive language to him. The trial was set for next Thursday week. A large lot of witnesses will be summoned.

The Indian Medicine Co., closed a two weeks' stay here last Monday night. Chief Rolling Bear had several transactions with this office, during his stay here, and in every instance he displayed the traits of a gentleman. His show is as good as any that tour the country. Master Dudley Blyth turned in the largest number of ballots the last night and captured the gold watch of which he is very proud.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Harry Blyth has proven himself an expert with the paint brush.

C. C. Hughes was home from Lair's, Harrison county, last Sunday.

Miss Katie Huey is visiting her sister, Mrs. Geo. F. Piper, in Louisville.

Mr. E. M. Gaines is the guest of his granddaughter, Mrs. Ves Gaines.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Kreylich were calling in Burlington, Saturday afternoon.

Miss Clara Tupman has gone to Erlanger to remain until after the fourth with friends.

Mrs. C. N. Cropper, of Louisville, is visiting relatives in the Bullittsville neighborhood.

County Clerk Adams captained the Sunday-school excursion to Big Bone Springs, Monday.

Col. G. Carter Graddy, of Bullittsville, the famous ladies' man, and great fence architect, was in town Monday. The Colonel has too much business on his mind to discuss politics or matrimony.

Ex-Sheriff Leathers, of Covington, spent a day or two in Burlington, last week. He has been in bad health for some time, and ought to have sojourned longer in the recuperating atmosphere in this locality.

We neglected, last week, to mention the return of James Craven, of Limaburg, after a sojourn of about one year in the wild and woolly west. He looks stout and hearty, evidence that the western breezes agreed with him.

The Burlington delegation that went to the Louisville convention began reaching home as early as last Thursday. They came by ones and twos, and said they left Louisville as their money became exhausted. They had a great deal of fun, and pronounce the convention the liveliest collection of men they ever ran up against.

Mrs. E. W. Adams and her Sunday-school class, visited Big Bone Springs, Monday, where they were joined by several of Mrs. Adams' friends who served a most excellent dinner. Mr. McLaughlin, proprietor of the Eagle Hotel, gave the visitors free access to his entire premises, and a most delightful day was spent. It was about 10 o'clock at night when the crowd reached home.

We received an interesting letter from E. W. Smith, of St. Louis, in which he sends the following clipping from the St. Louis Post-Dispatch of the 21st inst:

"Isaac W. Parker, 1439 South Compton, died Tuesday at the age of 83 years. For 37 years a citizen of St. Louis, he had seen some of the most important development of the city. Mr. Parker was born near Hebron, Boone county, Ky., in 1816. On his father's plantation, surrounded by slaves, he grew up. He received a common school education and for a few years taught a country school. At the age of 22 he was married to Elizabeth Hawkins, the daughter of a neighbor. She died two years later, and five years after her death he was married to her sister, Amanda, who died 12 years later. He then married Mary Jerome, now his widow, whom he met upon coming to St. Louis. For the last few years Mr. Parker had been quite feeble, requiring the careful attention of his wife. He never had any regular business, being possessed of a good income left by his parents. At one time, however, he was a Captain on a line of boats on the Ohio River, one of them being the Mary Peel. He leaves two children, Mrs. Arnold Wichman, 3500 Park avenue, and Albert Parker, of Oakland, Cal. The funeral took place Wednesday afternoon from the home to Bellefontaine cemetery."

Both Sides Willing.

To the Editor of the Recorder:

I want to say to the public that I have not been seeking controversy, but as we have been attacked by several parties who were the aggressors, I gave the following challenge in order to stop the newspaper controversy: "If any one wishes to controvert our principles let him select his best man and I will find a man to meet him in an oral discussion of the issues between us." Bro. G. W. Watkins knocks at our door and expresses his desire "to controvert our principles" by accepting our challenge. I am ready to meet Bro. Watkins to arrange the preliminaries.

T. L. UTZ.

The past three weeks have been remarkably favorable for the setting and cultivation of tobacco, and an excellent stand of plants has been obtained, and all having been set early, with proper cultivation and future favorable conditions, there will be the finest and largest crop raised in this section for many years. The crop looks very promising and there is not a single reason for complaint.—Warsaw Independent.

—Several of the Burlington colored people attended church at Florence, last Sunday, and Ward Coleman, who very often propels our printing press, came home with a bullet hole through his left hand. The shooting occurred at a saloon near Erlanger on the Lexington pike. Coleman says the bullet that struck him was intended for another fellow.

Jim Clore heard the command, "set down," given so often while he was attending the Louisville convention, last week, that he now repeats it frequently during a night's sleep. It will be a long time before Jim and Edwin Gaines forget the fun they had at Louisville, last week. Jim wants to go back and engage in the tonsorial art.

The incoming school trustees for this district, propose giving the school house a thorough overhauling, putting it in a condition to be used for school purposes. According to their report of the condition the house and furniture have been most terribly abused, much of the furniture having been entirely destroyed.

B. F. McGlasson, president of the North Kentucky Agricultural Association, was in town Monday. He reported that at the meeting of the board on last Saturday it was decided to build a large barn, for use of stock and the protection of carts, wagons, &c. This will be a great benefit to the exhibitors of stock.

W. M. RACHAL & CO.

DOLLARS DO DOUBLE DUTY HERE.

Standard Granulated Sugar, 18 lbs. $1 00.
Arbuckle Coffee 10 cents per lb.
Daniel Boone Soap, 3 bars for 5 cents.
Pittsburg Wire less than city prices.
Lime, Cement, White Lead, Oils, Varnishes, etc., as cheap as in the city.

Baby Shoes for 10c per pair up.
Misses' Shoes for 50c per pair up.
A full line of Men's, Ladie's and Children's Tan Shoes—Latest Styles, Best Quality, Lowest Prices.
Men's Dress Pants, 75c per pair.
Wonder Overalls, Shirts and Pants, the best made.

COME at ONCE. THESE PRICES are ONLY While Present Stock Lasts.

UNION, KENTUCKY. UNION, KENTUCKY.

ADLER'S

—THE PLACE TO BUY—

LADIES' • READY • MADE • GOODS.

A complete line of Silk Waists, Shirt Waists, Dress Skirts, Spring Capes in Silk or Cloth, Muslin, Underwear, &c., also dealer in Dry Goods, Furnishing Goods and Shoes.

ADLER'S, Parry Building Corner High and Walnut Streets LAWRENCEBURG, INDIANA.

FOR good, new and up to date goods at the Lowest Prices, go to the New Store at the Old Stand, at

123 Second St., AURORA, IND.

Having bought the stock of

Dry Goods, Notions and Shoes

of R. Maybin, 123 Second St., Aurora, Ind., I have closed out the stock on hand at that time as nearly as possible, and have had the room remodled and have just received a

A New and Complete LINE OF Dry Goods, Notions and Shoes,

to which I invite your inspection, Boone Co., customers especially invited.

FRANK RIEMAN, - - AURORA, IND.

Deering Ideal Binder Folded.

Deering Binders, Mowers and Reapers

Posses the secret of LIGHT DRAFT, Deering Roller and Ball Bearings, Durability and convenience not excelled by any. Be sure and examine these machines before purchasing.

Of those desiring anything in the Machinery line, Hay Rakes, Deering Repairs or Binder Twiner, we earnestly ask their patronage.

CROPPER & GAINES,
UTZINGER, KY.
mch29tf

McALPIN & THOMSON,

Successors to RIGGS BROS.

Undertakers —AND— Embalmers,

LIVERY, BOARDING & FEED STABLES.

Special Rates to Traveling Men. Pianos, Organs and Furniture Carefully Removed. First-class Carriages for hire with careful drivers for Families, Parties, Weddings, etc.

LEXINGTON PIKE, - - - ERLANGER, KY.

J. M. EDDINS, Agent, Burlington, Ky.

Are Your Dollars Worth SavinG?

Come ye of little faith; only those who have tasted of the the sweets in trading at our store can realize what the word "Saving" means.

CLOTHING

MEN'S NICE SUITS in Cassimere and Chiviots, at..... $5.00
MENS'S NICE LIGHT SUITS, Worsted and Cassimeres—the latest things at..... $7.50
MEN'S ELEGANT SUITS, Cassimeres, Worsted and Fancy Chiviots, at..... $10.00
MEN'S FINE ALL-WOOL SERGE SUITS, Finest ever Shown, at..... $7.50, $10, $11
MEN'S AND BOYS' LIGHT PANTS, a finer line was never shown at from..... $1.50 to $5
IT WILL INTEREST YOU TO INSPECT OUR BOYS' SUITS.
CHILDREN'S SUITS, in Double-Breast and Vestee,..... 1$ to $5
CHILDREN'S WASH SUITS, They are beauties—an entire new line..... 50c and up
MEN'S CAMALET PANTS, Something cool and comfortable 50c
MEN'S OFFICE COATS..... 50c

BEAR IN MIND!—These goods are all brand new having been made specially to our order for this summer's trade. There is not a carried over garment in our store.

ROLFES & WACHS, No. 1 Pike Street, Cor. Madison Ave.
COVINGTON, KENTUCKY.

Take Your County Paper.

When in Burlington Call on

J. S. CLUTTERBUCK

DEALER IN

DRY GOODS

Notions, Boots and Shoes,

Who has just received his stock of

SPRING & SUMMER SHOES,

the nicest stock ever in town. Have old stock which I AM SELLING AT GENUINE BARGAINS.

NICE LINE WALL PAPER.

☞At Prices to Suit the times.☜

DEERING - MACHINES

Are the favorites in every land where grass and grain grow. They are adopted to all conditions. They are the "Acme" of strength, durability, simplicity and light draft. We will carry a full line of Repairs. Buy the Machine that is fully guaranteed and handy to obtain repairs for.

Also remember we are headquarters for all kinds of

Farm Machinery

At bottom prices. We handle nothing but the best and fully guarantee all.

Also the Largest and Cheapest

Stock of Shoes

In the county, and a full line of

General -- Merchandise.

—CAN SAVE YOU MONEY.—

COME AND SEE.

T. J. HUGHES,

BEAVER LICK, KY.

GO TO C. T. DAVIS & CO., HEBRON AND CONSTANCE, General Merchants,

A Good Supply of Feed always in Stock.

GARDEN AND FIELD SEEDS.

Undertaking Given Special Attention.

A good supply of Coal on hand at Constance at all times.

Hebron. C. T. DAVIS & CO. Constance

W. H. HOSHAL & COMPANY,

COMMISSION MERCHANTS,

Cattle, Hogs and Sheep,

—UNION STOCK YARDS,—

Cincinnati, - Ohio.

—TELEPHONE 7346.—

Information Regarding Live Stock Cheerfully Furnished.

Consign Your Stock Direct to Us.

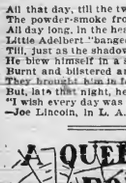
LUMBER!

LATHS,
SHINGLES,
DOORS,
BLINDS,
SASH.

If you want any kind of Lumber it will be to your advantage to visit our yard at Lawrenceburg, Indiana, before buying. ☞Prices to Suit the Times.

M. E. LEMING & CO.

A GLORIOUS FOURTH.



LITTLE Adelbert arose at four
And crept down-stairs to the big front door,
And down the walk to the garden gate,
And there he started to celebrate.
With bursting cracker and roaring gun
He waked the neighbors, every one;
He scared the cat out of all her sense,
And blew the slats off the picket fence,
And came to breakfast with one black eye,
And said: "Hooray, for the Fourth of July!"

He ate with hurry and frantic haste,
For never a minute had he to waste;
Then out again to the fray he sprang
And turned things loose with a mighty "bang!"
He fizzed and spluttered and boomed and crashed,
While dishes rattled and windows smashed;
And when, all grimy and sore and lame,
Torn and tousled, to lunch he came,
On his swollen lips was the joyous cry:
"Ain't I glad it's the Fourth of July!"

All that day, till the twilight's close,
The powder-smoke from the garden rose;
All day long, in the heat and dust,
Little Adelbert "banged" and "bust,"
Till, just as the shadows began to creep,
He blew himself in a senseless heap.
Burnt and blistered and minus hair,
They brought him in for the doctor's care;
But late that night, he was heard to sich:
"I wish every day was the Fourth of July!"
—Joe Lincoln, in L. A. W. Bulletin.

A QUEER FOURTH OF JULY

IT'S going to be the meanest kind of a Fourth of July. No balloon on the common and no fireworks. They're not even going to ring the church bell—because that little old sexton, Sandy McVie, is too lazy, I suppose."

Truman Bluford, generally known among his comrades as True Blue, was excitedly announcing this dismal news to Rob Tripp and Tenney Cole, in his father's store.

"There's no patriotism in Cherryfield. They've all forgotten how our fathers fought and bled," said Rob Tripp, who liked to read nothing but stories of battle, and meant to fight something when he grew up, if it were only Indians.

"It will be as still as Sunday, I know. What is the Fourth of July, without a racket?" said Tenney Cole, dejectedly.

"I tell you, boys, something ought to be done!" said True.

That was what the boys liked about True. He was always ready to do something. Older people were inclined to think he was a little too ready to do mischief, but the boys were generally ready to follow where True led the way.

"We might ring the church bell," said True.

That wasn't much to do, Rob thought; it sounded rather tame. Still, it would be fun to wake the stupid Cherryfield people out of the naps which they had no business to be having on Fourth of July morning, and startle the selectmen, who had decided that there should be no ringing of bells.

"How could we get into the church?" asked Tenney Cole, who was of a practical turn of mind.

"Break in, of course," replied True, coolly. "You can't expect to have all that fun without—well, without hearing something about it afterward. We could break a window in the porch; and when we once got hold of the rope, wouldn't we make people think the bell was bewitched! They'd blame Sandy McVie for not being on the watch, too. It would be a good joke on the old rascal. He's got us into enough trouble by telling on us."

True's father was coming from the back part of the store, so the boys lowered their voices and walked quietly out at the door; while behind the counter, from the stooping posture in which he had been measuring for himself a gallon of molasses, arose Sandy McVie. He looked after the boys, with all the shrewd little wrinkles in his face drawing themselves up into hard knots.

"A good joke on the old rascal, eh?" he muttered. "There's never any knowing how a joke may turn out, my fine fellows! You're fixing a Fourth of July celebration for yourselves that'll be more than you bargained for, if I'm not mistaken."

The boys went on, all unconscious that Sandy McVie had been a listener to the conversation that was certainly not intended for his ears.

"It would be a good thing if we could get into the church without breaking a window," said Tenney Cole. "There's little Rose McVie now. Let's ask her where her father keeps the key."

"Hanging on a nail in the closet, under his coat," replied the little girl, on being questioned.

"Couldn't you get it for us, Rosy, and not let anybody know it, if we gave you the greatest lot of candy you ever saw, and a bunch of torpedoes for to-morrow?"

Rosy was a very small person, with a very large appetite for candy, to say nothing of a strong desire to celebrate with the proper amount of noise the anniversary of her country's independence. Her eyes grew big and round at the alluring prospect, and she nodded emphatically her willingness to undertake the errand. So it was settled that she should bring them the key that night, after her father had hung up his coat in the closet, so there would be no danger that he would go there again and discover the absence of the key.

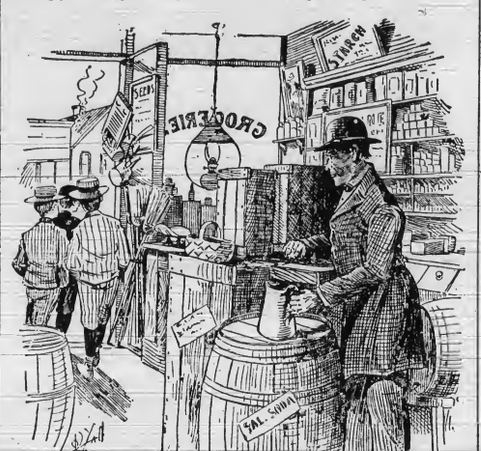
That afternoon Sandy McVie and his son, a stout lad of 18, paid a visit to the church. Archie, the son, came out, looking very warm and tired.

"Better have let them do it, and then make them smart for it, than to take all that trouble," he grumbled. "Or just give their fathers a hint of what they are up to."

"Since they are so fond of jokes, I'm willing they should have a bit of a one," said the sexton, rubbing his hands, gleefully. "They'll entech it fast enough for breaking the church window."

Rosy McVie stole out of the house that night after dark and delivered the church key into True's hands, receiving in return an amount of candy and torpedoes that had cost a large share of the boys' Fourth of July savings. But they were all satisfied that it was money well spent, for they had learned from sad experience that the results of breaking windows were never amusing.

It was about half-past four o'clock on the morning of the Fourth when the three boys unlocked the church door. It was very quiet for a Fourth of July morning. Now and then came the banging of a gun, the feeble popping of firecrackers and torpedoes, and the dismal shriek of a fish horn; but there were very few people astir.



"This stupid old town will get a waking up in a minute now. And people ought to thank us. It's a burning shame to have it so still. You may be sure they're making things lively over at Borrowsville by this time."

Borrowsville was a town on the other side of the river, where the boys meant to assist in the celebration after they had waked up Cherryfield.

"They won't thank us, you know," said Tenney Cole. "Boys never are appreciated."

"I don't expect it will be just exactly thanks that we shall get," said True, drily, as he turned the key in the lock behind them. "Anybody that's afraid had better back out now."

Nobody backed out. Six hands seized the bell rope. There was "a long pull, a strong pull and a pull all together."

SANDY MCVIE HAD BEEN A LISTENER.

But no sound followed. They looked at each other in silent amazement and tried it again. They could feel that the bell swayed backward and forward; but it did not ring. What could be the reason?

"Somebody must have muffled it!" exclaimed Rob.

"We'll go up and see what's the matter, anyway," said True.

A long, long flight of steep and narrow stairs led to the first landing in the church steeple. Beyond that was a ladder leading to the bell loft. There was a trap door which they pushed open, and all scrambled up to the loft.

"If here isn't a go! The tongue is gone from the bell!" erled True. "Now who do you suppose did that?"

"Rosy must have told on us. I just wish we hadn't given her all that candy," lamented Tenney.

The great bell hung there empty, powerless to arouse any Fourth of July enthusiasm, and looking as sad as if it realized its dumbness.

"I should just like to catch the fellow that did that," said Rob, flourishing his fist at an imaginary foe, as he did so, unfortunately striking the trap door with his elbow, and causing it to fall with a crash. It was somewhat dark in the loft, now that the trap door was closed, the only light coming from a little round window, like a porthole in a vessel, far above their heads.

"Lift up the door, Rob. We may as well go down. Whoever took that tongue out wouldn't leave it where we could find it, you may be sure," said True.

But when Rob tried to lift the door, lo and behold! it stuck fast. The iron ring which had once served as a handle was broken off, and there was no way by which they could get a sufficiently firm hold to pull with any considerable amount of strength. They tried to pry it open with their knives, but only succeeded in breaking them. And time was wearing away, and the Borrowsville celebration must be getting toward its liveliest.

"It's of no use to holler. Nobody could hear us," said Tenney, despairingly.

"It's a pretty place to spend the Fourth in!" said Rob, with a groan. "How long do you suppose it will be before they miss us at home and come to look for us?"

"Why, they'd never think of coming here to look," replied True. "And my mother said I might stay all night with my cousins over at Borrowsville. She won't expect me home till to-morrow, and your folks will think you've stayed with me. Anyway, they would never think we were up in the church steeple."

"But when she knows we're lost, Rosy McVie will tell, if she hasn't already," said Tenney.

"She won't. She's too much afraid of her father to tell that she gave us the key," averred True.

"But he'll find out that the key is gone, and then he'll suspect that we are here," said Tenney, who was determined to look on the bright side.

"Next Sunday, mnybe! We shall be starved to death before then!" said Rob, who was not proving himself as brave as his desire for fighting had led his comrades to suppose.

"Somebody must have got wind of what we meant to do, or the tongue wouldn't have been taken out of the bell," said Tenney; "and no one could be mean enough to keep us here for long on the Fourth of July."

"Sandy McVie is mean enough for anything," declared Rob; "and perhaps they have only taken the tongue out to repair it, or something of that kind."

Sandy McVie meanwhile arose at five o'clock and took a walk around the church. There was no broken window.

"So they gave it up, the young rascals, and have probably gone over to Borrowsville to do their celebrating," said the sexton to himself, and felt a disappointment that he should be denied the grim satisfaction of bringing the young rascals to justice. "Well, Cherryfield will be the quieter for their being out of it to-day," he added, to console himself.

If not exactly out of Cherryfield, they were certainly too far above it to interfere with its quiet. A faint echo of distant Fourth of July noises came tantalizingly to their ears now and then. The minutes dragged along heavily. They had no means of telling time, and an hour seemed like a day; but night finally came, the dimness deepened to utter darkness, and, stretched upon the floor, they all fell asleep. Being boys, they could sleep, although the floor was hard and keen gnawings reminded them that they had gone breakfastless, dinnerless and supperless.

When True awakened, a little shaft of sunlight shone through the small window, away up in the dimness of the steeple. It danced upon the cobwebs that covered the dusty beams until they looked as if made of gold thread. A great, long-legged spider was dragging a hapless fly into his web. The spider's web had been partially torn away, and the dust had been brushed from the beams in the corner near it. There was a little scaffold in the corner covered with shavings and chips, evidently left there when the last repairing was done. But somebody had been up in that corner lately. How otherwise could the dust have been brushed away and the spider's web broken? True wondered idly what anybody could have been there for, and then a sudden thought struck him that sent the blood rushing to his head, and made him for a moment feel faint and dizzy. In another moment he was climbing up those beams nimbly as only a squirrel or a boy could climb. He put his hand under the heap of shavings and chips, and it touched something very hard and cold. He dashed off the chips and shavings with which it was covered, and disclosed the bell tongue.

True wanted to shout for joy, but he knew that he needed all his strength just now, and restrained himself. He could not have lifted the bell tongue, even if he had not been obliged to cling to a beam with one hand, but he could draw it along to the edge of the scaffolding, and then with one mighty effort, he pushed it off. It came to the floor with a crash that seemed as if it might arouse all Cherryfield, and certainly did effectually arouse the two sleeping boys, who sprang to their feet. Rob with a vague impression that it was the report of a cannon, and that his time had now come to fight something. It was a happy moment when they realized that the bell tongue was found, though Tenney did grumble that they "ought to have been smart enough to find it yesterday." True thought that if he hadn't been awake when that sunbeam struck the corner, they never would have found it, for who would have thought that anybody would carry it away up there to hide it?

It was no small undertaking to replace the tongue in the bell, but, after much lifting and struggling, it was done, however. Then they all pulled with a will, and a clang that almost deafened them came from the bell. Sleeping Cherryfield was aroused in a very few minutes, and asked, in amazement, what was the matter. The new fire engine was taken out with a rush and clamor. But where was the fire? People ran wildly about and nobody seemed to know. The most mystified man was old Sandy McVie, who ran out of the house in a maze of bewilderment, and declared that the bell was bewitched. How else could it ring without a tongue? And how could any human being get into the church when the door was securely locked, and no window broken, as anybody could see?

And still the bell rang wildly and clamorously, as such a sober-minded old church bell was never known to ring before. The spirit of half a dozen Fourths of July seem to possess it. People on the outskirts of the town began to think that the selectmen had repented of not celebrating the Fourth, and were making amends by celebrating the 5th, and they came hurriedly driving into the village to see what was the matter.

At length somebody more courageous than Sandy McVie insisted upon going into the church to investigate, and Sandy went to get the key. The discovery that it was gone put a new face upon the matter, and Sandy's suspicions reverted to the boys whose plans he had overheard, and he volunteered to break open a window and lead the search.

Rosy McVie at that time was pulling the bedclothes over her head, and wondering what would become of her, and resolving never again to touch a key or anything else that she had no right to, for all the candy in the world. Candy was good, but, oh, how bad was the terror she was suffering now! And Rosy is not likely to forget her resolve, although she was never found out. The boys agreed that they would "never be so mean as to tell on a girl, anyway," and they were always supposed to have stolen the key from Sandy McVie's closet themselves.

When they heard the footsteps of their rescuers the boys ceased to ring the bell. It was easy enough to open the trapdoor from beneath. While the boys were wondering anxiously whether it ever could be opened, Sandy McVie's head popped up out of it like a Jack-in-the-box. Rob's father came next, and Rob—who meant to fight Indians—threw his arms around his neck and—cried. Rob's father had suffered some anxiety about him, but thought he had stayed at Borrowsville with True.

Everybody agreed that the boys had been sufficiently punished by their imprisonment and the loss of their Fourth of July fun. Even Sandy McVie said "he guessed they wouldn't be apt to do it again." But he may have been somewhat softened by the compliments which True paid him on his skill in hiding the bell tongue.

The boys didn't care to say much about their adventure. They felt as if the trick they had tried to play had been turned upon themselves. When True's Borrowsville cousins asked him what kind of a Fourth he had had, he replied, carelessly:

"Oh, a sky-high one!"

Which was certainly truer than the cousins, who had their own opinion of Cherryfield celebrations, believed.

But those three boys will never ring another church bell without leave.—Sophie Swett, in Golden Days.

Independence Day.

Fling out the flag, the starry flag,
The banner of the free!
The symbol of the land we love,
The land of liberty!
Our fathers with their willing blood
Baptized that banner gay,
So let it stream, its stars agleam,
On Independence day!

From brave New England's rugged shore
Washed by Atlantic's waves,
To western lands whose pebbly strands
The fair Pacific laves—
From Minnesota's swamps and swales
To southern hummocks gay,
Fling out afar the stripes and stars
On Independence day!

Fling out the flag, the dear old flag,
The flag our grandsires won!
The emblem of the land we love,
The land of Washington!
The blood of heroes thrills our hearts
And bids us haste away,
To consecrate with fitting state
Our Independence day!
—Helen W. Clark, in N. Y. Ledger.

Why He Is Happy.

Why does the kid look proud and smile,
As to the woodshed he retires?
Because since early dawn he's been Responsible for eighteen fires.
Golden Days.

"The Night Before the Fourth."

He sleepless lies with swearing tongue
Because the old church bell is rung
By some mischievous elf,
Nor thinks he of that olden time
When, just as midnight's stroke would chime,
Adown the lightning-rod he'd climb
To ring that bell himself.
—L. A. W. Bulletin.

Taking His Revenge.

Rafferty—An' wuz it th' Choinese thot invinted foircrackers?

Wun Lung (proudly)—Lessir!

Rafferty (smiling heavily)—Thin take thot, yer Mongolian brutel Oi sot down on a lighted bunch av thim yisterday.—Golden Days.

HANNA AND HARMONY.

A Republican Organ Grinds Out a Wail of Woe Over the Ohio Situation.

The republican press is generally agreed that Hanna and Harmony were copartners in the management of the Ohio republican convention.

If this be true, the junior partner in the firm has a clear case for damages against the Chicago Times-Herald, a McKinley-Hanna organ of the inner circle, which overlooks Harmony's interests altogether, and proceeds to rub salt into the open wounds of Senator Foraker.

According to the Times-Herald there is no republican harmony in Ohio. It goes further, and declares that "there will be no real harmony in Ohio politics, no national confidence in the utterances of its republican conventions, so long as Judus Benedict Forraker retains his place in republican councils there. He has been paid off. Let him be retired for good."

The Chicago McKinley organ furthermore declares that nothing but makebelieve harmony, "for the sake of self-preservation, has compelled Joseph B. Foraker to sheathe his political dagger in his own cont-tail, swallow his envy and malice, and stand upon an Ohio platform renewing pledges of loyalty to the party he has so often sought to betray." According to the Times-Herald, "it would require a page to rehearse the flagrant breaches of party loyalty and personal good faith of which Foraker has been guilty; Foraker's conduct in the Ohio convention "has once more proved that the leopard cannot change his spots"—that "conspiracy and treachery are so ingrained in the man that nothing can eradicate them from his acts." Finally, he is told that "when whipped into line, he licks the lash, but as he does so, plots new treachery."

Political rumor has it that Hanna, Harmony & Co. have already selected Gen. Grosvenor, the foremost administration cuckoo, to be Forraker's successor in the United States senate in 1903; a rumor which would seem to be well authenticated by the above-quoted comments of "the original McKinley organ of the west."

Doubtless Senator Foraker will lie awake nights, consulting with Bushnell, Kurtz and McKisson as to ways and means to elect Nash governor, and thereby strengthen the hold of Hanna, Harmony & Co. upon the Ohio republican machinery.—Albany Argus.

HANNA'S TALK OF SPIES.

The Republican Boss Makes a Defense of the Administration Which Arouses Suspicion.

"We commend the president for the judicious modifications of the civil service rules recently promulgated," says Mark Hanna in his Ohio platform.

In an interview for publication Mr. Hanna stands by the platform and the order. He attempts to justify the latter by saying that when President Cleveland was about to go out he issued an order which had the effect of giving permanent jobs to a lot of democrats in positions where they could act as "spies" upon the republican administration. He says that the present republican administration is responsible to the people for its conduct of public affairs, and it cannot justly be held responsible if it is surrounded by "democratic spies." Therefore, the president is to be commended for his "judicious" order.

Of course Mr. Hanna does not expect any intelligent man to accept this statement as a sufficient justification for turning over 10,000 places in the public service to spoilsmen. An administration has no business to have any secrets in any branches of the service affected by this order. If there is any use for the services of spies then it is because something is wrong which ought to be exposed. If anything is wrong the presence of men in the service who will expose it is for the public good.

Mr. Hanna's talk about spies implies that things are done which ought not to be done. It implies that there are things which the party bosses wish to keep secret when there should be no secrets and everything should be open to the public. It implies a purpose on the part of the republican bosses to convert the public service into a party machine—to pervert and degrade it to the accomplishment of merely party ends.

Any spying which will tend to prevent such degradation of the public service is a very desirable thing. But Mr. Hanna and his fellow bosses are not worried about spies. We hear nothing about spies in the British civil service, where the merit system is more extended and more rigorously applied than it ever has been here. The simple truth is that the spoilsmen want the spoils, and their talk about spies is the best excuse they can think of for seizing what they want.—Chicago Chronicle.

The Philippines Are Costly.

The war in the Philippines has cost a heavy loss in killed and wounded, saying nothing of sickness. There have been dispatched to the islands from first to last over 40,000 troops, men and officers, and so far not over 1,000 of these have returned to this country. The cost of the military occupation is estimated at $3,000,000 a month, and in a year will nearly equal the entire interest charge of the United States debt. The net result is that we control just the small amount of territory on which our troops stand, and yesterday a severe engagement by our military and naval forces was brought on by an insurgent "threatened attack in strong force on Manila." The facts are unpleasant, but it is wiser to face them boldly and shape future action accordingly than to be lulled into a false security by optimistic and "edited" official dispatches.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

HAVEMEYER AND TRUSTS.

The Sugar Magnate Takes a Shy at Protection—Every Trust Save His Own.

H. O. Havemeyer's arraignment of the trusts and his condemnation of discriminating tariff laws will meet with cordial approval by the masses who have been plundered by both these agencies and robbed in the name of "enterprise" and law. But his view is too circumscribed when he says:

"I repeat that all this agitation against trusts is merely the business machinery employed to take from the public what the government in its tariff laws says it is proper and suitable they should have. It is the government, through its tariff laws, which plunders the people, and the trusts, etc., are merely the machinery for doing it."

Some trusts, like the Stannrd Oil and railroad combines, exist independently of tariff laws, and their destruction calls for remedial legislation along other lines than the tariff. The interstate commerce laws, if enforced, would afford partial but quite substantial relief. But the republican party is bound in chains of adamant to the wheels of plutocracy, and therefore the attorney general of the United States has been instructed by his superiors not to act to the financial loss of those corruptive, destructive aggregations of capital which dominated and caused the election of his political master.

Very selfishly, but illogically, Mr. Havemeyer pleads for an increased tariff duty on refined sugar. He says:

"The rate of protection on sugar is an eighth of a cent per pound, which is about three and one-half per cent. ad valorem. * * * The least it should have is eight per cent. * * * The sugar refining industry of this country, no matter what form its organization, is entitled to adequate protection, if any industry is. There are at least 100,000 people dependent on it."

Yes, and there are over 75,000,000 people compelled by government robbery to swell the enormous profits of the sugar trust. One-eighth of a cent per pound seems to be a trifling matter, but when it is considered that the output of the sugar trust is approximately 10,000,000 pounds daily, we find that the people are robbed by this same one-eighth of a cent per pound of over $12,000 every day in the year.

It is surprisingly refreshing to be informed that the "trusts are under no obligation to the states which created them, but, on the contrary, the states are the beneficiaries of the condescending trusts!"

After informing an anxious world that trusts are the logical results of discriminative laws, Mr. Havemeyer gravely says:

"In these days there are two forms, and two only, of monopoly. One, that which results from a patent and copyrights. It is universally recognized that this is in the interest, not against the interest of the public. The other, that which comes from unfair tariff discrimination. * * * Tariff for the purpose of equalizing against foreign bounties * * * does not need to be justified."

Oh, no! Tariff that favors the sugar trust is beneficent, but all other kinds are robbery, according to Mr. Havemeyer.

Is it not about time that the people were done with "expert" testimony by those who confess they are plunderers and robbers? H. O. Havemeyer stands before the world to-day self-convicted of conducting a legalized robbing and plundering machine—a trust. His parting advice is for the farmers to organize a trust for their own protection.

With his assertions that there are trusts and there are not trusts, Mr. Havemeyer has shown how trusts blind those who conduct them and sweep them and theirs away. Let the people come by their own.—Chicago Democrat.

COMMENTS OF THE PRESS.

—McKinley is about as good a man for the democrats to defeat as the republicans can put up.—St. Louis Republic.

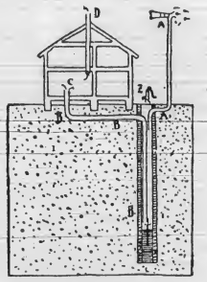
—If the president can mention the name of a republican who will have to walk the plank under his civil service order the country would like to have him do it.—Kansas City Times.

—The intention of the republican members of the finance committee to hold their conference in New York behind closed doors is only another suggestion of how little there will be for the public in the entire currency reform programme of the administration.—Detroit Free Press.

—The Kansas City Journal is borrowing trouble "if anything bad happens to this country while Mark Hanna is in Europe." Doubtless, however, Mark has left full instruction covering all contingencies likely to arise. Besides, "God reigns, and the republican party still lives."—Albany Argus.

—It is questionable which are louder, the rejoicings of republican spoilsmen over the destruction of the civil service system or the protestations of republican hypocrites that the system has really been strengthened by breaking it to pieces. You cannot find a republican "hustler" who is not immensely pleased with the order, but they do not make much more showing than men like Secretary Gage who continue to assert that there has been "no letting down of the bars."—Indianapolis Sentinel.

—The president himself must by this time see that an imperial policy is a horrible mistake. He must realize that war for the subjugation of an unwilling people, to drag into the United States a population unfitted for any of the duties of citizenship under a highly organized government, has no logical justification. The president knows, for he so declared in his Boston speech, that imperial conquest is "contrary to the spirit of American institutions." Knowing that, why does he not rescue the American army from the perils of a hostile climate by ordering a cessation of the slaughter of a people who ask for nothing more than an opportunity to administer their own affairs?—Pittsburgh Dispatch.

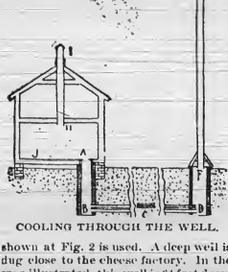


AGRICULTURAL HINTS

EARTH FOR COOLING.

Prof. F. H. King Gives Some Facts About the Refrigerating Qualities of the Soil.

Prof. King, in Bulletin No. 70 of the Wisconsin experiment station, shows how the cheesemakers of Wisconsin make use of the cold part of the soil in cheesemaking. The object is to prepare a cooling room where the cheese can be kept at a fairly low and even temperature without the great expense of ice or artificial cooling.



The plan is, in brief, to force air through the ground at a depth of 12 or 15 feet, so that it will be thoroughly cooled in passing through the pipes. Briefly described, the two pictures show how this plan is operated. The long tube shown at Fig. 1 carries at its top a wide opening (F) and a wide vane (G). The wind vane acts with the wind so as to hold the opening (F) constantly against it. A shows the inlet to the cooling room; B is the end of the duct or air pipes, and is a bricked-up hole below the curing room. C shows the cross section, showing how a number of pipes are used to carry the air. E is the bricked-up entrance under the funnel; F is the funnel with a mouth 36 inches wide; J is the cooling room, and H I the ventilator for letting out the air.

SUB-EARTH DUCT FOR CHEESE FACTORY.

In this case the air is carried about 100 feet under ground, but in some cases it is not convenient to carry the air so far. In such places, the device shown at Fig. 2 is used. A deep well is dug close to the cheese factory. In the case illustrated, this well is 64 feet deep. The pipe through which the air enters is ten inches in diameter, and reaches just about to the top of the factory. It comes down into the well as is shown in the picture, the well being thoroughly covered so that the air cannot escape through the top. The air is forced down near the cold water, and up again through the pipe B into the cooling-room. Prof. King, in his bulletin, gives an account of a number of such devices, and gives some very interesting conclusions as a result of his investigation. This system of sub-earth ducts seems to be a popular one in Wisconsin, and where properly handled, it seems to be a valuable and economical way of reducing the temperature. In some cases, the temperature of the cooling-room is reduced from eight to twelve degrees by the use of this duct.

COOLING THROUGH THE WELL.

TIMELY DAIRY NOTES.

The product will be much better if two or more cows are fresh every month.

Do not allow the bull to run with the herd in the pasture. Arrange a yard or pasture that can be made secure by a heavy, high fence.

Fit the windows with wire netting, and put screen doors on the inner jambs, so that the outer doors may be left open during the hot weather.

Arrange to have the different members of the herd freshen at different times of the year, so that the milk supply will be pretty even during the whole year.

Kind treatment and pleasant surroundings have a great influence upon the quantity and quality of the milk, provided the feed is sufficient for the requirements of the animal.

A reader asks how to remodel the udder of a cow that is badly misshapen. It is practically impossible without a long and expensive operation that finally might not prove successful.

Keep salt constantly in a water-tight box in the barnyard to insure the best condition of the stock. Leave this box out under the open sky and note the pleasure with which the cattle drink up the salty water on rainy days.—Farm Journal.

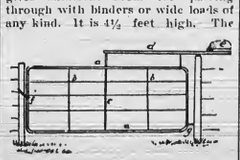
SOME ROAD FIGURES.

Compiled by John M. Stahl, Editor and Secretary of the Farmers' National Congress.

John M. Stahl, editor of the Farmers' Call and secretary of the Farmers' National congress, has investigated the cost of wagon transportation in the United States, and the savings that would be effected by good roads. His investigations were made in the fall of 1891, and were probably the first inquiries into the subject ever conducted on a large scale. As to the results of these inquiries Mr. Stahl writes:

"I could find no previous effort that gave me any real aid; there were guesses in abundance, but only guesses. The reports of the interstate commerce commission and of the department of agriculture furnished a basis from which I could work, as well as the bulletins then being issued by the census office covering the railroad, lake and river transportation of the United States and giving, in detail, the amount of freight of each class. From the various statistics contained in these reports and estimates based thereon, I was forced to the conclusion that the annual cost of wagon transportation of the country was $900,000,000, and that if all the road improvements were made that could be made profitably, the annual saving in wagon transportation would be $500,000,000. These figures were so large, so astounding, in fact, that I held them for some months, verifying them as best I could before I made them public. Convinced that they were substantially correct, I used them in an address at the meeting that organized the Illinois Highway Improvement association, March 30, 1892. That address was published and widely circulated by the League of American Wheelmen. I used these figures in an article in Current Topics for March, 1892, entitled, 'How to Save Five Hundred Millions a Year.' The figures were at once stoutly disputed, but they have never been successfully assailed. They have often been quoted in good roads meetings and publications, and have been frequently verified, notably by the United States office of road inquiry. I made the same statements before the Farmers' National congress in the fall of 1892, at Lincoln, Nebraska. At that meeting the good roads resolution introduced by me was debated more than all other resolutions put together, but was finally adopted by a good majority. This was the first time such resolutions were adopted by such a representative agricultural body. The congress has given its hearty support to the good roads movement ever since, and is favorably disposed to state aid—the only way in which good roads can be equitably paid for."

WIDE TIRES BEST.



They Possess Many Advantages Which Should Make Their Introduction Popular.

A few years ago a number of people in this district, says a Canadian writer in the Advocate, got their old narrow-tired wagons cut down and three-inch tires put on, making a very nice farm wagon, but now there is getting to be a lot of 2½-inch tires, and these make a track that the three-inch tire just wedges into and in the spring and fall when the roads are freezing and thawing it makes the three-inch wagons go very badly. I wish you would point out the selfishness of getting the 2½-inch tires. I believe it is to a great extent nothing but selfishness and blind indifference and in some cases mulish ignorance. I have proven by my own experience, conclusively to my own satisfaction, that a three-inch tire runs easier than a two-inch on our roads most of the time and very much better on the farm. We drew some stone to town last summer in June. My man who did the teaming was in favor of the narrow two-inch tire wagon, but we used the three-inch for a week, and then he took a load on the two-inch wagon. We loaded about 4,000 to 5,000 pounds, but he said he could draw 5,500 pounds on the three-inch tires as easily as 4,000 pounds on the two-inch tire. I am in favor of four-inch tires on our gravel roads, and if we cannot get the wide tires any other way, we will have to try to educate the people to them.

A GOOD FARM GATE.

Works Splendidly and Does Not Call for a Burdensome Expenditure of Money.

The gate shown in the accompanying illustration is made of three-fourth inch gas pipe, a a. One inch might be better. The gate is 15 feet wide, which gives sufficient room for passing through with binders or wide loads of any kind. It is 4½ feet high. The horizontal crosspieces of the gate are made of any wire which may be at hand. Two wooden stays, b b, are placed five feet from each end of the gate. The method of hanging the gate is shown in the sketch, the particular feature being the weight, c. This must be just heavy enough to almost, but not quite, balance. The post at the rear must be of wood with an iron pin at the top for supporting the gate, or can be of iron. The gate hangs from the top pole, d, on which rests the weight and from the lower corner, g. The forward end of the lunger or pole is attached to the gate by means of strong wire, e, which extends from the lower crosspiece up through the gate. The latch is at f.—Orange Judd Farmer.

HANDY FARM GATE.

TO GIRLS ABOUT TO MARRY.

A man doesn't want to be asked his reasons for everything he does. Nine times out of ten he doesn't know why they are himself.

Don't try to ape your rich neighbors, and nag your husband for the money he cannot afford to give you. Have the courage and independence to accept your life as you find it, and make the most of it.

No one ever realizes her most brilliant expectations of happiness. You will never be quite so happy as you expected to be, but you must not grieve over that. Take the goods the gods provide, and be thankful.

The average man expects a good deal of his wife. He wants her to stay at home when he is out. He doesn't know why; neither does she, but it is so. He wants her to be there when he comes home. It doesn't seem right if she is not.

Don't go to standing on your dignity with your husband, for it doesn't pay. Your husband is a man, and men have many and varied peculiarities which are totally incomprehensible to women. Do not try to understand them, for you cannot, and that is all there is about it.

If you are going to be married make up your mind that you will be patient through the first two or three years while you are getting used to each other. This is the crucial period in married life, and if it is passed in safety it is generally fairly plain sailing afterward.

Don't think your husband has ceased to love you if he should go to the office sometimes without any little sentimental scene in the hall, such as you always had on occasions of parting in your courtship days. A man cannot live up to this sort of thing very long. It is too much of a strain on his memory.

If your husband earns a good living do not go from home to earn some money for yourself. The man is the natural provider for his family, and it is better that he should remain so. He will respect himself more, and you will respect him more. Keep the house, make home pleasant, and do the best you can with the means at your command.—N. Y. Weekly.

ON AND OFF THE STAGE.

Camille D'Arville has gone into vaudeville and will make $50,000 a year—as much as President McKinley receives from the nation.

In Austrian theaters no one is permitted to appear on the stage in a uniform bearing any resemblance to those used in the army of that country.

In some comments on the performance of "Hamlet" at an Albany theater a local critic, with the aid of a careless compositor, spoke of the hero as "the melancholy Dave."

Higgle—"Which of the actors in the play impressed you most favorably?" Bloozin—"Winderly." Higgle—"Why?" Bloozin—"He gave me two tickets for the show."—Roxbury Gazette.

"Wilkins said he acted the part of Hamlet last night as well as if Hamlet had been there acting it himself." "I believe him." "You do?" "Yes, there wasn't a bit of life in him."—Chicago Daily News.

The epidemic of Dumas' popular work dramatized had struck the town, and no less than three companies were producing it. "Have you seen the 'Three Musketeers'?" asked one citizen of another. "Oh, yes," was the reply, "I've seen all nine of them!"—Yonkers Statesman.

FOR OUR BOYS TO REMEMBER.

There is lots more courage in being whipped by a larger boy than yourself in a good cause than there is in whipping a little fellow. It marks the difference between a boy and a bully.

Don't kick your dog because you know he will forgive you. A boy that takes a mean advantage of a dog's good nature is never the kind of a fellow to take on a camping trip.

The real hunter or sportsman always treats a gun as if it were loaded, even if he knows to the contrary. It's the boy who never had a gun in the woods that plays with it recklessly or points an unloaded gun at anyone.

THE MARKETS.

	CINCINNATI, June 20.
LIVE STOCK—Cattle, common	$ 3 40	@ $ 4 15
Select shippers	4 90	@ 5 00
CALVES—Fair to good light	6 50	@ 7 25
HOGS—Common and heavy	3 10	@ 3 60
Mixed packers	3 85	@ 3 90
Light shippers	3 85	@ 4 00
SHEEP—Good	3 90	@ 4 75
LAMBS—Spring	6 50	@ 7 25
FLOUR—Winter patent	3 50	@ 3 70
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 red		@ .73
No. 3 red		@ .71
Corn—No. 2 mixed		@ .35½
Oats—No. 2		@ .27½
Rye—No. 2		@ .65
HAY—Prime to choice		@ 11 25
PROVISIONS—Mess pork		@ 9 75
Lard		@ 4 85
BUTTER—Choice dairy		@ 11
Prime to choice creamery		@ 21
APPLES—Choice to fancy	3 00	@ 3 50
POTATOES—New, per ½ bbl	75	@ 90
CHICAGO.
FLOUR—Winter patent	3 65	@ 3 75
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 red		@ .74
No. 3 Chicago Spring		@ .72½
CORN—No. 2		@ .34½
OATS—No. 2		@ .30½
PORK—Mess	7 50	@ 8 20
LARD—Steam	4 92½	@ 5 02½
NEW YORK.
FLOUR—Winter patent	3 90	@ 4 10
WHEAT—No. 2 red		@ .81½
CORN—No. 2 mixed		@ .40½
RYE—		@ .62½
OATS—Mixed		@ .31
PORK—New mess	8 75	@ 9 00
LARD—Western		@ 5 15
BALTIMORE.
FLOUR—Family	3 50	@ 3 50
GRAIN—Wheat, No. 2 red	.74½	@ .75½
Southern	.70	@ .73
Corn—Mixed	.34½	@ .34½
Oats—No. 2 white	.32	@ .32½
Rye—No. 2 western		@ .61
CATTLE—First quality	4 75	@ 4 81
HOGS—Western	4 00	@ 4 15
INDIANAPOLIS.
GRAIN—Wheat, No. 2 red		@ .74
Corn—No. 2 mixed		@ .34½
Oats—No. 2 mixed		@ .26
LOUISVILLE.
FLOUR—Winter patent	3 75	@ 4 00
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 red		@ .72
Corn—Mixed		@ .36½
Oats—Mixed		@ .27½
PORK—Mess		@ 8 50
LARD—Steam		@ 5 75

SHE GOT IT.

But It Took the Bystanders to See the Humor of the Situation.

A lot of people were present at an auction sale of Japanese goods the other day.

"How much am I bid for this exquisite vase?" asked the auctioneer, holding it above his head.

"One dollar," responded an elderly lady, sitting in one of the front seats.

"That's a shame," cried the man with the hammer. "This vase, as a work of art, is worth four times the sum. Why, look at it. Will an intelligent audience allow such a sacrifice?"

"A dollar and a quarter," came in the same woman's voice.

"Well, well, well! Can't you see that this is a treasure, and you stand here and allow it to be given away for such a paltry sum?"

"A dollar and a half." Again it was the same bidder speaking.

"A dollar and a half! The very idea!" ejaculated the auctioneer. "I never saw the like. Come, good people, what is the meaning of this? One of the mikado's special designs slighted in such a manner! It is a reflection on our taste."

"A dollar seventy-five," said the solitary bidder.

"I cannot let it go for that," was the man's reply. "It is too costly, too precious, and too rare in pattern. Wake up, or I'll put it back in the box."

"Two dollars," the woman said.

"Well, it doesn't seem as if I can get any more, so here goes. Two dollars—once, twice, three times! Sold to a lady there at that shameful figure."

The lady stepped up, paid for and received her vase, and departed, apparently without noticing the smiles of the audience.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

GREAT LEGAL VICTORY.

Value of an Honored Trade Name Upheld by the United States Circuit Court.

The California Fig Syrup Co., of San Francisco, has just won a legal victory which is of utmost public interest, as it establishes judicially a fact long recognized ethically that the name or the title of an article is valuable property, entitled to the same protection as chattels or commercial paper. The company mentioned manufactures an excellent laxative which has been extensively advertised and acquired a valuable reputation under the name "Syrup of Figs," or "Fig Syrup." Trading on the reputation of this remedy other manufacturing concerns applied the same name to laxative medicines made by them. The California Fig Syrup Co. took the matter in the United States courts and obtained a permanent injunction, of which the following is the text:

"It is thereupon ordered, adjudged and decreed, that the injunction and restraining order heretofore made herein be continued until final decree herein, and to that end that an injunction be issued as prayed for in the bill of complaint herein, strictly commanding and enjoining the defendants, Clinton E. Worden & Company, a corporation, J. A. Bright, T. F. Bacon, E. Little, C. J. Schmeis and Lucius Little, and each and all of them, their and each and all of their agents, employees, workmen, servants, attorneys and counselors, from making, using or selling any liquid laxative medicine, marked with the name 'Syrup of Figs,' or 'Fig Syrup,' or any colorable imitation of the same; from making, using or selling any laxative medicine put up in boxes, wrappers or cartons, having on the same the name 'Syrup of Figs,' or 'Fig Syrup,' or any colorable imitation of the same; from making, using or selling any liquid laxative medicine put up in boxes, wrappers or cartons, so as to be like the cartons, wrappers or boxes used by complainant in connection with the liquid laxative medicine made by it, or so as to be a colorable imitation of the cartons marked Exhibit A, and filed in this case, being a carton, box or wrapper used by complainant for its liquid laxative medicine, marked and named 'Syrup of Figs,' or 'Fig Syrup;' from making, using or selling any box, wrapper or carton of a like shape or case for a liquid laxative medicine, bearing upon it the figure of a branch of a fig tree with leaves and fruit, and surrounded by the words in a circle 'San Francisco Syrup of Figs Company, San Francisco, Cal.,' or any similar words or figures, or any colorable imitation of such a symbol or mark, or from making use of, in any way, in connection with a liquid laxative medicine the name 'Syrup of Figs Co.,' or from using any name whereof the words 'Fig Syrup Co.,' or 'Syrup of Figs Co.' form a part as a business name of a company, or concern, or corporation engaged in the business of making and selling a laxative medicine."

This decision is of far-reaching importance to all manufacturers whose products bear a recognized title, as well as a protection to the public whose confidence naturally rests in a large measure upon the name of the goods it buys.

He Learned How.

"A man in Jo Daviess county sent two dollars to New York for the purpose of finding out 'how to make a hundred dollars a day.'"

"And did he find out?"

"Yes. He received a letter containing a slip on which these words were printed: 'Get a job in a mint.'"—Chicago Times-Herald.

Confession of a Millionaire.

A millionaire confessed the secret of his success in two words—hard work. He said he put in the best part of his life in gaining dollars and losing health, and now he was putting in the other half in spending dollars to get back health. Nothing equals Hostetter's Stomach Bitters for restoring health to the overtired body and brain. It gets at the starting point—the stomach—and overcomes nervousness, sleeplessness, dyspepsia and indigestion.

Betrayed Himself.

Nell—Did you meet Miss Gotrox's fiancee? Belle—Yes; he's no Italian count. "How do you know?" "He shakes your hand around in a circle as if you were an organ."—Philadelphia Record.

Do Your Feet Ache and Burn?

Shake into your shoes, Allen's Foot-Ease, a powder for the feet. It makes tight or New Shoes feel Easy. Cures Corns, Bunions, Swollen, Hot, Callous, Sore, and Sweating Feet. All Druggists and Shoe Stores sell it, 25c. Sample sent FREE. Address, Allen S. Olmsted, Le Roy, N. Y.

Helps Trade.

Whenever a young wife proposes to bake her own bread in order to save five cents a week, the man who has put on the market an infallible cure for dyspepsia smiles like a cat that has just eaten the canary.—Nauvoo Rustler.

The Best Prescription for Chills, and Fever is a bottle of GROVE'S TASTELESS CHILL TONIC. It is simply iron and quinine in a tasteless form. No cure—no pay. Price, 50c.

His Way.

Ikenstein—Vat vould you do oaf Fortune vas to knoog at your door?

Grabbenheimer—Pull her in undt sell her scmedings!—Puck.

Fourth of July on the C. H. & D. Ry.

Half rate tickets will be sold to all points on the C. H. & D. Ry. for the Fourth of July. Tickets will be good going July 3 and 4, and good returning up till July 5 inclusive.

In the New West.

In a few years the people out west will be engaged in lynching the automobile thieves. —Washington Post.

To Cure a Cold in One Day

Take Laxative Bromo Quinine Tablets. All druggists refund money if it fails to cure. 25c.

Hicks—"Does your wife ever ask you for money?" Wicks—"Never." Hicks—"She must be a wonder." Wicks—"But she frequently tells me to give her some."—Boston Transcript.

Don't be bulldozed by manufacturers of old fashioned dyes, into believing that it requires a special dye for wool and a special dye for cotton. They want to sell you two packages when one would do, that is, if that one is Putnam Fadeless Dyes. 10c per package.

It's a good memory that sometimes admits of discreet forgetfulness. — Chicago Daily News.

For Whooping Cough Piso's Cure is a successful remedy.—M. P. Dieter, 67 Throop Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y., Nov. 14, '94.

"Does Col. Blood see double?" "Shouldn't wonder. He drinks enough for two."—Town Topics.

Hall's Catarrh Cure

Is a Constitutional Cure. Price, 75c.

Prairie chickens are game to the last.—Golden Days.

WINCHESTER GUN CATALOGUE FREE.

Send your name and address on a postal, and we will send you our 156-page illustrated catalogue free.

WINCHESTER REPEATING ARMS CO.
176 Winchester Avenue, New Haven, Conn.

Did you ever run across an old letter? Ink all faded out. Couldn't have been

CARTER'S INK
—IT DOESN'T FADE.

Costs you no more than poor ink. Might as well have the best.

CASTORIA
For Infants and Children

Bears the Signature Of Chas. H. Fletcher. In Use For Over Thirty Years

THE CENTAUR COMPANY, 77 MURRAY STREET, NEW YORK CITY.

THE POT CALLED THE KETTLE BLACK BECAUSE THE HOUSEWIFE DIDN'T USE
SAPOLIO

DR. MOFFETT'S TEETHINA
TEETHING POWDERS
Aids Digestion, Regulates the Bowels, Makes Teething Easy. TEETHINA Relieves the Bowel Troubles of Children of Any Age.
Costs Only 25 Cents. Ask Your Druggist for It.
If not kept by druggists mail 25 cents to C. J. MOFFETT, M. D., ST. LOUIS, MO.

FIFTY YEARS OLD
Why let your neighbors know it?
And why give them a chance to guess you are even five or ten years more?
Better give them good reasons for guessing the other way. It is very easy; for nothing tells of age so quickly as gray hair.
Ayer's Hair Vigor
is a youth-renewer.
It hides the age under a luxuriant growth of hair the color of youth.
It never fails to restore color to gray hair. It will stop the hair from coming out also.
It feeds the hair bulbs. Thin hair becomes thick hair, and short hair becomes long hair.
It cleanses the scalp; removes all dandruff, and prevents its formation.
We have a book on the Hair which we will gladly send you.
If you do not obtain all the benefits you expected from the use of the Vigor, write the doctor about it. Probably there is some difficulty with your general system which may be easily removed. Address,
Dr. J. C. Ayer, Lowell, Mass.

Ranches, Mines and Orchards
Are the basis of productive wealth in
New Mexico, Arizona, California
Cattle and sheep on the plains. Gold, silver, copper, iron and coal in the mountains. Luscious fruits and golden grains in the valleys. Abundant sunshine and pure air everywhere. A place to Make Money In.
Write for free pamphlets and information about homeseekers' excursion rates.
Address General Passenger Office,
The Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Railway,
CHICAGO.

GOOD ROLLERS
The Buckie Printers' Roller Company
MANUFACTURERS OF
Printers' Rollers and Composition
421 and 423 DEARBORN ST., CHICAGO.
With enlarged quarters, modern machinery and new management we are prepared to fill orders promptly. All rollers guaranteed round, smooth and true, and absolutely free from pin holes.
UNEXCELLED for HALF-TONE or other fine work.....
With 27 years' experience, fair prices and liberal terms, we ask your patronage and guarantee to satisfy you. Remember to ship us or write for terms mentioning this advertisement.

A Natural Black is Produced by Buckingham's Dye for the Whiskers.
50 cts. of druggists or R. P. Hall & Co., Nashua, N.H.

READERS OF THIS PAPER DESIRING TO BUY ANYTHING ADVERTISED IN ITS COLUMNS SHOULD INSIST UPON HAVING WHAT THEY ASK FOR, REFUSING ALL SUBSTITUTES OR IMITATIONS.

EDUCATIONAL.
INDIANA UNIVERSITY Seventy-one members of the Faculty. Two hundred and thirty-seven graduate and under graduate courses. Nineteen departments. One thousand and fifty students. Every county in Indiana represented. For catalogue, address, THE REGISTRAR, BLOOMINGTON, IND. MENTION THIS PAPER.

WHEN WRITING TO ADVERTISERS please state that you saw the Advertisement in this paper.

Pith of the Press.

If we are to have army changes, let's begin at the top. Bounce Alger —Boston Herald.

Give Hanna credit for one thing —he is frank, if a trifle brutal, in politics.—Ft. Worth Texas Register.

The Kohlsaat-Foraker ausgleich is about as lively as a Hungarian rhapsody.—Memphis Commercial Appeal.

In other words, Governor Pingree will voluntarily retire from politics when Secretary Alger resigns.—Milwaukee Sentinel.

If, as Mr. Havemeyer asserts, the tariff is the mother of trusts, New Jersey comes in as the midwife.—Washington Post.

Lieutenant Hodgson's assortment of explanations bids fair to rival Jim Corbett's stock of excuses for his licking.—Washington Post.

Senator Allison handles the trust question as deftly, daintily and delicately as he does all other great public questions.—Minneapolis Times.

President McKinley has again changed his mind in regard to calling for volunteers to re-enforce our troops in the Philippines.—Boston Herald.

The Kentucky situation is a very ticklish one for Joe Blackburn. The factionists are rocking the boat in a most reckless manner.—Washington Post.

Mr. McKinley's idea is that it is better to have the Manila news censored before it is sent than censured after it arrives.—New York Evening World.

According to the views of Mr. Foraker, the belligerent Mr. Kohlsaat has been playing what the profession terms "dirty ball."—Washington Post.

Robert P. Porter, who was junketing in many lands at the expense of the McKinley Administration has just returned from Europe.—N. Y. Journal.

Mr. Quay forgot his carbuncle long enough to go to the primaries and take a few swift jabs at Mr. Wanamaker's solar plexus.—Omaha World-Herald.

The only positive point above President McKinley's Administration, paradoxical as the statement may seem, is of a negative character—Boston Herald.

Senator Hanna would have it appear that he is against the trusts, but he doesn't attempt to deny that he is a friend of the "mother" of them.—Toledo News.

Mr. Sampson and Mr. Schley lately display a great deal of discreet skill in keeping to the background in the Sampson-Schley controversy.—Washington Star.

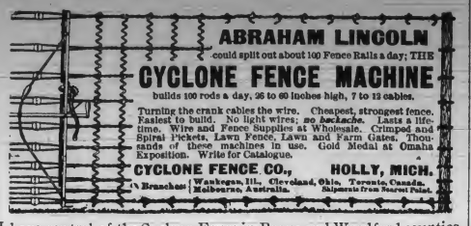
Mr. Dick, the gentleman with the rapidfire check book, is to manage the campaign for the Ohio Republicans. Mr. Dick is a great range finder.—Washington Post.

Roosevelt has no more chance to be President than Hobson has. He has done for himself as thoroughly as the hero of the Merrimac and Long Beach.—N. Y. Journal.

Editor Kohlsaat is proceeding on the theory that he has swatted Mr. Foraker to a standstill. We fear the Chicago editor doesn't understand his man.—Washington Post.

The conclusion is reached that if, as Havemyer says, the protective tariff is the mother of all trusts, the Republican party must be the father of them.—Defiance (Ohio) News.

Are McKinley and Alger afraid that General Miles would end that trouble in the Philippines and get some credit for himself? If not, why is he not sent out there?—Atlanta Constitution.



If the Chicago Times-Herald keeps on lambasting Mr. Foraker we may in time learn a whole lot about Republican machine management in Ohio politics.—Omaha World-Herald.

However, we do not entirely agree with the Peoria Herald that the great rush of Americans to Europe this season is inspired by a mad desire to get away from Secretary Alger.—Chicago Tribune.

By turning down Attorney General Monett for renomination the Ohio Republicans gave notice to the country that all declarations against trusts found in Republican platforms are to be taken in a Pickwickian sense.—Minneapolis Times.

The re-election of Mr. McKinley would be about the same to the trusts as finding $5,000,000,000. In view of these facts it would be an evidence of idiocy to believe that the Republican party intends to put any sort of a restraining hand upon the trusts.—Kansas City Times.

It is childish to complain of "treachery" or even of "savagery" on the part of the Filipinos. That is the nature of the Asiatic mongrels. When Mr. McKinley set about the subjugation of a "Malay pandemonium" he ought to have known that he was not going to have a Sunday school picnic, or even civilized war.—N. Y. World.

ABRAHAM LINCOLN
could split out about 100 Fence Rails a day; THE
CYCLONE FENCE MACHINE
builds 100 rods a day, 26 to 60 inches high, 7 to 13 cables.
Turning the crank cables the wire. Cheapest, strongest fence. Easiest to build. No light wires; no backache. Lasts a lifetime. Wire and Fence Supplies at Wholesale. Crimped and Spiral Pickets. Lawn Fence, Lawn and Farm Gates. Thousands of these machines in use. Gold Medal at Omaha Exposition. Write for Catalogue.
CYCLONE FENCE CO., HOLLY, MICH.
Branches { Waukegan, Ill., Cleveland, Ohio, Toronto, Canada. Melbourne, Australia. Salesmen from Nearest Point.

I have control of the Cyclone Fence in Boone and Woodford counties. I will build the fence or sell machines to farmers that they may build their own fences. It is the cheapest and best fence that can be built.
Address G. CARTER GRADDY, BULLITTSVILLE, KY.

FROM OWEN COUNTY.

[News]

John Sebree, a well-known farmer and tobacco buyer of the county, and later a merchant of this place, was on last Wednesday convicted of counterfeiting in two cases in the Federal court at Frankfort, and was given three years in the penitentiary in each case. Thos. Rudder, of Gratz, was also convicted of counterfeiting and was sentenced to 7 years in the pen. Rudder has served one term for the same offense, and was suspicioned by the government authorities. U. S. Marshall Mike Bowlin went to Gratz and secured sufficient evidence against Sebree, who lived there at the time, to warrant his arrest. Other arrests followed, among which was Rudder, whom it is supposed was at the head of the gang. Everyone was slow to believe that Sebree was guilty, as was always considered a strictly honest man, and was straightforward in all his business relations, and it is believed that he was made the victim of a conspiracy. Mr. Sebree has the sympathy of the entire community. He will be sent to Michigan.

The Methodist church at this place was dedicated last Sunday. Bishop H. C. Morrison, of Atlanta, Ga., preached the dedicatory sermon. An immense crowd was present, and a subscription of $1,200 was raised in a few minutes which fully covered all outstanding debts on the building.

Jos. Kyle has filed suit in the Owen Circuit Court for $5,000 damages against W. W. Cassity for alienating his wife's affection. Both are very prominent parties.

The proposed electric road from Covington to Big Bone is still under consideration. A citizen of Covington writes the following to the Commonwealth:

"The question is asked, how can the taxpayers in Covington construct an electric railway from this city to Hamilton by way of Erlanger on the Ohio river without creating a burden upon their resources?

"The answer can be easily made satisfactory by a numerous class of excellent financiers who are citizens of Kenton and Boone counties. They would construct this road just like other capitalists do to make a success in such matters.

"To make it an enterprise for the people a subscription of $10 each by a hundred or more citizens in the city and along the route could be obtained with which to make preliminary survey as to route, right of way and general estimates of the cost, organization, &c., thus making a good and economical beginning.

"After securing a charter and right of way at a nominal cost, the franchise alone becomes quite an item in support of the limited issue of bonds and stocks necessary to construct a $300,000 electric road for only twenty-two miles.

"Thus far there is no call for a material amount of cash. And just how easy the scheme can be continued to success may be proved by offering all rights to the enterprise at this stage, to the moneyed men of the country and be surprised at the number and bids made for it.

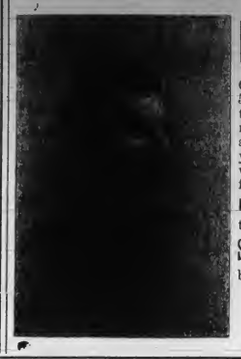
"These capitalists know that such a road would, from its completion, immediately overpay all interest on the borrowed money used in its construction, and therefore would be pleased with the investment. They know it is entirely safe as long as the interest is paid. Now every one must know that if it is constructed with the money obtained from the sale of stock the stockholders will receive the profits which would otherwise go to the bondholders to pay interest, instead of dividends, &c.

"Financially considered, this proposed electric road, for a small enterprise, appears to be the brightest opportunity the citizens of Covington have ever had for the redemption of past delinquencies in building improvements to increase the business of the town.

"The city would thus become more closely associated with the farming element, really our best class of average citizenship, and that throughout an extensive and well improved country.

A splendid enterprise for its projectors—a profitable one for all classes, this achievement would start anew the business life and energy of which this city once boasted, and really place her in the rank to which she properly belongs as the second city of the Commonwealth."

THE convention at Louisville has been a source of much gratification to the Republicans.



IT is now the opinion of some military men in this country that it will not take less than 65,000 additional troops to complete the work this country has on its hands in the Philippines. The $20,000,000 that this country paid for the Philippine will be a very small item of its cost in the matter of money, to say nothing of the American lives it will cost.

Consign your Stock to
Rabenstein, Harris & Conner,
—Live Stock—
COMMISSION MERCHANTS,
COVINGTON STOCK YARDS,
Covington, Ky.,
OR UNION STOCK YARDS,
Cincinnati, Ohio.
When shipping East bill our care privilege selling Central Covington Stock Yards.
We will make it to your advantage and give your stock special personal attention.

Helms' - Barber - Shop,
PETERSBURG, KY.
Hair cut 15c, on Saturday 20c; Shave 10c; Shampoo 15c; Sea Foam 5c; Hair Singe 5c; Beard Trim 5c, other work proportionally as low in price. Ladies' and childrens' work a specialty. ☞All work guaranteed satisfactory or money refunded. Hair Oils, Toules, Perfume, etc., for sale. Thanking all for past favors, I remain, &c.,
EVERETT HELMS, Prop.
LADIES—To the ladies that have not paid us a call, will say, that Thursday is conceded to be their day. Ladies Shampoo 25c; Sea Foam 15c; Bangs trimmed 10c. Hair dressed for special occasions a specialty, at reasonable rates. Courteous treatment is our motto. Give us a call.

Central Covington Stock Yards,
COVINGTON, KY.
Are located so as to offer special inducements to shippers South of the Ohio river in saving them extra expense and time. In addition to the local buyers there will be Eastern and foreign buyers on the market for all kinds of stock. When shipping East, don't fail to consign our care privilege selling which will be of benefit to you.
Central Covington Stock Yards Co.
Commission firms will give prompt attention to consignments.

SIXTH YEAR OF Walton :-: Academy
—OPENS—
First Monday in September.
First-class instruction in all Common School Branches.
Higher Arithmetic, Elementary and Higher Algebra, Book-Keeping, Plain and Solid Geometry, History, Rhetoric and Literature, Physiology, Geography, Physics, Astronomy, Logic and Psychology. Latin includes Cesar, Cicero, Nepos, Virgil. Greek including Beginners, Greek and Xenophon.
Terms:—Tuition and Board in the building, five days in the week, under the care of the teacher, $105.75, for nine months; Board the full week or Music $18.50 additional for the full term.
Mrs. S. H. MYERS, Prin.

DON'T PAY TWO PROFITS!
IF YOU WANT A
Buggy or Carriage

Go direct to the factory and save the 50 or 75 per cent. that agents add to the factory price; get all you can in material and workmanship — put agents commission in the vehicle or your pocket. Come and see us and we will prove to you that your home factory will give you
BETTER WORK for the MONEY
than can be gotten from any agents.
See Our 2500 Mile Dust Proof Axle,
before buying a vehicle. We warrant and stand by all our work.
BRADFORD BROS.,
FLORENCE, KY.

J. T. MARSHALL,
SALESMAN FOR
F. W. KASSEBAUM & SON,
Manufacturers and Dealers in
Granite and Marble Monuments.
GRANT P. O., KENTUCKY.

FRANK HOSSMAN,
Hebron, Ky.,
CARPENTER AND BUILDER,
—Also handles all—
KINDS OF ROOFING,
Which is furnished and put on at the Lowest Prices consistent with good work.
I am prepared for moving buildings.
Your Work is Solicited.

ADDINGTON, No. 27008,
Will make the season at my stable, at $10 to insure a colt to stand up and suck. Addington is a brown, 16 hands high, sired by Dedication, by Young Jim, by Geo Wilkes; 1st dam, C. M. Clay 22; 2d dam by Almont 33.
J. A. RIDDELL, Hebron, Ky.

WHEN IN RISING SUN, INDIANA,
Stop and see

Jno. D. Baxter
—THE—
SADDLE and HARNESS
Man. He keeps a large stock of Saddles, Harness, Collars, Whips, Bridles, Trace Chains, Hames,
In fact everything kept in a first-class Harness Store, and at the Lowest Cash Prices; we buy strictly for cash and our customers benefit by it. Call and be convinced of the fact.
JOHN D. BAXTER,
THE OLD RELIABLE

BUGGIES!

IF YOU WANT A GOOD
BUGGY
To suit you and stand the rough roads and made to order, call on ECKSTEIN NOVELTY CO.,
—AGENTS FOR—
JAMES & MAYER BUGGY COMPANY,
LAWRENCEBURG, IND.

CORNER
Drug Store
Rising Sun, Ind.
Is the place for anything in the Drug Line.
WALL PAPER, PAINTS, WINDOW SHADES, STATIONERY, PERFUMES, FANCY GOODS, &c.
B. F. BUCHANAN,
—DRUGGIST,—
Over thirty year's experience.

FARMERS
Take Notice!
If you want good
Fertilizer
PLEASE GIVE
B. F. ZIMMER
A CALL.
He will try to please you. He has the finest Line of Fertilizer for 1899 he has ever handled. Write for particulars to CONSTANCE, KY.

NOTICE.
J. E. Rouse's Guernsey Bull "Jesson 3002," will be found at his father's this season —fee $1.

DR. A. P. WALTON,
DENTIST,
CINCINNATI,
The Lancaster Building 22 W. 7th, Bet. Vine and Race.

INSURE AT HOME
The Farmers' Mutual Fire
INSURANCE COMPANY,
OF BOONE COUNTY,
Is now completely organized and receiving applications for insurance.
Its Rates are Lower
Than those of any other Company and gives the farmers of Boone County
HITHERTO UNKNOWN ADVANTAGE
In keeping their property insured.
EVERY FARMER IN THE COUNTY should take a policy at once.
E. H. BLANKENBECKER, - President, Florence, Ky.
EDGAR CROPPER, - Vice-President.
OSCAR GAINES, Secretary, Burlington.
J. E. DUNCAN, Treasurer.
EXECUTIVE BOARD—Legrand Gaines, J. W. Conner, John Stephens.
J. E. SMITH, Assessor, - Burlington, Ky.
W. M. ROGERS, Agt. - Walton, Ky.

1899. SEASON 1899.
CRESCENT HILL STOCK FARM.
TIMOTHY BOY, No. 27854
Bay horse, foaled April 3, 1893, bred by D. Bedinger & Son, Richwood, Ky. Sired by Wilkes Boy, 2:24, 1st dam, Alga by Artillery, 2:21½; 2d dam Valdosta by Nutwood, 2:18¾; 3d dam Emma Arterburn (dam of St. Armould, 2:29, and g.-dam of two in 2:30 list) by Mambrino Patchen 58; 4th dam Jenny Johnson (grand-dam of three in 2:30 list) by Sweet Owen, thoroughbred, &c.
Wilkes Boy is one of the best sons of the great Geo. Wilkes, 2:22.
TIMOTHY BOY is one of the best bred horses in the State, is 16¼ hands high and weighs 1,300 lbs. in ordinary condition, a horse of great power, good bone, fine style and action, perfectly sound in every particular. He is a pure gaited trotter and his colts are large with plenty of style and action, the kind that are in demand all the time.
Service fee $10 to insure a live colt, money due when colt is foaled or mare parted with.
THE FINE MAMMOTH JACK,
Nutwood,
Will make the season of 1899 at $8 00 to insure a live colt, money due when colt is foaled or mare parted with.
DESCRIPTION & PEDIGREE.
Nutwood is a dark brown or black with white points, 16 hands high, very heavy bone and well built, large head and ears, heavy body and good action; foaled July 6, 1894, was bred by J. M. Park, Madison county, Ky. Nutwood is by Blackwood, 16½ hands high, one of the best mule and jennet jacks in Kentucky; 1st dam by Griggs' Big Tom, 16 hands high; 3d dam by the Hubbert jack, &c.
TIMOTHY BOY and Nutwood will make the season on Daniel Bedinger's farm on the Richwood & Beaver pike, 3 miles west of Richwood.
☞Pasture and attention furnished mares at $1.50 per month. Care taken to prevent accidents, but no responsibility should any occur.
J. C. BEDINGER, Richwood, Ky.

SEASON 1899.
OAK KNOLL STOCK FARM
UGO!
Foaled 1892, sired by Simmons 2744, (record 2:28,) sire of 75 in 2:30, and 14 in the 2:12 list; by George Wilkes 519, (record 2:22); 1st dam by Almont Boy 4308; 2nd dam by Norman 25; 3d dam by C. M. Clay 18.
UGO is a dark chestnut, 16¼ hands high, weighs 1,150 pounds, a very kind prompt driver, also a good saddler.
Will make the season of 1899, on Thursdays, Fridays and Court days at Burlington, Ky., and the remainder of the time at my farm, one mile west of Utzinger, Ky., at $10 to insure a live colt, money due as soon as colt is foaled.
Care will be taken to prevent accidents, but I will not be responsible should any occur.
SCOTT CHAMBERS.

Executor's Notice.
All persons indebted to the estate of L. B. Stephens, deceased, are hereby notified to come forward and settle same; those having claims against said estate must present them to the undersigned proven according to law.
J. D. FRAZER,
L. D. SHOUSE, Executors.

Subscribe for the Recorder.

D. E. CASTLEMAN,
ATTORNEY - AT - LAW.
BURLINGTON, KY.
Will practice in the Courts of Boone Kenton, Grant and Gallatin. Collections pushed energetically.

G. G. HUGHES,
ATTORNEY AT LAW.
BURLINGTON, KY.
Will practice in all the courts. Prompt attention given to all business entrusted to me.

P. E. CASON,
ATTORNEY - AT - LAW,
BURLINGTON, KY,
Practice in all Courts. Promptness guaranteed.

J. G. TOMLIN,
ATTORNEY - AT - LAW.
WALTON, KENTUCKY.
Will practice in the Courts of Boone, Kenton Grant and Gallatin. Prompt attention given Collections entrusted to him. mch22-93.

W. E. VEST,
County Surveyor,
BURLINGTON, KY.
Is prepared to do all kinds of Surveying. All orders by mail promptly attended to.

J. M. LASSING. N. E. RIDDELL.
LASSING & RIDDELL,
ATTORNEYS AT LAW.
BURLINGTON, KY.
Prompt Attention Given to Collections

S. GAINES,
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW.
BURLINGTON, KY.
Will practice in all the courts, and prompt attention given collections. Office—In residence near post-office.

S. W. ADAMS,
ATTORNEY - AT - LAW,
ERLANGER, KENTUCKY.
Will practice in the courts of Boone and Kenton counties. Collections and general law practice.

W. E. VEST,
Real Estate Agent.
Farms Bought, Sold or Exchanged, Money to Loan on Real Estate, Notes bought, sold & Negotiated.
☞All communications addressed to W. E. VEST, Burlington, Ky.

BOONE CO. DEPOSIT BANK.
(Incorporated 1886.)
CAPITAL $30,000
Surplus and undivided profits, 20,000
—10—
Our facilities enable us to receive on favorable terms accounts of individuals and corporations. Collections promptly remitted for at lowest rates

ERLANGER DEPOSIT BANK.
(INCORPORATED 1893.)
ERLANGER, - - KENTUCKY
CAPITAL PAID IN..... $50,000
SURPLUS,..... $ 3.000
Careful attention given collections and remittances promptly made. Deposit accounts solicited.

Dr. J. L. Adams,

DENTIST,
Walton, Kentucky.
Artificial Dentures, Crown and Bridge Work to represent natural organs.
☞Will be in office at Union every Monday.
Satisfaction - Guaranteed.

JOHN L. VEST,
SURVEYOR,
WALTON, KY.
Is prepared to do all kinds of work south of Burlington, Ky. Prompt attention given to all mail orders.

Take the Recorder, $1.50 a year.

BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

VOL. XXIV. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, JULY 5, 1899. NO. 37.

PREMIUM LIST
OF THE
Fourth Annual Fair
OF THE
North Kentucky Agricultural Association,
To be held on its Grounds, near Florence, Ky.,
August 30 & 31, and September 1 & 2, 1899.

FIRST DAY.

MULES.

	1st.	2d
Best mule colt under 1 year, regardless of sex	$ 5 00	2 00
Best mule colt 1 and under 2 years, regardless of sex	6 00	3 00
Best mule 2 and under 3 years, regardless of sex—second premium by Geo. C. Goode	10 00	5 00
Best pair mules for farm work	15 00	7 00
Best mule any age—$5 of 2nd premium by Hatfield Coal Co	20 00	10 00
Special premium by J. C. Bedinger, on mule colt under 1 year old, the get of the Jack, Mike	10 00
Best Jack, any age	10 00	5 00
Best Jennet, any age	6 00	3 00
Best running-walking horse—1st premium by the Mayhugh Manufacturing Co.; 2nd premium by A. G. Simrall & Co.	10 00	5 00

DRAFT HORSES.

Best colt under 1 year, regardless of sex	6 00	3 00
Best colt 1 and under 2 years, regardless of sex	8 00	4 00
Best colt 2 and under 3 years, regardless of sex—2d premium by J. J. Thomann	10 00	5 00
Best mare 3 and under 4 years—1st premium by the First National Bank of Covington	10 00	5 00
Best gelding 3 and under 4 years	10 00	5 00
Best stallion 3 and under 4 years	10 00	5 00
Best mare 4 years and over	15 00	7 00
Best gelding 4 years and over	15 00	7 00
Best stallion 4 years and over	15 00	7 00
Best stallion, mare or geldiug, regardless of age	25 00	10 00
Best farm team—$10 of this premium is given by Harbeck & Rose, Undertakers, Covington	15 00	7 00
Best model horse, mare or gelding, any age, beauty of form, color, style and attraction to be considered—2nd premium by the Citizens National Bank of Covington	25 00	10 00
Best coach horse, any age or sex—premium by John Allison & Co., Undertakers, Covington	20 00

SHEEP.—SOUTHDOWNS.

Best ram under 1 year old	5 00	3 00
Best ram 1 and under 2 years	5 00	3 00
Best ram 2 years and over—1st premium by E. J. Hickey, Covington	5 00	3 00
Best ewe under 1 year	5 00	3 00
Best ewe 1 and under 2 years,	5 00	3 00
Best ewe 2 years and over—1st premium by Rolfes & Wachs, Covington	5 00	3 00

COTSWOOL.

Best ram under 1 year—1st premium by M. Sable & Sons	5 00	3 00
Best ram, 1 and under 2 years,	5 00	3 00
Best ram, 2 years and over,	5 00	3 00
Best ewe, under 1 year—1st premium by Geo. H. Fleming	5 00	3 00
Best ewe, 1 and under 2 years,	5 00	3 00
Best ewe, 2 years and over—1st premium by J. T. Boulton, Covington	5 00	3 00

HAMPSHIREDOWNS.

Best ram under 1 year—1st premium by M. Sable & Sons	5 00	3 00
Best ram 1 and under 2 years,	5 00	3 00
Best ram 2 years and over	5 00	3 00
Best ewe under 1 year	5 00	3 00
Best ewe 1 and under 2 years	5 00	3 00
Best ewe 2 years and over—1st premium by I. Droge, jr., Covington	5 00	3 00

SHROPSHIREDOWNS.

Best ram under 1 year—1st premium by S. G. Harris,	5 00	3 00
Best ram 1 and under 2 years,	5 00	3 00
Best ram 2 years and over,	5 00	3 00
Best ewe under 1 year,	5 00	3 00
Best ewe 1 and under 2 years—1st premium by Charles Mahlman, Covington,	5 00	3 00
Best ewe 2 years and over,	5 00	3 00

OXFORDDOWNS.

Best ram 2 years and over,	5 00	3 00
Best ewe 2 years and over,	5 00	3 00
Best yearling ram	15 00	10 00
Best yearling ewe	15 00	10 00
Best pen 4 lambs, either sex	15 00	10 00

Note:—The last above three premiums are specials, given by the American Oxford Down Record Association, and all stock competing for these prizes to be bred and owned by the exhibitor in the State of Kentucky; to be registered in the American Oxford Down Record, bear the A. O. D. R. A. Ear Tag, and Certificate of Register, under seal of the Association, presented at the time of exhibition. Where there is but one exhibitor, but one prize will be paid.

All sheep must be shorn on or after April 1st, 1899.

FRUITS.

Best display of apples,	3 00	1 00
Best display of peaches,	3 00	1 00
Best display of pears,	3 00	1 00
Best display of plums,	1 00
Best display of quinces,	1 00
Best display of fruits,	3 00	1 00
Best display of grapes,	3 00	1 00

PANTRY AND DAIRY.

Best display fruit butter, three or more kinds,	2 00
Best display sour pickles, three or more kinds,	2 00
Best display sweet pickles, three or more kinds,	2 00
Best can of peaches,	1 00
Best can of pears,	1 00
Best can of tomatoes,	1 00
Best pound cake,	2 00
Best lady cake,	2 00
Best jelly cake,	2 00
Best layer cake,	2 00
Best fruit cake—premium by J. R. Coppin, Covington,	5 00
Best loaf corn-bread,	1 00
Best hop yeast bread,	1 00
Best salt rising bread,	1 00
Best quart maple molasses,	1 00
Best quart sorghum molasses,	1 00
Best quart apple vinegar,	1 00
Best two pounds comb honey,	1 00
Best quart extracted honey,	1 00
Best display jellies, not less than three kinds—1st premium, Pair Gold Spectacles, for old person, by F. Pieper, Covington; 2d premium, case of Communion Wine, by Grene Parker, Covington,	10 00	6 00
Best display preserves, not less than three kinds—first premium by Fred Rehfuss; 2nd premium, Mahogany Rocker, by Dine Furniture Co., Covington,	10 00	5 00
Best two pounds butter,—premium by J. A. Carroll,	2 50

SECOND DAY.

BEEF CATTLE.

Best bull, 2 years and over—2d premium by Boone County Recorder,	25 00	10 00
Best bull, one and under two years,	15 00	5 00
Best bull calf, under one year,	8 00	4 00
Best cow, 2 years and over—2nd premium by the Erlanger Deposit Bank, Erlanger, Ky.,	25 00	10 00
Best heifer, one and under two,	15 00	5 00
Best heifer. under one year,	8 00	4 00
Best herd, one bull and three or more cows or heifers, to be owned by one party—$10 of second premium by Farmers & Traders National Bank, Covington, Ky.	30 00	15 00
Best fatted bullock, cow or heifer—second premium by C. Hellman,	15 00	5 00
Potato race—free for all (not less that ten to enter) ring immediately after dinner	$5 00	3 00 2 00

SADDLE HORSES.

Best colt under one year,	6 00	3 00
Best colt one and under two years, regardless of sex,	8 00	4 00
Best colt two and under three years, regardless of sex—2d premium by W. H. Schoborg,	10 00	5 00
Best mare three and under four years—first premium by J. H. Mersman, jr., & Co.,	10 00	5 00
Best gelding three and under four years—second premium by Crigler & Crigler,	10 00	5 00
Best stallion, three and under four years—second premium by Swetnam & Carpenter	10 00	5 00
Best mare four years and over—second premium by The Anchor Buggy Co.,	20 00	10 00
Best gelding four years and over,	20 00	10 00
Best stallion, four years and over,	20 00	10 00
Best boy rider between the ages of 10 and 16 years, six to enter,	6 00	4 00
Best stallion, mare or gelding, regardless of age,	$50 00	25 00 10 00

HOGS.—THINRIND.

Best boar, one year and over,	5 00	3 00
Best sow, one year and over,	5 00	3 00
Best pair pigs, six months and under one year,	5 00	3 00
Best pair pigs, under six months,	5 00	3 00

CHESTER WHITES.

Best boar, one year and over,	5 00	3 00
Best boar under 6 months old—premium by Rabenstine, Harris & Conner	5 00
Best sow, one year and over,	5 00	3 00
Best pair pigs, six months old and under one year,	5 00	3 00
Best pair pigs, under six months,	5 00	3 00

POLAND CHINA.

Best boar, one year and over—1st premium Boy's Suit of Clothes by H. F. Blase,	5 00	3 00
Best sow, one year and over,	5 00	3 00
Best pair pigs, six months old and under one year,	5 00	3 00
Best pair pigs, under six months—first premium by Geo. W. Hill & Co.,	5 00	3 00
Best sow and six or more of her pigs, any breed,	10 00	5 00

FLOWERS.

Best display flowers in pots,	5 00	2 00
Best display cut flowers—premium by Early & Daniels,	2 00
Best hand bouquet,	1 00
Best hanging basket,	2 00
Best zephyr flowers,	2 00

ARTIFICIAL FLOWERS.

Best specimen wax flowers,	2 00
Best specimen paper flowers,	2 00
Best specimen feather flowers— Hat or Bonnet by Mrs. A. Apple,	5 00
Best specimen hair flowers,	2 00
Best specimen hammered brass,	2 00

PAINTINGS AND DRAWINGS.

Best specimen crayon drawing—first premium by Theo. Kotzin, $5 Waist or Skirt,	5 00	2 00
Best specimen pen or pencil drawing,	2 00	1 00
Best specimen water color painting,	6 00	3 00
Best specimen oil painting—second premium by Boehmer, Rolfes & Co., Covington,	10 00	5 00

THIRD DAY.

DAIRY CATTLE.

Best bull, two years and over,	15 00	7 00
Best bull, one and under two—second premium by John G. Dolye.	10 00	5 00
Best bull, under one year,	6 00	3 00
Best cow, two years old and over—first premium by H. F. Blase, Suit of Clothes made to measure for gentleman,	15 00	7 00
Best heifer, one and under two years—second premium by Adams' Up-to-date Store,	10 00	5 00
Best heifer, under one year old,	6 00	3 00
Best herd, one bull and three or more cows—first premium by Covington Stock Yards—2d premium by J. Wilder & Co., Vibrator Harrow	20 00	12 00
Best milch and butter cow, any breed—second premium by Florence & Union Turnpike Co.,	20 00	10 00
Best bred Jersey bull and heifer, under two years old, to be showed as a pair—premium by Steffin Bros.	10 00
Best Jersey heifer, 2 and under 3 years old, premium by Chas. Cleveland, a Jersey bull calf, dropped in April, '99 and eligible to register,	25 00
Best couple Cake-walkers (colored), not less than 4 couples to enter—ring immediately after dinner.)	15 00	5 00

HARNESS HORSES.

Note.—All exhibitors of horses must remove boots and other appliances if required by the judge.

Best colt, under one year, regardless of sex,	6 00	3 00
Best colt, one and under two years, regardless of sex,	8 00	4 00
Best colt, two and under three years, regardless of sex—second premium by R. W. Jones,	10 00	5 00
Best mare, three and under four years old,	12 00	6 00
Best gelding, three and under four—$10 of this premium by The John Brenner Brewing Co.,	12 00	6 00
Best stallion, three and under four—$10 of this premium by Covington Coal Company,	12 00	6 00
Best mare, four years and over,	25 00	15 00
Best gelding, four years and over,	25 00	15 00
Best stallion, four years and over,	25 00	15 00
Best mare with two or more colts—second premium by H. Ellerman & Sons,	10 00	5 00
Best pair harness horses, any sex—$12.50 of this premium by the R. Hamilton Grocery Co., Covington,	25 00	15 00
Best stallion, with five or more colts—2d premium by Covington Trust Co	15 00	10 00
Special premium by J. C. Bedinger, on colt under 1 year old, the get of his stallion, Timothy Boy	10 00
Best single roadster, any age or sex—3d premium by X. W. Culbertson	$50 00	25 00 10 00
Fanciest turnout, driver, vehicle, harness and team to be considered, three or more to enter—first premium by Gus Menninger,	10 00	5 00

EMBROIDERY.

Best display linens with silk embroidery, no less than five pieces—first premium by Dan Cohen,	5 00	2 00
Best hand painting on silk, satin or velvet—first premium by A. Bender,	5 00	2 00
Best specimen silk embroidery—1st premium by Andrew Bates & Co., Wholesale Grocers, Cincinnati, Ohio	5 00	2 00
Best specimen linen embroidery,	5 00	2 00
Best specimen worsted embroidery—1st premium by Percy G. Howell,	5 00	2 00
Best specimen cotton embroidery,	5 00	2 00
Best specimen crochet work,	2 00	1 00
Best specimen lace work,	2 00
Best specimen knit lace,	2 00
Best specimen plain hand sewing (new work)	2 00
Best specimen drawn thread work	5 00	2 00
Best specimen silk embroidery on linen (for amateurs)	3 00	1 00
Best specimen Batenburg lace,	3 00	1 00
Best hand made shirt by girl under 15 years old,	2 00
Best ten yards rag carpet, cotton warp,	2 00
Best fancy wool knitting,	2 00
Best plain wool knitting,	2 00
Best plain cotton knitting,	2 00
Best fancy silk knitting,	2 00

QUILTS.

Best silk quilt—first premium, folding bed by W. N. Hind & Co., Cincinnati; 2nd premium, Merchandise, by A. Degginger, Covington,	25 00	5 00
Best worsted quilt—first premium by J. W. Snyder,	5 00	2 00
Best calico quilt—first premium, pair spectacles, by M. C. Motch, of Covington	5 00	2 00
Best knit counterpane,	3 00	2 00

FOURTH DAY.

HORSES.—ALL PURPOSES.

Best colt, under one year, regardless of sex	6 00	3 00
Best colt one and under two years, regardless of sex	8 00	4 00
Best colt, two and under three years—second premium by The Geo. F. Otte Co	10 00	5 00
Best colt, three and under four years, regardless of sex—$12.50 of first premium by Grote, Marschall & Co.	25 00	10 00
Best horse four years and over, regardless of sex—$25 of second premium by the Covington and Lexington Turnpike Co.—3d premium by Reidelin, Lewisburg Brewery	$60 00	30 00 10 00
Best pair match horses, regardless of sex—second premium by Mike Cahill	20 00	10 00
Best lady rider, not less than five to enter—2nd premium English Double Rein Riding Bridle by B. W. Campbell; 3d premium by E. W. Scales,	$15 00	7 00 5 00
Consolation prize, for any horse, age or sex, having been exhibited and not taking a premium, and to show in last ring—$15 of first premium by J. M. Finch—3d premium by J. H. Reinke	$20 00	10 00 5 00

GRAIN.

Best bushel timothy seed,	2 00
Best bushel clover seed,	2 00
Best bushel rye,	2 00
Best bushel oats,	2 00
Best bushel red wheat,	3 00	2 00
Best bushel white corn,	3 00	2 00
Best bushel yellow corn,	3 00	2 00
Best twelve ears sweet corn,	1 00
Best display of grain—first premium, $5 worth of seeds, by J. M. McCullough's Sons,	5 00	3 00
Best ten pounds Burley tobacco, grown by exhibitor—premiums by Farmers' & Shippers Warehouse Co.,	3 00	2 00
Best six stalks of Burley tobacco, crop of 1899—premium by H. Feltman,	5 00

VEGETABLES.

Best half bushel Irish potatoes,	1 00
Best half bushel Sweet potatoes,	1 00
Best half bushel onions,	1 00
Best half bushel turnips,	1 00
Best half bushel beets for table use,	1 00
Best peck tomatoes,	1 00
Best six head cabbage,	1 00
Best display of Vegetables,	$3	2 00 1 00
Bets display of Irish potatoes,	2 00	1 00
Best peck green beans,	1 00
Best peck soup beans—shelled,	1 00
Best three watermelons,	1 00
Best three squashes,	1 00
Best display muskmelons—premium by J. A. Carroll,	2 50
Best six carrots,	1 00
Best six parsnips,	1 00
Best six cucumbers,	1 00
Best twelve radishes,	1 00
Best display peppers,	1 00
Best three pumpkins,	1 00
Best three cantelopes,	1 00
Biggest pumpkin,	1 00

POULTRY.

Best pair Cochins,	2 00
Best pair Leghorns,	2 00
Best pair Wyandotts,	2 00
Best pair Plymouth Rocks,	2 00
Best pair Langshans,	2 00
Best pair Minorcas,	2 00
Best pair Hamburgs,	2 00
Best pair Brahamas,	2 00
Best pair Black Spanish,	2 00
Best pair Games,	2 00
Best pair Bronze Turkeys,	2 00
Best pair Holand Turkeys,	2 00
Best pair Geese,	2 00
Best pair Ducks,	2 00
Best general display of poultry—1st premium J. A. Carroll	5 00	3 00

Governor Teddy is probably doing a little preliminary training for a rear-platform campaign in 1904—Detroit Journal.

What the managers of the Richard Olney boom need at this stage of the proceedings are a modus vivendt and a range finder.—N. Y. Mail and Express.

There will be no objections to General Otis keeping a rigid censorship on that Filipino brass band.—Washington Post.

It is said that Mr. Foraker is weary of some things. It is to be hoped that Mr. Hanna will see nothing personal in the rumor.—Atlanta Constitution.

THE RECORDER.

W. L. RIDDELL, Publisher.

BURLINGTON, : : KENTUCKY.

JULY—1899.

Sun.	Mon.	Tue.	Wed.	Thur.	Fri.	Sat.
....	....	....	....	....	....	1
2	3	4	5	6	7	8
9	10	11	12	13	14	15
16	17	18	19	20	21	22
23	24	25	26	27	28	29
30	31	....	....	....	....	....

THE "ink plant" grows in New Grenada. Its juice can be used for writing without any preparation. At first the writing is red, but in a few hours it becomes black.

FOR students of psychology ants are considered the most interesting of all animals. To a large number of treatises on them a new one has been added by E. Wasmann (Stuttgart), who shows that ants can be taught to give up instinctive actions by showing them a better way.

ALEXANDER DEWITT, who has lived in Poughkeepsie, N. Y., for the past 40 years, practically on the bounty of his friends, is now dead, and it is found he has left a fortune of $40,000. Of this he has bequeathed $39,000 to a nephew, who once sent him $15 and who is the only relative that ever manifested any interest in his welfare.

IN New Guinea the village of Topuselei is most remarkable. The houses are all supported on piles and stand out in the ocean a considerable distance from shore. This is to protect the villagers from the attacks of the dreaded head hunters, always looking out for victims. Other villages in this queer land are perched up in trees for the same reason.

APROPOS of Congressman Bland's recent death, it is interesting to recall what he said to a Washington friend when Mr. Dingley was attacked by his last illness. Despite later political differences these two men were the warmest of friends, and when he heard Mr. Dingley's condition was serious Mr. Bland remarked: "I feel all right now myself, but I somehow think I won't survive Dingley a year."

THE savings and loan bureau established ten years ago by Andrew Carnegie for the benefit of his employes is now the custodian of over $1,000,000, of which interest compounded semi-annually at six per cent. is paid. No single deposit exceeds $2,000, the limit set when the company was established. Many employes have also obtained loans from the company, paying six per cent. interest, and have been enabled to purchase homes.

SECRETARY OF STATE HAY has caused a social sensation in Washington by appearing at a fashionable morning wedding clad in a cool suit of white flannel. The mercury stood at 103 in the shade and Mr. Hay seemed to be the only man there who experienced no discomfort from the heat. The president and a number of other notables were present, all boxed up in regulation attire, and many of them cast envious glances at the secretary of state.

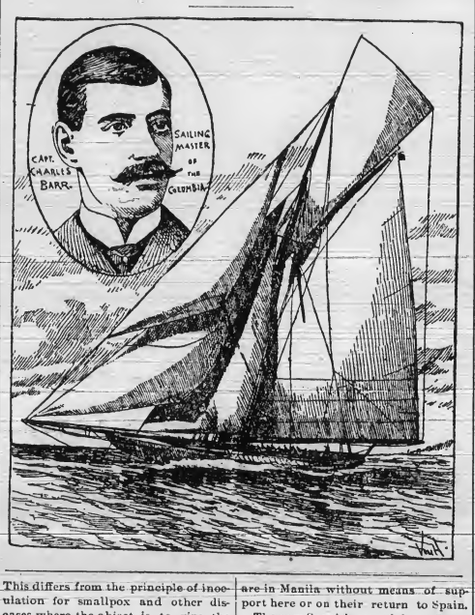
ON the request of the merchants of the county the supervisors of San Andreas, Cal., adopted an ordinance fixing a license of $10 a month, or $25 a quarter, on drummers and peddlers selling goods at retail on foot, and $25 a month, or $60 a quarter, on the same when using vehicles, drummers in the wholesale trade being exempted. The ordinance is aimed at shirt, shoe, clothing and other salesmen selling by sample and subsequently filling orders by mail or express.

THE Central News, of London, says that an Irish member of parliament has received a letter from "an eminent financier in New York" offering to promote and organize a movement for the purchase of Ireland. The writer declares that many hundred millions of dollars could be raised for the purpose, but the whole question must hinge on the desire of Great Britain to dispose of the property. He adds: "All things are possible in this age, and nothing is too big for us to undertake on this side of the water."

A MAIL train on the Passumpsic division of the Boston & Maine railroad was stopped by forest caterpillars upon the track a few miles north of St. Johnsbury. The pests had gathered in such numbers that the wheels, passing over them, slipped the rails. It frequently occurs that a large amount of sand is required to get a train over an army of the caterpillars on the march from one forest to the other. They are now entering the cocoon state quite rapidly, and their devastations for this year are nearing an end.

JOHN J. HULLINGER, a veteran of the 16th regiment, O. V. I. of Wooster, O., asked to have his pension cut down. For years he has been a hopless invalid, as the result of rheumatism contracted in the war. He has been receiving $72 per month, and has been cared for by a daughter. Hullinger asked that his allowance be cut down to $50 per month, as $72 was more than he needed. A special agent, sent there to investigate, says no change will be made. Hullinger is an ardent church member, and it is supposed he has scruples against taking more than he needs.

GERM DISEASES.



Dr. Oscar Loew, Expert Pathologist, Discovers a New Treatment.

Basic Idea is the Presence of a Class of Ferments Known as Enzymes, Produced by the Same Bacteria That Produce Disease.

WASHINGTON, June 29.—Dr. Oscar Loew, one of the expert vegetable pathologists of the agricultural department, has developed to what he believes is a point of practical use a new treatment for germ diseases which promises to supersede the serum treatment now in use in diphtheria, fevers and many other diseases.

Dr. Loew's work has been carried on for several years in collaboration with Dr. R. Emmerich. The experiments have been conducted in the laboratories of Munich and this country. The results never have been published in full, but have been such as to warrant introducing the treatment into actual hospital practice.

The treatment is similar in some respects to the serum treatment, but depends on a different principle, the basic idea being the presence of a class of ferments known as enzymes, which are produced by the same bacteria that produce the disease. It is because of the production or rather over-production of a certain enzyme that disease such as typhoid will "run its course" and then die out of the system. The bacteria in this case, it is stated, are simply killed out by the ferment they produce. The object of the new treatment is to produce a pure enzyme, which, introduced into the human system, will kill the disease germs without injuring the patient.

COLUMBIA, THE AMERICA'S CUP DEFENDER.

This differs from the principle of inoculation for smallpox and other diseases where the object is to give the patient a mild type of the disease to render him immune to the more virulent type.

Dr. Loew and his colleague, Dr. Emmerich, have studied and cultivated the enzymes of various diseases and it is claimed have found that the enzymes of certain bacteria will kill not only their parent germs, but also the germs of cholera, typhoid fever, antharax, diphtheria, black plague, staphlococci and probably gonococci. An enzyme that will be fatal to tuberculosis is being sought, though the bacillus of tuberculosis seems to be incapable of producing an enzyme that is fatal to itself. This is also true of the black plague and for this reason the serum of black plague was applied without success in the cases recently developed in one of the laboratories in Vienna.

The enzymes are very unstable products and for this reason quickly deteriorate, but Dr. Loew believes he has found a method of preserving them in shape for use. The further development of this form of treatment is awaited with interest by scientists.

Maj. Gen. Anderson Honored.

EMMETTSBURG, Md., June 29.—Mount St. Mary's college, Emmettsburg, Wednesday conferred the honorary degree of LL. D. on Maj. Gen. Thomas M. Anderson, U. S. A., commanding the department of the lakes at Chicago.

Alaskan Boundary Dispute.

LONDON, June 29.—United States Ambassador Choate had another conference Wednesday afternoon at the foreign office with the marquis of Salisbury on the subject of the Alaskan boundary dispute.

Knights of St. John Convention.

CLEVELAND, O., June 29.—The proceedings of the Knights of St. John convention Wednesday began with a business session. The knights will attend the horse and bicycle races at the Valley driving park.

THE PLAGUE ON SHIPBOARD.

The Nippon Maru Will Be Kept in Quarantine at San Francisco for Some Time as a Precautionary Measure.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 29.—The bodies of two Japanese sailors of the plague ship Nippon Maru, were found in the bay Wednesday and towed to a point off shore by fishermen, who were afraid to touch the bodies more than was necessary to attach a rope to them for towing purposes. The coroner was [illegible] were taken to the morgue, where every precaution is being taken to prevent any spread of disease should the men have carried any germs with them in the bay.

It is believed the men were afraid to stay on the steamer, and after attaching life preservers to their bodies, jumped overboard and were drowned. On the trip of the Maru from Honolulu to this city, a young Japanese girl died of some mysterious disease and was buried at sea an hour after death.

Apoplexy was given as the cause of her death, but the affliction seldom seizes one so young and the Japanese never die of the complaint. It is believed the disease has been stamped out from the Maru, but she will be kept in quarantine for some as a precautionary measure.

THE SPANISH PRISONERS.

It is Announced From Madrid That They Will Receive Pay While in the Hands of the Insurgents.

MANILA, June 29.—Gen. Jaramillos who is settling Spain's military affairs here, has received a cable message from the minister of war at Madrid, Gen. Polavieja, announcing that the pay of all soldiers who are in the hands of the insurgents will be continued during their captivity. The families of many of these officers and soldiers are in Manila without means of support here or on their return to Spain.

The new Spanish consul here, Senor Luis Marinas, says his foremost business is to secure the release of the prisoners. The Spaniards are fast leaving Manila. The steamer Isle de Luzon sails for Spain soon, taking several hundred persons, civil and military officials and their families. The Spanish commercial men are selling out and some of the largest interests here will soon pass into the hands of English capitalists.

Capt. Gale's squadron, of the 4th cavalry, embarked for Morong Monday. The gunboat Napidan, which accompanied the troops, visited the town of Muntiuiupa, on the west shore of the lake, and found a small body of rebels entrenched there. The entrenchments where shelled by the Napidan, and when the rebels began to retreat, the cavalry was landed. The Filipinos, in firing a final volley, killed a cavalry private.

Adm. Sampson to Get a Rest.

NEWPORT, R. I., June 29.—Rr. Adm. Sampson has received the papers from Secretary Long granting a month's leave of absence to him, and he will leave the fleet July 5. During his absence the command will devolve on Capt. Henry C. Taylor, of the Indiana. Adm. Sampson is not ill, but he is badly in need of rest. The officers of the fleet will give a dinner for him on the quarter deck of the Texas July 3, the anniversary of the battle of Santiago.

A Blow to the Schenck Theory.

VIENNA, June 29.—The fact that the czarina has given birth to a daughter, instead of a son, is looked on here as a failure for Dr. Schenck, although the doctor denies that he had prescribed his treatment for the Russian empress.

Commissioner to the Paris Exposition.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., June 29.—Gov. Tanner Wednesday appointed John W. Gates, the steel manufacturer, Illinois commissioner to the Paris exposition in 1900.

BECKER TRIAL.

Indictment Named Mrs Becker as Elisabeth, When It Should Be There a.

The Defense Asked for a Discharge of the Prisoner, as He Could Not Be Tried Again—The Request Was Refused—New Indictment.

CHICAGO, June 30.—The trial of August Becker, the southside butcher, charged with having murdered and then dismembered and boiled the remains of his wife in order to leave him free to marry Eda Sutterlin, a 17-year-old girl with whom he became infatuated, came to a sudden end Thursday when it was found that the indictment named Mrs. Becker as Elizabeth, when it should have been Therese. The court at once nolle prossed the indictment. The jury had been sworn in and the defense asked for a discharge of the prisoner on the ground that Becker had been placed in jeopardy and therefore he could not be tried again. The court denied the request however, and a bench warrant was issued and Becker rearrested. A new indictment will at once be drawn up. The discovery that the indictment was faulty created somewhat of a sensation in the court room.

The result may be however, that Becker will escape punishment, as the case is now in such shape that the prisoner's counsel are confident of a reversal by the supreme court if a verdict of guilty is returned. The jury had been sworn in and part of the evidence of the first witness heard when the attorneys for the defense moved that the defendant be dismissed and the jury instructed to return a verdict of not guilty, as the evidence produced related to the killing of one Theresa Becker, while the indictment alleged that the defendant had murdered Elizabeth Becker.

After a moment's excited conference between the prosecuting attorneys, the state moved that a nolle prosequi be entered and the defendant be held on a bench warrant. The defense made the point that if the state entered a nolle prosequi the court must order a verdict of not guilty. The state maintained that Becker had not been in jeopardy for the murder of Theresa Becker. Judge Stein then entered a nolle prosequi and a bench warrant was issued for Becker, Judge Stein sitting as a committing magistrate and hearing evidence relating to the case. In this proceeding the defense claims another error was committed. The witnesses were sworn by the clerk of the criminal court. It was held by the defense that Judge Stein, sitting as a magistrate, should have sworn the witnesses himself.

THE SECOND DREYFUS PLOT.

Desperate Effort Will be Made to Convict the Unfortunate Prisoner of Devil's Island Again.

CHICAGO, June 30.—A Brest cable to the Tribune says: Desperate as the struggle may seem, the military party is preparing to knife Dreyfus with a second condemnation. France is now face to face with a second plot stronger than the first. There is no disguising the fact that emissaries of Mercier are everywhere and the general himself is hunting the paper shops seeking for information about the paper upon which the bordereau was written.

The treacherous Meline is back of Mercier with a strong political party, made up of the miscellaneous seum of the empire leavings and so-called republicans like De Beaurepaire.

FATHER OFFERS A REWARD.

Systematic Search to Be Made for the Body of Young Mullane, Who Was Drowned in Lake Michigan.

CHICAGO, June 30.—A systematic search will be made for the body of young Thurman Mullane, who was drowned in Lake Michigan Wednesday by the capsizing of a launch in which he and some companions were attempting to reach Waukegan and which had become partly dismantled in a gale. The father of the boy, A. J. Mullane, lawyer and retired capitalist of Cincinnati, arrived here Thursday and offered a reward of $100 for the recovery of young Mullane's body. Circulars will be distributed among shipping interests all over the lake system, and boats will search the lower end of Lake Michigan thoroughly, both on the Illinois and Michigan side.

Will Command the Squadron.

WASHINGTON, June 30.—Secretary Long Thursday signed an order designating Capt. H. C. Taylor to command the North Atlantic squadron during the month's leave of Adm. Sampson, which will begin early next month.

A New World's Record.

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., June 30.—Eddie McDuffie made a new world's record for the mile at the Buttonwood cycle track Thursday afternoon. His time was 1:51 2-5 for the distance, beating [illegible] previous record by two-fifths of a second.

Cruiser Brooklyn Repaired.

NEW YORK, June 30.—The cruiser Brooklyn, which was injured off the Battery on Decoration day, was taken out of dry dock at the navy yard Thursday thoroughly repaired.

A CLASH SEEMS INEVITABLE.

The Insurgents Active Around San Fernando—Americans Alert and Prepared for a Daybreak Attack.

MANILA, July 1.—A collision between the two armies at San Fernando seems inevitable soon. The insurgents are active all around the town and can be seen working in the trenches to strengthen their position. Day and night forces are at work. It is estimated that 3,000 men were seen marching in the road north of town Friday morning. The Americans turned out and manned the defenses, expecting an attack. The soldiers sleep in their clothes and breakfast at 4 o'clock in the morning so as to be ready for another daybreak assault.

The commission of three Spanish officers who entered the insurgent lines a fortnight ago to make a final attempt to arrange for the release of the Spanish prisoners have not returned. Their long absence has occasioned alarm.

But reports come to Manila that they were received by Aguinaldo at Tarlac and entertained hospitably. It is said that Aguinaldo gave a banquet in their honor, all the leading families of the rebel leaders being present and the cabinet attending, hence the Spaniards in Manila hope that the mission of the commissioners will be successful.

Gen. Ovenshine is in the hospital suffering with fever. Gen. Grant is commanding his troops on the south line.

A SERIOUS DOUBT ARISES.

Is Rev. Wm. E. Hinshaw, Now Doing a Life Sentence for the Murder of His Wife at Belleville, Ind., Guilty.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., July 1.—Another doubt has arisen as to the guilt of Rev. Wm. E. Hinshaw, who is serving a life sentence for the murder of his wife at Belleville, Hendricks county, in January, 1895. Two years ago Noah Baney, who was at that time serving a term in the state prison, made an alleged confession in which he said the minister was innocent. "The murder," he said, "was committed by a gang of Indianapolis thieves, of which he was a member." The statement was heard by the Hendricks county grand jury, who refused to give credence to it.

Friday it was announced that "Kid" Whitney, one of Baney's companions, has made a confession in the state reformatory at Jeffersonville, in which he says that the minister's wife was murdered by a gang of which he and Baney were members. A third man in the party he declines to name. The confession has been made in the form of an affidavit, which is in the possession of James O. Parker, of Evansville, one of the attorneys for Hinshaw.

ARE AFTER COMMISSIONS.

The President Deluged With Applications, Since the Announcement That Volunteers Were Needed.

WASHINGTON, July 1.—Since the announcement that about 10,000 volunteers were to be mustered into the army for service in the Philippines the president has been deluged with applications for commissions. Almost every congressional caller has one or more applicants whom he presses on the president's attention.

The president requests all his visitors to file their applications with Adjt. Gen. Corbin. At the same time he makes it clear in a general way that the policy of the administration in granting commissions will be to give preference to volunteer officers who showed ability and who performed valuable service during the Spanish war.

Some regular officers have also been given volunteer commissions in the belief that one or two regular officers in a regiment will be of great advantage. The number of officers to be commissioned is being carefully guarded to prevent a scramble.

DOCTORS ARE NONPLUSED.

Frost Bite Caused a Colored Man to Grow Darker in Hue—It is the Reigning Sensation.

PONTIAC, Mich., July 1.—Geo. Brooks, middle-aged colored man, is the reigning sensation in state medical circles. Up to last February Brooks was almost white. One bitter cold night in February last he took a ride into the country. He did not feel any bad effects from the exposure except in his feet, hands, and nose. He thought no more of his night's ride until after a warm night several weeks ago he awoke to find himself several shades darker. Since that time he has been continually changing hue until now his skin is nearly the color of ebony. The medical profession think the frost bite on the night of the eventful ride was the cause of his changing color, but why is what is puzzling them.

Death of Capt. James A. Simpson.

PRESCOTT, A. T., July 1.—Capt. James A. Simpson, U. S. A., retired, died here after a short illness. He went through many Indian campaigns in Arizona with Gen. Crook. He was retired on account of physical disability a few years ago.

Traction Trust Combine.

NEW YORK, July 1.—It is announced that a gigantic alliance of all the traction companies of Greater New York is about to be made with a capital of $150,000,000.

"He That Stays Does the Business."

All the world admires "staying power." On this quality success depends. The blood is the best friend the heart has. Hood's Sarsaparilla is the best friend the blood ever had; cleanses it of everything, gives perfect health and strength.

Hood's Sarsaparilla
Never Disappoints

Wise Hen.

A duck which had faithfully stuck to business during the summer and laid several dozens of large fawn-colored eggs complained that she wasn't appreciated. "See that hen over there," said the duck, "she hasn't laid as many eggs as I have, nor as big, but she has books written about her and verses composed in her honor, while nobody is saying a word about me." "The trouble with you is," said a wise rooster that was standing near, "that you don't tell the public what you have done. You lay an egg and waddle off without saying a word, but that sister of mine never lays one without letting everybody in the neighborhood know it. If you want to eut any ice in this community you must learn to advertise."—Boyce's Hustler.

Immaterial.

"Hello!" said the visitor at the other end of the telephone, "is this Grindle?"

"Yes."

"Did you write up that story of the man who had inherited a million dollars and was going to try his luck in grain speculation?"

"Yes."

"Proofreaders say they can't make out from your copy whether you meant to say 'he will find brokers ahead' or 'he will find breakers ahead.'"

"Tell 'em it's all the same. Either one will do. Ring off!"—Chicago Tribune.

Epworth League Convention—Indianapolis Ind., July 20-23.

The Cincinnati Hamilton and Dayton Ry. is the ideal route from Cincinnati, having six fast week day trains with every convenience in the way of solid Vestibuled trains with Parlor and Cafe Dining Cars and Compartment Sleeping Cars at night. Tickets will be sold at half rates July 19, 20 and 21 with return limit of July 24. If more time is desired a further extension until Aug. 20 may be had by depositing ticket with Joint Agent at Indianapolis and paying a fee of 50 cents. See that your ticket reads via this route. D. G. Edwards P. T. M., Cincinnati, O.

Logic.

"You are wanted around the corner," exclaimed the citizen, confidently.

The policeman laughed aloud.

"I know better," he replied. "When I am wanted I can't be found. Since I have been found, I can't possibly be wanted!"

Here we see how important after all it is to understand something of the formal or scholastic logic which it has become the fashion of modern science to sneer at.—Detroit Journal.

Do Your Feet Ache and Burn?

Shake into your shoes, Allen's Foot-Ease, a powder for the feet. It makes tight or New Shoes feel Easy. Cures Corns, Bunions, Swollen, Hot, Callous, Sore, and Sweating Feet. All Druggists and Shoe Stores sell it, 25c. Sample sent FREE. Address, Allen S. Olmsted, Le Roy, N. Y.

Full of Music.

First Cat—You appear to be rather musical to-night.

Second Cat—Yes; I caught a nice canary for dinner.—Ohio State Journal.

To Cure a Cold in One Day

Take Laxative Bromo Quinine Tablets. All druggists refund money if it fails to cure. 25c.

When a man is injured in a railway wreck he first asks his doctor if he can recover, and then his lawyer, and about how much.—L. A. W. Bulletin.

Samson was a professional strong man, whose last act brought down the house.—Spare Moments.

CRITICAL PERIODS

In Woman's Life Are Made Dangerous by Pelvic Catarrh.

Mrs. Mathilde Richter.

Mrs. Mathilde Richter, Doniphan, Neb., says:

"I suffered from catarrh for many years, but since I have been taking Pe-ru-na I feel strong and well. I would advise all people to try Pe-ru-na. I used Pe-ru-na and Man-a-lin while I was passing through the change of life, I am positively convinced your beneficial remedies have relieved me from all my ills."

Pe-ru-na has raised more women from beds of sickness and set them to work again than any other remedy. As pelvic catarrh is the bane of womankind. Pe-ru-na is the bane of catarrh in all forms and stages. Mrs. Col. Hamilton, Columbus, O., says: "I recommend Pe-ru-na to women, believing it to be especially beneficial to them."

Send for a free book written by Dr. Hartman, entitled "Health and Beauty." Address Dr. Hartman, Columbus, O.

Remember that cholera morbus, cholera infantum, summer complaint, bilious colic, diarrhœa and dysentery are each and all catarrh of the bowels. Catarrh is the only correct name for these affections. Pe-ru-na is an absolute specific for these ailments, which are so common in summer, Dr. Hartman, in a practice of over forty years, never lost a single case of cholera infantum, dysentery, diarrhœa, or cholera morbus, and his only remedy was Pe-ru-na. Those desiring further particulars should send for a free copy of "Summer Catarrh." Address Dr. Hartman, Columbus, O.

25 CTS. PISO'S CURE FOR CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS. Best Cough Syrup. Tastes Good. Use in time. Sold by druggists. CONSUMPTION 25 CTS.

NINE DROWNED.

Steamer Margaret Olwill, Laden With Stone, Foundered in Lake Erie.

The Rescued Members of the Crew Were Found Floating on the Surface of the Lake, Clinging to Wreckage—Their Rescue Was Heroic.

CLEVELAND, O., June 30.—In the heavy northeast gale Wednesday night the steamer Margaret Olwill, laden with stone from Kelly's island to Cleveland, foundered in Lake Erie off Lorain. Nine persons were drowned. Four members of the crew have been picked up by passing steamers and brought into port.

The dead are: Capt. John C. Braun, master, of Cleveland; Lizzie Braun, wife of master, Cleveland; Blanchard Braun, their 8-year-old son; Mrs. Lora A. Hitchcock, a passenger, Cleveland; William Doyle, fireman, of Cleveland; George Heffron, seaman, of Cleveland; Frank Hipp, watchman, of Cleveland; two seamen, names and residences unknown.

The rescued: John Smith, first mate, of Cleveland; Alex. McKen, chief engineer, of Cleveland; Luke Schinski, second engineer, of Cleveland; Duncan Coyle, seaman, of Cleveland.

Smith, McKea and Schinski were rescued by members of the crew of the steamer Sacramento and taken into Lorain by the tug Caseade. Coyle was picked up by the passenger steamer, State of Ohio, and landed at Toledo Thursday. From the reports of the survivors, the Olwill's cargo of stone shifted while the vessel was laboring in the trough of the sea. Shortly before she went down the rudder chains parted, allowing her to fall off into the trough. As the helpless craft rose on top of a heavy sea, the stone slid to leeward, the steamer listed heavily, and sank to the bottom. The rescued members of the crew were found floating on the surface of Lake Erie, clinging to bits of wreckage. Their rescue was attended by exhibitions of extreme heroism, for a heavy sea was still running when they were picked up.

The Margaret Olwill left Kelly's island at 6 o'clock Wednesday night bound for Cleveland with a cargo of stone. There was little or no wind blowing, but at 10 o'clock the gale commenced and the wind blew from the northwest at the rate of 50 miles an hour. Suddenly the gale turned to the northeast and Capt. Braun found that the boat was making little headway and concluded to turned back and go with the storm.

The vessel had turned half way round when the rudder chains parted, and in an instant the boat was at the mercy of the storm. She was caught between the two waves, and as she was borne along the top of one of them she rolled over on her side. The cabins came loose from the hull of the large and floated on the water, while the rest of the ship went to the bottom. Coyle caught part of the after cabin and climbed up on it. Heffron was clinging to a part of the same cabin.

Capt. Willoughby, of the steamer Ohio, sighted the wreckage about 5:30 in the morning and after sailing around the wreckage for an hour and a half Coyle was rescued. Heffron was thrown a line but he was too weak to take hold of it and went down.

Several attempts were made to get the yawl boat in the water but the sea was still running high and the work was extremely perilous. Heffron's death was a pathetic one for he grabbed the rope and being encouraged by the crowd made a superhuman effort to put the rope around himself but he was so weak and had to give up the desperate struggle with the waves.

The rescue of Coyle was effected with difficulty. Expert linemen walked up and down the steamer and every time the big boat could be worked near him a line would be thrown. Finally he reached one of them and quickly got it around his body. He was more dead than alive when taken in.

To Be Taken Out of the State.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., June 30.—Gov. Tanner Thursday contracted with the Big Four and Illinois Central railways to take the Negro non-union miners at Pana out of the state and Thursday afternoon the Big Four took two coach loads, 120 men, women and children, while Thursday night the Illinois Central took those remaining—about 200 in number. The destinations are unknown.

A Case of Yellow Fever.

NEW YORK, June 30.—John Johnson, mate of the Norwegian steamship Krim, was removed to Swinburne Island hospital Thursday afternoon, suffering from yellow fever, and Thursday night his condition is serious. The Krim sailed from Havana on June 20 via Matanzas.

Log Drivers Drowned.

BANGOR, Me., June 30.—David Nadequa and Eli Pratt, log drivers, were drowned in Second lake rapids in shooting the rapids. James Thibedeau, of Patten, was drowned in Great lake by the capsizing of a canoe.

The Largest Leather Deal

BOSTON, June 30.—The United States Leather Co. has sold to H. B. Endicott a block of sole leather amounting to over $1,000,000 in value. This is one of the largest sales of sole leather ever made. It was a cash order.

THE BUILDING DEDICATED.

Opening of the Saengerfest Golden Jubilee—About 12,000 People Witness the First Concert.

CINCINNATI, June 30.—The vast egg shaped interior of the Saengerfest building held not less than 12,000 people Thursday night to witness the dedication of the building and the concert.

A pretty incident happened when Conductor Elsenheimer came out from the wings to take the baton in "Weiblicher Kueuste," the $1,000 prize cantata. He was literally pelted with garlands of roses and wreaths of evergreen. Even after he had mounted the platform and with baton in hand ready to begin, he was made the target of admiring friends in the chorus and orchestra.

The soloists were all on hand, and acquitted themselves nobly. The audience was especially kind to Miss Macondra, the first to appear.

The good, old time-honored custom of all fests, the presentation of the flag, made a picturesque scene—a picture that will linger in the minds of all good

Louis Ebrgdt,
Musical Director of the Saengerfest Jubilee.

Germans doubtless for many years. This followed the speeches of Presidents Deiler, of the bund, and Bettmann, of the saengerfest, and Mayor Tafel, and was participated in by President Bettmann and John Dimling, the latter the president of the last saengerfest held two years ago at Pittsburgh. The flag, a graceful white affair, heavily adorned with silken and metal ornamentation, was carried out to the center of the stage by Member Berghausen, of the executive board, and then the simple exercises of presentation were given, President Bettmann receiving it from Mr. Dimling's hands with a few well chosen words.

THE BROKERS ARE ENJOINED

A Sensational Move Made on the Ticket Scalpers Who Are Handling Saengerfest Railroad Tickets.

CINCINNATI, June 30.—A sensational move was made Thursday in the fight between the railroads and the ticket scalpers.

Judge Taft, of the United States court, was applied to and enjoined all Cincinnati brokers from dealing in Saengerfest tickets issued by the L. & O. S.-W. company.

Almost at the same moment application was made to Judge Jackson, of the superior court, by the Big Four and the C., H. & D. railroads, to enjoin brokers in Cincinnati from selling Saengerfest tickets issued by their lines.

This ties up the ticket brokers precisely as they were during the G. A. R. national encampment. The court followed the decision of United States Judge Clark in the Nashville centennial case.

The ground of the injunction is that by the establishing of low rates the railroads have special contracts with saengerfest visitors. These contracts require the original purchaser to use the low rate tickets on the return trip, or not at all.

SONGS OF THE FATHERLAND.

The German Ambassador Sends Greetings to the President of the Golden Jubilee Saengerfest at Cincinnati.

WASHINGTON, June 30.—The German ambassador at Washington, Dr. Von Holleben, has sent the following greeting to Fest President Bettmann, for the Golden Jubilee Saengerfest, now in session:

"To the North American Saengerbund: I send on this occasion of its golden jubilee my sincere congratulations. May the refreshing and character-ennobling songs of the fatherland, transplanted here from the old country, find still further in the singing societies of North America a true place of culture, for the renown of the old and for the best interest of the new country."

"HOLLEBEN, imperial ambassador."

Death of Gen. Madill.

TOWAND, Pa., June 30.—Maj. Gen. Henry J. Madill died here Thursday aged 70 years. He enlisted in the 6th Pennsylvania reserves in 1861 and was made major of the regiment. He was made a brigadier general in 1869 and breveted major general.

Terrific Rain Storm in Texas.

AUSTIN, Tex., June 30.—All south, central and west Texas was Thursday visited by terrific rain storms which have practically tied up all the railroads in this section of the state.

CUBANS THREATEN REVOLT.

Unless the Natives are Given a Chance to Govern Themselves as They Wish They Will Rebel.

NEW YORK, July 1.—A high officer of the United States army of occupation in Cuba contributes to the July number of the North American Review an article on the Cuban situation which will create a profound impression in this country.

After quoting our solemn pledge, "the United States hereby disclaims any disposition or intention to exercise sovereignty, jurisdiction or control over said island except for the pacification thereof, and asserts its determination when that is accomplished to leave the government and the control of the island to the people," he goes on to make a startling presentment of facts, of which these are the most significant:

"There can be no doubt that the 'pacification' of the island is now accomplished. City for city, the towns of Cuba are more peaceful and orderly than those of the United States. There never was a more docile, quiet people. All the reports of 'bandits' are zealously forwarded to the United States, and half of them are lies.

"The Cubans can and will give themselves as good a government as have the petty republics of South and Central America. They are impatient to undertake the management of their own affairs.

"The irritation of the Cubans against the Americans and American military rule is daily increasing, and will inevitably presently find vent in a revolt.

"To drift on, to delay evacuation means a struggle with a tremendous problem under disheartening conditions trying to help this people in the face of daily increasing opposition, ingratitude, irritation, suspicion. It means a postponement of the settlement of problems connected with the material prosperity of the island. It means a failure to fulfill a solemn pledge."

THE BRAZOS RIVER BOTTOMS

Fully 1,000 Miles of Rich Farming Land is Under Water as the Result of Heavy Rains for Three Days.

AUSTIN, Tex., July 1.—As a result of heavy rains during the past three days along the Brazos river bottoms through the central portion of the state and along the valleys of the Gandalupe and lower Colorado rivers in the southwestern portion of the state, fully 1,000 miles of rich farming land continued under water Friday night and many of the railroads are effectually blockaded by high water and wrecked roads.

The Brazos has been on a boom since Tuesday morning, and has been rising rapidly all along. Reports received Friday night state that the counties of Hood, Robertson, Brazos, Washington, Harris and McLennan are all swept by floods. These counties comprise the very center of the big farming interests of the state. Several thousand acres of land are submerged and crops are ruined. The valleys of the Guadalupe and lower Colorado rivers are in the same condition.

Reports from every section of the state show that the losses to railroads have been enormous. The San Antonio & Arkansas Pass has had 100 miles of its track washed away and not a train is moving on the Yoakum division of that road. The Gulf, West Texas & Pacific, and the New York, Texas & Mexican are both practically tied up, something like 50 miles of track on each road being washed out by the rains. These lines have also lost several large bridges.

CAPT. DREYFUS IN FRANCE.

He Was Conveyed From Quiberon to Bruz by Train, Where He Entered a Landau and Was Taken to Rennes.

RENNES, France, July 1.—Capt. Dreyfus landed at Quiberon and was conveyed by train to Bruz, 12 kilometers from Rennes. There he entered a landau, accompanied by the chief of detectives and of the prefect department, and was driven to Rennes, where 25 gendarmes awaited his entrance into the town. Ten of the gendarmes entered a wagon and followed the carriage. The rest followed on foot. The party arrived at the prison without incident. A large crowd assembled and witnessed the arrival in silence and without manifestation.

The Next Saengerfest.

CINCINNATI, July 1.—The National Saengerbund met Friday in North Turner hall, praised the local committee for its excellent work and selected Buffalo, N. Y., by a unanimous vote, for the next saengerfest, in 1901. A radical change in the constitution will be made, taking the management of the future fests out of the hands of local committees and vesting it in the hands of a board of 15 chosen at large.

Operator Held Up.

CEDAR RAPIDS, Ia., July 1.—At 1 o'clock Saturday morning three men in a buggy drove up to the Northwestern depot at Dewitt, held up the operator at the points of revolvers, blew open the safe, and escaped with $100. No clew.

Donald Perrier Hanged.

VANCOUVER, B. C., July 1.—Donald Perrier was hanged at Westminster Friday for the murder of Jennie Anderson last November. He met death gamely.

PEACE REIGNS IN SAMOA.

A Governor Appointed Subject to Any of the Treaty Powers—Many Claims for Damage Filed.

APIA, Samoa, June 16.—(via San Francisco, July 1.)—Peace and quiet now reign in Samoa in marked contrast to the warlike scenes of two months ago. The arrival of the auxiliary cruiser Badger May 13, with the international commission on board, caused a distinct change in affairs here. The commission lost no time, but went to work immediately, electing Mr. Tripp chairman and Mr. Morgan secretary. The commissioners held interviews first with King Tanu, and then with Mataafa.

Tanu was not at first recognized as king by the commission. Tanu and his chiefs readily agreed to give up their arms, and stated that they were prepared to accept any formal government the commission might recommend, even if the kingship was abolished. The following day Mataafa and his party came alongside the Badger, singing songs and flying the Samoan flag. The rebels were ordered to take down the flag, which they did. The commissioners explained to the chief that they had come to make peace, and Mataafa said that he was tired of fighting, as were his chiefs. He said his party would recognize any government fixed by the commission, but he hoped to have a king of Samoa, as it was an old established institution. Mataafa readily agreed to give up the guns held by his party, but insisted that, as the weapons were the private property of the natives, they should receive compensation for them. The commissioners issued a proclamation, stating that the guns would either be returned or proper payment made for them after all troubles had been settled. This, of course, means that payment will be made, as it would be folly to return the weapons.

Mataafa's party also asked if they could be represented by attorneys before the commission, but their request was declined.

After the Mataafa men had turned in 1,800 rifles and the Tanu supporters 2,000 more, Tanu was invited on board the Badger. There he was informed that the commissioners supported the decision of Chief Justice Chambers, and that Tann had been king of Samoa ever since the decision had been rendered. Tanu said that he was willing to do anything for the good of Samoa, and at the request of the commissioners resigned his kingship to them. The commission is now engaged in writing its report, also the abolition of the office of president. Apia, a municipality, is to be governed by its council and a mayor. This will relieve the municipality of an official drawing a salary of $5,000 a year, and who has in the past only been a source of friction in Apia.

The judicial and diplomatic functions of the consuls will be greatly restricted, and the commissioners recognize the fact that the supreme court and one law is sufficient for the needs of Samoa. Revenue will be raised by indirect taxation, by means of increased customs duties, and the poll tax will be abolished.

The license and tax rate of Apia will remain as formerly under the treaty. The supreme court will remain as under the treaty.

An administrator or governor will be appointed who will be subject of any of the treaty powers. He is to be assisted by a legislative council of three to be appointed by each of three of the powers.

This council will legislate for the Samoans and will be aided by a small body of representative Samoans. The governor will have the power of veto over all proposed laws. Chief Justice Chambers wishes to resign his position and return to the United States, but on the request of the commissioners he has decided to remain.

Many claims have been lodged at the different consulates for damages to property during the past few months. While not empowered to take any action on these claims, the commissioners agreed that real hardships had been suffered, and it is understood that the commission will recommend that the three powers each pay the losses caused to its own subjects.

The New Female Labor Law.

LINCOLN, Neb., July 1.—Nebraska's new female labor law went into effect Saturday. It limits the hours for labor of grown women in mercantile, manufacturing and mechanical pursuits, hotels and restaurants to 60 hours a week and ten a day. The latter requirement will compel a radical change in the rules of the large department stores of the cities, where many females are employed, but outside of these there will be few innovations.

Steamer Arrives From the Klondike.

VICTORIA, B. C., July 1.—The steamer City of Seattle arrived Friday from Alaska with 80 Klondikers and a small amount of gold dust aboard. Ike Schwartz, of Portland, Ore., is credited with $25,000. H. Stevens and wife, $10,000, and Blake and Conrad, $15,000.

Headquarters Removed.

ST. LOUIS, July 1.—Supreme officers of the Catholic Knights of America arrived here Friday evening, transferring the headquarters of that order from Vincennes, Ind., to St. Louis.

NON-UNION NEGRO MINERS.

They Have a Grievance Against the Pana, Ill., Mine Operators—They Make an Appeal to Gov. Tanner.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., June 29.—C. H. Dorsey and R. H. Prinkelton, a committee appointed by the non-union Negro miners of Pana, saw Gov. Tanner Wednesday in regard to the conditions at Paua. They stated that the Pana operators had brought them from Alabama under false pretenses, agreeing to give them a contract for one year, or as long as they wanted to work, and had failed to do so. They claimed that the operators had not discharged them but had simply closed up their mines, paid off all the miners that wanted a settlement, throwing them out of employment, leaving many with little money, and women and children even suffering for the necessities of life, and unable to leave Pana. They said the operators have been asked to make provision for sending the Negroes back to Alabama, but declined, saying they had all they could do to look after their own affairs, and have absolutely failed to assist their late employes in any manner. They declared the union miners have become the best friends of the non-union Negro miners, and that Mayor Gorman is doing what he can to aid them.

Gov. Tanner asked the exact number of the families of the Negro non-union miners there. The committee was unable to give the list. Gov. Tanner expressed his regret at the condition of affairs in Pana and his sympathy with the Negro miners and said when he obtained the list he would see what he could do for them.

C. H. Dorsey is one of George V. Pennell's Negro guards who was badly wounded in the riot on April 10.

DIED FROM EXCESSIVE JOY.

George Jones, Released From Prison, Went to His Home, Swooned From Emotion and Expired.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., June 29.—George Jones, a Negro, died Tuesday from excessive joy over being released from prison. He was convicted of murder several years ago, but the proof showed he bore no ill will against the victim and the prisoner stoutly maintained he did not know the gun was loaded. His good record and the attendant facts finally brought a pardon. On being released he happy Negro hurried to his home near Demopolis. Approaching the old log hut, the unexpected comer was greeted by mother, father and sisters, who ran to meet him. The joy was too great, and the big, lusty man, for whom no task had been too great, swooned with emotion, expiring a few moments later in his mother's arms.

DEWEY SAILS FOR PORT SAID.

The Admiral's Health Has Improved—Previous to His Departure Dewey Visited the Cruiser Yosemite.

COLOMBO, Ceylon, June 29.—The United States cruiser Olympia, with Adm. Dewey on board, sailed from here for Port Said at 4 o'clock Wednesday afternoon. The admiral has been living quietly here, and his health has improved. He went on board the cruiser at 10 o'clock Wednesday morning. The customary official visits were exchanged during the day.

Previous to his departure Adm. Dewey visited the auxiliary cruiser Yosemite, now at this port, having on board Capt. Richard P. O'Leary, U. S. N., the governor of the island of Guam, who is on his way to this port.

A BIG ARMY WILL BE SENT.

As a Result of a Conference Gen. Otis' Army Will Be Increased to Fully 60,000 Men.

WASHINGTON, June 29.—After an extended conference, at which Secretary Alger and Adjt. Gen. Corbin discussed the Philippine situation with the president, official announcement was made Wednesday afternoon that Gen. Otis would be supplied with not less than 40,000 men. This number will be increased from time to time as the necessities of the case demand.

Col. Bird, of the quartermaster's department, who is in charge of water transportation, was called into the conference, and informed the president that transports now in the government service could take the additional troops to the Philippines by the middle of September.

Fresh Troops Sent to Saragossa.

MADRID, June 29.—At Saragossa the populace continues turbulent and fresh troops have been stationed at strategic points in the city. Many of the wounded have been hidden, so it is difficult to determine the number of injured. Quiet has been restored at Seville and Valencia.

Stoddard's Appointment.

WASHINGTON, June 29.—George Stoddard, of Wyoming, will be made census supervisor for the First Ohio district, comprising the First and Second congressional districts. His recommendation was signed by both Congressmen Shattuc and Bromwell.

Pure Food Commissioner.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., June 29.—Gov. Tanner Wednesday appointed former State Senator Thomas S. Chapman, of Jerseyville, as pure food commissioner under the new pure food law.

NEWS ITEMS.

The steamship Lucania, sailing for Europe Saturday, will take out 485,000 ounces of silver.

The president Friday appointed Louis A. Knackstedt, of Colorado, to be agent of the Southern Ute Indians.

Failures for the week have been 181 in the United States against 234 last year and 22 in Canada against 15 last year.

The United States consul at Savador informs the state department that yellow fever has made its appearance there.

The French chamber of deputies adopted a resolution Friday authorizing duly qualified women to practice at the bar.

Friday's statement of the condition of the treasury shows: Available cash balance, $279,541,605; gold reserve, $233,203,948.

Gen. Otis notified the war department that the transport Morgan City left Manila June 24 for San Francisco with 464 sick.

Two Bavarian officers, Baron Bounet and Baron Godin, were killed Tuesday while attempting to ascend the Ackerlspitze in the Tyrolese Alps.

Two more of the victims of the explosion on board the steamer St. Paul, near Elsah, Ill., Tuesday night, have died at the city hospital, St. Louis.

Fifty machinists joined the strikers at Norton Brothers canning establishment in Maywood, Ill., Tuesday. The total number who have quit work is about 2,000.

N. T. Hoepes, of Marysville, O., has been designated to the president by Director Merriam for the office of supervisor of the Eighth Ohio congressional district.

At Minneapolis, Minn., Smith & Wyman's planing mill, stock and a large quantity of manufactured lumber burned Friday night. Loss $65,000; partially insured.

The jute spinning and weaving works at Berlin were burned Friday night. Five large warehouses were destroyed. It is believed that the fire was of incendiary origin.

A semi-official note has been issued declaring that there is no foundation for the rumors of a disagreement between the British and French squadrons in Newfoundland waters.

It is announced that the North German Lloyd Steamship Co. has decided to build a new twin screw steamer for the New York service. The vessel, it is added, will probably be of German make.

By mutual agreement between the Seawanhaka and the Royal St. Lawrence Yacht clubs, the dates of the races for the Seawanhaka cup have been changed to begin on Thursday, July 27, instead of July 26.

Chinese advices state that Spain will prefer a demand for a lease of Chinese territory on the ground that China during the Spanish-American war permitted the shipments of arms and ammunition to the Philippines by American steamers.

Benjamin Lang, 84 years of age, the owner and occupant of a house in Waltham street, Boston, killed his wife, Clara E. Lang, with an ax early Tuesday. It is thought that he committed the deed while in a fit of mental aberration. Lang was arrested.

William Jennings, or "Bill" Ryan, one of the convicted Macomb train robbers, has made a written confession, in which he declares that Kennedy is innocent of the crime of which he has been adjudged guilty. He also says that if Shepard will speak he can corroborate this.

The steamer Nippon Maru, suspected of being infected with the bubonic plague, has been released from quarantine, at San Francisco, after being thoroughly fumigated by Dr. Kinyoun, the federal quarantine officer at Angele Island. Her passengers and crew are held on the island.

The treaty confirming the agreement of February 12, ceding the Caroline, Pelew and Marianne islands to Germany, and the declaration granting Germany the most favored treatment from July 1, were signed Friday by Premier Silvela and the German ambassador, Count Von Radowitz, at Madrid.

Gen. Leonard Wood has declined the presidency of the Washington Traction & Electric Co., of Washington, D. C., and will return early next week to his post as military governor of the province of Santiago. The offer was a very flattering one, but Gen. Wood, after considering the matter for a week, decided to decline it.

Commissioner General Powderly, of the immigration bureau, Tuesday mailed to San Francisco a warrant for the arrest and deportation of the six Japanese who were recently released from custody by the federal court on a writ of habeas corpus. It is not thought that the court will further interfere in the matter.

United States Consul Skinner, at Marseilles, reports to the state department that clouds of grasshoppers threaten to destroy the standing crops in Algeria and that the government is already expending large sums of money to suppress them.

Alexander Jester, the alleged murderer of Gilbert Gates, is resisting the requisition papers sent from Missouri to Shawnee, Okl. The officers confidently expected to take him away Saturday, but at last reports he was in jail at Shawnee and had employed legal help.

BOONE CO., RECORDER.

Wednesday, July 5, 1899.

Advertising Rates:
One inch, one time.....$1.00
Each additional time.....25
Obituaries, Tributes of Respects or notices of a like nature, per inch .50

W. L. RIDDELL, - - Publisher.

We are authorized to announce J. W. KENNEDY, of Union, as a candidate for the Legislature, subject to the action of the Democratic party.

We are authorized to announce BENJAMIN STEPHENS, of Florence, as a candidate for the Legislature, subject to the action of the Democratic party.

Neighborhood News.

Hathaway.

Farmers are laying their corn by.

Jas. Schree has purchased a new buggy.

Wheat is being put in the stacks and barns now.

Lamb buyers are gathering up their purchases this week.

Everybody expects to take in the fourth, which is at hand.

The early setting of tobacco looks nice for this time of the season.

N. L. Moore, of near big Bone church, our punctual huckster, has taken out license.

L. M. Stephens was awarded the job of working the road leading from this burg to Gunpowder creek, via Gimlet Gap.

Miss Grace Neal and Mrs. Daisy Presser were visiting Mrs. Annie McMullen, of the Locust Grove neighborhood.

Richwood.

Dr. Menifee was on the sick list a few days last week.

Robert Robinson, who sprained his leg about a week ago, is getting better.

A number of young people from here attended the picnic given at Crescent, last Saturday.

George Roberts, of Vecona, was taken on for a minister of the gospel at the Louisville convention.

Mrs. Carrie Goodridge, wife of John Goodridge, of this place, died ou the 27th ult. She attended to her household affairs as usual that day, and awhile after supper she complained slightly, when her husband proposed to send for a doctor, but she died before the messenger got 200 yards from the house. Mrs. Goodridge was a daughter of W. H. Tanner, 34 years of age, and a member of the Lutheran church. She was buried at Hopeful, the funeral having been conducted by Rev. H. Max Lentz.

Francesville.

Blackberries are very scarce.

Tom Tanner is at home quite sick with typhoid fever.

Mr. Ben Wainscott fell, the other day, and sprained his ankle very badly.

Miss Monica Utz, of Covington, was visiting her sister, Mrs. Geo. McGiason, last week.

Mrs. Dausbury and son, Will Kilgore, of New Richmond, Ohio, are visiting relatives in this vicinity.

Miss Mary Corn is at home from Louisville, where she has been visiting relatives and friends for several weeks.

Miss Frances Smith, who is attending school at Oxford, Ohio, is spending the summer with her aunt, Mrs. Frances Hoshal.

Miss Mary A. Thompson and Mrs. Julia Baisly are visiting friends in this neighborhood. Miss Mary meets many of her old friends and pupils in these parts.

The meeting here last Sunday was largely attended. They only elected 1 deacon, Mr. William Goodridge. The other one will be elected at the next church meeting. All members should come and vote.

Flickertown.

Everybody is preparing to celebrate the 4th in grand style.

Mr. Oscar Botts, of Kansas, was visiting relatives here last week.

Miss Ada Rue was visiting her sister, Mrs. Ryle, on Gunpowder, last week.

Foxes caught 27 of Sam Hensley's turkeys, on Monday night of last week.

Chicken thieves made a raid on Chas Hensley's hen house, one night last week.

John Lacy has the finest crop of tobacco in this neighborhood. The entire crop is almost large enough to top.

Miss Edith Smith and Agnes Snyder were visiting Maud Jarrell, of the Gashurg, neighborhood, one day last week.

Mrs. Mary Bachelor, Mrs. Florence Lacy and Mrs. Susie Burns, are on the sick list. Mrs. Bachelor and Mrs. Burns have typhoid fever.

Miss Julia Smith's new house promises to be the prettiest little residence on Ashby's Fork. Messrs. Botts and Gordon are good workmen and expect to have it finished in a few weeks.

Gunpowder.

Uncle Matthias Floyd, of Georgetown, is visiting friends in this neighborhood.

Jerry Beemon and wife, of Limaburg, were guests of W. A. Tanner, last Sunday.

Harrison Clore and wife and Miss Myrtle Beall visited J. C. Hankins, last Thursday. Mr. H. also entertained Rev. Watkins and family, last Sunday.

Mrs. Carrie, wife of Mr. John Goodridge, died very suddenly at her home Richwood, on the night of the 25th inst. She had been in rather delicate health for some time, but retired that night feeling as well as usual, but before the midnight hour came she told her husband she was feeling very badly, and he immediately sent for a doctor, but death came before the docter could get there. She united with the Hopeful church at the age of 15 years and was an active member until death. She possessed all the characteristics of a noble christian lady, and to know her was to love her. The funeral was conducted by Pastor Lentz, the 27th inst., at Hopeful church. She leaves a husband and a host of relatives and friends to mourn their loss. She was buried in Hopeful cemetery in the presence of a host of warm friends. We extend our sympathy to the bereaved family.

North Bend.

Mr. J. Wash Watts spent the day with G. M. Riley, Sunday.

A number of friends spent the day with Mrs. Julia Baisly, Tuesday.

Miss Mary A. Thompson, of Burlington, has been visiting friends in this neighborhood.

We are very sorry to say that Mr. Wm. H. Harrison, who has been quite ill for some time, is worse.

Mr. Joseph McCord, of Milton, returned home Wednesday, after visiting his friend, Wm. H. Harrison.

Miss Dora Huey and Mr. Jas. Kirtley, jr., spent the day with their sister, Mrs. W. O. Kirtley, Tuesday.

Mrs. Clinton Gaines, of Bullittsville, spent the day with her brother and family, Wm. O. Kirtley, Wednesday.

Mrs. G. M. Riley and Miss Mary A. Thompson spent a very pleasant day with Mr. and Mrs. Add Riddell, Wednesday.

Wm. Gardner, is busy repairing his ferry boat, and we hope before long he will have it completed, as it is a great convenience.

I should like to correct my item of last week. Miss Clara Harrison, who is visiting her father, is from Walnut Hill, Ky., not Walnut Hills, Ohio.

After spending a delightful week with his sister, Miss Annahel Riley, in Dayton, Ohio, G. C. Riley left Saturday morning to join the U. S. Corps of Engineers, War Department, when they will go to Pittsburg.

Bellevue.

Bro. Utz has been ailing for a few days.

John Roger's new residence is going up rapidly.

Willie Maurer is off the boat and at home quite poorly.

Ome Rogers spent Saturday and Sunday with his parents.

We are glad to learn that uncle Harvey Marshall is convaleeing.

O. N. Grant has been crippling around with a sprained knee.

J. M. Lassing, of Burlington, was calling on E. L. Grant, Sunday.

Mrs. Bob Batchelor is reported to be very low with typhoid fever.

M. J. Corbin and W. W. Botts spent the day, last Friday, in the city.

Miss Nora Hyle has gone back home after about six week's stay with Mrs. J. H. Lawell.

Miss Martha Schwartz, of Frankfort, Ind., is home with her mother to spend the summer months.

We are favored with another grocery and huckster wagon. It is run by Mr. Crouch, of Florence.

Albert Snyder and his twin brother were the guests of their uncle, Orlando Snyder, last Sunday.

Mrs. Haynes and daughter, of Harrison, Ohio, were visiting her brother, Wm. Snelling, last week.

D. M. Snyder and daughter, Virgia, attended Sunday school at the Woolper school house, last Sunday.

A. B. Corbin has just completed a durable and neat wire fence for the B. & B. turnpike, around the toll gate lot here.

The I. O. O. F. are making arrangements to begin the erection of their hall soon. It will be an improvement to the town.

James Setters started his thresher last Friday at Rel Sullivan's yard. Wheat not very good, poor in yield, and in quality.

D. M. Snyder has beautified his premises by putting up a nice fence around his yard, and painting his residence. He did the work.

Mrs. Mary Corbin and daughter, Miss Amelia and Mrs. Alice Snyder were visiting Mrs. Orlando Snyder, near Petersburg, last Friday.

The trustees of the new cemetery had the weeds and grass mowed and raked off of the cemetery, last week, which has helped its appearance very much.

Dr Wm. J. Weindel, formerly of Petersburg, now of Patriot, Ind., passed through Saturday night, on his way to Pete to see his sister, who has typhoid fever.

Your correspondent was visited by his parents from Middle creek, last Wednesday, both of whom are enjoying good health, considering their advanced age.

Bro. Watkins will begin a protracted meeting here, in the Christian church, next Sunday, the 9th, assisted by Bro. Hawkins, who will he with us the following Tuesday night.

Everything is quiet here again since the Louisville conventiou. We were a little uneasy for a while for fear they would get excited and nominate a Republican, but thanks be to them that they nominated a Democrat to vote for in November.

Walton.

Miss Allie Wilson has been the pleasant guest of Mrs. Judge Botts during the past week.

Miss Effie Lermoud is visiting Mrs. Nettie Northcutt, of Covington and Mrs. Jos. Milner, of Cincinnati.

A good many of your readers will remember that some months ago it was reported from here that Jim Jones living not far from here went out hunting and lost his gun, that had been borrowed from Ambrose Easton. Some evil minded persons were so uncharitable as to hint that in his wanderings he had found a bottle lost by some hunter and in sampling the same had forgotten all about the gun. Well, one day last week, Epp Norman was on an observation tour over his farm when he came upon the gun which was only slightly rusted, and considering the terrible rains we have had, was in very good condition.

Master Chas. S. Chambers, U. S. N., who left here to join his ship, the Hartford at Mares Island, has been very punctual in writing to his parents, they having received seven letters from him since he started. He is a chatty, pleasant writer, as a few extracts will demonstrate: "We have a second George Arnold to entertain us on the train. His name is Fiddler, all the one he goes by. Tell Watson Bruce and all the boys they missed the occasion of their lives by not being with us." This was posted at Elgin, Ill., June 18. From Omaha, the 18th the following gleaning was made: "At Kirkland last night we were met by a brass band that saluted us with several well played airs. We have the best of eating and are treated like kings. Tell Virgil and Godfrey never to hobo out here for if they do they will have a hard time." Rambling, Wyoming, "We are now going over the Rockies, where the sun shines on the snow it is a grand sight. It is very cold all the car windows are down. Yesterday we were in hot Nebraska all and at sunset saw a sand storm. All you can see in Nebraska is wind-mills and prairie chickens. Yes, there are thousands of rocking sand stones, and they look like gold, they are so yellow. North Platte River followed us for about 50 miles and then we came to the South Platte. It is just a river bed. The sand looks like waves, and you could not tell it from a river 100 feet away."

Prof. Chas. Pryor, principal of Chester High School, Vermont, is the guest of his sister, Mrs. M. W. Myers. The professor was closely identified with his sister in the making of a grand success for the Walton Academy. As will be seen by the program he will, during his visit again delight his host of friends and admirers with one of his unsurpassable renditions, which made him such a celebrity while he tarried and struggled on Kentucky soil, which he says he likes as well as he does the Green Mountains of his native State, the home of Ethan Allen, John Stark and George Dewey.

The following program will be rendered by the Y. P. S. C. E, at the Christian church, Saturday eveuing, July 8th, 1899: Music—Kentucky State Edeuvon Song; "Our Hired Girl."—Miss Edna Ransler; "That Old Sweet heart of Mine."—Rev. R. F. Moss; "Praise the Lord" Quartette,—Mrs. W. A. Wolf, Misses Ransler and Ingram, Messrs. Moss and Grubbs; "The Ragedy Man."—Miss Effie Lermound; "The Owl and the Bell."—George McDonald and Miss Blanch Dyas; Song—"When I am grown, when I am 21."—Mary Dyas; "In de Valley of de Shadder,"—Prof C. F. Prior; Oration, "Men Rise on the Stepping-stones of their dead Selves to Higher Things."—Rev. R. E. Moss; Song, "True Hearted, Whole Hearted."—Junior Endeavors. Farce—"The Only Young Man in Town." Characters: Mrs. Rebecca Barnaby—Libbie Ingram; Miss Francina Barnaby,—Adah Lermoud; Miss Isabella Smith—Edna Ransler; Miss Hannah Staples,—Lena Dahling; Miss Matilda Dix-Katie Grubbs; Mr. Jedediah Brown—Taylor Grubbs. We extend a cordial invitation to all.

Petersburg.

Thermometer 94 in the shade, Sunday.

Will Fenton went to High Bridge camp meeting, Sunday.

Wheat is yielding about 10 bushels per acre, on an average.

Chas. Pend and wife are happy over the arrival of a nice girl baby.

Miss Lucy W. Allen has returned after a protracted visit in the country.

John W. Berkshire stayed till the Democratic love feast closed at Louisville.

Col. W. H. Nelson, who has been sick at his daughter's here, is able to go about.

Ben Belden has bought of Dr. Grant the Dr. Dunn residence in the new addition.

Senator Goebel's victory only shows that he is the shrewdest and brainiest politician in the State.

The City of Louisville had 600 excursionists aboard Sunday. They returned on the Cincinnati.

Joe McWethy, Mr. Leak and James Burns have fine crops of tobacco that can be toped now to 14 leaves.

The Government fiscal boats steamer Golden Rod went dow nonne day last week flying the national colors.

A strong armed man held up T. J. McSweeney, on the Workum, Sunday, and relieved him of $1 and a plug of tobacco.

Dr. Horace and E. W. Grant sons of Dr. E. L. Grant are on a trip to Europe where they will visit all the lesding hospitals of the old World in search of medical science.

Mrs. Mary Bachelor, wife of Robert Bachelor, died Saturday night after a lingering illness of typhoid fever. She leaves a husband and five small children to mourn her loss. She was a sister of Thos. Nettles and lived on the Minor farm on Woolper creek.

A Goebel club, 200 strong, will be organized here in the near future. Every precinct in the county should organize a club, and lunist on every Democrat coming out and voting in November. A Democratic victory in Kentucky is of national importance at this time.

Baisly-Wamsley.

A happy wedding party started from a home in North Bend, Ky., in the soft moonlight of the 22d of June, '99. The old, the young and the middle aged were there, with all their hopes, their joys and fears. The waters of "La Belle Rivere" reflected the holier beauty above them, and a swift sail over their smooth surface soon brought us to a "State of good roads," where a more rapid ride bore us to our destination, a lovely modern home in Cleves, Ohio. Groups of guests were gathered here and there on the grounds, and people were passing in and out of the house, indicating an unusual event was to occur there that evening. The marriage room and the wedding tables were beautifully decorated with tributes from the field, the garden and the hothouse; the smilax, the ferns, the daisies and flowers of exquisite hues had been brought to grace the occasion. Scores of relatives and friends came with presents useful, dapery of gold and silver, cut glass and porcelain. A few notes of sweet music stole out on the air to sooth the spirits of the guests and then came the hushed stillness which always precedes the bridal party: the sweet solemnity of that stillness should never be forgotten by those most deeply interested. Mr. Thomas Whitaker Baisly and Miss Emma Wamsley, with their attendants, Mr. Thornton Snyder and Miss Isabel Sparks were before us: the bride was lovely in her appropriate dress of white organdie, and laden with flowers; she is of the purest type of American beauty. And the young, strong face of the groom gave us the promise, he would be a good protector. The words of the minister and the marriage ring joined them together as man and wife, in the presence of many witnesses, and after partaking of the delicious viands that had been prepared, the Kentucky party returned to the groom's "River Home," with hearts full of bright hopes for the future of the newly married couple.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Mrs. Venie Patterson is visiting in Covington.

B. F. Norman, of Gunpowder, was in town Friday.

Henly Smith, of Cincinnati, spent Sunday with his father, here.

Sam'l Hall has purchased a nice, double seated family couveyance.

M. T. Graves, of Bullittsville, was among the visitors to town, Friday.

C. N. Cropper, of Louisville, was visiting friends in this county, last week.

M. T. Garnett and Sidney Gaines went to Gunpowder to spend the 4th.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Blythe dined quite a number of their friends last Sunday.

The telephone lustruments were put in last Friday at Burlington, Limaburg and Florence.

Rankin Revill and wife came out from Covington, Sunday, and spent the day with Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Revill.

J. F. Blyth and J. M. Lassing got home from Louisville, Thursday about noon, having remained to see the convention through.

R. Y. Randall, of Petersburg, was in town Monday, meeting many friends, who were glad to see him looking so stout and hearty.

Mr. and Mrs. B B. Allphiu entertained about twenty of their lady and gentlemen friends with a sumptuous dinner, last Friday.

Mrs. H. W. Smith and little son, Miles, of the Burlington Hotel, Cincinnati, are visiting Dr. J. F. Smith and family, at this place.

Misses Kittie Gaines and Alma Carpenter, returned, Monday evening from a pleasant visit with friends at Walnut Hills Ohio.

Walter Riddell, of Hebron, who has been staying at Joseph Thatcher's over in Campbell county, has been quite sick for several days.

W. B. Watts called on the RECORDER, Friday. He is an enthsiastic advocate of the "men meeting" he has been attending at Nicholasville.

ERLANGER DEPOSIT BANK.

Quarterly Report of the Erlanger Deposit Bank of Erlanger, Ky., at the close of business June 30th, 1899:

RESOURCES:

Loans and Discounts, less loans to Directors	$68,009 64
Loans to Directors (officers not included)	2,000 00
Loans to Officers	1,200 00
Overdrafts secured	237 81
Overdrafts, unsecured	6 00
Due from Nat. Banks	24,350 88
Due from State Banks, &c.
Banking House and Lot	3,780 70
Mortgages	32,825 00
Specie	2,295 94
Currency	2,406 00
Exchanges for clearing 15 00	4,716 94
Furniture and Fixtures	1,785 15
	$138,911 62

LIABILITIES.

Capital Stock paid in	$50,000 00
Surplus Fund	4,000 00
Individual Deposits	84,486 14
Undivided Profits	425 48
Due National Banks
	$138,911 62

State of Kentucky, County of Kenton: S. L. Webb, cashier, of Erlanger Deposit Bank, a bank located and doing business in the town of Erlanger, Ky., in said county, being duly sworn, says that the foregoing report is in all respects a true statement of the condition of the said bank, at the close of business on the 30th day of June, 1899, to the best of his knowledge and belief; and further says that the business of said bank has been transacted at the location named, and not elsewhere; and that the above report is made in compliance with an official notice received from the Secretary of State designating the 30th day of June, 1899, as the day on which such report shall be made.

S. L. Webb, Cashier.

W. A. Price, W. H. Baker, F. A. Utz, } Directors.

Sworn to before me by S. L. Webb, this 1st day of July, 1899.

T. J. Childress, J. P. K. Co.

QUARTERLY REPORT

Of the Boone County Deposit Bank at the close of business on the 30th day of June, 1899.

RESOURCES:

Loans and Discounts	$64,134 20
Overdrafts unsecured	5 86
Due from National Banks	35,861 49
Due from State Banks and Bankers	6,836 38
Banking House & lot	1,221 16
Mortgages	18,858 46
U. S. Bonds	33,260 58
Specie $3,779 95
Currency 2,362 00	6,141 95
Furniture and Fixtures	2,078 84
Stamp account
	$168,198 92

LIABILITIES:

Capital Stock paid in, in cash	$30,000 00
Surplus Fund	20,000 00
Undivided Profits	3,180 29
Due Depositors	110,772 51
Unpaid Dividends	4,095 70
Taxes due and unpaid	150 42
	$168,198 92

State of Ky., County of Boone { ss.

Jo C. Revill, cashier of Boone Co. Deposit Bank, a Bank located and doing business in the town of Burlington, in said county, being duly sworn, says that the foregoing report is in all respects a true statement of the condition of the said Bank, at the close of business on the 30th day of June, 1899, to the best of his knowledge and belief; and further says that the business of said Bank has been transacted at the location named, and not elsewhere; and that the above report is made in compliance with an official notice received from the Secretary of State designating the 30th day of June, 1899, as the day on which report shall be made.

Jo C. Revill, Cashier.

Subscribed and sworn to before me by Jo C. Revill, the 1st day of July, 1899. N. E. RIDDELL, N. P. B. C.

Commission expires Jan. 23, 1900.

F. Riddell, Director.
M. T. Garnett, "
Jo C. Revill, "

Buy a Buggy Where the Many BUY.

Our Goods are Reliable and of Good Standard Grades.

and will sell anything in our Store for the CASH as cheap

as you will buy elsewhere.

Our Motto: BUY for CASH sell for CASH,
GOOD GOODS AT LOWEST LIVING PRICES.

Respectfully,

L. B. HUNTER, Rising Sun, Ind.

OUR MILLINERY DEPARTMENT

Is in full blast and is filled with Trimmed and Untrimmed Hats at LOWER PRICES than ever.

LADIES' SKIRTS, PETTICOATS and SHIRT WAISTS ranging in price from 25c up, and in fact the whole house is chucked full of BARGAINS.

W. H. CLARK,
Rising Sun, Indiana.

JOHN ALLISON,

UNDER- TAKER EMBAL- MER,

—Corner Pike & Russell Streets,—

COVINGTON, - - KENTUCKY.

INDEPENDENT OF UNDERTAKERS' UNION.

Order Spring Suits NOW

And we will make them up artistically and ready for you promptly on time. We have

Over Five Hundred Styles

Of Spring and Summer Woolens to Select from. They come direct from the looms of foreign and domestic manufacturers, and surpass in elegance and variety anything ever shown in Covington. In the assortment are many exclusive patterns—goods that cannot be duplicated by any other establishment in this city. Keep these facts in mind and place your order for a stylish suit with us. We promise you a faultless fit, the proper cut, and a price that will not be more than you can afford to pay.

H. F. BLASE,
535 Madison Avenue,
COVINGTON, - - KENTUCKY

H. F. BLASE.

A Word to the Public

MY STOCK OF

Dry Goods, Notions,

AND LADIES' AND GENTS'

TOILET ARTICLES

for the Spring Trade has been received, and to be appreciated must be seen. Fresh

DRUGS AND GROCERIES

received daily. A large stock of

PAINTS & OILS

on hand at all times. All Goods New and Clean, and are sold at the

LOWEST CASH PRICES.

—GIVE ME A CALL—

J. G. OELSNER, Florence, Ky.

Local News.

Tobacco is growing nicely.

A very dry, and dusty fourth.

The Burlington boys have base ball fever again.

The Democrats are lining up for the State ticket.

There was some very fine weather for harvesting.

June furnished its usual supply of hot weather.

The dog poisoner got in his work here, Sunday night.

There is not such a demand for the daily papers, this week.

Come to think about it it is not so long now until circuit court again.

W. C. Brown and Geo. Blyth went over to Indiana, Friday, to buy corn.

Some wheat is turning out very poorly—the grain is said to be light.

Our paper was printed several hours ahead of time this week on account of the fourth.

☞Go to A. Corbin & Son's for first-class Kanawha Coal at 9 cents per bushel of 76 pounds. au-1

Bradford Bros., of Florence, sent John Rogers, of Bellevue, a nice, new buggy, last Monday.

A very small crowd in town Monday, notwithstanding the Republicans held a county convention.

Tony Bentler's threshing machine will begin operation this week. He will thresh his own crop first.

W. C. Johnson, of Midway, was awarded the contract for building the large barn on the fair grounds at Florence.

Nothing in the way of a patriotic demonstration, save a few fireworks, was indulged in by Burlington on the fourth.

It is difficult to get up a good local paper, and preside at a job press 3 or 4 days in the week. We will try and do better from now on.

Lost—Spring off of a Fraizer cart, on the Burlington and Florence pike. Finder will please return to Frank Hossman at Hebron.

On the first page is the entire premium list for the next big fair to be held at Florence. Examine it and make up a list of the premiums you desire to compete for.

The Big Bone Camp Meeting will begin the 25th of July with J. C. Johnson and wife in charge under the auspices of the Methodist Church. W. G. Cram pastor.

Hubert Gaines sold his 6 year old bay harness mare Gullin to Chas. Kahn, of Cincinnati, one day last week. Price, $200. She was the best young roadster about here.

A protracted meeting will begin at the Bellevue Christian church, Sunday evening, July 9. Elder John T. Hawkins, of Lexington, will do the preaching. Everybody is invited to attend.

The Sunday School Convention of the North Bend Association of Baptists will be held with the Oak Ridge, Kenton county, church, July 13. Board meeting same place on the 14th.

Tobacco is growing nicely. In some places the grasshoppers came very near destroying the crop before it could get a start. Some sprayed their plants with Paris green, to destroy these pests.

Supt. Voshell is talking for a telephone from Union to Florence, and thinks there will be but little trouble to secure it. As soon as he gets his harvesting done he will get to work in earnest, and soon know to a certainty what can be done.

J. W. Hance, of Jackson's Landing, has been nominated by the Democrats of Carroll and Gallatin counties as their next representative in the legislature. Mr. Hance is a brother of that excellent gentleman, M. E. Hance, of Big Bone. His election is a foregone conclusion.

It was free day over the Burlington and Florence telephone line, Friday, and it was patronized extensively, the boys enjoying it very much. One gentleman it is said went to try the 'phone and put the receiver to his mouth and his ear, to the speaking tube. He thought the thing a failure.

One night last week some person stole about 60 chickens from Mrs. Geo. H. Gordon. The thieves were heard by Mr. and Mrs. Gordon, the former starting out to make trouble with them with his shot gun, but in crossing a porch he collided with a rocking chair, making so much noise that the raiders heard it and left.

The contest for the RECORDER'S watch closed last Friday. It narrowed down between J. M. Eddins and J. W. Sebree, Mr. Eddins winning with 109 subscriptions while Mr. Sebree was only six behind him. Each of these gentlemen did good work for us, and we have authorized them to continue to collect and receipt for subscriptions to the RECORDER.

The absence of our Union items, this week, is accounted for thus: Our correspondent took them to Supt. Voshell's early Monday morning, where they were laid on the mantle piece, and when the Superintendent took a look through a new telescope, just received from the Louisville convention, he overlooked the communication and left it one instead of bringing it.

The Walton and Burlington base ball teams tried conclusions here, last Saturday afternoon, in the presence of a small crowd of spectators. Poor playing marked the game throughout, the score being 34 to 13 in favor of Burlington. The only professional play was Johnnie Hogan's slide to third. James Metcalf's work at second for the Walton club, elicited applause.

HAMILTON HEIRS.

To the heirs of Joel Hamilton, who died in Texas, May 30th, 1857, having been ship-wrecked while on his passage from Galveston to Indianola, and was buried in Galveston:

Joel Hamilton resided in Gonzalas county, Texas, and had a large estate, part of which was lost during the war. I desire to correspond with the heirs and I can write them the condition of the estate. I will give a brief history of the family:

Morris Hamilton was born in Buckingham county, Va., sixty miles from Richmond; he was a revolutionary soldier: he married a Miss Mary Boudurant of Buckingham county: removed to Kenton county, Ky., had ten children, one of whom Joel Hamilton, emigrated to Gonzalas county, Texas, about the year 1838, as the records show that he was there at that time and perhaps earlier. Joel Hamilton was not married, therefore all his property goes to the heirs of his brothers and sisters, whose names are as follows:

Wm. Hamilton, Isham Goss Hamilton, Henry Hamilton, John Hamilton, Jesse Hamilton, Mary, married a McGlassen, Elizabeth, married a Hamilton, Martha, married Anthony Garrett, Nancy, married Will McGlassen, a son of John McGlassen.

Elizabeth Hamilton died in the State of Missouri, left one heir, they resided on Little river at a place called Piney. Mary McGlassen is dead, has a son, Joel McGlassen, who has employed me to investigate this estate; he resides in Gonzalas county. He was administrator DE BONUS NON, he settled all the debts. The court appointed a receiver 34 years ago, who gave bond, he was to settle with the heirs, and has not paid out one cent to them; all the bondsmen are dead and if suit is not brought within three years the heirs will be barred by the statute of limitation. The amount now in the hands of receiver is $3,377 08 and he has made no report since October 2, 1874.

The receiver is a man of considerable influence, a banker, ex-congressman and a consummate scoundrel. He should have looked up the heirs and paid out this money to them. It will be necessary to bring suit in the district court to collect this money.

In the courts I might recover 6 per cent. interest, if so this would amount to $5,050.60, which added to the principal would be $8,417.60. I will answer any letter of inquiry. None of the heirs except Wm. McNeal, of Boone county, Ky., who married Henry's daughter Elizabeth, and Isham Goss Hamilton; they employed H. S. Parker as an attorney, who subsequently went crazy and was sent to the asylum.

If the heirs who are interested in the above estate will write me and make me power of attorney, I will institute suit and collect the money for ten per cent. of the principal, amounting to $8,367.08, which went into the hands of the receiver, and one eighth of all accrued interest which I may be able to collect.

J. B. NEWSOM, Atty. at Law,
Gonzales, Texas.

Reference: G. N. Dilworth & Sons, Bankers, Gonzales, Texas.

Republican Mass Meeting.

The Republicans held their convention here, Monday, to select delegates to attend the convention which will meet in Lexington on the 12th inst., to nominate a State ticket. The meeting was called to order by T. B. Mathews, chairman of the County Committee. T. B. Mathews and Geo. W. Baker were put in nomination for permanent chairman. A rising vote was taken for chairman, and Mathews was elected by a considerable majority. W. H. Metcalf was elected secretary without opposition.

A committee of three on delegates, and a like committee on resolutions, was appointed. The committee on delegates reported the following as delegates to the State convention: T. B. Mathews, B. F. Zimmer, W. H. Metcalf, C. C. Hughes. The report was adopted.

The resolutions adopted by the convention ridiculed the free and ulimited coinage of silver at the ratio of 16 to 1; indorsed McKinley's administration, and also that of Gov. Bradley; and denounced the civil service law and the Goebel election law.

W. H. Metcalf was nominated for State Senator, but declined to accept, and it was decided to confer with the counties of Grant and Owen in regard to the matter.

NOTES:

Harmony laid around in huge chunks.

Some of the colored brothers were on hand.

A large number of Democrats witnessed the proceedings.

"The Republican party can't make a mistake," was a favorite declaration with the orators.

Col. Graddy modestly declined to address the convention, and was applauded heartily—a doubtful compliment.

It was a very harmonious convention. Evidently it was thought that there is nothing in sight to be gained by a fight.

Chairman Mathews never fails to win out in all his undertakings in a county convention, and the boys line up for him in great shape. He is the light and the life of the Republican party in Boone county.

Col. Dyas, of Walton, made a rousing Republican speech while the convention was awaiting the reports of committees. It seems that the Colonel has found out, at last, "where he is at" politically. He ought to have been given that senatorial nomination that went begging.

When the committee on resolutions failed to report a resolution indorsing Gov. Bradley's administration, Chairman Mathews took the floor, and for a while it looked like harmony was going to depart, but Col. Dyas meekly informed him that the failure to report a resolution indorsing Gov. Bradley was an oversight on the part of the committee, and the out and dried resolution was quickly flashed on the convention from its hiding place, and the chairman subsided, but Col. Dyas proceeded, straightway, to make amends for the dereliction by indulging in a grand display of oratorical sky rockets, highly laudatory of the Governor.

Reuben Hager, of East Bend has 1,000 bushels of white corn for sale at 35 cents per bushel.

W. M. RACHAL & CO.

DOLLARS DO DOUBLE DUTY HERE.

Standard Granulated Sugar, 18 lbs. $1.00.
Arbuckle Coffee 10 cents per lb.
Daniel Boone Soap, 3 bars for 5 cents.
Pittsburg Wire less than city prices.
Lime, Cement, White Lead, Oils, Varnishes, etc., as cheap as in the city.

Baby Shoes for 10c per pair up.
Misses' Shoes for 50c per pair up.
A full line of Men's, Ladie's and Children's Tan Shoes—Latest Styles, Best Quality, Lowest Prices.
Men's Dress Pants, 75c per pair.
Wonder Overalls, Shirts and Pants, the best made.

COME at ONCE. THESE PRICES are ONLY While Present Stock Lasts.

UNION, KENTUCKY. UNION, KENTUCKY.

WILLIAM GOEBEL, NEXT GOVERNOR OF KENTUCKY.

"Recently the writer met Judge Wm. Pryor, than whom no man stands higher in Kentucky. In the course of the conversation, it was suggested that as the candidates would each develop constderable strength there might be a dead-lock in the convention, and in that event, he (Pryor) might be chosen as the Democratic candidate for Governor, and that he could undoubtedly be elected by an overwhelming majority. He promptly responded: 'I am for Senator Goebel. I know him, and, therefore, I am for him. I would rather see him Governor than be Governor myself. Such a man is needed. He would make an able Governor'"—Paris, Kentuckian-Citizen.

Goebel went into the convention to win. He became at once the soul of the gathering, and the adoption of the platform was a practical indorsement of his candidacy. He was recognized at once as a leader of men, beside whom the other candidates were pigmies. He is the man for the hour, and a leader in whom the people will have confidence.—Paducah Sun.

The nomination of Wm. Goebel means an assured victory for free silver, Joe Blackburn and Billy Bryan. Rah for Goebel.—Georgetown News.

Mr. Goebel made a remarkable fight from the fact that he went into the convention with less than 200 instructed votes and leaves it with the nomination and in absolute control of the entire party machinery.—Owen News.

McLPAIN & THOMSON,
Successors to RIGGS BROS.
Undertakers
—AND—
Embalmers,

LIVERY, BOARDING & FEED STABLES.
Special Rates to Traveling Men. Pianos, Organs and Furniture Carefully Removed. First-class Carriages for hire with careful drivers for Families, Parties, Weddings, etc.
LEXINGTON PIKE, - - - ERLANGER, KY.
J. M. EDDINS, Agent, Burlington, Ky.

The Sun Shines on both Sides of the Street for the Man, Boy or Child who wear our

CLOTHING

Come in and try on some of the New Styles, if you want a most graceful becoming suit. Our CLOTHING are easily the neatest fitting, finest looking and best wearing in the country. Our experience in the business enables us to sell at

ROCK BOTTOM.

Whether you are ready to buy or not, we want to see you in our store. It will cost you nothing to look at our goods.

ROLFES & WACHS, No. 1 Pike Street, Cor. Madison Ave.
COVINGTON, KENTUCKY.

Take Your County Paper.

When in Burlington Call on
J. S. CLUTTERBUCK
DEALER IN
DRY GOODS
Notions, Boots and Shoes,
Who has just received his stock of
SPRING & SUMMER SHOES,
the nicest stock ever in town. Have old stock which I AM SELLING AT GENUINE BARGAINS.
NICE LINE WALL PAPER,
☞At Prices to Suit the times.☜

DEERING - MACHINES
Are the favorites in every land where grass and grain grow. They are adopted to all conditions. They are the "Acme" of strength, durability, simplicity and light draft. We will carry a full line of Repairs. Buy the Machine that is fully guaranteed and handy to obtain repairs for.

Also remember we are headquarters for all kinds of
Farm Machinery
At bottom prices. We handle nothing but the best and fully guarantee all.

Also the Largest and Cheapest
Stock of Shoes
In the county, and a full line of
General -- Merchandise.
—CAN SAVE YOU MONEY.—
COME AND SEE.
T. J. HUGHES,
BEAVER LICK, KY.

GO TO
C. T. DAVIS & CO., HEBRON AND CONSTANCE, General Merchants,
A Good Supply of Feed always in Stock.
GARDEN AND FIELD SEEDS.
Undertaking Given Special Attention,
A good supply of Coal on hand at Constance at all times.
Hebron, C. T. DAVIS & CO. Constance

W. H. HOSHAL & COMPANY,
COMMISSION MERCHANTS,
Cattle, Hogs and Sheep,
—UNION STOCK YARDS,—
Cincinnati, - Ohio.
—TELEPHONE 7346.—
Information Regarding Live Stock Cheerfully Furnished.
Consign Your Stock Direct to Us.

LUMBER!
LATHS,
SHINGLES,
DOORS,
BLINDS,
SASH.
If you want any kind of Lumber it will be to your advantage to visit our yard at Lawrenceburg, Indiana, before buying. ☞Prices to Suit the Times.
M. E. LEMING & CO.

TO GOSSIP IS A SIN.

Dr. Talmage Denounces the Practice of Whispering of Evil.

Classes It Among the World's Greatest Villainies—More Harmful Than Open Slander—A Destroyer of Good Names.

(Copyright, 1899, by Louis Klopsch.)

In this discourse Dr. Talmage vigorously arraigns one of the great evils that have cursed the world and urges generous interpretation of the characters of others; text, Romans 1:29, "Full of envy, murder, debate, deceit, malignity—whisperers."

Paul was here calling the long roll of the world's villainy, and he puts in the midst of this roll those persons known in all cities and communities and places as whisperers. They are so called because they generally speak undervoice and in a confidential way, their hand to the side of their mouth acting as a funnel to keep the precious information from wandering into the wrong ear. They speak softly not because they have lack of lung force or because they are overpowered with the spirit of gentleness, but because they want to escape the consequences of defamation. If no one hears but the person whispered unto, and the offender be arraigned, he can deny the whole thing, for whisperers are always first-class liars!

Some people whisper because they are hoarse from a cold or because they wish to convey some useful information without disturbing others, but the creatures photographed by the apostle in my text give muffled utterance from sinister and depraved motive, and sometimes you can only hear the sibilant sound as the letter "s" drops from the tongue into the listening ear, the brief hiss of the serpent as it projects its venom.

Whisperers are masculine and feminine, with a tendency to majority on the side of those who are called "the lords of creation." Whisperers are heard at every window of bank cashier and are heard in all countingrooms as well as in sewing societies and at meetings of asylum directors and managers. They are the worst foes of society, responsible for miseries innumerable; they are the scavengers of the world, driving their cart through every community, and to-day I hold up for your holy anathema and execration these whisperers.

From the frequency with which Paul speaks of them under different titles I conclude that he must have suffered somewhat from them. His personal presence was very defective, and that made him perhaps the target of their ridicule, and besides that he was a bachelor, persisting in his celibacy down into the sixties—indeed, all the way through—and, some having failed in their connubial designs upon him, the little missionary was put under the raking fire of these whisperers. He was no doubt a rare morsel for their scandalization, and he cannot keep his patience any longer, and he lays hold of these miscreants of the tongue and gives them a very hard setting down in my text among the scoundrelly and the murderous. "Envy, murder, debate, deceit, malignity—whisperers."

The law of libel makes quick and stout grip of open slander. If I should in a plain way, calling you by name, charge you with fraud or theft or murder or uncleanliness, to-morrow morning I might have peremptory documents served on me, and I would have to pay in dollars and cents for the damage I had done your character. But these creatures spoken of in my text are so small that they escape the fine-tooth comb of the law. They go on, and they go on, escaping the judges and the juries and the penitentiaries. The district attorneys cannot find them, the sheriff cannot find them, the grand jury cannot find them. Shut them off from one route of perfidy, and they start on another. You cannot by the force of moral sentiment persuade them to desist. You might as well read the Ten Commandments to a flock of crows, expecting them to retreat under the force of moral sentiment. They are to be found everywhere, these whisperers. I think their paradise is a country village of about 1,000 or 2,000 people where everybody knows everybody, but they also are to be found in large quantities in all our cities.

They have a prying disposition. They look into the basement windows at the tables of their neighbors and can tell just what they have morning and night to eat. They can see as far through a keyhole as other people can see with a door wide open. They can hear conversation on the opposite side of the room. Indeed, the world to them is a whispering gallery. They always put the worst construction on everything.

Some morning a wife descends into the street, her eyes damp with tears, and that is a stimulus to the tattler and is enough to set up a business for three or four weeks. "I guess that husband and wife don't live happily together. I wonder if he hasn't been abusing her? It's outrageous! He ought to be disciplined. He ought to be brought up before the church. I'll go right over to my neighbor's and I'll let them know about this matter." She rushes in all out of breath to a neighbor's house and says: "Oh, Mrs. Allear, have you heard the dreadful news? Why, our neighbor, poor thing, came down off the steps in a flood of tears. That brute of a husband has been abusing her. Well, it's just as I expected. I saw him the other afternoon very smiling and very gracious to some one who smiles back, and I thought then I would just go up to him and tell him he had better go home and look after his wife and family, who probably at that very time were upstairs crying their eyes out. Oh, Mrs. Allear, do have your husband go over and put an end to this trouble! It's simply outrageous that our neighborhood should be disturbed in this way! It's awful!"

The fact is that one man or woman set on fire of this hellish spirit will keep a whole neighborhood a-boil. It does not require any very great brain. The chief requisition is that the woman have a small family or no family at all, because if she have a large family then she would have to stay at home and look after them. It is very important that she be single or have no children at all, and then she can attend to all the secrets of the neighborhood all the time. A woman with a large family makes a very poor whisperer.

It is astonishing how these whisperers gather up everything. They know everything that happens. There are telephone and telegraph wires reaching from their ears to all the houses in the neighborhood. They have no taste for healthy news, but for the scraps and peelings thrown out of the scullery into the back yard they have great avidity. On the day when there is a new scandal in the newspapers they have no time to go abroad. On the day when there are four or five columns of delightful private letters published in a divorce case she stays at home and reads and reads and reads. No time for her Bible that day, but toward night, perhaps, she may find time to run out a little while and see whether there are any new developments.

Satan does not have to keep a very sharp lookout for his evil dominion in that neighborhood. He has let out to her the whole contract. She gets husbands and wives into a quarrel and brothers and sisters into antagonism, and she disgusts the pastor with the flock and the flock with the pastor, and she makes neighbors who before were kindly disposed toward each other overcautious and critical, so when one of the neighbors passes by in a carriage they hiss through their teeth and say: "Ah, we could all keep carriages if we never paid our debts!"

When two or three whisperers get together they stir a caldron of trouble, which makes me think of the three witches of "Macbeth" dancing around a boiling caldron in a dark cave:

Double, double, toil and trouble,
Fire burn and caldron bubble.
Fillet of a fenny snake
In the caldron boil and bake;
Eye of newt and toe of frog,
Wool of bat and tongue of dog,
Adder's fork and blind worm's sting,
Lizzard's leg and owlet's wing,
For a charm of powerful trouble,
Like a hell broth boil and bubble.
Double, double, boil and trouble,
Fire burn and caldron bubble.
Scale of dragon, tooth of wolf,
Witches' mummy, maw and gut
Of the ravin'd salt sea shark;
Make the gruel thick and dark;
Add thereto a tiger's chaudron
For the ingredients of our caldron.
Double, double, toil and trouble,
Fire burn and caldron bubble;
Cool it with a babboon's blood.
Then the charm is firm and good.

I would only change Shakespeare in this, that where he puts the word "witch" I should put the word "whisperer." Ah, what a caldron! Did you ever get a taste of it? I have more respect for the poor waif of the street that goes down under the gaslight with no home and no God—for she deceives no one as to what she is—than I have for these hags of respectable society who cover up their tiger claws with a fine shawl and bolt the hell of their heart with a diamond breastpin.

The work of masculine whisperers is chiefly seen in the embarrassment of business. Now, I suppose there are hundreds of men here who at some time have been in business trouble. I will undertake to say that in nine cases out of ten it was the result of some whisperer's work. The whisperer uttered some suspicion in regard to your credit. You sold your horse and carriage because you had no use for them, and the whisperer said: "Sold his horse and carriage because he had to sell them. The fact that he sold his horse and carriage shows he is going down in business."

One of your friends gets embarrassed, and you are a little involved with him. The whisperer says: "I wonder if he can stand under all this pressure? I think he is going down. I think he will have to give up." You borrow money out of a bank, and the director whispers outside about it, and after awhile the suspicion gets fairly started, and it leaps from one whisperer's lips to another whisperer's lips until all the people you owe want their money and want it right away, and the business circles come around you like a pack of wolves, and, though you had assets four times more than were necessary to meet your liabilities, crash went everything. Whisperers! Oh, how much business men have suffered!

Sometimes in the circles of clergymen we discuss why it is that a great many merchants do not go to church. I will tell you why they do not go to church. By the time Saturday night comes they are worn out with the annoyances of business life. They have had enough meanness practiced upon them to set their whole nervous system a-twitch.

I think among the worst of the whisperers are those who gather up all the harsh things that have been said about you and bring them to you—all the things said against you, or against your family, or against your style of business. They gather them all up, and they bring them to you; they bring them to you in the very worst shape; they bring them to you without any of the extenuating circumstances, and after they have made your feelings all raw, very raw, they take this brine, this turpentine, this aqua fortis, and rub it in with a coarse towel, and rub it in until it sinks to the bone. They make you the pincushion in which they thrust all the sharp things they have ever heard about you. "Now, don't bring me into the scrape. Now, don't tell anybody I told you. Let it be between you and me. Don't involve me in it at all." They aggravate you to the point of profanity, and then they wonder you cannot sing psalm tunes! They turn you on a spit before a hot fire and wonder why you are not absorbed in gratitude to them because they turn you on a spit. Peddlers of night shade! Peddlers of Canada thistle! Peddlers of nux vomica! Sometimes they get you in a corner where you cannot very well escape without being rude, and then they tell you all about this one, and all about that one, and all about the other one, and they talk, talk, talk, talk, talk talk. After awhile they go away, leaving the place looking like a barnyard after the foxes and the weasels have been around; here a wing, and there a claw, and yonder an eye, and there a crop. How they do make the feathers fly!

Rather than the defamation of good names it seems to me it would be almost as honorable and useful if you just took a box of matches in your pocket and a razor in your hand and go through the streets and see how many houses you can burn down and how many throats you can cut. That is not a much worse business. The destruction of a man's name is worse than the destruction of his life. A woman came in confessional to a priest and told him that she had been slandering her neighbors. The priest promised her absolution on condition of her performing a penance. He gave her a thistle top and said: "You can take that thistle top and scatter the seeds all over the field." She went and did so and came back. "Now," said the priest, "gather up all those seeds." She said: "I can't." "Ah," he said, "I know you can't. Neither can you gather up the evil words you spoke about your neighbors." All good men and all good women have sometimes had detractors after them. John Wesley's wife whispered about him, whispered all over England, kept on whispering about that good man—as good a man as ever lived—and kept on whispering until the connubial relation was dissolved.

Jesus Christ had these whisperers after Him, and they charged Him with drinking too much and keeping bad company. "A wine bibber and a friend of publicans and sinners." You take the best man that ever lived and put a detective on his track for ten years, watching where he goes and when he comes and with a determination to misconstrue everything and to think he goes here for a bad purpose and there for a bad purpose, with that determination of destroying him, at the end of the ten years he will be held despicable in the sight of a great many people

If it is an outrageous thing to despoil a man's character, how much worse is it to damage a woman's reputation? Yet that evil grows from century to century, and it is all done by whispers. A suspicion is started. The next whisperer who gets hold of it states the suspicion as a proven fact, and many a good woman, as honorable as your wife or your mother, has been whispered out of all kindly associations, and whispered into the grave. Some people say there is no hell, but if there be no hell for such a despoiler of womanly character it is high time that some philanthropist build one! But there is such a place established, and what a time they will have when all the whisperers get down there together rehearsing things! Everlasting carnival of mud. Were it not for the uncomfortable surroundings you might suppose they would be glad to get there. In that region where they are all bad what opportunities for exploitation by these whisperers. On earth, to despoil their neighbors sometimes they had to lie about them, but down there they can say the worst things possible about their neighbors and tell the truth. Jubilee of whisperers. Semiheaven of scandal mongers stopping their gabble about their diabolical neighbors only long enough to go up to the iron gate and ask some newcomer from the earth: "What is the last gossip in the city on earth where we used to live?"

Now, how are we to war against this iniquity which curses every community on earth? First, by refusing to listen to or believe a whisper. Every court of the land has for a law and all decent communities have for a law that you must hold people innocent until they are proved guilty. There is only one person worse than the whisperer, and that is the man or woman who listens without protest. The trouble is, you hold the sack while they fill it. The receiver of the stolen goods is just as bad as the thief. An ancient writer declares that a slanderer and a man who receives the slander ought both to be hanged—the one by the tongue and the other by the ear—and I agree with him.

When you hear something bad about your neighbors, do not go all over and ask about it, whether it is true, and scatter it and spread it. You might as well go to a smallpox hospital and take a patient and carry him all through the community, asking people if they really thought it a case of smallpox. That would be very bad for the patient and for all the neighbors. Do not retail slanders and whisperings. Do not make yourself the inspector of warts, and the supervisor of carbuncles, and the commissioner for street gutters, and the holder of stakes for a dog fight. Can it be that you, an immortal man; that you, an immortal woman, can find no better business than to become a gutter inspector?

Beside that, at your family table allow no detraction. Teach your children to speak well of others. Show them the difference between a bee and a wasp—the one gathering honey, the other thrusting a sting. I read of a family where they kept what they called "A Slander Book," and when any slanderous words were uttered in the house about anybody or detraction uttered it was all put down in this book. The book was kept carefully. For the first few weeks there were a great many entries, but after awhile there were no entries at all. Detraction stopped in that household. It would be a good thing to have a slander book in all households.

Heaven punishes the bad and proves the best.—Dryden.

TRUTHS BLUNTLY TOLD.

Senator Hanna's Civil Service Views Repudiated by Honest Republicans.

The New York Press, which is uncompromisingly republican and therefore not chargeable with political prejudice in its comments, takes exceptions to the recent expressions by Senator Hanna regarding the changes in civil services exemption and says he "will not find himself in accord with independent and republican sentiment."

The Press admits that the "step backward" might be made use of as an aid to securing a presidential nomination, the politicians' viewpoint being unanimous on the question. But, it declares, "those who are interested in the republican party from other viewpoints than the politicians' regard the getting of votes at the polls to elect candidates as of heavier importance to the party and country than getting delegates to vote in convention to nominate candidates. And while the 'step backward' can be used to get delegates, it can hardly be made to serve any other purpose than to lose votes at the polls.

This New York republican paper truthfully says that the American voters are supporters of the civil service principles, and it claims that because of its championship of these principles the republican party has gained the confidence and aid of thousands of voters who otherwise were not in the strongest sympathy with that party. To take this "step backward," then, was to invite believers in a better civil service to look elsewhere than to the present executive for what they seek.

The "practical politics" argument, according to the contention of the New York Press, might have a leg to stand on if the "practical politicians" believed that it was absolutely necessary to renominate McKinley, and that the only possible way to secure that renomination was by the civil service "step backward." But the "practical politicians" think it is a foregone conclusion that he will be renominated. To achieve the purpose of "practical politics," says the republican paper, "it was not necessary to backslide on the civil service question and sacrifice the votes of civil service folk."

There is sound sense in this, and it is commended to the careful consideration of the delegates to the Ohio republican state convention who so heartily commended the president for his "judicious modifications of the civil service rules recently promulgated." The New York republican paper is doubtless right when it says "the party must suffer more or less now, and a great deal more later, when, more pressing questions having been disposed of, we are called upon for a reckoning of the 'step backward.'"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

THE PHILIPPINE SITUATION.

Neither "Benevolent Assimilation" Nor Successful Conquest, But Guerrilla War.

Although the war in the Philippines is Mr. McKinley's own—congress never having declared it—the American people are fighting and paying for it. They are therefore entitled to full and trustworthy information concerning it. A double censorship, at Manila and at Washington, keeps this information from the people. But these facts are not denied:

1. The war has now lasted for 139 days, or 25 days longer than our war with Spain. We hold, after this period, less of the territory than Spain occupied and less than we held in August of last year. The rebel forces are now more "troublesome" than at any former time.

2. The war has cost nearly 700 men killed, 6,500 wounded, 10,000 invalidated. It has cost $63,000,000 in money, and is costing nearly $300,000 a day. Our losses in the fighting in Cuba which resulted in the surrender of Santiago and the end of the war with Spain were about 220 killed and 1,300 wounded. Our losses in Porto Rico were three killed and 40 wounded.

3. There have been sent to Gen. Otis 28,000 men. Some 4,500 more are under sailing orders. The president has decided, it is said, quietly to enlist the 35,000 volunteers he was authorized by congress to add to the army for temporary use.

4. According to the best expert testimony it will take from 100,000 to 150,000 troops to subdue the Filipinos and hold the principal points in the islands.

5. The rainy season will soon put an end to campaigning. "Fifty per cent. of our men will be incapacitated by sickness and the territory overrun will have to be abandoned; Manila will be in a state of siege again." This is the testimony of Dr. McQueston, late of Gen. Otis' staff and health officer of Manila.

6. The president's peace commission is a total failure, owing largely to its inability to consider any terms except unconditional surrender and absolute submission to the "sovereignty of the United States."

This is not a pleasing picture. It is neither "benevolent assimilation" nor successful conquest. It has all the appearance of a foolish and futile and endless guerrilla war. If Mr. McKinley can "crush the insurrection by an overwhelming force," as his supporters are urging him to do, it is manifestly the part of wisdom for him to do so. There is neither honor nor profit in permitting this unnecessary and un-American war to drag on into another year.—N. Y. World.

——The censorship over the telegraph lines at Manila is one of the developments of our new imperial form of government which is particularly significant. A careful scrutiny of all mail and telegraph matter going in to the Philippines is entirely proper, and as our navy occupies the coast and our forces have the cables in their possession it can easily be maintained. But why is the outbound matter so ruthlessly cut to pieces?—Pittsburgh Post.

DRUMMERS DISCHARGED.

Workers for McKinley in 1896 Who Are Now Without Occupation.

McKinley was elected president in 1896 through the influence of the money power.

Trusts poured out the money necessary to buy votes to the extent of at least $3,000,000, as admitted by republican leaders, and it is believed by intelligent democrats that five times that sum was expended.

One of the leading features of the campaign was the efforts of the army of commercial travelers, known colloquially as drummers, to secure ballots for McKinley, the alleged advance agent of prosperity. What reward has been given to this army of drummers for services rendered?

The answer to this question may be found in the testimony before the industrial commission of P. E. Dowe, president of the Commercial Travelers' association. The figures he submitted show that the organization of the trusts had resulted in throwing 35,000 salesmen out of employment and in reducing the salaries of 25,000 more. President Dowe estimated that the annual loss to the salesmen on account of loss of employment and reductions aggregated $60,000,000; to the hotels, $25,000,000, and to the railroads, $27,000,000, because of the loss of patronage.

Perhaps the commercial travelers may now regret their display of zeal in behalf of a man whose election has caused loss of employment in many cases and reduction of salaries in most cases.

In making his statement, the witness said: "The great tobacco combines threw out about 3,000 salesmen; the Continental Tobacco company telegraphed the discharge of 250 in one day; the Baking Powder trust has dispensed with all excepting half a dozen men. I know of two salesmen discharged by the trust who were formerly in the employ of the Cleveland Baking Powder company, one receiving a salary of $5,000 a year, the other $1,500. Their routes, with those of other discharged salesmen, are covered by one agent at $18 a week."

In 1896 the drummers had to work for McKinley under duress and in fear of losing their situations. Now a large per cent. of them have been discharged regardless of what they did. They will be heard from in 1900.—Chicago Democrat.

REAPING THE WHIRLWIND.

Republican Protection Has Brought Forth Its Legitimate Fruits.

Havemeyer's statement, that the republican tariff is the mother of trusts is not new, but it is true—unmistakably, undeniably true. Protection is as surely a breeder of the trust evil as is filth the begetter of disease.

One republican organ which has of late been denouncing trusts in a Pickwickian sense said recently that behind the democratic outcry against trusts was the concealed motive to destroy the principle of protection in our revenue laws. The democrats have never made any concealment about the matter. They have always from the beginning of their party history opposed class legislation, and the principle of protection embodies the most flagrant form of class legislation. They have always opposed a protective tariff because that is the most pronounced form of legalized robbery.

When the republican party went before the country advocating a policy which takes from the earnings of the many tributa for the pockets of the few, it planted in our public morals the false tenet that it is proper to force the consumer to pay the manufacturer a price beyond that derivable from competitive profit solely to reward him for being in the manufacturing business.

The republican party planted the wind of protection and the country is reaping the whirlwind of trusts.

Mr. Havemeyer argued logically when he took the ground that the cure of the trust evil cannot be effected without removing its cause. The democracy proposes, if intrusted with power, to eliminate the protection feature from our laws and place the tariff on a purely revenue basis. While doing this it will attack trusts with every form of remedial legislation derivable from the federal and state functions of government.—St. Louis Republic.

POINTS AND OPINIONS.

——When the president has time he will oblige a good many people by explaining why he delayed overhauling the civil service so long if the country was suffering under its rules.—Kansas City Times.

——Mark Twain should hurry home and hustle if he wants to retain his position as the great American humorist. Some republican wrote an anti trust plank for the Ohio platform.—Omaha World-Herald.

——Having observed the satisfactory and beneficent influence of the spoils system in army management and operation, President McKinley considered it his solemn duty to begin the breaking down of the entire merit system.—Detroit Free Press.

——Mr. Depew makes a center shot when he declares that trusts centralize the control of wealth. That, of necessity, must raise prices, reduce wages and promote idleness. His declaration that there is at present a contrary effect will not be commonly accepted. Both Mr. Hanna and Mr. Depew are apologetic and explanatory in their treatment of the trust subject. Their pleas are in avoidance. Mr. Depew has furnished a conclusive reason why trusts will be a fighting issue this year and next year. He has been frank enough to express the great danger to the people—the raising of prices and the lowering of wages.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

SCHOOL AND CHURCH.

London is to have a school of instruction for wireless telegraphy.

There are 345,000 native Protestant Christians and 30,000 native Roman Catholics in Dutch East India.

At Roubaix, one of the socialist strongholds of France, the 11,000 public school children receive free food and clothing at the expense of the town.

The Central Presbyterian church of Brooklyn opened recently a free home for seamen, where the sailors of all countries and of any religious belief can receive their mail, answer their letters, and have a free reading and recreation room, as well as religious training.

The Salvation Army, whose headquarters are in New York city, has been incorporated under the laws of the state of New York as a public body. The object of incorporation is to control the property of the Salvation Army in America, which is valued at $145,000. This action completely severs the American section from Gen. Booth's control.

Superintendent Andrews has recommended to the principals and teachers of the Chicago schools the adoption of an "amended" spelling of certain words. The new spelling, which is indorsed by the National Educational association, is advised in the case of such words as "programme," "though," "thorough," "throughout," "catalogue" and "decalogue," these words appearing in the new system as "program," "tho," "thoro," "throut," "catalog" and "decalog."

Rev. Wilson Carlile, rector of St. Mary-at-Hill, London, is an up-to-date priest. He takes a trombone with him into the pulpit and when the singing becomes spiritless he livens it up with a few blasts on that instrument. During the greater part of the service the church is darkened, and the hymns, prayers, sacred and other pictures are thrown by limelight on a huge screen suspended across the altar. Beside the organ there is an orchestra composed of girls wearing surplices and college mortar boards.

A DIPLOMATIC SUSPICION.

The Heavy-Set Young Man Asks for Information on King Oscar.

He was a very heavy-set young man with a purple necktie and fine linen of variegated design. In spite of the fact that he wore diamonds he was not proud. A very dignified gentleman was sitting beside him in the street car. He looked up in surprise as he heard himself addressed.

"Say, beau, who's this fellow King Oscar?"

"I beg your pardon—I don't quite understand."

"King Oscar. Who is he? Put me next."

"I haven't the honor of acquaintance with any royal personages," was the freezing rejoinder, and the sedate gentleman turned to look at the scenery.

"Aw, that's all right. I don't mean for you to take me on your arm and go up to Oscar and say: 'Here, king, is my long-lost friend. He's dearer to me than four aces in a game of penuckle. Ask him to dinner, king, for my sake. I know you're a good fellow and you'd do it all right if I asked you, but I wouldn't have the nerve. I'm awful timid. Just tell me who he is."

"Why, he's the king of Sweden."

"Geddub, beau. Get a move of your guide book. That ain't enough. What kind of a party is he? Is he all right?"

"Why, he's all right, so far as I know."

"Has he any friends?"

"Certainly."

"Well, I'd like to put him next. Somebody's layin' for Oscar to give him a tricky twist and get both shoulders on the mat. I have noticed it time and again; whenever there's any excitement, some one pipes up for King Oscar to come off the throne a minute and umpire the game. Nobody asks for anybody else. What do you think of that?"

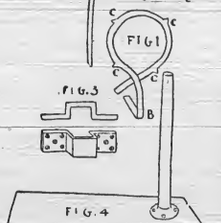
"Nothing."

"Well, it's worth thinking about. You know what happens to the umpire sooner or later. I believe there's somebody in that outfit who is prejudiced against Oscar simply because he is a Swede."—Chicago Times-Herald.

STEAMSHIP'S LARDER.

Two and a Half Tons of Butter, Twenty Thousand Eggs, Thousands of Oysters.

One tidy little refrigerator about six feet wide and twice that depth is the butterman's stall in this market under the sea. Little tubs of butter are arranged on shelves to the amount of 5,000 pounds, and in company with these are 20,000 eggs. Twenty-five hundred quarts of milk and cream are stored in a separate room, all having been sterilized. This market has a room especially for salt meats, and here are hams, bacon and tongues to the amount of 4,000 pounds. There are some articles of food without which the epicure would be unhappy, and which must be alive when cooked. Chief among these are oysters, of which 16,000 are carried to meet the wants of the passengers. Clams are only provided to the number of 1,500. Lobsters are not abundantly supplied; 700 pounds is all the storeroom shelters. This market in the bottom of the ship contains, beside the things mentioned, fruits, green vegetables and an enormous stock of groceries. The latter is only limited by space, for groceries are not perishable goods and will keep from one voyage to another until used. Tea and coffee are used in large amounts—about 33 pounds of tea and 56 pounds of coffee. Perishable supplies are taken on board in proportion to the number of passengers booked, and anything of this kind which is left over when the ship reaches port is eaten by the crew.—Helen C. Candee, in Ladies' Home Journal.



AGRICULTURAL HINTS.

GRAIN-BAG HOLDERS.

They Save Much Heavy Lifting and Keep Many Hands and Fingers from Getting Tired.

The old proverb, "Make your head save your heels," might well be extended to include fingers where grain-bags are still held by hand, as they very generally are. There is, perhaps, no farm convenience so easy to make that will save so much lifting and so many tired hands and fingers as bag-holders. Here are several based upon the one principle.

The stationary one illustrated in Figs. 1 and 2 is made as follows: Take a piece of flat iron rod about six feet long, one inch wide and one-fourth of an inch thick, with some spring to it. Bend it till it takes the form shown in Fig. 1, with the short end A below the long one and sprung downward from it, so as to leave a hand's breadth between the two parts that would, otherwise touch. Cut several notches half an inch deep and slightly more than a quarter of an inch wide on the lower side of the short end so that they will fit down over the long end. Then at a point B, six or eight inches from where the two ends cross, give the long end a twist and a bend downward, as shown in Fig. 2. In the long end bore some holes for screws, and fasten the now complete bag-holder to a post, the side of the granary or to any other convenient object where the grain is to be handled.

GRAIN BAG HOLDERS.

When a bag is to be filled slip the mouth around the iron circle previously held by the last notch from the end A. Engage the cloth with the four short, blunt spikes C, C, C, C, that should be added to prevent slipping. Loosen the end A, and let another notch engage with the end B. It takes but a moment to put on or take off the bag, which is held firmly.

The same holder may be made portable in two ways; first, by the use of brackets such as shown in Fig. 3. These may be screwed to any convenient object in any place desired, the end B being slipped in and taken out at will. The second may be made of a piece of gas or other iron pipe securely screwed to a plank, as shown in Fig. 4, the end-piece B being slipped in the top. The advantage of the latter arrangement is that the bag-holder may be taken anywhere upon the farm, even to the field when necessary.

One thing that must be borne in mind in making these bag-holders is that they must not be so high above the ground that the bag will be suspended. The bottom of the sack must rest upon the ground, else the weight and the jar will tear the screws loose in a short time. The holder is for keeping the mouth of the sack open, not for lifting it also.—M. G. Kains, in Farm and Fireside.

TALK ABOUT CLOVER.

How Rain and Excessive Soil Moisture Affects Its Value as a Food for Live Stock.

I have noticed recently that there have been some inquiries in regard to red clover, as to whether it will cause scours when fed to young stock.

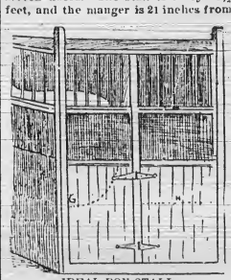
Of course in a very wet season, such as was experienced in Missouri last season, clover, as well as grasses, would be inferior in nutrition compared with crops grown in a dry season, either fed dry or green. It may contain properties when grown in a wet season that will cause scours. I am sure of one thing, that in a wet season clover does not contain very many fat producing constituents, for it is as much as stock can do to hold the fat already gained, even when the clover and grass growth is luxuriant; while in a dry season, even with a shortage, stock will fatten.

Clover is the best foliage plant we have, notwithstanding the foregoing conclusions, especially for cattle. There is some objection to it for horse feed, but by proper care in cutting at the right time, and curing without any exposure to dew or rain, this trouble can be entirely overcome. The objection to clover for horse feed is in the fine fuzz on the leaves and stems of the plant, which is carried into the lungs of the horse by the breath while he is eating. I have learned of late by actual experience that if clover is cut early enough those particles will adhere to the stems and can be swallowed and digested without any bad effect whatever. To avoid this trouble clover should be cut before many of the heads begin to turn brown, and should not be exposed, when partially dried, to dews.—C. D. Bent, in Rural World.

Every boy and girl should learn to ride a horse gracefully and well.

SHEEP EATING WEEDS.

They Are Far Better Scavengers in the Orchard in Early Summer Than the Hogs.



The American Sheep breeder points out the fact that many plants usually classed as weeds are in pastures often eaten by sheep, either to give variety to their diet or for the tonic effect on their systems. It mentions the common dandelion, parsley, yarrow, and even thoroughwort, as desirable for this use. In England sheep growers purposely sow yarrow when laying down pastures for sheep, and also the narrow-leafed plantain. Most of these are somewhat bitter to the taste, and the liking for what is bitter seems to be a peculiarity of the sheep, which often leads it to eat leaves that are poisonous rather than medicinal. It is possible that all these plants have medicinal qualities, but the sheep does not know enough to doctor itself with them, as sheep are often poisoned by eating leaves of hurel when allowed to run where that poisonous plant grows. We have known sheep to be poisoned when an overdose of cherry leaves was probably the cause. The leaves of the cherry, peach, almond, and of the common oleander all contain prussic acid, and all are poisonous when eaten in any quantity.

It is chiefly, we think, when pastures are dried up, and the sheep's appetites are clamorous for some green thing, that these fresh leaves are most attractive to them. Yet we hate to leave even dried leaves of the cherry, almond or peach where sheep could eat all they liked of them. The craving for something bitter probably explains why sheep will eat the tender shoots of nearly all deciduous trees, which are almost invariably bitter to the palate. With regard to anything uncleanly as regards animal excrement or blood, the taste of the sheep is more refined and sensitive than that of any other farm animal. But it unquestionably does have a liking for what is bitter to the taste, and will eat the small, wormy apples that a hog will turn up his nose at, while the hog will pick its favorite food among filth that no sheep could be brought near enough to touch. In the early summer, when the small, bitter, wormy apples are falling, the sheep is, therefore, a much better scavenger in the orchard than is the hog.

FOR THE HORSE BARN

How to Build a Box Stall That Is Arranged for Comfort as Well as Convenience.

A well arranged box stall for horses is shown herewith. The upper portion consists of iron rods extending from the top of the side to a railing two feet above. The front is provided with screen doors. The stall is 9 by 4½ feet, and the manger is 21 inches from front to back. An iron feed trough for grain occupies one end of the manger, indicated by dotted lines at g. The remainder is taken up by the hay box at h, the bottom of which is shown by the dotted lines. A door in front allows for cleaning out the feed box and opens to a closet. The box stalls are also provided with the iron rods for a top finish, so that a person can easily see into them without entering. The interior exposed wood work is varnished, making a neat and substantial finish.—Farm and Home.

IDEAL BOX STALL.

PLAIN HORSE TALK.

The record of endurance made by the saddle bred horses during the last campaign is of the greatest interest.

There is an increased interest in saddle horse breeding, and we hope soon to see fewer misfits under the saddle.

A big rolling door made of furring strips and mosquito net does not cost much, and is a great preserver of horse flesh.

Too much care cannot be taken of the feet. It is much easier to keep the feet sound than to cure them after they have become injured by neglect or carelessness.

Do not let the hot weather come and find your stables badly ventilated. Horses cannot be kept healthy and in the best condition if their quarters are close and full of foul odors.

If your horse's feet have become hard, soak them in water or apply a poultice of flax seed. A pad made of a piece of an old blanket or some woolen cloth thoroughly wet and fastened around the hoof will allay fever and help to keep the feet in good condition.—Farm Journal.

Pumpkins in Cornfields.

Pumpkins are usually grown in the cornfield, under the supposition that it is economical to grow them in that manner, but the land does not respond to two crops as favorably as to one. The proper way to grow pumpkins is to prepare a piece of ground for them and grow them as a special crop apart from corn. They can be better cultivated and will produce a greater weight than when grown in the cornfield. As a food in winter in connection with grain pumpkins are excellent, especially for cattle.

What a Little Faith Did
FOR MRS. ROCKWELL.

[LETTER TO MRS. PINKHAM NO. 69,864]

"I was a great sufferer from female weakness and had no strength. It was impossible for me to attend to my household duties. I had tried everything and many doctors, but found no relief.

"My sister advised me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which I did; before using all of one bottle I felt better. I kept on with it and to my great surprise I am cured. All who suffer from female complaints should give it a trial."—MRS. ROCKWELL, 1209 S. DIVISION ST., GRAND RAPIDS, MICH.

From a Grateful Newark Woman.

"When I wrote to you I was very sick, had not been well for two years. The doctors did not seem to help me, and one said I could not live three months. I had womb trouble, falling, ulcers, kidney and bladder trouble. There seemed to be such a drawing and burning pain in my bowels that I could not rest anywhere. After using Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Sanative Wash and following your advice, I feel well again and stronger than ever. My bowels feel as if they had been made over new. With many thanks for your help, I remain, L. G., 74 ANN ST., NEWARK, N. J."

SELFISH MAN PUNISHED.

A Little Train Incident That Gave Justice-Loving Passengers Much Joy.

Passengers on an Atlantic City train a few evenings ago were treated to a spectacle of retributive justice that tickled them famously. The car was crowded, and, as the dust was flying pretty thickly, all the passengers save one had their windows down. This unpleasant exception was a disgruntled-looking party, with a plentiful growth of weedy-looking whiskers, and these he allowed to sway in and out of the window with the gusty zephyrs. Of course, he got none of the dust and cinders, for these always blow in the seat directly behind. Two nicely dressed women occupied these unfortunate quarters, and, after suffering martyrdom for about 20 minutes, one of them asked the "open-window fiend" if he would mind putting the window down. "No!" he replied, gruffly. "It's too warm. If you don't like it change your seat."

In front of the man sat a traveling man, who took in the situation at a glance. Quick as a flash he raised his window, and instantly the flowing facial appendages of the man behind began to perform a most fearful series of gyrations. The dust speckled them, and the wind twisted them. Their owner, after a few moments of such violence, got red in the face and then put his window down. A few moments later he leaned over and asked the other passengers to shut off the draught in a similar manner, but, to the intense amusement and gratification of the balance of the people in the car, who had watched the little comedy all the way through, the drummer, without so much as a twinkle of the eye, replied: "No! It's too warm. If you don't like it change your seat!"—Philadelphia Record.

Revised Proverbs.

A thing of beauty is a joy forever, if some other fellow happens to possess it.

You can lead a horse to water, but you cannot make him drink, but when you succeed in getting a man up against the bar he does his horse sense.

It's a long lane that has no turning when the treasure you are in search of is "just around the next bend."

Fortune knocks at many a man's door when he is out chasing the grower.—Chicago Times-Herald.

Men are somewhat like fish. As soon as they think they are able to get along on their own hook they are likely to get caught on someone else's.—L. A. W. Bulletin.

"No," said Fido through the fence to the tramp dog. "I don't mind being washed. It is such fun to roll in the dirt afterward."—Indianapolis Journal.

The only time a boy will carry a big basket without a protest is when it contains pie and cake for a picnic lunch.—Atchison Globe.

THE MARKETS.

	CINCINNATI, July 1.
LIVE STOCK—Cattle, common	$ 3	@	4 15
Select butchers	4 90	@	5 00
CALVES—Fair to good light	6 25	@	7 00
HOGS—Coarse and heavy	3 90	@	3 95
Mixed packers	3 70	@	3 80
Light shippers	3 75	@	3 90
SHEEP—Choice	3 25	@	4 00
LAMBS—Spring	6 25	@	6 70
FLOUR—Winter patent	3 40	@	3 70
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 red		@	72
No. 3 red		@	70
Corn—No. 2 mixed		@	38
Oats—No. 2 mixed		@	28
Rye—No. 2		@	66
HAY—Prime to choice		@	12 25
PROVISIONS—Mess pork		@	9 75
Lard		@	4 87½
BUTTER—Choice dairy		@	11
Prime to choice creamery		@	23
APPLES—Choice to fancy	2 25	@	2 50
POTATOES—New, per bu	1 75	@	2 00
	CHICAGO.
FLOUR—Winter patent	3 85	@	3 75
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 red		@	72½
No. 2 Chicago spring	70	@	72
CORN—No. 2		@	34
OATS—No. 2	25½	@	26
PORK—New mess	7 50	@	8 25
LARD—Steam	4 95	@	5 00
	NEW YORK.
FLOUR—Winter patent	3 90	@	4 10
WHEAT—No. 2 Red		@	80½
CORN—No. 2 mixed		@	40½
RYE		@	61
OATS—Mixed		@	3 15
PORK—New mess	10 50	@	10 75
LARD—Western		@	5 30
	BALTIMORE.
FLOUR—Family	3 20	@	3 50
GRAIN—Wheat No. 2 red	74½	@	74½
Southern	71	@	75½
Corn—Mixed	38	@	38¼
Oats—No. 2 white	32½	@	32¾
Rye—No. 2 western		@	57½
CATTLE—First quality	4 70	@	4 90
HOGS—Western	4 00	@	4 15
	INDIANAPOLIS.
GRAIN—Wheat, No. 2 red		@	73
Corn—No. 2 mix'd		@	33½
Oats—No. 2 mixed		@	27½
	LOUISVILLE.
FLOUR—Winter patent	3 75	@	4 00
GRAIN—Wheat No. 2 red		@	72
Corn—Mixed		@	36½
Oats—Mixed		@	28½
PORK—Mess		@	9 50
LARD—Steam		@	5 75

IT SURPRISED HIM.

The Professor Expected Death, But Heard Smooth Language from the Indian.

The late Prof. Marsh loved to tell of an adventure which once befell him while a member of a party of fossil hunters in the Indian country, says Forest and Stream.

The whole party realized that they were in a dangerous country, and all bands were constantly on the watch for enemies, and were careful not to wander far from the command; or if two or three fossil gatherers did go off from the main body they took with them a number of soldiers to stand guard while they worked.

One day Prof. Marsh was hard at work on his knees in the bottom of the narrow ravine digging away the soil from a bone which stuck out of the bank. He was entirely absorbed in his task and noticed nothing of what was going on about him until the brilliant sunlight was cut off by a dark shadow, and he looked up to see standing above him a grim Indian warrior holding his rifle ready.

The professor's heart leaped into his throat. He forgot where he was. He strove to utter a propitiatory "How," but his dry lips refused to form the word, and he could only swallow, trying to get rid of the lump in his throat. Suddenly the savage bent toward him and spoke:

"Have I the honor of addressing Prof. Othnell Charles Marsh, the eminent paleontologist of Yale college?" he inquired.

The revulsion of feeling was almost too much for the professor, who was now even less able to speak than he had been before.

It developed that the Indian as a small boy had been sent east, Christianized, educated, taught the element of theology and sent back to the west to civilize his tribe.

WHERE ICE IS WELCOME.

Gen. Funston Longed to Cut the Ice of Success and Has at Last Found It.

In connection with the possibility of Gen. Funston having a political ambition, J. W. Gleed tells a story which gives much insight into the character of the man, says the Kansas City Journal.

Gleed was in New York on the day Funston sailed away to join the insurgent forces in Cuba, and accompanied him to the steamer to say good-by. While the pair were talking at the steamer landing, Funston spoke of his probable future, and said:

"Willis, I have no ambition to get rich. I wouldn't get into politics for anything. I am afraid I have no settled aim or clearly seen ambition. But, nevertheless, I want to cut some ice in the world, and I intend to keep hustling until my time comes."

This yearning to cut ice has been manifest in all the movements of the restless, tireless, always moving young Kansas soldier. He has searched for his opportunity from the Arctic to the equator. Never staying anywhere long, he has dropped one thing after another in a fashion that made his friends fear he was a changeling and unstable.

But now they begin to comprehend that it was the eagerness and fretfulness of a mighty ambition, and that what they deplored in him was the very characteristic that was to lead him on to glory. Atlast, 10,000 miles away from home, he found a chance to cut the ice of his ambition, and in cutting he cut aplenty.

TRICKY PETS.

The Dossy and the Mongoose Are Fond of Playing Jokes on Their Owners.

The dossy, or "rock rabbit," is a new pet which has been brought from South Africa, and he is a very nice little fellow; but he has one little trick that nervous old ladies do not like. He waits till he finds his master or a friendly visitor asleep or reading or writing, and then he creeps as quietly as a mouse to as great a distance as he can jump, and when the busy person is not looking for anything of the kind he springs square on that person's lap or knee, or on the table beside him, flying off again, light as a bird, and is out of the room while the astonished person is having four kinds of fits.

The mongoose, a furry little animal about the size of a cat, which is used to hunt snakes, also plays a trick of this kind. It cannot jump, so it climbs up behind the busy person, never making the least bit of noise, and all at once, while the busy one is thinking perhaps of something clear on the other side of the world, they feel a cold, black nose pushed up against their ear, and turn around with a shriek to see the mongoose, with its face full of mischief, running away to its box as fast as it can go.

He Had Reason to Run.

The man came out of an office building on the run and started down the street.

"Here! Here!" cried the policeman on the corner. "What's your hurry?"

"There's a man buck there trying to sell me a book on 28 weekly installments of $2.33 each!" cried the victim.

The policeman instantly released his hold.

"Run!" he cried. "Run like a whirlwind! Maybe you can get away from him yet."—Chicago Post.

A Left-Handed Admission.

Three citizens—one a lawyer, one a doctor and one a newspaper man—sat in a back room recently in the gray light of the early dawn. On the table were many empty bottles and a couple of packs of cards. As they sat in silence a rat scurried across the hearth into the darkness beyond. The three men shifted their feet and looked at each other uneasily. After a long pause the lawyer spoke. "I know what you fellows are thinking," he said; "you think I thought I saw a rat, but I didn't!"—Chicago Inter Ocean.

Peace in the Philippines.

Peace in the Philippines is bound to prove profitable to all concerned. Warring conditions, whether they be in the Philippines or in the human stomach, are equally disastrous. If your stomach has rebelled, there is one authority that will quickly subdue it. It is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, and it cures constipation, indigestion, biliousness, nervousness and dyspepsia. See that a private Revenue Stamp covers the neck of the bottle.

An Idea.

Fenderson has got an idea. He says he knows now why salt codfish is salt. Because it comes from the salt water. It is more than he can understand, however, why all the other salt water fish are not salt.—Boston Transcript.

The Best Prescription for Chills and Fever is a bottle of GROVE'S TASTELESS CHILL TONIC. It is simply iron and quinine in a tasteless form. No cure—no pay. Price, 50c.

Era of Amity.

As we understand it, in the millennium not only will the lion and the lamb lie down together, but women will probably quit kissing each other when they meet on the street.—Detroit Journal.

Prof. Chas. P. Curd, A. M., Washington University, St. Louis, Mo., says: "We unhesitatingly attribute the recovery and continued good health of our little boy to Tetlina. Upon these Powders he seems to fatten and thrive."

Hoaks is no more. You probably didn't know Hoaks, but he found a dollar in the watch pocket of his last summer's trousers and the poor fellow never recovered from the shock.—Chicago Daily News.

We want you to use Putnam Fadeless Dyes because they color more goods, make faster and brighter colors and cost you no more than others. 10c per package.

Half our lives we sit up nights perfecting plans to get gold. The other half we lie awake nights fearing someone will rob us.—L. A. W. Bulletin.

I have used Piso's Cure for Consumption both in my family and practice.—Dr. G. W. Patterson, Inkster, Mich., Nov. 5, 1894.

The pleasure in talking too much is as short lived as that of eating heavily on a weak stomach.—Atchison Globe.

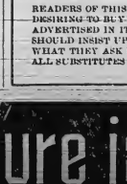
Hall's Catarrh Cure

Is taken Internally. Price 75c.

A man could make money with five fingers if he didn't have ten for it to slip through.—Chicago Daily News.

Man once ate the cream, but now they cremate the man.—Chicago Daily News.

Some people are loyal in the way that a gaffly is loyal to a horse.—Atchison Globe.



An Excellent Combination.

The pleasant method and beneficial effects of the well known remedy, SYRUP OF FIGS, manufactured by the CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO., illustrate the value of obtaining the laxative principles of plants known to be medicinally laxative and presenting them in the form most refreshing to the taste and acceptable to the system. It is the one perfect strengthening laxative, cleansing the system effectually, dispelling colds, headaches and fevers gently yet promptly and enabling one to overcome habitual constipation permanently. In its perfect freedom from every objectionable quality and substance, and its acting on the kidneys, liver and bowels, without weakening or irritating them, make it the ideal laxative.

In the process of manufacturing figs are used, as they are pleasant to the taste, but the medicinal qualities of the remedy are obtained from senna and other aromatic plants, by a method known to the CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO. only. In order to get its beneficial effects and to avoid imitations, please remember the full name of the Company printed on the front of every package.

CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO.
SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.
LOUISVILLE, KY. NEW YORK, N. Y.
For sale by all Druggists.—Price 50c. per bottle

DR. MOFFETT'S
TEETHINA
TEETHING POWDERS

Aids Digestion, Regulates the Bowels and Makes Teething Easy. TEETHINA Relieves the Bowel Troubles of Children of Any Age and Costs Only 25 Cents. Ask Your Druggist for It.

If not kept by druggists mail 25 cents to C. J. MOFFETT, M. D., ST. LOUIS, MO.

READERS OF THIS PAPER DESIRING TO BUY ANYTHING ADVERTISED IN ITS COLUMNS SHOULD INSIST UPON HAVING WHAT THEY ASK FOR, REFUSING ALL SUBSTITUTES OR IMITATIONS.

BILIOUSNESS

Do you get up with a headache?
Is there a bad taste in your mouth?
Then you have a poor appetite and a weak digestion. You are frequently dizzy, always feel dull and drowsy. You have cold hands and feet. You get but little benefit from your food. You have no ambition to work and the sharp pains of neuralgia dart through your body.
What is the cause of all this trouble?
Constipated bowels.

Ayer's PILLS

will give you prompt relief and certain cure.

Keep Your Blood Pure.

If you have neglected your case a long time, you had better take

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

also. It will remove all impurities that have been accumulating in your blood and will greatly strengthen your nerves.

Write the Doctor.

There may be something about your case you do not quite understand. Write the doctor freely; tell him how you are suffering. You will promptly receive the best medical advice. Address,
Dr. J. C. Ayer, Lowell, Mass.

Kansas in the Philippines

Is making a reputation for courage and patriotism that stirs our blood.

Kansas in the Cornfields,

Wheatfields and orchards has already made a reputation for gigantic yields that astonishes the world. Oil wells, coal, lead and salt mines furnish a basis for industrial development. Send for free copy of

"What's the Matter

With Kansas?" and for information about homeseekers' excursion tickets via Santa Fe Route.

Address General Passenger Office
The Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Railway,
CHICAGO.

BAD BLOOD

"CASCARETS do all claimed for them and are a truly wonderful medicine. I have often wished for a medicine pleasant to take and at last have found it in Cascarets. Since taking them my blood has been purified and my complexion has improved wonderfully and I feel much better in every way." MISS. SALLIE E. SELLERS, Luttrell, Tenn.

CANDY CATHARTIC
Cascarets
TRADE MARK REGISTERED
REGULATE THE LIVER

Pleasant. Palatable. Potent. Taste Good. Do Good. Never Sicken, Weaken, or Gripe. 10c. 25c. 50c.

CURE CONSTIPATION.

Sterling Remedy Company, Chicago, Montreal, New York. 319

NO-TO-BAC Sold and guaranteed by all druggists to CURE Tobacco Habit.

The Benefits

of an accurate and correctly made CYCLE CHAIN can not be appreciated in words. Don't worry along with a cheap chain, when for $1.00 you can get a 1/4 PEACOCK CHAIN, (the kind that never gives trouble) sent on receipt of price, postage paid. State number of links and width, whether 3-16, 1/4 or 5-16 centers.

CLINTON CHAIN WORKS,
142 South Clinton Street, Chicago.

LIVE STOCK CUTS.

We will furnish duplicates of LIVE STOCK CUTS or any OTHER CUT shown in any SPECIMEN BOOK, at or below quoted prices for same.

A. N. KELLOGG NEWSPAPER CO.,
335 W. Fifth St., Cincinnati, O.

CIDER MACHINERY.

Hydraulic and Screw Presses, Graters, Evaporators, Pumps, etc. Illustrated Catalogue free. C. G. HAMPTON & SONS, DETROIT, MICH.

EDUCATIONAL.

NEW HAMPSHIRE MILITARY ACADEMY
Prepares for Government Academies and Colleges. Full Commercial Course. Major H. F. HYATT, A. M., Principal, WEST LEBANON, N. H.

A. N. K.—E 1768

WHEN WRITING TO ADVERTISERS please state that you saw the Advertisement in this paper.

Plantation Chill Cure is Guaranteed

To cure, or money refunded by your merchant, so why not try it? Price 50c.

STATE NEWS.

Grasshoppers are annoying farmers.

A Warren county man had his teeth knocked out by lightning.

Wm. Owens, 81, widower, married Pauline Harris, 21, at Baettyville.

Farmers in parts of Kentucky are blue over the outlook for tobacco.

A fatal disease has attacked horses in Daviess county. Their vitals become alive with worms.

Charles B. Woodson, of Pendleton county, was thrown from a buggy and his neck was broken in the fall.

Old fishermen say they have had better luck in the Kentucky streams this summer than for many seasons.

Vernon Blewett and Texas Spriggs engaged in an altercation at Stiles, the result of an old grudge. Spriggs cut Blewett in the lung, cut his throat, stabbed him in the abdomen, cut off one ear and cut one hand open.

If American soldiers hold out we may be able to make some impression on the Filipinos in the course of time. But in the meantime we are not adding honor to the American name nor elevating the morals of mankind by our example.

Miss Jennie Hughes, of the McBrayer community, in Anderson county, has turkey hens that have laid 143 eggs and are still laying. Mrs. Silas Ragan, of Avenstoke, has two turkey hens that have laid 121 eggs and have just got a good start.

The tobacco crop will be less than last year's crop, says the Glasgow News. It is badly missing, and it is too late to replant. A good many have planted part of their tobacco lands in corn. The prospect is growing worse every day, as the plants are dying on the hills from dry weather.

Mrs. Webster Porter using eggs for cooking purposes, found a large egg which contained not only a perfect yolk and white, but also contained a small egg with perfect shell which was some larger than a quail's egg, says the Clinton Democrat. On breaking the smaller egg it also was found to contain a perfect yolk and a white.

The situation in Harlan county, the scene of the Lee-Taylor war of extermination, is indeed alarming. All persons go heavily armed. When at work on their farms they have their Winchesters near and when they go to church they stack their arms in a corner for fear of an outbreak. The factions are greatly incensed at the newspaper men, and have threatened them if they send any more reports of their doings. Will Yarber, who was implicated in the Abe Lee assassination, has left the county.

John D. Davis, Sheriff of Edmonson county, has been indicted for mal-feasance in office. It is claimed he has been making warrants do double duty by using the same one twice. Ex-County Clerk Willis Meridith, of the same county, was also indicted. The grand jury reported that it appeared that the tax lists of a great many people of the county had been raised, and other gross irregularities were apparent.

State Inspector Lester made a report to the Governor as to condition of affairs in Knott county, which he investigated. According to the report there is a band of 300 or 400 white cappers or regulators in that county, who commit all sorts of outrages without being brought to justice. The alleged perpetrators are arrested, of course, and tried, but such is the power of the gang that no one is ever convicted, but a big list of witnesses claims is filed which the State has to pay. The amount of these claims has grown so big recently, and the number of convictions appeared to be so small that it looked suspicious, and Lester was sent to investigate. He says the state of lawlessness in that county is appalling, and the courts appear to be powerless to check it. He thinks the Legislature should enact a law empowering the Circuit Judge to send into another county and get a jury to try the offenders.

While standing in her yard about 7 o'clock Sunday night Mrs. A. B. Stagg was attacked by five or six screech owls and was painfully scratched by them in the face. She ran into the house and Mr. Stagg came out and was likewise attacked, one of the owls striking him just under the right eye, and another struck for his jugular vein. Realizing that a good run is better than a bad stand he took for the house faster than he did for the ditch the first time he rode a wheel, and was pursued to the door by the angry night birds. The owls have nests in trees in Mr. Stagg's yard and some one Sunday had interfered with their young. Before this they had been peaceful intruders. Mr. Stagg loaded his shotgun Monday morning and waged successful war on his enemies of the night before.

In going through Clay county since the recent killings there you never meet a person unless it be some family trying to get away unnoticed and unmolested. You will perhaps meet a lonely mail carrier on horseback, but so afraid is he of giving information by which he will incur the hatred of the fierce feudists he will not as much as say "good morning" to you although he may be an old acquaintance. You will, in passing houses on the roadside, perhaps notice the moving of a closely drawn window curtain or see the shaking of the underbush, and you may rest assured that some one is peering from behind to discover whether you are friend or foe. These are about the only signs of human life you will discover until you reach Manchester. At that place during the day, the streets are almost deserted. Your name and business, however, will be known almost before you have entered the town.—Ex.

Proceedings of the Louisville convention will be found on an inside page.

THE Louisville convention finally settled down to business, and nominated a strong ticket, well distributed over the State.

NEXT week the RECORDER will publish extracts from State papers showing what they are saying in regard to the Democratic nominee for Governor.

A dispatch from Washington says: Rural free delivery service will be pretty well established in Kentucky after July 1, the beginning of the fiscal year. Applications for the service are pouring into the Postoffice Department here and are receiving careful attention. Special agents will be sent out when the appropriation for next year is available, and the whole State will be thoroughly covered. Congressmen Pugh and Settle are the most pressing in their demands that the service be established. It is stated at the Postoffice Department that every district in the State where the population will permit will get a chance at the rural free delivery service.

By an oversight Mr. Markham's poem, "The Man With the Hoe," was not dedicated to Governor Pingree.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

It is understood that Mr. Foraker expects to have several things happen to Mr. Kohlsaat after the rainy season begins.—Detroit Tribune.

Constance.

Miss Sadie Zimmer is very sick.

Our town has a barber shop now.

B. F. Zimmer has a load of coal at the landing.

Chas. Richmond, of Blue, Ind., is visiting here.

Beer is not sold here but it is brought here by the wagon load.

Uncle Dick Cloud, of Burlington, was in our town Thursday.

Constance jrs. defeated the Covington Stars, last Sunday, 23 to 15.

R. S. Wood, formerly of Knightown, Ind., has been visiting his parents here.

Wm. Price and Chas. Volsing, have accepted positions at Cullum's Rolling Mill.

A party of Ludlow musicians came down and serenaded Henry Haberly, Saturday night.

Miss Mamie Wall and Mr. Henry Rundy were visiting W. B. Reeves and wife, Sunday.

Misses Girtie Collier and Stella Sturgeon, of Petersburg, are guests of Mr. and Mrs. Leon Loder.

Misses Ivy, Susie, Celia Winters and Julia Myers, of Cincinnati, have been visiting at B. F. Zimmer's.

William Tanner, John Prather and Walter Gordon are playing good ball for the Cincinnati Reserves.

Pith of the Press.

What! McKinley's Cabinet to lose its Alger?—Boston Globe.

As a bulleitn-maker General Otis is fast reaching the head of the class.—Chicago News.

After all, it might be worth while to give Mr. Pingree harmony just to see what he'd do with it.—Detroit Tribune.

The next thing we know Schley's enemies will declare he wasn't in the battle off Santiago at all.—Cleveland World.

Governor Pingree seems no more able to see the humor of Alger's position than that worthy himself.—Washington Times.

Mr. McKinley has been made a Doctor of Laws. This probably because he once aided in doctoring laws.—Atlanta Constitution.

If McKinley doesn't end the war in the next six months he'd better decline the nomination for President in 1900.—St. Paul Globe.

In digging up Alger, "Potato" Pingree will find that he has unearthed a "peach-blow" honey-mildewed by grub worms.—N. Y. World.

When Secretary Long inaugurates the work of probing the Merrimac scandal there will be considerable anxiety on tap.—Washington Post.

It is evident that if McKinley wants Pingree's support he will have to transfer his honor from Hanna's keeping.—Kansas City Times.

There is talk in Kansas of sending John James Ingalls to Congress. Thus far, however, Mr. Ingalls betrays no alarm—N. Y. Mail and Express.

A combination of interests by Secretary Alger and Governor Pingree is the latest trust inimical to the public welfare.—Milwaukee Sentinel.

Alger wants to have Senators elected by popular vote. How would he like to have Secretaries of War elected the same way?—Chicago Record.

While Aguinaldo undoubtedly has a large supply of last ditches, it is morally certain that the stock will ultimately be exhausted.—N. Y. Mail and Express.

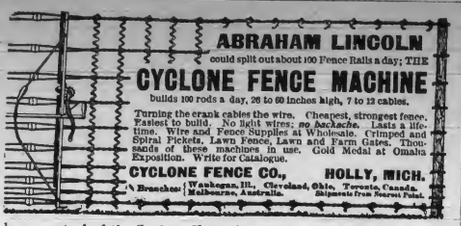
If President McKinley insisted on having none but first-class men in his Cabinet the opposition papers would not have half so much fun.—Philadelphia Ledger.

It appears to be the unanimous opinion of Pingree that anybody who agrees with Pingree is all right, while those who do not thus agree are all wrong.—Pittsburg Times.

It is easy to believe the report that General Miles has not asked that he be sent to Manila. General Miles is not looking for chances to receive cold snubs.—Omaha World-Herald.

Let's hope prospective Speaker Henderson is a good listener. Next to President McKinley he is getting more advice nowadays than any other statement on the dais.—Boston Herald.

It is said that Miles is very anxious to take command in the Philippines, but the War Department is afraid there might be too much reputation in it for him and the Administration's good.—Kansas City Times.



General Miles hits the nail on the head when he says that more troops ought to be sent to the Philippines. The job is one that requires plenty of men with the best commander the country can furnish.—Philadelphia Bulletin.

It will be observed that, so far, Senator McMillan has had very little to say in regard to the new political situation in his adopted state, produced by the senatorial Alger-Pingree beef and potato alliance.—Washington Times.

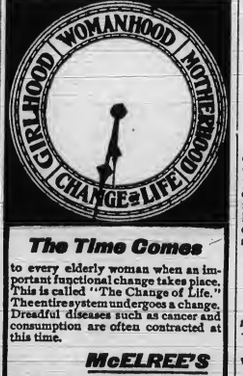
Executor's Notice.

All persons indebted to the estate of L. B. Stephens, deceased, are hereby notified to come forward and settle same; those having claims against said estate must present them to the undersigned proven according to law.

J. D. FRAZIER,
L. D. SHOUSE, Executors.

I have control of the Cyclone Fence in Boone and Woodford counties. I will build the fence or sell machines to farmers that they may build their own fences. It is the cheapest and best fence that can be built.
Address G. CARTER GRADDY, BULLITTSVILLE, KY.

DON'T PAY TWO PROFITS!
IF YOU WANT A
Buggy or Carriage



Go direct to the factory and save the 50 or 75 per cent. that agents add to the factory price; get all you can in material and workmanship — put agents commission in the vehicle or your pocket. Come and see us and we will prove to you that your home factory will give you
BETTER WORK for the MONEY
than can be gotten from any agents.
See Our 2500 Mile Dust Proof Axle,
before buying a vehicle. We warrant and stand by all our work.
BRADFORD BROS.,
FLORENCE, KY.

J. T. MARSHALL,
SALESMAN FOR
F. W. KASSEBAUM & SON,
Manufacturers and Dealers in
Granite and Marble Monuments.
GRANT P. O., KENTUCKY.

FRANK HOSSMAN,
Hebron, Ky.,
CARPENTER AND BUILDER,
—Also handles all—
KINDS OF ROOFING,
which is furnished and put on at the Lowest Prices consistent with good work.
I am prepared for moving buildings.
Your Work is Solicited.

Consign your Stock to
Rabenstein, Harris & Conner,
—Live Stock—
COMMISSION MERCHANTS,
COVINGTON STOCK YARDS,
Covington, Ky.,
OR UNION STOCK YARDS,
Cincinnati, Ohio.
When shipping East bill our care privilege selling Central Covington Stock Yards.
We will make it to your advantage and give your stock special personal attention.

Helms' ~ Barber ~ Shop,
PETERSBURG, KY.
Hair cut 15c, on Saturday 20c; Shave 10c; Shampoo 15c; Sea Foam 5c; Hair Singe 5c; Beard Trim 5c. The work properly as low to prices. Ladies' and children's work a specialty. All work to succeed satisfactory or money refunded. Hair Oil, Tonics, Perfume, etc., for sale. Thanking all for past favors, I remain, &c.
EVERETT HELMS, Prop.
LADIES—To the ladies that have not paid us a call, will say, that Thursday is conceded to be their day. Ladies' Shampoo 25c; Sea Foam 15c; Bangs trimmed 10c. Hair dressed for special occasions a specialty, at reasonable rates. Courteous treatment is our motto. Give us a call.

The Time Comes to every elderly woman when an important functional change takes place. This is called "The Change of Life." The entire system undergoes a change. Dreadful diseases such as cancer and consumption are often contracted at this time.
McELREE'S
Wine of Cardui
strengthens and purifies the entire system, and brings the sufferer safely over these pitfalls. Its effects have been wonderful. It is good for all menstrual troubles, but is especially recommended at this time. Ask your druggist for the famous Wine of Cardui. $1.00 a bottle.
For advice in cases requiring special directions, address the "Ladies' Advisory Department," The Chattanooga Medicine Co., Chattanooga, Tenn.
THOMAS S. COOPER, Tupelo, Miss., says:—"My sister suffered from irregular and painful menstruation and doctors could not relieve her. Wine of Cardui entirely cured her, and also helped my mother through the Change of Life."

DR. A. P. WALTON,
DENTIST,
CINCINNATI,
The Lancaster Building 22 W. 7th, Bet. Vine and Race.

INSURE AT HOME
The Farmers' Mutual Fire
INSURANCE COMPANY,
OF BOONE COUNTY,
Is now completely organized and receiving applications for insurance.
Its Rates are Lower
Than those of any other Company and gives the farmers of Boone County
HITHERTO UNKNOWN ADVANTAGE
In keeping their property insured.
EVERY FARMER IN THE COUNTY should take a policy at once.
E. H. BLANKENBECKER, - President, Florence, Ky.
EDGAR CROPPER, - Vice-President, OSCAR GAINES, Secretary, Burlington.
J. E. DUNCAN, Treasurer.
EXECUTIVE BOARD—Legrand Gaines, J. W. Conner, John Stephens.
J. E. SMITH, Assessor, - Burlington, Ky.
W. M. ROGERS, Agt. - Walton, Ky.

CORNER
Drug Store
Rising Sun, Ind.
Is the place for anything in the Drug Line.
WALL PAPER, PAINTS, WINDOW SHADES.
STATIONERY, PERFUMES, FANCY GOODS, &c.
B. F. BUCHANAN,
— DRUGGIST, —
Over thirty year's experience.

FARMERS
Take Notice!
If you want good
Fertilizer
PLEASE GIVE
B. F. ZIMMER
A CALL.
He will try to please you. He has the finest line of Fertilizer for 1899 he has ever handled. Write for particulars to
CONSTANCE, KY.

Central Covington Stock Yards,
COVINGTON, KY.
Are located so as to offer special inducements to shippers South of the Ohio river in saving them extra expense and time. In addition to the local buyers there will be Eastern and foreign buyers on the market for all kinds of stock. When shipping East, don't fail to consign our care privilege selling which will be of benefit to you.
Central Covington Stock Yards Co.
Commission firms will give prompt attention to consignments.

SIXTH YEAR OF Walton :-: Academy
—OPENS—
First Monday in September.
First-class instruction in all Common School Branches.
Higher Arithmetic, Elementary and Higher Algebra, Book-Keeping, Plain and Solid Geometry, History, Rhetoric and Literature, Physiology, Geography, Physics, Astronomy, Logic and Phychology. Latin includes Cesar, Cicero, Nepos, Virgil. Greek including Beginners, Greek and Xenophon.
Terms:—Tuition and Board in the building, five days in the week, under the care of the teacher, $105.75, for nine months; Board the full week or Music $18.50 additional for the full term.
Mrs. S. H. MYERS, Prin.

D. E. CASTLEMAN,
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW.
BURLINGTON, KY.
Will practice in the Courts of Boone Kenton, Grant and Gallatin. Collections pushed energetically.

G. G. HUGHES,
ATTORNEY AT LAW,
BURLINGTON, KY.
Will practice in all the courts. Prompt attention given to all business entrusted to me.

P. E. CASON,
ATTORNEY - AT - LAW,
BURLINGTON, KY,
Practice in all Courts. Promptness guaranteed.

J. G. TOMLIN,
ATTORNEY - AT - LAW,
WALTON, KENTUCKY.
Will practice in the Courts of Boone, Kenton Grant and Gallatin. Prompt attention given t Collections entrusted to him. mch22-yg.

W. E. VEST,
County Surveyor,
BURLINGTON, KY.
Is prepared to do all kinds of Surveying. All orders by mail promptly attended to.

J. M. LASSING. N. E. RIDDELL.
LASSING & RIDDELL,
ATTORNEYS AT LAW.
BURLINGTON, KY.
Prompt Attention Given to Collections

S. GAINES,
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW.
BURLINGTON, KY.
Will practice in all the courts, and prompt attention given collections. Office—In residence near post-office.

S. W. ADAMS,
ATTORNEY - AT - LAW,
ERLANGER, KENTUCKY.
Will practice in the courts of Boone and Kenton counties. Collections and general law practice.

W. E. VEST,
Real Estate Agent.
Farms Bought, Sold or Exchanged, Money to Loan on Real Estate, Notes bought, sold & Negotiated.
All communications addressed to W. E. VEST, Burlington, Ky.

BOONE CO. DEPOSIT BANK.
(Incorporated 1886.)
CAPITAL, ... $30,000
Surplus and undivided profits, 20,000
—)o(—
Our facilities enable us to receive on favorable terms accounts of individuals and corporations. Collections promptly remitted for at lowest rates

ERLANGER DEPOSIT BANK.
(INCORPORATED 1893.)
ERLANGER, - - KENTUCKY
CAPITAL PAID IN..... $50,000
SURPLUS,..... $ 5,000
Careful attention given collections and remittances promptly made. Deposit accounts solicited.

Dr. J. L. Adams,
DENTIST,
Walton, Kentucky.
Artificial Dentures, Crown and Bridge Work to represent natural organs.
Will be in office at Union every Monday.
Satisfaction - Guaranteed.

JOHN L. VEST,
SURVEYOR
WALTON, KY.
Is prepared to do all kinds of work south of Burlington, Ky. Prompt attention given to all mail orders.

Subscribe for the RECORDER.

Take the Recorder, $1.50 a year.

BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

VOL. XXIV. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, JULY 12, 1899. NO. 38.

TAYLOR will not side-track. He claims the right of way to the Republican nomination for Governor.

FRANKFORT cannot decide whether it has smallpox or elephant itch. Either is bad enough.

THE Ohio Democratic clubs, at their convention in Columbus, last week, indorsed Bryan for President in 1900.

A DEMOCRAT does not ask time in which to make up his mind what to do when his party has nominated a ticket.

EVERY few months some fellow springs John R. McLean as a candidate for President in 1900. Bryan will beat McLean in his own State.

THE Republican State convention to nominate a State ticket, will meet in Lexington to-day. Up to within the last few days there was an effort on the part of several prominent Republicans to ditch Taylor's boom for Governor, but it was too strong for them to handle. It is evident from the desire to keep Taylor off of the head of the ticket that he is not as strong a man for the position as some other Republicans that could be named Yerkes, for instance.

The Hebron Sunday school will give its annual celebration at the Harvest Home grounds Aug. 12., and invites the other schools of the county to come and spend the day with them in singing, speaking and having a social, good time. One of the special features will be a flag drill by the intermediate scholars of the Hebron school. The places on the program for the different schools will be announced later. All the schools who desire a place on the program will notify Dr. W. O. Rouse, Limaburg, Ky.

As Col. Owens, of Scott county, never accepted a nomination nor an election against which the cry of fraud was raised, he is expected to bolt the nominees of the Louisville convention. Has the Colonel forgotten the cloud on his title to the nomination he gained over W. C. P. Breckinridge? Has he forgotten what questionable means were resorted to to prevent the appearance of certain registration books as proof when, on the grounds of fraud Geo. Denny contested his election to Congress? The Colonel's record shows he abhors fraud or any semblance of same. In a horn.

Senator John P. Jones, of Nevada, is quoted in an interview as saying:

"The Democracy certainly will make a strong fight against trusts in the next Presidential campaign.

"Just how the subject should be treated I will confess I do not know at present. It is a difficult problem. It is easy enough to shout 'Down with the trusts!' but what are you going to do about it?

"Take the one that is most often made the target—the sugar trust. You go to the members, and they say: 'Yes, we own all the sugar refineries. We are incorporated according to law.' Now, will we pass a law that a concern shall own only so much property, or what shall we do?

"What difference would it make to us if there were a thousand independent refineries and as many middle men?

"I am strongly opposed to trusts The exact remedy for the people is not clear to me. There would be no trusts if it were not for the gold standard, a shrinking currency and falling prices."

"Does the anti-trust idea for a Democratic campaign issue mean that Bryan will be the candidate?"

"Certainly, it will be Bryan and McKinley over again. That does not mean that the silver issue will be shelved, either. It will be rather overshowed probably by the anti-monopoly movement. There are many people who will never understand the currency question, and, in face of a semblance of prosperity, the silver issue may be submerged for a time. It will not stay down, however."

"How is the Philippine situation regarded in the West?"

"In California, where all the troops have been shipped, the people have made money out of it, and may want the Philippines. I cannot see what any one else can want of them. I think the question is weakening President McKinley in ther parts of the West."

Opinions of the Ticket.

While we did not get our choice in the struggle, we pledge ourselves for all we are worth to support Mr. Goebel.—Wickliffe Yeoman.

Of the three Democratic candidates for this nomination, Goebel was the one most feared by the Republicans of the State.—Uniontown Telegram.

Be consistent, boys. It is Democratic to support the nominees of the Democratic party; nothing short of that is Democracy.—Smithland Banner.

Mr. Goebel was not the Register's first choice, but, waiving personal preference, he is undoubtedly the strongest man that could have been selected.—Richmond Register.

The time for fighting among ourselves has passed. Let us now direct our guns against the common enemy and prepare for the great fight that is to come in November.—Glasgow News

Mr. Goebel was not our choice for Governor, but we can support him cheerfully, and we have no crow to eat, as we said no hard things of him during the canvass. —Winchester Democrat.

Now that Senator Goebel has won his fight for the Democratic nomination for Governor of Kentucky it is the duty of all good and loyal Democrats to rally to his standard.—Sebree Herald.

Who any voter favored before the nomination is a matter of history now. That every Democrat is or will be for Goebel before the ides of November is as certain as taxes and death.—Scottsville Times.

Now let's all bury the past. Let us put aside personal differences. Let's spite the general foe by voting, every man for the Democratic nominees. This is right; this is Democracy.—Princeton Banner.

There has been some dissatisfaction over the defeat of some of the candidates, but somebody had to lose, and it is now in order for all Democrats to fall in line and work for the success of the ticket. —Paris Democrat.

Goebel is a consummate general, and can not be defeated by a disorganized majority, however large. The Republicans must name a great ticket and put their ablest managers at the helm.—Paris Reporter, Rep.

Although the man we were in favor of for Governor got badly defeated at the Louisville convention, we intend to do all in our power through the columns of this paper for the nominee.—Georgetown Democrat.

The Times was anxious to see Wat Hardin the nominee of the party for Governor; the Times has been disappointed. Now the Times is just as anxious to see Mr. Goebel Governor of Kentucky.—Elkton Times.

All Democrats who participated in the county conventions are in honor bound to rally to the support of Mr. Goebel. And they should do so without any feeling of having had their party fealty tested.—Morganfield Sun.

For one the Progress defines its position here and now. We are a Democrat, not a Republican; have ever been, and as such, though some issues may divide us, we propose to take up the fight for the nominees.—Elkton Progress.

The Hustler went into the convention in good faith and fought for another man, but always submits to the result obtained and will henceforth be in line for the ticket presented this week at Louisville.—Madisonville Hustler.

In Senator Goebel the Democrats of Kentucky have a young, vigorous and fearless champion. He is probably the best organizer in all the State and as a politician in the latter-day sense he has no equal in Kentucky.—Hawesville Clarion.

The nominee has been located, and his name is William Goebel. He was not our first choice; he was not our second choice, but he is the choice of the majority of the 1,092 delegates assembled in the Louisville convention, and we drop in line.—Marion Press.

Mr. Goebel has never been our choice for the Democratic nomination for Governor, but now that he has received the nomination by a majority of the votes in the convention, we are for him for Governor body, soul and breeches.—Trenton Democrat.

As David B. Hill once remarked, we are a Democrat. We were against Goebel tooth and claw, and he is not more beautiful in our eyes now than he was before; but he is the nominee, and we are going to do our best to elect him. —Russellville Herald-Ledger.

If Democracy be defeated, Republicanism triumphs. Our party is too dear and its principles are too wholesome and true for us to fail or falter in its loyal support. We here and now dedicate this paper and our efforts to the support of the Democratic ticket.—Fulton Guard.

This is no time for Democrats to sulk. Many of us are keenly disappointed because we did not get our choice for Governor and because warm personal friends have gone down in defeat, but we should not allow our personal feelings to warp our Democracy.—Middlesboro Record.

We championed Mr. Hardin's cause and hoped to see him nominated, but we submit to the result, as every loyal Democrat should, and will use our best efforts for the success of the entire ticket, with the matchless William Goebel, of Kenton county, at the head.—Winchester Sun.

Let those who are denouncing the Democratic nominee for Governor turn their gaze inward and possibly they will realize that the denunciation of others is not the most approved method of escaping the recollection of one's own mishaps by the wayside. Judge not that ye be judged.—Bardstown Record.

Everybody who reads the Democrat knows that Senator Goebel was not the choice of this newspaper for the nomination for Governor. Everybody who reads the Democrat should know that it has never failed to support a Democratic nominee. It is our duty and it shall be our pleasure to support Senator Goebel.—Cynthiana Democrat.

In Bracken county, John Case, a farmer, was feeding a thresher and was caught in the separator and dragged into the machine. Before the machine could be stopped his body was torn into hundreds of pieces and carried through the machine. The flesh and bones, after being carried through the thresher, came out with the straw and grain.

The L. and N. railway spent not less than $200,000 to down Goebel because he is an enemy of trusts. It was a glorious victory for the common people. The platform published to-day fits the candidate. It was a fight of the people against the combined efforts of corporations and the Republican party. The people won and they will win at the election in November.—Dover News.

In the nomination of Mr. Goebel for Governor the Journal has no crow to eat like some of the newspapers of Kentucky. We made the best fight we could for Mr. Hardin, but said nothing of an unkind nature of Mr. Goebel that we will have to apologize for. Everyone must admit that as a general in politics Mr. Goebel has few if any equals in the State, and will be elected beyond a doubt.—Nicholasville Journal.

The Clipper places at its head the name of the Hon. Wm. Goebel as the choice of the Democratic convention for Governor of the proud old Commonwealth of Kentucky. Mr. Goebel was not our ante-convention choice, but now that he has been made the standard bearer of the party, in whose principles we firmly believe and whose success we always desire, we pledge our hearty support to that party in its contest with the common enemy—the Republicans. —Midway Clipper.

T. W. Simms, Jr., who attended the convention from this county, and who was selected by Gen. Hardin to place his name before the convention, says that he regards the State ticket headed by William Goebel as invincible. That the State Democracy will witness an organization and campaign as was never seen in the State, and that the ticket will win by a Proctor Knott majority. —Springfield Progress.

It is an inspiration to know that in the great struggle of November next, the Democracy will be led by a matchless leader—a leader whom the opposition hate and dread more than any man in the State. A man whom his friends love for the enemies he has made. The opposition to him will be fierce-it will be a battle all along the line-but, the leader of the Democracy, in his own words, never won anything without fighting for it, and he is in this contest to fight and win.—Paris Kentuckian-Citizen.

We entered the campaign with a choice; for our candidate we contended. We did it honestly, faithfully and find ourselves defeated. We knew all the while that two candidates of the three must be defeated, and since our candidate was forced to yield to the inevitable with the other it but follows that we must yield to the dictation of that convention of which we were a part, and battle for its nominees so long as they are Democratic standard-bearers.—Mt. Sterling Advocate.

Mr. Goebel is a gallant leader and the rising star of the young Democracy of Kentucky. He is a man who knows not defeat. He attaches his friends to him with hooks of steel. We predict that he will make the most brilliant canvass for Governor ever made by any candidate in Kentucky for that high office, and that he will be elected by an overwhelming majority, and that his administration of the high office of the proud old commonwealth of Kentucky will be one of the strongest the state has had in it's history.—Williamstown Courier.

The Louisville Convention was the most intensely exciting of any ever held before, and more bitterness of feeling was engendered than had ever characterized any previous Democratic gathering in Kentucky. Predictions as to the defeat of Goebel so freely indulged in while the blood is boiling and the sore spots are smarting should not count for much. His closest followers, some of whom rank as our very best men, confidently predict his election and will use their best efforts to secure that result.—Owen County Herald.

Having seen it all—and it was miserably bad—and having studied it all, I see no cause why we should bolt or sulk. Goebel is a master hand, yes; but I prefer Goebel's hand to the hand of the heartless corporations, and I vastly prefer it to the hand of Mark Hanna, or Deboe or Taylor. I prefer Goebel Democracy to Hanna Republicanism. I prefer Goebel machinery to Whallen machinery or corporation machinery. And hence, I say we should join hand to hand, shoulder to shoulder, and march forward to victory for Democracy, for Bryan and for the people.—Taylorsville Courier.

Senator Goebel has demonstrated that the word defeat is not in his vocabulary. Cool, shrewd, determined and absolutely confident, he bided his time, and when the supreme moment arrived he brought his power into play and with a smile carried off the prize. He has shown that he is a leader among men, that he is the brainiest and most brilliant man in the Democratic party of Kentucky, and we doubt not that the talents displayed in his fight for the nomination will prove potent in the battle before the people. It is believed that he will lead the party to victory in November.—Danville Advocate.

The Times has always held that when one takes a part in the preliminary action that leads to the nomination of a candidate or a party ticket he obligates himself to abide the result, whether it may please him or not. If this position is not a correct one, then it is useless to hold an election to determine which one of two or more candidates for the same position shall stand as the representative of the party, and all efforts looking to party organization had as well be abandoned. This view of party obligation would be sufficient in itself to determine the attitude of the Times in a matter like this.—Georgetown Times.

One of the longest drawn out conventions in the history of Kentucky has adjaurned, and with all that one of the strongest, if not the strongest ticket ever nominated has been prepared. The nominee for Governor, Wm. Goebel, is a young man. No attorney at the bar is better known than he. He is an able lawyer, a shrewd politician and courageous statesman. He has served several terms in the State Senate from Kenton county, and has always fathered legislation that benefitted the poor and working class While the fight for the nomination was long and bitter, yet there are none of those who opposed the gallant Kenton county man, but that are willing to put their shoulders to the wheel.—Newport, Ky., Journal.

William Goebel, the Democratic nominee for Governor, is admitted by foes as well as friends to be one of the ablest men in Kentucky—a perfect master of men and situations; a man who holds the devotion of friends and compels the respect of his enemies. One-half the leaders of his own party hate him, mainly because they can't control him, and in the end he controls them. A poor boy without money or family prestige, he has forced himself to the front by the power or real ability. His career toward the Democracy is more like that of Andrew Johnson's early days than any man in history. They may beat him, but they will have to fight all along the line day and night to do it.—Hickman Courier.

Pith of the Press.

Wanamaker has not as much as captured Quay's brass band.—Richmond Va. Times.

If the Administration is to be embarrassed, Secretary Gage prefers to do it himself.—Detroit Tribune.

Mr. Havemeyer is no longer entitled to sit in the amen corner of the Republican edifice.—Washington Post.

It looks as if Secretary Alger had got hold of a wicked partner in the Governor of Michigan.—Philadelphia Press.

Mr. Pingree appears to find it difficult to avoid getting more than his share of the calcium light.—Washington Star.

Alger says he has no use for the trusts. That may be straight. It's the trusts that have use for Alger.—St. Louis Republic.

While the bushwhackers are investing his Cabinet job, the bush fires are damaging General Alger's Canadian property.—Detroit Free Press.

Some of the shots aimed at Foraker by Kohlsaat have sent splinters flying into the camp of the Administration's friends.—Omaha World-Herald.

The insurgents who are besieging San Fernando have apparently failed to note General Otis's "disintegration" dispatches.—Philadelphia Bulletin.

There was a time when Mr. Cleveland didn't have to depend on a lightning-struck barn to get his name in the newspapers.—Washington Post.

Alger has decided that McKinley can keep him Secretary, while it is at least doubtful whether Pingree could make him Senator.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Senator Hanna says the Democratic party is at sea. Very good. In the late war those at sea took all the honors.—Waco (Texas) Times-Herald.

McKinley is trying to figure out how he can retain Alger since the Secretary has allied himself to an anti-Administration machine.—Kansas City Times.

Roosevelt denies that he is a candidate for the Presidency. The Presidency doesn't have to deny that it is a candidate for Roosevelt. —Albany Argus.

With the exception that he is a rank demagogue and a mischievous agitator, Governor Pingree is a pretty good sort of public man.—Kansas City Journal.

The President should send General Wheeler to the Philippines. There is not enough steam on in the campaign there.—Memphis Commercial-Appeal.

State News.

Although this is a local option town, the records of the Internal Revenue Collector show there are 36 persons holding Government licences to sell liquor in Winchester.

Mrs. Thomas Cruse, of Owensboro, has left Washington en route to San Juan, Porto Rico, where she will join her husband, Major Thos. Cruse, of the Quartermaster's Department.

Raised bills and counterfeit coins are turning up in several Kentucky towns, which would seem to indicate that swindlers are operating on an extensive scale in this State as well as Tennessee.

Mr. A. W. Hill had a valuable horse to die last Saturday from a brain trouble, probably the same disease that took off a number of horses near Bethany several months ago.—Owenton Herald.

Joe Evans, of Newtown, sold last week to Gen. Jno. B. Castleman, of Louisville, a pair of mares for $500 and two brood mares and colts for $400. The colts are by Mr. Evans' stallion, Cromwell Eagle.

The arrest of Leon Lewis in Madison county for selling teachers' questions develops the fact that these papers have been peddled extensively in Madison, Estill, Jackson and Rockcastle counties.

The Signal says that Mt. Vernon has a man so stingy that he splits matches in order to make two fires and barely opens his doors wide enough to get through, hoping thereby to save the hinges.

James Gray, of Akersville, Monroe county, one of the wealthiest and most widely known men in that section, was gored to death by a mad bull while walking across a field where the brute was kept.

Mrs. Betty Kelley, an aged and estimable woman living near Valley View, in Madison county, went to the pasture to catch a horse. The woman's body was found in the field, and foul play is suspected.

Will Howk has the distinction of probably breaking the wheat raising record of Harrison county. The wheat from two and a half acres was threshed. It measured 92 bushels and 23 pounds and tested 62½ pounds to the bushel.

The farmers can grow cheap foods in the summer and convert them into high price butter in the winter and find a readier market; but he must have fresh cows, good shelter and ample food, and all prepared in season. Otherwise the best results must not be expected.

A Robertson county clergyman is said to have become his own uncle by the marriage of his mother-in-law to his brother. So many men have been ruined by negotiating from their "uncles" that the rule of "every man his own uncle" would appear to be in the nature of "the greatest good to the greatest number"—the greatest number being No. 1. The Robertson county clergyman has set an example that ought to be followed.—C. J.

Editor Sam. J. Roberts of the Lexington Leader has been summoned to appear at the October term of the Clay county circuit court in Manchester. Action has been begun against The Leader for its criticism of the officers of Clay county. If the officials will just summon the rest or the Press Gang that have been telling the truth about them, Clay county will next October contain several hundred of the best men that ever assembled within her borders.—Maysville Ledger.

A disease that seems as deadly as any that ever broke out among stock caused the death of three horses at Owensboro, Tuesday. The strange disease baffled the veterinarians, who diagnosed each case, but found on postmortem examinations that their diagnosis had been incorrect. Worms were found in the vitals of the dead animal and these are supposed to have caused the death of each animal. A horse, when so attacked, lives but a few hours and the matter has caused consternation among the owners of stock in Daviess county.

THE declaration of ex-Mayor Todd, of Louisville, that that in that city are 12,000 Republicans who will not vote for Taylor if he is the Republican nominee for governor, sent the cold chills up the backs of some of the members of the g. o. p. who are aware that Todd is carrying a awfully ugly knife up his sleeve.

The Republican State convention meets today in Lexington.

THE RECORDER.

W. L. RIDDELL, Publisher.

BURLINGTON. : : KENTUCKY.

JULY—1899.

Sun.	Mon.	Tue.	Wed.	Thur.	Fri.	Sat.
....	....	....	....	....	....	1
2	3	4	5	6	7	8
9	10	11	12	13	14	15
16	17	18	19	20	21	22
23	24	25	26	27	28	29
30	31	....	....	....	....	....

CLERKS in Havana receive from $35 to $65 per month, according to their value, those speaking English commanding the best wages. A suit of clothes costs from $25 to $50, a dress suit anywhere from $60 to $100.

LEECHES, when applied to persistent cigarette smokers, drop off dead, distinct traces of dangerous empyreumatic oil given off by tobacco being found in them. Strangely enough, the same experiment tried upon excessive pipe smokers resulted in no apparent injury to the leeches.

BATHING with alcohol will prevent injurious effects from poison ivy, or, if the poison has taken effect, wetting the affected part with alcohol, to which sugar of lead has been added, until a milky appearance is obtained, will give relief. The wash is poison, and for external use only.

AN "automatic loader" for revolvers has been designed. It is a long tube having longitudinal chambers to correspond with the chambers of the revolver. The tube is filled with cartridges, which are forced into the revolver cylinder by springs, filling the six chambers simultaneously.

MEN exposed to the rigors of the Alaskan winter never wear mustaches. They wear full beards to protect the throat and face, but keep the upper lip clean shaven. The moisture from the breath congeals so quickly that a mustache becomes imbedded in a solid cake of ice and the face is frozen in a short time.

A GERMAN, who believes in labor-saving devices, has patented a pair of shears with a spring attachment. When a cut has been made and the shears are closed, the spring opens the blades slightly. When they are wide open, ready for cutting, the arrangement acts in the reverse way and assists in closing them. Both actions lighten the work of the cutter.

A REVOLVING toothpick has been invented by a West India lady. The brush portion is circular; it is attached to a handle that is spirally grooved and slides in a frame. By pressing the end of this handle—which projects beyond the frame—the brush revolves; on discontinuing the pressure the handle springs back to its normal position, causing a further revolution of the brush, and so the movement is maintained.

THE queen of Italy, although very charitable and exceedingly solicitous for the welfare of her people, is the most extravagant woman in the kingdom in the matter of dress. The king thinks she is setting a bad example, but she says that her doings have no influence, as the Italian ladies are naturally fond of display, and she is but keeping up her position as the head of the nation.

T. B. KNOWLES, of Dexter, Me., is the possessor of a pair of iron-bowed spectacles, the age of which, it is said, can be traced back 200 years. The bows are plainly hand forged, the amount of iron in them being sufficient to make several pairs of bows equal in weight to the style used at present. The glass in them magnifies but slightly, is much smaller than what is used now and placed farther apart.

A WOMAN notary public in Colorado, who was recently married, asked the attorney general what name she should use officially in the future. He has replied that she must sign all documents as before her marriage, for he finds no law compelling or even authorizing a woman to drop her maiden name on the simple excuse of marriage. In fact, he says that there is no authority for a change of name at marriage or at any other time.

AN official document recently issued sets forth some remarkable figures regarding the quantity of beer consumed throughout the world. The annual quantity consumed, it is stated, amounts to 17,700,000,000 litres or quarts. Of this amount 5,000,000,000 quarts are made in Germany; in Great Britain and Ireland, 4,790,000,000; in the United States, 3,200,000,000; and Austria-Hungary consumes yearly 1,950,000,000 quarts of beer. France, 540,000,000; and all the Russians only 400,000,000 quarts.

IT is worth noting in regard to the famous hemp produced exclusively in the Philippines that the plant yields, in fact, two qualities, with important industrial or commercial adaptations in each case. From the best, or fibrous outer leaf, comes the coarse, strong fiber, which is the best material used for sailcloths and cordage. It being particular recommended by the fact that it is not easily rotted by salt water. The fiber yielded by the inner leaves is fine and weak, and from it are made textile fabrics superior in softness and lightness to those made of the best Russian hemp.

TEN REGIMENTS.

The Order for the Enlistments of Recruits Issued by Secretary Alger.

Large Men Will Be Selected for This Service—No Restrictions as to Citizenship or Educational Qualifications—Colonels Appointed.

NEW YORK, July 7.—The order for the enlistment for ten new regiments of infantry was issued Wednesday by the secretary of war. The order is as follows:

WAR DEPARTMENT,
WASHINGTON, July 5, 1899.

By the direction of the president, the following general rules are prescribed for the recruiting from the country at large, United States volunteers, as provided for by the act of congress approved March 2, 1899, published in general order No. 36, of 1899, headquarters of the army, adjutant general's office, and for organizing the same into regiments:

The strength of regiments, officers and enlisted men will be as provided for by Sections 4 and 12 of the act of congress approved March 2, 1899.

The regiments to be organized in the United States will be designated 26th, 27th, 28th, 29th, 30th, 31st, 32d, 33d, 34th and 35th regiments of infantry, United States volunteers.

Of the commissioned officers, to be appointed for each of these regiments the field and staff officers, including medical officers and captains of companies, will be assembled at regimental rendezvous as hereafter designated for the purpose of theoretical and practical instruction in organization, military administration, drill regulations, discipline, hygiene, camp sanitation, etc. Daily instruction in the nomenclature, care and assembly of parts of the rifle and target practice will be a special feature of instruction of both officers and men.

Applicants for commissions except officers of the regular army will be required to pass a satisfactory examination as to moral, mental and physical capacity to command troops and must have had service during the Spanish-American war.

The recruiting service of the regular army will be charged with recruiting from the country at large men for service in these volunteer regiments whose enlistments will be made for the period ending June 30, 1901, unless sooner discharged, and without restrictions as to citizenship or educational qualifications, but in all other respects under the same rules and regulations as are prescribed for recruiting the regular service. Except in special cases only unmarried men will be enlisted for these regiments.

Upon arrival of recruits at the regimental rendezvous the commanding officers of regiments will assign them to companies, and the appointment and reduction of regimental and battalion, non-commissioned staff and company non-commissioned officers and other enlisted grades will be governed by the law and army regulations.

Ten regiments of infantry, United States volunteers, will be organized as follows:

The 26th at Plattsburg barracks, N. Y.; 27th at Camp Meade, Pa.; 28th at Camp Meade, Pa.; 29th at Fort McPherson, Ga.; 30th at Fort Sheridan, Ill.; 31st at Fort Thomas, Ky.; 32d at Fort Leavenworth, Kan.; 33d at Fort Sam Houston, Tex.; 34th at Fort Logan, Col.; 35th at Vancouver barracks, Wash.

R. A. ALGER,
Secretary of War.

The president has appointed the following colonels of the volunteer regiments:

Maj. James Bell, 1st cavalry; Capt. James A. Pettit, 1st infantry, better known as colonel of the 4th immunes; Capt. Edward E. Hardin, who was colonel of the 2d New York volunteers in the war with Spain; Capt. L. A. Craig, 6th cavalry; Capt. Luther R. Hare, 7th cavalry; Maj. Wm. A. Kobbe, Capt. Cornelius Gardner, 19th infantry.

The assignment of the volunteer colonels to regiments will be as follows:

Twenty-sixth, Rice; 27th, Bell; 28th, Pettit; 29th, Hardin; 30th, Gardner; 32d, Craig; 33d, Hare; 35th, Kobbe.

The man designated for lieutenant colonel of the 35th regiment will organize it and take it to the Philippines, when Col. Kobbe will assume command.

Crushed Under a Stone.

STINESVILLE, Ind., July 7.—The Consolidated Stone Co., of Bloomington, has had another serious accident, in which one man lost his life and another was seriously wounded. John Staggs and John Cross, while working on the derrick, were caught by a stone weighing 900 pounds. Staggs was mashed into a jelly and Cross was badly mashed about the hips and face, and his head was skinned in a horrible manner.

Bank Cases Submitted.

COLUMBUS, O., July 7.—The bank cases, 12 in number, now pending in the United States court, have been submitted by Attorney-General Monnett to the referee, Irwin Belford. The cases involve the question of the taxation of national bank stock.

Death of Robert Bonner.

NEW YORK, July 7.—Robert Bonner, publisher of the New York Ledger, and owner of famous horses, died at his home in this city at 7:40 Thursday night.

THEY WANT AMERICAN GOODS

Every Part of the World Evinced an Increased Desire for Our Products—Europe's Good Breadstuff Supply.

WASHINGTON, July 8.—A study of details of exports for the fiscal year just ended, the bureau of statistics says, shows that every part of the world has evinced an increased desire for American products. Europe is the only part of the world which has failed to increase the amount of money paid to us for our products, and this, the bureau says, is due solely to the plentiful supply of breadstuffs in that part of the world in 1898, and the consequent decrease in price paid per bushel. To Asia, to Africa, to South America, to Mexico, to Canada and to the Hawaiian islands and Oceanica our exports have increased in quantity and value as compared with the phenomenal year 1898.

To British North America the exports in the fiscal year 1899 will be in round numbers $90,000,000, against $85,000,000 last year; to Mexico about $25,000,000, against $21,205,000 last year; to Cuba about $18,000,000, against $8,500,000 last year; to Porto Rico $2,500,000, against $1,500,000 in 1898, and to the entire West Indies' group $35,000,000 in round numbers, against $20,438,000 last year. South America, to which our sales in the past have not shown as rapid an increase as those to other parts of the world, shows a slight gain in 1899, and will reach a total of over $35,000,000, against $33,821,000 last year. To Asia the exports of the year will be about $47,000,000, against $44,844,000 last year, China showing an increase of over 33 per cent., and Hong Kong about an equal increase, while Japan, which purchased enormous quantities of raw cotton and various manufactured goods from us last year, has somewhat decreased her purchases in those lines, so that the total to Japan during the year will show a reduction of over $3,000,000 compared with 1898, but an increase of $3,000,000 compared with 1897. Oceanica shows remarkable gains, the total for the year being likely to exceed $20,000,000, against $21,991,000 last year, and to Africa the exports of the year are in excess of those of any preceding year.

The value of exports to the United Kingdom for the year will be more than $25,000,000 below that of last year, while the reduction in the value of our exports to France will be more than $30,000,000, to Belgium about $4,000,000, and to Spain about $2,000,000. This reduction occurs almost entirely in food products, and especially breadstuffs.

The reduction in value of wheat sent to Europe in 11 months of 1899 compared with the corresponding months of 1898, is in round numbers $18,000,000. The United Kingdom has also reduced her purchases of live cattle about $7,000,000 in the 11 months of 1899, compared with corresponding months of 1898, due, it is believed, largely to an increase in prices demanded by the dealers of the United States.

HON. GEORGE W. JULIAN DEAD

The Ex-Congressman Expired at His Home in Irvington, Near Indianapolis, Ind., Friday Morning.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., July 8.—George W. Julian died at his home, in Irvington, at 11 o'clock Friday morning. His daughter, Mrs. Grace Julian Clarke, his son, Paul, and Dr. Thomas L. Thompson, family physician, were present when he died.

George W. Julian was born in Wayne county, Indiana, near Centerville, in 1817. His early life was spent on the farm. His political career began in 1840. Four years later he took the stump for Clay and Frelinghuysen. It was in this year that his abolition belief took root and became the mainspring of his political career. In 1845 he was elected to the legislature from his native county. When Taylor was nominated Julian boldly announced that he could not support the ticket, and that he would affiliate with the free soil party. He was chosen a delegate to the Buffalo convention and an elector of the Fourth congressional district of Indiana.

In 1849 he was a candidate for the vice presidency on the free soil ticket, and was a delegate to the first republican convention at Pittsburgh in 1856. He served in congress many years from the "Burnt district." In May, 1885 he was appointed surveyor general of New Mexico.

Dropped Dead on the Street.

ATLANTA, Ga., July 8.—Mrs. L. A. Rice, of San Antonio, Tex., dropped dead at noon Friday at the corner of Baker and Ivy streets. The cause of her death was heart failure. Mrs. Rice was the niece of President Tyler and a first cousin of Gen. Robert E. Lee. She was a sister of Judge John A. James, chief justice of the supreme court of Texas.

Reward for Distinguished Service.

WASHINGTON, July 8.—Capt. Brereton, of the 24th infantry, who distinguished himself during the Santiago campaign, is to be appointed to the colonelcy of one of the volunteer regiments.

Killed by a Baseball.

SIOUX FALLS, S. D., July 8.—Levent Hartwick, aged 18, was found dead Thursday night. His death resulted from being struck on the head by a baseball July 4 and he had been missing since then.

TO BE RELEASED.

Arrangements for Surrender of Spanish Soldiers Practically Made.

Remnant of the Spanish Garrison at Baler and Several Civilian Prisoners Escorted to the American Outpost at San Fernando.

MANILA, July 7.—The Spanish commissioners who went to Tarlac for a conference with Aguinaldo regarding the surrender of the Spanish prisoners in the hands of the Filipinos, returned here Thursday night. Chairman Del Rio, of the commission, said the release of all the prisoners had been practically arranged for, but it would be necessary to consult the Spanish government before the agreement could be ratified. He declined to give the terms of the arrangement or to say whether these contemplated a ransom. He asserted, however, that Aguinaldo had already issued a decree for the release of the civilian officials and the sick soldiers.

The commissioners, with the remnant of the Spanish garrison of Baler, on the east coast of Luzon, and a number of civilian prisoners were escorted by Filipino soldiers from Tarlac to the American outposts at San Fernando and came to Manila by the night train.

The heroes of the long defense of Baler, where the Spaniards resisted an insurgent siege for more than a year, formed a picturesque band. Lieut. Martin, the only surviving officer, marched them through the streets. There are only 22, and most of them are mere boys, in faded blue cotton uniforms and red shirts. They are barefooted.

A crowd of Spanish men and women embraced them, weeping and shouting their praises.

They tell a remarkable story. It appears that the captain several times proposed to surrender, but the soldiers refused. Finally some months ago he tried to raise a white flag. Thereupon Lieut. Martin killed him with his own sword.

Their food supply gave out entirely a week ago and they surrendered to the Filipinos with all the honors of war. They were allowed to keep their arms, and they say they marched from Baler with a Filipino escort and carrying guns through several insurgent camps, everywhere being cheered and feted.

AUGUST BECKER IS GUILTY.

He Was Convicted of Murdering His First Wife at Chicago—His Punishment Fixed at Death.

CHICAGO, July 7.—August Becker, the stock yards butcher, Thursday was found guilty of the murder of his first wife. His punishment was fixed at death. The jury was out only a short time. Becker showed apparent indifference. The father of Becker's second wife, George Sutterlin, accused by Becker of being the murderer, did not attend the closing scene. Sutterlin's daughter, Becker's second wife, was also absent.

Mrs. Rachael Becker disappeared last January and two weeks later Becker married 17-year-old Ida Sutterlin. When Becker was arrested he confessed to having killed his first wife in a fit of rage. In order to dispose of the body he said he cut it up and boiled it piece by piece. While on trial he denies all this and claimed his father-in-law, Sutterlin, did the killing.

Becker and Michael Bollinger, who is also under the death penalty for wife murder, may be sentenced to hang side by side. Bollinger, like Becker, wanted to be single so as to marry again.

THE YACHT COLUMBIA WON.

At a Trial She Proved Worthy of Defending the Cup Which Sir Lipton Expects to Capture Next Fall.

NEW YORK, July 7.—Over a triangular course of 30 miles, in comparatively light winds, the new Iselin-Morgan yacht Columbia Thursday vanquished the Vanderbilt yacht Defender and convinced the yachtsmen who saw the royal struggle that she is worthy of defending the precious trophy which Sir Thomas Lipton and his merry tars hope to take back with them in the Shamrock next fall. The Columbia's fore staysail and club top sail are anything but perfect and cracked in the wind Thursday like a teamster's whip, demonstrating that in a general way, she will need a good deal of tuning up. Yet, based upon the showing she made as a better boat than the Defender under adverse conditions, the nautical sharps are strongly convinced that Sir Thomas will sail home without the silver mug, the possession of which has given us the yachting supremacy of the world since 1851.

Alleged Murderers Arrested.

BUCHANAN, Mich., July 7.—Two men supposed to be the murderers of Martin Meier, who was strangled to death at his home in Chicago, June 7, were arrested here Thursday. One man gives the name of Smith and the other says his name is Brock.

Death of Father Pesnelle.

NEW YORK, July 7.—A dispatch from Paris announces the death there of Very Rev. Eugene Pesnelle, superior general of the Order of Father of Mercy, aged 75 years.

RIVER BRAZOS IS FALLING.

The Flood Situation in the Valley is Rapidly Improving—The Relief Committees Are Well Organized.

GALVESTON, Tex., July 8.—The situation in the Brazos valley is rapidly improving. The river is falling. There is a rumor that five lives were lost near Sartaria, in Fort Bend county, but the rumor lacks confirmation. The report sent out Wednesday from Brookshire, Waller county, that two lives were lost there now appears to be an error. Those supposed to have been drowned persist in making their re-appearance. Relief committees are now well organized. This flood is the most terrible that has ever been known in this state. In fact it looks as if there had been a perfect waterspout for 100 miles along the Brazos river. One witness says the floods came in a wave that was nearly six feet high.

At Brookshire the relief committee have opened a commissary and issued a half ration per capita. They have taken precautions, so that only the deserving shall get these rations, and, therefore, they issue to the planter for all the tenants he had when the flood came. Those who owned their own farms and lost everything, as is the case with most of them, are allowed to draw their rations direct.

D. S. Cage, a prominent citizen at Brookshire, thinks it is not too late to plant cotton, and he has ordered a carload of cotton seed, which he proposes to give to all who will plant and undertake to cultivate the crop. He says, moreover, that crops of cotton, sorghum, Kaffir corn, June corn and potatoes can be raised now if these people had the seed, but they have neither seed nor money, and he suggested that contributions of seed would help them. These crops would enable them to live until the beginning of next year, when they would be able to draw supplies from the merchant from the prospective crop. If the people do not attempt to raise another crop this year, Mr. Cage does not see anything ahead but starvation. There are rations enough at Brookshire to last for a week or more.

An old Negro was found Friday at Duke, lashed to a tree. The rescuing party took him aboard of a boat. He collapsed from exhaustion, fell overboard and was drowned. Missouri City reports one drowning, a Negro named Will Williams.

TROOPS WERE ORDERED OUT.

But as Before Gov. Bradley Revoked the Order—Exaggerated Stories of a Manchester Shooting Sent Out.

FRANKFORT, Ky., July 8.—Gov. Bradley wrote out an an order Friday night to send 200 soldiers to Clay county to suppress another supposed outbreak, but before the ink was hardly dry he was informed that he had again been imposed upon by some excitable person or persons in London, Ky., and withdrew the order. He was telegraphed that Deputy Sheriff Stubblefield, of Clay county, had been killed by one Smith; that the Smiths and Jones got on the warpath and started out gunning for the Whites. The governor wired the telegraph agent at London to know if the message was genuine and received an affirmative reply. He then wired Judge Boyd, R. M. Jackson and other reliable people asking if the news could be verified.

While waiting for replies he sent messages for a special train to carry the Pewee valley, Frankfort and Lexington militia companies to London Friday night, and all the companies were ordered to be ready to march by 9 o'clock Friday night. By the time everything was in readiness messages from Judge Boyd, Jackson and others told the governor that the story had been greatly exaggerated, that while attempting to make an arrest Deputy Sheriff Stubblefield was shot and wounded by Matt Smith, but there was no excitement over the affair and no sort of trouble was expected.

The call for troops was at once countermanded, and the second attempt to have troops sent failed.

THE ASSASSINS OF GEN. LUNA

They Were Tried and Acquitted on the Ground of Self-Defense—His Death Strengthens Aguinaldo's Role.

MANILA, July 8.—The trial at Cabunatuan of the slayers of Gen. Luna, the Filipino leader who was assassinated by the guard of Aguinaldo's residence, is ended. The accused were acquitted on the ground of self-defense. The testimony showed there was a conspiracy on the part of Luna and other officers to kill Aguinaldo and make Luna dictator.

Luna's death seems to have strengthened Aguinaldo's leadership for the time. Luna's supporters are now outwardly loyal to Aguinaldo.

"John," said Mrs. Parvenu, wearily, but with decision, "I must have a consultation of physicians." "But, Maria," he protested, "you have nothing but a cold in the head." "Can't help it," she answered. "When Mrs. Brown was sick last winter she had a consultation of physicians, and I guess we can afford anything that the Browns can."—Portland Oregonian.

"I don't suppose a woman ought to be a real estate agent." "I don't know. Why not?" "Well, it's a woman's place, you know, to be the housekeeper."—Philadelphia Bulletin.

"Do Not Grasp at the Shadows and Lose the Substance."

Many people are but shadows of their former selves, due to neglect of health. Look out for the blood, the fountain of life, the actual substance; keep that pure by regular use of Hood's Sarsaparilla and robust health will be the result. Be sure to get only Hood's, because

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Never Disappoints

FISH IN THE SNOWBANKS.

A Most Unique But Welcome Sort of a Snowslide Among Norwegian Mountains.

A snow avalanche with very unusual results is reported from Norway. It gave the people of Christiania something to talk about for a week. The unique phenomenon occurred among the low mountains back of the capital on March 13. There had been an extraordinary fall of snow, and then came a big thaw, which melted a great deal of the ice in the little Lilledal river. A very large number of fish had their home in this stream, and what happened to them is the unusual feature of this avalanche, says the New York Sun.

In the night a large mass of snow on the hills on one side of the stream slipped from the slopes and glided with great velocity down into the river. The face of the avalanche was about a mile in length, and for that distance it slid into the river, not sharing the river bed with the water, but violently ejecting the stream and the fish living in it.

The force of that concussion must have been very great, for the water and fish were hurled hundreds of feet. Next morning the people were very much surprised to find, high on the slopes of the hills bordering the other side of the valley, a great number of fish scattered over the snow. For some days there was a most unusual sort of fishing in progress. Men, women and children were floundering about in the snow gathering the fish in baskets, and the people living along the valley had all the fish they could eat without baiting a hook.

NOT A FAIR TEST.

For the Victim of Rabies Died from the Treatment on the Fifth Day.

They were talking about hydrophobia and rabies. One of the party was a well-known Philadelphia physician, says the Chicago Evening News. He listened quietly to the quasi-scientific theories of the others, and when they had quite finished, one of them said:

"What have you got to say about it, doctor?"

"Well," he said, thoughtfully, "I would not exactly like to say what my opinion is. I might be misreported; but I will tell you, if you like, how the disease was treated 100 or 200 years ago. At that time hydrophobia, in common with every other obscure disease, was thought to be the work of a devil, and all sorts of queer tricks were resorted to to drive him out. There is on record a case which occurred at Colchester, in England. It was a woman who had been bitten by a rabid dog. The cur was killed, of course, and the treatment of the woman was in keeping with the period. She was placed in a bath of tepid water up to her neck and ducked seven times, each time being kept under so long as she could hold her breath. This was to be repeated every seven hours for seven days, she being fed on milk only during the treatment. Unfortunately, she died on the fifth day, but the doctor gravely remarked that it was a pity, for if she had held out two days longer she would have been cured. And that is probably true."

Miss Lockheart's
LETTER TO MRS. PINKHAM.

[LETTER TO MRS. PINKHAM NO. 67,102]

"I cannot express my gratitude to you for the good that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. I have taken five bottles of the Compound and two boxes of Liver Pills and feel better in every respect. I had suffered for years with dropsy; the veins in my limbs burst, caused from the pressure of the water. I had the worst kind of kidney trouble, fainting spells, and I could not stand long at a time. I also had female weakness and the doctor said there was a tumor in my left side. The pains I had to stand were something dreadful. A friend handed me a little book of yours, so I got your medicine and it has saved my life. I felt better from the first bottle. The bloating and the tumors have all gone and I do not suffer any pain. I am still using the Vegetable Compound and hope others may find relief as I have done from its use."—Miss N. J. LOCKHEART, Box 16, ELIZABETH, PA.

Only the women who have suffered with female troubles can fully appreciate the gratitude of those who have been restored to health.

Mrs. Pinkham responds quickly and without charge to all letters from suffering women. Her address is Lynn, Mass.

THE JUDGES OF
CARTER'S INK
are the users. More users of it than any other. Why? THE BEST!
Costs YOU no more than the poorest!

PISO'S CURE FOR
CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS. Best Cough Syrup. Tastes Good. Use in time. Sold by druggists.
CONSUMPTION

HIT BY A TRAIN.

All But One of a Family of Seven Killed Sunday at Columbus.

They Had Just Visited the House of Mrs. Huffman, Whose Husband Had Been Killed by Cars on Friday—At the Crossing They Met Death.

COLUMBUS, O., July 10.—All but one of the seven members of the family of Wm. F. Reinhard, of this city, were killed and the remaining one was badly injured by a Big Four passenger train Sunday afternoon.

The dead: Wm. Reinhard, aged 41; Rachael Reinhard, aged 42; Wm. Reinhard, aged 12; Arthur Reinhard, aged 9; Karl Reinhard, aged 7; Edward Reinhard, aged 5.

Injured: Clarence Reinhard, aged 14, collar bone broken.

The accident occurred at the Woodward avenue crossing of the Big Four railroad and opposite the southwest entrance to the state fair grounds. Mr. and Mrs. Reinhard and their five children, who resided at 256 Donaldson street, were out for an afternoon drive in a surrey.

They had just visited the home of a Mrs. Huffman, whose husband had been killed in the railroad yards last Friday, and were on their way to the home of a sister of Mr. Reinhard. They approached the railroad crossing from the east, arriving at that point just as the westbound passenger train, arriving here at 3:15 p. m., was due.

An eye witness of the accident said he saw the surrey crossing the track and at the same instant it was struck by the train. The vehicle was knocked into splinters and Mr. and Mrs. Reinhard and Arthur and Karl were killed outright. Edward and William were so badly injured that they died after being removed to a hospital. Clarence sustained a fracture of the collar bone and other lesser injuries but it is believed he will recover.

The horse which was attached to the surrey was literally ground to pieces. It is not known whether any of the members of the unfortunate family were aware of the approach of the train, but the circumstances indicate that they were not. The crossing has long been regarded as a dangerous one, view of incoming trains being obscured by a high fence around the fair grounds. The train was running at a high speed.

SPANIARDS LEAVING CUBA.

By October Fully $130,000,000 of Spanish Capital Will Have Been Withdrawn and Invested in Mexico.

CITY OF MEXICO, July 10.—Spaniards, formerly in business in Havana and other Cuban cities, are now arriving here looking for investments and say that by October fully $130,000,000 of Spanish capital will have been withdrawn from the island, for Spaniards of wealth do not wish to risk a long period of political unrest and possible coming into power of professional Cuban politicians.

This wealth which is being taken away by Spaniards is good cash and will mainly be taken to Spain for investment, while some will come to Mexico. Spanish merchants and planters now here report the English as being the boldest investors now in Cuba, and declare the Americans are timid and have lost many large businesses which have passed into English hands.

FLOOD AT ANGLETON, TEX.

Street Under Two or Three Feet of Water—The Loss of Live Stock and Crops in the Vicinity Very Large.

ANGLETON, Tex., July 10.—All the streets of this town are under two or three feet of water. Very few lives have been lost in this vicinity, but the losses of live stock and crops will be heavy. Cattle along the Bastrop have been drowned by the thousands. The destruction in Oyster Creek valley is absolutely complete. Negroes' cabins have been washed away by the dozens and the poor are absolutely penniless, hopeless and hungry. The Brazos now exteuds from Caney, in Matogerda county, on the west, to Chocolate on the east, a distance of 85 miles, and has carried complete destruction and desolation with it. Absolutely nothing is left which was touched by the flood.

No Settlement Reached.

CHICAGO, July 10.—T. J. Shaffer, representing the Amalgamated association in the conference of tin plate manufacturers and workers, said at 1 o'clock Saturday that no settlement of the wage dispute had been reached. The conference remained in session all day, but several of those present expressed their belief that the threatened strike can scarcely be averted. About 30,000 men will be affected if the strike order is issued.

Female Prison Chaplain.

LARAMIE, Wyo., July 10.—Mrs. May Preston Slosson, a graduate of Vassar, and wife of one of the professors of the state university at Laramie, was Sunday appointed chaplain of the state penitentiary at Laramie.

American Whist League Meeting.

CHICAGO, July 10.—The ninth annual congress of the American Whist league will open in the banquet hall of the Auditorium hotel Monday afternoon, and lovers of the game from other places are arriving to attend.

RAINY SEASON.

The Country Along the American Lines South and Bay Lines is Flooded.

A Prominent Filipino General and Many of His Followers, With Arms, in the Cavite Province About to Surrender to the American Authorities.

MANILA, July 10.—It has been raining and storming almost constantly for two days, and the country along the American south and bay lines is literally flooded. The soldiers are suffering great discomfort. The 13th infantry regiment at Pasay is in the worst position, being practically surrounded by water. The bridges that that were used for getting supplies have been washed away and some of the companies are now separated by streams six feet deep.

In many cases the men are sleeping with three feet of water beneath their bunks which are elevated on cracker boxes. The company cooks, when preparing the meals, stand knee deep in water.

Some of the roads leading to Pasay are simply impassable and the rice fields on all sides are one great lake. A high wind blew over several tents of the Second reserve hospital.

Manila bay is impossible of navigation by either launches or canoes and no vessels are leaving the harbor.

The United States transport Centennial is ready to sail for San Francisco with discharged soldiers, but the latter have to sit about the water front all day, drenched to the skin, waiting for a launch to take them to the steamer

The river Pasig and all the other streams are swollen, and the city streets at low points are covered with water.

MANILA, July 6, via Hong Kong, July 10.—Friendly Filipinos in Manila have been the medium of communications between the American authorities and the military leaders of the insurrection in Cavite province, which for some time promised to result in bringing over a prominent general and several hundred of his followers with their arms. If the negotiations had succeeded the outcome would have had a great moral effect for other defections doubtless would have followed.

Were the general's name given it might lead in his case to a fate similar to that which has befallen other Filipinos suspected of friendliness toward the Americans. He had foreseen the failure of the insurrection and advised Aguinaldo to make terms but it is understood he has sent word to the American that, having sworn to support the insurrection, he must remain loyal to the end.

Similar negotiations are said on good authority to have been conducted with a member of the cabinet of the so-called Filipino government, who himself took the initiative.

THE LATE BISHOP NEWMAN.

THE BANK WAS CLOSED UP.

Poor Loans Caused the Failure of the Citizens National of Niles, Mich.—Receiver Has Been Appointed.

WASHINGTON, July 10.—The doors of the Citizens' national bank, of Niles, Mich., were closed Saturday by National Bank Examiner Joseph Selden, who was appointed temporary receiver of the bank by the controller of the currency. The cause of the failure of the bank is poor loans which have been made, to meet which the controller levied an assessment upon the capital stock of the bank. The stockholders failed to meet this assessment and the receiver was appointed in consequence. The last statement of the Citizens national bank showed loans and discounts amounting to $169,599. Surplus, $10,000. Capital, $50,000.

National Educational Association.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., July 10.—Nearly 2,000 delegates to the National Educational association have arrived in the city and 20 special trains are scheduled to arrive Saturday, bringing several thousand. The first session of the National Council of Education begins Saturday. The session will continue through three days.

Confession of Martin Meier's Slayers.

CHICAGO, July 10.—Emil Smith and Sigmund Brosche, the murderers of Martin Meier, have confessed. They did not know that Meier was dead until after they had admitted they had bound and gagged their victim.

Destructive Fire at Gallipolis.

GALLIPOLIS, O., July 10.—Fire destroyed James Billup's meat market, Charles Roseman's grocery, Perry Coverston's repair shop, John Houk's saloon, and damaged William Shurt's saloon. Estimated loss $7,000.

THE PEACE CONGRESS' WORK.

A Proposed Convention in Regard to the Arbitration of National Disputes—Mediation of Friendly Powers.

THE HAGUE, July 8.—The proposed convention of the peace congress in regard to arbitration of national difficulties is as follows:

Article 1. With the object of preventing as far as possible recourse to force in international relations, the signatory powers agree to use all endeavors to effect by pacific means a settlement of the differences which may arise among them.

Article 2. The signatory powers decline that in cases of serious difference or conflict they will, before appealing to arms, have recourse, so far as circumstances permit, to the good offices or mediation of one or several friendly powers.

Article 3. Independently of this, the signatory powers deem it useful that several of the powers not committed to the arbitration scheme shall on their own initiative offer, as far as circumstances permit, their good offices for mediation to the contending states. The right of offering their good offices belong to powers not connected with the conflict even in the course of hostilities, which act can never be regarded as an unfriendly act.

Article 4. The part of mediator consists in reconciling conflicting claims and appeasing resentment which may have arisen between contending states.

Article 5. The functions of mediators cease from the moment it may be stated by one of the contending parties or by the mediator himself that the compromise or basis of an amicable understanding proposed by him has not been accepted.

Article 6. Good offices and mediation have the exclusive character of counsel and are devoid of obligatory forces.

Article 7. The acceptance of mediation, unless otherwise stipulated, may have the effect of interrupting the obligation of preparing for war. If the acceptance supervenes after the opening of hostilities it shall not interrupt, unless by a convention of a contrary tenor, military operations that may be proceeding.

Article 8. The signatory powers agree in recommending the application of special mediation in the event of threatened interruption of peace between members. Contending states may each choose a power to which they will entrust the mission of entering into a negotiation with a power chosen by the other side with the object of preventing a rupture of pacific relations, or, in the event of hostilities of restoring peace.

Articles 9 to 14 provide for the institution of an international commission of inquiry for the verification of facts in cases of minors, disputes not affecting the vital interests or honor of states, but impossible of settlement by ordinary diplomacy. The report of an inquiry commission will not force an arbitral judgment, leaving the contending parties full liberty to either conclude an amicable arrangement on the basis of the report or have recourse ulteriorly to mediation or arbitration.

Articles 14 to 19 set forth the general objects of and benefits it is hoped to derive from the arbitration court and dee ares signing the convention implies an undertaking to submit in good faith to arbitral judgment.

SHE WAS USING NAPHTHA.

Noted Washington Woman, Social Leader and a Writer, Burned to Death in an Explosion.

WASHINGTON, July 8.—Mrs. Marguerite Dickens, the wife of Capt. Francis W. Dickens, assistant chief of the bureau of navigation, was killed Friday morning at her residence by an explosion of naphtha. She was cleaning in the room with the fluid when it exploded.

Mrs. Dickens was a remarkably brilliant woman and a social leader in Washington. She was a writer of some note, her most popular book being a description of her cruise around South America on a man-of-war, of which her husband was commander.

ARE MANY APPLICATIONS.

Almost Every Officer Who Served in the War in Cuba Has Offered His Services in the Philippine Campaign.

WASHINGTON, July 8.—It was stated at the war department Friday that almost every officer who served in the army during the war with Spain, and who has been honorably mustered out, has again offered his services to meet the needs of the Philippine campaign.

Altogether no less than 10,000 applications for commissions in the new volunteer army now forming have been received at the war department and have been placed on the files. Friday alone the applications numbered 480.

Father's Life Taken to Save His Mother.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., July 8.—Oscar Rykel, a 15-year-old boy, Friday morning shot his father four times, inflicting dangerous wounds. The father, Carl Rydel, came home drunk and began abusing his wife. The son attracted by her screams entered the room with a revolver, and when his father rushed at him fired five times, four bullets taking effect, two in the arm, one in the breast and one in the groin. The boy surrendered and is now in jail. He says he shot to save his mother's life.

NEW GUN TESTED

New Rapid-Fire Weapons Designed for the Protection of the Mine Fields.

The Former Will Be Used to Protect Torpedoes in Harbors—Latter Gun Can Throw 60 Shots a Minute, With a Crew of Only Two Men.

NEW YORK, July 10.—A new rapid fire gun designed for the protection of the mine fields and a novel semi-automatic six-pounder for the navy has been successfully tested on the proving grounds of the Briggs-Seabury Gun & Ammunition Co., at Derby, Ct.

These guns were built for the army and navy respectively under contracts awarded at the beginning of the war with Spain and will probably play an important part in the plan and scope of national defense. The army gun is a six-pounder of the Briggs type and is mounted upon a parapet carriage, which admits of the piece being fired with the same rapidity as upon a naval mount.

While it can be easily transported from place to place, in fact, the new weapon is a combination of a field and coast defense gun. Its use will be principally to protect the torpedoes in the harbors by throwing such an overwhelming shower of shot and shell that no small boat could live within its zone of fire. The gun and carriage rest upon the parapet of the fort and are held rigidly in position by means of a V-shaped anchorage, which is worked under the center of the axle. Should it be desired to concentrate the fire upon any particular point, the anchorage is unhooked and the carriage rolled away to any point on the beach. A small spade at the rear of the trail piece can be released, and taking against the ground, holds the gun in position.

The semi-automatic gun is also a six-pounder and is the first completed of 51 for the navy. It is expected to work a revolution in rapid-fire guns, for with it a speed of 60 shots per minute was obtained Saturday, which is twice the record by the six-pounder, which is worked by hand. Another important feature is that it reduces the crew of a six pounder from four to two men, one of whom throws in fixed ammunition as a person throws coal into a furnace, while the other fires as the breach block closes automatically.

LARGE CO-OPERATIVE COLONY

Eight Thousand Acres of Land to Be Secured on Lake Erie to Be Devoted to Farming and Manufacturing.

TOLEDO, O., July 10.—Plans have been formulated for a large co-operative colony to be situated on Lake Erie near here, and 8,000 acres of land are to be secured, to be devoted to farming and manufacturing interests. The promotor of the scheme is Joseph A. Johnson, of the state of Washington, and he has with him a number of local people who have ample means. Mr. Johnson Sunday announced that it is the intention to build a city which will engage in a commercial trade, the profits of which are to be divided equally among the members of the colony.

The land to be occupied is owned by Hon. H. T. Niles and options will be secured for what the colony needs. Mr. Johnson states that $6,000 has been pledged to the enterprise and that the remainder of $10,000 will be raised to make the colony perfectly independent from the start.

SCHURMAN MAKES A REPORT.

He Finds That the Conditions in the Southern Islands of the Archipelago Are Very Satisfactory.

WASHINGTON, July 10.—Dispatches have just been received at the state department from President Schurman, of the Philippine commission, giving some account of his journey to the southern islands of the archipelago. He finds the conditions in those islands extremely gratifying. There is a disposition almost everywhere south of Luzon to accept American sovereignty. President Schurman expects to arrive at San Francisco about the 15th of August.

It is felt at the state department that the commission has done much to convey to the native Filipinos a proper conception of the purposes of the United States government and in that way has sapped the strength of the insurrection.

Crushed by the Wheels.

SHOALS, Ind., July 10.—At Natchez, Martin county, while the Salmon boys were hauling lumber, a young son of Jackson Ballard, when the team was stopped, got in front of the wheels, and, when the wagon started, a wheel passed over his body, killing him almost instantly.

The Second Dividend.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., July 10.—Checks to the amount of $218,750 were mailed to preferred stockholders of the Pressed Steel Car Co. Saturday in payment of the second dividend of 1¾ per cent. on $12,500,000. The dividend is payable July 10, on which date the books will be reopened for transfer.

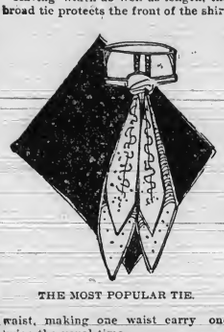
Fatal Boiler Explosion.

OIL CITY, Pa., July 10.—By the explosion of a boiler on the Moran oil tract Saturday, James McCray was killed and John Turk was seriously injured.

THE HAIR AT NIGHT.

A System of Treatment Which, in the Course of a Year, Will Almost Work Wonders.

At bedtime unfasten your hair and brush it. Brush it half an hour every evening for a month; after that brush it 15 minutes nightly—ten minutes, if you have no more time. Loosen it completely, rub it with your fingers, rubbing and brushing alternately, using, as before, first a soft, soothing brush, then a vigorous, stiff one. Brush it to the tips of the longest strands. Gather it loosely for the night, allowing full ventilation, and in the morning brush it 15 minutes at first, afterward ten minutes devotedly every day. If your hair is thin and threatens to fall, or the parting is growing inconveniently wide, let it down at night and massage the scalp. Rub it, gather the loose skin between the fingers, pinch it a little, invent exercise for it with the tip of the fingers. Give it some work to do every day, and brush it. Part it on the side at night and give the day's parting a rest.



No treatment of this sort produces a sudden or spectacular result, but if there is no disease of the hair follicles and the general health is good, it will often work wonders in a twelvemonth. Once in a couple of months—more often or less, as you find your need—go to a good hairdresser, who will run your locks, tress by tress, through a comb, snipping the broken or split hairs and leaving healthy, growing ends. No indiscriminate chopping at the end of a braid with rash, amateurish scissors will produce results of much value.—N. Y. Ledger.

SOFT TIE REIGNS.

Although It Is Now in Its Second Season, Its Popularity Is Greater Than Ever.

That there are always two sides to a question is proved in the case of the soft summer tie. Besides its beauty comes in the argument of its utility, for the soft tie with its many ends saves many a quarter in laundry bills.

Having width as well as length, the broad tie protects the front of the shirt waist, making one waist carry one twice the usual time.

THE MOST POPULAR TIE.

The summer girl's patriotism is mostly visible in the small ornaments of dress. With a soft tie of white pique or silk figured in delicate design, stick pins enameled in red, white and blue are worn. The correct design in these pins are small flags and bows, and it must be admitted that they are much prettier than the loud dress effects which make one look like a walking Fourth-of-July show.

My Lady's Sewing Screen.

A delightful decorative and useful note in my lady's morning room is the sewing screen, a gracious little affair combining all the comforts of thread basket, pincushion, needle case, work bag, catch-all and table. One such screen, which graces the bedroom corner in the home of a busy little housewife, is fashioned of yellow denim and a delicately flowered yellow silk, and can be very easily carried out in any color by a pair of clever hands.

The framework, which consists of two leaves 18 inches wide, is about three feet high and is covered from the outside and fastened on the inside corners with fancy gilt nails. Each leaf is divided into three parts, the upper and lower given over to pockets made of the silk. A needle case covered with silk and a pincushion of yellow plush hang from the top of each leaf, respectively. Two flat pieces of pasteboard covered with the silk fall against the middle division of each leaf, one being held by ribbons to form a wide pocket, the other standing for a small shelf or table when caught by ribbons to two fancy-headed nails on either side of the screen above.

How to Renovate Velvet.

A simple method of cleaning velvet, velveteen and plush is the following. The rule applies to all three kinds of goods, as all have a pile, and if flattened must be assisted to rise again: With the assistance of a stiff whisk broom, a pan of boiling water and an obliging friend who will brush up the nap as you hold the goods taut over the steam the wrong side to the water, these materials will look like new. This process removes wrinkles, brightens the color and makes the crushed nap stay up when brushed against the grain, and will answer for black or colored pile fabrics. If the velvet has a grease spot on it remove it with French chalk before steaming. A sticky spot may be lightly touched with clean cold water before the steaming process.

A PETTICOAT NOVELTY.

Watch My Lady When She Lifts Her Skirt and You Will See Most Gorgeous Designs.

In these days when so much depends upon the fit of the dress skirt around the hips and the exact fullness around the foot, the silk petticoat is an article of much importance. The very latest skirts are cut with circular yokes and fitted carefully and smoothly around the figure with no gathers at the back.

All kinds of brilliant plaid and striped goods come for fashioning these skirts, silk being a prime favorite, and they are trimmed as delicately and elaborately as any evening gown.

A GLIMPSE OF MY LADY'S PETTICOAT.

A very pretty skirt was made of coral pink taffeta with large black squares scattered through it. A deep circular ruffle was added at the knee. This was trimmed with double ruffle, accordion plaited and finished with a narrow heading of shirred chiffon. Bows of black satin ribbon were set aroundthe foot of the skirt at frequent intervals.

Flounces made of alternate rows of ribbon and lace insertion are another fancy, and plaitings of black and white net trimmed with rows of ribbon are a very effective trimming. For a very dainty decoration plaitings of chiffon cannot be surpassed, and in every case ribbon is employed, this being considered a very elegant feature of the fashionable petticoats.

TAKE A NAP DAILY.

A Fifteen Minutes' Sleep After the Midday Meal Works Wonders in Almost Every Case.

"During the day everyone should take a few minutes' sleep, preferably directly after the noon meal," writes Edward B. Warman, in his "Five-Minute Talks on Good Health," in the Ladies' Home Journal. "The time given to it may seem too precious for one in business, but it will be more than compensated for by the mental and bodily condition that follows. Sit in an easy chair. Lying down directly after a meal crowds the digestive organs and makes one's sleep restless instead of restful. Rest the head comfortably. Tip the chair to a pleasant angle for the body, not enough to have the weight of the body on the back. Place the feet upon a chair as high or a trifle higher than upon the one upon which you are sitting; cross the limbs at the ankle joints, close the hands together by interlacing the fingers, place the fleshy part of the thumbs together in order to avoid grasping the hands too tightly, and close the eyes. Having thus closed the circuit, it will be necessary for you to relieve yourself of all nervous and muscular tension; think only of your slow, measured breathing and the desire for a restful sleep."

To Keep Dainty Veils.

A capital way of retaining the shape of veils and keeping them in good condition is to pull them out each time after removing from the hat or bonnet and to carefully roll them around a long cushion made in the form of a small bolster. This veil bolster may be filled with the following composition: Florentine orris root, powdered, half a pound; rosewood, powdered, six ounces; calamus aromaticus, half a pound; yellow sanders, a quarter of a pound; gum Benjamin, three ounces; powdered cloves, half an ounce; cinnamon, one ounce. Grind all together and stuff the bolster tightly. It may be covered with silk or thin chamois leather and embroidered if desired.—Chicago Tribune.

Way to Acquire Grace.

A French gymnast declares that American girls do not pay sufficient attention to the development of their arms, but think too much of their waist lines, while if the arms were properly treated the waist would take care of itself. The French girls are extremely strong in their arms, she says, and their grace comes from the deftness with which they balance themselves; to see a French woman carry a heavy package is a delight. The way to acquire grace and a slender, supple figure is by exercises with the dumb-bells and by raising and lowering the body by the arms and toes when lying flat on the floor.

Cures for Insomnia.

In the matter of inducing sleep much depends upon the individual. One person will find a hearty meal before bedtime conducive to sleep, while another thinks that an empty stomach is the best plan in order to obtain sleep. A cold bath, rubbing the hands in cold water, a wet towel applied to the temples are all helpful to a good night's rest. Some persons think that the only way to insure sleep is to fix the mind upon some real or fancied object, while others think that to count from one backward endlessly will weary the brain so that sleep will come.

BOONE CO., RECORDER.

Wednesday, July 12, 1899..

Advertising Rates:

One inch, one time.....$1.00
Each additional time.....25
Obituaries, Tributes of Respects or notices of a like nature, per inch .50

W. L. RIDDELL. - - Publisher.

We are authorized to announce J. W. KENNEDY, of Union, as a candidate for the Legislature, subject to the action of the Democratic party.

We are authorized to announce BENJAMIN STEPHENS, of Florence, as a candidate for the Legislature, subject to the action of the Democratic party.

Democratic State Ticket.

For Governor,
WILLIAM GOEBEL, of Kenton.

For Lieutenant Governor,
J. C. W. BECKHAM, of Nelson.

For Attorney General,
R. J. BRECKINRIDGE, of Boyle.

For Auditor,
G. G. COULTER, of Graves.

For Treasurer,
S. W. HAGER, of Boyd.

For Secretary of State,
C. B. HILL, of Clark.

For Supt. Public Instruction,
H. V. M'CHESNEY, of Livingston.

For Commissioner of Agriculture,
I. B. NALL, of Jefferson.

For Railroad Commissioner,
FLETCHER DEMPSEY, of Hopkins county.—First District.

C. C. M'CHORD, of Washington county.—Second District.

A. W. HAMILTON, of Montgomery county.—Third District.

For State Senator,
Dr. J. G. FURNISH.

Neighborhood News.

Union.

Granville Rouse has built a nice yard fence for James Gatson.

Mrs. Cora Jury and daughters are the guests of Mrs. Mary Carpenter.

Miss Anna Rice, of Covington, attended church in Union, Sunday.

Hay harvest is under full headway and a good article is being harvested.

Messrs. Abe Rice and Judge McDonald, of Covington, spent last Sabbath in Union.

Mr. and Mrs. Robt. Rice, of Florence, were the guests of James A. Huey and wife, Sunday.

Spencer Smith and family were the guests of Misses Opha and Marietta Riley, Sunday.

Rev. Dr. Adams filled his regular appointment at the Baptist church Saturday and Sunday.

Wilmot Fane has the topptest crop of tobacco in town, and Uncle Hook Senior comes next.

Mr. and Mrs. John Williams are entertaining a young visitor at their house. It's a 10 pound girl.

Prof. Batterson and Capt. Quick, of Hebron, are hustling and making things lively over here for the boys.

Mr. and Mrs. John Deunedy and son, Charley, of Richwood, were in our village a few minutes, Sunday.

Mrs. David Clements, of Hathaway, and Miss Neal, of Buffalo, were visiting R. T. Clements and family, recently.

Mrs. J. W. Taliaferro entertained the Ladies' Mission Society of the Baptist church with a luncheon, Saturday evening.

Joseph Scott and family, of Florence, drove a handsome turnout and were the guests of Wm. Kinney and family, Sunday.

Misses Lillian Corbin and Nannie Bristow have returned from pleasant visits with friends in Covington and Newport.

Mrs. Harriet Taliaferro returned from Walton after a delightful visit with her brother, John McHatton and family, for several days.

Dr. Crouch has declared war against the blackbirds. They have taken possession of the doctor's premises, much to his discomfiture.

Thos. Garrison had his residence and yard fence painted recently. He believes in using lots of paint and using it often, so his buildings are well preserved.

Geo. Burket met with a peculiar misfortune. He went to cut 9 bean sticks in Conner's woods and found no more or less than 9 already cut and laying ready for him to carry in.

Miss Hattie Rouse was voted the most popular young lady of Union and received the handsome gold watch offered by the Show Co. Chief Rolling Bear exhibited great fairness in conducting the election.

Col. Eley Garrison and Tom Huey were coming to the show one night and making a short turn lost one wheel and were thrown out on the pike. Fortunately the boys escaped with a few scratches and bruises.

The Rolling Bear Medicine Co. have entertained the people for two weeks with good shows. The show people have conducted themselves in a very genteel and orderly way and leave Union with the respect and confidence of all.

The Blade Club held a meeting with Plum Gully, Wednesday evening. The president used a 10 pound sledge hammer on the head of a salt barrel and asked attention. Well, he got it, of course. A nice, quiet meeting of 3½ hours was enjoyed by those present.

Golden Grange held a very interesting meeting Saturday, and the public was invited. A discussion of the Philippine situation and a speech by Dr. Crouch on trusts were interesting features. The Doctor demolished every trust from the Atlantic to the Pacific, so far as it lay in his power, and only wished he had more power. Messrs. Kennedy, Rouse, Smith and Frazier discussed the Philipine affairs with interest to the large audience. We heard two gentlemen of this precinct debating the affair Thursday and they differed very widely upon the situation. Mr. A. said the war upon the innocent and helpless Philippines was a disgrace to American manhood and honor and should be stopped right away. Mr. B. said the hand of Providence was in this matter and complete control of the Philippines meant a new and greater destiny for our country—means that the United States shall be the instrument of Providence in christianizing the entire world, and so on. Mr. A. said he was willing to admit that Providence worked a mysterious and wonderful way to accomplish its ends, and yet he could not understand why 9,000,000 negroes at $2 a head should be used as a base to work from in evangelizing the world. So it is men differ on these matters.

Bullittsville.

Several months ago we announced through a communication sent you that our career as society reporter had reached its finis. The real cause for making this announcement we did not give. Now, that we have concluded to take up this work and continue it, at least, for a short period, I deem it incumbent upon us to give some reason for laying aside the reportorial badge that we had been wearing so long.

We engaged in the labors of society reporter for your paper with the determination that we would write nothing that would be calculated to compromise or wound the feelings of any one, that we would be impartial in all our reports and pay nothing but deserving compliments. After taxing our brain to adhere strictly to this resolve we were driven to the conclusion that our efforts were futile and that our circle of friends was perceptibly contracting itself into a very narrow compass, we concluded to take a vacation and try to discover the real cause for this state of affairs. After carefully considering the circumstances surrounding our labors and acquainting ourself with the varied promptings that directed our pen we concluded that we had yielded to the frailties of man's nature, by suffering the heart to bias the mind. We suffered its promptings to direct our pen a little too profuse in compliments to our favorites. In this we were unintentionally placed in a position that invited those we favored to assail us with insincerity and those with whom we were not so profuse to charge us with partiality. With this lesson and this experience before us, we have determined to undertake again to report the society events that may occur in this garden of delights. We hope that we will have the sympathy of all in our herculean efforts to do justice to all and show partiality to none.

The social events for the summer season were initiated on the evening of the first with a delightful party given by Miss Lutie Gaines in honor of two young lady friends who were visiting her. Miss Sallie Coleman, of Sanders, is both a beautiful and handsome young lady; she possesses a lovely voice and has it thoroughly cultivated. Her singing is expressive, sweet and melodious—to hear her sing a song is sufficient to cause you to desire to hear her again and again. The music she renders seems to emanate from a warm musical heart and has a power which arouses the sweetest reminiscences of ones mind; she is also an accomplished pianist and her rendering upon this instrument is as soft and melodious as her voice.

Miss Nora Gex, of Covington, is a handsome and very intelligent young lady, with bright sparkling eyes, brilliant conversationalist, easily approached and possesses that charming faculty of making one feel perfectly comfortable in her presence; she is one of those grand specimens of the new woman, who has independence and courage enough to brave the battles of life, armed with a strong character and indomitable courage. She has a very remunerative position in one of the banks on Third street in Cincinnati.

Miss Lutie was favored with another visitor who assisted her in making the evening a pleasant one—Mrs. Charlie Duncan, of Kansas City, rendered several pieces on the piano in her characteristic style, which called forth the hearty plaudits of the guests present. She plays with such vim that the music seems to pour through the tips of her fingers from every fiber of her body, flooding the keyboard of the instrument and filling the room with its grand melody. She is not a cultivated musician rendering her music in accord with a rule laid down by some composer, but she seems to yield to the dictates of the musical genius that fills her soul and body.

Our home talent rendered music that added to the pleasure of the evening. Near the close of the evening, Miss Lutie, the modest, pretty, sweet little hostess was induced to favor her guests with the softest, sweetest and most angelic music we ever listened to. While she played your correspondent could not help turning his mind heavenward and thinking that of such was the music that floated about the sovereign throne. Her touch was so soft and sweet that the tips of her fingers seemed to have been annointed with the essence of violets.

Mrs. H. C. Duncan invited a number of her friends to dinner on the 4th, to meet Mr. and Mrs. Casslus Cropper and daughter, Mrs. Greene, and Mrs. Perry Cropper, all of Louisville.

On the evening of the 5th, Dr. Hays gave one of his delightful parties to a select number of his friends. The Doctor is a typical host, and on this occasion he seemed to surpass himself, in view of the fact that he was under the inspiration of the presence of a certain young lady, who was playing assistant hostess to his aged mother. If madam rumor is to be credited the Dr. is to lead to the altar in the near future, one of the most popular, most beautiful and loviest members of our social circle. From personal motives we offer our congratulations with reluctance. The doctor's party developed into a musical feast. Those who assisted at the feast were Misses Zayda Gaines, Sallie Coleman, Mary Corn, Mrs. Nellie Duncan and Mr. Will Gaines. At 11 o'clock the guests were invited to the handsome dining room and ice cream and cake were served.

Mrs. Thos. Grant entertained at dinner on the 6th several young ladies, to meet her two nieces from Missouri, Misses Birdie and Emma Graves, daughters of Mr. Oscar Graves, formerly of this county.

Richwood.

Recent rains have greatly improved garden and field crops.

Mr. Clayton Turner, of Venice, Ohio, is visiting at Daniel Bedinger's.

The farmers are nearly through with harvest and are turning their attention to corn and tobacco.

Rev. J. W. Crates and W. H. Davis will exchange pulpits on the third Sabbath. Bro. Crates will preach at Richwood and Davis at Walton.

The last meeting at the Literary Club at Mr. John H. Sleet's was very largely attended and the debate on the question, "Is the medical professiou more honorable than the legal?" was warmly and ably discussed. The verdict was in the affirmative.

Mr. H. A. Hicks is improving.

The new depot is about completed.

George and Willie Scott, of Crescent, were here, last Suuday.

Mr. Herbert Barnes was calling on friends in Florence, Sunday.

Miss Lucie Green has returned to the city after a pleasant visit with Mrs. J. J. Tanner.

Willie Glacken and wife were calling on Mrs. G.'s parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robinson, Sunday.

Mr. Asher Cummins and family, of Louisville, are visiting friends and relatives in this neighborhood.

Bellevue.

Mrs. Laura Rogers has 81 young turkeys.

T. L. Utz's mother was his guest on the 7th and 8th inst.

Misses Minnie Clore and Pearl Allen are visiting in Cincinnati

Fine rain on the eveuing of the 7th and morning of the 8th inst.

Mrs. Jack Hawkins, of Frankfort, is the guest of relatives at this place.

Peter Clore has bought and shipped 1,000 bushels of wheat in the last week.

Mrs. Bob Bachelor, who was reported dead in last issue, was better at last accounts.

Mrs. Patty Sehus and daughter, Isabelle, of St. Paul, are guests of Miss Julia Dinsmore.

Wheat is yielding from 6 to 10 bushels per acre in the bottom, and is of very poor quality.

Crops are all doing well, except melons. Too much rain and cold for sweets of all kinds.

Considerable complaint is heard about the yield of the potato crop. Too much vine and not enough tubers.

Michael Clore lost two hogs from eating too much clover. Mr. Clore says that is his first experience in losing hogs from that cause.

The fourth was spent at this place in the usual way, some firing crackers, some following their avocation, while others were pleasuring.

John Barnett, our leading apiarist, reports his usual season for honey, and, notwithstanding the past severe winter, his stock did not decrease much.

If there are any disaffected or the unterrified, they would do well to coolly deliberately meditate on what W. S. Pryor says about the nomiuee for Governor.

The game of ball between Burlington and Bellevue, Saturday, passed off quietly, resulting in favor of Burlington 13 to 2. Mrs. John Lassing, Mrs. Stanley Cutterbuck and Dr. Furnish and son were present and enjoyed the game very much.

The writer has inhabited this mundane spheroid near one half a century and played the part of a Nimrod both by night and day, roving the hills and hollows, often encountering the different animals and reptiles with which old Boone abounds, but never had his hair to raise as it did last Saturday afternoon while plucking some of that luscious fruit known as the blackberry. When approaching a briar patch, I was warned by a loud hissing, similar to that of the Adder, but much louder, assuring me something else "has the first right here, and you must retreat." To say I did is putting it very mildly because the occupant was concealed and not more than three feet from me. I procured a fence stake and approached the spot, the hissing continuing, and to my pleasant surprise I discovered a fowl, about the size of an ordinary chicken hen, but covered with white down and black feathers. Not being well versed in ornithology, I called an elderly gentleman, who accompanied me, and he knew no name for him. I shall make some observations and probably capture him and report in our next.

Petersburg.

We vote the straight ticket from end to eend.

Ben R. Smith is back from his southern trip.

Potatoes are fine and are selling now at 50c per bushel.

City Marshal Bahn has been on the sick list all week.

The heavy wind and rain storm Friday, blew the corn down.

Spreading Adders are the only kind of snakes seen in this vicinity.

R. K. Aylor, of Rabbit Hash, was visiting his sister here, Sunday.

Will Thompson, of Glencoe, was the guest of his brother, James, Sunday.

The corn crop looks fine in the bottoms and some fields have begun to tassel out.

Gaines Wingate, Earl Whitlig, O. N. Alloway and Chas. Bahn went to Indianapolis, Sunday.

Miss Mollie Merrimon, the evangelist, makes her home with her sister, Mrs. Will Alloway.

Wingate & Thompson have shipped 1,500 lambs and have 1,000 more to gather up and ship.

That libelous sheet, the Louisville Dispatch, is not fit to be in the household of any Democrat.

A religious discussion will not advance the cause among outsiders, as both sides will claim a victory.

We have a gentleman in this vicinity who is so closed mouthed about all affairs you can not open it with a jack screw.

There was a shower of frogs and bugs here Friday evening, and the streets were covered with the living, creeping creatures.

One of our neighbors, just across the river, has peafowls that disturb our slumbers of mornings. They can cry like a child.

Pete Zummerman, jr., and Zed Hopkins, of Aurora, are raising the coal out of the sunken barge here. They have taken out 400 bushels.

The report that Mrs. Mary Bachelor was dead was untrue, and we are glad to report that she is improving and in a fair way to recover.

Will Theetge, a 13 year old boy, son of the late Bounce Theetge, died of blood poison, one day last week, and was buried here, Sunday.

Mr. Gardner, manager of the Blue Grass grocery, has moved here from Maysville, and occupies the Lou Geisler house on Front street.

What kind of a Democrat is a fellow that will go to a mass meeting and yell himself hoarse for Hardin and then say he wont vote for Goebel, the regular nominee?

In an old, abandoned cemetery on Col. Appleton's farm, is a marble slab marking the grave of Elijah Hensley, born in 1763, died in 1848. Does anyone remember him?

The U. S. Snag boat, E. A. Woodruff, came down and pulled the barge out of the channel just below town. She tried the one sunk by the Gate City, but could not pull it out owing to the deep water.

If you will view our neighbor city, Aurora, you can see the effects of the trusts, as two of her largest manufacturing concerns have been idle for years and the city's population is on the decrease.

Mrs. Lulu Hensley, wife of Beu Hensley, who lived on Edgar Cropper's farm several years, died Thursday night of consumption, at Miami, Ohio, after a lingering illness. Her remains were buried here Sunday, in the presence of a large number of friends and relatives.

The race for representative is not one sided at all in this precinct, and it will be close between the two announced candidates, but there is talk of a ringer in the race, an unknown. Let's have a primary or precinct meetings to nominate the candidate for the legislature.

Blyth W. Buffington, who lived just below town on the river, died at two o'clock Friday evening, after a lingering illness of several months. He was prominent in grand army circles and had his pension increased to $30 per month. His funeral took place from the Methodist church in Aurora, Sunday at 2 o'clock, and the remains were buried in Riverview cemetery.

Eugene Storer, the 18 year old son of Clare J. Storer, who used to live in Plattsburg, but moved to Dallas, Texas, 10 years ago, was shot and killed by a young negro boy, whom he was guying about his shoe string, one night last week. His sister, Mrs. James E. Hensley, resides here and is nearly prostrated over the sad news. The Dallas daily papers give young Storer an excellent name. The negro made his escape and at last accounts had not been captured.

Beaver.

C. C Sleet will move into his new house in a few days.

Wheat threshing has commenced bit we have heard of no big yields.

J. T. Noell and wife of Grant county were visiting relations here Sunday.

Edna Russ, the daughter of C. W. Russ, fell, Saturday, and broke her arm.

Mr. Bruce Roberts and wife gave a party on the 4th of July in honor of Miss Nellie Cleek. It was largely attended.

Some crops of tobacco look fine, while others are doing no good. Some tobacco was plowed up and the land planted in corn.

Protracted meeting will begin at the Christian church on the second Sunday in next month. Rev. White will conduct the meeting.

The Young People's Club was entertained at J. H. Sleet's, a few days since, and those present report a good time. They know how to entertain at Mr. Sleet's.

There was a basket meeting at the Baptist church here on the first Sunday. A very large congregation was in attendance, and everyone enjoyed the services. Uncle Ed Stepheus, of Erlauger, preached a good sermon before noon, and at the close of the sermon a bountiful dinner was served. Uncle Ed is a remarkable man for one of his age, and preaches with great force.

Had the farmers complete control of the weather department of the universe, it would not have been more seasonable than it has been since they got their crop planted. Mammoth ears of corn and potatoes of the "crackerJack" order will be abundant this fall, and everybody will be happy.

QUARTERLY REPORT

Of the Walton Deposit Bank at close of business on the 30th day of June, 1899:

RESOURCES:

Loans and Discounts		$76,359 97
Loans to directors (officers not included)		1,050 00
Loans to officers
Overdrafts, unsecured		10 29
Due from Nat. banks		35,595 44
Due from State Banks and Bankers		1,467 77
Banking house and lot		2,000 00
Mortgages		5,802 37
Specie		1,408 55
Currency		2,677 00
Furniture and Fixtures		1,726 17
Current Expenses		699 31
Revenue Stamps on hand		115 00
		$128,911 87

LIABILITIES:

Capital stock paid in, in cash	$50,000 00
Surplus Fund	1,750 00
Undivided Profits	1,705 40
Due Depositors	75,456 47
Due National Banks
Due State Banks & Bankers
	$128,911 87

State of Kentucky, County of Boone, R. C. Green, cashier of the Walton Deposit Bank, a bank located and doing business in the town of Walton Ky., in said county, being duly sworn, says the foregoing report is in all respects a true statement of the condition of said bank, at the close of business on the 30th day of June, 1899, to the best of his knowledge and belief; and further says that the business of said bank has been transacted at the location named, and not elsewhere; and that the above report is made in compliance with an official notice received from the Secretary of State designating the 30th day of June, 1899, as the day on which such report shall be made. R. C. Green, Cashier.

Subscribed and sworn to before me by R. C. Green, the 3d day of July, 1899.

T. F. Curley, N. P. B. C.

D. M. Bagby, G. W. Ransler, E. J. Green, } Director.

Buy a Buggy Where the Many BUY.

Our Goods are Reliable and of Good Standard Grades.

and will sell anything in our Store for the Cash as cheap

as you will buy elsewhere.

Our Motto: BUY for CASH sell for CASH,
GOOD GOODS AT LOWEST LIVING PRICES.

Respectfully,
L. B. HUNTER, Rising Sun, Ind.

OUR MILLINERY DEPARTMENT

Is in full blast and is filled with Trimmed and Untrimmed Hats at LOWER PRICES than ever.

LADIES' SKIRTS, PETTICOATS and SHIRT WAISTS ranging in price from 25c up, and in fact the whole house is chucked full of BARGAINS.

W. H. CLARK,
Rising Sun, Indiana.

JOHN ALLISON,

UNDER- EMBAL-
TAKER MER,
—Corner Pike & Russell Streets,—
COVINGTON, - - KENTUCKY.
INDEPENDENT OF UNDERTAKERS' UNION.

Order Spring Suits NOW

H. F. BLASE.

And we will make them up artistically and ready for you promptly on time. We have

Over Five Hundred Styles

Of Spring and Summer Woolens to Select from. They come direct from the looms of foreign and domestic manufacturers, and surpass in elegance and variety anything ever shown in Covington. In the assortment are many exclusive patterns—goods that cannot be duplicated by any other establishment in this city. Keep these facts in mind and place your order for a stylish suit with us. We promise you a faultless fit, the proper cut, and a price that will not be more than you can afford to pay.

H. F. BLASE,
535 Madison Avenue,
COVINGTON, - - KENTUCKY

A Word to the Public
MY STOCK OF
Dry Goods, Notions,
AND LADIES' AND GENTS'
TOILET ARTICLES

for the Spring Trade has been received, and to be appreciated must be seen. Fresh

DRUGS AND GROCERIES

received daily. A large stock of

PAINTS & OILS

on hand at all times. All Goods New and Clean, and are sold at the

LOWEST CASH PRICES.

—GIVE ME A CALL—
J. G. OELSNER, Florence, Ky.

Local News.

The busy season with the farmers will soon be over.

Fishing in the river was said to be very fine last week.

This is fine weather for threshing wheat and putting up hay.

Saturday was a very pleasant day—almost cool enough for a fire.

For sale.—19 nice stock hogs.
R. S. Cowen, Burlington, Ky.

There will be a picnic at Harvest Home grounds, July 22, afternoon.

The fireworks at Cincinnati and Erlanger could be seen here on the night of the 4th.

The official premium list for the next fair is in the hands of the directors for circulation.

☞Go to A. Corbin & Son's for first-class Kanawha Coal at 9 cents per bushel of 70 pounds. au-1

The fair board had a meeting last Saturday, perfecting arrangements for the big fair this fall.

The rains last week put the dirt roads in a condition that made travel over them laborious.

The best crop of wheat threshed in this neighborhood, was that of Al Rogers. It yielded 25 bushels to the acre.

The average yield of the wheat threshed around here is about 10 bushels per acre. In most of the crops the grain is good.

Fishermen say it is almost impossible to catch minnows for bait. The supply appears to be entirely exhausted at this early date.

Ben Cason, Jerry Blyth and Eddie McKim have been catching some nice fish down on Gunpowder this month. Fine blue cats and bass.

Hayn Bros. of Rising Sun, have something to say in this issue that is of interest to Boone county people. Read their advertisement.

If the base ball team at this place wants the public to patronize it, it must get a better class of games than those played here so far this summer.

Grasshoppers have been getting in their work on the tobacco in the south end of the county, and have nearly ruined the crop in some instances.

In a few days time, Polk Hamilton, of Big Bone, had one horse, one cow and five hogs to die, of some unknown disease after only a few hours sickness.

Four spreading adders killed in Burlington last week. A pretty good record for one week. It must be remembered that Burlington is a local option town.

The usual display of fourth of July fireworks was enjoyed here. There were several nice pieces. The two balloons ascended and sailed away as nicely as could be desired.

Lightning disabled the telephone at this end of the line, Friday night. Arthur Rouse soon made the necessary repairs, Friday morning and had it in running order again.

The farmers in the lower part of the county are flattering themselves that they are going to have an unusually large corn crop this year unless there is a very great change in the present prospects.

A splendid rain fell here last Friday afternoon and at night, stopping the hay harvest, and causing a delay in the work of threshing grain. The rain came at a very good time, as vegetation had begun to need it.

The case of the Commonwealth vs. W. R. Miller, of Big Bone, charged with a breach of the peace, was called for trial by County Judge Roberts, last Thursday, but was continued again on accouut of absent witnesses.

LOST.—On July 4th, 1899, in Burlington or on ball park, some money in bills, wrapped in a piece of newspaper. Any one finding same returning it to me, J. S. Clutterbuck or W. L. Riddell will be liberally rewarded.
W. T. GERMAN.

Ed McKim heard that grasshoppers make a most tempting bait for bass, and he like to killed himself, one day last week, chasing grasshoppers over on Richard Underhill's farm. He says it takes a person quicker on foot than he to capture the hoppers.

As yet the office of Justice of the Peace is vacant in the Rabbit Hash-Big Bone district. It is understood that John McConnell has been suggested, but the County Judge has not been advised by him as to whether he will accept. He is a good man for the place.

Postmaser Baker, of Louisville, and one of the leading Republican politicians in the State, was rusticating at Big Bone Springs, last week. The lightweight p. m., "growed up," principally in that neighborhood, and he still entertains a love for the scenes of his younger days.

J. M. Lassing is engaged doing the figuring on the cost of erecting a mammoth tobacco warehouse on the lot north of town and occupied by the late Morgan Academy. It is hoped that he will see his way clear to erect the building, and that a profitable business will be conducted therein.

Col. W. B. Watts called at this office, Saturday, and when told that he was looking unusually well he assigned as a cause the very hard work he had done in the hay field that week, when a bystander suggested that very often a person is benefitted by a change of habit. The Colonel did not knock the fellow down.

Five or six ball tossers from Wilmington, Indiana, came over on the 4th inst., and with the assistance of some of the Petersburg boys, played a game here, the score of which was a record breaker, it being 30 to 9 in favor of Burlington. The Wilmington team had a third baseman, and that was about all it did have.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Mike Clore, of Hebron, was in town yesterday.

Several persons from Hebron attended church here Sunday night.

Mrs. Dave Akin, of Bellevue, is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Robt. Wilson.

Lucien Clore and wife, of Waterloo, were visiting Mrs. Clore's father, Sunday.

Frank Berkshire has been assigned to the Chinese Inspector's department at Chicago.

Mr. Edward Gaines, of Flickertown, was the guest of his son, atty. Gaines, last Monday.

G. L. Pickett, of Shelbyville, Ky., was the guest of A. B. Rouse, a day or two last week.

E. M. Shaklin, of Frankfort, Ind., was the guest of Gordon McKim a few days last week.

Mrs. J. M. Turner was in town Friday making arrangements in regard to drawing her pension.

Hossman & Taneons, of Hebron, began the carpenter's work on D. E. Castleman's residence, Monday.

Dr. E. W. Duncan, of South Dakota, arrived in Burlington, Monday evening to visit his father, Circuit Clerk J. W. Duncan.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Kreylich entertained about forty of their friends, last Wednesday, about twenty of the guests being from Burlington.

Rev. J. A. Kirtley passed through town, Monday, enroute from Big Bone, to which place he went on Saturday to fill his regular appointment.

J. M. Barlow and J. D. Acra, wholesale and retail dealers in livestock, passed through to vu Monday moruing, going out to collect a shipment of $4 lambs.

Rev. and Mrs. J. W. Davis, of Richwood, F. P. Walton and wife, of Utzinger, and Mrs. Darnell and daughter, of Walnut Hills, Ohio, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Blyth, Sunday.

A. B. Rouse and Edson Riddell visited the Masonic Lodge at Erlanger, last Saturday night. They report several other visiting brethren present, and a very pleasant time. There was work in the third degree.

Miss Lillie McKenzie, of Chicago, spent a day or two last week in Burlington. She had but recently returned from a sojourn of two or three years in Europe, and visited the home of her childhood as she was returning to Chicago.

Rev. Hoover went to Petersburg, last Saturday, where he delivered a public lecture on Pythianism that night. J. F. Blyth and James. A. Duncan of the Burlington lodge were present and were delighted with the evenings exercises.

Uncle John Mitchell gave us a pressing invitation, one day last week, to come out and help him stack hay. Owing to our great love for work in the harvest field we would have accepted the invitation had it not been that the crop of news items for this week threatened to be almost a failure, and our entire time was demanded in locating items for this issue.

Jeff Eddins surprised his neighbors, last Friday morning, when he came up in town with his working uniform on and informed them that he had enlisted with Jerry Underhill for the threshing season, and was on his way to the front. He told the boys good-by, and received their good wishes for a safe return at the close of the campaign. Jeff has the distinction of being one of the best feeders (at the table) that goes with a thresher.

Esq. W. T. German had his share of bad luck on the fourth. He lost between $50 and $60 in currency, which he was carrying in his pocket, in a piece of newspaper. He missed it late in the afternoon, when he put his hand in his pocket to get his chewing tobacco, which was gone, also. He made a diligent search of every place he could remember of having been that day, but could not find his money.

Last Thursday's Cincinnati Enquirer says: "Attorneys Clore and Michie, on behalf of Sarah E. Carpenter, of Burlington, Ky., yesterday brought suit in the Circuit Court against the Cincinnati Street Railway Company for $7,500 damages. The petitioner states that while attempting to alight from one of the defendant's cars on October 2, 1898, the car was suddenly started forward, and she was thrown to the ground and sustained serious injuries for which she now seeks damages."

Attys. Dyas and Tomlin, of Walton, appeared before Circuit Clerk Duncan, last Friday, in the case of Balzer & Witt against F. J. T. Rack, and argued the motion for an injunction to restrain Rack from selling bread in the town of Walton. Rack at one time owned and operated a bakery in Walton, and sold out to Balzer & Witt, agreeing to not operate a bakery there again, but has been going to the city and buying bread which he would bring out to Walton and sell. The plaintiff claim this is a violation of Rack's contract with them, and asked that he be enjoined. Tomlin represented the plaintiffs and Dyas the defendant. The motion was argued at length by the attorneys. The motion was sustained by the clerk and the injunction was granted and issued.

FISCAL COURT.

The fiscal court was in session, last Wednesday, with Justices Gaines, Byland, Green, Noell and Walton, present and Judge C. C. Roberts presiding, while County Attorney Lassing was on hand to give legal advice.

The followlug is the business transacted:

M. B. Green allowed $3 for holding inquest on body of John Laughlin.

W. A. Gaines allowed $6 for furnishing coffin for J. M. Turner.

E. M. Holton allowed $6 for coffin for John Laughlin.

Pothoof & Frey Iron Co., allowed $35 for material furnished for repairs at the north end of court-house hall.

D. Rouse allowed $7,80 for merchandise furnished the county.

H. C. McNeal allowed $1 for gravel taken to be used on public road.

J. M. Lassing appointed a committee to renew insurance on court-house.

J. F. Blyth, superintendent of county infirmary, filed his report of expenses for that institution for the quarter ending June 30, 1899, showing same to be $333,96, and he was allowed $500 for current expenses.

W. M. RACHAL & CO.

DOLLARS DO DOUBLE DUTY HERE.

Standard Granulated Sugar, 18 lbs. $1 00.
Arbuckle Coffee 10 cents per lb.
Daniel Boone Soap, 3 bars for 5 cents.
Pittsburg Wire less than city prices.
Lime, Cement, White Lead, Oils, Varnishes, etc., as cheap as in the city.

Baby Shoes for 10c per pair up.
Misses' Shoes for 50c per pair up.
A full line of Men's, Ladie's and Children's Tan Shoes—Latest Styles, Best Quality, Lowest Prices.
Men's Dress Pants, 75c per pair.
Wonder Overalls, Shirts and Pants, the best made.

COME at ONCE. THESE PRICES are ONLY While Present Stock Lasts.

UNION, KENTUCKY. UNION, KENTUCKY.

EXTRAORDINARY BARGAINS
—AT—
Heyn & Bro.'s!

This Is a Closing Out Sale to a Finish, To Retire from Business.

15,000 DOLLARS WORTH OF Goods Must Be Sold
Over the Counter for Cash.

At : Greatly : Reduced : Prices!

DRY GOODS, CLOTHING, NOTIONS, FURNISHINGS, CARpets, Hats, Trunks, Etc.

Stocks are now complete in all Lines.
This is a Rare Chance for Bargains.

HEYN & BRO,
Rising Sun, Indian.

When in Burlington Call on

J. S. CLUTTERBUCK
DEALER IN
DRY GOODS
Notions, Boots and Shoes,

Who has just received his stock of
SPRING & SUMMER SHOES,
the nicest stock ever in town. Have old stock which I AM SELLING AT GENUINE BARGAINS.
NICE LINE WALL PAPER,
☞At Prices to Suit the times.☜

DEERING - MACHINES

Are the favorites in every land where grass and grain grow. They are adopted to all conditions. They are the "Acme" of strength, durability, simplicity and light draft. We will carry a full line of Repairs. Buy the Machine that is fully guaranteed and handy to obtain repairs for.

Also remember we are headquarters for all kinds of
Farm Machinery
At bottom prices. We handle nothing but the best and fully guarantee all.

Also the Largest and Cheapest
Stock of Shoes
In the county, and a full line of
General -- Merchandise.
—CAN SAVE YOU MONEY.—
COME AND SEE.
T. J. HUGHES,
BEAVER LICK, KY.

McALPIN & THOMSON,
Successors to RIGGS BROS.
Undertakers
—AND—
Embalmers,

LIVVERY, BOARDING & FEED STABLES.

Special Rates to Traveling Men. Pianos, Organs and Furniture Carefully Removed. First-class Carriages for hire with careful drivers for Families, Parties, Weddings, etc.
LEXINGTON PIKE, - - - ERLANGER, KY.
J. M. EDDINS, Agent, Burlington, Ky.

GO TO
C. T. DAVIS & CO., General Merchants,
HEBRON AND CONSTANCE,
A Good Supply of Feed always in Stock.
GARDEN AND FIELD SEEDS.
Undertaking Given Special Attention.
A good supply of Coal on hand at Constance at all times.
Hebron. C. T. DAVIS & CO. Constance

The Sun Shines on both Sides of the Street for the Man, Boy or Child who wear our

CLOTHING

Come in and try on some of the New Styles, if you want a most graceful becoming suit. Our CLOTHING are easily the neatest fitting, finest looking and best wearing in the country. Our experience in the business enables us to sell at

ROCK BOTTOM.

Whether you are ready to buy or not, we want to see you in our store. It will cost you nothing to look at our goods.

ROLFES & WACHS, No. 1 Pike Street, Cor. Madison Ave.
COVINGTON, KENTUCKY.

W. H. HOSHAL & COMPANY,
COMMISSION MERCHANTS,
Cattle, Hogs and Sheep,
—UNION STOCK YARDS,—
Cincinnati, - Ohio.
—TELEPHONE 7346.—
Information Regarding Live Stock Cheerfully Furnished.
Consign Your Stock Direct to Us.

LUMBER!

LATHS,
SHINGLES,
DOORS,
BLINDS,
SASH.

If you want any kind of Lumber it will be to your advantage to visit our yard at Lawrenceburg, Indiana, before buying. ☞Prices to Suit the Times.

M. E. LEMING & CO.

Inclosed find P. O. money order for $1, to pay for adv., &c. Our celebration was a grand success. An immense crowd of people here. On account of wind during the afternoon it was impossible to get the balloon off on time, which we were sorry for, as a great number of people had to leave for home, and were disappointed in not getting to see the ascension. After the wind calmed down, about 6:30, the ascension was made, and it was the best we ever had here. Miss LeRoy fulfilled her contract to the satisfaction of all. Thanking you for your most liberal charges,
I remain, yours, &c.,
E. V. NEWMAN,
Rising Sun, Ind.

A spreading Adder was discovered crawling from under the door step at J. P. Tanner's last Sunday, and Kirb got his shot gun and blew it into kingdom-come. These poisonous reptiles seem to have a liking for houses.

COUNTY COURT.

C. A. Roberts, of Verona, granted a license to sell spirituous, vinous and malt liquors on the prescription of a regular practicing physician.

R. L. Roberts and C. A. Slater allowed $50 each for land taken from them for road purposes.

Viewers filed report on motion of Louisa Stephens and others to change road.

The wheat in this section is being rapidly threshed and gotten ready for the market. The crop in the bottoms is not near so good as that in the hills and many of the crops were not worth threshing not averaging over four bushels per acre. The home price at the mill ranges from 50 to 65 cents. Many talk of holding their crops as they believe the price will get better. The crop hereabouts cannot be safely estimated at over 30 per cent. of an average crop.—Warsaw Independent.

HOME VERSUS HOTEL.

Dr. Talmage Speaks of the Blessings of the Former.

Points Out Disadvantages of a Life Spent in Hotels and Boarding Houses — Wholesome Influences of Home.

(Copyright, 1899, by Louis Klopsch.)

Home life versus hotel life is the theme of Dr. Talmage's sermon for today, the disadvantages of a life spent at more or less temporary stopping-places being sharply contrasted with the blessings that are found in the real home, however humble. The text is Luke 10:34, 35: "And brought him to an inn and took care of him. And on the morrow when he departed he took out two pence and gave them to the host and said unto him: 'Take care of him, and whatsoever thou spendest more when I come again I will repay thee.'"

This is the good Samaratin paying the hotel bill of a man who had been robbed and almost killed by bandits. The good Samaritan had found the unfortunate on a lonely, rocky road, where to this very day depredations are sometimes committed upon travelers, and had put the injured man into the saddle, while this merciful and well-to-do man had walked till they got to the hotel, and the wounded man was put to bed and cared for. It must have been a very superior hotel in its accommodations, for, though in the country, the landlord was paid at the rate of what in our country would be four or five dollars a day, a penny being then a day's wages, and the two pennies paid in this case about two days' wages. Moreover, it was one of those kind-hearted landlords who are wrapped up in the happiness of their guests, because the good Samaritan leaves the poor wounded fellow to his entire care, promising that when he came that way again he would pay all the bills until the invalid got well.

Hotels and boarding houses are necessities. In very ancient times they were unknown, because the world had comparatively few inhabitants, and those were not much given to travel, and private hospitality met all the wants of sojourners, as when Abraham rushed out at Mamre to invite the three men to sit down to a dinner of veal; as when the people were positively commanded to be given to hospitality; as in many of the places in the east these ancient customs are practiced to-day. But we have now hotels presided over by good landlords, and boarding houses presided over by excellent host or hostess in all neighborhoods, villages and cities, and it is our congratulation that those of our land surpass all other lands. They rightly become the permanent residence of many people, such as those who are without families, such as those whose business keeps them migratory, such as those who ought not for various reasons of health or peculiarity of circumstances to take upon themselves the cares of housekeeping.

Many a man falling sick in one of these boarding houses or hotels has been kindly watched and nursed; and by the memory of her own sufferings and losses the lady at the head of such a house has done all that a mother could do for a sick child, and the slumberless eye of God sees and appreciates her sacrifices in behalf of the stranger. Among the most marvelous cases of patience and Christian fidelity are many of those who keep boarding houses, enduring without resentment the unreasonable demands of their guests for expensive food and attentions for which they are not willing to pay an equivalent—a lot of cranky men and women who are not worthy to tie the shoe of their queenly caterer. The outrageous way in which boarders sometimes act to their landlords and landladies shows that these critical guests had bad early rearing and that in the making up of their natures all that constitutes the gentleman and lady was left out. Some of the most princely men and some of the most elegant women that I know of to-day keep hotels and boarding houses.

But one of the great evils of this day is found in the fact that a large population of our towns and cities are giving up and have given up their homes and taken apartments, that they may have more freedom from domestic duties and more time for social life, and because they like the whirl of publicity better than the quiet and privacy of a residence they can call their own. The lawful use of these hotels and boarding houses is for most people while they are in transitu, but as a terminus they are in many cases demoralization, utter and complete. That is the point at which families innumerable have begun to disintegrate. There never has been a time when so many families, healthy and abundantly able to support and direct homes of their own, have struck tent and taken permanent abode in these public establishments. It is an evil wide as Christtendom, and by voice and through the newspaper press I utter warning and burning protest and ask Almighty God to bless the word, whether in the hearing or reading.

In these public caravansaries the demon of gossip is apt to get full sway. All the boarders run daily the gantlet of general inspection—how they look when they come down in the morning and when they get in at night, and what they do for a living, and who they receive as guests in their rooms, and what they wear and what they do not wear, and how they eat, and what they eat, and how much they eat, and how little they eat. If a man proposes in such a place to be isolated and reticent and alone, they will begin to guess about him: Who is he? Where did he come from? How long is he going to stay? Has he paid his board? How much does he pay? Perhaps he has committed some crime and does not want to be known. There must be something wrong about him, or he would speak. The whole house goes into the detective business. They must find out about him. They must find out about him right away. If he leaves his door unlocked by accident he will find that his rooms have been inspected, his trunk explored, his letters folded different ly from the way they were folded when he put them away. Who is he? is the question asked with intenser interest until the subject has become a monomanin. The simple fact is that he is nobody in particular, but minds his own business.

The best landlords and landladies cannot sometimes hinder their places from becoming a pandemonium of whisperers, and reputations are torn to tatters, and evil suspicions are aroused, and scandals started, and the parliament of the family is blown to atoms by some Guy Fawkes who was not caught in time, as was his English predecessor of gunpowdery reputation. The reason is that while in private homes families have so much to keep them busy, in these promiscuous and multitudinous residences there are so many who have nothing to do, and that always makes mischief. They gather in each other's rooms and spend hours in consultation about others. If they had to walk a half mile before they got to the willing ear of some listener to detraction they would be out of breath before reaching there and not feel in full glow of animosity or slander, or might, because of the distance, not go at all. But rooms 20, 21, 22, 23, 24 and 25 are on the same corridor, and when one carrion crow goes "Caw! Caw!" all the other crows hear it and flock together over the same carcass. "Oh, I have heard something rich! Sit down and let me tell you all about it." And the first gufaw increases the gathering, and it has to be told all over again, and as they separate each carries a spark from the altar of Gab to some other circle until, from the coal heaver in the cellar to the maid in the top room of the garret, all are aware of the defamation, and that evening all who leave the house will bear it to other houses until autumnal fires sweeping across Illinois prairies are less raging and swift than that flame of consuming reputation blazing across the village or city.

Those of us who were brought up in the country know that the old-fashioned hatching of eggs in the haymow required four or five weeks of brooding, but there are new modes of hatching by machinery, which takes less time and do the work by wholesale. So, while the private home may brood into life an occasional falsity, and take a long time to do it, many of the boarding houses and family hotels afford a swifter and more multitudinous style of moral incubation, and one old gossip will get off the nest after one hour's brooding, clucking a flock of 20 lies after her, each one picking up its little worm of juicy regalement. It is no advantage to hear too much about your neighbors, for your time will be so much occupied in taking care of their faults that you will have no time to look after your own. And while you are pulling the chickweed out of their garden, yours will get all overgrown with horse-sorrel and mullen stalks.

One of the worst damages that come from the herding of so many people into boarding houses and family hotels is inflicted upon children. It is only another way of bringing them up on the commons. While you have your own private house you can, for the most part, control their companionship and their whereabouts, but by 12 years of age in these public resorts they will have picked up all the bad things that can be furnished by the prurient minds of dozens of people. They will overhear blasphemies and see quarrels and get precocious in sin, and what the bar-tender does not tell them the porter or hostler or bell boy will.

Besides that, the children will go out into this world without the restraining, anchoring, steadying and all controlling memory of a home. From that none of us who have been blessed of such memory have escaped. It grips a man for 80 years, if he lives so long. It pulls him back from doors into which he otherwise would enter. It smites him with contrition in the very midst of his dissipations. As the fish already surrounded by the long wide net swim out to sea, thinking they can go as far as they please, and with gay toss of silvery scale they defy the sportsman on the beach, and after awhile the fishermen begin to draw in the net hand over hand and hand over hand, and it is a long while before the captured fins begin to feel the net, and then they dart this way and that, hoping to get out, but find themselves approaching the shore and are brought up to the very feet of the captors, so the memory of an early home sometimes seems to relax and let men out farther and farther from God and farther and farther from shore—five years, ten years, 20 years, 30 years—but some day they find an irresistible mesh drawing them back, and they are compelled to retreat from their prodigality and wandering, and, though they make desperate effort to escape the impression and try to dive deeper down in sin, after awhile are brought clear back and held upon the Rock of Ages.

If it be possible, oh, father and mother! let your sons and daughters go out into the world under the omnipotent memory of a good, pure home. About your two or three rooms in a boarding house or a family hotel you can cast no such glorious sanctity. They will think of these public caravansaries as an early stopping place, malodorous with old victuals, coffee, perpetually steaming and meats in everlasting stew or broil, the air surcharged with carbonic acid and corridors along which drunken boarders come staggering at one o'clock in the morning, rapping at the door till the affrighted wife lets them in. Do not be guilty of the sacrilege or blasphemy of calling such a place a home.

A home is four walls inclosing one family with identity of interest and a privacy from outside inspection so complete that it is a world in itself, no one entering except by permission—bolted and barred and chained against all outside inquisitiveness. The phrase so often used in law books and legal circles is mightily suggestive—every man's house is his castle. As much as though it had drawbridge, portcullis, redoubt, bastion and armed turret. Even the officer of the law may not enter to serve a writ except the door be voluntarily opened unto him. Burglary or the invasion of it is a crime so offensive that the law clashes its iron jaws on anyone who attempts it. Unless it be necessary to stay for longer or shorter time in family hotel or boarding house—and there are thousands of instances in which it is necessary, as I showed you at the beginning—unless this exceptional case, let neither wife nor husband consent to such permanent residence.

The probability is that the wife will have to divide her husband's time with public smoking or reading-room or with some coquettish spider in search of unwary flies, and if you do not entirely lose your husband it will be because he is divinely protected from the disasters that whelmed thousands of husbands with as good intentions as yours. Neither should the husband without imperative reason consent to such a life unless he is sure his wife can withstand the temptation of social dissipation which sweeps across such places with the force of the Atlantic ocean when driven by a September equinox. Many wives give up their homes for these public residences so that they may give their entire time to operas, theaters, balls, receptions and levees, and they are in a perpetual whirl, like a whipton spinning round and round and round very prettily, until it loses its equipoise and shoots off into a tangent. But the difference is, in one case it is a top and in the other a soul.

Besides this there is an assiduous accumulation of little things around the private home, which in the aggregate make a great attraction, while the denizen of one of these public residences is apt to say: "What is the use? I have no place to keep them if I should take them." Mementos, bric-a-brac, curiosities, quaint chair or cozy lounge, upholsteries, pictures and a thousand things that accrete in a home are discarded or neglected because there is no homestead in which to arrange them. And yet they are the case in which the pearl of domestic happiness is set. You can never become so attached to the appointments of a boarding house or family hotel as to those things that you can call your own and are associated with the different members of your household and with scenes of thrilling import in your domestic history. Blessed is that home in which for a whole lifetime they have been gathering until every figure in the carpet and every panel of the door and every casement of the window has a chirography of its own, speaking out something about father or mother or son or daughter or friend that was with us awhile. What a sacred place it becomes when one can say: "In that room such a one was born; in that bed such a one died; in that chair I sat on the night I heard such a one had received a great public honor; by that stool my child knelt for her last evening prayer; here I sat to greet my son as he came back from sea voyage; that was father's cane; that was mother's rocking chair." What a joyful and pathetic congress of reminiscences!

The public residence of hotel and boarding house abolishes the grace of hospitality. Your guest does not want to come to such a table. No one wants to run such a gantlet of acute and merciless hypercriticism. Unless you have a home of your own you will not be able to exercise the best rewarded of all the graces. For exercise of this grace what blessing came to the Shunnammite in the restoration of her son to life because she entertained Elisha, and to the widow of Zarephath in the perpetual oil well of the miraculous cruse because she fed a hungry prophet, and to Rahab in the preservation of her life at the demolition of Jericho because of his entertainment of Jacob, and to Lot in his rescue from the destroyed city because of his entertainment of the angels, and to Mary and Martha and Zaccheus in spiritual blessing because they entertained Christ, and to Publius in the island of Melita in the healing of his father because of the entertainment of Paul, drenched from the shipwreck, and of innumerable houses throughout Christendom upon which have come blessings from generation to generation because their doors swung easily open in the enlarging, ennobling, irradiating and divine grace of hospitality. I do not know what your experience has been, but I have had men and women visiting at my house who left a benediction on every room—in the blessing they asked at the table, in the prayer they offered at the family altar, in the good advice they gave the children, in the gospelization that looked out from every lineament of their countenances, and their departure was the sword of bereavement. The queen of Norway, Sweden and Denmark had a royal cup of ten curves, or lips, each one having on it the name of the distinguished person who had drunk from it. And that cup which we offer to others in Christian hospitality, though it be of the plainest earthenware, is a royal cup, and God can read on all sides the names of those who have taken from it refreshment, but all this is impossible unless you have a home of your own.

It is the delusion as to what is necessary for a home that hinders so many from establishing one. Thirty rooms are not necessary, nor 20, nor 15, nor ten, nor five, nor three. In the right way plant a table, and conch, and knife, and fork, and a cup, and a chair, and you can raise a young paradise. Just start a home on however small a scale, and it will grow.

THE BIG THREE.

Signs of a Conspiracy in the War Management for Political Profit.

There is no doubt that the administration—meaning by that the president, the secretary of war and the secretary of the navy—entered on the management of the war with Spain determined that no army nor naval hero should be developed who might become a popular favorite and receive a presidential nomination in 1900. The cospiracy was directed against the soldiers and sailors of both political parties with a view that no commander by sea or land, gaining victories and acquiring the popularity with which Americans crown their heroes, should become a candidate for president in opposition to McKinley next year. This line of policy has prevailed throughout in those departments of the administration by which the movements of the war were directed.

At the commencement of the war McKinley and the gang of politicians by whom his interests are served feared General Miles more than they feared anybody else, the Spaniards included. As the commanding officer of the army if he was permitted to conduct the campaigns in the field he would be given the credit of all the victories gained by our troops. The American people inevitably reward their successful generals with presidential nominations. Washington, Jackson, Taylor and Grant were elected to the presidency because they were military heroes. Scott and McClellan were nominated for president on their war records. Even Hayes—who was nominated for president, but not elected, though he held the office, having been counted in—was supported on the few lines of his history as one of the mob of brigadier generals whose names were on the pay rolls during the civil war. Garfield and McKinley are claimed to have won military renown. Americans are a martial people and venerate their war heroes. The president and his secretaries appreciated this fact when the war opened and General Miles, with a good military record, was the officer of highest rank in the army.

That is the reason why no important command, except that of the Porto Rico expedition, was given to General Miles. It is the reason why his services in Porto Rico were cut short and belittled, while the campaign on that island, without serious bloodshed, was the most successful and fruitful of the war. It is the reason why he was assailed with contumacy and insult when he denounced the sales of "embalmed beef" for the rations of our troops. His destruction as a soldier insured the absence of at least one probable competitor with McKinley for the republican presidential nomination in 1900.

Democratic soldiers were suppressed in the same way. It was feared the prominence of some democrat in a successful campaign would develop a dangerous opponent for McKinley at the presidential election. They appear to have feared General Fitzhugh Lee the most. He was the best man on earth to have been placed in military and civil command in Cuba. But there was the possibility of a democratic president in the sound of his name. He was kept in obscure commands, was hidden under the higher rank of men in every way his inferiors and left to rust out for fear his labors in a prominent position would clothe him with an irresistable popularity before the people.

Other instances might be cited. The war on Admiral Schley was inspired by apprehensions that, as the victorious commander in the greatest sea fight since metal vessels were employed in warfare, the people would insist on electing him to the presidency. Dewey would have been "turned down" in the same way had it been possible. The history of the Spanish war is a history of low-down politics on the part of the administration, without a parallel in the past of this or any other country.—Chicago Chronicle.

A Mere Bluff.

"We are going to fight the trusts!" has been shouted a time or two. The Ohio republicans put it in their platform, although Hanna explained that they did it "under a wave of excitement"—unreflectively and impulsively, as it were. Since then these republican trust fighters have heard from the sources from which they obtain their sinews of war and been warned to "go slow." The trusts have passed the word to Hanna. Hanna has communicated it to McKinley and McKinley in turn has let it be known to the Washington correspondents of his newspaper mouthpieces. The trusts are to be fought—but in a Pickwickian sense. They are not to be strangled by the republican party. The worthy ones—such, for instance, as the Standard Oil, of which Hanna lately expressed high praise, and a few hundred more or less—are to be let alone, because it will be found by looking through the spectacles of the republican leaders that these are "reasonable combinations of capital to enable American industries to compete with industries abroad."—St. Louis Republic.

——The people are growing woefully weary of the president's uncertain Philippine policy or certain lack of policy in this matter, and a war none too popular, is becoming less and less popular as it drags along. The unpopularity of the war in the Philippines, as at present conducted, is the president's own unpopularity, and it behooves him to bring about a climax in that conflict that shall be creditable to the country or his administration will soon be looked upon as a failure.—Minneapolis Tribune.

——The republican organs are still hanging like grim death to the old lie about trusts in free trade England, it is their only hope to save their system of bounties to the special interests.—Sioux City Tribune.

TRUTH COMING TO LIGHT

McKinley's Philippine Policy is Becoming a Stench in the Nostrils of the People.

Gradually the public are being permitted to know something of the truth regarding the situation in the Philippines. The president is back at Washington and there is no longer an excuse for keeping the people in the dark as to the intentions of the administration concerning reenforcements for Gen. Otis.

It is now given out that the 30,000 men, which Gen. Otis has repeatedly been represented as declaring to be sufficient for the pacification of the Philippines, means an "effective" force of 30,000, after all deductions for sickness and casualties have been made. Gen. Otis a few days ago placed the percentage of sickness and disability at 12 per cent., but the administration allowance is now 15 per cent., and it is admitted that this percentage will be increased as the rainy season progresses and that there is small chance for recuperation in typhoid cases as long as the patient remains in the Philippines.

The work of recruiting and sending forward reenforcements is to be vigorously pushed, although, it is explained, there will be no pressing need for a large reenforcement until the close of the rainy season makes active campaigning again practicable. This explanation does not tally with previous administration statements that campaigning is to be carried on actively all through the rainy season, the American soldiers being as well able to fight under its conditions as are the Filipinos.

Why not take the public into confidence and tell the exact truth concerning the situation around Manila? If there is nothing unpleasant to reveal why the rigid censorship of all dispatches from there? If it is necessary to send out a large army to maintain the "sovereignty" of the United States, let the people of the United States know it that the army may be raised and sent without delay. It is nearly five months now since Gen. Otis "dispersed" the Filipino army and many weeks since the negotiations for its "surrender," and yet the war is going on and the greater part of the territory captured by the general's forces has been abandoned to the insurgents for lack of troops to retain possession.

There is a mystery about all this which the people cannot understand. If it is necessary to have a much larger force to effect the object which the government has undertaken, the sooner the fact is admitted and the increased force dispatched the better. The ostrich policy of concealment is a poor one.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

POINTED PARAGRAPHS.

——So weary is Alger of denying false resignation rumors that latterly he simply points to the nail keg, and lets it go at that.—Albany Argus.

——About all that can be said of the treasury showing at the end of the fiscal year is that it is not quite so bad as it might have been.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

——The office boy for the trusts has let out the fact that the octopus simply winked the other eye when it heard that Alger was to fight it out.—Chicago Record (Ind.).

——If the president expects the people to have confidence in his administration he ought to have enough confidence in the people to let them know the truth.—Kansas City Times.

——Of course, Secretary Alger cannot see any necessity for his retiring from the cabinet. His past course shows that he would feel all right in the cabinet if he had the smallpox.—Indianapolis Sentinel.

——The renomination of Mr. Hobart for vice president depends on how well the managers have the ease of Mr. McKinley in hand. If the renomination of the president comes easy, it will be easy to carry Mr. Hobart along; but if some of the states have to be conciliated, look out for trouble.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

——The republican organization is now the most perfect political machine ever constructed in this country for national purposes. It is hair-triggered and splendidly equipped. So well constructed, so closely knit is it, that it even does not now require the trained and expert hand of a conscienceless and powerful Hanna to run it. It can run itself. In fact, at this very moment it is in active operation, even though its mighty head is 3,000 miles away in Europe.—Washington Times.

——Relying on the tariff duty for protection, the tin plate trust has made exclusive contracts with the manufacturers of black plates (used for tinning) in order to break down all opposition from independent competitors who do not manufacture black plates for themselves. Having monopolized the business, the trust now feels itself in a position to deal as it may choose with its workmen. Though the prices of tin plate have been nearly doubled, when the workers ask for increased pay the doors of the factories are shut in their faces, and they are told to go hang!—Philadelphia Record.

——Ohio will be the great battle ground. The republican "insurgents" are as numerous, as active and determined there as in Pennsylvania, and Hanna is as obnoxious as is Quay to the better class of citizens. The "big boss" has demonstrated that he owns the party, and those self-respecting republicans who believe that the honor of the state and the nation demands his effacement are ready to support the democratic ticket as the only means to that end. The prospect is a most promising one for the Ohio democracy, and it need not be surprising if republican defeat in the president's own state is a result of the coming campaign.—Concord (N. H.) People and Patriot.

SCHOOL AND CHURCH.

Neosho, Mo., has named its new public school in honor of Eugene Field.

The alumni of the University of Georgia are to raise an endowment fund of $100,000.

Siam's crown prince is a student at Harrow, England. He is popular with his school-fellows.

Within the German empire there are 116 Baptist churches, 25,000 members, 761 stations, 162 preachers and elders, 65 missionaries and colporters, 367 Sunday schools, with 1,462 teachers and 17,076 scholars.

Senator Depew, though himself a graduate of Yale, does not think a college education necessary. "In these days," he says, "it is well to know much, but it is imperative to know some one thing well."

Diplomas issued by the dental colleges of Harvard, Pennsylvania, Michigan and Vanderbilt universities are recognized in the Netherlands, a royal order to that effect having been published in the Officiel Gazette at The Hague on April 8.

They have a new name for Assistant Professor Walter A. Wyckoff, of Princeton university. Since he had his remarkable experience as a laborer, which led to his epoch-making book "The Workers," he has been called "Weary." Wyckoff, after Weary Waggles, of the comic weeklies.

Miss Lillie J. Martin, who has just been appointed professor of psychology in Leland Stanford university, studied for four years with Prof. Muller in Germany, and was the first woman ever admitted to that scientist's laboratory. The professor thought so much of her ability that he requested her aid in preparing one of his books.

The Madison Avenue and the Phillips Presbyterian churches of New York city have decided to unite. It it proposed to sell the Madison Avenue church for $500,000. Of this sum $200,000 will be used for rebuilding the Phillips church, and $300,000 set aside as an endowment. Both pastors will remain with the united church.

CUBAN CAMPAIGN STORY.

A Native Cook Who Obeyed His American Master's Orders Too Literally.

"Apropos of the hardships of our boys in Cuba," said an officer who saw a good deal of duty on the island, "I'll tell you a bit of a story. Shortly after our regiment went on duty near Santiago, at the beginning of Wood's administration as governor, we began to be able to take a little better care of ourselves than we had done throughout the campaign. One of our captains—I won't mention his name, for he's sore about this affair—was a great crank on the subject of microbes, and took extraordinary pains to avoid their society. He had picked up a raw Cuban for a cook, and gave him the most explicit orders to boil all the water used in the mess, no matter where he got it. 'Boil everything we drink,' he said, 'or I'll kick your backbone through the top of your hat.' The Cuban promised faithfully, and obeyed the order to the letter.

"A week or so afterward the captain, while foraging about town, was presented with a quart bottle of champagne from one of the ships. He was overjoyed, and, securing a small lump of ice, he hustled back to camp and turned over his prizes to his cook. 'I want you to get up something extra good to-day,' he said, 'for I am going to ask a few friends to dinner to help drink this wine.' At the appointed hour the party assembled, and after serving a repast of stewed beef and sweet potatoes the cook stalked in, carrying a steaming saucepan half full of a muddy-looking yellow liquid. 'What in thunder is that?' asked the captain. 'That's th' wine, senor,' replied the Cuban, gravely. 'I boil 'im good deal, an' 'e mos' all go 'way. The guests roared with laughter, and the captain was so thunderstruck he couldn't say a word. He subsequently recovered himself sufficiently to grab a cleaning rod and chase the Cuban nearly half a mile. After that all anybody had to do to get a fight was to say 'boiled champagne.' When I left the wound still rankled."—N. O. Times-Democrat.

A WONDERFUL TREE.

Tropical Palm Growing in Brazil That Supplies Nearly All of Man's Necessities.

Nature does some wonderful things in the tropics toward supporting a population rendered lazy by her climatic moods in those regions. For example, there is a carnauba palm growing in Brazil which yields a nutritious milk from which flour is made. The same tree produces edible nuts from which a fair imitation of coffee may be extracted; its roots have medicinal properties; its palmetto is eaten as a vegetable; yields a sugar and a sago, both very nutritious, and from it wine and vinegar are produced; the stem contains a pith which can be used for cork, is covered with a straw that is woven into hats, baskets, brooms and mats; the wood of the stem is used in the manufacture of musical instruments, for building material or ground up for paper and cloth; with the pith punched out it becomes available for pump stock and tubes. And, finally, this wonderful tree gives up a resinous wax much used for making fine candles.

The carnauba tree is naturally highly prized in Brazil, since it supplies about all of man's necessities. But what additional value it would have if it could be grown in this temperate zone, where humanity has been taught by necessity to hustle for subsistence. If the carnauba could be grown by the North American farmer there would be a vast amount of surplus energy to be turned into other avenues or wasted. Nature is a wise distributor.—Pittsburgh Dispatch.

AGRICULTURAL HINTS.

A GOOD FLOOD GATE.

It Was Constructed Three Years Ago and Is Still Reported in Excellent Condition.

The flood fence or gate shown herewith is as good a one for ordinary creeks as can be built. One I constructed over three years ago on a particularly vicious little creek is in as good condition as when first built.

Two good-sized posts will be needed, the length depending on the nature of the bottom. If sandy or gravelly six feet is none too deep to set them. If the bottom is soapstone or shale, very hard, four feet will be deep enough if care is taken to prevent the swirl of water from cutting the posts out. I dig the holes in hard places by using dynamite. Bore or drill a hole within a foot of the depth post hole is wanted, charge with 1½ pounds of 40 per cent. dynamite. If you do not understand using dynamite, get some one who does to shoot for you, as this will make the hole under water without any trouble, and much quicker than one can dig it in soft soil with a spade.

FLOOD GATE IN POSITION.

The holes around the posts should be filled with bowlders tamped in solidly, using large ones on top. Have your blacksmith make four irons as shown in the upper part of illustration and at a, from old wagon tires. For rods I used old buggy axels, the shoulders holding them in place nicely. I find six poles make a good height for the gate and are about all one can get on the axel without having it made longer.

I have seen this gate made by boring holes in the poles to slip over axel, but I prefer having the smith make clevises, b b, etc., from old buggy tires long enough to reach up on poles in front with holes for spikes; give generous room between end of pole and rod so the end of the top poles may be put on the ground at d without cramping. Space the poles with wooden pump piping or blocks of wood bored—these must be put on before spiking the stirrups fast, or use wire (e), as shown in cut.—Orange Judd Farmer.

HOT WEATHER SERMON.

Ninety Per Cent. of Summer Discomfort Is Due Directly to One's Imagination.

A great deal of discomfort that comes with hot weather is in reality imaginary. We worry about the hot wave and think about the burning temperature so much that we imagine it is much more uncomfortable than it really is.

To begin with, we should eat according to the weather. Cereal foods and fruit for breakfast and vegetables eggs and milk make a good variey from which summer foods may be selected. The man who fills up on steak or roast beef or meat of any kind is only building a fire by which he himself is roasted. The drinking of ice water is another way to make the weather seem hotter. Drink lemonade, if you will, or root beer, or mildly acid drinks of any kind that are wholesome, but do not drink ice water if you would be comfortable while working in the sun, and preserve good health.

When the weather is extremely hot and you have become very warm from work, about the best way to get cool quickly and safely is to dip the hands and arms half way to the elbow in a pail of water fresh from the well. The hands should not be held in the water constantly, but dipped in and out, leaving them in about half a minute at a time. A delightful sense of coolness soon comes over the body and such a cool hand and wrist bath is very refreshing.

The best way to combat hot weather is to accept the fact that it is hot and take it calmly. We must endure it whether we worry or not, and if we must be in the sunshine it will not cool the air a bit to get into a stew over the heat. Daily baths, plenty of sleep, not too much meat and little thinking about how uncomfortable we may be will help amazingly.—Farmers' Voice.

Beauty as Well as Profit.

I think many people fail to obtain pleasure in cultivating their gardens because they regard their plants only from a business standpoint, and do not appreciate them as objects of beauty. As long as it costs but little, let us cultivate the love for the beautiful, or the esthetic side of our nature. While perhaps the most of us work our farms and gardens for the pecuniary profit, yet we may often, when planting for profit, so plan that it will be ornamental in appearance. We shall get more enjoyment from our work, and our life will be better for having cultivated a taste for the beautiful and attractive in nature.—Michigan Farmer.

Secret of a Good Road.

A road is maintained
The cheapest and best,
When its base is well drained
And its top is well dressed.
—Good Roads.

HIGH-PRICED FRUITS.

They Are the Result of Careful Planting and Cultivation and Not of Chance.

Every farmer who can get the high-priced fruits to market is sure to make a success of orcharding and gardening. To do this it is necessary to till the orchards early and continuously. It is not chance that brings the best fruits into bearing early, but good handling of the trees and intelligent foresight. To get high prices for fruit the tilling must continue throughout the whole season, even after the fruits have been harvested, for then it is necessary to prepare for the next crop. Many are not willing to pay this price for good fruit, but they cannot be had in any other way.

In planting and cultivating an orchard this object should be kept steadily in mind. If it is for profit, methods of culture and harvesting must be followed that will give the best results. There are too many orchards of a medium class in the country. They produce an indifferent crop of fruit any time through the season, and usually the crop is ready for harvesting when the markets are glutted, and prices very low. It is much better to raise the fruits that will come in a little earlier or a little later. How to do this is an important question that must be decided variously in different sections.

I should divide my trees and vines into three general classes, and cultivate each one differently. First, I should have the early bearing varieties. Of these I should select the earliest marketable kind, and give them all the forcing possible. A few days may make all the difference in the world. I should try to force them so as to get ahead of everyone else who had trees of the same variety. Second, I should have a class of trees that ripened the fruits in the middle of the season, but they should be selected with reference to the size and quality of the fruit. I would limit the number to increase the size and appearance of the fruits. Fancy fruits will bring good prices when the market is flooded with cheap grades. Third, I should make a list of late bearing trees and vines. These, like the early varieties, should produce marketable fruits. I should endeavor to prolong and postpone their season of bearing as much as possible.—S. W. Chambers, in Journal of Agriculture.

APPEARANCES COUNT.

The Man Who Packs His Fruit Attractively Is the Man Who Makes Fair Profits.

When there is anything like a full crop of fruits it often occurs that the markets become overstocked and the price drops so low as to give little or no profit to the owner. At the same time large quantities of fruit are being sold every day. In a majority of cases it is the better appearing fruit—that which is put up in neat, convenient packages and that presents an inviting appearance—that sells first and best. The inferior is what is left, if any.

The grower who is careless in picking and sorting his fruit, who pays but little attention to the kind or appearance of the package in which it is sent to market, is the worst sufferer. It is this class of fruit that is passed by when there is an oversupply. When there is a scarcity and the demand exceeds the supply almost any kind of fruit will sell at some price. But with plenty of good fruit the poor grade won't sell at a low price, if it is sold at all.

In all cases it pays when picking the fruit to sort carefully, grade according to quality, and with small fruits especially it pays in addition to send to market in attractive packages. The difference in the cost is small, especially as compared with the better opportunities of selling, and the higher price it is possible to realize, and this is more important in a year when there is a good supply of fruit than at any other time, although a difference in favor of the better fruit is made at all times. But usually it is only when there is a scarcity that poor fruit is marketable. The grower who carefully sorts his fruit and takes pains in sending to market in a way that will be attractive to the customer not only realizes good prices, but does good missionary work in encouraging the consumption of fruit.—Farmers' Voice.

USEFUL GARDEN CRATE.

Indispensable Where Vegetables or Fruits Have to Be Carried from Garden to Cellar.

A useful garden crate, handy for gathering vegetables, fruits, etc., and carrying to house or cellar is known herewith Such a crute, being broad and long, will hold a large quantity of fruit and still permit of very shallow piling, which affords the best of ventilation. Sides and ends are of seven-eighth-inch boards, with slats of one-half-inch stuff.—Farm and Home.

HANDY GARDEN CRATE.

The American Gold Finch.

The American goldfinch or wild canary is as beautiful as it is useful and as a weed destroyer has few equals. It confines its attention very largely to one family of plants, the composite, and is especially fond of wild lettuce, thistles, wild sunflower and rag-weed. It is so often seen gracefully poised upon thistles that it is commonly called the thistle bird. It is also very fond of cultivated sunflower seeds.

HIS BATH NOT A SUCCESS.

Being in a Hurry He Forgot to Take Off His Underclothes.

It seems her husband had been out very late celebrating, and as he came home in the rose flush of the morning he thought it would be a capital idea to take a bath before getting into bed. First of all and most important it would contradict any wrong impression as to his condition, as his wife sometimes had wrong impressions when he had been out late at night. Women are so suspicious.

So he went boldly to the bathroom and was soon splashing around as gayly as a canary. In fact, he created such an unusual commotion that his wife woke up and went to see what was the matter.

Suddenly he saw her gazing through the door with a look so cold and contemptuous that it struck a chill to his very heart. But he made a dive for the soap and went on industriously with his ablutions.

"What are you doing there, Peter?" she asked him.

He made the effort of his life to appear debonair and perfectly sober.

"Can't you see what I am doing, my dear?" he answered, with another prodigious splash. "I'm taking a bath."

"Don't you think it would be a good idea for you to take off your underclothes?" she asked him, with a frozen reflection, as she passed out of sight.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

A Startling Answer.

A Latin professor was explaining the derivation of our word "ostracise" to his class in a local academy the other day. He told the story of the early Roman republics and the scheming of the politicians of the times. He related how, when any man in the republic became obnoxious to his neighbors, they used to write his name on an oyster shell (Latin—ostreum, shell), and on the receipt of a specified number by the consuls that man was banished, killed or otherwise removed in some one of those pleasant ways the old Romans had. When he had finished his explanation he said:

"Now, the boy here in the front seat, what did we derive from the old Latin use of the shell, which was called ostreum?"

The answer he expected was far from that he got, for the little student with spectacles in the front seat arose and delivered himself thus:

"From the Roman habit of using shells to get the best of people we derive the present Coney Island shell game, which is a fascinating and costly sport."—Brooklyn Times.

Recognized His Own Tablecloth.

The head of one of the largest dry goods houses in Chicago noticed one day recently in passing through the linen department a particularly beautiful table cloth. He stopped to admire the texture of the linen and remarked to the clerk in charge of the counter that the cloth secured to him the handsomest they had ever had in stock. Next day he noticed that the beautiful cloth was not in the show case and was told by the clerk that it had been sold. On the evening of the same day he dined at the house of a friend, who is prominent in social affairs. Passing through the linen department on the third morning he saw the splendid tablecloth again hanging in the show case. "I thought that cloth was sold," he said to the clerk. "It was, sir, but it was returned this morning as not satisfactory." "I am surprised at that," was the answer, "for I dined off that cloth last night and heard no fault found with it."—Detroit Free Press.

The One Exception.

He—To hear you tell it, one would think I never told a single truth before we were married.

She—Well, you did prevaricate to a considerable extent, but I'll give you credit for having told the truth once.

"Indeed! And when was that, pray?"

"When you proposed. Don't you remember you said you were unworthy of me?"—Chicago Evening News.

Comparing Notes.

"My husband," said the little lady, with pardonable pride, "bought me a season seat in the highest-priced theater in the city."

"A mere trifle," sighed the imposing caller. "My husband bought a seat in the United States senate and it cost more than the whole theater you're talking about."—Detroit Free Press.

No employer is doing the right thing by his employe, according to the employe's friends.—Atchison Globe.

No man should be hopeless so long as he has two good, honest friends—his hands.—L. A. W. Bulletin.

It is surprising how many worthless men get into good positions, but they rarely ever hold them.—Washington (Ia.) Democrat.

Some fathers never see their daughters excepting on pay day.—Atchison Globe

THE MARKETS.

	CINCINNATI, July 10.
LIVESTOCK—Cattle—common	$ 2 25	@ $ 4 25
Select butchers	4 80	@ 5 10
CALVES—Fair to good	6 75	@ 7 25
HOGS—Coarse and heavy	3 25	@ 3 65
Mixed packers	3 55	@ 3 85
Extra shippers	3 90	@ 4 05
SHEEP—Choice	3 10	@ 3 35
LAMBS—Spring	6 00	@ 6 50
FLOUR—Winter—Patent	3 40	@ 3 70
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 red		@ 70
No. 3 red		@ 69
Corn—No. 2 mixed		@ 38
Oats—No. 2		@ 28½
Rye—No. 2		@ 57
HAY—Prime to choice	12 75	@ 13 00
PROVISION—Mess pork		@ 10 00
Lard		@ 5 15
BUTTER—Choice dairy		@ 11
Fancy creamery		@ 21
APPLES—Choice to fancy	2 25	@ 2 50
POTATOES—New, per bbl	1 65	@ 1 75
CHICAGO.
FLOUR—Winter patent	3 65	@ 3 75
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 red		@ 72½
No. 2 Chicago spring	69	@ 71¾
CORN—No. 2	34	@ 34¾
OAT—No. 2	21½	@ 21¾
PORK—Mess	7 [illegible]	@ 8 65
LARD—Steam	5 07½	@ 5 20
NEW YORK.
FLOUR—Winter patent	3 85	@ 4 10
WHEAT—No. 2 red		@ 80¾
CORN—No. 2 mixed		@ 40¾
RYE—		@ 65
OATS—Mixed		@ 30
PORK—New mess		@ 8 87½
LARD—Western		@ 5 47½
BALTIMORE.
FLOUR—Family	$ 3 35	@ $ 3 70
GRAIN—Wheat No. 2 red	71½	@ 71¾
Southern	70	@ 75
Corn—Mixed	37½	@ 37¾
Oats—No. 2 white	32	@ 32½
Rye—No. 2 western		@ 55½
CATTLE—Best quality	4 30	@ 4 80
HOGS—Western	4 50	@ 4 75
INDIANAPOLIS.
GRAIN—Wheat, No. 2 red		@ 71
Corn—No. 2 mixed		@ 38
Oats—No. 2 mixed		@ 27
LOUISVILLE.
FLOUR—Winter patent	3 75	@ 4 00
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2		@ 70
Corn—mixed		@ 36
Oats—Mixed		@ 28
PORK—Mess		@ 8 85
LARD—Steam		@ 5 75

HIS LITTLE BUNDLE.

It Wasn't Much in Size But the Value of It Astonished the Hotel Clerk.

A quiet-looking, smooth-shaven man, with a straw hat pushed back from his forehead, registered from an adjoining parish at the Grunewald one evening and laid a package on the counter. The package was about the size of an unabridged dictionary and was wrapped up in an old newspaper that bore the stains of travel. It was tied with a piece of white cotton string. "I wish you would take care of this little bundle for me overnight," said the stranger. "All right, sir," replied the clerk, and, reaching for the receipt book, proceeded to fill out a blank. "What's the value?" he asked, mechanically. "Sixty-five thousand dollars," answered the smooth-shaven man in an offhanded tone. "What!" gasped the clerk, his pen averted in midair and his eyes as round as cart wheels. "Sixty-five thousand," repeated the guest; "and, by the way, I guess I'll just seal up that wrapping. It seems about to fall off."

He opened the paper and disclosed a rectangular block of $10 bills, packed as tight as sardines. They were nearly all well worn, but nevertheless the grimy mass looked strongly tempting. Its tremendous potentiality drove a spur into the imagination of the dullest chap in the corridor, and everybody began to tell what he would do if he were rich. Meanwhile the smooth-shaven man readjusted the cover, secured it with wax, pocketed his receipt and walked off. He was a country banker bringing a deposit to his local correspondent.—N. O. Times-Democrat.

Could Remember Some Things.

Traveling Missionary—And how many children have you, Mr. Burdock?

Farmer Burdock (doubtfully)—Well, now, I dunno. There's Dick and John and Kate—wife, how many children are there around here?

His Wife—Nine; five boys and four girls.

Traveling Missionary—A fine family and a fine farm, Mr. Burdock. You keep stock, I presume?

Farmer Burdock—Oh, yes; I've got 173 head of Jersey cattle, 589 sheep and 91 hogs.—N. Y. World.

Curious Custom.

In China it is the custom for guests at dinners to run around between the courses. This is supposed to keep the diner's digestion in good condition, but the nervous hustling American needs something else, and there is nothing better than Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. If a man or woman is suffering with constipation, indigestion or any stomach trouble, it's their fault if they don't get well. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters will cure them. See that a private Revenue Stamp covers the neck of the bottle.

Against Slang.

"This slang is very annoying," said the solemn gentleman. "You remember that time my house was entered by a burglar? Well, I yelled 'robbers' with all my might, and the people thought I was yelling 'rubber' and refused to pay any attention."—Indianapolis Journal.

Ladies Can Wear Shoes

One size smaller after using Allen's Foot-Ease, a powder for the feet. It makes tight or new shoes easy. Cures swollen, hot, sweating, achin feet, ingrowing nails, corns and bunions. At all druggists and shoe stores, 25c. Trial package FREE by mail. Address Allen S. Olmsted, Le Roy, N. Y.

Worth Looking Into.—Willichow—"Pa, what's a mixed metaphor?" Pa—"It's a new one on me. I'll ask my bartender when I go down town."—Philadelphia North American.

To Cure a Cold in One Day

Take Laxative Bromo Quinine Tablets. All druggists refund money if it fails to cure. 25c.

She—"I'm sure I've cast my bread on the water many a time, and I don't see any results." He—"No; I guess your bread would sink, dear."—Yonkers Statesman.

She—"I wouldn't marry you if you were the last man on earth." He—"You wouldn't get a chance. I'd surely have my pick then."—Philadelphia Bulletin.

How to Reach Two Famous Resorts.
An Outing Hint from "Outing."

Fast, safe, superbly equipped and most carefully governed; one need not wonder at the great popularity of the New York Central. No other line affords such facilities for through travel between the East and the West as this wonderful four-track system. In the possession of the Grand Central Station, located in the heart of New York City, and within trifling distances of all first-class hotels, this railway offers greater advantages than competing lines. Spring, summer, autumn and winter, it has attractions irresistible. The great Northern Wilderness, the playground of the State, now beckons its thousands. As autumn fails, America's scenic masterpiece, far-famed Niagara, will claim its annual host of pilgrims with its majestic power, the fierce turmoil of the Whirlpool and all the picturesque surroundings, the awesome Cave of the Winds and several other minor attractions of the vicinity. And when winter comes, then the entire scene transformed to what seems a fairyland of marvelous frost dressings, of icy forts and snowy palaces, of gleaming crystal prison barriers vainly striving to bind the roaring, foaming plunge of water—will present a spectacle of weird, mysterious beauty which is not duplicated in the world.—Outing.

Inference.

Barnes Tormer—He who entertains the fickle public, sir, leads a dog's life.

Stranger—You don't mean to tell me you are the barker for the show?—Indianapolis Journal.

University of Notre Dame.

We call attention of our readers to the advertisement of Notre Dame University, Notre Dame, Indiana, one of the great educational institutions of the West, which appears in another column of this paper. Those of our readers who may have occasion to look up a college for their sons during the coming year would do well to correspond with the President, who will send them a catalogue free of charge, as well as all particulars regarding terms, courses of studies, etc.

There is a thorough preparatory school in connection with the University in which students of all grades will have every opportunity of preparing themselves for higher studies. The Commercial Course intended for young men preparing for business may be finished in one or two years according to the ability of the student. St. Edward's hall, for boys under thirteen, is an unique department of the institution. The higher colleges are thorough in every respect and students will find every opportunity of perfecting themselves in any line of work they may choose to select. Thoroughness in class-work, exactness in the care of students, and devotion to the best interests of all, are the distinguishing characteristics of Notre Dame University.

Forty-five years of active work in the cause of education have made this institution famous all over the country.

She Carried Him Off.

Huntley—Funny thing, that elopement of Miss Longwaite and young Snipper.

Author—Elopement? That was an abduction!—Philadelphia North American.

The Best Prescription for Chills, and Fever is a bottle of GROVE'S TASTELESS CHILL TONIC. It is simply iron and quinine in a tasteless form. No cure—no pay. Price, 50c.

A Michican man has been telling "How to Enjoy Country Life." It's easy. Let the other fellows owe the amount of the mortgages.—Augusta (Ga.) Herald.

Don't forget if you use Putnam Fadeless Dyes you don't have to send for a package for wool and one for cotton. Each package colors all fibers.

The only people who have any excuse for having the big head are those who have never had it.—N. Y. Journal.

Piso's Cure cured me of a Throat and Lung trouble of three years' standing.—E. Cady, Huntington, Ind., Nov. 12, 1894.

A fellow with a nice string of game very rarely comes into town by a back alley.—Washington (Ia.) Democrat.

Hall's Catarrh Cure
Is a Constitutional Cure. Price, 75c.

Only Thirty and Gray

How is this?
Perhaps sleepless nights caused it, or grief, or sickness, or perhaps it was care.
No matter what the cause, you cannot wish to look old at thirty.
Gray hair is starved hair.
The hair bulbs have been deprived of proper food or proper nerve force.

Ayer's Hair Vigor

Increases the circulation in the scalp, gives more power to the nerves, supplies missing elements to the hair bulbs.
Used according to directions, gray hair begins to show color in a few days.
Soon it has all the softness and richness of youth and the color of early life returns.
Would you like more on the Hair? We will gladly send it to you.

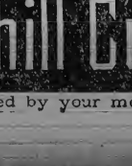
Write us!

If you do not obtain all the benefits you expected from the Vigor, write the doctor about it. He may be able to suggest something of value to you. Address, Dr. J. C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass.

Oklahoma Offers Opulent Opportunities

To those who desire new lands and homes; also unsurpassed chances for industrial investments by capitalists and manufacturers.

Its Farm Products in 1898 include 25,000,000 bushels of wheat, 140,000 bales of cotton, and millions of dollars worth of other grains, fruits, etc. Send for free copy of pamphlet entitled "The Truth About Oklahoma." At stated times low rate



Homeseekers' Excursion tickets are sold via Santa Fe Route to Oklahoma.
Address General Passenger Office,
The Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Railway,
CHICAGO.

WHISKERS DYED
A Natural Black by
Buckingham's Dye.
Price 50 cents of all druggists or R. P. Hall & Co., Nashua, N. H.

CASTORIA
For Infants and Children
Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.
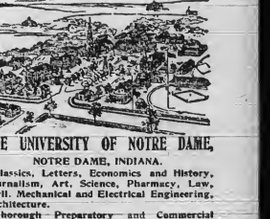
In Use For Over Thirty Years
The Kind You Have Always Bought
THE CENTAUR COMPANY, 77 MURRAY STREET, NEW YORK CITY.



SUCCESSFUL SHOOTERS SHOOT
WINCHESTER
Rifles, Repeating Shotguns, Ammunition and Loaded Shotgun Shells. Winchester guns and ammunition are the standard of the world, but they do not cost any more than poorer makes. All reliable dealers sell Winchester goods.
FREE: Send name and address on a postal for 156 page illustrated Catalogue describing all the guns and ammunition made by the
WINCHESTER REPEATING ARMS CO.,
180 WINCHESTER AVE., NEW HAVEN, CONN.

DR. MOFFETT'S TEETHINA
TEETHING POWDERS
If not kept by druggists mail 25 cents to C. J. MOFFETT, M. D., ST. LOUIS, MO.
Aids Digestion, Regulates the Bowels, Makes Teething Easy. TEETHINA Relieves the Bowel Troubles of Children of Any Age.
Costs Only 25 Cents. Ask Your Druggist for It.

EDUCATIONAL.

THE UNIVERSITY OF NOTRE DAME,
NOTRE DAME, INDIANA.
Classics, Letters, Economics and History, Journalism, Art, Science, Pharmacy, Law, Civil, Mechanical and Electrical Engineering, Architecture.
Thorough Preparatory and Commercial Courses. Ecclesiastical students at special rates. Room Free. Junior or Senior Year, Collegiate Courses. Rooms to Rent, moderate charge.
St. Edward's hall, for boys under 13.
The 50th Year will open September 5th, 1899.
Catalogues Free. Address
REV. A. MORRISSEY, C. S. C., President.

NEW HAMPSHIRE MILITARY ACADEMY
Prepares for Government Academies and Colleges. Full Commercial Course. Major B. F. HYATT, A. M., Principal, WEST LEBANON, N. H.

A. N. K.—E 1769

WHEN WRITING TO ADVERTISERS please state that you saw the Advertisement in this paper.

Plantation Chill Cure is Guaranteed
To cure, or money refunded by your merchant, so why not try it? Price 50c.

NEIGHBORHOOD NEWS.

Limaburg.

Heavy rains here Friday evening and Saturday morning. Corn was blown down some.—Wheat all stacked.—Hay harvest in full blast.—Irish potatoes are finer than for years.—The telephone is in operation here.—Jno. P. Utz and Owen Aylor have rheumatism.—John Baker, who has been quite sick, is some better.—Miss Mary Rouse, who lives with Mrs. Nancy Clark, fell and sprained her wrist badly, Saturday.—Lloyd Aylor had a very bad abscess on his face. It is better.

Hume Store.

A nice rain fell here Saturday morning.—Miss Bessie Callahan, of Gardnersville, was calling on friends at this place Sunday.—Miss Dora Garvey, of Glencoe, and Miss Letha Callahan, of Verona, were the pleasant guests of Miss Loreua Cotton, Saturday and Sunday.—Quite a number from here attended the Sunday School convention at Paint Lick, last Saturday.—Mr. Omer Macrander, of Florence, was visiting his parents, at this place, Saturday.

Maple Grove.

James Popham has purchased a new buggy.—T. J. McNeal, of Ludlow, spent Sunday with his brother, H. C. McNeal, here.—Malchus Souther has purchased a new Osborn binder.—H. C. McNeal, who is one of the Hamilton heirs, says he will be wealthier to the extent of $6 cents, when the money is divided.—Milton Souther has purchased a new Globe mower.—The sparkling eyes and charming manners of one of Campbell county's fairest daughters, seem to possess a great attraction for our bachelor friend, Henry Gerjin.—Almost any Saturday evening he may be seen wending his way towards the valley of the Licking.

Berkshire.

John G. Finnell and C. C. Hume are on the sick list.—Dr. T. H. Baker, wife and daughter, Ella, of Louisville, were visiting relatives here last week.—Leonard Story's horse ran off and tore his buggy to pieces.—Misses Sallie Finnell and Sallie Allphin took in the 4th of July on Rising Sun, and visited with Misses Bess Vaness and Miss Maud Ryle, at Rabbit Hash, before they came home.—Deputy Sheriff B. B. Allphin, of Burlington, was on the creek, Wednesday, collecting school tax for district No. 26. Ben looks well. He has been taking in the basket meetings.—Mr. A. E. Hume and wife entertained a number of friends with a sumptuous dinner, Friday.—Mr. Mace Ritcherson lost $10 in gold, last week.

Francesville.

The much needed rain came at last.—There is more hay on the ground than there is in the stack. The rain came just as the grass was cut down.—Tom Tanner, who is quite sick with typhoid fever, is improving.—We are glad to report that Charles Beall was not seriously hurt by the fall he received in getting into his buggy.—Mrs Kilgore, who is visiting her son and daughter, of this place, is in poor health.—Will Kilgore received a circular from Danville, Ky., requesting him to solicit aid for the intelligent deaf mutes of this State. He succeeded in collecting between $6 and $7 in small sums from his friends in this immediate neighborhood. He returned to his home in New Richmond, Ohio, very much pleased with his visit here, and his success in this benevolent enterprise.

Hebron.

Our Y. P. S. C. E. gave a social, Saturday night, at the pleasant home of Dr. Rouse at Limaburg. Those present from this neighborhood report a splendid time.—Miss Clara Rossman is visiting friends at Walnut Hills, Ohio.—Miss Lucy Clayton spent several days last week very pleasantly with friends in the Walton and Verona neighborhoods.—Mr. Orman Clayton, of Ohio, is visiting relatives in this neighborhood.—Our town was not quite depopulated on the fourth, although most of our young folks were at the Lagoon or Coney Island. Those who went to Coney were seen straggling into town until a late hour Wednesday.—Preparation is being made for a Sunday School celebration in the near future. Hebron has one of the best Sunday Schools in the county, and its annual meeting is looked forward to with pleasure by old and young.

Constance.

Miss Sadie Zimmer, who has been ill is improving.—Arthur Tune shot his finger nearly off on the fourth of July.—Our town was very lively and lone from end to end on the fourth.—John Jackson has been missing for more than two weeks. He leaves a wife and five children.—C. A. Reeves, son of George Reeves, died Thursday, aged 19½ years. He was sick a long time.—Some of our young people nearly escaped being seriously hurt in the collision on the Switch-back railroad at Coney Island, on the fourth. The cars were demolished.—C. C. Richmond has returned to his home at Blue, Ind.—Misses Ettie Collier and Stella Sturgeon have returned home after a week's visit to Mrs. Loder.—Leon Loder has a very sick child.—The hardest rain we have had this year fell Friday evening, and damaged crops considerably.—Miss Ota Ryle, after a week's visit at W. B. Reeves', returned home Sunday, accompanied by your scribe

Verona.

Threshing machines are heard in all directions.—Kirby West has returned from college in New Hampshire.—Miss Pattie Rouse died on the 25th ult. The funeral was preached by Rev. S. M. Adams. She was buried at New Bethel.—Mrs. Nannie Hume sold some of her furniture at public sale, Saturday.—A. K. Johnson and family, of Covington, were guests of J. M. Powers, Saturday and Sunday week.—Uncle Nat Hind, who had been ill for several months, died Saturday, and will be buried today (Monday) at New Bethel cemetery.—L. J. Hume and wife, and J. M. Powers spent Sunday with A. O. Roberts and wife.—Dan Vest and Harry Harper, of Elwood, Ind., spent the fourth with friends here.—J. G. Tomlin has sold the Dickerson store house to J. Showers, and it is receiving a fresh coat of paint.—The basket meeting at New Bethel, on the fourth was well attended, and proved to be a day well spent. Rev. Eldridge and wife, of Indianapolis, Ind., delivered very interesting addresses. There were several visiting ministers present. At the noon hour a bountiful dinner, consisting of all the delicacies of the season, was spread.

Card of Thanks.—We desire to express our heart-felt thanks to the people of Verona and vicinity for their extreme kindness towards us during the sickness of our loved one, Pattie. May God's blessing ever be with you all. NANNIE HUME AND FAMILY.

Gunpowder.

A splendid rain fell here last Friday night, which was very beneficial to the growing crop.

S. J. Orem, of Bennington, Ind., is in the neighborhood delivering and taking orders for Bibles.

A series of meetings will begin at Hopeful church, August 10th, to be conducted by Pastor Lentz.

Leslie Tauner, after spending about a month with relatives here, returned to his home in Florida, the first of the month.

Some worthless curs made a raid on J. C. Hankins' flock of sheep, last Sunday morning, but, fortunately, they were seen by some passers by, who drove them off, before they did any damage. From there they went to E. O. Rouse's flock, but were discovered before they did any damage.

Erlanger.

Eugene Brach is the guest of Mrs Wm. Sexton.

Thomas Buchanan has been laid up with a bad foot.

Miss Alia Caveman and Frank Daniels were guests of Mrs. Judge Morelli.

Good Faith Lodge F. & A. M., conferred the Master's degree on B. Q. Gassner, last Saturday night, in the presence of visitors from Covington, Burlington, Union, Bellevue and Georgetown. A grand banquet was a feature of the evening.

The Social League of Campbell and Kenton counties will meet in the town hall here on the 29th inst. LaFayette Lodge K. of P. has a committee working hard to make the meeting a success. All the Knights of both counties are invited, as are the Knights of Burlington, Petersburg, Rabbit Hash, Walton, Williamstown and Georgetown.

Hathaway.

Neal Bros are busy gathering up lambs.

J. S. Mason started his threaher last week.

The rain that fell last Friday was badly needed.

R. L. Huey has painted the house that he occupies.

Dave Williamson is the champion fisherman. One day last week he caught 13 pounds.

Mrs. J. W. Kelly and children, of Columbus, Indiana, are here on a visit to her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. S. White.

Miss Mary White and Miss Minnie Sullivan and Bud and Lewis Rector, were visiting in the Petersburg vicinity Sunday week.

A. J. Utz and wife and grand daughter, Jessie, and C. B. Mason and wife and your writer and wife, were guests of G. L. Smith, Sunday week.

Monday week Mrs. Sarah E. White celebrated her 53d anniversary with a dinner. All of her children and grand children were present, and it was an enjoyable event.

Rabbit Hash.

Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Stephens are sick not able to be about.

R. A. Stephens went to Cincinnati, last Thursday night, with a nice lot of hogs.

A large part of the citizens of this precinct spent the fourth at Rising Sun, where everything passed of well.

Late Tuesday evening, July the 4th, Everett Ryle and Miss Estella Stephens, daughter of J. J. Stephens, were married at the residence of Rev. Harris, in Rising Sun. That night after the close of the festivities, Everett took his wife to the home of her father, and left her. Her parents knew nothing of their being married until the next evening, when a neighbor told her father.

Died—July 2nd 1899, in Rising Sun, Mr. William Sheppard. He was a member of the 30th Ky. vols., and was buried by the G. A. R. He was born in Ripley co., Ind. in 1844 and came to this county at the close of the war, and in 1869, married Miss Pamelle Robinson, daughter of Morgan H. Robinson, and shortly after his marriage united with the East Bend Methodist church. He leaves a wife, three sons and a daughter, all grown.

Walton.

Miss Leona Rouse is visiting in Anderson, Indiana.

Miss Gertrude Curley had just a lovely time on her visit to Sparta, last week.

Mrs. Judge Botts and Miss Effie Lerson had a delightful visit to Mrs. N. M. Norteutt, in Covington.

Mrs. David Bagby and children are guests of Mrs. Dr. Bagby. They are enroute to join the Rev. Dr. Bagby in Texas.

Mr. and Mrs. Brown, Mrs. Ellis, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Stansifer, and Mrs. Stephens, of Bracht, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Will A. Wolfe.

Miss Virginia Southgate, Principal of Albert Lee Young Ladies College, Albert Lee, Minn., is taking her vacation here at her old home.

Miss Ruby Vest is the happy guest of Miss Gertrude Curley, and Mrs. B. L. Johnson and Mrs. Carrie Rouse are guests of Mrs T. F. Curley.

Mr. and Mrs. Ezra Willhoit were the welcome guests of Mrs. E. A. Lermond, Sunday, and had the pleasure of being at dinner with Mrs. Judge Botts, Mr. William and Mrs. Mary Percivall and Miss Allie Wilson, of Bank Lick.

The regular morning and evening services at the Christian church were well attended. The Y. P. S. C. E. prayer meeting was conducted by Prof. Prior. The hour was well spent considering the subject, "A Good Vocation."

Miss Lillie McKenzie, daughter of the late Dr. Ira McKenzie, formerly of Burlington, having finished her art studies in Paris, France, is visiting her relatives here before going to reside with her brother at Santiago, California. She is the guest of her cousin, Mrs. R. C. Greene.

The entertainment given by the Y. P. S. C. E. of the Christian church, Saturday evening, was a decided success. A large and enthusiastic audience was welcomed by the Endeavorers, who feel much encouraged by their success. The Endeavorers desire to express their thanks to their pastor, Rev. Moss, for his kindly aid on the program; also to Prof. Prior for the inimitable selections so well rendered by him.

Our two delegates to the Louisville convention, Attorney F. E Curley and Esq. J. C Byland, were on time at the struggle for the organization. Byland returned home some days before Curley, who remained there until Monday, when he was compelled to come back on account of an important suit in the Independence circuit court. Had he seen Judge Tarvin he might have remained until the grand closing of the race.

Mr. and Mrs. Ossie Rouse and Mrs. Ben Lee Johnson had to leave Richmond, Indiana, on account of continuous ill health. The little son of Mr. and Mrs. Rouse had been here for two or three weeks previous, having cried almost incessantly to come back to his "Old Kentucky Home." Perhaps his wailing was rythmical with the song. At all events it was effective, and he got here two or three weeks in advance of the family.

Midway.

July 8.—Little Joe Denigan, living with J. G. Lockhart and wife, is very ill with appendicitis.

W. C. Johnson & Son, who have the contract to build the large stock barn at the Florence fair grounds, will begin work on the building next week.

Sleet Yarnell, one of Beaver's talented young barbers, has opened a tonsorial parlor in Walton, corner Main and Short streets, in the building recently occupied by Mr. Berry Noell.

Midway, as usual, observed the glorious fourth in a prosaic, patriotic style, quietly mediating upon Uncle Sam's truculent devastation of the poor, liberty-loving Filipinos. Notwithstanding, we celebrated.

The unpleasant wrangle over who shall be road overseer on the road leading from Beaver to Big Bone creek, has subsided, and Mr. George Moore promises those concerned that the road will be worked immediately. "So mote it be."

The Woman's Aid Society, of Big Bone, met at the bospitable home of Mrs. M. C. Carroll at Midway, last Thursday, and after transacting the business before the meeting, and discussing a bountiful dinner, the afternoon was spent in pleasant conversation upon the social topics of the day.

A pretty home wedding was pulled off by Rev. S. M. Adams, of Walton, at the pleasant residence of the bride, at high noon, Wednesday, July 5th. The high contracting parties to the happy affair were Miss Sarah E. Rich and Mr. Hugh B. French, both of Midway. Their many friends join in wishing them a jolly voyage down the stream of life.

Saturday, July 1st, the Beaver Baptist church gave their pastor, Rev. S. M. Adams, a rousing big basket dinner in honor of the tenth anniversary of his pastorate at that church. A large congregation was present, and after listening attentively to an introductory sermon by Elder Ed Stephens, of Erlanger, who is in the 90th year of his earthly pilgrimage, and an uncle of the pastor, a sumptuous repast was spread in the umbrageous locust grove in the church yard, and, dear Mr. Editor, everyone did eat heartily. Afternoon Rev. S. M. Adams preached an interesting sermon of a reminiscent and historical character, closing his address with a few appropriate remarks upon the dronish membership of our churches, and an exhortation to live a better, higher and purer Christian life. It was a memorable day for all present.

After nature's benediction your humble chronicler of important events of Midway, has arrived at the unalterable, sage conclusion that on November 7th it will be wise for every Democratic voter to keep his TONN ALL the Democratic State ticket, and vote it straight, without a scratch from top to bottom. All this rant about the means employed to secure the nomination is mere rot, as every voter in the county or State, at all conversant with modern politics is well aware that any aspirant for political preferment is wont to use whatever influences at his command, whether it be intellectual, monetary, liquid, hypnotic, or, what not, to make his calling and election sure; hence, discussion of the subject is futile. Every voter of any party is reserved the alternative of affiliating himself with anyother party machinery, in good running order, whenever the plain, policies and pleasures of his party are not precisely to his liking. For example, see Henry Waterson, Johnnie Geewhiz Carlisle, Karl Schurtz, et al. The above is not written in bilssful expectancy of political reward, or servile censure of the disgruntled legion. It impressed itself as a matter of patriotic duty, and invites no editorial, reportorial or correspondental comments, whatever.

STATE NEWS.

A Hopkinsville child has 12 toes and 13 fingers.

W. J. Bryan will be invited to attend the fair at Lexington in August.

Seven thousand people had a big time celebrating the fourth at Augusta.

The citizens of Tom's creek Bell county will vote on the local option question on the 15th.

The Hon. W. W. Combs was renominated for Representative by the Democrats of Madison county.

A black snake bit Lucien Moore of Mercer county, on the lip, and held on until its jaws were prized open.

Joel T. Hart, of Clark county, has four stands of bees that have made 1055 pounds of honey in four years.

The first wheat marketed in Louisville this season was raised in Jefferson county, and sold at 70 cents.

There will be an old-fashion Southern harmony singing at Lebanon, near Mayfield, on the fifth Sunday in this month.

At Jamestown, while the Jailer was attending a pic-nic, all of the prisoners escaped, it is thought by assistance from the outside.

The blue and the gray will hold reunion at Princeton, Aug. 16-18. About 500 children will sing old war songs and national airs.

In Union county, the local option election in Boxville, resulted for the drys. Of the 235 votes cast 190 of them were for local option.

Rev. Charles Ewing, rector of Episcopal church at Uniontown, died suddenly at his brother-in-law's J. W. Kerwin, at Chrisfield, Md.

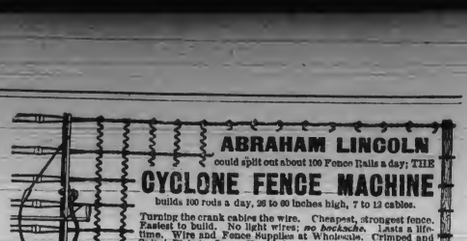
A handsome Christian church is to be built in Cynthiana this summer. The congregation has let the contract for $18,000 to a Cincinnati builder.

The Rev. W. K. Forsyth has preached his farewell sermon as pastor of the Presbyterian church at Pineville, after a long and popular stewardship.

At Greensburg, George Murphy has been sentenced to five years in State prison for robbing the Adams Express Company's safe at that place last month.

Judge Evans sustained Collector Comingore in his refusal to report to sheriff of Carroll county the number of barrels of whisky a Carrollton distillery had on hand.

The yield of grapes this year, according to the vine growers, will be the largest known in years. Grapes will be about the only fruit to do any especial good this season.



Kentucky breeders have furnished 19 young thoroughbreds for export to England during the past month. Those taken contained nearly all American-bred blood.

J. T. MARSHALL,
SALESMAN FOR
F. W. KASSEBAUM & SON,
Manufacturers and Dealers in
Granite and Marble Monuments.
GRANT P. O., KENTUCKY.

Consign your Stock to
Rabenstein, Harris & Conner,
—Live Stock—
COMMISSION MERCHANTS,
COVINGTON STOCK YARDS,
Covington, Ky.,
OR UNION STOCK YARDS,
Cincinnati, Ohio.
When shipping East bill our care privilege selling Central Covington Stock Yards.
We will make it to your advantage and give your stock special personal attention.

Helms' Barber Shop,
PETERSBURG, KY.
Hair cut 15c, on Saturday 20c; Shave 10c; Shampoo 15c; Sea Foam 5c; Hair Singe 5c; Beard Trim 5c, other work proportionally as low in price. Ladies' and childrens' work a specialty. All work guaranteed satisfactory or money refunded. Hair Oils, Tonics, Perfume, etc., for sale. Thanking all for past favors, I remain, &c.,
EVERETT HELMS, Prop.
LADIES—To the ladies that have not paid us a call, will say, that Thursday is conceded to be their day. Ladies Shampoo 25c; Sea Foam 15c; Bangs trimmed 10c. Hair dressed for special occasions a specialty, at reasonable rates. Courteous treatment is our motto. Give us a call.

SIXTH YEAR OF Walton :-: Academy
—OPENS—
First Monday in September.
First-class instruction in all Common School Branches.
Higher Arithmetic, Elementary and Higher Algebra, Book-Keeping, Plain and Solid Geometry, History, Rhetoric and Literature, Physiology, Geography, Physics, Astronomy, Logic and Phychology. Latin includes Ceasar, Cicero, Nepos, Virgil. Greek including Beginners, Greek and Xenophon.
Terms:—Tuition and Board in the building, five days in the week, under the care of the teacher, $105.75, for nine months; Board the full week or Music $18.50 additional for the full term.
Mrs. S. H. MYERS, Prin.

ABRAHAM LINCOLN
could split out about 100 Fence Rails a day; THE
CYCLONE FENCE MACHINE
builds 100 rods a day, 26 to 60 inches high, 7 to 13 cables.
Turning the crank cables the wire. Cheapest, strongest fence. Easiest to build. No light wires; no backache. Lasts a lifetime. Wire and Fence Supplies at Wholesale. Crimped and Spiral Pickets. Lawn Fence, Lawn and Farm Gates. Thousands of these machines in use. Gold Medal at Omaha Exposition. Write for Catalogue.
CYCLONE FENCE CO., HOLLY, MICH.
Branches: Waukegan, Ill., Cleveland, Ohio, Toronto, Canada, Melbourne, Australia. Shipments from Nearest Point.

I have control of the Cyclone Fence in Boone and Woodford counties. I will build the fence or sell machines to farmers that they may build their own fences. It is the cheapest and best fence that can be built.
Address G. CARTER GRADDY, BULLITTSVILLE, KY.

DR. A. P. WALTON,
DENTIST,
CINCINNATI,
The Lancaster Building 22 W. 7th, Bet. Vine and Race.

INSURE AT HOME
The Farmers' Mutual Fire
INSURANCE COMPANY,
OF BOONE COUNTY,
Is now completely organized and receiving applications for insurance.
Its Rates are Lower
Than those of any other Company and gives the farmers of Boone County
HITHERTO UNKNOWN ADVANTAGE
In keeping their property insured.
EVERY FARMER IN THE COUNTY should take a policy at once.
E. H. BLANKENBECKER, - President, Florence, Ky.
EDGAR CROPPER, - Vice-President.
OSCAR GAINES, Secretary, Burlington.
J. E. DUNCAN, Treasurer.
EXECUTIVE BOARD—Legrand Gaines, J. W. Conner, John Stephens.
J. E. SMITH, Assessor, - Burlington, Ky.
W. M. ROGERS, Agt. - Walton, Ky

CORNER
Drug Store
Rising Sun, Ind.
Is the place for anything in the Drug Line.
WALL PAPER, PAINTS, WINDOW SHADES, STATIONERY, PERFUMES, FANCY GOODS, &c.
B. F. BUCHANAN,
—DRUGGIST,—
Over thirty year's experience.

FARMERS
Take Notice!
If you want good
Fertilizer
PLEASE GIVE
B. F. ZIMMER
A CALL.
He will try to please you. He has the finest line of Fertilizer for 1899 he has ever handled. Write for particulars to
CONSTANCE, KY.

Central Covington Stock Yards,
COVINGTON, KY.
Are located so as to offer special inducements to shippers South of the Ohio river in saving them extra expense and time. In addition to the local buyers there will be Eastern and foreign buyers on the market for all kinds of stock. When shipping East, don't fail to consign our care privilege selling which will be of benefit to you.
Central Covington Stock Yards Co.
Commission firms will give prompt attention to consignments.

FRANK HOSSMAN,
Hebron, Ky.,
CARPENTER AND BUILDER,
—Also handles all—
KINDS of ROOFING,
Which is furnished and put on at the Lowest Prices consistent with good work.
I am prepared for moving buildins.
Your Work is Solicited.

Frankfort & Cincinnati Railway.
Ask for tickets via this line. Schedule of trains in effect Dec. 5th, 1898.

P. M.	A. M.		A. M.	P. M.
4.00	8.30	lv Cincinnati ar	10.05	6.00
4.15	7.04	" Ludlow lv	9.55	5.50
4.30	7.18	" Erlanger lv	9.36	5.37
5.18	8.25	Williamstown "	8.45	4.25
5.35	8.49	" Corinth "	8.25	4.03
6.17	10.28	" Georgetw'n "	7.50	3.19
6.39	10.50	ar Stam'g Gro'nd	7.28	1.55
7.10	11.20	" Frankfort "	7.00	1.00

JOS. B. NEWTON, G. P. A., Frankfort, Ky.
Subscribe for the Recorder.

D. E. CASTLEMAN,
ATTORNEY - AT - LAW.
BURLINGTON, KY.
Will practice in the Courts of Boone Kenton, Grant and Gallatin. Collections pushed energetically.

G. G. HUGHES,
ATTORNEY AT LAW.
BURLINGTON, KY.
Will practice in all the courts. Prompt attention given to all business entrusted to me.

P. E. CASON,
ATTORNEY - AT - LAW.
BURLINGTON, KY,
Practice in all Courts. Promptness guaranteed.

J. G. TOMLIN,
ATTORNEY - AT - LAW.
WALTON, KENTUCKY.
Will practice in the Courts of Boone, Kenton Grant and Gallatin. Prompt attention given t Collections entrusted to him. mch12-93.

W. E. VEST,
County Surveyor,
BURLINGTON, KY.
Is prepared to do all kinds of Surveying. all orders by mail promptly attended to.

J. M. LASSING. N. E. RIDDELL
LASSING & RIDDELL,
ATTORNEYS AT LAW.
BURLINGTON, KY.
Prompt Attention Given to Collections

S. GAINES,
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW.
BURLINGTON, KY.
Will practice in all the courts, and prompt attention given collections. Office—In residence near post-office.

S. W. ADAMS,
ATTORNEY - AT - LAW.
ERLANGER, KENTUCKY.
Will practice in the courts of Boone and Kenton counties. Collections and general law practice.

W. E. VEST,
Real Estate Agent.
Farms Bought, Sold or Exchanged, Money to Loan on Real Estate, Notes bought, sold & Negotiated. All communications addressed to W. E. VEST, Burlington, Ky.

BOONE CO. DEPOSIT BANK.
(Incorporated 1886.)
CAPITAL, ... $30,000
Surplus and undivided profits, 20,000
Our facilities enable us to receive on favorable terms accounts of individuals and corporations. Collections promptly remitted for at lowest rates

ERLANGER DEPOSIT BANK.
(INCORPORATED 1893.)
ERLANGER, - - KENTUCKY
CAPITAL PAID IN $50,000
SURPLUS, ... $ 5,000
Careful attention given collections and remittances promptly made. Deposit accounts solicited.

Dr. J. L. Adams,

DENTIST,
Walton, Kentucky.
Artificial Dentures, Crown and Bridge Work to represent natural organs. Will be in office at Union every Monday.
Satisfaction - Guaranteed.

JOHN L. VEST,
SURVEYOR
WALTON, KY.
Is prepared to do all kinds of work south of Burlington, Ky. Prompt attention given to all mail orders.

Executor's Notice.

All persons indebted to the estate of L. B. Stephens, deceased, are hereby notified to come forward and settle same; those having claims against said estate must present them to the undersigned proven according to law.
J. D. FRAIZER,
L. D. SHOUSE, Executors.

BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

VOL. XXIV. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, JULY 19, 1899. NO. 39.

As Kentucky goes in the election this fall, so will Kentucky go at the Presidential election next fall is the prediction of the RECORDER.

ANDREW JACKSON, the father of the Democratic party and twice President of the United States, shot and killed a man in Nashville, Tennessee.

THE Louisville Dispatch is a very popular paper just now with the Republicans and those Democrats who are encouraging the Log Cabin ticket.

THE President is bent on evolving a scheme for permitting Cuba to vote on a proposition to be annexed to the United States, and he believes the Cubans will vote in favor of annexation.

THE threat of the colored voters to bolt the Republican party, does not disturb the party leaders in Kentucky in the least, knowing that they have a cinch on their suffrage at all times.

THE only thing that the 65,000 Kentucky colored Republican voters pulled down in the Republican State convention, last week, was the secretaryship of the convention. That is all they deserve.

THE Oregon troops that returned from the Philippines, last week, say the whole Philippine group is not worth the price paid for it, and that at least 50,000 additional troops will be needed to conquer the natives.

The half dozen Democrats who are not supporting the State ticket find themselves in the same boat that carried the handful of Palmer and Buckner adherents. There is no more reason for the bolt now than there was then.—Owen Herald.

IT would be hard to find a man in either party, Judge Tarvin not excepted, who could have made as many speeches as Mr. Bryan has delivered since the last Presidential election, and say nothing for which his party would have to apologize or attempt an explanation.

GOV. BRADLEY did not attend the Republican State convention, and was charged by some of his party with attempting to create a revolt on the part of the colored voters. Bradley is an independent cuss, and cares but little what his enemies in his party say about him.

The Republican State convention met in Lexington, last week, and nominated the administration machine ticket with a whoop. It is as follows: W. S. Taylor, Governor; John Marshall, Lieutenant Governor; Clifton J. Pratt, Attorney-General; John S. Sweeney, Auditor; W. R. Day, Treasurer; Caleb Powers, Secretary of State; John Burke, Superintendent of Public Instruction; John W. Thockmorton, Commissioner of Agriculture. The regulation platform was adopted with an anti-trust annex.

COL. OWENS, of Georgetown, and June Gale, of Owenton, did not get what they wanted at the Louisville convention, and then they went to the Republican convention at Lexington, last week, and were busy giving the Republicans advice, all of which was totally ignored. Perhaps if Col. Owens and the ex-Democratic candidate for Auditor will hold a little convention all by themselves they may be successful in getting a hearing, and have adopted some of their schemes for saving the country from the demnition bow-wows. Try it, boys.

AFTER the nomination of Attorney-General Taylor for Governor, Sam Smith, a colored delegate from Owensboro, said: "I am a lover of my race. I am a Republican. I led the fight against Taylor's nomination. In behalf of the colored people I will say now that we are with you.

"This is not the negro race of 30 years ago. We want to have something to say in the campaign. We want to be invited to speak on the stump. For my part I don't want social equality. There are a great many white men I would not let come into my party."

Smith was vigorously applauded.

State News.

The drouth is becoming serious in many Kentucky counties.

The battleship Kentucky is 90 per cent. advanced toward completion.

William Agee, a fifteen-year-old boy, committed suicide in Madison county, by hanging himself in his father's barn.

Somebody is agitating the formation of a new county composed of parts of Madison, Garrard, Rockcastle and Jackson, with Berea as the county seat.

In Morgan county Sunday Jesse Day was shot and killed in a church at the mouth of Caney by two brothers named Fugate. The killing took place just as the meeting was dismissed.

On his fifth trial, Jesse Fields was acquitted at Barbourville, Ky., of the charge of killing Judge Josiah Combs of Perry county several years ago. He had been twice convicted and sentenced to life imprisonment.

Mrs. Hugh Bunnell, of Harrodsburg, received quite an acceptable gift a few days ago—it was a check for $5,000. Some years ago her brother died in San Francisco, Cal., leaving her his estate of over $7,000. About $2,000 was spent by the executors in trying to locate her.

Near Columbus, Joe Young, a son of James H. Young, a prominent farmer and trader of the county, was in a meadow putting up hay, and in some way was knocked from a stack, falling upon a pitchfork, which went almost through his body. He is not expected to live.

There is much excitement in Lewis county over a "wild man" who has been seen by a number of persons. The people of the Trenton neighborhood, in Todd county, have also been chasing a "wild man" recently, but without success. In the former case the strange creature is a white man, and the latter instance a negro of giant proportions.

Proof accumulates daily that combines, organized to destroy competition in the field of transportation, production or manufacture, are as sure placing their tools in the seats of legislative and judiciary power as they are using the leverage of vast wealth to crush trade rivals and competitors. Whenever an election occurs whose outcome may affect the interests of these combines their instruments and their money are in evidence, working to place in power men friendly to their plans and purposes. Herein lies the menace of trusts and their assistant corporations.—St. Louis Republic.

GOV. BRADLEY had no use for the Lexington convention.

THE colored delegates had considerable to say in the Republican convention, last week. On some occasions two or more would be speaking at the same time.

WHEN the Republicans look at the Democratic situation in Kentucky they smile, but when they turn their optics towards Ohio, a frown takes the place of the smile. Republicans are having troubles in Ohio equally as serious as those of the Democrats on this side of the river.

Some years ago Gen. P. W. Hardin and Judge A. E. Richards had a hot contest for Attorney General. The records of that convention will show that a sufficient number of delegates from Louisville who supported Richards were turned out to give the General a majority and nominate him. That was long ago, when other machines were in operation, but the nominee did not decline the nomination on any such a charge as fraud.—Frankfort Argus.

A Minnesota man captured a kingfisher when the bird was quite young and made a pet of him and trained the bird to capture a fish and lay it at his master's feet. In summer the bird is taken to the river, where fish are known to abound, and set at liberty. He poises high in the air, and suddenly dropping, grasps his victim and promptly delivers the fish to the master.

The interview with Mr. O. O. Stealey, at Washington, printed in to-day's Enquirer, prompts the statement. Mr. Stealey, at least inferentially, says that at some time during the recent Kentucky Democratic State Convention I promised Mr Stone to withdraw from the contest for the nomination for Governor and nominate him.

I have passed unoticed whatever has appeared upon this subject in Republican newspapers. I deem it proper not to pass unnoticed any such statement in a recognized Democratic newspaper.

During the convention and since, I have denied the statement that I ever promised Mr. Stone, or anyone else, to withdraw from the contest for the nomination and nominate him; and Mr. Woodson, who was the only intermediary between Mr. Stone and myself, and who is fully cognizant of all that occurred between Mr. Stone and myself, has repeatedly stated in his newspaper, the Owensboro Messenger, that no such agreement was made.

There is nothing better known than the fact that before the convention convened and during its progress, I repeatedly and publicly refused to make such an agreement.

I wish to say now that any statement made by anyone whomsoever, that I ever promised to withdraw, or in anywise suggested that I would withdraw from the contest for the nomination and would nominate Stone is untrue. The agreement that was made between Mr. Stone and myself related, as Mr. Woodson has stated, wholly to the organization of the convention; and as Mr. Woodson has also stated, it was in every conference with Mr. Stone expressly stated that the matter of the nomination must be determined in and by the convention.

Mr. Stone told me, and his friends told my friends, that if he could not be nominated he and they preferred my nomination and would do all they could to bring my nomination about. I said to Mr. Stone, and I have no doubt my friends said for me, that if I could not be nominated we preferred the nomination of Mr. Stone and would do all that we could to bring it about. But there was not made by me, nor for me, to anyone at any time, any promise, suggestion or intimation, either expressed or implied, that I would in anywise or to any extent, abate my efforts to be nominated.

WM. GOEBEL.

IN a carefully prepared interview for the Chicago press, Hon. W. J. Bryan, discussing old issues and new, says:

"Events will determine. The new questions will be discussed and acted upon without the old questions being abandoned. In the last campaign, the silver question was declared by the convention to be the paramount issue. The platform on that question will be as emphatic as it was in '96. There is as much necessity in the free and unlimited coinage of silver now as then. The argument has been strengthened by the efforts of the Republican administration to secure bimetalism and the necessity for independent action has been emphasized by the failure of the administration to secure the foreign aid.

"I think the Democratic party is unanimous in the belief that the trusts must be annihilated, that word trust being used to describe that form of corporate wealth which monopolizes any article of commerce.

"The trust is so indefensible that no better illustration could be given of its absolute indefensibility than is found in the fact that even the Republican convention in the State of Ohio, with Mr. Hanna as manager, was compelled to denounce the trusts. The Republican party, if it goes into the campaign denouncing trusts, will labor under the disadvantage of having tolerated the formation of more trusts than were formed in all previous history.

"The trust question will be more prominent in the next campaign than it was in the last, because the trusts are greater in number and importance than in the last campaign. Like the flea question, the trust question is increasing in importance with numbers.

The following from the bureau of Agriculture, Labor and Statistics of the state expains itself:

FRANKFORT, KY., July 10th, 1899.

Dear Sir: A recent meeting of the Advisory Board authorized the employment of lecturers to visit the various counties of the state for the purpose of organizing Agricultural Societies or Farmers' Clubs.

Agriculture, like any other occupation, depends for success upon the adoption of such methods as will produce the greatest possible return for the labor expended. This fact is recognized by all lines of trade in the formation of societies to study conditions and devise ways and means of decreasing the cost of production, which is but another expression for increasing profits.

The farmers of Kentucky suffer a loss of many thousand dollars annually through failure to realize the importance of doing thoroughly what is done and by neglecting the many small things that go far towards adding to the income of the progressive farmer, is there any good reason why the farmers of each county should not organize a Farmers' Culb, where they, their wives, sons and daughters would meet, say monthly, for an interchange of ideas on the best means of doing the many things to be done on the farm? Can anyone doubt that we would each learn something from the other? No oratorical efforts should be attempted or expected, but after his own ashion every farmer who is interested in work should be willing to give his view on the subject under discussion, and if he has no views, there is a greater need for him to attend and listen to the views of others.

Farmers, more than any other class, are interested in good roads and the societies could do much to give form and force to the prevailing sentiment in favor of a better highway system.

Mr. Editor, may I ask that you through the colums of your paper, lay the matter before the farmers of your county? Assure them, if assurance be necessary, that politics is not involved; that the aims are purely educational.

During the series of farmers' institutes held last winter a number of these societies were organized and the good accomplished thereby has impressed me with the importance of having a society in each county. Some of the societies, starting with a membership of a half a dozen, now have memberships of 150 or more. With these societies as a nucleus our work of holding farmers' institutes will be easier and more effective. I have arranged for an experienced lecturer and organizer, and others will be engaged if necessary, and will be pleased to send them to answer any call for their services, and I invite correspondence on this subject from anyone who feels an interest in the success of the movement.

Trusting that I may have your hearty cooperation in the matter I remain LUCAS MOORE,
Com, of Agriculture.

The RECORDER will gladly make any announcement the farmers may desire in pursuance of the above.

An analyst has made the discovery that California roses contain 20 per cent. more perfume than those grown elsewhere.

A woman Notary Public in Colorado was recently married and sought legal advice as to what name she should use in the future officially. The Attorney General of the State has finally given the gratifying opinion that she must sign all documents as before her marriage, for he finds no law compelling or even authorizing a woman to drop her maiden name on the simple excuse of marriage. In fact, he says that there is no authority for a change of name at marriage or at any other time.

JUDGE TARVIN'S letter to the Democratic State Committee in session at Lexington will not injure Mr. Goebel, but it was ill timed and ill advised. Judge Tarvin is not clothed with authority to say who shall or who shall not support the Democratic ticket, and his letter was a piece of extreme assumption.

To the Editor of the Recorder:

Each citizen feels that his county paper, which he supports, should be a medium through which he can express himself on public questions. Will you, therefor, allow, me a paid up subscriber to your paper, and a life-long Democrat, space for a few thoughts upon our Gubernatorial nomination? No one is, of course, expected to accept as the editor's views what a voter may say over his own signature. The views are my own, not the editor's.

I ask, were the proceedings and final actions of the late Democratic convention the fair and legitimately expressed will of the majority of the legally constituted delegates of the Democratic party in Ky. If so, every true Democrat should respect its actions. If not every true Democrat should do all in his power to thwart the illegally expressed will of a corrupt minority in said convention. I ask, if Mr. Goebel, by a promise, which he afterward broke, obtained control of the convention; and in disregard of the laws controlling deliberative bodies, unseated regularly constitued delegates, who were supporting his opponents, and put in their places, his own supporters, not legally constituted, then he criminally thwarted the expressed will of the people, and has illegally thrust himself upon the Democrats as their nominee. We are, therefore, no more bound to respect his demands for our support than a man is bound "to honor a raised check." Is not this nominee, "the bastard offspring of a political rape?"

If the proceedings of this convention are a disgrace to our State, who more than Mr. Goebel was the author of this disgrace? Can he, by the cry of loyalty to party, compel us, who honor and love our State to become parties to our State's disgrace?

I ask, was the Goebel election law enacted to enable Mr. Goebel to count himself in when he ran for Governor? Has he the election machinery in his own hands, and will he count himself in, even if defeated. If there be danger here, let those who are able devise a plan to thwart this. If the above be true, as I believe they are, let me plainly say, I shall not vote for Mr. Goebel.

J. W. HARRIS.

Having been a life-long Democrat it is presumed that Bro. Harris has taken several bitter political pillsas they were prepared in same manner as it is claimed Goebel got his nomination, and it is not necessary to go back a hundred years to find instances.

In 1876 John S. Williams, Jas. B. McCreary and J. Stodard Johnson were candidates for the Democratic nomination for Governor. The convention met at Frankfort. McCreary and Johnson combined and manipulated the convention. Johnson was dropped and McCreary was nominated and elected. Being a life-long Democrat it is presumed that Bro. Harris voted for McCreary notwithstanding the manipulations of which he was the beneficiary.

Proctor Knott and Thomas. L. Jones were the candidates before the Democratic Gubernatorial convention that met in Louisville in 1883. In that covention Jones received enough votes to nominate him, but those who handled that convention were determined he should not have the nomination, the chairman who was posted as to what the result was to be, refused to announce the vote, holding it until, by some means, votes enough were secured from the Jones column to nominate Knott, who accepted the nomination and was elected, and Bro. Harris having been a life-long Democrat, it is presumed that he voted for Knott for Governor.

In 1896 that free silver convention that met at Lexington to select delegates to the Chicago convention that nominated Bryan for President, unseated a large number of delegates from Louisville, delegates who were opposed to free silver and seated in their stead free silver delegates, who took part in selecting the delegates that assisted to nominate Bryan, and Bro. Harris being a life-long Democrat it is presumed he voted for Mr. Bryan.

P. Watt Hardin and Judge Richards were opposing candidates for the Democratic nomination for Attorney-General, several years ago, and the convention threw out the Louisville delegates, Richard's home delegates, and installed in their place Hardin delegates. Hardin was nominated, accepted the nomination thus obtained and was elected, and Bro. Harris being a life-long Democrat it is presumed he voted for Mr. Hardin.

When Col. Berry was nominated for Congress by the Warsaw convention, several years ago, there were charges of the gravest kind of corruption as resulting in his nomination, for which there were grounds, but no new candidate was demanded—no investigation was made, but he was given an overwhelming majority at the polls, and as Bro. Harris has been a life-long Democrat it is presumed that he voted for Col. Berry.

As to the charge Mr. Stone makes against Goebel that he said he would nominate him (Stone), Mr. Goebel's dennial is published in another column, and is entitled to as much weight as that of Mr. Stone, whose home paper says was playing double so fast his leaders could not keep up with him, and Bro. Harris having been a life-long Democrat, and is a Christian gentleman and a lover of justice, he will consider Goebel's denial as entitled to equal dignity with Stone's charges, and there he is.

The Goebel election law it is understood, is very similar to the Tennessee election law, passed many years ago. Bro. Harris, a life-long Democrat, certainly does not pretend that the Tennessee election law was passed in order that Goebel could be counted in as Governor of his (Bro. Harris') native State?

Goebel acquired his nomination just after the manner hundreds of Democrats (and hundreds of Republicans, too, for that matter) have been nominated for office, and it is strange that at this late day "life-long Democrats" are awakend to the fact that they are of the nature of "a raised check," or "the bastard offspring of a political rape."

As honest and as capable Democrats as reside in Kentucky or anywhere else—Judge W. S. Pryor and Pointz, are the Democratic members of the State Board of Election Commissioners, and for a life-long Democrat to intimate that they will countenance anything dishonorable in the performance of their official duties, is astounding. If such men as they can not be trusted, the sooner our form of government is changed the better.

Goebel's title to the nomination for Governor is as good as was Knott's when he beat Jones; as McCreary's when he defeated Williams, as good as was Hardin's for Attorney General when he beat Richards, or as good as several other nominations that might be mentioned. The Democrats have, on several occasions, condoned the very things with which some are now charging Goebel, and for which they are refusing to support him. Goebel is entitled to as loyal as given McCreary, Knott, Hardin or Berry.

WHEN old Joe Wheeler reaches the Philippines the insurgents will find that they have a general to meet who knows how to conduct a campaign with vigor.

DON'T believe that Mr. Bryan had anything to do with Judge Tarvin's letter. He is not going about the country deciding who shall not support Democratic tickets.

THE Paducah Daily News was a strong friend of Congressman Stone in his canvass for the nomination for Governor, and being in possession of inside facts it says he has nothing of which he can complain in regard to the Louisville convention; that he was trying to play both Hardin and Goebel for the nomination and that his changes from one to the other was so rapid his leaders could not keep up with him, and they resolved themselves into the tin-horn brigade. It is as plain as a nose on a face that Stone or Hardin would have accepted the nomination had it come to them just as it did to Goebel. It was a game of politics and Goebel held the winning hand, dealt to him by Stone, who thought he was dealing himself one from the bottom of the deck.

THE RECORDER.

W. L. RIDDELL, Publisher.

BURLINGTON, : : KENTUCKY.

A PIECE of property on one of Atlanta's principal streets sold for $2,626 a front foot. Shortly before the war the property was worth but $5 a foot, and in all probability wound not then have sold for that sum.

UNTIL some 40 years ago it was customary among the Japanese to vaccinate on the tip of the nose. This rendered a written certificate a superfluity. The proof of vaccination was always in evidence, though whether the practice enhanced facial beauty is questionable.

THE power of living seed over the inert weight of tons of rock is very forcibly illustrated by the little sapling which is growing in Erstburg, Germany. The tree is slight enough to be bent with the hands, but is raising in its irresistible growth a mass of rock weighing four tons.

THE area of the Pretoria diamond fields continues to be increasing by discoveries in almost every direction, and the yield from the extensive wash is reported as highly encouraging, the yield from some of the mines for the first three months of the year ranging as high as 6,000 carats.

FLOATING churches are not so uncommon as they used to be. The most interesting in England is the church on the fens at Holme, near Petersborough. It is a house boat, 30 by 9 feet. None of the parish lives more than a mile from the river, and the church has the advantage of being movable.

IT is claimed now that strawberries as a beauti ying tonic can not be equaled. Skin specialists advocate their use invariably. A dish of them for breakfast every morning and another for luncheon are the directions. They contain more iron than any other fruit and are particularly good for any one suffering from nervousness.

A SILESIAN shaft sunk 6,571 feet in a search for coal is said to be the deepest hole in the world. Work was discontinued because the breakage of the boring tools, which has reached a weight of 30,000 pounds, prevented further progress. The temperature, which at the surface was 53 degrees, was at the bottom 157 degrees, an increase of one degree for every 63 feet.

ACCORDING to particulars received in Vienna, the plot to kidnap Prince George of Greece, was to have been carried out during his stay in Candia. Eight Mohammedans were its chief originators and the plan was to carry off the prince to Asia. The ringleaders have been banished from the island, the prosecution, by special request of the prince, being confined to them.

REAR ADM. KENNY, the new paymaster general of the navy, has created almost a panic in his office at Washington by issuing a stringent order against the reading of newspapers during business hours, writing private letters or engaging in conversation except relating to business. As these are favorite methods of killing time with some of the older clerks the order quite upsets them.

ICELAND is probably the one country in the world which gets along with a single policemen. The descendants of the Vikings have no need of policemen. The solitary officer, in spite of his great responsibility, has a very easy time. He is maintained more for ornament and dignity than for use. The Icelanders think it would not do to have a capital without a policeman, and so they keep one.

OF the cash fees paid out in settlement of the golden Cross mining litigation that a few days ago was brought to a successful close in the United States circuit court in that city, 15 Los Angeles attorneys divided between them $188,000. The remaining $156,000 went to nine lawyers of San Francisco, whose fees averaged a little over $17,833 per man, while a San Diego firm, Gibson & Titus, obtained feer aggregating over $66,000.

SINCE the annexation of Hawaii Frederick W. Job, who was consul general for that country, occupies a unique position. Hawaii, being now part of the United States, has no consul here, but Mr. Job continues to perform all his former duties. No invoice can be sent from this country to Hawaii without being certified by him. The last congress did not legislate on this matter or make any provision to cover the situation, and Mr. Job appears to be in for the work connected with the place, if nothing else.

IN a little country cottage near San Francisco an eccentric young heiress is spending the queerest honeymoon in the world. Helen K. Wilder, of Honolulu, always declared that when she should get married she would spend her honeymoon alone. A few weeks ago she married H. J. Craft in Honolulu and told him he had given her the opportunity to carry out her wish. The next day she sailed alone to San Francisco. She is now waiting for the month to elapse before going back to take up her wifely duties in Hawaii.

GOV. ROOSEVELT shortened the sentence of John Howard, a convict in Sing Sing prison, because the prisoner constructed two large pipe organs for the chapel, working two years on the job, and thus saving the state an account of money estimated at about $8,000. The organs were finished just as Howard's sentence expired and he was released. The organs presented an imposing appearance and were greatly admired. When it came to moving them it transpired that they would not give forth a sound. However, failed to leave his future address at the prison when he departed.

FILIPINO JUNTA.

Reported It Will Be Removed From Hong Kong to Island of Labuan.

Colorado Regiment Starts for Home Sunday—Other Volunteer Regiments Will Leave Later—Prof. Schurman Coming on Board the China.

MANILA, July 17.—It is reported that the Filipino junta will be removed from Hong Kong to the island of Lebuan, a British colony six miles from the northwest coast of Borneo, as the American officials have watched the members of the junta so closely at Hong Kong that the latter have found it impossible to supply the insurgents with arms.

The transport Warren sails Sunday with the Colorado regiment. Maj. Bradley Strong, and Maj. Young, of the supreme court, who is going to Utah for a vacation, on board. Prof. Schurman will arrive at San Francisco on board the China.

WASHINGTON, July 16.—The war department has received the following cable:

"MANILA, July 15.—Adjutant General, Washington: Twenty inches of rain July, attended by typhoons, made leaving of transports impossible. At Negros, impossible to unload 6th infantry until last day or two. California is now loading; Colorado's leave tomorrow on Warren; Idaho's, North Dakota's and Wyoming's next week, soon as transport Grant can be loaded.

"OTIS."

MURDERER SHOT TO DEATH.

The Jailer Outwitted by a Mob and Si Smith, the Alleged Slayer of Wm. Bell, Was Killed in His Cell.

GAINESVILLE, Ga., July 17.—Si Smith, the Habersham county farmer who killed Wm. Bell, the commercial traveler from Atlanta several months ago, was shot to death in the jail here Saturday morning.

About midnight Sheriff Munday, who lives at the jail, was awakened by a man at his door, who, when the sheriff answered the summons, stated that he was the sheriff of Gilmer county and that he had a prisoner he wanted to have locked up for the night. In the dark Sheriff Munday could see nothing but three or four men just outside the building and, hurriedly dressing himself, appeared at the entrance to the jail building. Gathered about it were some eight or ten men, all of whom were armed. The sheriff took them for sheriffs. The leader of the mob stepped forward and said:

"Here, come here," using a name the sheriff does not now recall. The man stepped forward with his hands bound, and in every way played well the role assigned to him. As he advanced those around him closed in, and in a few seconds the entire crowd was inside the building. Then a gun was thrown in Munday's face and the keys were demanded. The sheriff saw what was up and remarked: "The keys are down stairs."

"Well, get them quick," replied the leader.

Sheriff Munday hurried down the stairway followed by the two men. Half way down the stairs he was brought to a sudden stop by the rattle of firearms in the room he had just left. Wheeling around, he bounded up the steps until he reached the cage in which Smith was confined. Upon examination he found that Smith had been shot six times and was dead.

A BIG BLAZE AT GALLATIN.

Several Buildings Destroyed, Entailing a Loss of About $125,000, With $40,000 Insurance.

GALLATIN, Tenn., July 17.—The most disastrous fire in the history of this prosperous and progressive Tennessee town broke out in the rear of A. D. Fitzgerald's wholesale and retail grocery house, at 8:45 Sunday night. Within two hours the whole south side of the public square and a half block on South Water street were in ashes. The Fitzgerald house was completely gutted within a few minutes, and the flames spread right and left to M. Wics' dry goods store in the south side block, and F. P. Dillard's bookstore.

The opera house block, the lower floor of which was occupied by Ewing Bros. & Co., hardware; Louisville store, dry goods; Broderick & Lane, milliners, and William Smith, groceries, was next caught and wholly destroyed. The house of H. B. Lucas, grocer, and the post office building were the next to catch.

At this hour it is impossible to prepare a correct list of losses, all of which will aggregate $125,000, with about $60,000 insurance on stocks and buildings.

Reductions in Duties.

LONDON, July 17.—The Buenos Ayres correspondent of the Times says that the new treaty between Argentina and the United States gives reductions in the duties on Argentine sugar, hides and wool and on American canned goods, timber and certain foods.

Gen. Wheeler in San Francisco.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 17.—Gen. Joe Wheeler spent a quiet Sunday with his daughter, Miss Annie Wheeler. He was busy most of the day attending to his extensive correspondence.

GERMAN FLAG TORN DOWN.

It Was Hoisted Over a Honolulu Hotel, July 4—Destroyed by American Soldiers—Trouble May Arise.

HONOLULU, July 7, via Victoria, B.C., July 15.—There was a flag incident here on the Fourth of July which promises to be made an international episode. Carl Klemme, the proprietor of the Orpheum hotel, gaily decorated his building in American colors, hoisted the American flag over it and under the American flag the German flag. Later a friend of his wanted to use an American flag, and Klemme good naturedly loaned him his, leaving the German flag floating alone from the flag staff.

J. H. West saw it, and ordered Klemme to haul it down. There had been ill will between the two men before, and Klemme refused to take orders from his enemy. West thereupon gathered a lot of soldiers from the transport Sherman and showed them the German flag floating on the 4th of July in American territory. The soldiers at once proceeded to the roof, tore down the German flag and destroyed it, and put into its place some red, white and blue bunting torn from the other decorations of the buildings. West was Friday fined $100 in the police court for malicious mischief and the German consul general will make a report of the matter to his government.

NEW JERSEY NEGRO COLONY.

A Scheme to Establish One at Oak Grove Assuming Form—An Up-to-Date Town Will Be Built.

NEW YORK, July 15.—A scheme to establish a Negro colony at Oak Grove, near Flemington, N. J., is assuming form. The farm of former Sheriff W. Howard Lake has been selected as the site. Maps have been prepared on a large scale by competent engineers providing for every need of a thoroughly up to date town.

These plans contemplate a big shoe factory on the co-operative plan and the running of a branch of the Lehigh Valley railroad into the town. Part of a large grove has been set aside as a camp meeting ground. A large number of the best known colored people of the state, including many preachers and a colored bishop, have investigated the project and given substantial aid. A tract of land has been given, it is said, to Henry C. Smith, of the Christian National Industrial and Mutual Order of New York, for an industrial school, and steps are to be taken at once for the erection of a building.

BIG ESTATE ALMOST GONE.

The Lawyers' Fees and the Court Costs Amounted to Nearly Two Million Dollars.

BUFFALO, N. Y., July 15.—It became known through papers filed in the supreme court here Friday that of the estate of Roswell S. Burrows, who died 15 years ago, but $100,000 remains. The property at the time of Mrs. Burrow's death was worth $3,000,000 and has not since depreciated in value, but has passed into the hands of the lawyers who have been suing the estate on behalf of clients who claimed that Burrows owed them money on loans. None of the suits have been decided, but costs and lawyers' fees have eaten up over $1,900,000 of the estate. This fact came to light Friday when the referee appointed in one of these cases filed his report, which alleges that the money is practically all gone, and also that a son of Burrows has drawn $50,000 more than his share of his father's property.

FOR CONTEMPT OF COURT.

Choctaw Indian Authorities Who Refused to Recognize a Federal Judge's Writ of Habeas Corpus in Trouble.

WASHINGTON, July 15.—It is said at the department of justice that if the Choctaw Indian authorities refused to recognize a writ of habeas corpus regularly issued by a judge of the federal court in the case of the Indian Walla Tonka, who was executed in the Indian Territory Thursday, the judge has the right to punish the offenders for contempt of court. The department of justice however, has no jurisdiction in the matter as it now stands and whether the federal judge will prosecute the Indians for contempt is a matter clearly within his discretion.

To Fight the Wall Paper Trust.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., July 15.—The Pittsburgh Wall Paper Co. will have in operation at New Brighton, Pa., by September 1 one of the largest wall paper plants in the world. The company has been organized to fight the Continental Wall Paper Co., the wall paper trust. The plant will be capable of making 120,000,000 yards of wall paper yearly.

Barn and Sheds Burned.

EATON, O., July 15.—Fire destroyed the barn and wagon shed of Anthony Yount, a farmer living near Camden. Five buggies and a wagon, one horse, all harnesses and agricultural implements were lost. Loss $1,500, partly insured.

Murderer Executed.

EASTMAN, Ga., July 15.—Will Wilson, colored, was hanged here Friday for the murder of Marshal Osborn, of Dauney county. He denied any complicity in the crime.

ON NEW FOOTING

Treaty Between the United States and Japan Went Into Effect Monday.

Other Countries With Which Japan Has Made Treaties Are: Great Britain, Germany, France, Russia, Austria, Italy, Spain, Portugal and Belgium.

WASHINGTON, July 17.—A new treaty between the United States and Japan went into effect Monday, at which time also new treaties between Japan and nearly all of the countries of Europe and some of the South American republics also went into effect. It is an event of far-reaching importance in the relations between Japan and the United States, as it does away with the treaty methods which have been in vogue for nearly 50 years and substitutes an entirely new method of procedure. The same is true in the relations of Japan with other countries. Taken as a whole the many new treaties which went into effect Monday place Japan on entirely new footing with the world at large, as she is recognized for the first time as an equal in every respect.

The treaty with this country was made November 22, 1894, in Washington, between Secretary Gresham and Minister Kureno, who then represented Japan here. The changes it made were so far-reaching that it was determined the treaty should not go into operation until July 17, 1899.

The countries with which Japan has made new treaties are the United States, Great Britain, Germany, France, Russia, Austria, Italy, Spain, Portugal, Belgium, Holland, Denmark, Sweden and Norway, Switzerland and Peru. All of these went into effect Monday except those with France and Austria, which are deferred until August 4. With most of these countries Japan had treaty relations before, but they were crude and unsatisfactory.

HE MET A TERRIBLE FATE.

The Body of a Man, Lacking the Legs, Discovered on the Pilot of a Locomotive on Arrival at Galesburg, Ill.

GALESBURG, Ill., July 17.—When the fast mail train pulled in here at midnight Saturday night, Engineer Frank Bullard found on the pilot the body of a man who has been identified as Mike McLaughlin, of 3013 North Ninth street, Philadelphia. The body lacked the legs, which had been severed at the pelvic region as clean as could have been done with a surgeon's knife.

The body was tightly wedged into the pilot. The legs were Sunday morning discovered on the track west of Kewanee. The coroner here telegraphed Kewanee for the legs, but the coroner of Henry county declined to surrender them, saying that the inquest should be held in the county where the accident occurred.

The coroner here holds that the inquest should be conducted in this county, where the body was found. At present it looks as if two inquests would be held, although Marshal Hinman has gone to Kewanee after the legs, the Philadelphia relatives having wired him to take charge of the remains.

How the accident occurred is a mystery, as Bullard knew nothing of it until, when oiling the engine, he found the mutilated trunk. When the man was struck the train was going 70 miles an hour and the pilot hit him with such force as to cut his body in two.

STREET CAR MEN ON STRIKE.

The Brooklyn Rapid Transit Co. Endeavors to Run Cars With Non-Union Men—Much Disorder.

NEW YORK, July 17.—Nearly all the conductors and motormen of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Co. struck at 5 o'clock Sunday morning. Those who had cars out left them on the tracks. The company endeavored to run cars with non-union men on all the lines, and there was much disorder. Wires were cut, rails were torn up, non-union men hooted and stoned, and at the Marcy avenue stables a crowd of 3,000 men resisted the police. Many arrests were made during the day. On some lines the company maintained a regular service and on others they failed altogether. Cars were unable to run to the ocean beaches. The tie-up has not been nearly so complete as the labor leaders said it would be.

Suicided by Drowning.

PEORIA, Ill., July 17.—Allt Van Boening, state grand master of the Knights and Ladies of Honor, aged 46 years, committed suicide Sunday evening by throwing himself from the steamer Bald Eagle, three miles above the Copperas creek dam. Domestic troubles is supposed to have caused the act. He was also state official in the A. O. U. W.

Silk Mills Shut Down.

NEW YORK, July 17.—The Rhenia silk mills at College Point, L. I., which employed more than 300 hands, has shut down for an indefinite period, on account of depression in the American silk industry.

Kipling Bitten by a Dog.

LONDON, July 17.—Rudyard Kipling's right thumb has been bitten by a dog and is considerably inflamed. He carries his arm in a sling, but it is not thought that the injury may have serious consequences.

THE AMERICAN RAILROADS.

Report of the Interstate Commerce Commission for the Year 1898—A Good Showing.

WASHINGTON, July 15.—The report of railway statistics for the year 1898, compiled by the interstate commerce commission and made public Friday, shows that 11 roads went into the hands of receivers, against 45 taken out, while the mileage of receivership roads was reduced by 6,110 miles operated and 5,133 miles owned.

There was a decrease in the capital stock of the roads in receivers' hands of $221,927,389. The aggregate mileage of railways on June 30, 1898, was 247,532, an increase of 4,088 miles.

The total number of railway corporations in the United States was 2,047. The total number of locomotives in service was 36,234, an increase of 248 over the previous year. The total of railway employes was 874,558, an increase of 51,082.

An interesting feature is a wage summary compiled from over 99 per cent. of the total employes. There was paid in wages $495,055,618, an increase for the year of $29,454,037. This sum represented 60.52 per cent. of the total operating expenses.

The total amount of railway capital outstanding on June 30, 1898, not including current liabilities, was $10,818,554,031. Of the outstanding stock 66.26 per cent. paid no dividends.

Of the stock paying dividends 6.63 per cent. paid from one to four per cent. There was 4.54 per cent. of the dividend paying stock that paid from 7 to 8 per cent. The total in dividends paid was $96,152,889, being an average of 5.29 per cent. on all stock on which a dividend was declared.

The total number of passengers carried was 501,008,031, an increase of 11,622,468. The total number of tons of freight carried one mile, per mile of line, was 617,810, which was greater by 98,731 than the previous year. The gross earnings of the whole mileage was $1,247,525,021, an increase of $125,235,848.

The total number of casualties for the year was 47,741. The aggregate killed was 6,859 and injured 40,882. Of railway employes 950 were killed and 31,761 injured. The passengers killed were 221 and injured 2,945. The total number of persons killed other than passengers and employes was 4,680 and injured 6,176.

This includes persons classed as trespassers, tramps and the like. One passenger was killed for every 2,267,270 carried and one injured for every 170,141. One out of every 447 employes was killed and one out of every 28 was injured.

THE LION AND BULL FIGHT.

The Former Refused to Act Until the Latter Gored Him in Several Places—The Exhibition a Fiasco.

ROUBAIX, France, July 15.—The much talked of fight between a Spanish bull and an Abyssinian lion Friday proved a fiasco, although the seats in the bull ring sold at fabulous prices. The lion, which is a splendid specimen, refused to fight until the bull gored him in several places. Then he sprang fiercely upon his foe and tore off one of the bull's ears.

For a few seconds there was a terrific fight, and then the lion retired to a corner, refusing to carry the contest further.

The audience, furious at being balked, became riotous.

A NOVEL GAME OF BASEBALL.

The Teams in the Contest Will Be State Officials of Wisconsin's Capitol and City Officials of Milwaukee, Wis.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., July 15.—A novel game of baseball will be played in Milwaukee on July 29 the proceeds of which will go to the victims of the New Richmond tornado. The teams in the contest will be made up of state officials at Wisconsin's capitol and officers connected with the administration of this city.

Gov. Scofield and Mayor Ross will be the opposing pitchers in the initial innings. Ex-Gov. George W. Peck will umpire the game. It is expected the gate receipts will amount to several thousand dollars.

Great Excitement in Barcelona, Spain.

BARCELONA, July 15.—The bursting of four bombs Friday morning in different parts of the city has aroused great excitement, although no great damage was done. Further trouble is feared. The author of the outrages is unknown.

Kissing Bugs at Chickamauga.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., July 15.—The kissing bug made its appearance at Chickamauga park, where Capt. McCarthy, in charge of the quartermaster's supply depot, has caught several. The bugs have been biting and stinging the men and horses.

Ordered to Ft. Thomas.

WASHINGTON, July 15.—The following officers have been ordered to join the 31st infantry at Ft. Thomas: Maj. J. E. McMahon, Capts. J. R. Adams and P. S. Gallagher, First Lieut. Kemp Browning, Second Lieuts. Wilford Twyman and W. O. Bowman.

Editor Peters Dead.

NEW YORK, July 15.—Bernard Peters, aged 71, famous as editor of the Brooklyn Times, a Universalist preacher and a republican campaign orator, is dead. He lived for a long time at Marietta, O.

"Uneasy Lies the Head That Wears a Crown."

But such are not the only uneasy heads. Overworked, harassed, anxious people of all ages and both sexes are uneasy with aches, pains, impure blood, disordered stomachs, deranged kidneys and liver. For all such, Hood's Sarsaparilla is the effective and faultless cure. It infuses fresh life through purified blood.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Never Disappoints

ONE ON THE MERCHANT.

How It Came That the Value of His Stock Was Subject to Fluctuations.

One of the lawyers says that a client of his is the hero of this story and that it happened here within a year or two. A man from the assessors' office went into the store of a Hebrew merchant in the pursuit of his duties. The two had a slight acquaintance, so that the assistant assessor did not think it necessary to explain his business. He was rather surprised when, in answer to his questions, the storekeeper proceeded to dilate on the value of his stock. "De finest in nny store of de size in de city. It isn't vort a cent less than $5,000."

"Suppose I put it down at that then," said the assessors' man.

"Do it. Do it," said the proprietor. "Yer von't maig no mistake."

So the assessors' man did it. There was lamentation in the store when the tax bill showed the proprietor that he was taxed on $5,000 personal, and he rushed over to the assessors' office with all possible speed.

"Vat iss dis?" he asked them, excitedly. "I have no personal but de stock in my store. I'm a liar if it's vort $500. Come down and look it ofer."

They told him that the records showed that he had given the figure to the assistant assessor.

His hands went up over his head in horror. "My goodness, my goodness!" he shouted. "Vas dat your man? I thought he was from Bradstreet's."

He Had Reason to Run.

The man came out of an office building on the run and started down the street.

"Here! Here!" cried the policeman on the corner. "What's your hurry?"

"There's a man back there trying to sell me a book on 28 weekly installments of $2.53 each!" cried the victim.

The policeman instantly released his hold.

"Run!" he cried. "Run like a whitehead! Maybe you can get away from him yet."—Chicago Post.

An Instance.

She—Do you honestly believe that we women have such a failing for anything that is reduced?

He—Well, there is Miss Antique, whose age is 23—reduced from 38.—Puck.

REGISTER OF TREASURY.

Hon. Judson W. Lyons, Register of the United States Treasury, in a letter from Washington, D. C., says:

Hon. Judson W. Lyons, Register of the Treasury.

April 23d, 1899.

Pe-ru-na Drug M'f'g Co., Columbus, O.:

Gentlemen—I find Pe-ru-na to be an excellent remedy for the catarrhal affections of spring and summer, and those who suffer from depression from the heat of the summer will find no remedy the equal of Pe-ru-na.

John W. Lyons.

No man is better known in the financial world than Judson W. Lyons. His name on every piece of money of recent date, makes his signature one of the most familiar ones in the United States. Hon. Lyons address is Augusta, Ga. He is a member of the National Republican Committee, and is a prominent and influential politician. He is a particular friend of President McKinley.

Remember that cholera morbus, cholera infantum, summer complaint, bilious colic, diarrhoea and dysentery are each and all catarrh of the bowels. Catarrh is the only correct name for these affections. Pe-ru-na is an absolute specific for these ailments, which are so common in summer. Dr. Hartman, in a practice of over forty years, never lost a single case of cholera infantum, dysentery, diarrhoea, or cholera morbus, and his only remedy was Pe-ru-na. Those desiring further particulars should send for a free copy of "Summer Catarrh." Address Dr. Hartman, Columbus, O.

READERS OF THIS PAPER DESIRING TO BUY ANYTHING ADVERTISED IN ITS COLUMNS SHOULD INSIST UPON HAVING WHAT THEY ASK FOR, REFUSING ALL SUBSTITUTES OR IMITATIONS.

25 CTS. PISO'S CURE FOR 25 CTS.

CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS. Best Cough Syrup. Tastes Good. Use in time. Sold by druggists.

CONSUMPTION

SPLENDID GIFT.

Mrs. N. P. McCormick, of Chicago, Will Establish a School at Jackson, Ky.

Besides Establishing This Institution Mrs. McCormick Will Also Pay the Salaries of Two Competent Instructors, Man and Woman.

CHICAGO, July 14.—Mrs. N. P. McCormick, of this city, Thursday signified her intention of establishing and thoroughly equipping a mnnual training school, to be operated in connection with the S. P. Lees Collegiate institute at Jackson, Ky. This institute is an auxiliary of the University of Kentucky, and is located in the heart of the mountains of the eastern part of the state, at the county seat of what was once known as "Bloody Breathitt."

Dr. L. R. Blanton, chancellor of the Central University of Kentucky, came here Thursday nt the request of Mrs. McCormick, and the finnl arrnngements for the gift were perfected.

The philanthropic principles of Mrs. McCormick are directly identical with the ideas of Cyrus McCormick, her deceased husband, whose name is familiar in agricultural circles. Since the civil war her nnme has been conspicuous on the list of benefactors of southern schools, which may be accounted for by the fact that Cyrus McCormick was a Virginian and in close sympathy with the southern mountaineers.

Besides estnblishing the training school, Mrs. McCormick will also pny the salaries of two competent instructors, a man and n woman, for their respective departments.

SEVERAL NEW BATTLE SHIPS.

Per Cent. of Completion of the Kearsarge is 92, Kentucky 90, Illinois 68, Alabama 88 and the Maine 9.

WASHINGTON, July 14.—A statement prepared by Chief Constructor Hichborn shows that of the three battleships buildings at Newport News the Kearsarge is advnnced 92 per cent toward completion, the Kentucky 90 per cent, and the Illinois 68 per cent. Cramp hns the Alabama 88 per cent. finished and the Maine 9 per cent. At the Union iron works the Wisconsin stands at 73 per cent. and the Ohio at 2 per cent.

The sheathed cruiser Albany in England is advnnced 80 per cent. The monitor Wyoming, at the Union iron works, is set down at 12 per cent.; the Connecticut, at Bath, at 10 per cent., and the Florida, at Nixon's, 9 per cent.

The training ship Chesapeake at Bath is set down at 98 per cent., and the submarine boat Plunger, at the Columbian iron works, at 85 per cent. The torpedo boats vary all the way from 97 per cent., in the case of the Dahlgren, at Bath, to nothing.

THE CRUISER MARIA TERESA.

Navy Department Has Ordered an Appraisal of the Captured Spanish Vessel—The Mercedes' Value.

WASHINGTON, July 14.—The navy department has ordered an appraisal of the captured Spanish cruiser Maria Teresa and of all the war material recovered from the other ships engaged in the battle of Santiago bay. This step is due to a question raised as to the right of prize money growing out of the capture of this ship. The Teresa was the one cruiser raised, and although she went adrift while on her way to this country and is an abandoned hulk on Cat island, it is claimed in some quarters that the raising was sufficient to warrant the payment of prize money. The appraisal of the ship will be based on her value at the time she was raised. The property to be appraised includes the cannon and equipment recovered from the other Spanish ships.

The board which appraised the Spanish ship Reina Mercedes has reported her value at $73,000.

A FREIGHT TRAIN WRECKED.

Three Tramps Killed and Five Others Seriously Injured—Another Man Believed to Be in the Wreckage.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., July 14.—Three tramps were killed and five others were seriously injured Thursday by the wrecking of a freight train on the Chicago & Alton road near Glendale, Mo. The body of another man is believed to be at the bottom of the wreckage, which consists of ten carloads of merchnndise, hogs and cattle.

Perry Curtis, of Atlnnta, Ga., is the only one of the dead identified. Five were so severely injured that they were sent to the hospitnl.

They were stealing a ride in an empty stock car, when the train left the track on a sharp curve. Among those in the car was a woman in male attire. She escaped uninjured.

Hour of Death Predicted.

PHILADELPHIA, July 14.—"I will die today, but not until after the dinner hour," predicted William Brewington, of Chester, Thur day morning. He closed his eyes and passed away shortly before 3 p.m. He had been sick, but was recovering.

Killed By a Kissing Bug.

WHEELING, W. Va., July 14.—A 4-year-old child of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Hogan, which was the victim of a "kissing bug," is in such condition that it can not live.

CASHIER'S HEAVY SHORTAGE.

Middlesex County Bank, of Perth Amboy, N. J., Mulcted Out of Over a Hundred Thousand Dollars.

NEW YORK, July 13.—George M. Valentine, cashier of the Middlesex county bank of Perth Amboy, N. J., which was closed Friday, has surrendered himself, and is now in jail on account of a shortage in the bank's funds, which has been variously estimated all the way to $165,000. The affair caused consternation among the business men of Perth Amboy, where the Middlesex bank was considered as strong as the eternal hills.

So panic-stricken did the residents of Perth Amboy become when it was learned that the Middlesex bnnk had failed to open for business as usual Friday morning, that crowds surrounded the Perth Amboy savings institution. What made the run on the savings bank appear all the more serious was the fact that the officers of the Middlesex bank and the officers of the Perth Amboy savings institution are identical, the business of both banks being transacted over the same counter.

Though it became necessary to call for the aid of the police for the purpose of mnintaining order, U. B. Watson, the president of both banks, says that the funds of the Perth Amboy savings institution were not touched, that the $300,000 deposited to the account of the savings institution is absolutely safe, and that no matter how badly the Middlesex bank has been wrecked the savings bank will be able to meet all demands made upon it by the depositors. These words of assurance from the officers of the savings bank had the effect of checking the run on this bank during the afternoon.

A detailed investigation of matters by President Watson and Robert N. Valentine, the cashier's father, showed that the cashier's checks nnd stubs did not correspond; that the checks called for more money than the stubs recorded, and that while taking the stub as the basis of accounting, the bank's finances would figure all right, the checks would show that the bank had been drawing heavily on its New York correspondent, the Park national bank.

The cashier in fact carried the accounts on the stubs and from them to the books correctly, but when the returns from the cashier's checks came he pocketed the difference between the stub and the check. Four or five months of this method of financiering depleted the bank's reserve moneys and brought it to the verge of ruin. Then the cashier evidently secured a portion of the ready cash on hand and left Perth Amboy.

Thursday night the determination to close the bank was reached and Mr. Watson notified Chief of Police Burke and asked him to locate the missing cashier. Valentine, who had been in New York city, returned to Perth Amboy from Woodbridge accompanied by his counsel, Edward Savage. He declined to go into details about the shortage except to say that he was very sorry that he had got his friends into trouble and felt very bad about his wife and children.

President Watson is of the opinion that the cashier's defalcation will amount to at least $125,000. Where the money went is unknown, as the cashier is said to have been moderate in taste and habits of life.

The Middlesex county bank was operated under a state charter and had been in operation many years.

Cashier Valentine was for years a clerk in the Park national bank of New York. In 1893 he was made cashier of the Middlesex bank. His bond was fixed for $50,000. His relatives are wealthy and it is said they will try to make good the shortage.

NEW YORK, July 15.—The Park national bank, of this city, has obtained an attachment in the supreme court for $31,508 against the Middlesex county bank, of Perth Amboy, N. J., $30,205 on overdrafts, and $1,302 due on collections. The attachment was granted by Justice Stover, of the supreme court. Deputy Sheriff McGuire attached mining stocks and bonds belonging to the bank nt the office of the Park national bank.

Two Lynchings in Texas.

HOUSTON, Tex., July 13.—Specials to the Post tell of two lynchings in Texas Friday. Abe Brown, a Negro, who murdered and outraged n Bohemian woman Monday, was shot to death near Gilead, and an unknown Negro was lynched near Iola, Grimes county, for murdering a white boy, Lemuel Sharp.

Lieut. Col. Smith Dead.

ST. LOUIS, July 13.—Lieut. Col. Smith, in charge of the U. S. quarter-master's department here, died at his home Thursday night. Except for his housekeeper nobody else was in the house, his wife being absent in Arizona visiting a married daughter.

A curiosity exists near the Red Bluff Primitive Baptist church in Ware county, Ga. It is a mammoth mulberry tree, and the heart has long since rotted. Out of the heart of the mulberry grow a cherry and a peach tree, both of which are eight inches in diameter. They grow to a point ten feet above the ground. All three of the trees are alive and bear fruit every year.

That wood will stand the passing of centuries as well as metal is proved by the unearthing near the Nile of some Egyptian boats nearly 5,000 years old, which are in good condition.

IN THE ORIENT.

Steamship Olympia Brings Interesting News From China and Japan.

British and American Residents of Kinning District Advised to Leave—Houses Destroyed and Lives Lost by an Explosion.

TACOMA, Wash., July 17.—The steamship Olympia, which arrived here Sunday from China and Japan, brings the following mail advices:

Serious riots occurred near Kiao Chou June 26. Thousands of armed peasants rose by preconcerted signal and attacked the railway now being actively pushed in the vicinity. The rioters offered determined resistance to the German infantry, and nine were killed. It is expected the military will be able to restore order without further bloodshed.

Two Russian engineers and ten Cossacks have been killed by brigands near Kirin.

Much damage was done by the recent floods in the Kobe perfecture. Losses are roughly estimated at over 150,000 yen.

The Italian squadron is maneuvering on the Yellow sea and the Chinese authorities express anxiety as to its intentions. The representatives of the powers do not, however, believe Italy will take any decisive action against China.

The recent fire at Onomoache, in the province of Echizen, destroyed 734 houses, 56 go downs, three Buddhist temples, a police office, a post and telegraph office, etc. Four persons were burned to death, five severely wounded and 50 slightly injured. The place was the scene of a conflagration 12 years ago when 1,051 houses and 222 go downs were destroyed.

The British and American residents of Kinning district have been advised by their consuls to leave Foo Chow in order to escape further attacks.

One case of cholera has appeared at Nagasaki.

June 14 a great quantity of gunpowder exploded in a go down of the military division at Shinkei-Yei, Japan, and over 300 houses surrounding the place were destroyed and 30 lives lost.

A coal mine in Takawa Gori became filled with poisonous gas and about 190 miners were suffocated.

The American, Russian and German ministers are engaged in negotiations regarding the construction of the Seoul-Wousai railway.

June 14, at Seoul, explosives were thrown at the residences of Sin Kwi-son, premier, Pak Chong Yang, and Pak Hwi Yang, wounding one severely. The court was thrown into a great panic. The emperor has removed to the newly built library, but the Russian and American legations are closely guarded. Some thirty persons were arrested. They are suspected of being connected with the conspirators in Japan.

The Chinese minister at Perlin has been instructed to contract with the Vulcan works at Stettin, Germany, for the construction of two armor clads of about 8,000 tons and six protected fast cruisers of 3,500 tons, to be completed in 30 months for 10,000,000 taels. An order for 50 quick-firing field guns will also be placed in Germany.

A telegram from Chemulpo June 19 says two captains in the Korean army and two other persons have been apprehended on a charge of plotting to put to death the present emperor.

A FATAL FAMILY QUARREL.

Mrs. George Treider, Near Libertyville, Ill., Kills Her Mother, Wounds Her Husband and Kills Herself.

LIBERTYVILLE, Ill., July 17.—Following a family quarrel Sunday afternoon Mrs. George Treider shot and killed her mother, Mrs. Christian Foss, wounded her husband and killed herself. The shooting occurred at the home of the Treiders, a mile and a half northwest of Long Grove, a village near this place.

Mr. Treider was shot three times, but it is thought he will recover. The quarrel was precipitated Sunday afternoon by long standing family trouble. Hot words were exchanged during the morning between Mrs. Foss and her daughter, and Treider also became involved in the discussion. The trouble was apparently over when after dinner it broke out afresh.

Mrs. Treider stepped into the bedroom appearing immediately with a revolver, opened fire on her mother. The first shot was fatal and the husband, springing forward to disarm his wife received three wounds that sent him from the house in retreat. After leaving the house he heard two more shots, the ones that killed his wife. Mrs. Treider leaves two children, and 5 years old. She was 33 and her mother 80 years of age.

Steamer Sinks With Twenty-Six of the Crew.

VICTORIA, B. C., July 17.—The steamer Portshire has arrived at Port Jackson, in tow of the Talume. For 50 days this great vessel tossed on the seas between Australia and New Zealand, all but completely helpless. The aid of the navy was invoked to search for the steamer before it was found. The liner Oahu founder-d at sea while on a voyage from Greymouth to Dunedin, and the crew of 26 was lost. The disaster was due to overloading the vessel.

TROUBLE IN GUATEMALA.

England and Germany Have Ordered Four Warships There—Want Uncle Sam to Assume a Protectorate.

NEW ORLEANS, July 13.—The Picayune prints the following:

News of the gravest import from Guatemala was brought to this city by the passengers on the Synder steamship Breakwater, which landed at four or five of the leading Central American ports before putting in here late Monday night.

The reports seem to be anthentic in the main, and come from sources that are of the highest order. "Just before sailing on the steamer for New Orleans," said the speaker, who asked that his name be omitted from the report, "I was informed by persons in the best of positions that probably before I could get back that both England and Germany would have made a naval demonstration on the two leading ports of the republic of Guatemala.

I investigated the information before sailing and everything seems to point to its genuineness. A large amount of the government debt, in the form of bonds issued by the government of Guatemala, is held by English and German interests. These bonds have been practically repudiated, at least the bonds have sunk to nothing, and the German and English holders have protested vigorously to their governments.

"Four warships are said to have been ordered to Guatemalan waters, two German and two English. One of each flag will proceed to Porto Barrios and one of each will be sent to San Jose de Guatemala, which is on the Pacific side of the republic. The point that most interests the United States is that if this seizure of the custom-houses should result in a long holding of those ports, in order that the amounts could be collected, it would be necessary for a protectorate to be established over the republic of Gautemala while this was going on. In that case the natural course of affairs would be to turn to either Mexico or the United States for that protectorate. The first proposition would hardly be probable because of the bad feeling existing between Guatemala and Mexico over the boundary dispute. That is the real point—the United States holding a protectorate over Guatemala. I would not be surprised to hear of it coming to that pass before many months, for I confidently believe that England and Germany intend making the naval display and the demand for immediate settlement of the repudiated bonds held by their subjects."

WASHINGTON, July 13.—Orders to rush repairs on the Philadelphia and fit her for sea as quickly as possible were sent Wednesday to Adm. Kautz, at San Francisco. The board of survey which usually determines what repairs shall be made was dispensed with to save time, and it is also understood that expense is not to be considered in the matter.

The navy department officials will not say where the cruiser is going, but it is believed that an outbreak in Guatemala is feared and that the warship is ordered there to protect American interests.

MAGNETIC SURVEY AT SEA.

The Coast and Geodetic Survey to Determine the Accurate Deviation of the Compass on the Ocean.

WASHINGTON, July 13.—Scientific men are manifesting much interest in the preparations now making by the coast and geodetic survey, which is charged with the magnetic survey of the United States for determining the accurate deviation of the compass at sea. Recent accidents at sea and the severe competition of ocean liners have called attention in a striking way to the need of accurate values of the deviation of the compass needle at sea. The values of the deviation of the needle generally used are almost wholly dependent upon the observations made on land and little has been done by the United States to secure observations at sea. The vessels of the coast survey are being fitted with special magnetic instruments for these observations, and it is hoped that within a very short time the survey may be able to furnish values of the magnetic variations at sea, nearly equal in accuracy to those on land.

Riots in Ireland.

BELFAST, July 13.—The anniversary of the Protestant victory at Boyne, where William III. defeated his father-in-law, James II., in 1690, brought out the Orangemen 9,000 strong in a parade here Wednesday, and precipitated a rough time in the streets. Nationalists along the line of march threw bricks at the paraders, who resented the attack with their fists. Several constables were mauled, and some heads were broken.

Boy's Brains Dashed Out.

ZANESVILLE, O., July 13.—David Palmer, aged 10, was struck in the forehead by a singletree and fatally injured. His skull was fractured and his brains ran on to his face. He was pulling hay into a mow when a tug came off and the singletree flew back.

Strong Gas Well Finished.

EATON, Ind., July 13.—The strongest gas well in this field was finished Tuesday evening. The casing blew out 1,000 feet, and the derrick was blown down.

ROCKING-CHAIR TRAVELS.

You sit down snug and quiet,
A book upon your knee—
A wonder-book that tells about
The lands across the sea;
And then a strange thing happens—
You do not leave your chair,
But as you read about these lands
It seems that you are there.

You see the queerest people,
They talk a language new,
The buildings are not those you know,
The streets are stranze to you.
But you are never frightened,
It's pleasant to be there,
For you can always quickly come
Back to your rocking-chair.

It does you good to journey
In such an easy way,
To learn about the big, big world,
And how it looks to-day.
This way a child should travel,
The road is very fair:
It's safe and best for little ones
To go by rocking-chair.

—Annie Willis McCullough, in Youth's Companion.

FIERCE CAMEL FIGHT.

Bit Each Other Like Wolves and a Dozen Men Worked Hard to Separate Them.

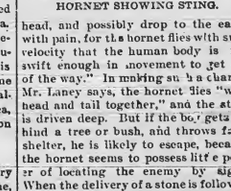
Description by an English traveler of a fight between camels at the court of an Indian prince:

"Two camels were brought into the grounds at the back of the palace and made to face one another. They were male animals, whose vicious tendencies had made it necessary for them to be kept from the rest of the cattle and who had been carefully fed in the chieftain's fighting stock as being especially powerful animals.

"At a signal from the prince the creatures were let loose and shambled toward each other. At first they merely feinted and skirmished about in a clumsy fashion, their long, awkward legs an irresistibly ludierous sight. Presently they began to foam at the mouth, their faces became contorted with fury, and a sort of fencing match took place.

"Their heads darted from side to side, and they strove to seize each other with their teeth. They groaned and roared furiously, and the spectators were soon worked up to a high pitch of excitement.

"At length one camel seized his enemy by the leg, while the other, a large, long-haired animal, retaliated by laying hold of his opponent's ear. Blood flowed freely, and opinion was divided as to which camel would be the victor.



"At last the long-haired camel, whose grip on his adversary's ear was not very firm, suddenly let go, but the other continued to hold on to his antagonist's leg and even to drag him about, roaring with pain.

"The prince eventually gave the order to separate the combatants, but it required the efforts of nearly a dozen men with ropes, chains and cudgels to put an end to the affray. Even then the wound on the leg of the vanquished camel was so serious that I believe the poor creature was crippled for months."

HOW HORNETS CHARGE.

They Fly "with Head and Tail Together," and the Sting Is Driven Cruelly Deep.

Boys who propose to bombard hornets' nests may find valuable information in the description, by Mr. Hervey Laney, in the Scientific American, of the way those insects defend their homes. There is always a sentinel on watch at the entrance, and when a stone is thrown at the nest "the hand that threw it has been marked as sure as the sun shines, and before the attacking party can possibly turn the head he will feel a stunning blow in the forehead, and possibly drop to the earth with pain, for the hornet flies with such velocity that the human body is not swift enough in movement to get out of the way." In making such a charge, Mr. Laney says, the hornet flies "with head and tail together," and the sting is driven deep. But if the boy gets behind a tree or bush, and throws from shelter, he is likely to escape, because the hornet seems to possess little power of locating the enemy by sight. When the delivery of a stone is followed by a successful charge, Mr. Laney thinks, it is because the hornet possesses "the faculty of marking the direction of a missile thrown at the nest."

HORNET SHOWING STING.

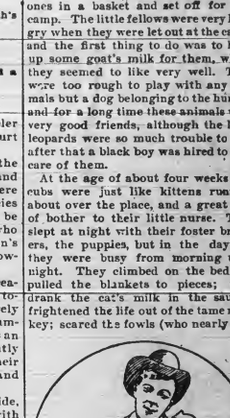
Feathered Ventriloquists.

Many birds form their sounds without opening their bills. The pigeon is a well known instance of this. Its cooing can be distinctly heard, although it does not open its bill. The call is formed internally in the throat and chest, and is only rendered audible by resonance. Similar ways may be observed in many birds and other animals. The clear, loud call of the cuckoo, according to one naturalist, is the resonance of a note formed in the bird. The whirring of the snipe, which betrays the approach of the bird to the hunter, is an act of ventriloquism. Even the nightingale has certain notes which are produced internally, and which are audible while the bill is closed.

There are in New York city about 100,000 who are exempt by law or circumstances from jury service.



THE STORY OF CATS.

How a Hunter in Far-Away Africa Caught and Tamed a Baby Leopard.

There were three of the baby leopards, little spotted things about a week old, when Hunter R. H. Summers found them in a thick forest in Africa. As he stumbled upon them, relates the Wide World, he heard an angry growl, and, turning, saw the mother leopard not six feet away, getting ready to spring its head on its paws and its eyes blazing. Knowing that a second's hesitation might cost him his life, he fired, but the wound only made the wild beast angry, and it sprang at him. He jumped to one side, and as the brute rose to make a second spring he placed the muzzle of his gun almost against its head. This time, luckily for him, he succeeded in killing the big animal.

Then he turned to look after the baby leopards. They were about the size then of a three-months-old kitten. One of these had been injured in some way, so that the hunter thought best to kill it, and, taking the fine skin off the big leopard, he put the two little ones in a basket and set off for the camp. The little fellows were very hungry when they were let out at the camp, and the first thing to do was to hunt up some goat's milk for them, which they seemed to like very well. They were too rough to play with any animals but a dog belonging to the hunter, and for a long time these animals were very good friends, although the little leopards were so much trouble to look after that a black boy was hired to take care of them.

At the age of about four weeks the cubs were just like kittens running about over the place, and a great deal of bother to their little nurse. They slept at night with their foster brothers, the puppies, but in the daytime they were busy from morning until night. They climbed on the bed and pulled the blankets to pieces; they drank the cat's milk in the saucer; frightened the life out of the tame monkey; scared the fowls (who nearly died at the very sight of them), and kept the hens from laying for a whole week. But there was one animal around the place they could not get the best of. This was an old ram, and the cubs simply would keep biting his legs to see what they were made of. So one day the ram turned on the cubs and gave one of them injuries from which he afterwards died. Poor little chap. The hunter had him stuffed, but his brother the next day tried to play with him, and when he got through there was not much left but stuffing.

HAVING HIS PICTURE TAKEN.

After that the cub that was left played with the puppies, but he was getting too much for them. The hunter thought about this time that he was big enough to have a name, so he called him "Cats," and he soon got to know it. Cats now turned his attention to a fox terrier who up to this time would not associate with him, but his sudden leap on doggie's back and a sharp nip made doggie know that Cats was now of some importance.

Until now Cats had not had anything to eat but milk, and he thought it was about time for live food. One day his owner saw him following a chicken with that lithe crouch seen so often in a cat that is after a bird, and before he could stop it Cats had sprang upon the poor fowl's back. The scared fowl ran clear around the barnyard, carrying Cats on its back, before it was bitten clear through the neck and died. Cats was not allowed, though, to eat the first kill that he had made. The owner still thought that milk was plenty good enough for him, but when he found that Cats was catching lizards and eating them on the sly, he thought it best to give him some cooked meat.

This would not do, for Cats was longing to kill something. He would not touch the milk or the cooked meat, and to keep him from starving his owner had to let him have a live fowl every day. This Cats would catch and kill himself, tearing out the feathers with his teeth and quickly getting it ready to eat. He would growl and snarl over his meal and look ever so fierce, and if anyone came near him he would take his fowl in his mouth and strike out savagely on both sides with his little paws, which, by the way, had sharp enough claws in them, as the hunter often found to his sorrow.

When he had finished his meal he would come to his master, who would carefully wash his paws, and would be good for another whole day.

Cats is now grown up and in Europe, where he is just about to appear before the public as a performer of most wonderful tricks.

Wanted to Experiment.

"Why, Willie," said his mother one day when they were out walking, "what do you mean by offering a penny to that mule?" "Because," replied the young investigator, "I heard papa say that money makes the mare go, and I want to see if it has the same effect on a mule."—Chicago Record.

BOONE CO., RECORDER.

Wednesday, July 19, 1899.

Advertising Rates:
One inch, one time.....$1.00
Each additional time.....25
Obituaries, Tributes of Respects or notices of a like nature, per inch .50

W. L. RIDDELL, - - Publisher.

We are authorized to announce J. W. KENNEDY, of Union, as a candidate for the Legislature, subject to the action of the Democratic party.

We are authorized to announce BENJAMIN STEPHENS, of Florence, as a candidate for the Legislature, subject to the action of the Democratic party.

Democratic State Ticket.

For Governor,
WILLIAM GOEBEL, of Kenton.

For Lieutenant Governor,
J. C. W. BECKHAM, of Nelson.

For Attorney General,
R. J. BRECKINRIDGE, of Boyle.

For Auditor,
G. G. COULTER, of Graves.

For Treasurer,
S. W. HAGER, of Boyd.

For Secretary of State,
C. B. HILL, of Clark.

For Supt. Public Instruction,
H. V. M'CHESNEY, of Livingston.

For Commissioner of Agriculture,
I. B. NALL, of Jefferson.

For Railroad Commissioner,
FLETCHER DEMPSEY, of Hopkins county.—First District.

C. C. M'CHORD, of Washington county.—Second District.

A. W. HAMILTON, of Montgomery county.—Third District.

For State Senator,
Dr. J. G. FURNISH.

Neighborhood News.

North Bend.

Everyone is almost through threshing.

We are glad to say that Wm. H. Harrison is slowly improving.

Mrs. C. W. Riley was down in this neighborhood several days last week.

Messrs. McNamara, McDonald, Murphy and Williams, of Covington are camping on G. M. Riley's river bar.

Last Wednesday Miss Mary Riley, Miss Clara Harrison and Prof H. L. Harrison, wife and daughter, spent a delightful day with Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Moore.

Erlanger.

James McCormick has taken charge of the bowling alley on Lexington pike.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Buschle were the guests of Mr. Isadore Hagan, last Sunday.

The euchre party given by Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Sexton, Saturday evening, was enjoyed by allage party of invited guests.

The Young Men's Club will give a moonlight picnic at Woodside Park on July 20th. All the young folks invited.

Miss Clara Morcill was surprised, last Sunday, by the arrival of fifteen young lady friends from Cincinnati, who enjoyed the day.

Constance.

H. Kottmeyer is happy—it's a boy.

Blackberry pickers are arriving daily.

Miss Sadie Zimmer is still unable to leave her bed.

Miss Phoebe Price is visiting her sister, Mrs. W. B. Reeves.

B. F. Zimmer, delegate to the Republican convention, has returned.

The work of dredging Cullum's bar has begun and coal gatheres are glad.

The Riverside Rolling Mill has shut down, throwing over 100 men out of employment.

The Jones Bros.' plant across the river has put on a night crew, and now we have but few idle men in town.

Capt. Chas. Kottmeyer has sent his famous trotting horse, Raymond, to Madison, Ind., for his daughter, Mrs. A. H. McGlasson, to drive.

Gunpowder.

A splendid rain fell here, last Sunday night.

W. A. Carpenter, of Covington, was the guest of W. A. Tanner, Sunday.

Dave Beall and Robt. Bradford, of Hebron, were in our burg, Thursday.

Hay harvest is about over and we have a fair crop and the quality is very good.

Mrs. Amanda Howe and son, Schuler, of Hamilton, Ohio, are visiting relatives here.

We are sorry to report the misfortune of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Starr, who lost their infant child, last Sunday.

Misses Rouse, two of the accomplished daughters of Mr. Jacob Rouse, of Missouri, are guests of M. P. Barlow.

Glendora, the little daughter of J. H. Tanner, who has been quite sick for several weeks with malaria, is improving slowly.

Tony Bentler is in this vicinity with his threshing machine, and is doing excellent work. The yield of wheat is small compared with last year.

Hathaway.

M. W. Neal purchased a horse for his daughter, last week.

Farmers say that there is a good crop of tobacco worms now.

Hay harvest was finished up last week, with a good week for the business.

Mrs. Sarah White and Mrs. J. W. Kelly were the guests of Etta Clements, last Thursday.

Mrs. Vina White and Mrs. Jamie Stephens were the pleasant guests of Mrs. Bettie Allen, last Thursday.

Misses Minnie Sullivan and Mary Wells were visiting in the Woolper neighborhood, last Friday.

Quite a crowd from near Union and Florence was in this vicinity, several days last week, picking blackberries.

A great many of the young people of this neighborhood are attending the protracted meeting at Bellevue.

Mrs. Fannie Riley, Mrs. Josie Riley, Mrs. Lucian Stephens, Mrs. Lizzie Mason, Mrs. T. J. Stephens, Miss Minnie Sullivan, and Cynthia White were the pleasant guests of Mrs. Cynthia Mason and Mrs. G. L. Smith, last Tuesday.

Gasburg.

We nominate Wat Hardin to succeed Deboe in the U. S. Senate.

Col. Bill Bryant, of Lawrenceburg, was buying cattle here, last week.

Nick Schwartz, of Aurora, is bossing for Frank Hartman on his Split Rock farm.

A Mr. Sparks and wife, of Cincinnati, were tuning pianos in this vicinity, last week.

Wheat all threshed—yield very disappointing—not more than 6 or 7 bus. per acre on an average.

Melons will begin ripening in about two weeks. The prospects for a big yield were never better.

Your Petersburg correspondent asks in your last issue, "what kind of a Democrat is the fellow that attended the mass meeting and bollered himself hoarse for Hardin and then says he will not vote for Goebel?" We reply that he is as good a Democrat, if not a better one, than the fellow that for months was denouncing Goebel as the coldest man he ever met, and saying he would not vote for him for anything, thus assisting in building up the determined opposition to him among his friends and neighbors, and then going over to him (Goebel) at the 11th hour and lining up with a gang that he has been denouncing for years, and then making flings at the large and respectable body of Democrats who will not support Goebel.

Petersburg.

Some of our citizens are working at the Lawrenceburg brick yards at $1.25 per day.

The kissing bug has made its appearance here. His bugship entertained Messrs. Lafe Helms and Andrew Buchanan royally, the other night.

Mrs. Mary McNeely, accompanied by her grandson, Master Wallace McNeely both of this city, have returned from a six month's visit at Memphis, Tenn.

E. P. Berkshire has sold his interest in the drug store to his partner, Mr. Buchanan, and will leave for Brooklyn, N. Y., next week. Gene is one of those elegant, nice fellows we have always admired. A true friend and a gentleman all over. His numerous friends regret to see him leave, but the old saw goes, "the best of friends must some time part."

Here is a letter from a Petersburg boy in the U. S. Navy, stationed at Mares Island, California, dated July 1, and written to Everett Helms:

"My Dear Friend:—Here I am, 40 thousand miles away from home and no 'long green to chew,' but I can hardly express how well pleased I am, and I say I believe I speak the sentiments of Claud and Adam, too. We are a jolly crowd, and all happy and contented. Everything is all and more than we expected. Our officers are gentlemen and treat us as such. We have good beds and plenty to eat. We drill from 8:30 to 10:30 a. m., and prepare for roll-call twice a day. We have (each) three uniforms, two blues and one white. The ship we are on is the U. S. Independence. She is a fine boat, was built in 1814, and has not moved from her present place since 1854, but has served as a receiving and training ship for boys. There is not an orchestra in Cincinnati that compares with the one we have on our ship.

"I was up in the Navy Yard and saw all the old and new style guns and cannons. The yards are large and the workmen are busy building all sorts of vessels. I saw the Hartford and think she is a beauty. She will be ready for depart by the last of September or the first of October. Then we will board her and sail for New York, where she will be put in tip-top shape. Then she will sail for Paris, France, with nothing but Americans on board. Any boy is a fool for laying around Petersburg, waiting for something to turn up, when they have a chance like this. We are receiving an education and at the same time getting good, comfortable living. There are five boys from Boone county (the garden spot of the world) in our gang. A Mr. Chambers and a Mr. Holder from Walton, Adam Vesenmire, Claud Holton and myself from Petersburg.

"Well, Everett, I will close. My advice to any and all young men is to join the Navy. In conclusion will say, Everett, if you want a position as cornet player in the band, you can get it. Good musicians are not so numerous as you'd think. You can get $35 a month, board and clothes. Give my regards to all. Your old and true friend,

GEO. W. WEINDEL."

The cemetery needs mowing again.

Blackberries 25 cents a bucket and firm.

Miss Laura Akin has a severe attack of scarlet fever.

Miss Anna Weindel is entertaining friends from the city.

Miss Fannie Cave has returned from a visit to Indianapolis.

Watermelons are setting nicely, and will be ripe in three weeks.

Mrs. Webb Rogers, of Bellevue, was visiting her grandmother here, Sunday.

Miss Lena Alden, of Washington, D. C., is visiting her brother and sisters here.

The big boats are all in and out on schedule time, notwithstanding low water.

Capt. N. B. McNeely and family, of New Orleans, are visiting the Captain's sisters here.

Capts. Tim and Ed Smith say they never had as poor luck fishing as they are now having.

Oscar Botts, a resident of the wild and woolly West, is the guest of John M. Botts and family.

Miss Carrie Sebree, of Cincinnati, was here, Sunday, visiting the scenes of her childhood.

Lewis Terrill has 1,200 pear trees loaded with the luscious fruit. Most of the trees are Kiefers.

W. T. Grant, who is known in this County as Tariff Tom, is proprietor of the Palace Hotel, Louisville.

The Gym Bicycle Club, of Cincinnati, made the run here Sunday, and was entertained by Mr. and Mrs. Jno. Pease.

The Red Nose Fishing and Beer Club, of Cincinnati, is camping on the Indiana side, opposite here. It has 8 tents and 2 cooks.

Co. Supt. Voshell was here Friday night, and announced that the institute would be held in Gordon's Hall, beginning August 14.

Fate seems to be following Aille Delph. A few weeks ago his son-in-law was drowned, and week before last his daughter, Mrs. Ollie Jones, died of consumption.

The deal for the Boone County Distilling Company's plant here, was closed in New York, Thursday, and the transfer will be made in the next ten days. Price, $500,000.

"Taters," 35 cents a bushel and still going, and at digging time they can be bought at 20 cents. B. J. Akin dug 250 bushels and put them in a car at Aurora for 40 cents a bushel.

One of the most terrific rain and thunder storms that ever visited this section, prevailed here about 8 o'clock Sunday night. There was some hail, but not enough to do much damage.

During those nice moonlight nights recently, the juvenile portion of Coontown, gathered in an up-town alley, and sang plantation songs, and indulged in cake-walks. These are characteristics of that race.

The printer made us say Hensly, last week, when the manuscript read Horsley. Mrs. Pauline Appleton knew Mr. Horsley when he operated the Aurora ferry. He established the first ferry at that point.

The Bellevue correspondent tells of his exploits with rod and gun, and of chasing craw-fish and tadpoles in the marshy places on Middle Creek and Woolper, but when he runs afoul of a young buzzard he is mystified.

Items of news for this column, left with Elmer McWethy, at Berkshire & McWethy's store, will be sent to the Recorder. Sign your names and give us news. We could fill the waste basket every week, with baby's got a tooth, or Miss So-and-So was bitten by a Kissing-bug, last night.

Bellevue.

Farmers are busy in their hay harvest.

Nat Carpenter has been hauling corn from Sid Stephens'.

Bob Patterson is assisting John Presser to build John Rogers' house.

Col. Crisler and family, of Burlington, attended church here Sunday.

Mrs. Emma Pate and daughter, of Burlington, were visiting here, Sunday.

Mrs. Lucy Akin, of McVille, spent several days, with Mrs. J. L. Lawell last week.

Mrs. Minnie Carpenter and two of her cousins were visiting here last Saturday.

Several of the colored population from here attended church at Bugiington Sunday.

Mrs. Susie Sanders, nee McIntyre, of Sanders, Carroll county, is visiting friends here.

Mrs. Josie Hartman and children, of Washington, Territory, are visiting Mrs. Schwartz.

A couple of the daughters of John T. Conly, of Gallatin county, are visiting relatives here.

Samuel Wingate and wife, of Waterloo, were visiting their son, Scott, of this place, last Sunday.

J. M. Birkie and wife spent last Saturday and Sunday with Mrs. Birkie's parents near Burlington.

Mrs. Kate Illey, of Erlanger, returned home, last Thursday, after a visit of several days among friends here.

Bro. Watkins, assisted by Bro. Hawkins, of Lexington, is conducting a protracted meeting at the Christian church.

Mrs. John E. Walton and her daughter, Mrs. Riggs, of Erlanger were the guests of James Rogers and wife, several days last week.

We have a file of the RECORDER for several years back, and it settles many disputes. Dr. Cowen, of Rabbit Hash, called on us for an old copy a few days ago.

Richwood.

Mr. Batty Long is on the sick list.

John Delahanty was in Florence, last Saturday.

Miss Edith Lancaster is attending Commercial College in Cincinnati.

Columbus Bedinger has been doing some carpenter work the past week.

Mrs. Harvey has been on the sick list for several days, but is getting better.

A. L. Lancaster has gone to Grant county, where he will engage in butchering.

Harry Solen returned home after spending a few days helping his brother in-law, John Dorsey, of Erlanger.

Mrs. PolityCluster, aged 91, broke her leg about a week ago, and after intense suffering, died last Saturday morning.

Frank Clark says that he has seen a hideous object, dressed in white, prowling about the old Hockey house on Lancaster lane. It makes its appearance about 9 p. m. This old log house is probably one of the oldest in the county, and many important events took place under its roof during the early history of Boone county.

Walton.

The Rolling Bear Show is encamped in Arnold's Grove and has been giving performances during the past week.

Sunday night Shelves entered the house of Mrs. Eliza Arnold by a rear window, and making their way through her rooms to those occupied by Mr. John Watson's family, took Watson's pantaloons and about $10 or $15 in money.

Mr. H. F. Sawyer, two years ago, put 26 ewes on his Dividing Ridge, Pendleton County farm. Last week he sold to J. A. Sanders 52 head for $175, leaving the same number on the farm with which he commenced in 1897. He had a choice lamb slaughtered and dressed for his own and neighbor's use. He says it's the easiest money he has made for a long time.

Geo. Sauders was hauling hay one day last week, when he fell from the load and dislocated his shoulder. Dr. Price Mefcalf was called and in a neat and scientific manner set the dislocation, and Mr. Sanders is as easy and comfortable as the nature of the injury admits. Mr. Sanders is a hard worker and his misfortune excites the sympathy of the community. It was Dr. Metcalf's first call as a surgeon and he acquitted himself handsomely.

"Last year's faculty and alumni of the Walton Academy were capitally entertained by Miss Mabel Bagby, at supper on Saturday evening. Mr. and Mrs. S. H. Myers, Prof. C. F. Prior, Misses Effie Lermond and Edna Ransler and Mr. Leon Prior; also Mrs. David Bagby and two children, of Texas, were present. It was a very pleasant reunion for all the parties as they may never have the opportunity of being together again so long."

The Walton ball players have not been showing up in a brilliant manner, and concluding that their bad playing was owing to something outside of their intrinsic individual merits, have formed a regular organization with Jas. Metcalf for manager, to be known as the Walton base ball team. A team it is sure enough: C. Sawyers, Catcher, Fuillove, Pitcher; Fink, 1st base and captain; Finnell, 2d base; B. Noell, 3rd base; H. Noell, short stop; Crowe, right fielder; Julius Sawyers, center and King left fielder. S. Steely and F. Peak, reserves.

A Card.

Many friends wonder why there has been no article from me in the Recorder in regard to matters of recent controversy. I was at first waiting for all the returns and while I was east the announcement was made that no more articles would be admitted. Now at advertising rates I insert this card to say a few things that seem necessary.

I had no intention of misstating the Baptist position on the communion question. I can state my own with confidence. It is the Lord's table and it is for the Lord's people and they are all invited to partake without regard to the church of their membership as the responsibility rests between the individual and God.

Bro. Utz quotes that eminent theologian (?) Noah Webster to prove that Lutherans teach consubstantiation but he quotes only so much as suits his purpose and like a shrewd lawyer stops at the critical point. Even Webster admits it "was called consubstantiation by non-Lutheran writers." Even Webster knew that the Lutheran theologians denied holding consubstantiation though he claimed Luther believed it. But the writer has for some time discarded Webster even as dictionary for with all its revisions it is not strictly up-to-date. The standard Dictionary which is now used by thousands of clergymen and others who have bought it in preference to Webster or in addition to Webster says: Consubstantiation is the theory of the substantial union of the body and blood of our Lord with the bread and wine after their consecration in the Eucharist: erroneously applied to the Lutherian doctrine of the real presence, the theologians of that communion having uniformly denied that any change occurs in the elements.

Bro. Utz makes light of my remarks about the Presbyterian view of the sacrament and to help his notion along quotes a few lines from Albert Barnes' commentary. Dr. Barnes was a pious man and wrote a very acceptable commentary for Sunday school teachers and others who want something without any pretense of being critical. The Presbyterian church suspended him for a time from the ministry because of unsound teaching. It is certainly very surprising to have a man of such theological standing in his own church quoted by anybody as Presbyterian authority. A brief quotation from John Calvin is far from satisfactory and I wish all interested could read the entire seventeenth chapter of book four of his "Institutes of the Christian Religion." He says: "The principal object of the sacrament therefore, is not to present us the body of Christ, simply and of itself, any ulterior consideration, but rather to seal and confirm that promise where he declares that his "flesh is meat indeed and his blood drink indeed" by which we are nourished to eternal life; where he affirms that he is the "bread of life" and that "that eateth of this bread shall live for ever." In part seven of this chapter he says "Nor am I satisfied with those persons, who after having acknowledged that we have some communion with Christ, when they mean to describe it, represent us merely as partakings of his spirit, but make no mention of his flesh and blood." Hodge and other modern theologians who have never been tried for heresy will also sustain our former contention.

The suggestion is made that oral debate might straighten matters out. It would only muddle them worse. I have not sought controversy. I simply desired to show how there had been some misrepresentation. I hoped that at least such a word as I could write would make brethren a little cautious about publishing broadcast statements unverified and unverifiable. But my hope has been disappointed. Another meeting was held later at Bellevue, and another report was published with the same careless regard for facts and feelings. To illustrate what I mean, among other wild, historical statements it is said that John Calvin founded the Presbyterian church in 1516. It is commonly conceded that Calvin was born in 1509. He must have been a precocious child indeed, to found a great church, when he was seven years old. Bro. Utz does not forget the fact that he was once a member of the Lutheran church himself, and that when he grew older and knew better, he joined the Baptist church. Rev. Avery M. Charple, of Indianapolis, was for 21 years a Baptist minister, but he has renounced his Protestant faith and become a Catholic. We do not mean to insinuate that Bro. Utz is headed in the same direction, but we do mean to say that such occasional changes mean little and prove nothing. It is a man's right to change when he desires, it is his duty to do so when he sees he is in error. But one man's change does not affect another man's duty. That ought to be prompted by higher considerations.

Now, I am entirely done with this matter and method. Free columns or paid, oral or written, I have nothing further to say. Neither accusation nor playing logomachy with history shall tempt me further. I prefer constructive work and I propose to make a single effort to practice the gospel I have been called to preach, and when others have settled the different issues at stake by controversy, I will accept the result and live with joy in the era of universal peace. H. MAX LENTZ.

[adv.]

Fine rain throughout the county Sunday afternoon and at night.

LAWRENCEBURG FAIR

Lawrenceburg, Indiana,

AUG. 22, 23, 24, 25 & 26,

BABY SHOW every day.

A full program of RACES each day.

Will have the best line of LIVE STOCK ever seen on their grounds.

For information address

H. L. NOWLIN, Secretary,
Guilford, Indiana.

GEO. W. HILL & CO.,
Grocers, Commission and SEED Merchants.
Tested Field and Garden Seeds.
Finest Brands and Grades of FERTILIZERS, LIME, CEMENT AND SALT.
Largest and Best Stock of
CROCERIES IN THE CITY.
Sole Agents for the Celebrated
RARUS and CEM Brands of FLOUR.
When in the City it will pay you to come and see us.
27 & 29 Pike Street, (Phone 4055.) 26 & 28 W. Seventh Street,
COVINGTON, KENTUCKY.

JOHN ALLISON,

UNDER- EMBAL-
TAKER MER,
Corner Pike & Russell Streets,
COVINGTON, - - KENTUCKY.
INDEPENDENT OF UNDERTAKERS' UNION.

Order Spring Suits NOW

And we will make them up artistically and ready for you promptly on time. We have

Over Five Hundred Styles

Of Spring and Summer Woolens to Select from. They come direct from the looms of foreign and domestic manufacturers, and surpass in elegance and variety anything ever shown in Covington. In the assortment are many exclusive patterns—goods that cannot be duplicated by any other establishment in this city. Keep these facts in mind and place your order for a stylish suit with us. We promise you a faultless fit, the proper cut, and a price that will not be more than you can afford to pay.

H. F. BLASE,
535 Madison Avenue,
COVINGTON, - - KENTUCKY

H. F. BLASE

A Word to the Public
MY STOCK OF
Dry Goods, Notions,
AND LADIES' AND GENTS'
TOILET ARTICLES
for the Spring Trade has been received, and to be appreciated must be seen. Fresh
DRUGS AND GROCERIES
received daily. A large stock of
PAINTS & OILS
on hand at all times. All Goods New and Clean, and are sold at the
LOWEST CASH PRICES.
GIVE ME A CALL
J. G. OELSNER, Florence, Ky.

BEAUMONT COLLEGE HARRODSBURG, KY.
Strongest Southern Girls' School Curriculum, perhaps; in essentials, the peer of any elsewhere. Six languages, without extra charge. Piano and Organ Director, Mus. Doct., Oxon. String Music Director, Grad. Roy. Col. of Music, Munich. Superb advantages in Art and in Elocution. Grounds (35 acres) unsurpassed in America for beauty. Its students have represented more than 30 States. Refined home. Number limited. Terms reasonable. TH. SMITH, A. M., Pres. (Alumnus of Univ. of Va.)

PROGRAM

FOR

Room [illegible] ember, July 18, '99.

The [illegible]renceburg Fair

TO BE HELD AT

LAW[illegible]BURG, INDIANA,

AUGUST [illegible] 23, 24, 25, 26, 1899.

Officers.

W. H. O[illegible] ..... President

VICTOR [illegible]NG ..... Vice President

CHAS. S[illegible] ..... Treasurer

H. L. NO[illegible] ..... Secretary

Directors.

GEORGE [illegible] A. E. NOWLIN,

W. H. O[illegible] THOS NESS,

CHAS SCHE[illegible] JOHN N. FOX,

J. RIEF, A. D. COOK,

F. EBERHA[illegible] VIC OBERTING.

Superintendents of Grounds.

VIC OBERTI[illegible] GEORGE KUHL.

JOHN N. FOX,

Superintendent of Privileges.

J. RIEF,

Superintendent of Stables.

JOHN N. FOX.

ANNOUNCEMENT

The Lawrenceburg Fair Association in announcing its

FIRST ANNUAL FAIR,

To be held on its grounds in Lawrenceburg, Ind., on Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday, August 22, 23, 24, 25 and 26, 1899, desires to call your attention to the list of liberal Premiums offered, and extends a cordial invitation to all Industries to come, with a full representation, and meet each other in honorable competition.

Competition is open to the world.

The Grounds.

The Grounds are situated inside and adjoining the City of Lawrenceburg, are large, beautiful and commodious, containing 50 acres; are well shaded, have an ample supply of good water and furnish plenty of room for teams and vehicles, so that visitors to the Fair will have every facility for enjoying themselves in regular picnic style. Stalls, sheds and pens are provided for the accommodation of exhibitors. The association has expended a large amount on improvements to buildings, time track fences etc., until they have everything second to no association in the state. A large and commodious amphitheater has been built and everything done for the convenience and comfort of the people.

The Speed Ring.

Special attention is called to our Time Track which we feel warranted in saying is the best half mile track in the state—60 feet wide, of good shape, well graded, securely fenced, and all in full view of the spectators.

City of Lawrenceburg.

Exhibitors and visitors from a distance will find Lawrenceburg a pleasant city to visit on account of her good railroad connection, good hotels, good livery stables and many other attractions.

GENERAL REGULATIONS.

1. Each day's Exhibition will commence promptly at 9 o'clock a. m.

2. The officers of the fair will take every precaution in their power for the preservation of stock and articles on exhibition after their arrival and arrangement on the grounds, but will not be responsible for any loss or damage that may occur.

3. Exhibitors must keep their stock will be required to keep their stalls and pens in good order and accessible to visitors at all reasonable hours during the Fair.

4. The premiums will be paid by the Treasurer on the order of the Secretary. Premiums not claimed on the last of November succeeding the Fair shall be considered forfeited and revert to the funds have

5. All persons wishing to enter the Fair Grounds for [illegible] show, exhibitions, booths or privileges [illegible] eating stands, confectionery, [illegible] required to make a contract with the [illegible] Superintendent of Privileges. All privileges [illegible] for cash. The money must be paid [illegible] evening at 5 o'clock. No deviation [illegible] rule.

6. Pl[illegible]s before [illegible]S GUARANTEED.

[illegible] be solicited to exhibit anything worthy of public attention. [illegible] specimens, natural curiosities, fancy articles or goods of [illegible]

[illegible] of the respective classes [illegible] such non-enumerated articles [illegible] may deem worthy of favorable mention. [illegible]tries will be made in a miscellaneous [illegible] Machinery, mechanical and agricultural [illegible]ements are especially solicited.

9. The [illegible] of exhibitors must not be displayed on [illegible] competing for premiums until after the [illegible] have been made in their respective [illegible] Committees should inspect the articles [illegible] out knowing the parties concerned to [illegible] inspection.

10. The Directors have appointed Superintendents of the several classes and their names [illegible] the head of the respective classes [illegible]. It shall be the duty of [illegible] Superintendents of Classes to have charge of [illegible] over which they are respectively [illegible] to select and assemble the awarding [illegible] committees, and see that a fair exhibition [illegible] made and an impartial award rendered. [illegible] All premium stock except [illegible] will [illegible] in the grand [illegible] ... $1 for each double [illegible] ... 25 cents. No [illegible] ... will pass for. Stall tickets are not transferable.

9. No [illegible] will be allowed to see the entry book until the close of the class which they wish to examine.

AWARDING COMMITTEES.

1. All Judges and awarding Committees must be wholly disinterested, directly and indirectly, in the division in which they have a voice.

2. Exhibitors must be promptly on time at the call of the Marshal and according to the published program.

3. No interference or communication with the Judges, or consultation between the Judges themselves, will be allowed. The Judges will examine and mark separately, then compare notes, and decide by majority.

4. When the Judges have carefully examined all articles entered for a premium and made their decision, the Superintendent of the class will properly mark committee books, and attach blue ribbons or cards to articles for the first premium and red ribbons or cards for the second premium. As a compliment to special merit they may attach a special ribbon, which indicates no premium.

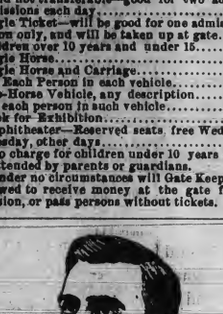
5. All articles competing for premiums must possess more than ordinary merit; otherwise there will be no premium awarded, though there be no competitions.

6. Any Officer, Committee or Member of the Board, giving a false return, or in any way willfully violating any of the rules for the purpose of aiding or securing to themselves or any other person a premium, shall be deemed guilty of obtaining money under false pretenses, and shall be reprimanded by the President or expelled from the Board.

The awarding Committees who are to pass judgment on animals or articles not to be shown in the ring will commence work promptly at 10 o'clock on Thursday and go through the entire list as rapidly as possible, consistent with justice to exhibitors—the order of examination to follow the order of the premium list.

PROTESTS.

Indiana State Fair rules to govern.



ADMISSION.

The gates will be opened at 7 o'clock a. m. on each day. At that time every officer and employe is required to be at his post.

Season Ticket—good for one person only and not transferable—good for two admissions each day	$1 00
Single Ticket—will be good for one admission only, and will be taken up at gate	25
Children over 10 years and under 15	10
Single Horse	10
Single Horse and Carriage	15
For Each Person in such vehicle	25
Two-Horse Vehicle, any description	25
For each person in such vehicle	25
Stock for Exhibition	Free
Amphitheater—Reserved seats free Wednesday, other days	10

No charge for children under 10 years of age if attended by parents or guardians.

Under no circumstances will Gate Keepers be allowed to receive money at the gate for admission, or pass persons without tickets.

W. H. O'BRIEN, President.

Program.

Monday and Tuesday.

Entries and arrangements.

Wednesday.

10:00 a. m.—Exibition of Mules on track in front of the grand stand. Horses for draft.
1:30 p. m.—County Trot and Pace.

Thursday.

9:30 a. m.—Cattle, Saddle Horses, Hogs, Poultry.
1:30 p. m.—2:30 Trot, mile heat. Half-mile and repeat Running Race.

Friday.

9:30 a. m.—Horses for General Purpose. Sheep. Sweepstakes on Cattle. Sweepstakes on Stallions and Mares.
1:30 p. m.—3:50 Trot. Free for all Pace. Three-fourths of a Mile Running Race.

Saturday—Kentucky Day.

9:30 a. m.—Sweepstakes on Horses. Matched Horses. Horses for Light Harness.
1:30 p. m.—2:21 Trot. 2:30 Pace. One mile and repeat Running Race.

The Executive Committee reserves the right to change this published program when the interests of the Association or rights of the exhibitors require such change.

TRANSPORTATION.

Arrangements for cheap freight on stock and excursion rates to Lawrenceburg will be made on the B. & O. S. W. and C. C. C. and St. L. railroads. For further particulars in regard to excursion rates see small bills which will be issued hereafter.

SPEED DEPARTMENT.

Premium List.

HORSE DEPARTMENT.

ENTRANCE FEE 10 PER CENT OF 1ST PREMIUM.

JOHN N. FOX, Superintendent.

Horses may be entered up till 9 a. m. of the day their rings are called.

CLASS B—HORSES FOR HEAVY DRAFT.

Wednesday—10 a. m.

		Premiums 1st	2nd
1	Stallion, any age	$10 00	$5 00
2	Mare, any age	10 00	5 00
3	Gelding, any age	10 00	5 00

CLASS C—SADDLE HORSES.

Thursday—9:30 a. m.

1	Stallion 4 years old and over	10 00	5 00
2	Stallions under 4 years old	5 00	3 00
3	Mare 4 years old and over	5 00	3 00
4	Mare under 4 years old	5 00	3 00
5	Gelding any age	5 00	3 00

CLASS D—HORSES FOR GENERAL PURPOSE.

Friday—10 a. m.

1	Stallion 4 years old and over	10 00	5 00
2	Stallion 3 years old and under 4	5 00	3 00
3	Stallion 2 year old and under 3	5 00	3 00
4	Yearling stallion	5 00	3 00
5	Sucking stallion	5 00	3 00
6	Mare 4 years old and over	5 00	3 00
7	Mare 3 years old and under 4	5 00	3 00
8	Mare 2 years old and under 3	5 00	3 00
9	Yearling Mare	5 00	3 00
10	Sucking Mare	5 00	3 00
11	Gelding 4 years old and over	5 00	3 00
12	Gelding under 4 years	5 00	3 00

CLASS E—HORSES FOR LIGHT HARNESS.

Saturday—10 a. m.

1	Stallion 4 years old and over	12 00	6 00
2	Stallion 3 years old and under 4	8 00	4 00
3	Stallions 2 years old and under 3	8 00	4 00
4	Stal ion 1 year old and under 2	4 00	2 00
5	Suckling stallion	4 00	2 00
6	Mare 4 years old and over	8 00	4 00
7	Mare 3 years old and under 4	6 00	3 00
8	Mare 2 years old and under 3	4 00	2 00
9	Mare 1 year old and under 2	4 00	2 00
10	Suckling mare	4 00	2 00
11	Gelding 4 years old and over	8 00	4 00
12	Gelding under 4 years	8 00	4 00

N. B.—Any horse taking 1st premium will be ineligible to show in any other class except sweepstakes.

CLASS F—MATCHED HORSES.

Saturday—11 a. m.

1 One pair matched regardless of age or sex 10 00 5 00
Award on matches will be made with reference to color size and action.

CLASS G—GENERAL PURPOSE.

Sweepstakes on Stallions and Mares.

Friday—11 a. m.

1	Stallion, exhibiting two or more of his colts	$10 00
2	Brood mare, exhibiting two or more of her colts	10 00
3	Suckling colt, regardless of sex	10 00

CLASS H—MULES.

Wednesday—11 a. m.

1	Mules 3 years old and over	$5 00	4 00

CATTLE DEPARTMENT.

ENTRANCE FEE 10 PER CENT OF 1ST PREMIUM.

F EBERHART, Superintendent.

Cows entered as breeding cattle must have had a living calf within a year.

CLASS I—BEEF BREED.

1.	Bull 3 years old and over	$10 00	$5 00
2.	Bull 2 years old and under 3	8 00	4 00
3.	Bull 1 year old and under 2	4 00	2 00
4.	Bull under 1 year	4 00	2 00
5.	Cow 3 years old or over	8 00	4 00
6.	Cow 2 years old and under 3	4 00	2 00
7.	Heifer 1 year old and under 2	4 00	2 00
8.	Heifer calf under 1 year	4 00	2 00

CLASS J—SWEEPSTAKES ON CATTLE.

1.	Bull any age	$10 00
2.	Cow any age	5 00

CLASS K—HERDS OF CATTLE.

1. Herd of Cattle not less than 5 head—1 bull, 4 cows 2 heifers $20 00 $10 00

Ten per cent of purse entrance required in this class, to be paid when entrance is made. Three entries required.

SHEEP DEPARTMENT.

ENTRANCE FEE 10 PER CENT OF 1ST PREMIUM.

F EBERHART, Superintendent.

Rule 1—All ewes 2 years old or over must have had a living lamb.

Rule 2—All sheep must have been closely shorn not earlier than April 1, 1899.

CLASS L—MIDDLE WOOL SHEEP.

Dorset, Southdown, Oxfordshire Shropshire Hampshire

1	Buck 2 years old and over	$5 00	$3 00
2	Buck under 2 years and over 1	4 00	2 00
3	Buck Lamb	3 00	1 50
4	Ewe 2 years old and over	5 00	3 00
5	Ewe under 2 years and over 1	4 00	2 00
6	Ewe Lamb	3 00	1 50

CLASS M—LONG WOOL SHEEP.

Cotswold, Leicester and Lincoln.

1	Buck 2 years old and over	$5 00	$3 00
2	Buck under 2 years and over 1	4 00	2 00
3	Buck Lamb	3 00	1 50
4	Ewe 2 years old and over	5 00	3 00
5	Ewe under 2 years and over 1	4 00	2 00
6	Ewe Lamb	3 00	1 50

CLASS N—SWEEPSTAKES ON SHEEP.

1	Buck any age or breed	$5 00
2	Ewe any age or breed	5 00
3	Best herd of any age or breed, to consist of 1 buck and 4 ewes all of one breed	10 00

SWINE DPARTMENT.

ENTRANCE FEE 10 PER CENT OF 1ST PREMIUM.

F EBERHART, Superintendent.

Rule 1—All stock must be registered or entitled to registry.

Rule—All sows 2 years old or over must have farrowed a litter of living pigs.

Rule 3—The new law in regard to swine disease will be enforced.

CLASS O—SWINE ELEGIBLE TO RECORD.

1.	Boar 1 year old and over	$5 00	$3 00
2.	Boar under 1 year old	5 00	3 00
3.	Sow 1 year old and over	5 00	3 00
4.	Sow under 1 year old	5 00	3 00
5.	Sow and litter of pigs	5 00	3 00
6.	Boar, any age	5 00	3 00
7.	Sow, any age	5 00	3 00
8.	Boar and 3 sows, any age	5 00	3 00
9.	Boar and 3 sows, under 1 year	5 00	3 00
10.	Boar and 3 sows, under 6 months	5 00	3 00
11.	Sow and litter of pigs	5 00	3 00
12.	Sow and litter of pigs	5 00	3 00
13.	Sow and litter of pigs	5 00	3 00
14.	Sow and litter of pigs	5 00	3 00
15.	Sow and litter of pigs	5 00	3 00
16.	Sow and litter of pigs	5 00	3 00
17.	Sow and litter of pigs	5 00	3 00
18.	Sow and litter of pigs	5 00	3 00
19.	Sow and litter of pigs	5 00	3 00
20.	Sow and litter of pigs	5 00	3 00
21.	Sow and litter of pigs	5 00	3 00
22.	Sow and litter of pigs	5 00	3 00
23.	Sow and litter of pigs	5 00	3 00
24.	Collection of Poultry not less than 5 varieties	5 00	3 00

POULTRY RULES.

1. Stock must be entered in the name of the actual owner.

2. Entries shall be by pairs.

3. Poultry showing symptoms of disease will be excluded from the exhibition.

4. No stock can be moved from the exhibition until the close of the fair, except by consent of the President.

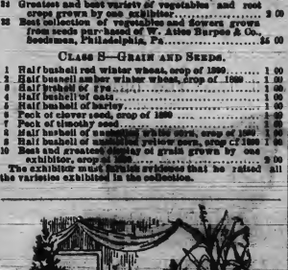
5. The new American Standard of Excellence shall be the main guide of the expert.

6. No entries shall be made after Tuesday.

AGRICULTURAL DEPARTMENT.

TEN PER CENT DEDUCTED FROM ALL PREMIUMS.

T. NESS Superintendent.



CLASS E—VEGETABLE AND ROOT CROPS.

1	Quarter peck soup beans	75
2	Quarter peck lima beans	75
3	Peck table beans	75
4	Half dozen stalks of corn	75
5	Half dozen early cabbage	75
6	Half dozen late cabbage	75
7	Half peck table carrots	75
8	Half dozen cauliflower	75
9	Two dozen green table beets	75
10	One hundred cucumbers for pickles, small	75
11	One dozen ears of sweet corn	75
12	Best collection 4 sweet corn, not less than four varieties	1 00
13	One dozen celery	75
14	Half dozen egg plants	75
15	Three nutmeg melons	75
16	Three watermelons	75
17	Half peck white onions	75
18	Half Peck Red or yellow onions	75
19	One dozen parsnips	75
20	One dozen mangel parsnips	75
21	Half peck peas, in pod	75
22	One bunch rhubarb	75
23	One dozen radishes	75
24	One-fourth dozen squashes	75
25	Half peck tomatoes	75
26	Half peck tomatoes	75
27	One peck ruta-bagas	75
28	One peck turnips	75
29	One peck late potatoes	75
30	Collection 1 of vegetables consisting of not less than 5 varieties and not less than 1 peck of each variety	1 00
31	Peck sweet potatoes	75
32	Greatest and best variety of vegetables and root crops grown by one exhibitor	3 00
33	Best collection of vegetables and flowers grown from seeds purchased of W. Atlee Burpee & Co. Seedsmen, Philadelphia, Pa	$5 00

CLASS S—GRAIN AND SEEDS.

1	Half bushell red winter wheat, crop of 1899	1 00
2	Half bushell amber winter wheat, crop of 1899	1 00
3	Half bushel of rye	1 00
4	Half bushell of oats	1 00
5	Half bushell of barley	1 00
6	Peck of clover seed, crop of 1899	2 00
7	Peck of timothy seed	2 00
8	Half bushell of sorghum, in bird work, crop of 1899	1 00
9	Half bushell of sorghum, yellow corn, crop of 1899	1 00
10	Best and greatest display of grain grown by one exhibitor, crop of 1899	3 00

The exhibitor must furnish evidence that he raised all the varieties exhibited in the collection.

HORTICLTURAL DEPARTMENT.

TEN PER CENT DEDUCTED FROM ALL PREMIUMS.

T. NESS, Superintendent.

CLASS T—FRUIT.

1	Best and greatest variety of summer apples	2 00
2	Best and greatest variety of winter apples	3 00
3	Best and greatest variety of apples raised by one exhibitor	3 00
4	Best single variety peaches	1 00
5	Best and greatest variety peaches raised by one exhibitor	2 00
7	Best single variety plums	1 00
8	Best display and greatest variety plums raised by one exhibitor	2 00
9	Best single variety pears	1 00
10	Best display and greatest variety pears raised by one person	2 00
11	Best four dozen quinces	1 00
12	Best display and greatest variety fruit, raised by one exhibitor	3 00
13	Best display and greatest variety grapes, not less than 5 kinds	3 00

All varieties to be properly named and distinctly labelled. All fruits to be grown by one exhibitor.

MECHANICAL DEPARTMENT.

T. NESS, Superintendent.

CLASS U—FARM IMPLEMENTS AND MACHINERY.

1. Greatest and best display $25 00

Exhibitors in this class having five machines or implements will be entitled to a pass for one person.

CLASS V—CARRIAGES, BUGGIES, ETC.

1	Four-passenger	Card
2	Top phaeton	"
3	Top buggy	"
4	Open buggy	"
5	Light road wagon	"
6	Elliptic spring, two seat wagon	"
7	Platform spring wagon	"
8	Unfinished buggy (rough)	"

CLASS W—MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS, SEWING MACHINES, ETC.

1	Best piano	Card
2	Best parlor organ	"
3	Best sewing machine	"
4	Best display of gold and silverware	"
5	Best display of brass, gilt wares, clocks, etc	"
6	Best display of musical instruments	"

H. L. NOWLIN Secretary.

CLASS Y—DOMESTIC MANUFACTURE

1	Infants' skirts
2	Infants' socks, display
3	Infants' crochet sacque
4	Crochet skirt
5	Crochet fascinator
6	Crochet lace, display in articles made up
7	Knit lace, display in articles made up
8	Pair silk mittens, hand knit
9	Pair stockings, hand knit
10	Cheek cover
11	Hemless doilies
12	Hemless center piece
13	Hemless hand kerchief
14	Point lace, specimen
15	Silk lace
16	Fancy stitched, specimen
17	Cotton, colored, specimen
18	Lunch set
19	Napkins, not less than six
20	Doilies, not less than six
21	Table cloth, linen
22	Hemless cloth
23	Tray cloth
24	Carving cloth
25	Table center, embroidery
26	Dresser set, embroidery
27	Handkerchief
28	Silk, white, specimen
29	Silk, colored, specimen
30	Silk shirt, white
31	Infant's silk shawl
32	Couch pillow
33	Toilet cushion
34	Quilting, pair towels
35	Quilting, specimen
36	Kensington, specimen
37	Tapestry
38	Ferrenti
39	Queen Ann Darning
40	Roman Embroidery on bolting cloth
41	Roman embroidery on bench cloth or linen
42	Roman embroidery drawing cloth on linen
43	High art needle work, specimen
44	Fine needle work, specimen
45	Tinting and embroidery
46	Braiding in silk, specimen
47	Chamois
48	Tea cosey
49	Basket of mottle cloth
50	Towels, pair
51	Lady's white skirt
52	Quilt, silk, needlework
53	Crazy quilt
54	Worsted quilt
55	Comfort
56	Rug
57	Hemstitching, hand
58	Hemstitching, child's dress
59	Hemstitching, sheets and pillow cases
60	Drawn work
61	Drawn work, sideboard scarf
62	Drawn work, Mexican
63	Haedkerchief receptacle
64	Glove receptacle
65	Toilet cushion, not embroidered
66	Hand rest
67	Work rest
68	Reticule
69	Fancy Baskets
70	Housewife
71	Fancy Apron
72	Kitchen apron, most practical
73	Opera glass bag
74	Laundry bag
75	Darning bag
76	Dust bag
77	Magazine Holder
78	Needle book
79	Shaving pad
80	Paper work, specimen
81	Lamp basket
82	Tidy
83	Photograph frame, embroidered

CLASS Z—DOMESTIC SKILL.

Butter may be placed on exhibition Friday but must be entered Tuesday.

1	Pound butter
2	Loaf yeast bread
3	Loaf salt rising bread
4	Loaf brown bread
5	Loaf corn bread
6	Most varied collection of bread
7	Jelly cake
8	Sponge cake
9	Silver cake
10	Golden cake
11	Marble cake
12	Chocolate cake
13	Fruit cake
14	Pound cake
15	Nut cake
16	Grand Duke cake
17	Most varied collection of cakes

CLASS AA—CANNED FRUITS, ETC.

1	Canned peaches
2	Canned pears
3	Canned quinces
4	Canned cherries
5	Canned tomatoes
6	Canned berries, four varieties
7	Spiced fruits, one variety
8	Spiced fruits, three or more varieties
9	Sweet preserves, specimen
10	Citron rind preserves
11	Crab apple jellies
12	Mint jelly
13	Sweet pickles
14	Cucumber pickles
15	Collection fruit butter
16	Collection jellies
17	Display canned fruit
18	Display extracted honey
19	Gallon apple butter
20	Collection native grape wine
21	Sample blackberry wine
22	Largest, best and most varied collection of canned fruit, one jar each

CLASS BB—CHILDREN'S DEPARTMENT.

1	Best trimmed pin cushion
2	Best hand made apron
3	Best hand made skirt
4	Best hand made nightgown
5	Best hand made chemise
6	Best embroidered splasher
7	Best embroidered pillow sham
8	Best tidy
9	Best sofa pillow
10	Best mat doilies
11	Best quilt
12	Best embroidered towel
13	Best crochet lace
14	Best embroidered table scarf
15	Best outline table cover
16	Best specimen of drawing
17	Best silk outline work
18	Best cotton outline work
19	Best pin cushion
20	Best toilet mat
21	Best crocheted purse
22	Best sachet bag
23	Collection of plain sewing
24	Fancy watch receiver
25	Dressed doll
26	Worked button holes
27	Darning

CLASS CC.

1	Best display and greatest variety of articles any farmer's Organization	$10 00

MOST ATTRACTIVE FAIR EVER HELD

e Observed.

our mind to go to n the exhibition.
t ready.
unless you expect
nize liberally.
ntire fair in one
ke at least two

e looking at the ve time to see the

or arises against y untrue, and we

says anything to ntradict it. We hear it said that earth, as you un-

word of it.
If it clouds up in don't stop on that
y soon clear up

In a real dry time the family cow grows sad;
She can scarcely raise her head, dead;
Her hoofs get sore, her tail grows limp,
For she trudges miles for grass and drink,
With hardly strength enough to wink.
Her owner, too, he looks blue as a plum,
And almost ready to curse the cattle business some;

But when it rains and the grass grows tall,
And the cow can hide her head and bawl;
Her hide gets smooth, no bones protrude,
And she prances around like a city dude;
Her tail gets slick and her eyes grow bright;
She is ready to kick and dares the milkmaid to fight.

Her owner, too, he flings up the chink,
And asks the boys to take a drink.
Oh, what a blessed thing, in a dry time, that rain,
It makes a man feel so young again;
He is sure to go to the fair, and there forget all that's sad
He absorbs its greatness, and talks of the jolly big time he had.

"Come and hear the band play."

MARY OWNED THIS SOMETIME BACK.

How to Make Entries and Exhibits.

In order to increase the probability of your getting a premium, the article or articles to be exhibited should be selected, carefully examined and put in the most presentable form. The best way to do this is to study the Premium List, and make up your mind as to the premiums for which you will compete. Exhibitors oftentimes fail because they have not been as careful as their competitors to add to the natural merit of their articles or animals by an artificial preparation. Entries may be made in advance, and in fact you will confer a favor on the Secretary, and save to yourselves the annoyances of the rush on the opening days of the fair, by making your entries before that time. Should you not be able to do this, when you arrive on the grounds, go to the Secretary's office and make your entries. Prepare, beforehand, your list of articles and note the premium list number at the left of the entry you wish to make, and the entry clerk will not be long in making the proper record of them, and furnish you an entry tag to be attached to each. When it is ready for exhibition hunt up the Superintendent of the department you want to show in, and he will designate to you where your articles should be placed. For further information in regard to entries study the rules under the head of entries in premium list, and general information. A word more. It is well enough for exhibitors to be about and casually look after their exhibit, but not best to hang around too much when the awards are being made. To have an exhibitor too "officious" or too talkative when the committee is passing on the work, sometimes annoys them and the become prejudiced, and you do your cause an injury.

It is dangerous to be too conspicuous and familiar with the awarding committee.

SPECIALTY

BABY SHOW

Each day of the Fair A grand double bill will be offered and prizes awarded winners in

White and Colored Baby Shows for Dearborn, Boone and Hamilton Counties.

On Saturday, a Grand Inter-State Prize Winner's Contest will be held.

The management has made special arrangements for these events. They will be held in a building on the grounds particularly adapted for the purpose.

These three adjacent counties are noted for their comely lady and lassies, and a lively contest for the prizes is anticipated.

Unbiased Judges will award Certificates.—Each Certificate will be lithographed on fine paper, neatly framed, twelve by fourteen inches, with photograph of baby, will be furnished free by the Association; decorated with ribbon and signed by officers and directors of the Association, and judges of the contests.

The exhibitions will be held as follows:

Wednesday, Aug. 23—Dearborn county, Ind.; Two o'clock p. m., 6 prizes.
Thursday, Aug. 24—Boone county, Kentucky; Two o'clock p. m., 6 prizes.
Friday, August 25—Hamilton county, Ohio; Two o'clock p. m., 6 prizes.

On each of above dates separate shows will be held for white and colored babies under two years of age, residents of respective counties.

On Saturday, Aug. 26—A Prize Winner's Contest between all white baby prize winners from the three counties will be held, and a similar contest for colored prize winners.

Entries can be made free of charge any time previous to hour of opening contest.

For further information address

SECRETARY OF ASSOCIATION.

No man can appreciate his home Fair like the one who tries to make it a blooming success.

WRENCEBURG, INDIANA.

who helps pay s on which you for the schools
rhaps you were the church in ght to worship;
h adds to the e name is on r, who would hile the other tch him; who vernment, who nd prosperity;
and is always in word and nty fair, is an

The track is in splendid condition. It will do you good to see a Daily Matinee of high class sport.

When Maria Starts the Fire.

At the unholy hour of four, the time when all
The world should snore, I'm awakened by a slamming door
By my Maria.

She rises Phoenix-like from bed, puts on a
Rig to knock you dead, then in a moment she has fled
To build the fire.

I hear a rumble and a roar, like wrecks upon
A rockbound shore, then bang, down falls a ton or more
Of coal for that darned fire.

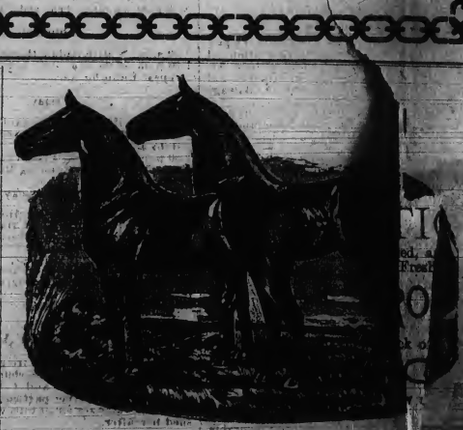
I hear a rattle, roar and slam, a muttered word
That sounds like slam, she's wrestling with that fiendish pan
Of ashes from the fire.

Then into the cold world she goes, and bumps

WOMAN, LOVELY WOMAN.

Uneasy lies the female head that wears no new Easter bonnet.

After man came woman, and she has been after him ever since.



The most curious thing in the world is a woman who is not curious.

Man's inhumanity to man is only exceeded by woman's inhumanity to woman.

This is a tough world for women at best. They must either marry or become old maids.

Marriage is often spoken of as a lottery, but the difference is that if a man draws a blank in a lottery he can tear it up and take another chance. But the person who does not go to the fair this year will find, when he hears his neighbors praising it so highly, that it is an opportunity lost which will never return again. There will be but one chance to see the fair of 1899, and that will be when the fair is held.

VITALITY OF SEEDS.

The table shows the limit of time beyond which the seeds of common vegetables become useless for sowing.

Beans	2 years	Onion	1 year
Beets	7 years	Parsnip	2 year
Cabbage	4 years	Peas	2 year
Carrot	2 years	Radish	5 year
Corn	2 years	Squash	5 year
Cucumbers	10 years	Sweet Corn	2 year
Lettuce	3 years	Tomato	5 year
Melons	10 years	Turnip	2 year

You must do right to be right. Real merit every time. Or if you make an exhibit

THE LARGEST AND

M. RACHAL & CO.

RS DO DOUBLE DUTY HERE.

bs. $1 00.
o.
or 5 cents.
ity prices.
ad, Oils, Varnishes, etc.,
as cheap as in the city.

Baby Shoes for 10c per pair up.
Misses' Shoes for 50c per pair up.
A full line of Men's, Ladie's and Children's Tan Shoes—
Latest Styles, Best Quality, Lowest Prices.
Men's Dress Pants, 75c per pair.
Wonder Overalls, Shirts and Pants, the best made.

ICE, THESE PRICES are ONLY While Present Stock Lasts.
CKY. UNION, KENTUCKY.

THE PREMIUM LIST of the Lawrenceburg Fair Association is issued after due consideration of all the circumstances, and embraces almost every article that us mortals are interested in, in the line of AGRICULTURE, HORTICULTURE, LIVE STOCK, FANCY WORK and last but not by any means the least will be the Great BABY SHOW.

EVERY PERSON within forty miles of Lawrenceburg should find something interesting and instructive in this list, and it will repay you worthy readers, to peruse everything. Do not stop with examining the Premium List, but come and be an exhibitor.

IF YOU have no Baby to win one of the specials with, perhaps you have a horse fast enough to win in one or more of the races; or if not a fast horse, one that is suitable to go into some other class, and win both honor and money. Or if you are a lover of fine cattle, just try how nice you can make yours look by currying and rubbing and curling their hair and bring them to the Fair, that people may see what you have. You Shepherds, fatten up your best specimens and bring them in; wash and brush and clip them till they look just right then let your neighbors see what you can do. The Swine Breeder should look to his laurels. All swine show together this year, so if you breed any kind of pedigreed hogs you can come in and go with the others, "free for all." Just examine that Poultry list and see if you have a pair of chickens of some breeds that are beauties. Then fix a nice coop and bring them in. It will do you good.

THE LADIES can certainly find something in the Women's Department that will interest them. Examine and see if you haven't something that is "just too lovely," and bring it in to show your friends and neighbors what skill you possess in these lines. Then see those bread and butter premiums. Bake a loaf of bread and make a roll of yellow butter, that, seen together, will make the appetite of the epicure voracious, and win at least ten dollars of the fifteen.

FARMERS, is not that large squash of yours the finest you ever saw? Just bring enough to make the entry at the Fair, and while you are at it bring along some pumpkins, beets, cabbage, turnips, etc.—Don't come to the Fair and go home disappointed because you have finer stuff at home than was there.

HO! YE GRANGERS! The Lawrenceburg Fair treats you better than any other Fair in the State. Think how easy it will be for your Grange to win ten dollars of that twenty. Of course it says Farmers' Organizations, but are there others near here except the Grange? Then come and show that you appreciate the offers of this association.

Don'ts That Should

Don't put off making up your mind to attend the fair, and participating in its benefits. Decide now, and begin to get ready.

Don't go to any other fair, but be sure also to go to ours and patronize it.

Don't try to look at the whole show in a day. Haste is waste. Take your time, three days.

Don't spend so much time looking at the fair ship that you will not have time to see the whole show.

Don't believe it, if any one tells you that the fair. It will be absolutely worth while to deny it in advance.

Don't admit, if any one tells you that criticises the fair, that you have authorize you to do it.

Don't doubt it. When you see it you will see that this is to be the best fair of its kind. You undoubtedly will, believe everything else.

Don't mind the weather. Come, rain or shine, the morning, or even rains. Don't stay on account. It will undoubtedly be a success and be pleasant.

Y BARGAINS

Bro.'s!

ut Sale to a Fin-om Business.

WORTH OF
Be Sold
er for Cash.
duced : Prices!

OTHING, NO-
HINGS, CARunks, Etc.

in all Lines.
Chance for Bargains.
BRO,
Indian.

HOMSON,
BROS.

FEED STABLES.
gans and Furniture Carefully Re-
h careful drivers for Families,
, etc.
ERLANGER, KY.
arlington, Ky.

of the Street for the our

ING
Styles, if you want a most ING are easily the neatest n the country. Our experi-

TTOM.
want to see you in our store.
ok at our goods.
S, No. 1 Pike Street, Cor. Madison Ave.
TUCKY.

TICE TO TAXPAYERS.
axpayers of Boone county are notified that I or my deputy at the following places to receive taxes for 1899:
ona, Sept. 5th, Oct. 5th.
lton, Sept. 6th, Oct. 6th.
levue, Sept. 7th, Oct. 9th.
on, Sept. 8th, Oct. 7th.
ersburg, Sept. 9th, Oct. 10th.
ittsville, Sept. 11th, Oct. 16th.
Bone, Sept. 12th, Oct. 11th.
stance, Sept. 13th, Oct. 12th.
ver, Sept. 14th, Oct. 13th.
ence, Sept. 15th, Oct. 14th.
bit Hash, Sept. 16th, Oct. 17th.
apowder, Oct. 18th.
hwood, Oct. 20th.
ron, Oct. 21st.
xes not paid by Dec. 1st, 1899, ve the 6 per cent. penalty adeet me at the appointed places id the penalty.
ELMER BEALL, S. B. C.

When in Burlington Call on
J. S. CLUTTERBUCK
DEALER IN
DRY GOODS
Notions, Boots and Shoes,
Who has just received his stock of
SPRING & SUMMER SHOES,
the nicest stock ever in town. Have old stock which
I AM SELLING AT GENUINE BARGAINS.
NICE LINE WALL PAPER,
At Prices to Suit the times.

DEERING - MACHINES
Are the favorites in every land where grass and grain grow. They are adopted to all conditions. They are the "Acme" of strength, durability, simplicity and light draft. We will carry a full line of Repairs. Buy the Machine that is fully guaranteed and handy to obtain repairs for.

Also remember we are headquarters for all kinds of
Farm Machinery
At bottom prices. We handle nothing but the best and fully guarantee all.

Also the Largest and Cheapest
Stock of Shoes
In the county, and a full line of
General -- Merchandise.
CAN SAVE YOU MONEY.
COME AND SEE.
T. J. HUGHES,
BEAVER LICK, KY.

GO TO
C. T. DAVIS & CO., General Merchants,
HEBRON AND CONSTANCE,
A Good Supply of Feed always in Stock.
GARDEN AND FIELD SEEDS.
Undertaking Given Special Attention.
A good supply of Coal on hand at Constance at all times.
Hebron. C. T. DAVIS & CO. Constance

W. H. HOSHAL & COMPANY,
COMMISSION MERCHANTS,
Cattle, Hogs and Sheep,
—UNION STOCK YARDS,—
Cincinnati, · Ohio.
—TELEPHONE 7346—
Information Regarding Live Stock Cheerfully Furnished.
Consign Your Stock Direct to Us.

LUMBER!
LATHS,
SHINGLES,
DOORS,
BLINDS,
SASH.
If you want any kind of Lumber it will be to your advantage to visit our yard at Lawrenceburg, Indiana, before buying. Prices to Suit the Times.
M. E. LEMING & CO.

AT LA

Good races, honorably conducted, are a great help to an interesting and successful Fair.

DID you know that the ma for the streets and the pik walk-or drive; who helps pa in which your children and educated; who helps keep which you, or in which you who improves property wh value of your property; wh every worthy subscription not swindle you if he could, fellow would if you don't bears the burden of good stays with you in adversity who keeps abreast of the tim in the 'push;' who contribu works to the success of his ideal public spirited man?

COULDN'T BEAT THE DEACON

"No," said the deacon, "I don't approve of horse racin', but when another member of the church becomes so godless as to try to pass me on the road comin' home from the meetin', I feel it my duty to let out a leetle

MOST ATTRACTIVE

FAIR DATES FOR 1899.

(All Dates are Inclusive.)

PLACE.	DATE.	SECRETARY.
Indiana State Fair,	Sept 18 to 23.	Chas. Kennedy
W. W. Stevens, President,		Secretary H. L. Nowlin Guilford Supt. Priv
North Vernon,	July 25 to 28.	Fred H. Mauer
Osgood,	Aug. 1 to 4.	Will C. Leslie
Hagerstown,	Aug. 1 to 4.	F. H. Baldridge
Carthage Ohio,	August 15 to 19.	D. L. Sampson
Lawrenceburg,	Aug. 29 to 4.	H. L. Nowlin
Winchester,	Aug. 21 to 25.	Orla E. Kennen
Franklin,	Aug. 29 to Sept. 2.	W. S. Young
Chrinsey,	Aug. 28 to Sept 2.	J. P. Chrinsey
Florence, Ky.,	Aug. 30 to Sept. 2.	R. J. Perry
Bridgeton,	Aug. 18 to Sept 1.	Geo. Kerr
Shelbyville,	Sept. 6 to 10.	C. E. Ansdem
East Enterprise,	Sept. 5 to 8.	J. R. Elder
La Fayette,	Sept. 4 to 8.	W. E. Blackstock
Princeton	Sept. 4 to 9.	S. Vet Strain
Huntingburg,	Sept 11 to 16.	H. C. Robert
Booneville,	Sept. 25 to 30.	J. F. Richardson
Flora,	Sept. 25 to 29.	J. J. Moss
Richester,	Sept. 27 to 30.	E. C. Meroes
La Porte,	Sept. 26 to 29.	J. Vine Dorland
Columbus, Ind.,	Sept. 26 to 29.	Ed Redman Jr.
Hamilton, O.,	Oct. 2 to 6.	W. A. Shafer
Sheridan,	Aug. 28 to Sept. 1.	N. W. Cowgill

VIC OBERTING, General Superintendent.

The races promise to be the fastest and the exhibits the best ever seen at the Lawrenceburg Fair.

The finest babies from three States will be on exhibition at the Lawrenceburg Fair.

They say that everybody is going to the Fair this year.

Three Running Races at the Lawrenceburg Fair.

Now is the time to begin to prepare for the fair. Procure a premium list; make up your mind to exhibit something; select the best specimens of the products of garden or field and when the time arrives, bring them to Fair.

If you don't feel like attending more than one fair this year, don't fail to attend your home fair. It will do you good.

Times change and we change with them. Go to the fair; note the changes that are going on and prepare to keep up with them.

TOOK JIMMIE TO THE FAIR.

Little Jimmie, like any simple, trusting lad,
Who had viewed the walls in plotless glad,
Of the boy in the race, on the horses back,
Is his exciting chase around the track;
Of the man on the bike, the leading horse to catch
As he pulls for the wire, coming down the stretch;
Of the horses, the cattle, the hogs and the sheep,
Of the vegetables, the fruits and other good things to eat,
Made Jimmie's heart yearn, for he's only a boy,
To gaze on those pictures and think what a joy
'Twould be to him, for 'twould be no wrong as you are aware,
For poor little Jimmie as he longed to go to the fair.

Then Jimmie's father said: "Although
I don't care anything about the fair or other show,
Still I feel that little Jimmie ought to go
To the fair, and there see all the curious things, you know;
But 'twould never do, for Jimmie is little grown,
For him to go and wander 'round alone.
I will take him." And his mother, too, pleasant dame
And his aunts, both felt the same,
And his uncle, his cousin and his elder sister, Mary,
And his brother and his brother-in-law and Susan Ann and Sarah—
All his father's kin, and his mother's kin,
And others, too, wanted to go along to see that no harm should befall little Jim,
For 'twould be a sin, as you are aware,
Not to take poor little Jimmie to the fair.

They all went along and with faithful care,
Accompanied little Jimmie on his first visit to the fair,
They took him around and they jostled him about
And they pulled him this way and that, though Jimmie was not very stout,
When one of them would chance to see
An acquaintance or friend, then he or she Would grasp little Jimmie by the hand
To let the people know and understand
That they had simply come, as you are aware,
With little Jimmie to the fair.

At last poor little Jimmie's heart felt like breaking
And his little arms, too, were aching.
His pulse was quick and wildly fluttering,
His little breath was short and he was muttering.
On his return with his kith and kin
A different ache he felt begin,
As he lay at night and thinking,
I am the sobbing, poor and lonely one
Of all the family and friends small or large as you are aware
That didn't see much of the fair.

THE FARMER'S CREED.

Professor Irby, of North Carolina State College, furnished the following to the Progressive Farmer:

We believe in small well-tilled farms; that the soil must be fed as well as the owner, so that the crops shall make the farm and the farm and farmer richer.

We believe in thorough drainage, in deep plowing, and in labor-saving implements.

We believe in good fences, barns conveniently arranged, good orchards and gardens, and plenty of home-raised hog and hominy.

We believe in raising pure-bred stock; or in grading up the best to be gotten until they equal the thoroughbreds.

We believe in growing the best varieties of farm crops, and saving the choicest for seed.

We believe in fertilizing the brain with phosphorus as well as applying it to the soil.

We believe in proper care and application of barnyard manure.

We believe that the best fertilizers are of little value unless accompanied by industry, enterprise and intelligence.

We believe in rotation, diversification and thorough cultivation of crops.

We believe that every farm should own a good farmer, and that every good farmer will eventually own a good farm.

Observed.

our mind to go to n the exhibition.
t ready.
unless you expect
nize liberally.
ntire fair in one
ke at least two

looking at the ve time to see the

or arises against
y untrue, and we

ays anything to ntradict it. We hear it said that earth, as you un-

word of it.
If it clouds up in don't stop on that
y soon clear up

In a real dry time the family cow grows sad;
She can scarcely raise her head for dad;
Her hoofs get sore, her tail grows limp,
For she trudges miles for grass and drink,
With hardly strength enough to wink.
Her owner, too, he looks blue as plum,
And almost ready to curse the cattle business some;

But when it rains and the grass grows tall,
And the cow can hide her head and bawl;
Her hide gets smooth, no bones protrude,
And she prances around like a city dude;
Her tail gets slick and her eyes grow bright;
She is ready to kick and dares the milkmaid to fight.

Her owner, too, he flings up the chink,
And asks the boys to take a drink.
Oh, what a blessed thing, in a dry time, that rain,
It makes a man feel so young again;
He is sure to go to the fair, and there forget all that's sad
He absorbs its greatness, and talks of the jolly big time he had.

"Come and hear the band play."

MARY OWNED THIS SOMETIME BACK.

How to Make

In order to your getting a pre to be exhibited sh examined and pu form. The best
the Premium List, to the premiums f
Exhibitors oftentin not been as caref add to the natural animals by an art may be made in a confer a favor on yourselves the an opening days of th tries before that able to do this, wh go to the Secretar tries. Prepare, be les and note the p left of the entry yo try clerk will not per record of them
tag to be attached for exhibition hun
the department you designate to you be placed. For fu to entries study th
entries in premium
tion. A word mo exhibitors to be ab their exhibit, but much when the aw have an exhibitor tive when the co
work, sometimes come prejudiced, injury.

It is dangerous familiar with the a

			a. m.
			25 00
			5 00
			1 00
			75
			75
			75

Local News.

The members of the Boone County Democratic Executive Committee are hereby notified to meet at my law office in Burlington, Ky., at 2 p. m. next Saturday.
D. E. CASTLEMAN,
Chmn. Dem. Ex. Com.

The grass crop was put in the stack in nice condition.

The colored people had a big basket meeting here, last Sunday.

For Sale—125 head stock ewes.
Edwin Gaines, Burlington.

Edwin Gaines has a new buggy, a recent purchase of Robt. Bradford.

Quite a crowd of turtle hunters spent last Thursday afternoon down on Gunpowder.

Chas. Ragenbogen, the Hebron beryist, was supplying the market here last week.

The blackberry brigade has not had an abundant crop from which to garner its supplies.

Bennie Kelly has sold quite a quantity of cultivated blackberries here during the last week.

☞Go to A. Corbin & Son's for first-class Kanawha Coal at 9 cents per bushel of 76 pounds. adv

Dony Cook, of Bellevue, was in town, Friday, with his fish wagon, the first time for several weeks.

Tony Bentler set his machine twenty-two times, last week and threshed 2,600 bushels of wheat.

Picnic at Harvest Home grounds next Saturday afternoon. You will have a good time if you attend.

The Sheriff has given notice of the time and place that he will meet the taxpayers to collect their taxes.

J. C. Hankins, of the Hopeful neighborhood, had a crop of wheat that yielded about 20 bushels to the acre.

There ought to be no other than good hay this fall, as the weather was all that could be desired during the harvest.

Jake Stahl, of the Pt. Pleasant neighborhood, had three milch cows killed by lightning during a recent thunder storm.

In this issue appears the advertisement of the League Institute at Verona, one of the best schools in this part of the State.

If you have 1,000,000 good grass-hoppers for sale Misses Inez and Kittie Gaines will pay the market price for them to feed the turkies.

Mr. Elijah Parker, of Gasburg says the sycamore trees are now a beautiful white having shed this early, when they generally shed in August.

The Presbyterians will have the exterior of their church building whitewashed, while the interior will be papered. The work will be done at once.

The RECORDER acknowledges the receipt of a complimentary ticket to the Lawrenceburg, Indiana Fair, August 22, 23, 24, 25 and 26. See advertisement in another column.

The condition of the public school property in Burlington has been improved very much since the new board of trustees, S. Gaines, J. M. Eddins and J. E. Smith have been installed.

Miss Emma Underhill, daughter of B. F. Underhill, and W. J. Miller, of Butlertown, O., were married at Muncie, Indiana, June 29th. Park City, Indiana, will be their future home.

The Egytian base ball team that played here Saturday went down in a score of 24 to 4. Hebron is organizing a team for the purpose of taking the scalp of the Burlington aggregation.

James Clore is Burlington's expert waterman. He can swim in any position, and the distance he can dive has never been ascertained. The only difficulty that he has is to keep his mouth closed to prevent taking water.

NOTICE.—There will be a meeting of the Directors of the Burlington Mercantile Company held in the law office of S. Gaines, in Burlington, Ky., Saturday, July 29th, at 1 p. m.
J. S. CLUTTERBUCK, President.

A hymenial altar should be erected at the Court-house, as there is seldom a week passes that a couple from a distance would not kneel there. This seems to be a favorite place for those to come who want their marriage kept a secret.

The fourth and last Quarterly Conference for the year will be held at East Bend Methodist Church, Aug. 14th and 15th. Let all trustees of church property and stewards have their yearly reports ready and presented to that body.
J. W. BARRIS.

To the Editor of the Recorder:

Say, didn't that sound strange to hear Bro. Utz now claiming that he was not seeking a discussion? Well, it may be, but Bro. Utz should have thought about this before he made his challenge. It will be hard for him to convince the public at this late day.
GEO. W. WATKINS.

Last Thursday Rev. M. J. Hoover and wife, Master Herbert McKim and Miss Ella Duncan, went to Oak Ridge, Kenton county, to attend the Baptist Sunday School Convention and District Board Meeting, and as they were coming home that afternoon, one of the horses attached to their carriage balked at the foot of one of the long hills traversed by the road. The foot horse could neither be pursuaded nor coaxed to pull, and as a last resort both animals were unhooked from the vehicle and lead to the top of the hill, while Messrs. Hoover and McKim drew the carriage up the steep ascent, puffing and blowing like two large freight engines. Long will they remember their trip to Oak Ridge.

PERSONAL MENTION.

C. C. Hughes spent a few days at home, last week.

Mrs. Robert Wilson has been quite sick for several days.

Mrs. M. L. Riddell was visiting her sister in Walton, last week.

County Clerk Adams went to Walton, Friday, to give his deposition.

B. B. Allphin and wife went to the South Fork neighborhood, last Friday.

Dr. J. F. Smith was visiting his son in the Verona neighborhood, one day last week.

Miss Lizzie A. Parker, of Gasburg, is visiting her sister, Mrs. P. E. Cason, of this place.

Miss Juliette Bohmey, of Indianapolis, is the guest of her cousin, Miss Olga Kirkpatrick.

Stephens Gaines and wife, of Flickertown, were guests of Sidney Gaines and wife, Saturday night.

Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Riggs, of Kenton county, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. G. G. Hughes, Saturday.

Dr. Sayre and Ab Quick, of Hebron, were in town, one day last week, interviewing the County Judge.

J. W. Greer, of Rising Sun, was over here, last Thursday and Friday, looking after his telephone line.

James Strouse was laid up a few days last week with a sore foot. A pitchfork fell off of a load of hay and pierced his foot.

E. S. McKim went on duty as U. S. Storekeeper at the Darling Distilling Co., Carrollton, last Mouday. This is his first assignment.

M. L. Hance and wife, of Jackson's Landing, Gallatin county, were guests of Deputy Sheriff Allphiu and wife, a day or two last week.

Mr. and Mrs. F. P. Walton, of Utzinger, entertained a large number of their friends Sunday, among whom were several Burlington people.

Miss Quisenberry, who taught school at Union, last fall and winter, was the guest of Rev. and Mrs. Hoover, last week. She is trying to make a school here.

Jeff Eddins served two days, last week, with Jerry Underhill's thresher, and came home on a furlough of several days. The campaign was prematurely begun.

J. T. Marshall, the popular tombstone agent, was in town, last Friday. He reported business in his line quite dull, and contemplates adding matrimony as a sideline during the dull season.

Scott Chambers, of the Utzinger neighborhood, passed through town late Thursday afternoon, in buoyant spirits. He said his corn field was full of roasting ears, and his tobacco all topped, and he was bound to see his best girl.

Mayor O'Brien and a Mr. Oberding, of Lawrenceburg, were in town Sunday. They are enthusiastic workers on behalf of the Lawrenceburg fair, and say this year's exhibition will eclipse any of the past in a great many particulars.

Edwin Jewell and Miss Gertrude K. Thompson, aged 24 and 23, respectively, both of Cincinnati, were married by Rev. M. J. Hoover, at Mrs. Cowen's, last Friday at 3:30 p. m. The couple arrived in town about one o'clock, and after considerable caucussing on the part of Mr. Jewell with Deputy Sheriff Allphin and W. C. Brown, the services of Attorney Castleman were secured to draw up the necessary iron-clad affidavits that induced Deputy Clerk Garnett to issue the necessary papers. The report soon spread that a wedding was to come off at Mrs. Cowen's, and the women began to congregate, and when the ceremony was performed quite a good crowd had assembled. As the young couple took their departure those who had assembled to witness their marriage, wished them well and buried rice at them.

Noticing in the RECORDER that the Fiscal Court had allowed me the sum of $1 for gravel taken to be used on public road, I say that I never filed a claim with said court for $1 or any other sum. I think that this road district should be able to pay $1, considering the small amount of work done upon, and the present condition of the pubiic roads.

I will not accept the money from the county, as I have sold gravel to the supervisors of other districts, who paid me out of the money said districts received from the county.

If it is not unjust for the county to buy gravel for one district and make another district buy its own gravel, then I will confess that I am not a competent judge. Yours Truly.
H. C. MCNEAL.

The protracted meeting at Florence Christian Church will begin Sunday night, July 23. Eld. Geo. Ringo will do the preaching. Everybody cordially invited.
GEO. W. WATKINS.

The League Institute,
VERONA, KY.
Opens September 18, 1899.

Miss N. E. Hamilton, Principal, teacher of Belle-lettres and Sciences.
Miss Madeline Pfeifer, Vocal and Instrumental Music, Latin & German.
Miss Lulu Forwood, Mathematics and Elocution.
With those interested, a correspondence with the principal is solicited.

At the annual meeting of the Board of Directors of the League Institute, the following resolutions were passed:

Resolved, 1st, That we endorse and commend the methods, management and zeal of the faculty.

2d. That we desire to express our appreciation of the steady growth of the Institute; and especially the great interest manifested by pupils and patrons.

3d. That we cordially invite parents seeking a good school for their children to investigate the merits of The League Institute.

BOARD OF DIRECTORS,
Verona, Ky.

W. M. RACHAL & CO.

DOLLARS DO DOUBLE DUTY HERE.

Standard Granulated Sugar, 18 lbs. $1 00.
Arbuckle Coffee 10 cents per lb.
Daniel Boone Soap, 3 bars for 5 cents.
Pittsburg Wire less than city prices.
Lime, Cement, White Lead, Oils, Varnishes, etc., as cheap as in the city.

Baby Shoes for 10c per pair up.
Misses' Shoes for 50c per pair up.
A full line of Men's, Ladie's and Children's Tan Shoes—Latest Styles, Best Quality, Lowest Prices.
Men's Dress Pants, 75c per pair.
Wonder Overalls, Shirts and Pants, the best made.

COME at ONCE. THESE PRICES are ONLY While Present Stock Lasts.

UNION, KENTUCKY. UNION, KENTUCKY.

EXTRAORDINARY BARGAINS
—AT—
Heyn & Bro.'s!

This Is a Closing Out Sale to a Finish, To Retire from Business.

15,000 DOLLARS WORTH OF Goods Must Be Sold
Over the Counter for Cash.
At : Greatly : Reduced : Prices!

DRY GOODS, CLOTHING, NOTIONS, FURNISHINGS, CARpets, Hats, Trunks, Etc.

Stocks are now complete in all Lines.
This is a Rare Chance for Bargains.
HEYN & BRO,
Rising Sun, Indian.

McALPIN & THOMSON,
Successors to RIGGS BROS.
Undertakers
—AND—
Embalmers,

LIVERY, BOARDING & FEED STABLES.
Special Rates to Traveling Men. Pianos, Organs and Furniture Carefully Removed. First-class Carriages for hire with careful drivers for Families, Parties, Weddings, etc.
LEXINGTON PIKE, - - - ERLANGER, KY.
J. M. EDDINS, Agent, Burlington, Ky.

The Sun Shines on both Sides of the Street for the Man, Boy or Child who wear our
CLOTHING
Come in and try on some of the New Styles, if you want a most graceful becoming suit. Our CLOTHING are easily the neatest fitting, finest looking and best wearing in the country. Our experience in the business enables us to sell at
ROCK BOTTOM.
Whether you are ready to buy or not, we want to see you in our store. It will cost you nothing to look at our goods.
ROLFES & WACHS, No. 1 Pike Street, Cor. Madison Ave.
COVINGTON, KENTUCKY.

W. M. RANDALL,
DENTIST.
Will be at
BURLINGTON, Monday, Tuesday,
PETERSBURG: Wednesday, Thursday, Friday, Saturday,
OF EACH WEEK.
GIVE HIM A CALL.

Your attention is called to advertisement of Geo: W. Hill & Co., of Covington, in this issue.

A party of Burlingtonites expect to go to Laughery Island this afternoon for two or three days' outing.

NOTICE TO TAXPAYERS.

The taxpayers of Boone county are hereby notified that I or my deputy will be at the following places to receive taxes for 1899:

Verona, Sept. 5th, Oct. 5th.
Walton, Sept. 6th, Oct. 6th.
Bellevue, Sept. 7th, Oct. 9th.
Union, Sept. 8th, Oct. 7th.
Petersburg, Sept. 9th, Oct. 10th.
Bullittsville, Sept. 11th, Oct. 16th.
Big Bone, Sept. 12th, Oct. 11th.
Constance, Sept. 13th, Oct. 12th.
Beaver, Sept. 14th, Oct. 13th.
Florence, Sept. 15th, Oct. 14th.
Rabbit Hash, Sept. 16th, Oct. 17th.
Gunpowder, Oct. 18th.
Richwood, Oct. 20th.
Hebron, Oct. 21st.

All taxes not paid by Dec. 1st, 1899, will have the 6 per cent. penalty added. Meet me at the appointed places and avoid the penalty.
ELMER BEALL, S. B. C.

When in Burlington Call on
J. S. CLUTTERBUCK
DEALER IN
DRY GOODS
Notions, Boots and Shoes,
Who has just received his stock of
SPRING & SUMMER SHOES,
the nicest stock ever in town. Have old stock which I AM SELLING AT GENUINE BARGAINS.
NICE LINE WALL PAPER,
☞At Prices to Suit the times.☜

DEERING - MACHINES
Are the favorites in every land where grass and grain grow. They are adopted to all conditions. They are the "Acme" of strength, durability, simplicity and light draft. We will carry a full line of Repairs. Buy the Machine that is fully guaranteed and handy to obtain repairs for.
Also remember we are headquarters for all kinds of
Farm Machinery
At bottom prices. We handle nothing but the best and fully guarantee all.
Also the Largest and Cheapest
Stock of Shoes
In the county, and a full line of
General - Merchandise.
—CAN SAVE YOU MONEY.—
COME AND SEE.
T. J. HUGHES,
BEAVER LICK, KY.

GO TO
C. T. DAVIS & CO., HEBRON AND CONSTANCE,
General Merchants,
A Good Supply of Feed always in Stock.
GARDEN AND FIELD SEEDS.
Undertaking Given Special Attention.
A good supply of Coal on hand at Constance at all times.
Hebron. C. T. DAVIS & CO. Constance

W. H. HOSHAL & COMPANY,
COMMISSION MERCHANTS,
Cattle, Hogs and Sheep,
—UNION STOCK YARDS,—
Cincinnati, - Ohio.
—TELEPHONE 7346.—
Information Regarding Live Stock Cheerfully Furnished.
Consign Your Stock Direct to Us.

LUMBER!
LATHS,
SHINGLES,
DOORS,
BLINDS,
SASH.
If you want any kind of Lumber it will be to your advantage to visit our yard at Lawrenceburg, Indiana, before buying. ☞Prices to Suit the Times.
M. E. LEMING & CO.

STRAINING AT GNATS.

Dr. Talmage Preaches on Human Inconsistency.

Makes Use of an Ancient Epigram to Illustrate the Folly of Mankind—Prone to Magnify Small Things, Heedless of the Great.

(Copyright, Louis Klopsch, 1895.)

In this discourse, founded on an ancient epigram repeated by Christ, Dr. Talmage illustrates the folly of being very particular about insignificant things while neglectful of vast concerns. The text in Matthew 23:24, "Ye blind guides, which strain at a gnat and swallow a camel."

A proverb is compact wisdom, knowledge in chunks, a library in a sentence, the electricity of many clouds discharged in one bolt, a river put through a mill race. When Christ quotes the proverb of the text, He means to set forth the ludicrous behavior of those who make a great bluster about small sins and have no appreciation of great ones. In my text a small insect and a large quadruped are brought into comparison—a gnat and a camel. You have in museum or on the desert seen the latter, a great awkward, sprawling creature, with back two stories high and stomach having a collection of reservoirs for desert travel, an animal forbidden to the Jews as food, and in many literatures entitled "the ship of the desert." The gnat spoken of in the text is in the grub form. It is born in pool or pond, after a few weeks becomes a chrysalis, and then after a few days becomes the gnat as we recognize it. But the insect spoken of in the text is in its very smallest shape, and it yet inhabits the water, for my text is a misprint, and ought to read "strain out a gnat."

My text shows you the practice of inconsistencies. A man, after long observation, who has formed the suspicion that in a cupful of water he is about to drink, there is a grub or the grandparent of a gnat. He goes and gets a sieve or a strainer. He takes the water and pours it through the sieve in the broad light. He says: "I would rather do anything almost than drink this water until this larva be extirpated." This water is brought under inquisition. The experiment is successful. The water rushes through the sieve and leaves against the side of the sieve the grub or gnat. Then the man carefully removes the insect and drinks the water in placidity. But going out one day, and hungry, he devours a "ship of the desert," the camel, which the Jews were forbidden to eat. The gnat-monger has no compunctions of conscience. He suffers from no indigestion. He puts the lower jaw under the camel's forefoot, and his upper jaw over the hump of the camel's back, and gives one swallow and the dromedary disappears forever. He strained out a gnat, he swallowed a camel.

While Christ's audience was yet smiling at the appositeness and wit of his illustration—for smile they did, unless they were too stupid to understand the hyperbole—Christ practically said to them: "That is you." Punctilious about small things; reckless about affairs of great magnitude. No subject ever winced under a surgeon's knife more bitterly than did the Pharisees under Christ's scalpel of truth. As an anatomist will take a human body to pieces and put the pieces under a microscope for examination, so Christ finds His way to the heart of the dead Pharisee and cuts it out and puts it under the glass of inspection for all generations to examine. Those Pharisees thought that Christ would flatter them and compliment them, and how they must have writhed under the red-hot words as He said: "Ye fools, ye whited sepulchers, ye blind guides, which strain out a gnat and swallow a camel."

There are in our day a great many gnats strained out and a great many camels swallowed, and it is the object of this sermon to sketch a few persons who are extensively engaged in that busiuess.

First, I remark that all those ministers of the Gospel who are very scrupulous about the conventionalities of religion, but put no particular stress upon matters of vast importance, are photographed in the text. Church services ought to be grave and solemn. There is no room for frivolity in religious convocation, but there are illustrations, and there are hyperboles like that of Christ in the text that will irradiate with smiles any intelligent audience. There are men like those blind guides of the text who advocate only those things in religious service which draw the corners of the mouth down and denounce all those things which have a tendency to draw the corners of the mouth up, and these men will go to installations, and to presbyterics, and to conferences, and to associations, their pockets full of fine sieves to strain out the gnats, while in their own churches at home every Sunday there are 50 people sound asleep. They make their churches a great dormitory, and their somniferous sermons are a cradle and the drawled out hymns a lullaby, while some wakeful soul in a pew, with her fan, keeps the flies off unconscious persons approximate. Now, I say it is worse to sleep in church than to smile in church, for the latter implies at least attention, while the former implies the indifference of the hearers and the stupidity of the speaker.

In old age, or from physical infirmity, or from long watching with the sick, drowsiness will sometimes overpower one, but when a minister of the Gospel looks off upon an audience and finds healthy and intelligent people struggling with drowsiness it is time for him to give out the doxology or pronounce the benediction. The great fault of church services to-day is not too much vivacity, but too much somnolence. The one is an irritating gnat that may be easily strained out, the other is a great sprawling and sleepy-eyed camel of the dry desert. In all our Sabbath schools, in all our Bible classes, in all our pulpits, we need to brighten up our religious message with such Christlike vivacity as we find in the text.

Oh, how particular a great many people are about the infinitesimals while they are quite reckless about the magnitudes! What did Christ say? Did He not excoriate the people in his time who were so careful to wash their hands before a meal, but did not wash their hearts? It is a bad thing to have unclean hands. It is a worse thing to have an unclean heart. How many people there are in our time who are very anxious that after their death they shall be buried with their faces toward the east and not at all anxious that during their whole life they should face in the right direction, so that they shall come up in the resurrection of the just, whichever way they are buried! How many there are chiefly anxious that a minister of the Gospel shall come in the line of apostolic succession, not caring so much whether he comes from Apostle Paul or Apostle Judas! They have a way of measuring a gnat until it is larger than a camel.

Again, my subject photographs all those who are abhorrent of small sins while they are reckless in regard to magnificent thefts. You will find many a merchant who, while he is so careful that he would not take a yard of cloth or a spool of cotton from the counter without paying for it, and who, if a bank cashier should make a mistake and send in a roll of bills five dollars too much, would dispatch a messenger in hot haste to return the surplus, yet who will go into a stock company, in which after awhile he gets control of the stock, and then waters the stock and makes $100,000 appear like $200,000. He only stole $100,000 by the operation. Many of the men of fortune made their wealth in that way.

One of those men engaged in such unrighteous acts that evening, the evening of the very day when he watered the stock, will find a wharf rat stealing a daily paper from the basement doorway and will go out and entch the urchin by the collar and twist the collar so tightly the poor fellow has no power to say that it was thirst for knowledge that led him to the dishonest act, but grip the collar tighter and tighter, saying: "I have been looking for you a long while. You stole my paper four or five times, haven't you, you miserable wretch?" And then the old stock gambler, with a voice they can hear three blocks, will cry out: "Police, police!" That same man the evening of the day in which he watered the stock will kneel with his family in prayers and thank God for the prosperity of the day, then kiss his children good night with an air which seems to say: "I hope you all will grow up to be as good as your father." Prisons for sins insectile in size, but palaces for crimes dromedarian. No mercy for sins animalcule in proportion, but great leniency for mastodon iniquity. A poor boy slyly takes from the basket of a market woman a choke pear—saving some one else from the cholera—and you smother him in the horrible atmosphere of Raymond street jail or New York tombs, while his cousin, who has been skillful enough to steal $50,000 from the city, you make a candidate for the state legislature.

There is a good deal of uneasiness and nervousness now among some people in our time who have got unrighteous fortunes—a great deal of uneasiness about dynamite. I tell them that God will put under their unrighteous fortunes something more explosive than dynamite—the earthquake of His omnipotent indignation. It is time that we learn in America that sin is not excusable in proportion as it declares large dividends and has outriders in equipage. Many a man is riding to perdition, postilion ahead and lackey behind. To steal one copy of a newspaper is a gnat; to steal many thousands of dollars is a camel. There is many a fruit dealer who would not consent to steal a basket of peaches from a neighbor's stall, but who would not scruple to depress the fruit market, and as long as I can remember we have heard every summer the peach crop of Maryland is a failure, and by the time the crop comes in the misrepresentation makes a difference of millions of dollars. A man who would not steal one basket of peaches steals 50,000 baskets of peaches.

Go down into the public library, in the reading-rooms, and see the newspaper reports of the crops from all parts of the country, and their phraseology is very much the same, and the same men wrote them, methodically and infamously carrying out the huge lying about the grain crop from year to year and for a score of years. After awhile there will be a "corner" in the wheat market, and the men who had a contempt for petty theft will burglarize the wheat bin of a nation and commit larceny upon the American corn crib. And some of the men will sit in churches and in reformatory institutions trying to strain out the small gnats of secundrelism, while in their grain elevators and in their storehouses they are fattening large camels which they expect after awhile to swallow. Society has to be entirely reconstructed on this subject. We are to find that a sin is inexcusable in proportion as it is great. I know in our time the tendency is to charge religious frauds upon good men. They say: "Oh, what a host of frauds you have in the church of God in this day!" And when the elder of a church, or a deacon, or a minister of the Gospel, or a superintendent of a Sabbath school turns out a defaulter, what display heads there are in many of the newspapers! Great primer type. Five-line pica. "Another Saint Absconded," "Clerical Scoundrelism," "Religion at a Discount," "Shame on the Churches," while there are a thousand scoundrels outside the church to one inside the church, and the misbehavior of those who never see the inside of a church is so great that it is enough to tempt a man to become a Christian to get out of their company. But in all circles, religious and irreligious, the tendency is to excuse sin in proportion as it is mammoth. Even John Milton in his "Paradise Lost," while he condemns Satan, gives such a grand description of him you have hard work to withhold your admiration. Oh, this straining out of small sins like gnats and this gulping down great iniquities like camels!

This subject does not give the picture of one or two persons, but is a gallery in which thousands of people may see their likenesses. For instance, all those people who, while they would not rob their neighbors of a farthing, appropriate the money and the treasure of the public. A man has a house to sell, and he tells his customer it is worth $20,000. Next day the assessor comes around and the owner says it is worth $15,000. The government of the United States took off the tax from personal income, among other reasons, because so few people would tell the truth, and many a man with an income of hundreds of dollars a day made statements which seemed to imply he was about to be handed over to the overseers of the poor. Careful to pay their passage from Liverpool to New York, yet smuggling in their saratoga trunk ten silk dresses from Paris and a half dozen watches from Geneva, Switzerland, telling the custom house officer on the wharf: "There is nothing in that trunk but wearing apparel," and putting a five-dollar gold piece in his hand to punctuate the statement.

Described in the text are all those who are particular never to break the law of grammar and who want all their language an elegant specimen of syntax, straining out all the inaccuracies of speech with a fine sieve of literary criticism, while through their conversation go slander and innuendo and profanity and falsehood larger than a whole caravan of camels, when they might better fracture every law of the language and shock their intellectual taste, and better let every verb seek in vain for its nominative and every noun for its government, and let every preposition lose its way in the sentence, and adjectives and participles and pronouns get into a grand riot worthy of the Fourth ward of New York on election day, than to commit a moral inaccuracy. Better swallow a thousand gnats than one camel.

Such persons are also described in the text who are very much alarmed about the small faults of others and have no alarm about their own great transgressions. There are in every community and in every church watchdogs who feel called upon to keep their eyes on others and growl. They are full of suspicions. They wonder if this man is not dishonest, if that man is not unclean, if there is not something wrong about the other man. They are always the first to hear of anything wrong. Vultures are always the first to smell carrion. They are self-appointed detectives. I lay this down as a rule without any exception, that those people who have the most faults themselves are most mercileus in their watchings of others. From scalp of head to sole of foot they are full of jealousies and hypercriticisms. They spend their life in hunting for muskrats and mud turtles instead of hunting for Rocky mountain eagles, always for something mean instead of something grand. They look at their neighbors' imperfections through a microscope and look at their own imperfections through a telescope upside down. Twenty faults of their own do not hurt them so much as one fault of somebody else. Their neighbors' imperfections are like gnats, and they strain them out; their own imperfections are like camels, and they swallow them.

But lest too many might think they escape the scrutiny of the text, I have to tell you that we all come under the Divine satire when we make the questions of time more prominent than the questions of eternity. Come, now, let us all go into the confessional. Are not all tempted to make the question: Where shall I live now? greater than the question: Where shall I live forever? How shall I get more dollars here? greater than the question: How shall I lay up treasures in Heaven? The question: How shall I pay my debts to man? greater than the question: How shall I meet my obligations to God? The question: How shall I gain the world? greater than the question: What if I lose my soul? The question: Why did God let sin come into the world? greater than the question: How shall I get rid of it from my nature? The question: What shall I do with the 20 or 40 or 70 years of my sub-lunar existence? greater than the question: What shall I do with the millions of cycles of my post terrestrial existence? Time—how small it is! Eternity—how vast it is! The former more insignificant in comparison with the latter than a gnat is insignificant when compared with a camel. We dodged the text. We said: "That does not mean me, and that does not mean me," and with a ruinous benevolence we are giving the whole sermon away.

But let us all surrender to the charge. What an ado about things here! What poor preparation for a great eternity! As though a minnow were larger than a behemoth, as though a swallow took wider circuit than an albatross, as though a nettle were taller than a Lebanon cedar, as though a gnat were greater than a camel, as though a minute were longer than a century, as though time were higher, deeper, broader than eternity. So the text which flashed with lightning of wit as Christ uttered it is followed by the crashing thunders of awful catastrophe to those who make the questions of time greater than the questions of the future, the oncoming, overshadowing future. Oh! Eternity Eternity! Eternity!

HARMONY OF REPUBLICANS.

As It Exists in the State of Ohio Among the Bosses at the Present Time.

The Chicago Times-Herald, the leading administration organ in the middle west, has been keeping up a running fire of attack upon republican Senator Foraker, of Ohio. Some quotations from the Times-Herald upon this subject, the Argus has republished.

Senator Foraker has replied to certain of the attack. [illegible]

"My attention has just been called to the editorial in the Times-Herald of last Sunday, entitled: 'Now, Retire Foraker.' This article is made up of charges and insinuations that are but a tissue of falsehoods from beginning to end, without any basis of excuse whatever, and you knew that they were such when you published them. I respectfully ask that you print this as publicly as you did the editorial to which it has reference."

The Chicago Times-Herald prints the above, and comments upon it as follows:

"Among the charges and insinuations Senator Foraker characterizes as a tissue of falsehoods from beginning to end was the statement of his connection with the ballot box forgeries. This matter received official investigation in Washington in January, 1890. It was proved that this same Senator Foraker, then governor of Ohio, entered into a conspiracy with one Richard G. Wood, of the Hall & Wood Ballot Box Co., for the purpose of attaching the names of certain prominent Ohioans, including Gov. Campbell, Ben Butterworth, William McKinley and others, to a contract which was to be used as a bluff against Campbell and also to discredit the others.

"Foraker's plot miscarried, because the forged signatures were accepted as genuine and the truth had to come out to save its author from more desperate consequences.

"Before being dismissed from the stand Wood said: 'Gov. Foraker doesn't dare ask me any questions. I have not told half what I know yet. I am holding back my best points for cross-examination, and he knows it.'

"If there is a single prominent man in Ohio who does not cherish a painful memory of faith betrayed and friendship abused by Joseph B. Foraker, from John Sherman down to Mayor McKisson, the Times-Herald would like to print his name in capitals."

Concurrently with the above contributions to republican harmony in Ohio, are published interviews with Mark Hanna, attacking republican Mayor Jones, of Toledo, and interviews with Jones, attacking Hanna.

Says Hanna of Jones: "He is simply a crank;" "a disappointed candidate for governor;" "the real workingmen are not with him;" "he is backed by the riff-raff and the idle fellows you meet in every city—the liquor dealers and bums were for him."

Says Jones of Hanna: "He is an intolerant tyrant and insufferable boss;" "his reference to me and my ambition respecting the governorship and my connection with the labor convention in Columbus is a tissue of lies, which I charitably charge to his leading characteristic, his colossal ignorance. If we have reached a period of the history of the great state of Ohio when a boss like this can subvert the will of the people, as he did at the Columbus convention, then indeed may the people despair, for their cause is desperate."

Republican harmony in Ohio, which lately was able to sit up, take nourishment and recognize folks, has evidently had a relapse, and the worst is to be feared.—Albany Argus.

——Dr. McQueston, late of Gen. Otis' staff, and health officer at Manila, says that the western volunteers are "the finest soldiers in the world," but "they all want to return home." And the reason he gives is this: "The men enlisted to fight for their country, and they are not the kind of men who want to stay and fight an insurrection for money or the fun of fighting." Nobody knows better than the volunteers that they are not "fighting for their country" or to liberate an oppressed people, but are engaged in a conflict to correct Mr. McKinley's colossal blunder.—N. Y. World.

——In the opinion of the Rochester Democrat and Chronicle, "the democrats of the country are no more opposed to the really obnoxious phases of what are erroneously called trusts than republicans are." Will the next republican platform contain a plank denouncing "the really obnoxious phases of what are erroneously called trusts?"—Albany Argus.

THE FLOP OF ALGER.

He Has Given Governor Pingree a Throw-Down on the Senatorial Scheme.

Alger has fooled Pingree. In the language of the race track, the unresigned secretary has hedged.

In his last unbosoming, which was made to New York reporters, he assures the public that he never had any idea of forming an alliance with Gov. Pingree. The latter, he declares, to his surprise called upon him during a recent visit [illegible] and persisted in forcing upon him, as it were, a senatorial boom. Alger admits the soft impeachment that he accepted the boom, but says that in doing so he made no alliance either offensive or defensive with Pingree.

This presentation of the case does not accord with Alger's interview given to the Chicago reporters several days ago, just after he came from his conference with Pingree. Then he acknowledged that he had joined hands with the potato statesman for the purpose of defeating Mr. McMillan for the Michigan senatorship and securing the toga for his own shoulders.

He even admitted that he would make his fight on a platform declaring hostility to the trusts and favoring the election of senators by direct popular vote. He did not deny Pingree on that occasion, or mention that he had ever opposed his potatoship for governor. But he did deny that he was ever a member of the Diamond Match trust, which denial has since been refuted by Alger's own testimony taken from the records of a court in which that trust was a litigant.

Alger's New York interview will hardly impress the public as being the whole truth. He has got himself into a fix trying to carry water on both shoulders and is trying to prevaricate out of it. There are fat pickings in the two years' lease that remain to him of the war department control. He does not care to lose them. He has concluded that the secretaryship bird in the hand is worth more than the Michigan senatorship in the bush. Pingree's thoughts must be interesting just now.—St. Louis Republic.

CAN'T LOSE ALGY.

ALGER—No, Pingree, there can be no alliance between us after all. I can't desert the administration.
"And the blow almost killed father."

COMMENTS OF THE PRESS.

——President McKinley may need most of those army commissions to secure harmony in Ohio this fall.—Chicago Record (Ind.).

——"Alger, Alger, four years more of Alger" ought to prove an inspiring slogan for the McKinley second-term campaign.—Albany Argus.

——Mark Hanna says: "There is not a man in the United States to-day out of work who wants to work." The man who makes a statement like that is either a fool or a liar, and no one has ever accused Mark of being a fool.—Memphis Commercial-Appeal.

——A person by the name of Hobart—Garret A. Hobart—is announced to make a speech at Princeton, N. J. We seem to recall this man Hobart, but can't exactly place him. Wasn't he at one time a National league umpire, or is he the man who fought Dooney Harris for the lightweight belt in 1857?—Chicago Chronicle.

——The report is current that President McKinley has commenced to "freeze" Secretary Alger out of the cabinet. If he hopes for success he will have to resort to some method whereby he can reach a colder temperature than scientists have yet wot of. Mr. Alger is one species of the ice worm, and he thrives in a cold climate, while the soldiers die in a hot one.—Pittsburgh Post.

——It is encouraging to see so many leading republican newspapers coming out with an open confession that the trusts must go, and the only way to kill them off is to destroy that which makes them possible—namely, high protection. But the eastern leaders of the republican party will never permit the national convention to declare for a tariff for revenue only, and in that they will be seconded by Hanna and nearly all the western leaders. Then what will the anti-high protection republican organs do? At this time it looks like a lot of trouble for the Hanna-McKinley combine next year.—Kansas City Times.

NATIONAL PROGRESS.

Nothing Like the Commercial Growth of the United States in the History of Nations.

In an address before the New York Press association, at its forty-third annual meeting recently, Mr. George H. Daniels, general passenger agent of the New York Central & Hudson River railroad, touched upon the effects of the late war with Spain upon our commerce and industries in the following impressive words:

"One of the remarkable statements of Mr. Mulhall, the British statistician, in his work on 'The Wealth of Nations,' was this: 'If we take a survey of mankind, in ancient or modern times, as regards the physical, mechanical and intellectual force of nations, we find nothing to compare with the United States, in this present year, 1895.'

"Mr. Mulhall proved by his statistics that the working power of a single person in the United States was twice that of a German or Frenchman, more than three times that of an Austrian and five times that of an Italian. He said the United States was then the richest country in the world, its wealth exceeding that of Great Britain by 25 per cent., and added that in the history of the human race no nation ever before possessed forty-one millions of instructed citizens.

"Should Mr. Mulhall revise his figures to-day, the differences would all be in favor of the United States, for in the past twelve months we have demonstrated the superiority of our manufacturers in every direction, and our ability to cope successfully with questions which have heretofore been handled exclusively by the older nations is recognized by all the world.

"The four years that have intervened between the time of your meeting at Lake George and to-day have been years of great events and achievements.

"I said at the Lake George meeting that 'one of the inevitable results of the war between Japan and China would be the opening to the commerce of the world of fields heretofore unknown, perhaps the richest on the globe,' and in urging the members of the New York Press association to do everything in their power to secure to the United States a portion of the great commerce to be developed between the western nations and these two old countries of the world, I asked three questions:

"'Shall the grain in China and Japan be harvested by machines manufactured along the lines of the New York Central, or will the manufacturers of England and Germany supply them?

"'Shall the fires in Yokohama and Tientsin be extinguished with engines built at Seneca Falls, or will France and England send their fire engines to Japan and China?

"'Will the locomotives, to haul the fast mail trains between Yokohama and the interior of Japan and through the rich valley of China, be built at Schenectady or Dunkirk, or will our oriental friends and neighbors in the Pacific buy them of our English cousins?'

"I predicted that active efforts toward the extension of American commerce by commercial bodies, supported by a liberal and broad-minded policy on the part of our government, would undoubtedly secure to the United States the blessings that come from a great and varied commerce, and I said that the New York Press association, and similar associations all over the country, could stimulate a public spirit that would insure the important results outlined.

"At that time we had no idea that a war between one of the old nations of the earth and our young republic would be fought; at that time we had no idea that American manufacturers would be furnishing locomotives to the English railroads, as well as Japanese, and no one thought four years ago that American bridge builders would go into the open market and successfully compete for the building of a great steel bridge in Egypt; nor that in so brief a time American engineers would be building railroads into the interior of China from the most important seaports and furnishing locomotives by the score to nearly every country on the globe.

"In a letter from a friend in Tokio, Japan, written only a short time ago, there was this significant sentence: 'You will be interested in knowing that I have hanging on the wall of my office a framed picture of your Empire State Express, and we expect in the near future to be hauling a Japanese Empire Express with an American locomotive.' They have now in Japan nearly 100 locomotives that were built in the United States. In Russia they have over 400 of our locomotives, and nearly every railroad in Great Britain has ordered locomotives from this country since the beginning of the war with Spain.

"In this connection it will be interesting to note in passing that the second American locomotive was built at the West Point foundry near Cold Spring, on the Hudson river, and was called the Best Friend, and from that day to this the locomotive has been one of the best friends of all our people.

"Prince Michel Hilkoff, imperial minister of railways of Russia, has, since his visit to the United States a few years ago, constructed a train on much the same lines as the New York Central's Lake Shore Limited.

"Only a short time ago, at the request of one of the imperial commissioners of Germany, the New York Central sent to Berlin photographs of the interior and exterior of our finest cars and other data in relation to the operation of American railways. Several other countries have asked for similar information, and there is a general waking up of foreign nations on the subject of transportation, brought about mainly by the wonderful achievements of American railways."

AGRICULTURAL HINTS.

SIMPLE BROOD FRAME.

Description of One That Can Be Put Together by the Amateur Without Any Expense.

I have been working the past winter to devise a hive that would come within the scope of those possessed of ordinary skill and tools. By the time, however, that I could get a description of it in print, and a hive built from it, the time for its use would probably be past. I take it the part that will give the novice the most trouble is the brood frame, a description of which I give herewith:

Take a board of suitable size and nail on some cleats, as indicated in Fig. 1

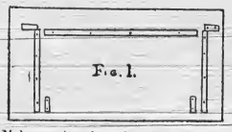

FIG. 1.

Make a miter box the width of the frame—say seven-eighths or one inch. Nail a piece in the bottom of one end for a stop. From this stop measure off the length of the top rail, and saw down at right angles. For the bottom rail you can set in a loose piece about an inch thick, which will avoid two saw gashes coming too close together.

For the end posts make another gash at the right distance from the stop.

For the brace pieces you will need another box about an inch and a quarter wide. Nail in bottom of this a stop sawed at an angle of 45 degrees, and from a corner of this saw a gash of 45 degrees; shove it into the box to the stop, and saw it off; then turn it over, saw again, and so on, you will get the corner pieces.

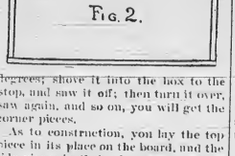

FIG. 2.

As to construction, you lay the top piece in its place on the board, and the side pieces in their places, and nail on the corner pieces; then nail the top to ends and turn over and nail on bottom, and you have a strong frame, as indicated in Fig. 2, that will space itself in the hive and stay there. One frame will need braces on both sides to keep it the proper distance from side of the hive.

As regards size, authorities differ. I made mine 16 inches long because that was the length of four honey boxes, and nine inches deep, because that was the depth of the hive.—Richard D. Mitchell, in Country Gentleman.

THE CHICKEN MITE.

There Is No Way to Secure Permanent Relief from the Pest, Except Eternal Vigilance.

This exceedingly troublesome and often fatal pest is the cause of many complaints from those raising chickens. The attacks of the pest are not confined to poultry, as it is often found in pigeon houses and in the nests of other birds about farm buildings. Where they are numerous they often find their way to animals confined in the infested buildings. The mites are nocturnal in their habits. During the daytime they are generally in hiding about the building, but at night they abandon their hiding places and seek for food. Chickens are often prevented from sleeping at night, and not rarely forced to abandon their eggs when setting. Instances have been recorded where birds have been killed by this mite.

There is no way to receive permanent relief from the pest. The remedies must be applied often and thoroughly, since the insect is able to live a long time without eating. Cleanliness must be observed. The hen manure should be frequently removed, as it often swarms with the pest. If the hen house is light fumigation by sulphur is very effective. To prevent any accident by fire, flout the metal vessel containing the burning sulphur in a tub of water. After several hours of fumigation, air the building well before occupancy. Pure kerosene is also to be recommended. The interior of the building, including perches, should be well sprayed with it. After using kerosene remember to air the building before introducing a light.—P. J. Parrott, in Farmers' Voice.

The Selection of Layers.

Much has been written regarding egg type or the picking out of layers from their shape. We believe there is something in it. We believe that a bright, active hen, with a rather long, deep body, is a better layer than a sluggish acting, compact or rounded bodied one. Yet there is far more in breeding than in selection. If we want layers we must breed from noted layers. "Like will beget like," and a noted layer will be more likely to produce layers than a poor layer. So the only way to be sure to get good layers is to breed them. Not only must the hen be a good layer but the cock must be from the same strain. This will necessitate in-breeding somewhat, but with good judgment and unlimited range, this will not hurt the strain unless persisted in too long. It is best to use two flocks that are not related at the start.—Farmers' Review.

FEEDING EAR CORN.

The New Jersey Experiment Station Proves Unwisdom of the Practice by Eloquent Figures.

The practice of feeding ear-corn to cattle is very widespread. The impression seems to be that what is lost in the unused corn is made up in the saving in labor and expense of grinding. The practice of having hogs "follow" cattle originated in a desire to make good a part of this loss. The practice however, is not one that commends itself to men that practice advanced methods in feeding. Even in the cases of men that have their cattle followed by hogs in summer time, the same practice of feeding corn on the cob is continued during the winter and during all other times, when the loss cannot certainly be made good by the hogs. Experiments have demonstrated that the loss of good feeding material by the practice is very large. The New Jersey experiment station recently made some tests that were strongly demonstrative of the unwisdom of this course. One cow was fed ten pounds of corn on the cob daily, of which 5.73 pounds appeared in the excrement, thus showing that 57.3 per cent. went through the stomachs of the cow without being affected by the digestive processes. It must be taken into consideration that there is a loss otherwise than of the 57.3 per cent. of corn, for the animal has had to use some force in the process of passing this unused material through the system. The station mentioned figured out that in the case of a cow giving milk the value of a ton of corn and cob meal was $9.38 more than a ton of ear corn. Of course, from this must be deducted the cost of husking and grinding a ton of corn, but this would seldom exceed a half of the increased value represented.—Farmers' Review.

PEN FOR BROOD SOWS.

It Is Frost-Proof and Pigs Can Be Raised in It Even in the Coldest Weather.

Thousands of farmers are using the portable pigpen shown in illustration. The objection to it in cold weather is that the cold wind striking the outside of pen condenses the warm air and steam on the inside, producing frost and ice. To remedy this I first board up in the usual way, cover with good quality building paper, nail on cleats crosswise, cover with boards one foot wide and batten. A two-inch air space between the outer and inner wall is thus secured. The ends should be fixed up the same way. Now you have an almost air-tight pen and a sow would not live in it long. For ventilation, bore a two-inch hole through the outer wall near the bottom of pen on the end. Bore a corresponding hole on the inside near the top. Reverse the position of these holes on opposite end. Have a double window in one end high up out of the reach of the sow. The door in the other end should also be double. Place a guard for little pigs across back end and a trough near front end. If the weather is very cold, hitch a team to pen and draw in onto barn floor. Pigs can then be raised in coldest weather.—Orange Judd Farmer.

PORTABLE DOUBLE-WALLED HOG HOUSE.

WITH THE BUSY BEES.

Nothing irritates bees so much as a sudden jar.

The best trees to set around the hive are fruit trees.

It is a mistake to let a colony of bees be overstocked with drones.

Nothing is gained by feeding bees when there are plenty of flowers.

When bees build comb in their natural way an excess of drones is usually produced.

The life of a bee depends upon the work it does. When it works its life is shortened.

No drones are reared in a colony until it becomes very strong and the combs are well filled.

To produce a large crop of honey bees should not be allowed to swarm, but kept together.

Bees have been known to swarm in a box hive when the hive was only three-fourths full.

Each frame of comb in a hive should occupy an inch and a half of space, taking care to space with exactness.

Pure white comb honey, with very little propolis on the wood of the sections denotes that they were taken out as soon as they were filled.

A swarm of bees hived upon a full set of combs at the opening of the honey season will fill their hive full in a week, ready for surplus boxes.

At intervals during the summer, when the bees cannot gather honey, the queens quit laying and the strength of the colony is curtailed.—St. Louis Republic.

Progress in Pig-Raising.

The man who has his pigs come out at a time when he must feed them through the winter and into the next fall before he can get them on the market is a loser in the sense that he does not get as much for the grain he feeds as does his neighbor who makes his calculations so as to enable him to sell his pigs the fall after they are farrowed, saving himself the extra winter feed that is required to carry the animal through the cold weather. The modern hog is born to grow fat and get on the market at six or eight months, and if he is kept longer he is a bill of expense to his owner.—Farmers' Voice.

HE HAD A GOOD PLACE.

Jimmie's Mother Thought Her Sailor Son Had Gone to Work for a Minister.

"One of the nicest, most motherly old ladies I meet in my rounds," remarked a traveling man who sells goods through the southern states, "is at the same time one of the most ignorant of everything except how to get up a good deal of victuals and give a tired drummer a comfortable bed and clean sheets to sleep in. She has been running a little tavern in a Maryland town for 40 years, I suppose, and hasn't been five miles from home since she was a girl. Her only son, a chap of about 28, on the contrary, has not been within five miles of home for longer than six months in the last 20 years. However, he keeps her posted as to his whereabouts, and in all his wanderings he does not forget her. When last heard from he had got some kind of a position on board the United States revenue cutter McCulloch, the vessel that was Dewey's dispatch boat at Manila, and is at present doing duty between California and the Behring sea. About a week or ten days ago I took dinner at her place, and in the century dinner it was, too, and I asked her about her boy.

"'Oh,' she responded with a smile that would make anybody glad to have her for a mother, 'Jimmie is doing so well now. He don't always get into the best places, and I am afraid that sometimes he gets into real bad ones, but he is turning over a new leaf, I guess, for he has gone to work with a preacher. He didn't mention what denomination he was, but that don't make any difference, so long as Jimmie just works for him.'

"'I'm glad to hear it,' I said. 'Who is the preacher?'

"'I don't know, except that his name is Rev. Cutter McCulloch. I'll show you Jimmie's letter.'

"She did so, and there I read briefly, as might be expected: 'I am now with the Rev. Cutter McCulloch and doing well,' and I smiled softly to myself, but I never said a word to Jimmie's mother."

WOMAN'S SPHERE.

An Incident of the Days of Anti-Slavery Agitation in Connecticut.

During the days of the anti-slavery agitation the women took a rather prominent part in the work. Once, after Abbey Kelly, the talented young Quakeress, had spoken publicly at Torringford, Conn., a local minister denounced her as a "Jezebel," and called a meeting in the town hall to protest against the outrage on public decency. The Listener tells what happened as follows:

"A large crowd attended, the women filling one side of the hall, facing their lords and masters, who were marshaled on the other side. The minister read the chapter of St. Paul which applies to the subject, laying especial stress on the text: 'Wives, obey your husbands.' Then he declaimed long and loudly on the proper sphere of women, and announced all those who departed from it to obtain educations which were not adapted to their modest duties in life, or to become public teachers or speakers. He had just finished his discourse, having climaxed it with a final rhetorical flourish about woman's sphere, when suddenly the floor timbers on the women's side of the house gave way, and every woman and girl was dropped into the cellar. And there, from amidst the tangle of bruised women and rotten timbers, an elderly woman's voice was heard rising: 'Well! I hope we've reached our proper sphere now!' I understand that Torringford is a stronghold of advanced views on the subject of woman's education to this day. Such is the irony of fate."

THE MARKETS.

CINCINNATI, July 17.
LIVE STOCK—Cattle, common	$ 3 00	@ 4 00
Select butchers	4 75	@ 4 85
CALVES—Fair to good light	6 50	@ 7 25
HOGS—Coarse and heavy	3 80	@ 4 00
Mixed packers	4 10	@ 4 20
Light shippers	4 25	@ 4 40
SHEEP—Choice	3 85	@ 4 15
LAMBS	5 50	@ 6 25
FLOUR—Winter patents	3 60	@ 3 70
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 red	68	@ 71½
No. 3 red	66	@ 68
Corn—No. 2 mixed	29½	@ 30½
Oats—No. 2 mixed	26½	@ 27½
Rye—No. 2	50	@ 52
HAY—Prime to Choice	11 00	@ 12 00
PROVISIONS—Mess pork	9 50	@ 9 75
Lard	5 50	@ 5 62½
BUTTER—Choice dairy	10	@ 12
Prime to choice creamery	15	@ 20
APPLES—Choice to fancy	2 25	@ 3 00
POTATOES—New, per bbl	1 50	@ 1 60
CHICAGO.
FLOUR—Winter patent	3 50	@ 3 70
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 red	73½	@ 73⅞
No. 2 hleuers spring	71	@ 71⅞
Corn—No. 2	30	@ 30½
OATS—No. 2	24	@ 24½
PORK—Mess	8 50	@ 9 15
LARD—Steam	5 25	@ 5 37½
NEW YORK.
FLOUR—Winter patent	3 75	@ 4 00
WHEAT—No. 2 red	69	@ 70½
CO N—No. 2 mixed	42	@ 42½
OATS	64	@ 64½
PORK—Mixed	9 25	@ 9 31
PORK—New mess	9 25	@ 9 75
HOGS—Western	4 00	@ 4 50
BALTIMORE.
FLOUR—Family	3 35	@ 3 60
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 red	71	@ 71¾
Southern	70	@ 72
Corn—Mixed	38	@ 38¼
Oats—No. 2 white	31	@ 31⅞
Rye—No. 2 western		@ 57½
CATTLE—First quality	4 75	@ 4 90
HOGS—Western	4 00	@ 4 60
INDIANAPOLIS.
GRAIN—Wheat, No. 2 red		@ 71
Corn—No. 2 mixed		@ 33½
Oats—No. 2 mixed		@ 27
LOUISVILLE.
FLOUR—Winter patent	3 75	@ 4 00
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 red		@ 70
Corn—Mixed		@ 36
Oats—Mixed		@ 28
PORK—Mess		@ 8 50
LARD—Steam		@ 5 75

HIS COURAGE FAILED

He Was Brave Enough Until He Faced Mary Ann, Then He Wilted.

It is the proud boast of Archie Bruce that he is a lineal descendant of the great Scottish hero, and, as becomes a man of his blood, he prides himself on his courage. For several months there has been in his family a servant who has completely terrorized his wife, the latter being the victim and not the commander of her nerves. There was a terrible row between mistress and maid last Saturday, and on Monday morning Mrs. Bruce said to her husband:

"Archie, I cannot stand Mary Jane any longer. Won't you please discharge her before you go to business this morning? You know how afraid of her I am."

"Certainly," replied Mr. Bruce, with suave courage, "certainly. The crossest creature that ever cracked a cup or cleaned a kettle cannot cow me."

The valiant Archibald sometimes surprises himself and his friends by floating along on a stream of alliteration. Procuring his hat and coat, he descended to the basement kitchen, and in stentorian tones bravely addressed the servant:

"Mary Jane, ahem! I must hurry off now, but, ahem!—Mrs. Bruce asked me to tell you that she wants, ahem!—to speak to you after I have gone to the office!"—San Francisco News Letter.

A MAN OF PRUDENCE.

He Thought a Cyclone Cellar Might Come in Handy When He Was Married.

"Speaking of wives and their dispositions and tendencies," said Mr. Biskum to the evening crowd in front of his cross-roads store, "there was John Brunt, that lived for ten years in the cyclone belt in Kansas, trying to raise corn and mortgages and things like that, until he was able to borrow money enough to get back to Maryland again without walking more than half way. John come right to me, and I let him have a job on my farm at $20 a month, for he was a hard worker and thrifty. At the end of the year he had got the Widow Allen's promise to marry him in October, and he rented a nice little farm to do business again on his own hook. John was a widower himself, and being a practical sort of a man, he went to work right away putting the farm and the house into shape. One day I happened over his way, and found him digging a hole in the back yard.

"'What's that for?' says I, walking around and looking over things.

"'That's a cyclone cellar, Mr. Biskum,' says he.

"'A cyclone cellar?' says I, considerably astonished. 'What do you want a cyclone cellar for? This ain't Kansas.'

"'I know it ain't,' says he; 'but you know, Mr. Biskum,' and he got very confidential, 'I'm going to get married, and a cyclone cellar may come in mighty handy occasionally.'"—Washington Star.

SHAPE OF AN ANAESTHETIC.

As Described by an Eminent Specialist Who Had Used One in an Operation.

It is a Bath physician who tells the following:

Some time ago I happened to spend the night in a country town not far from Bath and it happened that there was stopping at the same hotel an itinerant eye specialist.

"We drifted into a conversation, and during the course of the evening he told me some of the marvelous operations he had performed on the eye. One case in particular he spoke of that caused me considerable astonishment, for I didn't know, I confess, that the operation had been successfully performed. He said he had recently taken out a patient's eye, scraped the back of it, and returned it to its proper place. The patient, he said, was never troubled by bad eyesight afterward.

"'That was a difficult operation, doctor?' said I.

"'Yes,' said he, 'it was.'

"'I suppose you found it necessary to employ an anaesthetic?'

"'Yes, I did,' he admitted.

"'What anaesthetic did you use, doctor?' I persisted.

"'Oh, well, unless you are familiar with such operations you probably wouldn't understand if I were to tell you. But well, it was shaped something like a spoon,' explained the eminent specialist."—Lewiston (Me.) Journal.

Justice in the West.

"Heard a couple of good ones on this trip," announced one of Detroit's traveling men. "At a little town in Oklahoma court was in session, and I dropped in while waiting for the train. The prosecution had taken the testimony of a stationary engineer, and the attorney for the defense took hold. 'Where were you the day this thing happened?' he inquired.

"'Runnin' a injun.'

"'What tribe did he belong to?'

"'The day before a case had been tried in which a man had climbed to the top of a freight car laid up on a siding. He had no business there, but lowered the brake. The car started down grade, gained speed rapidly for five miles, and then turned a somersault over an embankment. His collar bone was broken and he got a verdict for $500 because a smart lawyer convinced the jury that the railroad was guilty of contributory negligence."—Detroit Free Press.

Filling the Gap.

The bright boy of fiction is playing with his Noah's ark.

"What are these two chips of wood?" asks the bright boy's father.

It is necessary for the bright boy of fiction to have a father, you know; there has to be somebody to draw him out.

"Them—replied the bright boy, without hesitation, is the microbes!"

Of course, if we think a minute, we perceive that there must have been a pair of microbes on the ark.—Detroit Journal.

Makes That a Business.

Pilson—Are you going to take part in that guessing contest?

Dilson—Oh, no; they'd rule me out as a professional.

"Professional?"

"Yes; you know I am connected with the weather bureau."—Ohio State Journal.

Bacon—"I can't understand why your wife calls that Wagnerian stuff heavenly music." Egbert—"Because it sounds like thunder, I suppose."—Yonkers Statesman.

Miss Ethel—"Music always makes me feel sad; doesn't it you, Mr. Suds?" Mr. S.—"Yes; but I like it—it's awfully jolly to feel sad, don't y' know."—Brooklyn Life.

The scarcity of men should never result in making a poor one more desirable, but it unfortunately does.—Atchison Globe.

So much of the happiness of life depends on whether you will give up your solo for a part in the chorus.—Ram's Horn.

Beautiful Women.

Every woman should have the beauty, vivacity and vigor of perfect health. A strong stomach is the first essential to physical beauty in either man or woman. Nine-tenths of the sickness of the human race comes from weak digestion. Thousands of people, after years of discouragement, have tried Hostetter's Stomach Bitters and regained their health. There is nothing like it for the cure of stomach troubles. See that a private Revenue Stamp covers the neck of the bottle.

Brothers In Affliction.

The czar can sympathize with that ancient Indian who is credited with giving his name to the city of Cheboygan. He had just returned from a long hunting trip through the northern wilds of the Michigan peninsula when the native nurse hurried forward and dashed his hopes by telling him he was the father of a third little daughter. The noble red man straightened up, and, with a look of deepest disgust on his coppery face, guttirally exclaimed: "She-boy gain!"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Slightly Mixed.

Mrs. Henpeck—The Episcopal funeral service is so beautiful! I want it read over me when I die.

Mr. Henpeck—Certainly! There's something in it about "Here endeth the first lesson," isn't there?—Kansas City Independent.

Ladies Can Wear Shoes

One size smaller after using Allen's Foot-Ease, a powder for the feet. It makes tight or new shoes easy. Cures swollen, hot, sweating, aching feet, ingrowing nails, corns and bunions. At all druggists and shoe stores, 25c. Trial package FREE by mail. Address Allen S. Olmsted, Le Roy, N. Y.

Trophies of the Chase.

"What are those queer-looking trophies the Filipinos wear around their necks?" asked the raw recruit.

"Them's the medals for the century runs they've made during the war," replied the Kansas volunteer.—Philadelphia North American.

The Best Prescription for Chills

and Fever is a bottle of Grove's Tasteless Chill Tonic. It is simply iron and quinine in a tasteless form. No cure—no pay. Price, 50c.

A New Game.

McSwatters—I hear that you put a step to your wife's going through your pockets.

Wickwire—Yes.

"How go on work it?"

"Put tacks in your pockets."—Berlin (Md.) Herald.

To Cure a Cold in One Day

Take Laxative Bromo Quinine Tablets. All druggists refund money if it fails to cure. 25c.

Good Reason.—Grandma—"I wouldn't eat that hard apple in that way, Willie." Willie—"I shouldn't think you would, grandma. I wouldn't either if didn't have no more teeth 'n you've got."—Philadelphia Bulletin.

Putnam Fadeless Dyes are the easiest package dyes in the world to use. No complicated directions, do not stain the hands or spot the kettle. Putnam Fadeless Dyes will not rub off, wash or fade. Sold by druggists at 10c per package.

Where He Landed.—Gigge—"What became of that son-in-law of yours who failed in business about a year ago? Has he got on his feet again?" Briggs—"No; he is still on my hands."—Ohio State Journal.

After physicians had given me up, I was saved by Piso's Cure.—Ralph Erieg, Williamsport, Pa., Nov. 22, 1895.

The man who doesn't believe in signs is liable to get fresh paint on his clothes.—Philadelphia Record.

The man who goes through life alone generally has poor company.—Chicago Daily News.

Hall's Catarrh Cure

Is taken Internally. Price 75c.

"Keeping at it" is a mighty good substitute for real genius.—L. A. W. Bulletin.

An Excellent Combination.

The pleasant method and beneficial effects of the well known remedy, SYRUP OF FIGS, manufactured by the CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO., illustrate the value of obtaining the liquid laxative principles of plants known to be medicinally, laxative and presenting them in the form most refreshing to the taste and acceptable to the system. It is the one perfect strengthening laxative, cleansing the system effectually, dispelling colds, headaches and fevers gently yet promptly and enabling one to overcome habitual constipation permanently. Its perfect freedom from every objectionable quality and substance, and its acting on the kidneys, liver and bowels, without weakening or irritating them, make it the ideal laxative.

In the process of manufacturing figs are used, as they are pleasant to the taste, but the medicinal qualities of the remedy are obtained from senna and other aromatic plants, by a method known to the CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO. only. In order to get its beneficial effects and to avoid imitations, please remember the full name of the Company printed on the front of every package.

CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO.
SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.
LOUISVILLE, KY. NEW YORK, N.Y.

For sale by all Druggists. —Price 50c. per bottle

E. R. L. Vanilla Co., Lakeville, Conn., sends Money-Making Outfit by mail on receipt of your premise to return money or goods in 10 days. Elegant sales that large profits.

DR. MOFFETT'S TEETHINA TEETHING POWDERS

Aids Digestion, Regulates the Bowels, Makes Teething Easy. TEETHINA Relieves the Bowel Troubles of Children of Any Age.

Costs Only 25 Cents. Ask Your Druggist for It.

Are You Ever Depressed?

And is it not due to nervous exhaustion? Things always look so much brighter when we are in good health. How can you have courage when suffering with headache, nervous prostration and great physical weakness?

Would you not like to be rid of this depression of spirits?

How? By removing the cause. By taking

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

It gives activity to all parts that carry away useless and poisonous materials from your body. It removes the cause of your suffering, because it removes all impurities from your blood. Send for our book on Nervousness.

To keep in good health you must have perfect action of the bowels. Ayer's Pills cure constipation and biliousness.

Write to our Doctors

Perhaps you would like to consult some eminent physicians about your condition. They write us freely all the particulars in your case. You will receive a prompt reply, without cost.

Address, DR. J. C. AYER,
Lowell, Mass.

Lazy Liver

"I have been troubled a great deal with a torpid liver, which produces constipation. I found CASCARETS to be all you claim for them, and secured such relief the first trial, that I purchased another supply and was completely cured. I shall only be too glad to recommend Cascarets whenever the opportunity is presented."
J. A. SMITH,
2020 Susquehanna Ave., Philadelphia, Pa.

CANDY CATHARTIC.
Cascarets
TRADE MARK REGISTERED
REGULATE THE LIVER.

Pleasant. Palatable. Potent. Taste Good. Do Good. Never Sicken, Weaken, or Gripe. 10c, 25c, 50c

CURE CONSTIPATION.
Sterling Remedy Company, Chicago, Montreal, New York. 320

NO-TO-BAC Sold and guaranteed by all druggists to CURE Tobacco Habit.

CIDER MACHINERY.
Hydraulic and Screw Presses, Graters, Evaporators, Engines, Boilers. Illustrated Catalogue free. C. E. HAMPTON & SONS, DETROIT, MICH.

The B. & O. S. W.
Will run the first Excursion of the Season from the West to ATLANTIC CITY
And other Seacoast points,
August 3d, 1899. At very low rates.

$15.00 Round Trip From LOUISVILLE, SEYMOUR, N. VERNON.	$14.00 Round Trip From CINCINNATI, BLANCHESTER, HILLSBORO, PORTSMOUTH.
$13.00 Round Trip From CHILLICOTHE, HAMDEN, WELLSTON, JACKSON.	$12.50 Round Trip From ATHENS.
	$12.45 Round Trip From MARIETTA.

With correspondingly low rates from all intermediate points. The fine equipment of the Company will be placed in the service. Tickets will be good going only on above date and will be good for return passage within 15 days including date of sale. For additional information consult Agents B. & O. S.-W. Ry.

O. P. McCARTY, Gen. Pass. Agt.,
CINCINNATI, O.

EDUCATIONAL.

NEW HAMPSHIRE MILITARY ACADEMY
Prepares for Government Academies and Colleges. Full Commercial Course. Music. E. F. HYATT, A. M., Principal, WEST LEBANON, N. H.

BUSINESS EDUCATION FREE. Write for particulars. Home Correspondence School, Springfield, Mass.

A. N. K.—E 1770

WHEN WRITING TO ADVERTISERS please state that you saw the Advertisement in this paper.

Plantation Chill Cure is Guaranteed

To cure, or money refunded by your merchant, so why not try it? Price 50c.

NEIGHBORHOOD NEWS.

Hebron.

Miss Daisy Harding is visiting her grand parents at Utzinger.

J. N. Souther and wife spent Sunday with W. H. Clayton and family.

Miss Dora Hafer spent several days, last week, with friends in Covington.

J. C. Hankius and daughter, Oma, of Gunpowder, were visiting in our neighborhood, Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Stephens, of Burlington, were the pleasant guests of Henry Hafer and wife, Sunday.

A large crowd attended church here, Sunday morning. Bro. Lentz delivered an excellent sermon, which was enjoyed by all present.

Miss Clara Hossman has returned home, after a pleasant visit in the city, accompanied by her friend, Miss Mae Keck, a charming lady of Walnut Hills, Ohio.

The sad news reached here Sunday of the tragical death of Clifford and James Shannon, of Covington. The little fellows, who are grandsons of Mr. Pat Shannon, who lives near here, were out boat riding with some friends when the boat capsized, and three of its five occupants were drowned. The boys usually spent the greater part of the summer in this neighborhood, and have many warm friends among the boys of their age around here.

Flickertown.

Roasting ears are on the bill of fare.

Wade Tolin is night watchman at Botts & Gordon's camp.

Miss Tena Messner, of Newport, is visiting her father on Stringtown lane.

Merritt Sullivan was laid up several days, last week, with a sprained wrist.

Miss Maud Cook, of Covington, is visiting her sister, Mrs. Carrie Hensley.

They do say that some of our boys don't go to Pete as often as they use to.

Mrs. Mary Bachelor, who has been very low with typhoid fever, is slowly improving.

Miss May Smith has returned home, after a six weeks visit with relatives in Addyston, Ohio.

Miss Pradie Acra has returned home from Aurora, where she has been at work in the match factory.

Rev. Wm. Penn and Mr. England have bought Marshall Terrill's berry patch and are paying 30c a bucket.

When a man goes into a town and tries to run the officers out, he is pretty sure to come out at the little end of the horn.

Jim Gaines and Merritt Sullivan gave us a sample of the Corbett-Fitzimmon fight, one day last week. The performance took place in front of Jim Green's blacksmith shop.

A sharper, claiming to be a piano tuner, stayed at Marshall Terrill's one night last week, and when he left next morning took Marshall's lap-robe, hat and a pocket knife. Marshall followed him to Aurora, where he recovered his robe, but the other things he could not find.

No one ever thought that a young buzzard would make our Bellevue correspondent's hair stand on end, but judging from the description of that horrible thing he saw in the blackberry patch, it must have given him a terrible scare.

Albert Clements, who was wounded five weeks ago, in the trouble that occurred at Sherman when Elmer Franks was killed, after lingering and suffering untold agony for many days, died at his home in Dry Ridge, last Thursday morning, surrounded by many friends. While Mr. Clements had never united with any church, yet he was a noble, kind and generous hearted man, loved by all who knew him. Before dying he expressed his belief in Jesus, and told his wife that all was well and that he was going to heaven. He was a staunch citizen of our county who will be greatly missed. Thus another sad scene in that deplorable affair has passed, and the heartfelt sympathy of Grant county goes out to his wife and loved ones.—Williamstown Courier.

The official stake book and list of entries in the rich stakes to be contested during the 27th annual meeting of the Kentucky Trotting Horse Breeders Association at Lexington next fall, has been issued, and shows that the old association retains all its prestige as the greatest trotting club in the world. There are 542 horses named in the twelve stakes, an average of over 45 to the race and the largest on record. There are 71 in the $16,000 Futurity, 63 in the 2-year-old Futurity, 19 in the $10,000 Transylvania 17 in the $4,000 Tennessee, 60 in the Walnut Hall Cup, 31 in the $3,000 Ashland, 50 in the Blue Grass, 47 in the Johnson, 73 in the West, 40 in the Kentucky, 43 in the Lexington and 38 in the Wilson. The sum of $30,000 in stakes and purses will be offered by the Kentucky Breeders during the meeting, the richest program of the year.

In Kenton Circuit court a suit has been filed which will cause somewhat of a sensation and more than ordinary talk because of the fact that the parties interested are of the most prominent citizens of Covington. The suit is brought by Mrs. Elizabeth N. Kirtley, widow and administratrix of the late John M. Kirtley, the banker who died about three years ago, and it is against Bradford Shinkle, the capitalist. The petition states that the cause of action arose by sale of 125 shares of the Commercial bank, of Cincinnati, at 97½ cents on representation of Mr. Shinkle that the purchase would prove a profitable investment, but which as a matter of fact proved a ruinous one, as the bank failed less than six months after the purchase so that the $5,855 cash paid was lost, and besides Kirtley's estate is now being sued in the United States Court for $6,457 the share of liability incurred by reason of owning said stock. The petition further alleges that Mr. Shinkle's assertions regarding the stock in question were for the purpose of fraud and misleading. Therefore Mrs. Kirtley demands from Mr. Shinkle $15,000 to offset said loss and damage.—Commonwealth.

[Nicholasville Democrat.]

The Cincinnati Tribune, with its usual disregard for truth, assumes to speak for the Democrat, and listen to its tale of woe. It announces that this paper will not support Mr. Goebel for Governor. Holy Moses! The idea of The Democrat bolting the regular nominees of the party! The Janus-faced Tribune might as well imagine itself in Heaven (where it will never be) as that this paper would bolt. In the first place we don't know how to bolt, and in the next place we don't see any cause for any one to bolt. The "special" making this false statement is from Lexington, that bolted of bolters and snolligosters, and is not to be wondered at. Just imagine the ridiculousness of a Democrat refusing to vote for as brainy and able a man as Mr. Goebel and casting his vote for Taylor or some other adherent of the grand old party of Trusts, protection, and corruption. May the Lord protect us from even the suggestion of such a thought, and may he look down with pity as we look with contempt upon such unmitigated liars.

Six men were killed and several wounded in Clay county, Monday.

The Dispatch is in ecstacies. A bolters' convention was held in Mt. Sterling, Monday, and August 2 fixed for a general conference at Lexington.

Stone publishes another card in which in substance he says to Goebel "you're another. Stone indulged in card writing some before the Louisville convention.

Pith of the Press.

Secretary Gage thinks McKinley will be re elected but he couldn't hold his job and think otherwise.—Chicago Record.

Theodore Roosevelt is shrewd enough to know that a great deal of water will run under the bridge before 1904.—Philadelphia Ledger.

We believe that Admiral Sampson is too wise to undertake the job of financing a "Sampson Day" celebration.—Omaha World-Herald.

Mr. Alger was not in Washington when the hero of Juan Hill was consulted by the President on war matters.—Pittsburg Commercial Gazette.

What a slam it would be if the Administration should send William Trailer Sampson out to meet George Dewey.—Memphis Commercial-Appeal.

Governor Roosevelt's appointment as Secretary of War would speedily and definitely bring about the end of the Philippine affair.—N. Y. Herald.

Mr. McKinley is not in a position to hear much truth, as a rule. We trust that the unusual sensation has been agreeable to him.—Washington Times.

We are beginning to fear that Potato Pingree is a triple-plated fraud, and not the emotional humanitarian he would have us believe.—Washington Times.

It has been hinted that Mr. Hanna went to Europe to avoid any danger of collision with the dumdum department of Mr. Kohlsaat's newspaper.—Omaha World Herald.

There is no occasion for any distress over Mr. Reed's disappearance. The ex-Speaker has probably made a new ruling by deciding to avoid newspaper notoriety.—Chicago Tribune.

Hanna should not feel grieved because the people of Europe have failed to understand how very great he is. They are a stupid and unappreciative set at best.—Kansas City Times.

Ex-Governor Hogg, of Texas, will thunder down the ages as the man who punctured the tires of Augustus Van Wyck's boom with Mr. Bryan's hatpin.—N. Y. Mail and Express.

There will be grave danger of the collapse of a pair of suspenders when George Fred Williams undertakes the task of being the whole New England Democracy.—Washington Post.

By all means let Mr. McKinley engage a transport and send Colonel Roosevelt to the Philippines as fast as steam will carry him. He may be the one man who can save the country.—Baltimore Sun.

When last seen Hon. Joseph B. Foraker, of Ohio, had a copy of the Chicago Times-Herald in one hand, the Illinois game laws in the other, with his index finger pointing to the open season for Chicago editors.—Albany Argus.

General Alger will not be forced out of the Cabinet. He will remain as long as he cares to do so. The President will not make the mistake of throwing stones at the glass house in which he himself has the largest proprietary interest.—Chicago Chronicle.

General Grant declared the Mexican War to be unholy, and he believed that our Civil War was a punishment for our part in that struggle. What would he have thought of our war against our allies, the people of the Philippines?—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

FROM OWEN COUNTY.

[Herald.]

Another fatal case of blind staggers, or whatever it is, occurred in Owenton last Thursday morning, Sheriff Alexander's fine black horse being the victim. He, like Mr. Hill's horse, was sick only a short time and nothing could be done for him.

The biggest crop of tobacco ever grown in Grant county was purchased last week by S. K. Lee, of Corinth. It was grown by John Conrad on his farm at Dry Ridge, and is estimated at 130,000 pounds. Mr. Lee paid a round price of 8½ cents per pound for the crop, and it will bring the grower more than $11,000.

Acton Bourne, son of O. B. Bourne, lost a valuable horse last Sunday under peculiar circumstances. He had ridden to Mr. Ben McPherson's and hitched his horse near a beehive, which was overturned in some way. Immediately the animal's head was covered with bees and he was so badly stung that death ensued.

The damage suit of Joe Kyle against W. W. Cassity, in which a verdict for $5,000 was asked by the plaintiff against defendant for alleged alienation of his (plaintiff's) wife's affections, occupied the time of the court Friday and Saturday The jury returned a majority verdict in favor of the defendant.

[News]

The many friends of Mr. Harve Toon will be gratified to know that he has at last obtained a pension and about $500 back pay.

Thos. Gayle says tobacco worms were never more plentiful than this year. A tenant on his place plucked 85 from one plant last week.

As Owenton is soon to have a telephone exchange, a new and magnificient flour mill and connections with the long distance telephone, why not have electric light at once?

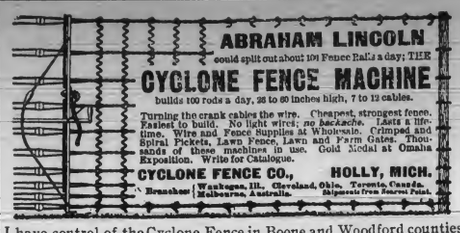
Onnie Bourne, a well-known young farmer living near Pleasant Home, died very suddenly Sunday from hemorrhage, chased by having some teeth pulled a few days previous. He went to Gratz and had several teeth extracted, and bled very freely, fainting several times from the loss of blood. On returning home he continued to grow worse. Finally blood poison set up and he died Sunday morning.

The negro Thos. Leak, was tried last week for the murder of Joe Smith, col., at Cleveland, last Christmas, and was convicted and sentenced to 21 years in the penitentiary.

A writer, signing his name Democrat, has this to say in the Blue Grass Clipper, published at Versailles, Woodford county:

"In view of the fact one year from this time another Presidential contest is to be fought and either won or lost to our party, I think that Democrats should pause long enough before engaging in the skirmish of this year to inform themselves as to facts in every instance where a division of opinion exists involving duty to party. No sound Democrat can afford to commit himself to any line of action that is not based upon truth, and in order to be informed as to the real facts he should not only take time to investigate, but seek men and public prints that are fair and honest for his information. You certainly cannot advance the interests of the party by heeding the advice of a Republican, much less can you afford to be guided by the advice and suggestions of bolters, disappointed politicians and newspapers that would rather sink any party whose policy is not shaped by railroads and other corporations. There is today an effort upon the part of this disgruntled class to disparage the claims of our State ticket, and nothing is left undone or unsaid, regardless of truth, to commit the unsuspecting or bias the credulous against it. Mr. Goebel is the head of the ticket and according to the statement of some of the best men in the State is absolutely clean in all his official acts. Such men as Judge Wm. Pryor and Capt. John Andrew Steele say so, and I would rather act upon their advice than those people who vent their spleen against Goebel in order to defeat the party. Why should a Democrat listen to spleen of a man who calls himself a Democrat and yet has persistently voted the Republican ticket for the last four years, even against poor old Palmer and Buckner, men after the bolters own heart? They have killed themselves and are simply trying to kill the party too. Democrats can hear many good things of Mr. Goebel if they seek the proper source and I trust they will do so."

J. T. MARSHALL,
SALESMAN FOR
F. W. KASSEBAUM & SON,
Manufacturers and Dealers in
Granite and Marble Monuments.
GRANT P. O., KENTUCKY.



Consign your Stock to
Rabenstein, Harris & Conner,
—Live Stock—
COMMISSION MERCHANTS,
COVINGTON STOCK YARDS, Covington, Ky.,
OR UNION STOCK YARDS, Cincinnati, Ohio.
When shipping East bill our care privilege selling Central Covington Stock Yards.
We will make it to your advantage and give your stock special personal attention.

Helms' Barber Shop,
PETERSBURG, KY.
Hair cut 15c, on Saturday 20c; Shave 10c; Shampoo 15c; Sea Foam 5c; Hair Singe 5c; Beard Trim 5c, other work proportionally as low in price. Ladies' and childrens' work a specialty. ☞All work guaranteed satisfactory or money refunded. Hair Oils, Tonics, Perfume, etc., for sale. Thanking all for past favors, I remain, &c.,
EVERETT HELMS, Prop.
LADIES—To the ladies that have not paid us a call, will say, that Thursday is conceded to be their day. Ladies Shampoo 25c; Sea Foam 15c; Bangs trimmed 10c. Hair dressed for special occasions a specialty, at reasonable rates. Courteous treatment is our motto. Give us a call.

SIXTH YEAR OF Walton :-: Academy
—OPENS—
First Monday in September.
First-class instruction in all Common School Branches.
Higher Arithmetic, Elementary and Higher Algebra, Book Keeping, Plain and Solid Geometry, History, Rhetoric and Literature, Physiology, Geography, Physics, Astronomy, Logic and Psychology. Latin includes Cesar, Cicero, Nepos, Virgil. Greek including Beginners, Greek and Xenophon.
Terms:—Tuition and Board in the building, five days in the week, under the care of the teacher, $105.75, for nine months; Board the full week or Music $18.50 additional for the full term.
Mrs. S. H. MYERS, Prin.

A Woman Only Knows
what suffering from failing of the womb, whites, painful or irregular menses, or any disease of the distinctly feminine organs is. A man may sympathise or pity but he can not know the agonies she goes through—the terrible suffering, so nationally borne, which robs her of beauty, hope and happiness. Yet this suffering really is needless.
McELREE'S
Wine of Cardui
will banish it. This medicine cures all "female diseases" quickly and permanently. It does away with humiliating physical examinations. The treatment may be taken at home. There is not continual expense and trouble. The sufferer is cured and stays cured.
Wine of Cardui is becoming the leading remedy for all troubles of this class. It costs but $1 from any druggist.
For advice in cases requiring special directions, address, the "Ladies Advisory Department," The Chattanooga Medicine Co., Chattanooga, Tenn.
MRS. C. J. WEST, Nashville, Tenn., writes:—"This wonderful medicine ought to be in every house where there are girls and women."

Take the Recorder, $1.50 a year.

ABRAHAM LINCOLN
could split out about 101 Fence Rails a day; THE
CYCLONE FENCE MACHINE
builds 100 rods a day, 26 to 60 inches high, 7 to 12 cables.
Turning the crank cables the wire. Cheapest, strongest fence. Easiest to build. No light wires; no backache. Lasts a lifetime. Wire and Fence Supplies at Wholesale. Crimped and Spiral Pickets, Lawn Fence, Lawn and Farm Gates. Thousands of these machines in use. Gold Medal at Omaha Exposition. Write for Catalogue.
CYCLONE FENCE CO., HOLLY, MICH.
Branches: Waukegan, Ill. Cleveland, Ohio. Toronto, Canada. Melbourne, Australia. Shipments from Nearest Point.
I have control of the Cyclone Fence in Boone and Woodford counties. I will build the fence or sell machines to farmers that they may build their own fences. It is the cheapest and best fence that can be built.
Address G. CARTER GRADDY, BULLITTSVILLE, KY.

DR. A. P. WALTON,
DENTIST,
CINCINNATI,
The Lancaster Building 22 W. 7th, Bet. Vine and Race.

INSURE AT HOME
The Farmers' Mutual Fire
INSURANCE COMPANY,
OF BOONE COUNTY,
Is now completely organized and receiving applications for insurance.
Its Rates are Lower
Than those of any other Company and gives the farmers of Boone County
HITHERTO UNKNOWN ADVANTAGE
In keeping their property insured.
EVERY FARMER IN THE COUNTY should take a policy at once.
E. H. BLANKENBECKER, - President, Florence, Ky.
EDGAR CROPPER, - Vice-President.
OSCAR GAINES, Secretary, Burlington.
J. E. DUNCAN, Treasurer.
EXECUTIVE BOARD—Legrand Gaines, J. W. Conner, John Stephens.
J. E. SMITH, Assessor, - Burlington, Ky.
W. M. ROGERS, Agt. - Walton, Ky.

CORNER
Drug Store
Rising Sun, Ind.
Is the place for anything in the Drug Line.
WALL PAPER, PAINTS, WINDOW SHADES.
STATIONERY,
PERFUMES,
FANCY GOODS, &c.
B. F. BUCHANAN,
—DRUGGIST,—
Over thirty year's experience.

FARMERS
Take Notice!
If you want good
Fertilizer
PLEASE GIVE
B. F. ZIMMER
A CALL.
He will try to please you. He has the finest line of Fertilizer for 1899 he has ever handled. Write for particulars to
CONSTANCE, KY.

Central Covington Stock Yards,
COVINGTON, KY.
Are located so as to offer special inducements to shippers South of the Ohio river in saving them extra expense and time. In addition to the local buyers there will be Eastern and foreign buyers on the market for all kinds of stock. When shipping East, don't fail to consign our care privilege selling which will be of benefit to you.
Central Covington Stock Yards Co.
Commission firms will give prompt attention to consignments.

FRANK HOSSMAN,
Hebron, Ky.,
CARPENTER AND BUILDER,
—Also handles all—
KINDS OF ROOFING.
Which is furnished and put on at the Lowest Prices consistent with good work.
I am prepared for moving buildings.
Your Work is Solicited.

Frankfort & Cincinnati Railway.
Ask for tickets via this line. Schedule of trains in effect Dec. 5th, 1898.

P. M.	A. M.		A. M.	P. M.
4.00	8.30	lv Cincinnati ar	10.05	6.00
4.15	7.04	" Ludlow lv	9.55	5.50
4.30	7.18	" Erlanger lv	9.36	5.27
5.18	8.25	Williamstown "	8.45	4.25
5.35	8.49	" Corinth "	8.25	4.03
6.17	10.28	" Georgetwn "	7.50	3.19
6.39	10.50	ar Stam'g Gro'nd	7.28	1.55
7.10	11.20	" Frankfort "	7.00	1.00

JOS. R. NEWTON, G. P. A., Frankfort, Ky.

Subscribe for the Recorder.

D. E. CASTLEMAN,
ATTORNEY - AT - LAW.
BURLINGTON, KY.
Will practice in the Courts of Boone Kenton, Grant and Gallatin. Collections pushed energetically.

G. G. HUGHES,
ATTORNEY AT LAW.
BURLINGTON, KY.
Will practice in all the courts. Prompt attention given to all business entrusted to me.

P. E. CASON,
ATTORNEY - AT - LAW,
BURLINGTON, KY,
Practice in all Courts. Promptness guaranteed.

J. G. TOMLIN,
ATTORNEY - AT - LAW.
WALTON, KENTUCKY.
Will practice in the Courts of Boone, Kenton Grant and Gallatin. Prompt attention given to Collections entrusted to him. mch22-93.

W. E. VEST,
County Surveyor,
BURLINGTON, KY.
Is prepared to do all kinds of Surveying. All orders by mail promptly attended to.

J. M. LASSING. N. E. RIDDELL.
LASSING & RIDDELL,
ATTORNEYS AT LAW.
BURLINGTON, KY.
Prompt Attention Given to Collections

S. GAINES,
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW.
BURLINGTON, KY.
Will practice in all the courts, and prompt attention given collections. Office—In residence near post-office.

S. W. ADAMS,
ATTORNEY - AT - LAW.
ERLANGER, KENTUCKY.
Will practice in the courts of Boone and Kenton counties. Collections and general law practice.

W. E. VEST,
Real Estate Agent.
Farms Bought, Sold or Exchanged, Money to Loan on Real Estate, Notes bought, sold & Negotiated.
☞All communications addressed to W. E. VEST, Burlington, Ky.

BOONE CO. DEPOSIT BANK.
(Incorporated 1856.)
CAPITAL, ... $50,000
Surplus and undivided profits, 20,000
Our facilities enable us to receive on favorable terms accounts of individuals and corporations. Collections promptly remitted for at lowest rates

ERLANGER DEPOSIT BANK.
(INCORPORATED 1893.)
ERLANGER, - - KENTUCKY
CAPITAL PAID IN..... $50,000
SURPLUS,..... $ 8,000
Careful attention given collections and remittances promptly made. Deposit accounts solicited.

Dr. J. L. Adams,
DENTIST,
Walton, Kentucky.
Artificial Dentures, Crown and Bridge Work to represent natural organs.
☞Will be in office at Union every Monday.
Satisfaction - Guaranteed.

JOHN L. VEST,
SURVEYOR
WALTON, KY.
Is prepared to do all kinds of work south of Burlington, Ky. Prompt attention given to all mail orders.

Executor's Notice.

All persons indebted to the estate of L. B. Stephens, deceased, are hereby notified to come forward and settle same; those having claims against said estate must present them to the undersigned proven according to law.

J. D. FRAIZER,
L. D. SHOUSE, Executors.

BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

VOL. XXIV. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, JULY 26, 1899. NO. 40.

THE Republican State Convention declared in favor of cheaper school books, but denounced the bill defeated by the last legislature that was designed to accomplish that end.

FIVE murders in Dearborn county in the last three years.—Lawrenceburg Press.

This county is some times referred to as having a bad record in that particular, but there are others.

ONE of the best editions the Georgetown News ever issued was that of last week. It appropriated about a column of matter from the RECORDER without giving the proper credit. What's got you, Bro. Gaines.

ANOTHER Palmer and Buckner side track into the Republican camp is being laid for the Kentucky Democrats, and it remains to be seen how many of them are going to allow themselves unloaded in the Log Cabin.

MR. ALGER finally yielded to public sentiment and resigned as Secretary of War, notwithstanding he got all he wanted from two whitewashing committees. Gen. Miles still holds his position, and there is no demand for his resignation.

DAY by day the Philippine problem becomes more and more perplexing to the Administration. What it was claimed would only be a small scrap has protracted into a very expensive war as to both men and money, and it seem no nearer a conclusion than it did months ago, and the public is growing restless of the continuance of a trouble which it was promised should soon be disposed of.

IF Kentucky shows up in the Republican column again this fall there will be a lively scramble among the leading members of that party for the U. S. Senatorship, the Deboe faction having the call on that office, in as much as that element is in the saddle in Kentucky. Gov. Bradley would have been a strong candidate, had he not absolutely repudiated the faction that now bosses his party. But the State has not gone Republican again.

SUPPOSE that the recent Democratic convention at Louisville had been called to select delegates to a national Democratic Convention, and that the gentlemen who were named for State offices had, under exactly the same circumstances, been nominated as delegates to a national convention, and that a dissatisfied element in the party had called another convention and nominated another delegation to attend the National Convention, does anyone suppose for an instant that the delegation nominated by the second convention would be allowed seats in the National Convention? Certainly not.

THE Louisville Weekly Dispatch is being circulated free throughout the State, for the purpose of creating dissatisfaction with the Democratic ticket nominated at Louisville. Now, who is paying the expense of this immense gratuitous circulation? Those who are directly concerned in its publication are surely not bearing the heavy expense thus incurred, out of their own pockets, nor are they suspected of using the stockholders' paid up subscriptions, without authority, for that purpose. The opposition to Goebel has not organized and created a fund for the free distribution of the Dispatch. The Populists have no use for that paper as it does not preach their doctrine. Now, who is it that thinks the people of Kentucky should be furnished the Dispatch free because of its fight against the Democratic nominee for Governor? There is but one political organization in the State that can profit by the policy being pursued by the Dispatch, and it is able to furnish it free to every voter in Kentucky, and that is the Republican party; and, in view of all the circumstances, and a statement made by by Dr. Baker, of Louisville, while on a recent visit to this county, it is impossible to reach a conclusion other than that the Republicans are putting up for the free Distribution of the Weekly Dispatch.

A HOUSE OF FATE.

An old inn haunted with tragic memories, which has been the object of so much interest recently, on account of the various happenings there, was erected in 1791 by Colonel Abner Gaines, and is situated on the Covington and Lexington pike road, 1 mile north of the town of Walton. It was formerly called Gaines' Cross Roads and the Postoffice for many years previous to the removal of the office to Walton. The Postoffice took its name from Colonel Gaines. Colonel Gaines was one of the pioneers of the community, having settled there when the whole surrounding country was one vast wilderness. He acquired a large area of land and subsequently became a very wealthy man, and the property remained in the Gaines family through four generations. Colonel Gaines conducted the house as an inn, or tavern, and it was also a station for the stage coach which ran between Covington and Lexington. It had frequently for its guests such men as Henry Clay, Richard M. Johnson (who was afterwards Vice President of the United States), the elder Breckinridge and many others equally as prominent.

The house is a plain three-story brick front, with extension of frame, contains eighteen rooms and a ballroom, thirty-five feet in length. Colonel Gaines had two sons, the elder of whom became famous as a General in the Mexican War. When the Mexican war broke out John Gaines was made Captain of a cavalry company. It proceeded to Mexico overland. From Kentucky to Mexico General Gaines rode a favorite horse called Black Sultan. A remarkable incident of his experience in the Mexican War was that after a long imprisonment he sought and found Black Sulton, rode him during the war and with its close rode the same horse back to his home in Kentucky.

General Gaines served through the war on the staff of General Winfield Scott and went with General Scott's army to the City of Mexico. He was elected several times to Congress and was appointed Territorial Governor of Oregon by President Zackary Taylor. At that time it was a difficult matter to get to the Pacific Coast. General Gaines went by way of New Orleans by steamer. During the voyage two of his chifdren were stricken with yellow fever, died and were buried at sea. He afterwards returned to Kentucky and settled there at the old homestead. While living there, his wife, when riding on horseback in company with several others, was thrown from her horse and instantly killed. This was the beginning of the many tragic happenings afterward connected with this place,

A few years after this a traveler named Benjamin Runyan stopped over night at the tavern. As he failed to appear the next morning a servant was sent in search of him. Unable to arouse him he entered the room and found Runyan stiff and cold and dead. He had shot himself during the the night.

In the latter 40,s the mansion became famous for a lavish style of entertainment. It was frequently the scene of great festivities. During the progress of a ball one night a tragedy occurred which is still fresh in the memories of many old citizens. Two young men, Robert Harrison and William Northcutt, were suitors for the hand of the same young lady. Both were popular in society and of good parentage. The Harrisons were especially prominent socially because of their relation to the Breckinridges and to the Harrison family of which ex-President Harrison is a member. The father of Robert Harrison was a Presbyterian minister, the Rev. Joseph Cabell Harrison. Possessed of wealth, social position and good looks, although slightly eccentric in manner, Robert Harrison soon became the favored of the two suitors, which so enraged Northcutt that he determined to seek revenge. Harrison who was bald-headed, was extremely sensitive upon this point and always wore a wig. During the evening in question, while the guests were dancing, Northcutt approached Harrison, who was dancing with a young lady, snatched off his wig and threw it upon the floor. Harrison uttered not a word, but quickly turned upon his heel, drew a Spanish dagger and plunged it to the hilt in the heart of Northcutt, who fell lifeless to the floor.

The tragic event brought the ball to a sudden close. Harrison had the sympathy of all present and of the entire community. Public sentiment was so much in his favor that he was never arrested for the deed. The memory of the crime, however, seemed to overshadow his life and the slight eccentricity of manner before mentioned became in later life a distinguishing characteristic. He never married, abjured women's society and became in fact almost a recluse. He died suddenly and alone some two years since in Covington.

In the years that followed the mansion continued popular as a hostelry. When General Kirby Smith's army was encamped on the Lexington pike south of Covington it was made the headquarters of General Smith and his staff, among whom was Colonel J. M. Arnold, who is at present freight agent for the Cincinnati Division Queen & Crescent Railway.

In 1869 the house passed into the possession of Jerry R. Glenn, father of D. A. Glenn, present Commonwealth's Attorney of the Sixth Judicial District of Kentucky. With the occupancy of the house by Mr. Glenn there was wont to gather under its hospitable roof many men past the prime of life, who, having a taste for the chase, had not the leisure to indulge it, and with it the inevitable quiet game of cards after nightfall. Prominent among these was Major John A. Goodson, father-in-law of Hon. John G. Carlisle. One evening of March, 1869, Major Goodson whiled away the evening hours as usual and retired to his room. Presently the report of a gun shot startled the inmates. Intuitively hastening to the room of Major Goodson, the same in which Ben Runyan had taken his life forty years before, they found him lying upon the floor, dead, shot through the heart. He had evidently placed the gun on the bed, knelt in front of it and reaching the trigger with his cane discharged the weapon. The act was attributed to heavy financial losses incident to oil speculations in Southern Kentucky.

With the building of the L. & N. and the Cincinnati Southern Railways to the front and rear of the mansion the place was purchased by Robert Cleek and used thereafter only as a private residence.

Shortly after this young Joe Blackburn of Walton, while walking on the track of the Southern watching the passage of an L. & N. train, failed to hear the warning whistle of an approaching train on the Southern and was instantly killed, in full view of the house.

In the fall of 1877 Parker Mayo (colored), who was a prisoner for assault of a white woman, was taken from the Sheriff of the county and hanged to an oak tree 300 yards north of the house. Under this same tree Chas. Smith (colored) was also hanged soon after Smith had been alternately employed in the neighborhood by Lucien Stephens and Justice Hudson, and having been discharged by each, set fire to Hudson's barn heavily stocked with farm produce, cattle and horses. While the family were endeavoring to save the stock from the burning barn Smith robbed the house, ran to Lucien Stephens, fired his barn and escaped into Indiana. With capture, Judge Linch was the executioner.

In 1863 the tollgate in the immediate vicinity was kept by Hugh Ingram. Some years previous to this Ingram had been bitten by a mad dog. In mortal dread of hydrophobia, he often threatened suicide. Particularly was this noticeable with annual recurrence of the date on which he was bitten. At one such time slipping out of the tollhouse at night unknown to his family, he took his life by hanging himself to the railroad bridge over the Cincinnati Southern but a few yards distant from the old inn.

In 1892 Miss Elizabeth Rice, maiden sister of Mrs. Robt. Cleek, who at that time lived on the place, committed suicide in the yard by pouring coal oil over her clothing and setting fire to it. Her mind was thought to be unbalanced. Twenty years before this her father had burned himself to death in the same way.

The property is at present owned and occupied by J. C. Byland, a nephew of Wm. Northcutt, who was killed by Robert Harrison.

An historical incident of some interest in connection with the place is that in September, 1876, the great prize fight between Joe Goss and Tom Allen for the world's championship took place immediately south of and within a thousand yards of the inn.

EMMA LOOK SCOTT.

State News.

Green Reynolds, of Columbia, was run over by a loaded log wagon, and was badly hurt.

Robert Gilmore, aged 81, who died in Pulaski, it is said, never shaved in his life, and his face was as smooth and devoid of hair as that of a woman.

Gov. Bradley has appointed Hon. James D. Black, of Barbourville, special judge to try Henry Pennington on the charge of murder in Leslie county.

Joe Vickers started to climb out of a well at Williamsburg, when he was overcome by damps, and fell back a distance of 18 feet, seriously injuring him.

A Spencer county pastor prayed for a rain to break up the drought that was rapidly destroying vegetation, and in a few days a genuine root-soaker and gully-washer came.

Jim Wood, of the Cave City country, shot a crane near his home, one day last week, that measured 7½ feet from tip to tip. It was the first bird of the kind killed in that community for many years.

W. J. Gilmore, of Danville, is using some leaf tobacco which is 36 years old. The tobacco was stored away in the attic of J. H. Hutchings' residence during the war, and was not found until some time ago.

A Filipino bullet was removed from the breast of Capt. Chas. D. Clay by surgeons at Lexington. He was wounded while leading a charge. It had lodged near the heart and pus had formed around it which would have killed the captain within a month. The operation appears to have been successful.

At a meeting of the Methodist State Missionary Board at Greenville recently, Miss Lulu Hutcherson, of Glasgow, was chosen as a foreign missionary. Miss Hutcherson will leave shortly for Kansas City, Mo., where she will spend a year in a training school for missionaries, and will then probably go to Corea to promulgate the Gospel.

Mr. Columbus Bishop, of the Shelby City section, who is fifty-seven years old and worth something less than a million, has the first dime he ever made and, very naturally, prizes it very highly. He earned it dropping corn on the Eph Bishop farm in Pulaski, 11 miles from Somerset, some forty-five years ago and it has proven a most excellent luck-piece to him. —Stanford Interior Journal.

Mrs. Bettie Smith, of Whitewood, had a regular old turkey and rattlesnake occurrence at her home last week. The snake ventured into the turkey's nest where a little brood of eleven had made their advent, and he succeeded in swallowing five of the little ones while the old turkey was devoting her time to his majesty, which ended by her coming out victorious, she having killed and dragged him from the nest just as he swallowed the fifth turkey. —Greensburg Record.

Sam Coles, of this city, has invented a machine for making tobacco hills, by the use of which a man can make tobacco or cabbage hills as fast as his horse can walk. The machine pulverizes and packs the hill as it goes. One of the most remarkable facts connected with the subject is that Mr. Coles has been blind for eleven years, and never saw a tobacco hill in his life. The machine was patented by Dr. Alexander, of Farmington, and will undoubtedly prove a great financial success.—Maysfield Index-Democrat.

Quite a romance of the war in Cuba has come to light in Middlesboro. Joe Greene, who was in the regular army, had his arm shot off in the battle of Santiago. During his confinement he was nursed by Miss May Malson, of Windsor, Canada, who was a member of the Red Cross Society. Greene was sent from Cuba to the hospital at Detroit, and there he again was taken care of by Miss Malson. They fell in love, and their marriage followed after his being released. He kept the marriage a profound secret until the arrival of the young lady from her home in Canada.

The drouth which was beginning to assume alarming proportions, is broken, at least in this section of the country. Last Sunday afternoon a heavy rain storm rolled up from the west. For about an hour, mid blinding flashes of lightning, the rain fell in torrents, irrigating the land and causing the sick-looking corn and tobacco to look better. In the evening a soft, drizzling rain set in, which continued nearly all night. Prospects for all kinds of crops are excellent, and with a few more rains, well distributed, this will be a banner year for the farmer in this county.—Williamstown Courier.

POLITICAL.

Senator Deboe and Lindsay cannot agree as to the census appointments for Kentucky.

Senator Deboe says he does not think that there will be any joint debates between Goebel and Taylor.

The Republican State Convention in Kentucky was as harmonious as a cemetery and orderly as a morgue.—Albany Argus.

The Louisville and Nashville Railroad employes held an anti-Goebel meeting in Covington, one night last week, and organized to fight him.

The Republican machine ground out a candidate for Governor at Lexington last week, to be ground up by the Goebel machine in November.—Georgetown Times.

Goebel has made 75 speeches in this State, advocating the nomination of Bryan for President in 1900, and he will make as many more between now and the November election.

The Republican negroes of Kentucky propose to have a State ticket of their own this year. The wonder is they did not get ashamed of their white brethren long ago.—Kansas City Times.

A good many surprises have come out of Kentucky of late, but none greater than the fact that the Democratic candidate for Governor this year is a total abstainer.—Providence Journal.

The mugwump press is greatly agitated because the platform of the Kentucky Republicans indorses Poesident McKinley's civil-service policy. But the Kentucky Republicans know what they are about.—Evening Wisconsin.

The national platform declared that there should be no step backward. The Kentucky Republicans repudiate the platform and indorse McKinley's step backward. It tells the whole story of broken faith.—Pittsburg Post.

J. C. S. Blackburn sent this telegram to a friend in Winchester, Clark county, on the 18th inst: "No Democrat could countenance the effort to hold a bolting convention. Our party's ticket should have every Democrat's support."

Judge Eli H, Brown and Mrs. L. P. Tanner, of Owensboro, are put down for speeches at an alleged bolters' convention to be held at Bowling Green. Both these gentlemen have announced that they will support the Democratic State ticket nominated at Louisville, although they were for Hardin before the nomination for Governor was made.—Owensboro Messenger.

The sincerity of the average Republican declaration against trusts can be measured against the declarations of the Kentucky platform which declares that in suppressing trusts the party will have due regard for the interests of legitimate business. As all trusts are doing a legitimate business, from a Republican standpoint, there will be no attempt at suppression in Kentucky.—Fort Worth Register.

There are greater dangers to Kentucky than those involved in what is termed Goebelism. Hannaism is decidedly worse viewed from any standpoint. The triumph of Taylor would mean a Taylor victory with all its concomitant evils. The Democrats who are not pleased with Goebel's nomination should consider what would inevitably follow the defeat of the Democratic nominee.—Jackson (Tenn.) Sun.

The Cincinnati Post in the issue of the 11th, reported Mr. June W. Gayle at the Lexington convention along with Mr. Owens working for the nomination of Mr. Yerkes for Governor. Mr. Gayle authorizes the News to say that while in Lexington the night of the 11th, he left at 8 o'clock the following day; did not discuss politics with any Republican; did not see Mr. Owens and doesn't know Mr. Yerkes, and that the article, so far as concerns him is false and without foundation. He is for the ticket.—Owen News.

The following interview with Capt. W. H. Baker, of Erlanger, appeared in Monday's Enquirer:

"There is some dissatisfaction over our way over the Louisville Convention, but it will all have disappeared long before the November election. I wanted to beat Goebel with a Democrat but with a Republican never. Boone County Democrats never bolted in their history, and they will not begin that sort of thing now. An angel as an independent couldn't get Democrats in that old citadel of the Democracy. I believe that if we could have got out our full strength in Boone we could have carried it for Hardin, but we didn't, and I am frank to say that the County Convention at Burlington was held on the level and Goebel won it fairly and squarely and we have no grounds whatever for complaint. It was not the business of the Goebel men to hunt up and fetch in the Hardin forces. We are now for the ticket straight through, and it will be elected.

"You have been pretty near the Congressional nomination in your district; have you an idea of running again?"

"I am not a candidate for any office, and don't expect to be. At my time of life it would be very foolish for me to enter politics, but I am always for my party. No bolting or Republicanism for me. Never."

THERE has been but one election held under what is known as the Goebel law, and no fairer election was ever held in Kentucky, neither party having made any complaints of the working of the law in that election. In one Congressional District last fall the result at the polls was close, and the Democrats threw out a precinct on a technical irregularity, electing the Democratic candidate. From the decision of the County Board of Election Commissioners the Republicans appealed to the State Board, which reversed the County Board, and gave the Republican the certificate of election. This is the only instance in which the law has been called upon to decide between the two parties, and it stepped in and protected the Republicans in their rights. In this instance the Democrats had an opportunity to use the law for the purpose for which its opponents say it was expressly enacted, and steal a Congressman, but the law was executed with the same faithfulness that other laws are, and as long as that is the case there is no room for complaint, and its execution may never fall to those who see in it a broad field for the perversion of the will of the voters as expressed at the polls. Any law can be used improperly when the persons to whose power its enforcement is delegated abuse their authority.

THROWING cold water on the nominees of the party is no support, and many are now making records of that kind.

W. J. BRYAN will come to Kentucky and make several speeches for the Democratic ticket.

TRICKERY IN TRADE.

Rev. Dr. Talmage Contrasts It with Fair Dealing.

Condemns Business Processes by Which Values Are Misrepresented—Many Merchants Models of Integrity.

[Copyright, Louis Klopsch, 1899.]

Trickery and trickery in business life form the subject of Dr. Talmage's sermon to-day, and the contrast he establishes between the two is a striking one. The text is Proverbs 20:14: "It is naught, it is naught, said the buyer, but when he is gone his way, then he boasteth."

Palaces are not such prisons as the world imagines. If you think that the only times kings and queens come forth from the royal gates is in procession and gorgeously attended you are mistaken. Incognito, by day or by night, and clothed in citizen's apparel or the dress of a working woman, they come out and see the world as it is. In no other way could King Solomon, the author of my text, have known everything that was going on. From my text I am sure he must in disguise some day have walked into a store of ready-made clothing in Jerusalem and stood near the counter and heard a conversation between a buyer and a seller. The merchant put a price on a coat, and the customer began to dicker and said: "Absurd! That coat is not worth what you ask for it. Why, just look at the coarseness of the fabric! See that spot on the collar! Besides that, it does not fit. Twenty dollars for that? Why, it is not worth more than ten dollars. They have a better article than that and for lower price down at Clothem, Fitem & Bros. Besides that, I don't want it at any price. Good morning." "Hold," says the merchant; "do not go off in that way. I want to sell you that coat. I have some payments to make and I want the money. Come, now, how much will you give for that coat?" "Well," says the customer, "I will split the difference. You asked $20 and I said $10. Now, I will give you $15." "Well," said the merchant, "it is a great sacrifice, but take it at that price."

Then the customer with a roll under his arm started to go out and enter his own place of business, and Solomon in disguise followed him. He heard the customer as he unrolled the coat say: "Boys, I have made a great bargain. How much do you guess I gave for that coat?" "Well," says one, wishing to compliment his enterprise, "you gave $30 for it." Another says: "I should think you got it cheap if you gave $24." "No," says the buyer, in triumph; "I got it for $15. I beat him down and pointed out the imperfections until I really made him believe it was not worth hardly anything. It takes me to make a bargain. Ha, ha!" O man, you got the goods for less than they were worth by positive falsehood, and no wonder, when Solomon went back to his palace and had put off his disguise, that he sat down at his writing desk and made for all ages a crayon sketch of you. "It is naught, it is naught, saith the buyer, but when he is gone his way, then he boasteth."

There are no higher styles of men in all the world than those now at the head of mercantile enterprises in the great cities of this continent. Their casual promise is as good as a bond with piles of collaterals. Their good reputation for integrity is as well established as that of Petrarch residing in the family of Colonna. It is related that when there was great disturbance in the family the cardinal called all his people together and put them under oath to tell the truth, except Petrarch. When he came up to swear the cardinal put away his book and said: "As for you, Petrarch, your word is sufficient." Never since the world stood have there been so many merchants whose transactions can stand the test of the Ten Commandments. Such bargain makers are all the more to be honored because they have withstood year after year temptations which have flung so many flat and flung them so hard they can never, never recover themselves. While all positions in life have powerful besetments to evil, there are specific forms of allurement which are peculiar to each occupation and profession, and it will be useful to speak of the peculiar temptations of business men.

First, as in the scene of the text, business men are often tempted to sacrifice plain truth, the seller by exaggerating the value of the goods and the buyer by depreciating them. We cannot but admire an expert salesman. See how he first induces the customer into a mood favorable to the proper consideration of the value of the goods. He shows himself to be an honest and frank salesman. How carefully the lights are arranged till they fall just right upon the fabric! Beginning with goods of medium quality, he gradually advances toward those of more thorough make and of more attractive pattern. How he watches the moods and whims of his customer! With what perfect calmness he takes the order and bows the purchaser from his presence, who goes away having made up his mind that he has bought the goods at a price which will allow him to make a living margin when he again sells them! The goods were worth what the salesman said they were and were sold at a price which will not make it necessary for the house to fail every ten years in order to fix up things.

